

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

HL 5KIP K

701

Recd. July, 1906

HARVARD LAW LIBRARY

Received Aug. 20, 1887

may 26

32

THE
AMERICAN AND ENGLISH
ENCYCLOPÆDIA
OF
LAW.

COMPILED UNDER THE EDITORIAL SUPERVISION OF

JOHN HOUSTON MERRILL,

Late Editor of the American and English Railroad Cases and the American and English Corporation Cases.

VOLUME I.

NORTHPORT, LONG ISLAND, N. Y.:
EDWARD THOMPSON,
LAW PUBLISHER.

1887.

S
US
013
9ML

7X
A 5123 6

COPYRIGHT, 1886,
BY EDWARD THOMPSON.

Rec. Aug. 20, 1887.

DRUMMOND & NEU,
Printers,
1 to 7 Hague Street,
NEW YORK.

PREFACE.

---

IT is the purpose of this work to supply in convenient form the whole body of modern law. There are several excellent law dictionaries: but this is not a law dictionary. There are countless text-books upon every branch of the law, but only large law libraries can supply them all. Even in libraries the very wealth of material is confusing. Chief-Justice Sharswood once remarked, "The difficulty, in our profession, is not so much to know the law, as to know where to find it." The investigations of those engaged upon this work have led to the belief that it will be practicable to produce within the compass of comparatively few volumes a real Encyclopædia of Law. In so novel an undertaking the plan adopted should be entitled to explanation and consideration.

Even the best text-books devote valuable space to what is of little practical use to the profession. Page after page of argument, of the author's individual opinion, or of comparison of cases, the busy lawyer seldom reads. His search is for the fountain-heads of the law,—the cases themselves. However much he may respect, and on occasion carefully study, the arguments and opinions of the text-writer, the chief daily use of his library of text-books is as digests to the cases. It is therefore believed that among books which are the products of the ablest minds, and the results of years of study, a practical law library of accepted principles of law, supported by the citation of many if not of all the cases on the various subjects, will have its place. The accomplishment of this purpose within a reasonable compass involved a modification of the style in which most text-books are written. The whole body of the law is divided into such titles as seem capable of separate treatment. In the choice of these, prominence has been given to subjects upon which no text-book has been written, or which have received only incidental and perhaps meagre treatment in standard works. Every title which is not practical, or which belongs to the obsolete or purely local law, is rejected. In the subdivision of branches of the law the effort has been to make the arrangement of the work really alphabetical. Thus, instead of devoting a volume to the subject of CORPORATIONS, for example, what belongs to that law will be found under such heads as AMOTION, BENEFICIAL or BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATIONS, BUILDING ASSOCIATIONS, STOCK ASSESSMENT, STOCK TRANSFER, etc. So the reader need not search through a long title on INSURANCE to find a special treatment of ACCIDENT INSURANCE, nor through such titles as DEEDS, MORTGAGES, etc., for the law of ACKNOWLEDGMENTS. In the preparation of an article a careful and logical analysis is first insisted upon. This forms a summary of what follows and makes reference to the sub-headings easier. Further subdivisions in the notes are marked by catch-words at the beginning of paragraphs. The text itself is made as concise as a full and clear statement of the law will allow, the aim being to use not one unnecessary word, and to have the text occupy but a small portion of each page. The bulk of the work consists of notes. They fill so large a proportion of the space as to make the amount of material in a volume very large. They differ from the ordinary text-book notes in being much more than simple collections of cases which must be examined to determine the correctness of the statements in the text. A short summary of the facts of a case, an extract from an opinion, or the writer's own synopsis of the points decided will often furnish to the reader who has not time or opportunity to examine the report itself, all that he desires. In the skill and accuracy with which this is done will lie much of the value of the work. The space gained by these peculiarities of style makes possible a very complete collection of cases upon each topic treated. Where the cases upon a given point are so numerous as to render a selection necessary, choice is made of such examples as will put the local practitioner in possession of the line of decisions of special value to him. The citations are made with great care, the aim being to collate as many of the cases as is possible, and particularly to secure all the leading and latest cases up to the date of publication. Conflicting decisions are noted and, if possible, the views held in the different States pointed out. Appended to every article of any length will be found a list of such text-books, law articles, notes to series of annotated reports, etc., as have been used in its preparation, which will serve the double purpose of making proper acknowledgment to authors and referring the reader to all sources of information.

w

PREFACE.

PREFACE.

A feature of the work which seems worthy of particular mention is the collection of adjudged words and phrases. Many of these will be found valuable as presenting an authoritative definition of the legal meaning of words and phrases.

The novelty of the plan and, it is believed, its practicability will be conceded. The work must speak for itself. It is only fair, however, to those engaged upon the undertaking, that the Editor should add a word of explanation. While the work only professes to be a compilation, and all original ideas and personal opinions are rigidly excluded, there is room left for the display of much literary skill in the selection and arrangement of material, and for the exercise of great industry and intelligence in opening up paths through what have proved in many cases to be almost untrodden fields. If the profession find in this work a value commensurate with the diligence and care bestowed upon it by a staff of writers most of whom have already met with a favorable reception, and some of whom have taken high rank as authorities upon particular branches, the credit is due to them.

J. H. M.

PHILADELPHIA. PA.

April 1, 1887.

THE AMERICAN AND ENGLISH ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF LAW.

“A”—The particle “A” is not necessarily a singular term; it is often used in the sense of “any,” and is then applied to more than one individual object.<sup>1</sup>

ABANDON—ABANDONMENT. See ADVERSE POSSESSION; DIVORCE; EASEMENT; EMINENT DOMAIN; FIXTURES; HIGHWAYS; HOMESTEAD; INSURANCE; MINES AND MINING; PERSONAL PROPERTY; PUBLIC LANDS; SHIPPING.

1. Definition.—The relinquishment or surrender of rights or property by one person to another.<sup>2</sup> A giving up; a total desertion.<sup>3</sup> Absolute relinquishment.<sup>4</sup> Abandonment includes both the intention to abandon and the external act by which the intention is carried into effect.<sup>5</sup>

1. Nat. Union Bank v. Copeland, 141 Mass. 257.

“A” See.—After the sailing of a vessel, an agent for insurers inserted in the “live-cattle clause” of a policy issued to cover such vessel, among the dangers insured against, any loss occasioned by “a sea.” Held, that this did not limit insured to a loss occasioned by the force of a single wave, and that where cattle were carried between decks, and were injured by the tossing of the ship by heavy waves, it would render insurers liable. Snowden v. Guion, 101 N. Y. 458.

“A” Room that is Improved and Suitable.—A written contract to furnish “a room that is improved and suitable” for a certain purpose is fulfilled by furnishing such a room, and parol testimony is not admissible to show that some particular room was intended by the contracting parties. Thompson v. Stewart, 60 Iowa, 223.

“A” Year's Rent.—“One year's rent” and “a year's rent” are used in the statute to denote the amount of rent to be distrained for in the one case and to be paid or secured in the other. And it matters not for what year it accrued, or whether it was before or after the creation of the lien, or whether or not other rents may have accrued after the lien was created and been paid by the tenants. As long as any rent arising under the tenancy remains unpaid by the persons liable therefor, as soon as it becomes due the person entitled to it may distrain the goods for an amount not exceeding the rent for a year. Wades v. Figgatt, 75 Va. 575.

“A” Railroad leading to M. embraces not only a railroad whose line reaches M. or “terminates” at that place, but a railroad connecting either directly or by way of another railroad whose line reaches M. and “terminates” at that place. State v. Hastings, 24 Minn. 78. See Hostrup v. Madison City, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 291.

2. Bouvier's Law Dict.

3. Stormonth's Dict.

4. Webster's Dict.

5. As where an article is thrown away. McGoon v. Ankeny, 11 Ill. 558. It may be inferred from mere lapse of time. Brentlinger v. Huchison, 1 Watts (Pa.), 46. See Smoot v. Wathen, 8 Mo. 522.

To constitute an abandonment there must be the concurrence of the intention to abandon, and the actual relinquishment of the property, so that it may be appropriated by the next comer. Judson v. Malloy, 40 Cal. 299.

Intent.—As intent is the essence of abandonment, the facts of each particular case are for the jury. 2 Washb. Real Prop. (4th ed.) 370; 40 Am. Dec. 464; n., Dyer v. Sanford, 9 Metc. (Mass.) 395; Clemmins v. Gotshall, 4 Yeates (Pa.), 330; Miller v. Cresson, 5 Watts & S. (Pa.) 284; Heath v. Biddle, 9 Pa. St. 273; Wiggins v. McCleary, 49 N. Y. 346; Bell v. Smith, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 98; Wilson v. Pearson, 20 Ill. 81; McGoon v. Ankeny, 11 Ill. 558; Hazelbaker v. Goodfellow, 64 Ill. 238; Taylor v.

Property is said to be abandoned when it is thrown away, or its possession is voluntarily forsaken by the owner, in which case it will become the property of the first occupant; or when it is involuntarily lost or left without the hope and expectation of again acquiring it, and then it becomes the property of the finder, subject to the superior claim of the owner; except that in salvage cases, by the admiralty law, the finder may hold possession until he is paid his compensation, or till the property is submitted to legal jurisdiction for the ascertainment of the compensation.<sup>1</sup>

Hampton, 4 McC. (S. Car.) 96; Parkins v. Dunham, 3 Strob. (S. Car.) 224; Banks v. Banks, 77 N. Car. 186; Weill v. Lucerne M. Co., 11 Nev. 200; Myers v. Spooner, 55 Cal. 257; Marquart v. Bradford, 43 Cal. 526; Smith v. Cushing, 41 Cal. 97; Bell v. Red Rock, etc., Co., 36 Cal. 214; Moon v. Rollins, 36 Cal. 333; Davis v. Perley, 30 Cal. 630; Roberts v. Unger, 30 Cal. 676; Masson v. Anderson, 59 Tenn. 290; Landis v. Perkins, 14 Mo. 238. See Sample v. Robb, 16 Pa. St. 305; Atchinson v. McCulloch, 5 Watts (Pa.), 13.

Where the owner of a tannery sold it, but forgot to remove some hides which had been placed in the vats for tanning, and some years afterwards they were found, held, they were not abandoned. Livermore v. White, 74 Me. 452; s. c., 43 Am. Rep. 600.

Plaintiff raked into heaps, intending to remove it, manure that had accumulated in a street the fee of which was in the borough. Before he could do so, and within twenty-four hours, defendant carted it away. Held, that plaintiff could maintain trover; that the manure originally belonged to the travellers whose animals had dropped it, but was abandoned by them. Haslem v. Lockwood, 37 Conn. 500; s. c., 9 Am. Rep. 500.

An abandonment of realty will be presumed where the party leaves no property or improvement to indicate his intention to return and resume the occupancy of the land; as, for instance, buildings, though not occupied, kept in good repair; and fields, though not under immediate cultivation, kept properly fenced, so as to exclude marauding cattle. Burke v. Hammond, 76 Pa. St. 172.

Where a vessel was sunk in November, and was found by the defendants in the following August, a verdict that the property was abandoned at the time when converted by the defendants was sustained. Wyman v. Hurlburt, 12 Ohio, 82.

Property sunk in a steamboat and unclaimed for twenty years held to be abandoned. Creery v. Breedlove, 12 La. Ann. 745. See Eads v. Brazelton, 22 Ark. 429.

The payment of taxes by the defendant is no evidence of abandonment by the plaintiff. Davis v. Perley, 30 Cal. 630. See Keene v. Cannovan, 21 Cal. 291; Mayor v. Riddle, 25 Pa. St. 259.

A gift is not an abandonment. Richardson v. McNulty, 24 Cal. 339.

Abandonment of property divests the owner of his title therein, and the finder who reduces the same to possession after such abandonment is not guilty of conversion. Wyman v. Hurlburt, 12 Ohio, 81; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 461.

Wherever abandonment can take effect, it simply destroys the title and does not vest it in another. A bargain to give up an equitable claim may work an abandonment, but the bargainee acquires no title by the bargain. A legal title, properly vested, can only be divested by abandonment, when the circumstances of the case are sufficient to raise an estoppel, or where the possession is acquired by one in consequence of the abandonment, and held by him under claim of title for the period of limitation. The title, although not lost by abandonment, would be barred by estoppel or by the Statute of Limitations. The voluntary abandonment would not prevent the possession of another from becoming adverse to the real owner, though the abandonment was expressly made for his benefit and to him. But where the abandonment is not accompanied by the circumstances of estoppel or limitation, no matter how formal the abandonment was, if it fell short of a legal deed of conveyance, it has no effect whatsoever upon the legal title. The owner may afterward re-enter and eject any one who may have entered into possession in reliance upon the abandonment. Tiedeman Real Prop. § 739.

1. Eads v. Brazelton, 22 Ark. 499.

2. In Divorce.—It is the act of wilfully leaving a wife, with intent to cause a palpable separation from her, and implies an actual desertion of the wife by the husband.<sup>1</sup> (See DIVORCE.)

3. Office.—An office created by statute can only be abandoned in the manner prescribed by statute.<sup>2</sup>

4. Insurance.—In marine insurance abandonment is effected by giving express and unconditional notice to the underwriter within a reasonable time after the assured has received intelligence of the loss, and its effect is to transfer the whole property and interest in the thing insured to the underwriter.<sup>3</sup> (See INSURANCE, MARINE.)

5. Of Rights.—Is where a person ceases to exercise a right. The term is principally used with reference to easements, profits à prendre, and similar rights, which may be extinguished by non-user for a certain number of years; but the non-user must be of such a nature as to show an intention to abandon the right, as where it amounts to an acquiescence in an unlawful interruption.<sup>4</sup>

6. For Torts.—Is the transfer of an animal or slave which has injured a person, in discharge of the owner's liability.<sup>5</sup>

7. Of Child.—If one exposes or abandons a child, incapable of taking care of itself, to cold or wet, whereby it receives an injury, he is indictable for misdemeanor; or if the child dies, for a felonious homicide.<sup>6</sup>

1. Stanbrough v. Stanbrough, 60 Ind. 275.

2. For a judge to say he abandons his office, or to neglect its duties, or to engage in the practice of law contrary to a statute, will not constitute an abandonment of his office. State v. Seay, 64 Mo. 89.

The acceptance of the office of justice of the peace for the township of T. while holding that office for the precinct of L. vacates and is an abandonment of the latter. Eddy v. Peoria County, 15 Ill. 375.

3. Sweet's Law Dict. The principle is applicable in fire insurance, where there are remnants, and sometimes also under stipulations in life policies in favor of creditors. Bouvier's Law Dict.; 2 Phillips on Ins. §§ 1490, 1514, 1515. (See INSURANCE, FIRE.)

4. Sweet's Law Dict.; 2 Washb. Real Pr. 83-85. See Dyer v. Sanford, 9 Metc. (Mass.) 395; Emerson v. Wiley, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 310; William v. Nelson, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 141; Canney v. Andrews, 123 Mass. 155; Parkins v. Dunham, 3 Strob. (S. Car.) 224; Carlisle v. Cooper, 4 C. E. Green (N. J.) 261; Crain v. Fox, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 184; Corning v. Gould, 16

Wend. (N. Y.) 531; Davis v. Gale, 32 Cal. 27; Dyer v. Depui, 5 Whart. (Pa.) 584; Mowry v. Sheldon, 2 R. I. 369.

5. Brown's Law Dict.; Bouvier's Law Dict.; Hynson v. Meullon, 2 La. Ann. 798; Arnoult v. Deschappelles, 4 Id. 41.

6. 1 Bishop's Cr. L. (7th ed.) §§ 557, 583. B, A's wife, living apart from A, leaves C, their child, nine months old, lying in the road outside A's door. A, knowing its position, lets it lie there from 7 P.M. till 1 A.M. A's mother, D, knowing the child is there, and being in her house, acts in the same way as A. A has abandoned and exposed C; but D has not, as she was under no legal obligation to take charge of C. A sends B, her child, five weeks of age, packed up in a hamper as a parcel, by railway to C, B's putative father, giving directions to the clerk to be very careful of the hamper and send it by the next train. The child reaches C safely. A has abandoned and exposed B. Stephen's Dig. Cr. L. (Am. ed.) 202; R. v. Falkingham, L. R. 1 C. C. 222.

It does not mean a mere temporary absence from home, or temporary neglect of parental duty. State v. Davis, 70 Mo. 467.

8. What may be.—Possession of land<sup>1</sup> (see ADVERSE POSSESSION). Proceedings to condemn land<sup>2</sup> (see EMINENT DOMAIN).

1. To constitute an abandonment of land there must be a concurrence of the act of leaving the premises vacant, so that they may be appropriated by the next-comer, and the intention of not returning. If the intention was not manifested by leaving the possession vacant, without the intention of returning, there was no abandonment. Judson v. Malloy, 40 Cal. 309.

2. Abandonment of Condemnation Proceedings.—Condemnation proceedings may be abandoned by the corporation conducting them with even greater freedom than a plaintiff in an ordinary suit can take a nonsuit and discontinue. There are several reasons for this. It is often entirely in the discretion of the corporation, especially if it be a municipality, whether it will open the road sought to be condemned, and even after opening it the corporation may vacate the road and close it. Again, before payment of compensation no title passes, and the corporation has no right to the land, and until it has such right the landowner has no right to compensation and cannot compel payment of it. It may be laid down as a general rule that condemnation proceedings may be discontinued at any time before confirmation of the award of compensation or final judgment. In re Mayor, etc., 4 Rob. (La.) 35; In re Canal St., 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 154; People v. President, etc., 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 318; In re Anthony St., 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 619; In re Dover St., 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 506; Hudson, etc., R. Co. v. Outwater, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 689; In re Syracuse, etc., Co., 11 N. Y. Supreme Ct. 311; Blackshire v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 13 Kan. 514; North Missouri R. Co. v. Lackland, 25 Mo. 516. Or before trial. Burlington, etc., R. Co. v. Sater, 1 Iowa, 421; Lancaster v. Kennebec L. D. Co., 62 Me. 273; State v. Keokuk, 9 Iowa, 439; Dayton, etc., R. Co. v. Marshall, 11 Ohio St. 497.

Indeed, it has been held that if after verdict the company gives notice of its intention to abandon the proceedings, the court cannot give judgment in favor of the landowner, even though it has confirmed the verdict. State v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 17 Ohio St. 103; Chicago v. Barbican, 80 Ill. 482. And even after judgment the company may abandon. Bloomington v. Miller, 84 Ill. 621; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Teters, 68 Ill. 144; New Bedford v. Commissioners, 9 Gray, (Mass.) 346. It is said that the judgment assessing the amount of damages passes no title to the company and does not bind it to accept the lands and pay the amount assessed. Gear v. Dubuque, etc., R. Co., 20 Iowa, 524. And abandonment has been sanctioned even after appeal. Curtis v. Portland, 60 Me. 55.

Even purchasers from the condemning company cannot compel it to take the property condemned, especially if so to do would be injurious to the public interests. State v. Graves, 19 Md. 353.

Owners of land have no vested right in the verdict of the jury. St. Joseph v. Hamilton, 43 Mo. 283.

Abandonment of road will not justify recovery by the company of money paid to the landowner. Stiles v. Middlesex, 8 Vt. 440.

A party in whose favor the commissioner's report of damages is made can have no action against the other party for abandoning the proceedings by neglecting to file the report, even though he had sustained special damage. Martin v. Mayor, etc., 1 Hill (N. Y.) 545. See also Stacey v. Vt. Cent. R. Co., 27 Vt. 39.

Abandonment must, however, be in good faith. If made because price is unsatisfactory, the company will be answerable to the landowner for all damages sustained by him. Leisse v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 2 Mo. App. 105; McLoughlin v. Municipality No. 2, 5 La. Ann. 504.

No Abandonment after Confirmation of Award.—After the owner has a right to surrender his property for compensation the city cannot discontinue, and the mayor of the city may be compelled by mandamus to perform such a ministerial act as the filing of the description of the property with the registry of deeds, so as to complete the remedy of the owner. Farnsworth v. Boston, 121 Mass. 173.

Some cases, therefore, hold that after confirmation of the award of damages the corporation cannot abandon the proceedings. Examples are amongst others the following: Upon report of commissioners of damages assessed, owner is entitled to amount, whether road is ever opened or not. Wilkerson v. Buchanan Co., 12 Mo. 328.

Judgment on report of commissioner fixes rights. Farmer v. Hooksett, 28 N. H. 244.

No abandonment after order establishing highway. Hupert v. Anderson, 35 Iowa, 578. Or after confirmation. In re

Condemnation Proceedings—Continued.

Rhinebeck, 67 N. Y. 242; s. c., 15 N. Y. Sup. Ct. 34; People v. Syracuse, 20 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 491; Stafford v. Mayor, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 541; Jones v. Oxford, 45 Me. 419; In re Water Com., 31 N. J. L. 72.

Assessment of damages confirmed by the court is judgment in favor of owner of land, and he is entitled to execution, even though company desire to change route. Neal v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 31 Pa. St. 19.

After reference to a committee who have reported the amount of damages there can be no abandonment. Pollard v. Moore, 51 N. H. 188.

Where a railroad company upon an award of commissioners have recorded the order and deposited the money as required by the eighteenth section of the general railroad act of 1850, the title to the premises taken becomes wholly vested in the company. Therefore where, in such a case, on a second appraisal the compensation to the owner of the land is increased by the award of the commissioners, the company cannot, by changing the route of their road, avoid the payment of such increased compensation, on the ground that the premises are not necessary for them. Crowner v. Watertown, etc., R. Co., 9 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 457.

Experimental Assessments.—As to experimental assessments, Mr. Mills says (Mills, Em. Dom. § 315): "A corporation authorized to condemn land may make experimental surveys, but cannot institute experimental suits at law to determine amounts of damages by various routes. When a location is made, either party may institute proceedings to assess damages, and the company cannot withdraw. Neal v. Pittsburgh R. Co., 2 Grant Cas. 137; the State may go so far as to assess damages and order the road to be opened without paying damages, but before the road is actually opened the damages should be paid. Parham v. Justices, 9 Ga. 341. In the case of Rogers v. St. Charles, 3 Mo. App. 41, the court severely condemns the practice of municipalities in having recourse tentatively to a number of juries, and in rejecting such findings as are not thought reasonable, and fastening upon and holding the citizen to the first one which places an estimate on the value of the property sufficiently low. The court further say:

We cannot perceive what possible advantage can arise from the constitutional declaration that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation, if the State or any of its deputies, exercising the right of eminent domain, may cause as many inequities as it pleases of the value of the property to be condemned, and set aside as many of them as it sees fit, until one is found sufficiently small to suit its notions of a just compensation and to declare it to be so. Of course this permits one of the parties to a controversy to determine a judicial question in his own favor, and compels the other party to submit to the decision.' Proceedings may be abandoned, but 'in such cases, however, the party exercising, by delegation, the tremendous power known as the right of eminent domain must act in good faith. The exercise of this right can only be justified on the ground of the necessity of the particular property for the public use. To allow the State, or any deputy of the State, to pronounce a particular piece of property necessary or unnecessary, according to the terms on which it may be possible to acquire it; to enable the State, or any corporation, to be sole judge of the due correspondence between the property and its variously estimated value; to cause a thousand estimates to be made, and to have the unrestricted right of rejecting, toties quoties, every estimate which did not suit its views, would be thought an extravagant idea of arbitrary power if it were imagined in a satire. But if the purpose, instead of being abandoned in good faith, is merely modified so as to make the party exercising the right of eminent domain to take the chances of another jury, the first proceedings are a flat bar to such a course, and this for the sufficient reason that any other rule would work monstrous oppression and spoliation. We do not mean to say that there may not be, on the part of the municipal or other corporations, an abandonment of a particular project in a given year, let us say in the year 1870, and in the year 1874 a revival of the same measure. What we do mean to say is, that such a corporation shall not, under the color of this power, set at naught the constitutional provision that just compensation shall be made for all private property taken for public use.'"

Partial Abandonment.—"Although a certain portion of land is described in a petition as necessary for the construction of the improvement, a certain portion may be left out if not needed. The condemning party is not estopped by the allegation in the petition as to the quantity of land to be taken, when its engineer is of opinion that a less quantity would be sufficient. Mills on Em. Dom. § 314.

A mine<sup>1</sup> (see MINES). An easement<sup>2</sup> (see EASEMENTS). A mill-site<sup>3</sup> (see MILLS). An invention<sup>4</sup> (see PATENTS). A right under a land-warrant<sup>5</sup> (see LAND-WARRANTS). An application for land.<sup>6</sup> A fixture<sup>7</sup> (see FIXTURES). A homestead<sup>8</sup> (see HOMESTEAD). A domicile<sup>9</sup> (see DOMICILE). A contract<sup>10</sup> (see CONTRACTS). Wild animals.<sup>11</sup> As to lost articles (see PERSONAL PROPERTY).

ABATEMENT. See EQUITY; LEGACY; NUISANCE; PLEADING; PRACTICE; TAX.

I. Of a Nuisance.

II. In Pleading.

III. Of Legacies.

IV. In Practice.

V. Of Freehold.

VI. In Revenue Law.

I. Of a Nuisance.—1. Definition.—The abatement of a nuisance is the taking away or removing of the same by the party aggrieved thereby.<sup>12</sup> (See NUISANCE.)

2. Who may abate.—The distinction met with in the old text-books between the cases of a public and private nuisance, viz., that any one may abate the former, but only one who sustains special damage the latter, appears to have been entirely disregarded in the

1. Richardson v. McNulty, 24 Cal. 339.

2. Abandonment is a simple non-user of an easement; and in order to make out an effectual answer to the claim upon that ground, all the acts of enjoyment must have totally ceased for the same length of time that was necessary to create the original presumption. Corn- ing v. Gould, 16 Wend. (N. Y.) 531.

Mere non-user, even though for twenty years, will not of itself extinguish the easement. It must be accompanied with the express or implied intention of abandonment, and the owner of the servient estate, acting upon the intention of abandonment and the actual non-user, must have incurred expenses upon his own estate. Tiedeman Real Prop. § 606.

3. An express declaration by the owner of a mill-site which has been occupied by him that it is no longer his intention to keep up the mill, accompanied by corresponding acts, such as removing the dam and mill, and giving notice of such intention to those whose lands he has flowed, and to whom he has paid damages, will be deemed an abandonment and extinguishment of the privilege; or if he cease to use the mill-site for an unreasonable length of time, the entire and continued disuse for twenty years is strong prima facie evidence of a non-user for an unreasonable length of time; and unless rebutted by clear and satisfactory proof, it is conclusive. Where a mill-owner suffers his mill and dam to go to decay and ceases to flow the land until a highway is made across the land, it is an abandonment. Angell on Water-courses (7th ed.) §§ 497-499.

4. Walker on Patents, §§ 87-92; Curtis on Patents, § 381 et seq.

5. Emery v. Spencer, 23 Pa. St. 271.

6. Stewart v. Butler, 2 S. & R. (Pa.) 379; Philips v. Shaffer, 5 S. & R. (Pa.) 215.

7. Ewell on Fixtures.

8. Thompson on Homesteads.

9. Dacey on Domicil, 90-92.

10. Guerdon v. Corbett, 87 Ill. 272; Lincoln v. Swartz, 70 Ill. 134; Kim- merle v. Hass, 53 Mich. 341.

11. Though property in an animal feræ nature may be acquired by occupancy, or by so wounding it as to bring it within the power and control of the pursuer; yet if, after wounding the animal, the party continues the pursuits until evening and then abandons it, though his dogs continue the chase, he acquires no property in it. Buster v. Newkirk, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 75.

Wild geese which have been tamed, and have strayed away without regaining their natural liberty, are not abandoned. Amory v. Flynn, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 102.

12. 3 Black. Com. 5.

modern decisions. The rule now is that any one who sustains a special injury or damage from a public nuisance to an extent that will support an action at law may abate the same of his own motion, doing no more damage than is necessary to protect his rights and prevent a recurrence of damage from the nuisance abated.<sup>1</sup> Therefore, where a nuisance is of a purely public character, i.e., affects public rights merely and does not damage one individual more than another, there is no one who can abate, and the remedy is by indictment in the courts.<sup>2</sup> These principles have been applied to the cases of abatement of obstructions in public highways,<sup>3</sup> navigable streams,<sup>4</sup> of dwelling-houses,<sup>5</sup> of a noxious manufactory,<sup>6</sup> etc.

3. What Nuisances may be abated.—In general, any nuisance not purely public in its character may be abated. But a thing cannot be abated before it actually becomes a nui-

1. Brown v. Perkins, 12 Gray (Mass.), 83; Fort Plain Bridge Co. v. Smith, 30 N. Y. 44; Lansing v. Smith, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 146; Pierce v. Dart, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 609.

2. Earp v. Lee, 71 Ill. 193; Brightman v. Bristol, 65 Me. 426. This is true of moral nuisances; e.g., a liquor store where liquor is sold contrary to law. Blodgett v. Syracuse, 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 529; Brown v. Perkins, 12 Gray (Mass.), 83; Moody v. Supervisors, 46 Barb. (N. Y. S. C.) 659; Gray v. Ayres, 7 Dana (Ky.), 375. A disorderly house. Ely v. Supervisors, 36 N. Y. 297; Welch v. Stowell, 2 Doug. (Mich.) 125; Barclay v. Commonwealth, 25 Pa. St. 503.

3. Id. Dimes v. Petley, 15 Q. B. 276. Lord Campbell says: "It is fully settled by the recent cases that if there be a nuisance in a public highway, a private individual cannot of his own authority abate it unless it does him a special injury, and then only to the extent necessary to enable him to exercise his right of passing over the highway." See Harrower v. Ritson, 37 Barb. (N. Y. S. C.) 301; Griffith v. McCullum, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 561; Bridge v. Grand Junc. R. R. Co., 3 M. & W. 244; Robert v. Rose, 1 Exch. 82; Bateman v. Bluck, 18 Q. B. 870; Hubbard v. Deming, 21 Conn. 356; Moffett v. Brewer, 1 Iowa, 348; Wales v. Stetson, 2 Mass. 143; Hopkins v. Crombie, 4 N. H. 520; Gates v. Blincoe, 2 Dana (Ky.), 158; Rung v. Shonenberger, 2 Watts (Pa.), 23; Arundel v. McCulloch, 10 Mass. 70; Rogers v. Rogers, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 250; Broom's Com. on Com. Law (4th ed.), 222; Clark v. Ice Co., 24 Mich. 508; Owens v. State, 52 Ala. 400. Compare Burnham v. Hotchkiss, 14 Conn. 310; Lancaster Turnpike Co. v.

Rogers, 2 Barr (Pa.), 114; Turner v. Holtzman, 54 Md. 148.

4. In Mayor of Colchester v. Brooke, 6 Q. B. 339, the defendant's vessel, being improperly anchored, shifted on and damaged an oyster-bed, which was an obstruction in the stream. Lord Denman, Ch. J., said: "However wrongful the act of the plaintiff may have been, yet as the defendant sustained no special inconvenience therefrom, he certainly could not be justified in wilfully infringing upon the beds and destroying the oysters even for the purpose of abating a public nuisance." The defendant, who was the owner of a boat navigating a stream, ran into a net set in a private fishery. Held, that if he could by reasonable care have avoided the net he was bound to do so, though the rights of navigation were superior to those of fishery. Cobb v. Bennett, 75 Pa. St. 326. See Renwick v. Morris, 7 Hill (N. Y.), 575; Arundel v. McCulloch, 10 Mass. 70; Selman v. Wolfe, 27 Tex. 68.

5. The defendant with others, at a time when Asiatic cholera was prevailing in the country, and when the sanitary condition of all dwellings was important to prevent the spread of the disease, pulled down a tenement-house which was in a filthy condition. Held, that "as a citizen of the Fifth Ward he was interested in preserving the public health, and especially as an alderman he was fully justified in all he did." Meeker v. Van Rensselaer, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 397. See Rex v. Pappineau, 1 Strange, 688; Dewey v. White, 1 Moody & M. 56; Jones v. Williams, 11 M. & W. 176.

6. Manhattan Co. v. Van Keuren, 23 N. J. 255; Coe v. Schultz, 47 Barb. (N. Y.) 64.

sance,<sup>1</sup> and it must at the time it is abated be injuring the abator.<sup>2</sup> In addition to the nuisances referred to above and in the notes as abatable, the following may be mentioned: if a dam be erected on a stream that pens back the water of an upper owner, he may lawfully enter on the premises and abate as much of it as produces the injury;<sup>3</sup> if a house be erected so that its eaves overhang the lands of another, he may cut off the overhanging part;<sup>4</sup> if a noxious trade is set up near another's dwelling, he may enter and destroy as much of the machinery as is necessary to prevent the nuisance;<sup>5</sup> if a bridge is erected across a navigable stream without proper draws, one trying to pass may remove as much as impedes his passage;<sup>6</sup> an unoccupied house in such a filthy condition as to endanger health, or that has become a resort for tramps, or dangerous in any way to adjoining buildings, may be torn down by one who is injured;<sup>7</sup> dangerous and diseased animals, when suffered to go at large by the owner, may under certain circumstances be killed.<sup>8</sup>

4. Manner of abating.—A nuisance may be abated only to the extent to which it does injury; any excess will render the abator a trespasser.<sup>9</sup>

1. In Norrice v. Baker, 1 Rolle, 394, Coke, C. J., says: "If a person have an intent to build a wall and lay the foundation, you cannot pull this down." And Croke, J., says: "So although boughs which hang over another man's land may be cut, yet they cannot be cut lest they hereafter grow over." See also Rolle's Abr. "NUISANCE."

2. Gates v. Blincoe, 2 Dana (Ky.), 158. The rule in the case of a vicious animal is thus laid down in Morris v. Nugent, 7 Car. & P. 572, by Denman, J.: "To justify the shooting of another's dog, it is not sufficient to show that he is of a ferocious disposition and at large (and thus a public nuisance). To justify the shooting he must be actually attacking the party at the time."

3. Hastings v. Livermore, 7 Gray, (Mass.) 194; Treat v. Bates, 27 Mich. 360; Waffle v. Railroad Co., 58 Barb. (N. Y.) 413; Adams v. Barney, 25 Vt. 231; Roberts v. Rose, 1 L. R. (4) 82. So of changing the course of a sluiceway, thereby destroying cultivated fields. Thompson v. Allen, 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 459.

4. Pendruddock's case, 5 Coke, 101; Baten's case, 9 Coke, 55. So where rain or snow is shot from the roof of a house on the lands of another, the latter may enter and cut off the part producing the injury. Rex v. Pappineau, 2 Strange, 688; Cooper v. Marshall, 1 Burr. 259; Rex v. Rosewell, 2 Salk. 459, Dyer v. Depuie, 5 Whart. (Pa.) 584. So where branches extend over another's land, the portions overhanging may be cut off. Earl Lonsdale v. Nelson, 2 Bar. & C. 311.

5. Manhattan Co. v. Van Keuren, 23 N. J. Eq. 141. When the nuisance arises from the improper use of a building, the building itself cannot be destroyed, but only the improper use stopped. Brown v. Perkins, 12 Gray (Mass.), 95.

6. State v. Parrott, 71 N. Car. 311.

7. Harvey v. Dewoody, 18 Ark. 252. But not where it is occupied, as that cannot be done without endangering public peace. Perry v. Fishowe, 8 Ad. & El. (N. S.) 757; Davies v. Williams, 16 Ad. & El. (N. S.) 546. Except where there is a violation of some one's rights and reasonable notice to remove has been given. Burling v. Reid, 11 Q. B. 904; Davies v. Williams, 16 Q. B., 546. Or in a great public emergency. Meeker v. Van Rensselaer, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 397.

8. The dangerous animals only when they are making an attack, and the diseased ones only when they are running among other animals. Williams v. Dixon, 65 N. Car. 416; Morris v. Nugent, 7 Car. & P. 572. Compare Franz v. Hiltebrand, 45 Mo. 121. But not where they are simply trespassing. Bost v. Minigues, 64 N. Car. 44; Ladue v. Branch, 42 Vt. 574.

9. Gates v. Blincoe, 2 Dana (Ky.), 158; Hutchinson v. Grainger, 13 Vt. 394; Dyer v. Depuie, 5 Whart. (Pa.) 584; Jewell v. Gardner, 12 Mass. 311; Heath v. Williams, 25 Me. 209, Wright v.

As Lord Raymond says in Rex v. Pappineau, 1 Strange, 688: "If my neighbor builds his house too high, by which my ancient lights are stopped, I shall not take down the whole house, but only so much as makes it too high." So an abatement must be made without riot or danger to the public peace.<sup>1</sup> In fact, the remedy by abatement is a dangerous one. The party judges at his peril, and is liable in damages for any error he may make. The safer course is therefore to seek redress in the courts, wherever a slight delay will not seriously prejudice the interests of the injured party.<sup>2</sup>

II. In Pleading.—Definition.—A plea in abatement is one which shows some ground for abating or quashing the writ in a civil action, the indictment in a criminal one, and makes prayer to that effect.<sup>3</sup> It differs from a plea in bar by offering a formal objection to the writ without denying the right of action, and by showing the plaintiff how it may be corrected: in technical language, giving the plaintiff a better writ.

Kinds of Pleas in abatement.—1. In a civil action.—Pleas in abatement are to the disability of the plaintiff, to the disability of the defendant, and to the writ.

Pleas to the disability of the plaintiff show that he is incapable of commencing or continuing his action, as that he or one of the plaintiffs is a fictitious person,<sup>4</sup> or that he was dead before suit brought,<sup>5</sup> or is an alien enemy,<sup>6</sup> or that he is an infant and has declared by attorney,<sup>7</sup> or insane and under guardianship,<sup>8</sup> or that she is a feme covert and her husband has not joined,<sup>9</sup> or that plaintiffs suing as executors, trustees, etc., are not such.<sup>10</sup>

Moore, 38 Ala. 599; Maffit v. Bruner, 1 Greene (Iowa), 348; Perry v. Fitzhowe, 8 Ad. & El. (Q. B.) 757; Cooper v. Marshall, 1 Burr. 260; Babcock v. City of Buffalo, 56 N. Y. 268; Calef v. Thomas, 81 Ill. 478; Bowden v. Lewis, 13 R. I. 189; Shepard v. People, 40 Mich. 487; Finley v. Hershey, 41 Iowa, 389. But see Indianapolis v. Miller, 27 Ind. 894, and Northrop v. Burrows, 10 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 365, where it is held that the abator is liable only for wanton and unnecessary injury.

1. Rex v. Rosewell, 2 Salk. 459; Day v. Day, 4 Md. 262.

2. Hicks v. Dorn, 42 N. Y. 47; Vason v. S. C. R. Co., 42 Ga. 631; Brown v. Perkins, 12 Gray (Mass.), 89; s. c., 5 Am. Rep. 242.

See in general Wood on the Law of Nuisances; Rolle's Abr. "Nuisance."

3. Steph. on Pleading, 47; 1 Chit. Crim. Law, 423.

4. Doe v. Penfield, 19 Johns. 308; Boston Type Foundry v. Spooner, 5 Vt. 93; Campbell v. Galbreath, 5 Watts (Pa.), 423.

5. Sandbeck v. Quigley, 8 Watts (Pa.), 460; Patterson v. Brindle, 9 Watts

(Pa.), 98. The death of the lessor in ejectment does not abate the suit. Frier v. Jackson, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 495.

6. Bell v. Chapman, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 133; Hutchinson v. Brock, 11 Mass. 119; Russell v. Skipwith, 6 Binn. (Pa.) 241; Baywell v. Babe, 1 Rand. (Va.) 272; Coxe v. Gulick, 5 Halst. (N. J.) 328; Brinley v. Avery, Kirby (Conn.) 25. If such plea be put in pais darrein continuance, the subsequent restoration of peace may be replied. Russell v. Skipwith, 1 S. & R. (Pa.) 310.

7. Schemerhorn v. Jenkins, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 373; Young v. Young, 3 N. H. 346; Blood v. Harrington, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 552; Smith v. Van Houten, 4 Halst. (N. J.) 381; Trask v. Stone, 7 Mass. 241.

8. Collard v. Crane, Brayt. (Vt.) 18.

9. Rangler v. Hummel, 37 Pa. 130; Perry v. Boileau, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 208; Lyman v. Albee, 7 Vt. 508. If she is sole administratrix, and marries pending an action brought by her, the suit abates. Swan v. Wilkinson, 14 Mass. 295. But not if she is one of several, and they all bring action. Newell v. Marcy, 17 Mass. 341.

10. Conkey v. Kingman, 24 Pick. (Mass.)

Pleas to the disability of the defendant are coverture,<sup>1</sup> infancy,<sup>2</sup> and privilege.<sup>3</sup>

Pleas in abatement to the writ are either to the form or to the action. Among those to the form are variances between the writ and declaration,<sup>4</sup> that the parties suing or being sued, as husband and wife, are not married;<sup>5</sup> that a joint contractor or another executor or administrator has not been joined, where it must be averred that the party who should have been joined is still living.<sup>6</sup> A misnomer of either party may be also pleaded in abatement to the writ,<sup>7</sup> and so may a defect in the process<sup>8</sup> or return.<sup>9</sup>

A very common plea to the action of the writ is that of lis pendens, or that there is another action depending for the same cause.<sup>10</sup>

115; Childress v. Emory, 8 Wheat. (U.S.) 642; Kane v. Paul, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 33; Thomas v. Cameron, 16 Wend. (N. Y.) 579; Varick v. Bodine, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 444. Or that their alleged testator is living. Hummel v. Brown, 24 Pa. St. 310.

1. Surtell v. Brailsford, 2 Bay (S. Car.), 333. But not if she marry after the commencement of the suit. Crocket v. Ross, 5 Greenl. (Me.) 445; Commonwealth v. Phillipsburg, 10 Mass. 58; Henderson v. McClure, 2 McCord (S. Car.) 469.

2. This defence may be interposed to an action of tort whenever the tort is founded on a contract and an action ex contractu would have lain. Doran v. Smith, 26 Am. L. Reg. 42; Penrose v. Curren, 3 Rawle (Pa.), 351.

3. Hubbard v. Sanborn, 2 N. H. 468; Van Alstyne v. Dearborn, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 586; Halsey v. Steward, 1 South (S. Car.) 366; Greening v. Sheffield Minor, 476. The privilege of a member of legislature is pleadable in abatement. King v. Coit, 4 Day (Conn.) 129.

4. Weld v. Hubbard, 11 Ill. 573; Pierce v. Lacy, 23 Miss. 193.

5. Coombes v. Williams, 15 Mass. 243.

6. 1 Saund. 291, note 2; Wadsworth v. Woodford, 1 Day (Conn.), 28. In actions on contracts the non-joinder of a co plaintiff is ground for a nonsuit, and need not be pleaded in abatement, except where suit is brought jure representationis as by executors. In this latter case, and also in the case of the non-joinder of a defendant, the omission must be pleaded in abatement. Stovey v. McNeill, Harper (S. Car.), 173; Horton v. Cook, 2 Watts (Pa.), 40; Moore v. Russell, 2 Bibb. (Ky.) 443; Winslow v. Merrill, 2 Fairf. 127; Brown v. Warram, 3 Har. & John. (Md.) 572;

Powers v. Spear, 3 N. H. 35; Gay v. Cary, 9 Cowen (N. Y.), 44; Coffee v. Eastland, Cooke (Tenn.), 159; Mackall v. Roberts, 3 Munro (Ky.), 130; McArthur v. Ladd, 5 Ohio, 517. Conley v. Good, 1 Breeze (S. Car.), 96; Allen v. Sewall, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 327. But in an action for a tort no advantage can be taken of the non-joinder of a defendant. Rose v. Oliver, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 365; 1 Chitty on Pl. 87.

7. Smith v. Bowker, 1 Mass. 76; Pate v. Bacon, 6 Munf. (Va.) 219; Whittier v. Gould, 8 Watts (Pa.), 485.

8. Renner v. Reed, 3 Ark. 339; Colby v. Dow, 18 N. H. 557; Hooper v. Jellison, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 250. But see Jones v. Nelson, 51 Ala. 471.

9. Embry v. Devinney, 8 Dana (Ky.), 202; Sebree v. Clay, 3 Marsh (Ky.), 552.

10. Humphries v. Dawson, 38 Ala. 199; Prosser v. Chapman, 29 Conn. 515; Buffum v. Tilton, 17 Pick. (Mass.) 510; Grider v. Apperson, 32 Ark. 332. But an action pending in a foreign court, or in the court of another State, or in a United States court cannot be pleaded in abatement. Lyman v. Brown, 2 Curt. (U. S.) 559; Eaton v. Hunt, 20 Ind. 457; Humphries v. Dawson, 38 Ala. 199; Bowne v. Joy, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 221; Newell v. Newton, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 470; Walsh v. Durkin, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 99. See, however, as to a foreign attachment, Embree v. Hanna, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 101; Engle v. Nelson, 1 Penn. 442. Compare Winthrop v. Carlton, 8 Mass. 456; Morton v. Webb, 7 Vt. 124. A suit subsequently commenced can never be pleaded in abatement. Renner v. Marshall, 1 Wheat. (U. S.) 215; Buffum v. Tilton, 17 Pick. (Mass.) 510; Webster v. Randall, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 13; Nicholl v. Mason, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 339; Wood v. Lake, 13 Wis. 84.

Want of jurisdiction may also be pleaded, though this is not strictly a plea in abatement.<sup>1</sup>

2. In a Criminal Action.—In a criminal action the defendant may plead in abatement want of jurisdiction;<sup>2</sup> misnomer,<sup>3</sup> a former acquittal or conviction,<sup>4</sup> a pardon, objections to the selection or competency of the grand jury,<sup>5</sup> etc.

Duplicity.—A defendant cannot plead at the same time in abatement and bar to the same matter;<sup>6</sup> but as a writ is divisible, he may plead in abatement to part and demur or plead in bar to the residue.<sup>7</sup>

Requisites.—Great accuracy and precision are required in framing pleas in abatement. They should be certain to every intent and without repugnancy, and must always give the plaintiff a better writ.<sup>8</sup> 4 & 5 Ann., c. 16, s. 11 (4), enacts that "no dilatory plea shall be received . . . unless the party offering such plea do by affidavit prove the truth thereof or show some probable matter to the court, to induce them to believe that the fact of such dilatory plea is true;" and this or similar enactments are in force in this country.<sup>9</sup>

Judgment.—If the plaintiff reply and the issue is found in his favor, the judgment is quod recuperet and final. But judgment in his favor on a demurrer is only interlocutory and is quod respondeat ouster.<sup>10</sup> The judgment for the defendant on a plea in abatement, whether on an issue of fact or of law, is "that the writ be quashed;" or if a temporary disability or privilege be pleaded, "that the plaint remain without day until," etc.<sup>11</sup>

1. Osgood v. Thurston, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 110; Bishop v. Vose, 27 Conn. 1. Though advantage of this may be taken under the general issue. Maisonnaire v. Keating, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 325; Rea v. Hayden, 3 Mass. 24.

2. 1 Chit. Crim. Law, 423; Cole v. Cliver, 43 N. J. L. 182.

3. Commonwealth v. Perkins, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 388; Bright v. State, 76 Ala. 96; Amann v. People, 76 Ill. 188; Commonwealth v. Dedham, 16 Mass. 146.

4. But not the pendency of a previous indictment in the same court for the same cause. Dutton v. State, 5 Ind. 533; Hardin v. State, 22 Ind. 347; Com. v. Drew, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 279; Smith v. Com., 104 Pa. St. 339; State v. Lambert, 9 Nev. 321.

5. State v. Williams, 5 Port. (Ala.) 130; Brown v. State, 13 Ark. 96; Baker v. State, 23 Miss. 243; Shropshire v. State, 12 Ark. 190; Hardin v. State, 22 Ind. 347; State v. Rockafellow, 6 N. J. L. 332; Pointer v. State, 89 Ind. 255; State v. Watson, 86 N. C. 624; Clare v. State, 30 Md. 163. See State v. Bleekley, 18 Mo. 428; State v. Mahan, 12 Tex. 283; People v. Jewett, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 386; United States v. Hammond, 2 Woods (U. S.), 197; Mershorn v. State, 51 Ind. 14; State v. Ward, 64 Me. 545; State v. Brown, 64 Mo. 367; U. S. v. Williams, 1 Dill. (U. S.) 485.

6. As non est factum and coverture of the plaintiff since making the bond. See Palmer v. Dixon, 5 Dowl. & Ry. 623. But in an action against two defendants each may plead distinct matter in abatement, or one in bar and the other in abatement. 1 Chit. on Pl. 458.

7. 1 Chit. on Pl. 458.

8. 1 Chit. on Pl. 457. See Wadsworth v. Woodford, 1 Day. (Conn.) 28; Clark v. Warner, 6 Conn. 355; Haywood v. Chestney, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 495; Townsend v. Jeffries, 24 Ala. 329; Parsons v. Ely, 2 Conn. 377; Pearson v. French, 9 Vt. 349; Ellis v. Ellis, 4 R. I. 110; East v. Cain, 49 Mich. 473.

9. Trenton Bank v. Wallace, 4 Halst. (N. J.) 83; 3 Bin. (Pa.) 625; 2 Rev. St. (N. Y.) 352, sec. 7; Davis v. Campbell, 35 Tex. 779.

10. Fitch v. Lothrop, 1 Root (Conn.), 192; Baker v. Fales, 16 Mass. 147, 157; Trow v. Messer, 32 N. H. 361.

11. 1 Chit. on Pleading, 466; McCut-

III. Of Legacies.—Definition.—Where the funds of a testator, which are liable before the legacies, are exhausted and there remain unsatisfied claims, the legacies will abate, i.e., be diminished by a contribution pro rata towards the payment of debts or other legacies.<sup>1</sup>

When they abate.—Legacies do not abate until the following funds in their order have been exhausted: 1. The general personal estate, not expressly or by implication exempted. 2. Lands expressly devised to pay debts. 3. Lands descended to the heir. 4. Realty or personalty devised or bequeathed subject to the payment of debts.<sup>2</sup>

Order of abatement.—Specific and demonstrative legacies do not abate until the general pecuniary legacies have been exhausted.<sup>3</sup> But where there is no other personal estate than the specific legacies, they must be intended to be subject to the pecuniary legacies, and must abate pro rata.<sup>4</sup>

Contribution, when enforceable.—Specific legatees may enforce contribution from devisees of real estate.<sup>5</sup> But where a legacy has been paid in full, the legatee is not compelled to contribute to the payment of other legacies lost by the executor's default, where he had originally enough personal property in his hands to pay all.<sup>6</sup> The right of contribution may be enforced by way of set-off.<sup>7</sup> chen v. McCutchen, 8 Port. (Ala.) 151; McKinstrey v. Pennoyer, 2 Ill. 319; Blackburn v. Watson, 85 Pa. St. 241. See in general 1 Chitty on Pleading, ch. ii.; Stephen on Pleading; 1 Chit. on Criminal Law, 423 et seq.

1. 1 Titus v. Titus, 26 N. Y. Eq. 111. But where personal property has been given away in the lifetime of the testator, it will not abate, though the gift be confirmed in the will. Biddle v. Carraway, 6 Jones Eq. 95.

2. 3 Jarm. on Wills (5th Am. ed.), 458.

3. 1 Bevan v. Cooper, 14 N. J. Sup. Ct. 117. A legacy will not abate when given in lieu of another claim as of dower, where the widow is considered a purchaser. Lord v. Lord, 23 Conn. 327; Hubbard v. Hubbard, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 50; Williamson v. Williamson, 6 Paige (N. Y.), 305; McGlaughlin v. McGlaughlin, 24 Pa. St. 22; Stuart v. Carron, 1 Desaus (S. Car.), 500; White v. Green, 1 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 45; Potter v. Brown, 11 R. I. 232. Compare Orton v. Orton, 3 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 411; Tickel v. Quinn, 1 Demarest (N. Y.), 425; Sanford v. Sanford, 4 Hun (N. Y.), 753.

4. White v. Green, 1 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 45; White v. Beattie, 1 Dev. Eq. (N. Car.) 87; Biddle v. Carraway, 6 Jones Eq.

(N. Car.) 95; 1 Roper on Leg. 418. They abate proportionally with demonstrative legacies and devises. Armstrong's App., 63 Pa. St. 312.

5. But the personal fund alone being responsible for payment of simple contract debts, specific legatees cannot force devisees to contribute to such payment. Dugan v. Hollins, 11 Md. 41. Otherwise as to specialty debts. Chase v. Lockerman, 11 Gill. & J. (Md.) 185, 204. But real estate is not liable to contribute to payment of legacies, unless specially charged therewith. Hayes v. Seaver, 7 Greenl. (Me.) 237; Elliott v. Carter, 9 Gratt. (Va.) 541, 550; Brands v. Hartung, 38 N. J. 42.

6. Sims v. Sims, 2 Stockt. (N. J.) 161; Lupton v. Lupton, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 614. Otherwise as to debts, where the executor has wasted the assets. Stuart v. Kissam, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 493; Lupton v. Lupton, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 614. Where the executor has paid a debt, having departed from the provisions of the will, he cannot call on the real estate for contribution, the personalty having been originally sufficient. Feemster v. Good, 12 S. C. (2 Shand), 573.

7. Harris v. White, 2 South, (N. J.), 422. See, in general, Jarman on Wills, chap. 46.

IV. In Practice.—1. At Law.—At common law the death of a sole plaintiff or defendant before final judgment would have abated the suit.<sup>1</sup> But by statute of 17 Car. II. c. 8, "the death of either party between the verdict and the judgment shall not be alleged for error;"<sup>2</sup> and by 8 & 9 W. III., c. 11, § 6, it is provided that where either party dies and the action might have been prosecuted by or against his executors or administrators, the plaintiff or his representatives shall have a writ of scire facias against the defendant or his representatives, to show cause why damage should not be assessed and recovered by him or them. So also where there were two or more plaintiffs or defendants in a personal action, the death of one of them pending the suit would have abated it, until, by 8 & 9 W. III. c. 11, § 7, it was enacted that "where the cause of action survived, the writ or action should not be abated, but the death being suggested on record, the action should proceed;" and this applies also to writs of error.<sup>3</sup> Writs of error abate if the plaintiff in error die before errors assigned, but not after errors assigned; nor at all in case of the death of defendant in error.<sup>4</sup>

2. In Equity.—An abatement of a suit in equity takes place where, by reason of some event subsequent to the institution of the suit, there is no person before the court by or against whom it can either in whole or in part be prosecuted.<sup>5</sup> These events are the death of a party whose interest or liability neither determines by death<sup>6</sup> nor survives to another litigant,<sup>7</sup> and the marriage of a female plaintiff.<sup>8</sup>

1. Tidd Pr. 1168. Where part of the action is determined by act in law, and action for the residue is given, that writ shall not abate. Coke on Lit. 285 a. See, as to abatement by death, Alexander v. Davidson, 2 McMull (S. C.), 49; Clindein v. Allen, 4 N. H. 385; Brown v. Andrews, 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 227; Green v. Watkins, 6 Wheat. (U. S.) 260; Baltimore R. Co. v. Ritchie, 31 Md. 191; Wade v. Kalbfleisch, 16 Abb. Pr., N. S. (N. Y.) 104. A real action brought by husband and wife in her right abates by her death. Ryder v. Robinson, 2 Me. 127. Otherwise of trespass. Syme v. Sanders, 2 Stroth. (S. C.) 332.

2. See Hatch v. Eustis, 1 Gall. (U. S.) 160.

3. Clark v. Rippon, 1 B. & Ald. 586.

4. 2 Cromp. 401-2; Barnes, 206; 7 East. 296.

5. Adams's Equity, 403. An abatement in chancery, though it suspends proceedings in a cause, does not put an end to them as an abatement at law does; so that a defendant in custody under a process of contempt is not discharged thereby, nor is an injunction absolutely dissolved. Chowick v. Dimes,

3 Beav. 292; Leggett v. Dubois, 2 Paige (N. Y.), 211.

6. Upon the death of a husband suing in the wife's right, she may proceed without revivor; but if she does not, the bill is considered as abated. McDowl v. Charles, 6 John. Ch. (N. Y.) 132; Vaughan v. Wilson, 4 Hen. & M. (Va.) 453; Lord Red. 47; Mitf. 59; Story's Eq. Pl. § 357. And if they are made defendants, his death does not abate the suit. Shelberry v. Briggs, 2 Vern. 248; 1 Eq. Cas. Ab. 1, pl. 4, S. C. But otherwise if the wife dies, unless her interest survives to the husband. Jackson v. Rawlins, 2 Vern. 195. A suit by members of a corporation in their corporate capacity will not abate by the death of some of them. Otherwise of a sole corporation, or if the suit had been in their individual characters. Blackburn v. Jepson, 3 Swan. 138; 1 Daniell's Ch. Pr. & Pl. (3d Am. Ed.) 24.

7. Glenn v. Clapp, 11 Gill & J. (Md.) 1; Howard v. Bank, R. M. Charl. (Ga.) 216. In a court of admiralty death of a party does not abate the suit. Penhallow v. Doane's Adm., 3 Dall. 54.

8. Douglass v. Sherman, 2 Paige (N. Y.), 357; Campbell v. Bowne, 5 Paige

Bills of Revivor.—The effect of the abatement is that all proceedings are stayed to the extent of the abated interest, and to set them in motion again a bill of revivor must be brought. Where the transmission of the interest is by act of law, as to the heir or personal representative, a simple bill of revivor may be brought;<sup>1</sup> where by act of the party, as to a devisee, an original bill in the nature of a bill of revivor must be filed.<sup>2</sup> To the latter an answer is required, and a formal decree is made thereon; while in the case of the former no answer is requisite, but the revivor is ordered as of course, unless cause is shown by demurrer or plea. The bill of revivor states the proceedings in the suit, the abatement, and the transmission of interest, and prays that the suit may be revived.<sup>3</sup> See Daniell's Chanc. Pl. & Prac. chap. 32; Adams's Eq. chap. 9.

V. Of Freehold.—Abatement of freehold is the entering upon and taking possession of a freehold of inheritance by a stranger after the death of the ancestor, and before the heir or devisee enters. It was a species of ouster by intervention wherein the entry ab initio was unlawful, thus differing from discontinuance and de-forcement where only the retaining possession was unlawful.<sup>4</sup>

VI. In Revenue Law.—The act of Congress of March 2, 1799, c. 22, s. 52, provides that in the appraisal of damaged goods the appraisers shall "ascertain and certify to what rate or percentage the merchandise is damaged, and the rate of percentage of damage so ascertained and certified shall be deducted from the original amount." To have this abatement made, however, it is necessary that "proof to ascertain such damage shall be lodged in the custom-house of the port where such merchandise has been landed, within ten days after the landing of such merchandise."<sup>5</sup> Similar provisions are made as to abating or refunding the amount of import duties paid or accruing on goods damaged or destroyed in any public or private warehouse under bond, or in the appraisers' stores undergoing appraisal, or while in transportation under bond from the port of entry to any other port in the United

(N. Y.), 34. But on the marriage of a female defendant the suit does not abate, but the husband must be named in the subsequent proceedings. Adams's Equity, 404.

1. Boynton v. Boynton, 1 Foster (N. H.), 246; Story's Eq. Pl. § 364; Feemster v. Markham, 2 J. J. Marsh, 303; Putnam v. Putnam, 4 Pick. (Mass.) 139.

2. Slack v. Walcott, 3 Mason (U. S.), 308; Russell v. Craig, 3 Bibb. (Ky.) 377. Where a defendant becomes a bankrupt or insolvent, the suit must be continued by a supplemental bill. Storm v. Davenport, 1 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 135; Story's Eq. Pl. § 342.

3. Where after abatement the rights of the parties are affected by any event other than that causing the abatement, they must incorporate in their bill a supplemental statement. This bill is termed a bill of revivor and supplement. Mitf. 70, 71; Bampton v. Birchall, 5 Beav. 330; 1 Ph. 568. Although the liability to abatement and the right of revivor are not limited to any stage of the suit, yet there can be no revivor for costs alone, except under special circumstances. Andrews v. Lockwood, 15 Sim. 153; Peer v. Cookerow, 2 Beas. 136; 1 McCart. Eq. (N. J.) 361; Travis v. Waters, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 85.

4. Coke on Littleton, 277 a; 3 Black. Com. 168.

5. See Shelton v. The Collector, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 113; Shelton v. Austin, 1 Cliff. (U. S.) 388; Andrews on Rev. Laws, §§ 162-4.

States, or while in the custody of officers of the customs, or within the limits of the port of entry before landing.<sup>1</sup>

ABBREVIATIONS. (See AMBIGUITY; NAMES.)—A shortened form of words obtained by the omission of one or more syllables from the middle or end of the words.<sup>2</sup> As almost every word in the language may be abbreviated, the number may be made very large. The broadest rule which has been applied to their usage in legal forms and proceedings limits them to such as are in common use; and while their meaning in written instruments of almost every kind has been allowed to be explained by the introduction of parol testimony, yet the ambiguity and uncertainty which they occasion render the saving of trouble or expense of doubtful advantage. The difficulty is of course lessened to those that follow, which have had legal constructions placed upon them.

An attorney may use, in rendering his bill, such abbreviations as are commonly used in the English language, under the statutes of 2 George II. c. 23, and 12 George II. c. 13, s. 5. A bill containing the following abbreviations, "Drawg Declar. ffs. 15, Instrons. for case, attg. you in long confce, Preparing afft.," was held such as anybody would understand and therefore good.<sup>3</sup>

1. Affidavits, etc.—The characters N. P. and J. P. indicate respectively the offices of Notary Public and Justice of the Peace, and their use does not vitiate a jurat.<sup>4</sup>

"Ex. A" means "exhibit A"; and "C. P. C. C.," annexed to the name of a person before whom an affidavit was sworn to, may be construed in the Circuit Court of Porter County, where said affidavit was filed, to mean "Clerk of Porter Circuit Court," courts taking judicial notice of the signatures of their officers.<sup>5</sup>

A bond for costs, entitled in the cause, giving the names of the parties and of the court in which the cause was pending, only abbreviating the christian names of the plaintiffs and defendants, was held to be a good bond.<sup>6</sup>

The abbreviation "Octb.," in a writ of scire facias, held not to be mistaken for October.<sup>7</sup>

2. Ballots.—A ballot for J. A. Dyer cannot be counted for James A. Dyer, nor is evidence admissible to show that it was intended for James A. Dyer; but where the designation of an individual on a ballot is an abbreviation sanctioned by common usage, the ballot may be counted for the person for whom it was evidently intended. So a vote for Jas. A. Dyer will be counted for James A. Dyer.<sup>8</sup> (See ELECTIONS.)

1. See Rev. Stat. (2d Ed.) § 2894; Andrewson Rev. Laws, § 113; Weskett on Insurance—"Abatement."

2. Bouvier's Law Dict.

3. Frowd v. Stillard, 4 C. & P. 51.

4. Rowley v. Berrian, 12 Ill. 200; Shattuck v. People, 4 Scam. (Ill.) 477; Scudder v. Coryell, 5 Hal. (N. J.) 340.

5. Dugan v. Trisler, 69 Ind. 553; Buell v. State, 73 Ind. 523.

6. King et al. v. Thompson et al., 3 Scam. (Ill.) 334.

7. Kearns v. State, 3 Blackf. (Ind.) 334.

8. People v. Higgins, 3 Mich. 233; People v. Tisdale, 1 Doug. (Mich.) 60; People v. Ferguson, 8 Cow. 102; People v. Cook, 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 259; s. c., 8

3. Deeds, Assessments for Taxes, etc.—Well-known abbreviations may be used in conveyances and are sufficient; but such as do not permit that degree of certainty which admits of no reasonable doubt as to their meaning upon which persons of ordinary intelligence or courts can differ are not allowable.<sup>1</sup>

A deed is not invalid because of the descriptions of the lands being in figures and well-understood abbreviations.<sup>2</sup>

Words and figures, or abbreviations thereof, may be used to designate lands against which a judgment is asked for taxes, provided a definite locality can be given.<sup>3</sup>

The usual signs or symbols used in mathematics, chemistry and other sciences, characters used for denoting certain weights and measures, the marks of punctuation, and the ordinary abbreviations used in written composition may be used in proper cases without invalidating the instruments in which they are used.<sup>4</sup>

It is the duty of courts to give effect to instruments of writing so as to carry out the intentions of parties when it can be done consistently with the rules of law. Such abbreviations as the following have been held not to be misleading and not objectionable in the description of premises in various tax-title proceedings: c., cts., $, m. (mills), Lt. (lot), Bk. (block), Tx. (tax), Vl. (valuation), T. (township), R. (range), Sec. (section), Qr. Sec. (quarter section), Pt. (part), Frm (from), Ft. (foot or feet).<sup>5</sup>

Federal money may be indicated by the use of the dollar-mark ($) and the decimal-point with Arabic figures.<sup>6</sup>

A description of land in a suit to enforce a lien for benefits by a ditching association read as follows: "Matthias Wagoner. S. E.  $\frac{1}{4}$  of N. W.  $\frac{1}{4}$  Sec. 18, T. 21, N. R. 7 E., 40 acres." Held, that as the description would be good in a deed or mortgage, the abbreviations being as well understood in the State (Indiana) as the words for which they stood, it was good in the present case.<sup>7</sup>

The description of lands assessed or sold for taxes by the use of initial letters, abbreviations, and figures is sufficient.<sup>8</sup>

Where lands are described in an assessment and tax roll as,
Young Men's Society—Gov. & J. P.

Jeff. av. N. 45 feet W. pt. lot 11 sec. 1 } B. 2.
& E. pt. lot 10 sec. 1 }

the description is insufficient.<sup>9</sup>

N. Y. 67; People v. Cicotte, 16 Mich. 283; Opinions of Justices, 64 Me. 596; Reg. v. Bradley, 7 Jur. N. S. 757; 9 W. R. 372; 3 L. T. N. S. 853; 3 El. & El. 634.
1. Bowers v. Chambers, 53 Miss. 267; Tidd v. Rines, 26 Minn. 201; Keith v. Hayden, 26 Minn. 212.

2. Harrington v. Fish, 10 Mich. 4. 5.

3. Olcott v. State, 5 Gilm. (Ill.) 481.

4. Hunt v. Smith, 9 Kans. 153.

5. Blackwell on Tax Titles, 202; Atkins v. Hinman, 2 Gilm. (Ill.) 444; Jackson v. Cummings, 15 Ill. 449; Blakeley v. Bestor, 13 Ill. 714.

6. Long v. Long, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 293; Fulenwider v. Fulenwider, 53 Mo. 439; Hunt v. Smith, 9 Kans. Comp.; Clark v. Stoughton, 18 Vt. 50; Avery v. Babcock, 35 Ill. 175; Bailey v. Doolittle, 24 Ill. 577; Dukes v. Rowley, 24 Ill. 210.

7. Jordan Ditching & Draining Ass'n v. Wagoner, 33 Ind. 50. See also Bowers v. Chambers, 50 Mis. 267; Frazer v. State, 106 Ind. 471.

8. Sibley v. Smith, 2 Mich. 486; Comp. Laws, § 804.

9. Detroit Young Men's Society v. Mayor of Detroit, 3 Mich. 172.

Where a mechanic's lien is claimed for material furnished, and there is a sufficient general designation or description of each article, the addition by way of more particular description of letters or abbreviations not commonly understood by persons not in the business of furnishing such material does not vitiate the account :

July 3, 1883, 5 Wds. 32x38—2 Lt. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$  Gld. D. S.

2 " 18x38—2 " " " S. S.

Sept. 4, 350 ft. Mldg. No. 673, 2.00.

Disc. 40 per cent.<sup>1</sup>

4. Evidence.—Parol evidence may be heard to show the meaning of an abbreviation or the particular word for which it stands in a written instrument; but not to show the intention with which it was used.<sup>2</sup>

In an action upon a stock contract, the evidence of stock-brokers may be properly received to explain abbreviations.

County officers have been allowed to explain abbreviations in a tax deed.<sup>3</sup>

Where the memorandum of a notary public of a protest of a note and of notice is so abbreviated and elliptical as to be unintelligible, an expert may be called to prove the meaning of the words.<sup>4</sup>

Parol evidence of the meaning of the terms "EXFF. Madder, 121-4, 6ms," in a contract, allowed;<sup>5</sup> also of "100+ dolls. per ton," in a bill of lading.<sup>6</sup>

The letters I.O.U. are a valid acknowledgment of indebtedness.<sup>7</sup>

The production of an I.O.U. is prima facie evidence of an account stated.<sup>8</sup>

It is necessary, in order to introduce parol proof as to what sense letters which have not acquired a legal signification are used in a particular trade, to aver in the declaration that they are so used. The letters C.O.D. placed in a written contract are the initials of the words "collect on delivery," and this undertaking by these letters is assumed and a strict performance thereof may be exacted.<sup>9</sup>

The letters C.O.D. followed by an amount in dollars have come to be very well understood by the community and the public, but

1. Smith v. Headley, 33 Minn. 384.

2. Hill v. State, 9 Verg. (Tenn.) 357; Jaqua v. The Witham & Anderson Co., 106 Ind. 545.

3. Story v. Salmon, and Griffin v. Same, 6 Daly. 531, and 71 N. Y. 420; Barton v. Anderson et al., 104 Ind. 578.

4. Sheldon v. Benham, 4 Hill (N. Y.), 129.

5. Dana v. Fiedler, 1 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 463.

6. Taylor v. Beavers, 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 215.

7. Kinney v. Flynn, 2 R. I. 319.

8. Fesenmeyer v. Adcock, 16 M. T. W. 449, 450; Curtis v. Richards, 1 Scott N. R. 155; Gould v. Coombs, 1 C. B. 543; vide also Childers v. Boulnois, R. & R. N. P. C. 8; Melanotte v. Teasdale, 13 M. & W. 216; 13 L. J. Exch. 358; s. p., Taylor v. Steele, 16 M. & W. 665; 11 Jur. 806; 16 L. J. Exch. 177; Smith v. Smith, 1 F. & F. 539; Waithman v. Elsee, 1 C. & R. 35.

9. The American Express Co. v. Lessem et al., 39 Ill. 333.

perhaps could not without the aid of extrinsic evidence be read and interpreted by the courts. It is certainly competent to explain their use in connection with a contract, not inconsistent with the terms thereof.<sup>1</sup>

After the letters f. o. b. in a contract have been explained to mean "free on board," there is nothing ambiguous, and consequently no room for parol evidence.<sup>2</sup>

5. Judgment.—A judgment is void for uncertainty in which the amount is expressed only in numerals and with nothing to indicate what they represent, and in which the land is described as "S.<sup>1</sup>N.E.<sup>1</sup>" of a designated section, town, and range.<sup>3</sup>

A judgment obtained before a magistrate against a defendant by a name in which an initial letter is used instead of his Christian name is irregular but not void.<sup>4</sup>

6. Name.—Initials preceding a surname are always understood to be the initials of a name and not the abbreviation of a title, unless proved the latter.<sup>5</sup>

Where one name is an abbreviation of another, but both are taken promiscuously and according to common usage to be the same, though differing in sound, the use of the one for the other is not a material misnomer.<sup>6</sup> "Jr." is no part of a person's name.<sup>7</sup> "Th." means the same as Thomas.<sup>8</sup> (See NAMES.)

7. Notes, etc.—A court sitting as a jury has a right to infer from the face of a note payable "at the Br. at Fort Wayne of the Bk. of the State of Indiana" that the branch at Fort Wayne of the Bank of the State of Indiana was intended.<sup>9</sup>

The words "Citz. Bank" in a note were held to be plainly an abbreviation of Citizens' Bank.<sup>10</sup>

A note made payable at a certain place, "Ind.," having been sued on, held, the courts and juries of Indiana may well know from their general information that the abbreviation "Ind." as applied to a place means Indiana.<sup>11</sup>

"Com." and "Co." are well-understood abbreviations of "company," when used as part of the name of a commercial firm, and an indorsement "Sturges & Co." on a note payable to "Sturges & Com." is no variance.<sup>12</sup>

1. Collender v. Dinsmore, 55 N. Y. 200.

2. Silberman v. Clark, 96 N. Y. 522.

3. Tidd v. Rines, 26 Minn. 201; Keith v. Hayden, 26 Minn. 212.

4. Bridges v. Layman, 31 Ind. 384.

5. Burford v. McCue, 53 Penna. St. 427; Dana v. Fielder, 12 N. Y. 40.

6. Gordon v. Holiday, 1 Wash. 285; Wilkerson v. State, 13 Mo. 91.

7. Headley v. Shaw, 39 Ill. 354; State v. Grant, 21 Me. 171; Jameson v. Isaacs, 12 Vt. 611; Johnson v. Ellison, 4 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 526; State v. Wear, 38 N. H. 314; Padgett v. Lawrence, 12 Paige (N. Y.), 170; People v. Cook, 14 Barb.

(N. Y.) 259; Blake v. Tucker, 12 Vt. 39; Prentiss v. Blake, 34 Vt. 460; Cobb v. Lucas, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 7, 9; Kincaid v. Howe, 10 Mass. 203, 205; Commonwealth v. Perkins, 1 Pick (Mass.) 388; People v. Collins, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 549; Brainard v. Stephin, 6 Vt. 9.

8. Ogden v. Gibbons, 2 South. (N. J.) 518, 531.

9. Miller et al. v. Powers et al., 16 Ind. 410.

10. Locke et al. v. Merchants' National Bank, 66 Ind. 353.

11. Burroughs et al. v. Wilson, 59 Ind. 536.

12. Keith v. Sturges, 51 Ill. 142.

Held, not to be error to admit a note sued on in evidence, because the amount is written "four hund and two and  $\frac{82}{100}$  dollars." <sup>1</sup>

The word "cash" affixed to the name of a payee indicates that the note is payable to the bank, and the bank may sue thereon as payee, the agent being a party to the action. <sup>2</sup>

The words "ten pe. cen." in a promissory note have been held to have a meaning understood by everybody, and make the note bear interest at ten per cent. <sup>3</sup>

No force can be conceded in an objection to the word "Feb'y" in a note. <sup>4</sup>

The terms "Ill. cy.," on a certificate of deposit given by Chicago bankers, construed to mean, as applied to the payment of the certificate, that the same might be paid in bills of banks which at the time of payment were received and passed as ordinary currency in Illinois, but not in the same bills which were received.

8. Pleading.—Except when it is otherwise specially prescribed by law, a writ or other process must be in the name of the people of the State; and each writ, process, record, pleading, or other proceeding in a court or before an officer must be in the English language, and, unless it is oral, made out on paper or parchment, in a fair legible character, in words at length and not abbreviated. But the proper known names of process and technical words may be expressed in appropriate language as now is and heretofore has been customary; such abbreviations as are now commonly employed in the English language may be used, and numbers may be expressed by Arabic figures or Roman numerals in the customary manner. <sup>5</sup>

If a variance is an abbreviation, it is immaterial, if the jury find it to mean the same thing. <sup>6</sup>

The revised statutes of New York provide that no indictment shall be deemed invalid or the trial affected by any misstatement of the defendant's title, occupation, estate, or degree, when the defendant shall not be misled or prejudiced by such misstatement, or by reason of any other defect or imperfection in matters of form which shall not tend to the prejudice of the defendant. <sup>7</sup>

Averments may be made in a declaration explaining abbreviations used in the written instrument declared on. <sup>8</sup>

The use of "Geo." instead of George, as written in an indictment, held not to be a material variance <sup>9</sup> or proof of allegation of "U. States" by United States. <sup>10</sup>

The abbreviation, in a declaration, "Damages One thous. Dollars," is not error, though not a commendable practice. <sup>11</sup>

1. Glenn v. Porter, 72 Ind. 525.

2. Nave et al. v. Hadley et al., 74 Ind. 155.

3. Cutting v. Conklin, 28 Ill. 506.

4. Hulbert v. Carver, 37 Barb. (N. Y.) 62.

5. Bliss N. Y. Ann. Code, 1877, p. 25.

6. Lewis v. Few, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 1.

7. 2 R. S. 728, § 52.

8. Jaqua v. The Witham & Anderson Co., 106 Ind. 545.

9. Patterson v. People, 12 Hun (N. Y.), 139.

10. Lewis v. Few, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 1.

11. Rice v. Buchanan, 1 W. L. J. (Mich.) 395.

The use of "L. S." for place of seal, "vs." for versus or against, and "&c." does not vitiate a plea. Such terms are English. The letters L. S. may be taken also to indicate a seal. Ads. for adsectam, with the names of parties properly placed, indicates the same as vs.<sup>1</sup>

A bill filed by Orrin P. Ramsdell to foreclose a mortgage given to O. P. Ramsdell being taken as confessed against defendants, who were the mortgagors, it must be assumed that defendants admit the execution, the identity of the parties being open to proof, if questioned.<sup>2</sup>

In a complaint for a criminal charge before a magistrate, the year may be stated in words following the letters "A. D.," and the sign "&" express the word "and."<sup>3</sup>

In an action for assault, battery, and imprisonment, a plea answering the "assault, &c., and imprisonment" is broad enough, the &c. including the battery.<sup>4</sup>

A plea of misnomer to a declaration against Geo. Turner, that his Christian name was George, not Geo., was held good on demurrer.<sup>5</sup>

In England, however, the describing in a writ and declaration a party to a suit by the initials of his Christian name must be treated as a misnomer.<sup>6</sup>

9. Residence.—Residence is sufficiently stated by double commas under a place already stated, where articles of association require subscribers' residences to be stated with their subscriptions.<sup>7</sup>

10. Return.—The return of service of summons is sufficient, though the Christian name of defendant is abbreviated therein.<sup>8</sup>

If an abbreviation taken in connection with the remainder of the writing and subject-matter can be clearly understood and not be ambiguous, it must have the same effect as if the words were written in full. Where a return of a sheriff ran, "by delivering a true copy of within writ to Dr. Peter Brugman, president of the O. F. B. A.," and on examination of the writ it appeared that the letters could refer to the Odd Fellows' Building Association, held, that there was no ambiguity.<sup>9</sup>

11. Wills.—If a testator introduce in his will certain terms or characters which are not understood by the court, recourse may be had to persons conversant with the subject for the purpose of deciphering the characters.<sup>10</sup>

1. Smith v. Butler, 25 N. H. 521; Berry v. Osborn, 28 N. H. 279; Holbrook v. Nichol, 36 Ill. 161; Bowen v. Wilcox & Gibbs Sewing Machine Co., 86 Ill. 11.

2. Ramsdell v. Eaton, 12 Mich. 117.

3. Commonwealth v. Clark, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 596; Brown v. State, 16 Texas App. 245.

4. Bryan v. Bates, 15 Ill. 87.

5. Wilson & Turner v. Shannon et al., 6 Ark. 196.

6. Rust v. Kennedy, 4 M. & W. 586; 7 D. P. C. 199; 3 Jur. 198.

7. Steinmetz v. V. & O. T. Co., 57 Ind. 457; Miller v. W. C. G. R. Co., 52 Ind. 51.

8. Elliot & Redman v. The Bank of the State, 4 Ark. 437.

9. Odd Fellows' Building Ass'n v. Hogan, 28 Ark. 265.

10. Masters v. Masters, 1 P. Wms. 421; Norman v. Morell, 4 Ves. 769; Kell v. Charmer, 23 Beav. 195; Clayton v. Lord Nugent, 13 M. & W. 206.

The word "mod." occurred in the codicil of the will of a sculptor; opinions of experts differed as to whether "models" was meant, and Lord Brougham decided that a formal bequest of the models in the will could not be revoked by such an abbreviation in the codicil.<sup>1</sup>

A testator devised his real estate under the description:

"Sixty acres, Se. 25, toon. 7 } Jasper county.

Forty acres, Se. 24, toon. 6 } State of Iowa."

Held, that he meant "section," and that it was competent to prove by parol in what township and range testator owned above land and no other.<sup>2</sup>

ABDICATE.—Lord Somers, in his speech delivered in 1688, when James II. vacated the throne, said: "The word abdicate doth properly and naturally signify entirely to renounce, throw off, disown, relinquish any thing or person, so as to have no further to do with it; and that whether it be done by express words or in writing, or by doing such acts as are inconsistent with the holding and retaining of the thing." But, nevertheless, whatever may be the manner by which the incumbent of an office indicates his intention of resigning or abdicating it, whether by acts inconsistent with the retention of the office, or by a formal renunciation of it, it is never consummated—he is never legally out of office—until his resignation is accepted, either expressly or by the appointment of another in his place.<sup>3</sup>

ABDUCT—ABDUCTION. See ENTICING AWAY; KIDNAPPING.

1. What is.—In private or civil law, abduction is the act of taking away a man's wife by violence or persuasion. For this injury an action lies, formerly known as an action of trespass de uxore raptâ et abductâ.<sup>4</sup>

In criminal law, abduction is the act of taking away or detaining a woman either against her own will or, in the case of minors, against the will of her parents or any other person having the lawful charge of her.<sup>5</sup>

1. Goblet v. Beechey, 3 Sim. 24; 2 R. & My. 624.

2. Chambers v. Watson, 60 Iowa, 339.

3. Where a policeman, appointed under the act of 1853 by the legislature of New York, was by virtue of the act of 1857 continued on the police force, but while obeying the commissioners under the act of 1853 refused to act under the new board of police on the ground that the act of 1857 was unconstitutional, held, that such conduct did not amount to a resignation. People v. Board of Police, 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 487.

4. Steph. Com. iii. 437.

5. Sweet's Law Dict.

Abduction means in law the taking and carrying away of a child, a ward, a wife, etc., either by fraud, persuasion, or open violence. State v. George, 93 N. Car. 567. A mere attempt to abduct is not enough. People v. Parshall, 6 Park Cr. (N. Y.) 129.

The term is applied to the unlawful seizure or detention of a female for the purpose of marriage, concubinage, or prostitution. Brown's Law Dict., sec. 2; N. Y. Rev. Stat. 553, §§ 24-26; 1 Russell on Crimes (9 Am. Ed.), 940; 3 Black. Com. 139-141. The statute against taking away maidens and marrying them without consent of their legal guardians is in force in South Carolina. State v. O'Bannon, 1 Bail. (S. Car.) 144; State v. Tidwell, 5 Strobb. (S. Car.) 1. Also in New York where the female is under sixteen years of age. N. Y. Penal Code, § 282.

2. Of Girls under Sixteen.—Every one commits the crime who unlawfully takes, or causes to be taken, any unmarried girl, being under age of sixteen years,<sup>1</sup> out of the possession and against the will of her father or mother, or of any other person having the lawful care of her.<sup>2</sup>

The taking must be a taking under the power, charge, or protection of the taker, but it is immaterial whether the girl is taken with her own consent, or at her own suggestion, or against her will.<sup>3</sup>

It seems very doubtful how far abduction was, in any case, an offence at common law. Of course, if the woman did not consent, there would be an assault upon her; if she consented, but those having lawful charge of her resisted, and force were used, there would be an assault upon them. A conspiracy also to seduce would be an offence at common law, or to induce an unchaste woman to become a prostitute. R. v. Howell, 4 F. & F. 160. All the authorities usually quoted to show that this is an offence at common law may be explained on one or other of these grounds. See R. v. Lord Grey, 3 S. Tr. 519; R. v. Mears, 2 Den. C. C. 79; 1 East, P. C. 460; 1 Russ. by Gr. 401; Hawk. P. C. b. 1, c. 41, s. 8. See State v. Sullivan, 85 N. Car. 506.

The gist of the offence is the taking or enticing away, be it to a place distant or near, or be it for a long or short space of time. Slocum v. People, 90 Ill. 274.

A statute punishing the enticing away of a female applies where the defendant accomplishes his purpose while he artfully avoids making her a direct proposition to go away with him. People v. Carrier, 46 Mich. 442. See State v. Ruhl, 8 Iowa, 447; Beyer v. People, 86 N. Y. 369.

The N. Y. Penal Code, § 282, sub. 1, provides that whoever inveigles or entices an unmarried female under the age of twenty-five years, of previous chaste character, into a house of ill-fame or of assignation, or elsewhere for the purpose of prostitution or sexual intercourse, is guilty of abduction. See People v. Seeley, 37 Hun (N. Y.), 190; Beyer v. People, 86 N. Y. 369; Schnicker v. People, 88 N. Y. 192.

1. As the legal age for abduction varies in the different States, the age of sixteen is used in the following illustrations for convenience, and is the age generally adopted.

2. If the girl has no parents or legal guardians, those in whose care she is will be deemed to have the legal charge of her. State v. Ruhl, 8 Iowa, 447. The indictment need not state the means by which the abduction was accomplished, nor that it was done without the consent and against the will of the father, nor that the defendant was not a nearer relation to the child than the person from whose custody it was abducted. State v. George, 93 N. Car. 567.

3. What is not.—A and B, two girls under sixteen, run away from home together. Neither abducts the other. Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 198; R. v. Meadows, 1 C. & K. 399; R. v. Kipps, 4 Cox Cr. Cas. 168; R. v. Mankletwo, Dears. C. C. 162. Nor does one who receives them, in ignorance of who they are, even though he uses them for the purpose of prostitution. Upon the trial of an indictment for abduction, it appeared that the defendant kept a dance-hall or concert-saloon in the city of New York. The testimony of K., the female alleged to have been abducted, was to the effect that she was about fifteen years of age, of somewhat dissolute character, living with her parents in Newark; that in company with a young companion, a former inmate of a house of prostitution, she went to New York without the consent of her parents, and in strolling about came to and entered defendant's saloon; after sitting in the bar-room for a while she asked defendant "how much it was to see the entertainment." He answered, "Nothing, my little dear! come in," and asked if they had come to stay, to which K. replied that she had. He then invited them upstairs, took indecent liberties with their persons, and offered K. a dress, which she refused. She remained in the place voluntarily for about a month, leading the life of a prostitute. No evidence was given that defendant knew K.'s true name, her place of residence, or that he had any previous acquaintance with her or her family, their circumstances or condition. Other witnesses testified that they visited the saloon while K. was there; that there were a number of men and women dancing and drinking, and among them K.; that they asked defendant if he had a young girl from Newark, by the name of K., but he denied any knowledge of such a girl, and offered to allow them to search the premises. While they were talking K. disappeared. They inspected the upper rooms, the appearances, as described, indicating they were used for purposes of prostitution. A physical examination of K.'s person showed that attempts at sexual intercourse had been made, but that it had not been accomplished. Held, that the evidence failed to sustain a conviction. People v. Plath, 100 N. Y. 590. See R. v. Olifier, 10 Cox Cr. Cas. 402.

The expression "taking out of the possession" means taking the girl to some place where the person in whose charge she is

A, a lady, persuades B, a girl under sixteen, to leave her father's house and come to A's house for a short time, for the purpose of going to the play with her. A has not abducted B. Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 199.

A, a girl under sixteen, who was in service, was, as she was returning from an errand, asked by B if she would go to London, as B's mother wanted a servant, and he would give her £5 wages. A and B went away together to Bilston, where both were found, and B apprehended. Held, that this was not such a taking, or causing to be taken, of A as was sufficient to constitute the offence of abduction. R. v. Meadows, 1 C. & K. 399.

A mere seduction does not amount to an abduction under the N. Y. Rev. Statutes. People v. Parshall, 6 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 129.

An indictment for abduction of a female of the age of fifteen years, with intent to defile her, cannot be supported at common law or under the North Carolina act of 1789, c. 81, which relates to abduction of children under the age of fourteen years. State v. Sullivan, 85 N. Car. 506.

What is.—A, a girl under sixteen, asks B, by whom she has been seduced, to elope with her, which he does. B. commits abduction. Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 199; R. v. Biswell, 2 Cox Cr. Cas. 259. See R. v. Robins, 1 C. & K. 456. The defendant may be convicted, though the abduction may be with the consent of the female. Tucker v. State, 8 Lea (Tenn.), 633.

The "taking" need not be by force; solicitations or inducements are sufficient. People v. Marshall, 59 Cal. 386; People

v. Carrier, 46 Mich. 442; People v. Seeley, 37 Hun (N. Y.), 190; Slocum v. People, 90 Ill. 274.

In People v. Carrier, 46 Mich. 442, Cooley, J., said: "The defendant induced a brother of the girl to persuade her to meet him, and after the interview which there took place the girl went off at once to Canada. How far, if at all, this was induced by the persuasions of the defendant was left to the jury on the facts. As throwing light upon the intent, the prosecution was allowed to show that the girl had previously lived with defendant in illicit relations in Canada. The defendant claimed that the evidence showed the girl herself proposed the action which she took, and that the defendant in seeking for the interview had no other motive than to explain to her his conduct and motives in another transaction in respect to which it was expected her evidence was to be used against him. The circuit court charged the jury that before they could convict they must be satisfied the defendant enticed the girl away. "It may have been done by open solicitation to go for one purpose or for another purpose. It may have been done by designedly portraying to her her situation, and the result of going back to Mr. B., or the place from which she came, in such a light as to lead her to go to escape a return. If this were done with the design of getting her to go, it is an enticing, although the defendant may not have asked her to go, and apparently only consented to go with her; but if he had no design to get her to go away, and did nothing to bring about such an end, it would not be an enticing, and the defendant could not be convicted."

"This instruction was correct. A man cannot be suffered to evade the statute by artfully avoiding a direct proposition that she go off with him, when his conduct is equivalent to such a proposition, and not only suggests it to the girl, but is calculated and designed to induce her to go. The judge also instructed the jury that the previous relations of the parties might be considered as bearing upon the intent of the defendant in enticing the girl away. This also was correct. The previous relations of the parties were not conclusive, but they were very significant. (People v. Jenness, 5 Mich. 305.) It may be added, however, that the evidence of subsequent conduct cannot exercise control over her, for some purpose inconsistent with the objects of such control. A taking for a time may amount to abduction.<sup>1</sup>

If the consent of the person from whose possession the girl is taken is obtained by fraud, the taking is deemed to be against the will of such person.<sup>2</sup>

The fact that the offender supposes, in good faith and on reasonable grounds, that the girl is more than sixteen years of age is immaterial;<sup>3</sup> but [it seems] it is not necessary that he should either know or have reason to believe that she was under the lawful care or charge of her father, mother, or some other person.<sup>4</sup>

A, by improper solicitations or inducements, persuades B, a girl was so conclusive of the unlawful intent that the proof of previous misconduct might well have been dispensed with." See People v. Seeley, 37 Hun (N. Y.), 190.

A girl under eighteen was placed by her father in the employ of C. She left the service in about a week without the knowledge or consent of her father. She then led an immoral life until she met the defendant. An improper intimacy at once commenced between the defendant and herself, and, at its beginning, he proposed that she should go into a house of prostitution and support him out of the money made by her as an inmate of such house. Held, that the defendant was guilty, as the girl, when taken, was in contemplation of the law in charge of her father. People v. Cook, 61 Cal. 478.

A brought B, a girl under fifteen years of age, into the State of New Jersey. He cohabited with her and interposed his will or persuasion between her and her guardian's control, so as to overcome her intention to return to her home. Held, that he abducted her. State v. Gordon, 46 N. J. L. 432.

1. A persuades B, a girl under sixteen, to leave her father's house and sleep with him for three nights, and then sends her back. A has abducted B. Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 199; R. v. Timmins, Bell, 276.

It is not necessary that the illicit intercourse should continue for an indefinite or considerable length of time. A single act is sufficient. State v. Feasel, 74 Mo. 524.

A statute providing for the punishment of any person who for purposes of prostitution shall entice away a female of less than sixteen from her father, mother, guardian, or other person having the legal charge of her person, covers cases of girls who are living in a family with the knowledge of a parent who does not object, or who has delegated the charge of the girl to the head of the family. It also applies to girls who are not under strict legal guardianship, but are orphans or abandoned by their parents and are given a home by charitable persons. People v. Carrier, 46 Mich. 442. See State v. Ruhl, 8 Iowa, 447.

It is sufficient to constitute the crime that a girl living with her parents is induced by persuasion or enticements to go to some convenient place from her father's house, in the immediate neighborhood, for the purpose of illicit intercourse, where she is gone only for an hour or two at a time. Slocum v. People, 90 Ill. 274.

2. A induces B to permit his daughter, C, to go away by falsely pretending that he (A) will find a place for C. A abducts C. Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 199; R. v. Hopkins Car. & M. 254.

The prisoner represented to the girl's mother that he had secured a situation for the daughter. He took the girl away, but kept her with him from Monday to Friday, and slept with her every night, and then took her home. Held, that he was guilty of abduction. R. v. Hopkins C. & M. 254.

The defendant falsely represented to a woman that he had procured her a situation as a servant. He took her to a house of prostitution and effected her defilement. Held, that the unlawful intent could fairly be inferred from the end attained. Beyer v. People, 86 N. Y. 369.

3. A takes B, a girl under sixteen, out of her father's possession, believing her upon good grounds to be eighteen. A has abducted B. Steph. Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 199; R. v. Prince, L. R. 2 C. C. R. 154; R. v. Robins, 1 C. & K. 456.

4. People v. Cook, 61 Cal. 478. The English cases hold the contrary view.

under sixteen, to leave her father's house; or induces B, a woman over sixteen years of age, to go with him, the purpose of A being to use B for prostitution. A is guilty of abduction.<sup>1</sup>

1. People v. Marshall, 59 Cal. 386; People v. Cook, 61 Cal. 478; Slocum v. People, 90 Ill. 274. See Beyer v. People, 86 N. Y. 369; Schnicker v. People, 88 N. Y. 192; People v. Parshall, 6 Park Cr. (N. Y.) 132; R. v. Miller, 13 Cox Cr. Cas. 179.

Prostitution means common indiscriminate intercourse with men and not with one man. Osborn v. State, 52 Ind. 526.

Purpose of prostitution as well as taking must be shown. People v. Plath, 100 N. Y. 590.

The prosecutrix, a German girl about sixteen years of age, who had been in this country about three weeks, went to a house of prostitution kept by the prisoner, not knowing the character of the house, for the purpose of obtaining employment as a domestic; the prisoner detained her there by exciting her fears that if she left she would be arrested, and by keeping the outer door locked; the prisoner plied her daily with solicitations to consent to the defilement of her person, but she refused; finally the prisoner told her to go upstairs with a man, and upon her refusal, opened the door of the room where she was and shoved her into the hall, whereupon she went upstairs to her room, and in a half-hour after a man called the "boss" came to her room with another man and left him there, and this man by force defiled her. Held, that the evidence was sufficient to sustain a conviction. Schnicker v. People, 88 N. Y. 192.

The purpose of the defendant must be prostitution or concubinage, and not merely illicit sexual intercourse. Osborn v. State, 52 Ind. 526; Slocum v. People, 90 Ill. 274; Corn v. Cook, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 93; Carpenter v. People, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 603; State v. Ruhl, 8 Iowa. 447; State v. Stoyell, 54 Me. 24.

Seduction does not amount to abduction. People v. Parshall, 6 Park Cr. (N. Y.) 474.

Under the N. Y. Penal Code, § 282, the purpose of the abduction is accomplished if merely illicit intercourse is the purpose. It is sufficient if the woman is induced by solicitation to go to a place to meet the accused and there has sexual intercourse with him. People v. Seeley, 37 Hun (N. Y.), 190.

Where, upon the trial of an indictment, it appeared that the prosecutrix unsuspecting of any unlawful intent, and relying upon his statements, was induced by false representations on the part of the prisoner, to the effect that he had procured her a situation as a servant in a respectable family, to go with him to a disreputable house, where she was, in spite of opposition and resistance and efforts to escape on her part, by force, menace, or duress, defiled, held, that the unlawful intent of the prisoner could fairly be inferred from the end attained; and that the evidence authorized a conviction. Beyer v. People, 86 N. Y. 369.

Chaste Character.—The law will presume the woman's previous life to be chaste, and the burden of proof is on the defendant to show otherwise; and her previous virtue cannot be impeached by her lewd life and conversation after she had been enticed away and had her mind and morals corrupted by the defendant. Slocum v. People, 90 Ill. 274. Compare Kauffman v. People, 11 Hun (N. Y.), 82; People v. Parshall, 6 Park Cr. (N. Y.) 129; Carpenter v. People, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 603. "Previous chaste character" means not merely a reputation for chastity, but actual personal virtue. A single act of illicit intercourse on the part of the woman is a defence. Lyons v. State, 52 Ind. 426; People v. Roderigas, 49 Cal. 9. If the proof shows that the female was unchaste and lewd, the defendant cannot be convicted. Jenkins v. State, 15 Lea (Tenn.), 674.

In a prosecution for enticing a female away for purposes of prostitution, evidence of previous illicit relations and of the subsequent conduct of the parties is admissible as bearing upon defendant's intent in enticing her away. Evidence of former illicit relations is significant though not conclusive in its bearing upon the intent of one who is charged with enticing away a female for prostitution; but it may properly be dispensed with where proof of their subsequent conduct is conclusive as to the unlawful intent. People v. Carrier, 46 Mich. 442.

At the trial for enticing a woman of chaste life and conversation to a house of ill-fame for the purposes of prostitution, the burden is on the prosecution to prove the chastity of the woman. Com. v. Whittaker, 131 Mass. 224. See Kauffman v. People, 11 Hun (N. Y.), 82. Compare Slocum v. People, 90 Ill. 274; Lyons v. State, 52 Ind. 426.

ABETTING. See ACCESSORY.

ABEYANCE. (See CORPORATIONS; OFFICERS; REAL PROPERTY).—This word as applied to real property, whether estates or dignities, denotes that the same are in expectation, remembrance, or intendment of the law. Abeyance is said to be of two sorts, being either (1) Abeyance of the fee simple or (2) Abeyance of the freehold. The first is where there is an actual estate of freehold in esse, but the right to the fee simple is suspended, and is to revive upon the happening of some event; e.g., in the case of a lease to A for life, remainder to the right heirs of B, who is alive, the fee simple is in abeyance until B dies.<sup>1</sup> Similarly, during the incumbency of each successive incumbent of a church, he having only a freehold interest therein, the fee simple is in abeyance.<sup>2</sup> The second species of abeyance, i.e., an abeyance of the freehold itself, occurs on the death of an incumbent, and until the appointment of his successor.<sup>3</sup> But saving this one case, the freehold is never in abeyance, and cannot possibly be so.

It was customary in speaking of a thing in abeyance to say that it was "in nubibus" (which was rather a profane expression), or "in gremio legis,"<sup>4</sup> the latter phrase denoting that the fee simple or freehold which was in abeyance was meanwhile under the care or protection of the law.

There is no abeyance either of the fee simple or of the freehold in the case of conveyances operating under the Statute of Uses, for in these what is not given away remains in the grantor until it is so given.<sup>5</sup>

The unchasteness must be specifically proved. Crozier v. People, 1 Park Cr. (N. Y.) 453; People v. Kenyon, 5 Park Cr. (N. Y.) 254; People v. Kane, 15 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 15; Conkey v. People 1 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 418.

Evidence.—A woman who, having been taken away, has been married to the offender is, notwithstanding that marriage, competent to be a witness against him. R. v. Perry, 1 R. C. & M. 949; R. v. Wakefield, 2 Lewin C. C. 279; State v. Gordon, 46 N. J. L. 432.

To support a conviction under the N. Y. Penal Code for abduction, it must be proved both that there was a "taking" within the meaning of the act, and that such taking was for the purposes of prostitution. The word "taking" implies some persuasive inducement on the part of the accused, not a mere permission or allowance to follow a life of prostitution. A conviction cannot be sustained upon the unsupported evidence of the female alleged to have been abducted as to either element constituting the crime, i.e., the taking or the intent. Proof must be given, aside from her testimony, tending to establish the commission of the crime, and that it was perpetrated by the accused. People v. Plath, 100 N. Y. 590.

Authorities for Abduction.—1 Russell on Crimes (9 Am. Ed.), 940 et seq.; Bishop's Cr. Law; Wharton's Cr. Law; Dwyer's Cr. Law; Roscoe's Cr. Ev.

1. Co. Litt. 342 b.

2. Litt. § 644-6.

3. Litt. § 647.

4. Carter v. Barnardiston, 1 P. Wms. 516.

5. Brown's Law Dict. (Sprague's Ed.).

"If a conveyance be made to A for life, the remainder to the heirs of B then living, and livery be made to A, Mr. Fearnie contends that the inheritance continues in the grantor, because there is no passage open for its transmission at the time of the livery. The transmission may rest in abeyance or expectation, until the contingency or future event occurs to give it operation; but the inheritance in the mean time continues in the grantor, for the very plain and unanswerable reason that there is no person in rerum natura to receive it; and he or his heirs must be entitled, on the determination of the particular estate, before the contingent

If a freehold could commence to pass in futuro, there would be an abeyance and want of a tenant against whom to bring a precipe, and the law will not suffer the land to be in abeyance a single day, if possible to prevent this.<sup>1</sup>

ABIDE.—When used as to an order of court, it means to perform, to execute, to conform to such order.<sup>2</sup>

remainder can take place, to enter and resume the estate. He treated with ridicule the notion that the fee was in abeyance, or in nubibus, or in mere expectation or remembrance, without any definite or tangible existence; and he considered it an absurd and unintelligible fiction. Fearne on Remainders, 452-458. Of the existence of such a technical rule of the common law there can be no doubt. The principle was perhaps coeval with the common law, that during the pendency of a contingent remainder in fee, upon a life estate, as in the case already stated, the inheritance was deemed to be in abeyance. But a state of abeyance was always odious, and never admitted but from necessity, because, in that interval, there could not be any seisin of the land, nor any tenant to the precipe, nor any one of the ability to protect the inheritance from wrong, or to answer for its burdens and services. This was the principal reason why a particular estate for years was not allowed to support a contingent remainder in fee. Hob. 153. The title if attacked could not be completely defended, because there was no one in being whom the tenant could pray in and to support his right; and upon a writ of right patent, the lessee for life could not join the mise upon the mere right. The particular tenant could not be punishable for waste, for the writ of waste could only be brought by him who was entitled to the inheritance. So many operations of law were suspended by this sad theory of an estate in abeyance, that great impediments were thrown in the way of it, and no acts of the parties were allowed to put the immediate freehold in abeyance by limiting it to commence in futuro. . . . Though the good sense of the thing and the weight of liberal doctrine are strongly opposed to the ancient notion of an abeyance, the technical rule is that livery of seisin takes the reversion or inheritance from the grantor, and leaves him no tangible or disposable interest. Instead of a reversion he has only a potential ownership subsisting in contemplation of law, or a possibility of reverter; and Mr. Preston (on Estates, 1, 225; on Abstracts, 2, 103-106) insists that an estate of freehold depending on another estate of freehold, and limited in contingency, must be in abeyance and not in the grantor." 4 Kent. Com. 258-260. See 1 Washburne's Real Prop. (4th Ed.) 71, 72; Terrett v. Taylor, 9 Cranch (U. S.) 43; Dartmouth College Case, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 518, 691.

1. The necessity under the feudal system that there should be always some one ready to perform the lord's services was not the only reason which introduced the maxim of the common law that a freehold can never be placed in abeyance. It had a better foundation which continues still to exist, and to exist in Pennsylvania, that there should be always some person to answer the real actions brought for the recovery of the property. Lyle v. Richards, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 322.

2. Hodge v. Hodgdon, 8 Cush. (Mass.) 294, citing Taylor v. Hughes, 3 Greenl. (Me.) 433.

"Abide the Judgment of the Court."—A condition of a recognizance on an appeal, which is conditioned for the defendant's appearance "to await the action of the court," is not sufficient when the statute prescribes the words "to abide the judgment of the court." Wilson v. State, 7 Tex. App. 38.

"Abide by" an Award.—The meaning of the term "abide by" is not the same as "to acquiesce in" or "not dispute." To abide by an award is the same as to abide an award, to stand to the determination of the arbitrators, and to take the consequences of the award. It means simply to await the award without revoking the submission. It can never be construed to mean that the defendant should not be at liberty to dispute the validity of any award that might be made. Shaw v. Hatch, 6 N. H. 162; see Marshall v. Read, 48 N. H. 36.

"Abide the Decision."—The plaintiff in a bill in equity, praying for a discovery, for an account of the rents and profits of real estate, to which he claimed title as tenant in common with the defendant, who denied his title, and for general relief, petitioned at law for partition of the premises, and by agreement, with consent of the court, a docket entry was made in the action at law that it was "to abide de-

ABILITY.—In a California statute setting forth the grounds for divorce, ability was held to mean the possession by the husband of means in property to provide such necessities, not his capacity for acquiring such means by labor.<sup>1</sup>

ABLE.—A Maine statute declares that expenses incurred for providing nurses; etc., to an infected person shall be at the charge of the person sick, "if able." Held, that the possession of $600, in available personal securities, rendered a person "able" in the meaning of the statute, where the charges were $176.<sup>2</sup>

ABLE-BODIED.—That the term "able-bodied" does not imply an absolute freedom from all physical ailment we think evident. We think it imports an absence of those palpable and visible defects which evidently incapacitate the person for performing the ordinary duties of a soldier.<sup>3</sup>

ABODE. See DOMICILE.

ABORTION. (See ACCESSORY.)—1. Any person who does any act calculated to prevent a child being born alive is guilty of abortion.<sup>4</sup>

2. At Common Law.—If the act be done with the mother's consent, and the child has not quickened, it is not a crime by the common law; nor is procuring an abortion a felony, if the child has quickened.<sup>5</sup> When, in consequence of the means used to

"cision" in the suit in equity. A verdict was afterwards returned by a jury on an issue framed in the suit in equity to try the title in the premises, and at the argument of exceptions taken at the trial an amendment of this verdict was agreed to, and the case was sent to a master to state an account. Held, that the docket entry did not require the petitioner at law to await the final decree in equity, but partition should be ordered in conformity with the title so determined. Hodges v. Pingree, 108 Mass. 585.

1. Washburn v. Washburn, 9 Cal. 475. An English statute, 9 Geo. 4, c. 14, s. 6, provides that no action could be brought to charge a person by reason of a representation given concerning the ability of another person unless reduced to writing and signed. It was held that the representation should relate to the ability of the other person effectually to perform and satisfy the engagement of a pecuniary nature into which he has proposed to enter. Lyde v. Barnard, 1 M. & W. 101.

2. Hampden v. Newburgh, 67 Me. 370.

3. A physical disability or bodily infirmity, not apparent, does not exempt a person from enrolment in the militia. The enrolling officer is the judge, and any error of judgment cannot be inquired into collaterally, such as a suit for trespass for taking and selling a mare, property of plaintiff, as an amercement for non-appearance at training. Darling v. Bowen, 10 Vt. 148. There being no exception made by the charter of a city or the ordinance imposing a tax in favor of persons not able-bodied, and no constitutional restriction upon legislation in this respect, the fact that a citizen upon whom the tax is imposed is not able-bodied constitutes no defence to the imposition of the tax. City of Malcomb v. Twaddle, 4 Bradw. (Ill.) 254.

4. See Abrams v. Foshee, 3 Iowa, 278; Cotton v. Cotton, 5 Martin (La.), 95.

5. At Common Law.—"After a patient investigation we are forced to the conclusion that it never was a punishable offence at common law to produce, with the consent of the mother, an abortion prior to the time when the mother became quick with child. It was not even murder at common law to take the life of the child at any period of gestation, even in the very act of delivery." Hines, J. Mitchell v. Com., 78 Ky. 204; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 227. See Com. v. Bangs, 9 Mass. 387; Com. v. Parker, 9 Metc. (Mass.) 263; s. c., 43 Am. Dec. 396; Smith v. State, 33 Me. 48; State v. Cooper, 22 N. J. L. 52; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 248; State v. Siagle, 82 N. Car. 653; secure an abortion, the death of the woman ensues, then it is murder at common law; but by statute in some States it is made manslaughter.<sup>1</sup>

3. Intention.—By the giving of any drug, noxious thing or other matter or substance, or the use of any instrument calculated to produce miscarriage,<sup>2</sup> whether the object be attained or not; if

People v. Sessions, 26 N. W. Repr. (Mich.) 291; Ann v. State, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 159; Abrams v. State, 3 Iowa, 274; s. c., 66 Am. Dec. 77; Hatfield v. Gano, 15 Iowa, 178. The contra view appears to have been followed by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. Mills v. Com., 13 Pa. St. 633; Com. v. Demain, 6 Pa. Law Jour. 29; s. c., Brightly, 441.

1. When Murder.—4 Black Com. 201; 1 Bishop Cr. L. 328; State v. Moore, 25 Iowa, 128; State v. Dickinson, 41 Wis. 299.

2. Intention.—State v. Owens, 22 Minn. 238; Wilson v. State, 2 Ohio St. 319; State v. Geddicke, 43 N. J. L. 86; State v. Fitzgerald, 49 Iowa, 260; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 148; State v. Murphy, 3 Dutch. (N. J.) 112; R. v. Hillman, 9 Cox Cr. Cas. 386. If the drug is taken in the absence of the giver, he "causes it to be taken." R. v. Wilson, Dearsly & B. 127; People v. Josselyn, 39 Cal. 396; Stephen's Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 176, note. Even if the intention exists only in his own mind. R. v. Hillman, Leigh & C., 343; State v. Stewart, 52 Iowa, 284. To constitute an administering there need not be an actual delivery by the hand of the prisoner. R. v. Harley, 4 C. & P. 370. It was proved that the woman requested the prisoner to get her something to procure miscarriage, and that a drug was both given by the prisoner and taken by the woman with that intent, but that the taking was not in the presence of the prisoner. It was held, nevertheless, that the prisoner had caused the drug to be taken within the meaning of the statute. R. v. Wilson, Dearsly & B. C. C. 127; R. v. Farrow, Id. 164, acc. See R. v. Fretwell, 31 L. J., M. C. 145. Mere belief of the existence of pregnancy is sufficient to justify the inference of intent. Powe v. State, 48 N. J. L. 34. A husband assaulted and beat his wife, then about three months pregnant. Shortly after such beating she miscarried. It was not proved that the husband desired or intended such result. Held, that a conviction for abortion could not be sustained. Slattery v. People, 76 Ill. 217.

Where drugs were administered, and an instrument thrust into the body of the deceased, with specific intent to produce an abortion, these acts imply malice aforethought. State v. Thurman, 66 Iowa, 693; State v. Owens, 22 Minn. 238; State v. Geddicke, 43 N. J. L. 86, where defendant prescribed "Dr. Clarke's Female Periodical Pills;" R. v. Hollis, 12 Cox Cr. Cas. 463; R. v. Hennah, 13 Cox C. C. 548.

Noxious Thing.—A small quantity of savin, which was sufficient only to produce a little disturbance of the stomach, held not a noxious thing. R. v. Perry, 2 Cox Cr. Cas. 223. This case doubted and criticised, Storer & H. Abor. 196. If the drug is liable to cause injury to a pregnant woman, it is noxious. Dougherty v. People, 1 Colo. 517. Upon an indictment for administering savin, the charge was that the prisoner administered "six ounces of the decoction of a certain shrub called savin then and there, being a noxious and destructive thing." It appeared that the prisoner had prepared the medicine by pouring boiling water on the leaves of the shrub, and the medical men examined stated that such preparation is called an infusion and not a decoction. It was objected that the medicine was misdescribed. The objection was overruled. The court said infusion and decoction are ejusdem generis, and the variance is immaterial. The question is whether the prisoner administered any matter or thing to the woman with intent to procure abortion. R. v. Phillips, 3 Campb. 78. The authority of this decision appears to have been recognized in the following case. The prisoner was indicted for administering saffron to the prosecutrix with intent to procure abortion. The counsel for the prisoner cross-examining as to the innocuous nature of the article administered, Vaughan, B. said, "Does that signify? It is with the intention that the jury have to do; and if the prisoner administered a bit of bread merely with the intent to procure abortion, it is sufficient to constitute the offence contemplated by the act of Parliament." R. v. Coe, 6 C. & P. 403. The words in the clause of the statute under which the prisoner appears to have been indicted in this case were "any medicine or other thing." Where the prisoner was indicted miscarriage be the intention, the crime is complete. The drug administered may even be harmless.<sup>1</sup>

4. The administration of a drug, or the actual use of an instrument, is not necessary to the incrimination; if any person sells or supplies any drug or thing to be taken, or any instrument to be used, knowing that miscarriage is the intention, he is an accessory.<sup>2</sup>

5. Pregnant—Quick with Child.—It is immaterial whether or not the woman was pregnant,<sup>3</sup> though a miscarriage can be effected at any time after actual conception.<sup>4</sup> A woman is "quick with for supplying "a certain noxious thing," and the evidence was that the thing supplied was of a perfectly harmless character in itself, though if taken with the belief that it would procure a miscarriage it might, by acting on the imagination, produce that effect, it was held, that the conviction must be quashed, as there was no evidence that the thing supplied was noxious. R. v. Isaacs, 1 L. & C. 220; 32 L. J., M. C. 52. But where there was no evidence of the ingredients of the thing administered, or of its character being harmless or otherwise, except that in fact it made the witness ill and produced miscarriage, it was held, that there was evidence of its being a noxious thing. R. v. Hollis, 12 Cox C. C. R. 463. If the drug be innocuous if taken in small quantities, but harmful if taken in large, it would appear to be a noxious thing. R. v. Cramp, 5 Q. B. D. 307; R. v. Hennah, 13 Cox, 547.

1. Accessories.—Com. v. W—, 3 Pittsb. (Pa.) 463, where defendant advised excessive exercise. Evidence is admissible to show that the accused received the woman upon whom the abortion was committed to board, knowing her condition, for the purpose of having an abortion performed upon her, and that he had procured a physician to operate upon her. Com. v. Adams, 127 Mass. 15. In People v. Vedder, 98 N. Y. 630; s. c., 34 Hun (N. Y.), 280, it was held, that a woman permitting an abortion is not an accomplice under the Penal Code, § 294. To same effect Com. v. Boynton, 116 Mass. 343; Dunn v. People, 29 N. Y. 523; Com. v. Brown, 121 Mass. 69; Com. v. Wood, 11 Gray (Mass.), 85; State v. Owens, 22 Minn. 238; State v. Hyer, 39 N. J. L. 598. Although the woman is not an accomplice, her moral implication may properly be considered in weighing her testimony. Watson v. State, 9 Tex. App. 237. It is not a crime for her to take the potion. State v. Hyer, 39 N. J. L. 598. Compare Solander v. People, 2 Colo. 48. A father is accessory who consents to the attempt. Watson v. State, 9 Tex. App. 237. The woman's evidence is competent against those mutually engaged with her in the act. Solander v. People, 2 Colo. 48; People v. Vedder, 98 N. Y. 630.

2. Consequence not Material.—R. v. Coc, 6 C. & P. 403; U. S. v. Bott, 11 Blatchf. (U. S.) 346; Dougherty v. People, 1 Colo. 514; State v. Gedicke, 43 N. J. L. 86; Com. v. Morrison, 16 Gray (Mass.), 224. The indictment need not allege what the drug was. Watson v. State, 9 Tex. App. 237; Com. v. Morrison, 16 Gray (Mass.) 224. Nor that it was noxious. Com. v. Morrison, 16 Gray (Mass.), 224. The drug may be harmless. State v. Fitzgerald, 49 Iowa, 260; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 148. See State v. Gedicke, 43 N. J. L. 86.

3. Pregnant—Quick with Child.—R. v. Goodchild, 1 Den. C. C. 187; s. c., 2 Car. & K. 293; Com. v. Taylor, 132 Mass. 261; R. v. Titley, 14 Cox Cr. C. 502. In Iowa it has been held that the pregnancy, as well as the administering of drugs or use of instruments, must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Stewart, 52 Iowa, 284. In New Jersey mere belief of the existence of pregnancy is sufficient, with other circumstances, to justify the inference of intent. Powe v. State, 48 N. J. L. 34. In Vermont and Massachusetts it is held that it is immaterial whether the foetus be alive or not. State v. Howard, 22 Vt. 380; Com. v. Wood, 11 Gray (Mass.) 85; Com. v. Taylor, 132 Mass. 261; Smith v. State, 33 Me. 48; s. c., 54 Am. Dec. 607. In Michigan the foetus must have quickened. People v. McDowell, 30 N. W. Repr. 70. In Pennsylvania it is held that the moment the womb is instinct with embryo life, and gestation has begun, the crime may be perpetrated. Mills v. Com., 13 Pa. St. 631.

4. Evans v. People, 49 N. Y. 86; Wilson v. State, 2 Ohio St. 319; State v. Fitzgerald, 49 Iowa, 260; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 148.

child" from the period of conception and the commencement of gestation, but is only "pregnant with a quick child" when the child has become quickened in the womb.<sup>1</sup>

6. Death of Child.—If a person intending to procure an abortion does an act which causes a child to be born so much earlier than the natural time that it is born in a state much less capable of living, and afterwards dies in consequence of its exposure to the external world, the person who, by this misconduct, so brings the child into the world, and puts it thereby in a situation in which it cannot live, is guilty of murder; and the mere existence of a possibility that something might have been done to prevent the death will not render it less a felony.<sup>2</sup>

7. Evidence.—The evidence of the woman upon whom the abortion was produced is admissible; <sup>3</sup> but not her dying declarations, unless homicide is charged.<sup>4</sup> The testimony of a physician who attended the woman subsequent to the procuring of the abortion is not admissible;<sup>5</sup> but the evidence of a physician who made a post-mortem examination of the woman is competent testimony.<sup>6</sup> Evidence that instruments calculated to produce abortion were found in possession of the person charged is admissible.<sup>7</sup> The instruments may be exhibited to the jury.<sup>8</sup> It is competent to show that the accused had previously used the same treatment on the same woman,<sup>9</sup> and that he had operated on others;<sup>10</sup> but it is

1. Evans v. People, 49 N. Y. 86; R. v. Wycherly, 8 C. & P. 262. This distinction is denied in State v. Cooper, 2 Zab. (N. J.) 52. In an indictment the phrase "woman with child" is equivalent to "pregnant woman." Eckhardt v. People, 83 N. Y. 462; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 462.

2. Death of Child.—R. v. West, 2 Cox Cr. Cas. 500; Wharton's Crim. L. § 942; Storer & H. on Abor. 154 et seq.; Com. v. Brown, 14 Gray (Mass.), 419.

3. Evidence.—People v. Vedder, 98 N. Y. 630; Maine v. People, 16 N. Y. Sup. Ct. 113; Com. v. Wood, 11 Gray (Mass.), 85; Com. v. Boynton, 116 Mass. 343; Watson v. State, 9 Tex. App. 237; Dunn v. People, 29 N. Y. 523; State v. Gedicke, 43 N. J. L. 86. The woman's testimony must be corroborated. People v. Josselyn, 39 Cal. 393.

4. Railing v. Com., 2 East Repr. (Pa.) 892; s. c., 1 Atl. Repr. 314; People v. Davis, 56 N. Y. 95; Maine v. People, 9 Hun (N. Y.), 113; State v. Harper, 35 Ohio St. 78; s. c., 35 Am. Rep. 596; R. v. Hind, 8 Cox Cr. Cas. 300; Wooten v. State, 39 Ga. 223; Storer & H. Abor. 208.

In Indiana and Wisconsin it has been held that dying declarations are admissible. Montgomery v. State, 80 Ind. 338; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 815; State v. Dickinson, 41 Wis. 299.

5. People v. Murphy, 101 N. Y. 126, where a physician was sent by the public prosecutor to make an examination of the woman.

6. People v. Sessions, 26 N. W. Repr. (Mich.) 291.

7. People v. Vedder, 34 Hun (N. Y.), 280; s. c., 98 N. Y. 630. Evidence that the accused had an instrument in possession five months before the time of the alleged operation is admissible. Com. v. Blair, 126 Mass. 40.

8. Com. v. Brown, 14 Gray (Mass.), 419.

9. At the trial of an indictment for unlawfully using a certain instrument, with intent to cause the miscarriage of a woman, evidence that, in addition to using the instrument, the defendant also administered other unlawful treatment for the same purpose, and evidence that he used the same treatment on the same woman upon two other occasions than that named in the indictment, and but a few days previously thereto, is competent to show his intent and his knowledge of the pregnant condition of the woman. Com. v. Corkin, 136 Mass. 429.

10. Com. v. Brown, 14 Gray (Mass.), 419. See Com. v. Holmes, 103 Mass. 440.

not competent to prove a similar offence.<sup>1</sup> Where a woman conspired with others to produce an abortion upon her, her acts and declarations in furtherance of the common purpose are evidence against the accessories.<sup>2</sup> It may be shown that the drug administered was, in popular opinion, supposed to cause abortion.<sup>3</sup>

Evidence is admissible to show that the house of the accused where the abortion was performed was one of ill-fame;<sup>4</sup> also advertisements tending to show that the accused was engaged in the business of procuring abortions.<sup>5</sup> The health and spirits of the woman, also stains and marks upon her bedding, may be shown.<sup>6</sup> The parts of the body of the dead woman, preserved in spirits, may be exhibited to the jury in connection with the testimony of the physician who made the post-mortem examination.<sup>7</sup> The sexual intercourse between the woman and the accused, or between her and a third person, may be proved.<sup>8</sup> The corpus delicti must be established.<sup>9</sup> The fact of the pregnancy, as well as the administering of the drugs or the using of instruments, must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt.<sup>10</sup> A physician testifying as an expert that he has discovered no traces of an abortion in a certain case may properly be asked whether such traces would exist under certain circumstances, even though no proof of such circumstances has been made.<sup>11</sup>

ABOUT. (See MORE OR LESS.)—The word means nearness of time, quality or degree, or making preparations to do a thing, or being actually engaged in doing something.<sup>12</sup>

A contract to convey "about sixty-five acres" cannot be performed by conveying thirty-six acres.<sup>13</sup>

1. Upon the trial of a party for abortion, evidence to prove a similar offence founded upon another and separate transaction is not admissible, but in such case the prosecution will be put to its election. Baker v. People, 105 Ill. 453.

Evidence that the accused had, before the commission of the alleged abortion, told other persons that she had instruments wherewith to produce abortion, and offered her services for that purpose at a certain price, is admissible to show knowledge and intent, and the possession of necessary means to accomplish the act in the chosen way of the accused. People v. Sessions, 26 N. W. Repr. (Mich.) 291.

2. Solander v. People, 2 Colo. 48. See People v. Vedder, 98 N. Y. 630; s. c., 34 Hun (N. Y.), 280.

3. Carter v. State, 2 Ind. 617.

4. Hays v. State, 40 Md. 633.

5. Weed v. People, 1 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 50.

6. Com. v. Wood, 11 Gray (Mass.), 85.

7. Com. v. Brown, 14 Gray (Mass.), 419.

8. Com. v. Wood, 11 Gray (Mass.), 85; Dunn v. People, 29 N. Y. 523; People v. McDowell, 30 N. W. Repr. (Mich.) 68.

9. In a prosecution for procuring an abortion resulting in the death of the pregnant woman, it is the procurement of the miscarriage that constitutes the corpus delicti. Traylor v. State, 101 Ind. 65.

10. State v. Stewart, 52 Iowa, 284.

11. Bathrick v. Detroit, etc., Co., 50 Mich. 629.

Authorities for Abortion.—Storer and Heard on Abortion; Bishop's Crim. Law, vol. i. §§ 328, 741, 769, vol. ii. § 691; Wharton's Crim. Law, §§ 182, 316, 323, 390, 430, 592-599, 1364, 1831.

12. Hockspringer v. Ballenburg, 16 Ohio, 304.

13. Baltimore, etc., Society v. Smith, 54 Md. 187. The court said: "The force of the qualifying word, we think, is simply that while the parties do not bind themselves to the precise quantity of sixty-five acres, it imports that the actual quantity is a near approximation to that mentioned; that is to say, within a

A contract which called for the delivery of "about five hundred tons nitrate of soda" was construed to be a contract for the sale of five hundred tons, with such exception by the word "about" as the variance usually found to exist in such cases, arising from some little difference in the mode of weighing, and that it was not performed by delivering four hundred tons.<sup>1</sup>

Where an entry calls for land on a certain creek "about seven miles" from its mouth, the word "about" must be rejected and the distance taken in a straight line.<sup>2</sup>

fraction of an acre, or perhaps it might cover a discrepancy of one or two acres."

In Stevens v. McKnight, 40 Ohio St. 341, the court said: "If in a contract in writing to sell land the tract is described as containing 'about one hundred and forty acres,' the import of the qualifying word 'about' is simply that the actual quantity is a near approximation to that mentioned. When there is found to be a material and valuable variation, a court of equity upon a petition for specific performance will give the word its proper effect.

A description of a piece of land as containing "about seven acres" and bounded by a canal was held to include the centre of the canal. Without that there would only have been about six acres. Good-year v. Shanahan, 43 Conn. 204.

The description of the quantity of land, though corresponding in the number of acres with that stated in a former conveyance, and especially when accompanied with the qualifying words "more or less" or "about" so many acres, furnishes very strong evidence of the purpose of the grantor to restrict the limits of the premises to those which were conveyed in such former deed. Wheeler v. Randali, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 529.

As to length of a line in deed see Cutts v. King, 5 Me. 482; Purinton v. Sedgley, 4 Me. 286.

1. In Bourne v. Seymour, 16 C. B. 336.

Quantity of Goods.—The plaintiffs having been informed by S., a commission agent, that the defendants had a quantity of old iron in their yard for sale, "about 150 tons," wrote to the defendants, "We are buyers of good wrought scrap-iron free of light and burnt iron, for our American house, and understand from S. that you have for sale about 150 tons. We can offer you 80s. per ton." There were three intermediate letters relating to the place of delivery and expense of carting, and then the defendants wrote, "We accept your offers for old iron, viz., 80s. per ton, we delivering alongside vessel in one of the London docks. Please let us know when you can send a man here to see it weighed, and also inform us where to send it." Before S. saw the plaintiffs he had seen in the yard of the defendants, who were builders, a heap of iron, and said, "You seem to have about 150 tons there." The reply was, "Yes, or more." The defendants only delivered 44 tons, that being the quantity of the heap in the yard. The plaintiffs recovered 50*l.* damages in an action for short delivery. Held, that the words "about 150 tons" were merely words of estimate and expectation, and there was no warranty as to quantity, and therefore the defendants were not bound to deliver 150 tons; that the subject-matter of the contract was not 150 tons of iron, but the iron which S. had seen in the defendants' yard. McLay v. Perry, 44 L. T., N. S. 152.

The plaintiffs agreed to purchase of the defendants "about 300 quarters, more or less," of rye. The ship brought 350 quarters, and the defendants refused to deliver any part unless they would accept the whole. Held, that by the words "about" and "more or less" the parties could not be taken to have contemplated so large an excess as 50 over 300 quarters. Cross v. Eglin, 2 B. & Ad. 106. See Brawley v. U. S., 6 Otto (U. S.), 168.

Where a grantee of land contracts to pay as part consideration therefor a claim of another against the grantor "for about one hundred and fifty dollars," he must pay the amount due, though it be fifty dollars more. Turner v. Whidden, 22 Me. 121.

Where there was a refusal of an order for "about 52 tons" of hemp, on the ground that it was so expressed, held, that parol evidence was admissible to show that it was the custom for warehousemen in describing the quantity to insert in the delivery order as above the word "about," and, when coupled with evidence that the weight was as expressed, there was a sufficient performance of a contract to deliver. Moore v. Campbell, 10 Ex. 323.

2. Sanders v. Morrison, 2 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 109; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 140. See

The words "about to sail from Benizaf with cargo for Philadelphia," contained in a charter-party, mean, about ready to sail; therefore a vessel not more than three elevenths loaded, and the time of finishing subject to all the contingencies of wind, weather, labor, and boats, incident to an open roadstead on the northern coast of Africa, was not "about to sail" within the meaning of the charter-party.<sup>1</sup>

ABROAD. See BEYOND THE SEAS.

ABSCOND. (See ABSCONDING DEBTOR.)—If a person depart from his usual residence, or remain absent therefrom, or conceal himself in his house, so that he cannot be served with process, with intent unlawfully to delay or defraud his creditors, he is an absconding debtor. But if he depart from the State or from his usual abode with the intention of again returning, and without any fraudulent design, he has not absconded, nor absented himself within the intendment of the law.<sup>2</sup>

Johnson v. Pannel, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 206; Shipp v. Miller, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 316. Compare Bodley v. Taylor, 5 Cranch (U. S.), 191.

1. Von Lingen v. Davidson, 4 Fed. Repr. 346.

In Shipping Contract.—The plaintiffs by written contract sold to defendants a quantity of linseed oil "to arrive per ship Marcia from London, sailed on or about the 15th of March ult." Held, that the statement in the contract as to the time of sailing was a mere representation and not a warranty, and, being made without fraud, that the defendants were bound to accept and pay for the oil, although the vessel did not sail until the 26th of March. Hawes v. Lawrence, 4 N. Y. 345.

A charter-party provided that a ship should load a full and complete cargo of iron ore, not exceeding what she could reasonably stow, "say about 1100 tons." The charterer provided 1080 tons, the actual capacity of the ship being 1210 tons. The ship-owner sued the charterer for not loading a full cargo. The court had power to draw inferences of facts. Held, that the words "say about 1100 tons" were words of contract and not of mere expectation; that the ship-owner agreed to accept a cargo of about 1150 tons; and that three per cent was a fair percentage of difference to allow; so that the charterer should have furnished three per cent above 1100 tons, or 1133 tons, and that consequently the charterer was 58 tons short, for which the ship-owner was entitled to net freight. Morris v. Levison, L. R. 1 C. P. 155.

In an agreement to sell "a cargo of old railroad iron, to be shipped per bark Charles William, at thirty dollars per ton, delivered on the wharf at the port of discharge, dangers of the seas excepted—about 300 or 350 tons," the figures "about 300 or 350 tons" are undoubtedly to be taken as part of the contract; but taken with the context, they manifestly express an estimate only, and do not control the descriptive clause designating and limiting the subject of the contract. Held, that the delivery at port of discharge of as much as a vessel seaworthy and in good order could carry, though only 227 tons, was a compliance. Pembroke Iron Co. v. Parsons, 5 Gray (Mass.), 589.

2. Where a debtor departs from one town and goes to another in the same State, where he works openly for over three months, he does not abscond, though his whereabouts was unknown to his friends in the first-mentioned town. The question of withdrawal with a view to elude process is one for the jury. Fitch v. Waite, 5 Conn. 117.

Where the statute provides for a debtor "absconding," an attachment stating that he is about to abscond does not allege sufficient cause for the issuance of the writ. To abscond in a legal sense means to hide, conceal, or absent one's self clandestinely, with the intent to avoid legal process. Bennett v. Avant, 2 Sneed (Tenn.), 152.

An affidavit stating a debtor "about to abscond himself and his property out of the State privately, so that process cannot be served," is equivalent to the assertion that he is about to remove himself and

ABSCONDING DEBTOR. See ATTACHMENT; BILLS AND NOTES.

ABSENCE—ABSENT—PRESUMPTION OF LIFE, DEATH, AND SURVIVORSHIP. See BEYOND THE SEAS; DOMICILE; LIMITATIONS.

1. Definition.
2. Statute of Limitations.
3. Presumption of Death.
4. Presumption of Continuance of Life.
5. Hearing of Inquiries.
6. Survivorship.

1. Definition.—By absence is sometimes meant that a person is not at the place of his domicile; yet his place of residence being known, or news or information having been received from him, his existence is not uncertain. But in a more confined and more technical sense absence signifies that the residence of the person who is not at the place of his domicile is unknown, and that for this reason his existence is doubtful.<sup>1</sup> property out of the State privately, and therefore complies substantially with a statutory oath that defendant is about to remove himself from the State, so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him. Ware v. Todd, 1 Ala. 199.

The Kansas Statute of Limitations provides: "If, when a cause of action accrues against a person, he be out of the State or has absconded or concealed himself, the period limited for the commencement of the action shall not begin to run until he comes into the State, or while he is so absconded or concealed." Held, that absconding and concealing so used refer to the acts of the party in the State. Secretly leaving another State is not absconding or concealing from the reach of process here. Hoggett v. Emerson, 8 Kans. 262.

A certificate of a magistrate that a debtor is not about to abscond or has money, etc., does not meet an affidavit of a creditor alleging that he had money secreted and was about to remove out of the State. In re Proctor, 27 Vt. 118.

A debtor shut up from his creditors in his own house is an absconding debtor. Ives v. Curtis, 2 Root (Conn.), 133.

A publicly going or moving out of the State is not an absconding. Boardman v. Bickford, 2 Aik. (Vt.) 345.

A party may abscond and subject himself to the operation of the attachment laws against absconding debtors, and still not depart from the limits of the State. A party may not be a citizen for political purposes, and yet be a citizen for commercial or business purposes, and liable to attachment. Field v. Adreon, 7 Md. 209.

"The fact of converting a large amount of goods into money by auction sales, and at a large sacrifice, and in a clandestine manner furnished a reasonable presumption that [the debtor] intended to abscond or absent himself, so as to avoid the service upon him of the ordinary process of the law," and evidence of such acts should be admitted. Ross v. Clark, 32 Mo. 296.

1. Bouvier's Inst. § 234.

"Absence" is equivalent to non-appearance. Strine v. Kaufman, 12 Neb. 423.

One who is dead is not "absent." Rockland v. Merrill, 71 Me. 452. See Redfern v. Rumney, 1 Cranch. C. C. 300.

An absent debtor is one absent from his dwelling, residence, and place of abode, out of the country, so that the ordinary process of the court cannot be served upon him. Den v. Wharton, 1 Yerg. (Tenn.) 124.

A man may be a citizen of Kentucky and yet a non-resident, and he may be a resident and yet an absent defendant. Curd v. Letcher, 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 443.

An officer of the army ordered home to await orders is not absent from duty with leave so as to fall within the act placing officers absent from duty with leave on half-pay. United States v. Williamson, 23 Wallace, 411.

Absence means non-appearance in a suit, not absence without knowledge or notice; and a petition for reversal of a decree of judicial separation under 20 and 21 Vict. c. 85, sec. 23, on the ground

2. Statute of Limitations.—In most of the States the statute contains a provision that if at the time a cause of action accrues against a person he shall be absent from the State, the action may be commenced within the time limited after he comes into the State; and that if after a right of action has accrued against a person he shall be absent from and reside out of the State, the time of his absence shall not be taken as any part of the time limited for the commencement of the action. Under this provision it is an important question whether a mere temporary absence of the defendant when the right of action accrued, as for a day or a week, constitutes such an absence as prevents the statute from attaching in his favor; and it may be said that even in such a case the statute does not begin to run until his return to the State, unless the circumstances existing during the period of such temporary absence were such that the service of legal process against him could have been made so that the plaintiff could obtain a judgment against him personally. The evident purpose and intention of this clause of the statute is to insure to a plaintiff the full statutory period within which to commence his action against a defendant; and if he is temporarily absent from the State when the right of action accrues, so that process cannot at that it was obtained in petitioner's "absence" is good on demurrer, though alleging personal service of the citation in the separation suit. Phillips v. Phillips, L. R. 1 P. & D. 169.

A provision in a Mississippi statute provides that in a suit against an absent defendant publication may be made on satisfactory proof that such defendant is out of the State, or that upon inquiry at his usual place of abode he could not be found. Held, that "absent" refers only to defendants temporarily out of the State. Wast v. Heard, 27 Miss. 400.

When the presence of the defendant is not secured either in fact by his appearance or constructively by the service upon him of the summons to appear, a judgment obtained upon his involuntary default is in legal intendment, rendered in his absence. James v. Townsend, 104 Mass. 367.

The general statutes of Massachusetts provide for the granting of a review upon petition, "provided that if the judgment complained of was rendered in the absence of petitioner and without his knowledge," the petition should be filed within one year of notice, etc. Held, that "absence" did not mean out of the State only, but was intended to apply to all cases of default, without service of process, in the several cases mentioned in the statute. James v. Townsend, 104 Mass. 367.

Intentional absence without leave from military service does not constitute a desertion; there must accompany it an intent not to return. Hanson v. South Scituate, 115 Mass. 336.

One who by reason of being an officer or private in the United States army is absent from the State is within a statute of limitations providing for absence on public business. Gregg v. Matlock, 31 Ind. 373.

Absence of Judge.—Where a statute provided that in case of the absence of the county judge the county clerk should fill his place, it was held that the judge, though absent from the county seat, had sufficient power to execute and issue bonds advancing county interests and do certain ministerial acts and buy a seal, being authorized by the code to procure one. Lynde v. The County, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 6.

Absence of Governor.—The constitution of Louisiana provides that in case of "absence from the State" of the governor, the powers and duties of his office shall devolve upon the lieutenant-governor. Held, not to refer to mere temporary absence; and the fact that the governor was at a place out of the State, but within a few hours' ride of the capital, for a period of twenty-one days, did not authorize the lieutenant-governor to exercise the functions of governor. State v. Graham, 26 La. Ann. 568; s. c., 21 Am. Rep. 551. See People v. Parker, 3 Neb. 409; s. c., 19 Am. Rep. 634.

that time be served upon him, so that the plaintiff cannot obtain a personal judgment against him, the saving clearly applies in favor of the plaintiff.<sup>1</sup>

3. Presumption of Death.—The absence of a person for a long time, no word being received of him, is presumptive of his death. The usual limit of time by statute is seven years; but where a person is known to have been alive, it is presumed that he is still alive until his death is proved, or his death is presumed, by rule of law, to have occurred.<sup>2</sup>

1. Wood on Lim. §§ 244, 245.

2. The rule of law is that upon a person's leaving his usual home and place of residence, for temporary purposes, and not being heard of, or known to be living, for the term of seven years, the presumption is that he is not alive. It must appear that he has not been heard of by those persons who would naturally have heard from him during the time had he been alive. The rule, however, does not confine the intelligence to any particular class of persons. It may be to persons in or out of the family. The mere failure to hear from an absent person for seven years who was known to have had a fixed place of residence abroad would not be sufficient to raise the presumption of his death, unless due inquiry had been made at such place without getting tidings of him. Wentworth v. Wentworth, 71 Me. 72; White v. Mann, 26 Me. 361; Stevens v. McNamara, 36 Me. 178; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 740; Kidder v. Blaisdell, 45 Me. 467; Stinchfield v. Emerson, 52 Me. 465; Smith v. Knowlton, 11 N. H. 196; Brown v. Jewett, 18 N. H. 230; Winship v. Connor, 42 N. H. 341; Forsaithe v. Clarke, 21 N. H. 424; Newman v. Jenkins, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 515; Loring v. Steineman, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 210; Flynn v. Coffee, 12 Allen (Mass.), 133; Bowditch v. Jordan, 131 Mass. 321; Eagle v. Emmet, 4 Bradf. Sur. (N. Y.) 117; McCartee v. Camel, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 455; Clarke v. Cummins, 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 339; Sheldon v. Ferris, 45 Barb. (N. Y.) 124; King v. Paddock, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 141; Hoyt v. Newbold, 45 N. J. L. 219; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 757; Wambrough v. Schenck, 2 N. J. L. 229; Smith v. Smith, 5 N. J. Eq. 484; Holmes v. Johnson, 42 Pa. St. 159; Innis v. Campbell, 1 Rawle (Pa.), 375; Bradley v. Bradley, 4 Whart. (Pa.) 173; Burr v. Sim, 4 Whart. (Pa.) 450; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 50; Miller v. Beates, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 490; s. c., 8 Am. Dec. 658; Tilly v. Tilly, 2 Bland. Ch. (Md.) 444; Foulks v. Rhea, 7 Bush (Ky.), 568; Ashbury v. Saunders, 8 Cal. 62; Crawford v. Elliott,

1 Houst. (Del.) 465; Prim v. Stewart, 7 Tex. 178; Jamison v. Smith, 35 La. Ann. 609; Adams v. Jones, 39 Ga. 508; Cofer v. Thurmond, 1 Ga. 538; Doe v. Flanagan, 1 Ga. 538; Spears v. Burton, 31 Miss. 547; Craig v. Craig, 1 Bailey Eq. (S. Car.) 102; Proctor v. McCall, 2 Bailey (S. Car.) 298; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 135; Godfrey v. Schmidt, 1 Cheve (S. Car.), 57; Woods v. Woods, 2 Bay. (S. Car.) 476; North Carolina University v. Harrison, 90 N. Car. 385; McNair v. Ragland, 1 Dev. Eq. (N. Car.) 533; Anonymous, 2 Hayw. (N. Car.) 134; Bowden v. Evans, 2 Hayw. (N. Car.) 222; Puckett v. State, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 356; Shown v. Mackin, 9 Lea (Tenn.), 601; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 680; Dickens v. Miller, 12 Mo. App. 408; Hancock v. American Life Ins. Co., 62 Mo. 26; Thomas v. Thomas, 16 Neb. 553; Ryan v. Tudor, 31 Kan. 366; Rosenthal v. Maybough, 33 Ohio St. 155; Rice v. Lumley, 10 Ohio St. 596; Youngs v. Heffner, 36 Ohio St. 232; Davie v. Briggs, 7 Otto (U. S.), 628; Moffett v. Varden, 5 Cranch C. C. 658; 1st v. Hall, 1 Wall, Jr. (U. S.) 85; Doe v. Jesson, 6 East. 80; Doe v. Deakin, 4 Barn. & Ald. 433; Doe v. Andrews, 15 Ad. & Ell. (N. S.) 760; Rust v. Baker, 8 Sim. 443; Ommaney v. Stillwell, 23 Beav. 328.

Absence of a person alone does not raise a presumption of his death; but such absence, in connection with surrounding circumstances, such as the failure by his family and friends to learn of his whereabouts, his character, and business relations, together with the fact that he was last known to be seen near the place where a murder is supposed to have been committed, and the reputation in his family and with his friends that he is dead, creates a very strong presumption of death, the law being satisfied with less than certainty, yet requiring a preponderance of proof. On the other hand, evidence to overcome the presumption of death, that the party supposed to be dead was in a financial condition which might have induced him to abscond, or that he was a speculator, or

The rule now is general that a person shown not to have been heard of for seven years by those (if any) who, if he had been visionary, in his business or trades, is all proper evidence to be considered by the jury in establishing the fact. Sensen-defer v. Pacific, etc., Ins. Co., 19 Fed. Repr. 68.

There being no statute providing that, after an absence of a given time without being heard from, administration may be granted of the estate of an absent person, the courts should be cautious in acting upon the presumption of death from lapse of time, and should, as a general rule, require diligent inquiry at the place where the party was last heard from. Shown v. Mackin, 9 Lea (Tenn.), 601.

In Montgomery v. Bevans, 1 Sawy. (U. S.) 666, Field, J., after examining the English cases, said: "But the law as declared in England is different from the law which obtains in this country, so far as it relates to the presumption of the continuance of life. Here, as in England, the law presumes that a person who has not been heard of for seven years is dead; but here the law, differing in this respect from the law of England, presumes that a party once shown to be alive continues alive until his death is proved, or the rule of law applies by which death is presumed to have occurred—that is, at the end of seven years. And the presumption of life is received in the absence of any countervailing testimony as conclusive of the fact, establishing it for the purpose of determining the rights of parties as fully as the most positive proof. The only exception to the operation of this presumption is when it conflicts with the presumption of innocence, in which case the latter prevails." The principle last mentioned was approved in People v. Feilen, 58 Cal. 218; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 258, and is sustained by the English case of R. v. Twynning, 2 B. & Ald. 385. See R. v. Lumley, L. R. 1 C. C. 196. See Com. v. Jackson, 11 Bush. (Ky.) 679; Cooper v. Cooper, 86 Ind. 75; Squire v. State, 46 Ind. 458; Williams's Est., 13 Phila. (Pa.) 325; Yates v. Houston, 3 Tex. 433; Lockwood v. White, 18 Tex. 102; Hull v. State, 7 Tex. App. 593; Harris v. Harris, 8 Ill. App. 57; Johnson v. Johnson, 114 Ill. 611; Spears v. Burton, 31 Miss. 547; Blanchard v. Lambert, 43 Iowa, 228; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 245.

Marriage—Presumption of Innocence.—

Although the presumption in favor of the validity of a marriage in fact, and of the innocence of the contracting parties, may conflict with that of the continued life of a former husband or wife not heard from for a period less than seven years prior to the second marriage, yet if neither presumption is aided by proof of facts or circumstances co-operating with it, the presumption of the validity of the second marriage must prevail over the other. Johnson v. Johnson, 114 Ill. 611.

In a trial for bigamy, the only evidence to show the life of the first wife was testimony showing that she was alive about three years prior to the second marriage. Held, to be insufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty. People v. Feilen, 58 Cal. 218; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 258, and cases cited supra. Compare Com. v. Thompson, 11 Allen (Mass.), 25; Hyde Park v. Canton, 130 Mass. 505.

It appeared that in 1844 W married A. In 1868 he was convicted of bigamy for marrying B, A being then alive. In 1879 he married C, and in 1880, C being then alive, he married D. On a charge of bigamy against this much-married man for marrying D, C being then alive, whereupon he set up the defence that A was alive when he married C, it was held that the question should have been left to the jury whether A was not alive when he married C; as, if so, the marriage with C would be invalid. The prisoner had set up a life in 1868, which, said the learned judge, "must be presumed to be continuing in 1879, no evidence of any kind being given, but it being shown simply that the woman was alive in 1868. . . . The prisoner was not bound to do more than to set up the life in 1868, which would be presumed to continue, and it was then for the prosecution to show by evidence that that presumption was rebutted." R. v. Willshire, L. R. 10 Q. B. 366.

The wife of a soldier who went abroad married again in a little over a year, and the question was as to the legitimacy of the children of this second marriage. The court said: "The law presumes the continuance of life for seven years, but it also presumes against the commission of crime. It is contended that the death of the husband ought to have been proved, but the answer is that the presumption of law is that he was not alive, when the consequence of his being so is that another person has committed a crime." R. v. Twynning, 2 B. & Al. 386.

In Yates v. Houston, 3 Tex. 449, four alive, would naturally have heard of him, is presumed to be dead, unless the circumstances of the case are such as to account for his not being heard of without assuming his death.<sup>1</sup> years only had elapsed after the disappearance of the wife before the husband and another woman appeared as husband and wife, under circumstances raising the presumption of marriage; and in considering the subject of the conflicting presumptions the court held that "the rational presumption, after this lapse of time is that the former wife is dead. The ordinary presumption of the continuance of human life should not, under the facts in this case, outweigh the presumption in favor of the innocence of their cohabitation, and that there was no legal impediment to their contracting the matrimonial relation."

In Dixon v. The People, 18 Mich. 84, the prosecution, desiring to use a witness who claimed to be the wife of the defendant, produced evidence of her marriage to one Phillips in 1859. Thereupon she was put on the stand, and admitted her marriage with Phillips, and stated that she last heard from him in April, 1860, and, supposing he was dead, married the defendant in 1865. The court below permitted her to testify, against the objection of the defendant. The Supreme Court of that State, in reviewing the case, said: "The presumption of innocence—that she would not commit the crime of bigamy by marrying the defendant while Phillips was alive—rendered it obligatory on the court, in the absence of testimony to the contrary, conclusively to presume the death of Phillips and the validity of her marriage with defendant."

In Senser v. Bower, 1 Pa. 450, the court, in determining the validity of the second marriage, say: "But there is said to be the same evidence of a precedent marriage of the mother with another man, who was alive at her second marriage, and hence a supposed dilemma; but the proof being equal, the presumption is in favor of innocence. And so far is this carried in the case of conflicting presumptions, that the one in favor of innocence shall prevail."

In Hull v. Rawls, 27 Miss. 471, the widow of Rawls petitioned for dower, which was resisted upon the ground that her marriage with Rawls was void, for the reason that he had a wife living at the date of his marriage with the petitioner. The proof showed that petitioner and Rawls were married December 6, 1848, and that in 1844 Rawls was living with another woman whom he recognized as his wife. The court said: "The fact that the deceased (Rawls) was living in 1844 with a woman believed to be his wife is no evidence that she was living on the 6th of December, 1848. The marriage having been solemnized according to the forms of law, every presumption must be indulged in favor of its validity."

The case of Chapman v. Cooper, 5 Rich. (S. Car.) 452, was where five or six years only had intervened between the time the former husband was last heard from and the second marriage of the wife, and the court held that under the facts of that case (the case having been brought many years afterwards) the presumption of innocence ought to prevail.

In R. v. Harborne, 2 Ad. & El. 540, the circumstances being that the wife had been seen within twenty-five days of the second marriage of the husband, it was held that the presumption of the continuance of life should prevail; while in Greenborough v. Underhill, 12 Vt. 604, (afterwards questioned in Northfield v. Plymouth, 20 Id. 582), it was held that after an absence of two years not heard from the presumption of innocence would prevail over the presumption of life.

1. Clark v. Canfield, 15 N. J. L. 119; Wambaugh v. Schenck, 2 N. J. L. 229; Smith v. Smith, 5 N. J. Eq. 484; Osborn v. Allen, 26 N. J. L. 388; Wentworth v. Wentworth, 71 Me. 72; Bowditch v. Jordan, 131 Mass. 321; Johnson v. Johnson, 114 Ill. 611; Jamison v. Smith, 35 La. Ann. 609; Learned v. Corley, 43 Miss. 687; Adams v. Jones, 39 Ga. 479; Foulks v. Rhea, 7 Bush (Ky.), 568; Ross v. Clore, 3 Dana (Ky.), 189; Lewis v. Mobley, 4 Dev. & B. (N. C.) 323; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 379; Davie v. Briggs, 7 Otto (U. S.), 628; and cases cited in next note.

It must be shown that he left his usual place of abode (Thomas v. Thomas, 16 Neb. 553) or the State (Dickens v. Miller, 12 Mo. App. 408); but the burden of proof is on the party denying the death, and the identity of person must be shown. Hoyt v. Newbold, 45 N. J. L. 219; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 757.

There is no presumption as to his having been either dead or alive at any particular period of time during the seven years, but he is presumed to have died at the end of the seven years. Davie v. Briggs, 7 Otto (U. S.), 628; Montgomery v. Bevans, 1 Sawy. (U. S.) 653; Moffit v. Varden, 5 Cranch C. C. 658; Stevens v.

4. Presumption of Continuance of Life.—The presumption after proof of existence is that the person continued to live.<sup>1</sup>

McNamara, 36 Me. 176; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 740; White v. Mann, 26 Me. 361; Rockland v. Morrill, 71 Me. 455. Forsaith v. Clark, 21 N. H. 424; Smith v. Knowlton, 11 N. H. 191; Flynn v. Coffee, 12 Allen (Mass.), 133; Loring v. Steineman, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 204; McDowell v. Simpson, 1 Houst. (Del.) 467; Johnson v. Johnson, 114 Ill. 611; Whiting v. Nicoll, 46 Ill. 230; Spurr v. Trimble, 1 A. K. Marsh (Ky.), 278; Foulks v. Rhea, 7 Bush (Ky.), 568; Doe v. Flanagan, 1 Ga. 538; Smith v. Smith, 49 Ala. 156; Primm v. Stewart, 7 Tex. 178; Hancock v. Ins. Co., 62 Mo. 26; Lancaster v. Ins. Co., 62 Mo. 121; Ashbury v. Saunders, 8 Cal. 62; Youngs v. Heffner, 36 Ohio St. 232; Rosenthal v. Mayhugh, 33 Ohio St. 155; Rice v. Lumley, 10 Ohio St. 596; Gibbes v. Vincent, 11 Rich. (S. Car.) 323; King v. Paddock, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 141; Stouvenal v. Stephens, 2 Daly (N. Y.), 319; McCartee v. Camel, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 456; Spencer v. Roper, 13 Ired. (N. Car.) 333; State v. Moore, 11 Ired. (N. Car.) 160; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 401; Clarke v. Canfield, 15 N. J. Eq. 119; Hershey v. Shenk, 58 Pa. St. 385; Homer v. Johnson, 42 Pa. St. 159; Whiteside's App., 23 Pa. St. 114; Burr v. Sim, 4 Whart. (Pa.) 150; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 50; Spears v. Burton, 31 Miss. 554; Shown v. McMackin, 9 Lea (Tenn.), 601; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 680; Tilly v. Tilly, 2 Bland Ch. (Md.) 444; Nepean v. Doe, 2 M. & W. 916; Watson v. King, 1 Stark. 121; Re Phene's Trusts, L. R. 5 Ch. App. 139; Re Lewes' Trusts, L. R. 6 Ch. 356, 11 Eq. 236; Re Green's Settlement, L. R. 1 Eq. 282; R. v. Lumley, L. R. 1 C. C. 196. See Gill v. Manly, 16 Ir. L. T. Rep. 57.

Yet, on the other hand, sometimes a person's death may be presumed (or, rather, inferred) to have happened within a period of time even shorter than seven years, if the inference is deduced from well-authenticated facts of such a nature as almost to preclude the possibility of a mistake. Cox v. Ellsworth, 26 N. W. Repr. (Neb.) 460; Johnson v. Johnson, 114 Ill. 611; Lancaster v. Washington Ins. Co., 62 Mo. 121; Stouvenal v. Stephens, 2 Daly (N. Y.), 319; Merritt v. Thompson, 1 Hilt. (N. Y.) 550; Oppenheim v. Wolf, 3 Sand. Ch. (N. Y.) 571; Sheldon v. Ferris, 45 Barb. (N. Y.) 124; Gerry v. Post, 13 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 118; State v. Moore, 11 Ired. L. (N. Car.) 160; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 401; Spencer v. Roper, 13 Ired. L. (N. Car.) 333; Tisdale v.

Conn., etc., Ins. Co., 26 Iowa, 170; s. c., 28 Iowa, 12; Boyd v. N. Eng., etc., Ins. Co., 34 La. Ann. 848. So, in Davie v. Briggs, 7 Otto (U. S.), 628, it was laid down that "if it appears in evidence that the absent person, within the seven years, encountered some specific peril, or within that period came within the range of some impending or immediate danger, which might reasonably be expected to destroy life, the court or jury may infer that life ceased before the expiration of the seven years."

In Tisdale v. Conn., etc., Ins. Co., 26 Iowa, 170; s. c., 28 Iowa, 12, it was held that "Evidence of character, habits, domestic relations, and the like, making the abandonment of home and family improbable, and showing a want of all those motives which can be supposed to influence men to such acts, may be sufficient to raise the presumption of death, or from which the death of one absent and unheard-from may be inferred, without regard to the duration of such absence." See Cox v. Ellsworth, 26 N. W. Repr. (Neb.) 460; Ryan v. Tudor, 31 Kans. 366.

1. A grant of land was made to A in 1846. He disappeared the same year. Held, that it was to be presumed that he was alive in 1871. Montgomery v. Bevans, 1 Sawy. (U. S.) 660. See Watson v. Tindall, 24 Ga. 494; Whiteside's App., 23 Pa. St. 114; Bradley v. Bradley, 4 Whart. (Pa.) 173; Eagle v. Emmet, 4 Brad. Sur. (N. Y.) 117.

It is shown in 1843 that H, whose deposition in a case was taken in 1822, was then fifty-nine years old and in bad health. He lived then in New York City. He is not shown to have ever left there, but his address is not now (1843) known at the post-office, nor is it in the city directory. There is no presumption that H is now (1843) dead. Matter of Hall, 1 Wall., Jr. (U. S.) 85.

Where a cestui que trust, who takes a vested interest under a settlement, has not been heard of since a period prior to the date of the settlement, the presumption is that he was alive at that date. In re Corbishley's Trusts, L. R. 14 Ch. 846. In Gill v. Manly, 16 Ir. L. T. Rep. 57, in reference to the alleged death of a cestui que vie who, if alive, would be only about sixty years of age, it was considered quite within the probabilities of human existence that the person in question might still be alive and well, and that there should be stronger evidence of his death than the mere fact of his absence from the country without being heard of.

5. Hearing of—Inquiries.—The rule that it must appear that the person whose death is in question has not been heard of by those persons who would naturally have heard from him during the time, had he been alive, does not confine the intelligence to any particular class of persons—it may be to persons in or out of the family; and the mere failure to hear from an absent person for seven years who was known to have had a fixed place of residence abroad would not be sufficient to raise the presumption of his death, unless due inquiry had been made at such place without getting tidings of him.<sup>1</sup>

In Ommaney v. Stillwell, 23 Beav. 328, it was held to have been shown that a person who sailed with Sir John Franklin in 1845 was alive in 1850.

In the Matter of Ackerman, 2 Redf. Sur. (N. Y.), it was held that an incurable sickness in connection with old age may destroy the presumption of continuance of life.

See, generally, Stinchfield v. Emerson, 52 Me. 465; Brown v. Jewett, 18 N. H. 230; Com. v. Thompson, 11 Allen (Mass.), 25; McCartee v. Camel, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 463; Keller v. Stuck, 4 Redf. Sur. (N. Y.) 226; McKee v. Copelin, 2 Cent. L. J. (Mo.) 813; Grey v. McDowell, 6 Bush (Ky.), 482; Burney v. Ball, 24 Ga. 505; Proctor v. McCall, 2 Bailey (S. Car.), 298; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 135; Martinez v. Vives, 32 La. Ann. 305. Compare Holmes v. Johnson, 42 Pa. St. 159.

By the civil law, death is never presumed from absence, for an absentee is presumed to live till the contrary is proved, or until he attains the age of a hundred years. Hayes v. Berwick, 2 Martin (La.), 138; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 727.

1. Wentworth v. Wentworth, 71 Me. 72; Bailey v. Bailey, 36 Mich. 185.

In Norris v. Edwards, 90 N. Car. 382; s. c., 47 Am. Rep. 526, it was held that declarations of a deceased wife that she had received a letter from her husband long after his departure were competent to rebut presumption of death.

Where one had gone to sea in 1823 and had been heard of in 1832, it will be presumed in 1861 that he is dead. Holmes v. Johnson, 42 Pa. St. 159.

In Re Rhodes, Frazer v. Renton, 28 L. T. (N. S.) 392, it was held that death will not be presumed if it appears that further evidence can be obtained. So, if sufficient inquiries have not been made. In re Creed, 1 Drew. 235; Goods of How, 1 S. & T. 53; Goods of Smyth, 28 L. J. Pro. 1; Re Tindall's Trust, 30 Beav. 151.

And in Gill v. Manly, 16 Ir. L. T. R. 57, the same principles, in effect, were most properly applied. Accordingly, in equity or probate proceedings, advertisements are directed, though the seven years have expired. Re Allin, 15 W. R. 1164; Re Atkinson, Ste. R. 5 Eq. 219. In Re Webb's Estate, 1 R. 5 Eq. 235, it appeared that a person emigrated to Australia, under circumstances showing that he was likely to communicate constantly with his family in Ireland, and having so communicated with them for some time, then ceased to do so, and was not heard of for more than seven years. From his last letter it was probable that, had he lived, he would have continued to write home. Inquiries were made by his family concerning him, and advertisements published, but with no result. And it was held that there was sufficient prima facie evidence to establish a title, depending on his death without issue during the lifetime of a person who died after the expiration of the seven years. Compare Gill v. Manly, 16 Ir. L. T. R. 57. But the presumption does not arise where it is improbable there would have been any communication with home. Bowden v. Henderson, 2 Sm. & G. 360; Watson v. England, 14 Sim. 28; and see Re Smith, 31 L. J. P. & M. 182; M'Mahon v. M'Elroy, 1 R. 5 Eq. 1; Re Mileham, 15 Beav. 507. There is no presumption as to the age at which a person died who is shown to have been alive at a given time. See Stephen on Evidence, c. 14, a. 99. And as to death without issue, see Re Webb, 1 R. 5 Eq. 235; Mullaly v. Walsh, 1 R. 6 C. L. 314; Doe d. Banning v. Griffin, 15 East, 293; Re Hanby v. 25 W. R. 427. Or leaving no widow. Re Westbrooke, W. N. 1873, 167. But the age and state of health at the time of disappearance are to be regarded. In re Ackerman, 2 Redf. Sur. (N. Y.) 521; In re Hall, 1 Wall., Jr. (U. S.) 85; Gill v. Manly, 16 Ir. L. T. R. 57; Danby v. Danby, 5 Jur. (N. S.) 54; R. v. Harborne,

6. Survivorship.—At one time it was said that where several persons have perished in the same catastrophe, the presumption was in favor of the survival of the stronger person. And again, many cases are to be found seeming to support the position that simultaneous death is to be presumed. But it must now be taken as the law that there is no artificial presumption in cases of this nature, either that any one in particular survived or that all died at the same time; and it will merely be considered, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that one of them survived, leaving it to be discovered from the evidence who was the individual sur-

2 A. & E. 544; Re Beasney, L. R. 7 Eq. 498. In Gill v. Manly, 16 Ir. L. T. R. 57, the departed (not declared deceased) would, at the time of controversy, be only about sixty years old.

The circumstances appearing in the case last mentioned were as follows: In April, 1842, a lease was made for twenty-one years, and during the life of Bryan Gill, then aged twenty-one or twenty-four. In 1856 Bryan Gill went to Steeven's Hospital, Dublin, suffering from an affection in his eyes; and a short time afterwards some members of his family called, but could hear nothing of him. It was deposed that he had left this country in that year; and it was stated that, when leaving home, before going to the hospital, he had got £5 from his relatives. It did not appear that he had at any time subsequently asked for any assistance from them; and William Gill, his brother, had not heard from him since, and stated his belief that his other brothers and sisters had not heard from him. But the other brothers and sisters made no affidavit; nor did it appear what inquiries were instituted to discover his whereabouts; and it was sworn by or on behalf of the lessor that a bailiff had been informed that Bryan Gill was a mate on board an American vessel in March, 1875. During Bryan Gill's absence rent had been paid by William Gill, and received by the lessor, but not, so far as appeared, with knowledge that, as alleged, Bryan Gill was dead. William Gill (whose elder brother would have been entitled to the land if Bryan Gill was still alive) claimed to be a "present tenant," under a tenancy from year to year, and served an originating notice to fix a judicial rent, under the Land Law Act, 1881, at a time when Bryan Gill, if still alive, would be about sixty years of age. On an application to the lessor to set aside the originating notice, it was contended that it lay on William Gill to show by evidence that there was sufficient ground for deeming that Bryan Gill was dead; and that it was, also, material for him to establish the time of the death, whether before or after the passing of the act, in order to sustain his position as a "present tenant" from year to year within its provisions. If the evidence of the bailiff were to be received, it would appear that Bryan Gill was alive about six years and eleven months previously; it was objected that this was only the hearsay of a person who had not even made an affidavit; but some degree of reliance seems to have been placed upon it by the court. See O'Kelly v. Felker, 71 Ga. 775. The case of Prudential Assurance Co. v. Edmunds, L. R. 2 App. Cas., may be referred to, however, where the question, in 1874, was as to the death of Nutt, who had disappeared in 1867, and his sister and brother-in-law deposed that they had not heard of him for seven years, but on cross-examination admitted that a niece of Nutt's had said that in 1872 she saw a man at Melbourne whom she believed to be her uncle (in which the jury thought she might be mistaken), but he was lost in the crowd before she could speak to him. Kelly, C. B., declined to tell the jury that Nutt should be presumed dead, as having been absent for seven years without being heard of, but, on the contrary, charged strongly for the defendants on the ground that all the members of the Nutt family had "heard" what the niece had stated. The Court of Appeal, however, held this to be a misdirection, and, as the House of Lords could not agree on the subject, their decision stood affirmed. If, then, the bailiff be eliminated from Gill v. Manly, it stands as a case where a man had disappeared for no less than twenty-six years, unheard of. But, on the other hand, there was the circumstance (which rightly seems to have weighed mainly with the court) that, while it was stated that there were brothers and sisters of Bryan Gill living, they had made no affidavit, nor did it appear what inquiries had been instituted to discover his whereabouts. It was con-vivor. The question is one of fact, depending wholly on evidence; the real or supposed superior strength (as from age or sex) of any of the persons perishing by a common calamity being left merely to carry its natural weight—i.e., as a circumstance proper to be taken into consideration by a judicial tribunal, but which standing alone is insufficient to shift the burden of proof. The onus probandi is on the person who claims derivatively through a survivorship of one out of several, to prove the fact affirmatively; and if the evidence does not establish the survivorship of any one, the law will treat it as a matter incapable of being determined.<sup>1</sup> tended that, although there was no presumption of his death at a particular date, yet, if the presumption were that he was dead at the end of the first seven years, it should be presumed that he was dead before the commencement of the second seven years. But Mr. Commissioner Litton held that sufficient evidence had not been brought forward to establish the death at all, so as to warrant any presumption. In re Keary's Trusts, ex parte Walsh, Ch. Div., March 15, 1882, it appeared that Michael Walsh had gone to New Zealand some twenty years ago, and had not since been heard of; and, after advertisements had been published here (which had been copied by an Australian paper) by order of the Probate Division without result, letters of administration as of a supposed deceased were granted to Robert Walsh, which are not evidence of the death. See Thompson v. Donaldson, 3 Esp. 63; Mut. Ben. Life Ins. Co. v. Tisdale, 1 Otto (U. S.), 238; Carroll v. Carroll, 60 N. Y. 121. And Sir Edward Sullivan, M. R., refused to order a transfer of the trust funds to the administrator without better proof that the man was dead. The better proof required was, however, afterwards procured by referring back to the evidence adduced in the probate proceedings. But the fact of a tenant for life not having been seen or heard of for fourteen years, by a person residing near the estate, although not a member of his family, was held prima facie evidence of the death of the tenant for life, in Lloyd v. Hunt, 4 B. & A. 433; compare Wentworth v. Wentworth, 71 Me. 72. The production of the will of an alleged deceased, and proof by a legatee of having received a bequest under it, coupled with the copy of an entry in the register of burials, has been held sufficient evidence of the death. Doe v. Penfold, 8 C. & P. 536. Where a second marriage was contracted on the 11th of April, 1831, and it was proved by the father of the former wife that he had received a letter in her handwriting, dated Van Diemen's Land, 17th March, 1831, it was held, upon the question of the validity of the second marriage, that the letter was admissible, and that the justices or jury would be justified in coming to a conclusion that she was alive at the date of the second marriage. R. v. Harborne, 4 N. & M. 341; 2 Ad. & E. 541.

1. Newell v. Nichols, 75 N. Y. 78. In re Ridgway, 4 Redf. Sur. (N. Y.) 226; Stinde v. Goodrich, 3 Redf. Sur. (N. Y.) 87; Russell v. Hallett, 23 Kan. 276; Pell v. Ball, 1 Cheyes Ch. (S. Car.) 99; Coye v. Leach, 8 Metc. (Mass.) 371; s.c., 41 Am. Dec. 518; Smith v. Croom, 7 Fla. 144; Robinson v. Gallier, 2 Wood (C. C.) 178; 2 So. L. R. 594; Broughton v. Randall, Cro. Eliz. 503; R. v. Hay, 1 W. Bl. 640; 4 Burr. 2295 (see 2 Phillim. 261, n); Hitchcock v. Beardsley, West. R. t. Hardw. 445; Taylor v. Diplock, 2 Phillim. 261; Wright v. Netherwood, 2 Phillim. 266; Mason v. Mason, 1 Meriv. 308; Colvin v. H. M. Procurator-Gen., 1 Hagg. N. S. 92; Goods of Selwyn, 3 Hagg. N. S. 748; Goods of Murray, 1 Curt. 596; Satterthwaite v. Powell, 1 Curt. 705; Sillick v. Booth, 1 Y. & Col. 117; Durrant v. Friend, 5 De G. & S. 343; Goods of Wainwright, 1 Sw. & Tr. 257; Goods of Ewart, 1 Sw. & Tr. 258; Goods of Nichols, L. R. 2 P. & D. 361; Goods of Wheeler, 37 L. J. P. & M. 40; Dowley v. Winfield, 14 Sim. 277; In re Phene's Trusts, L. R. 6 Ch. 145; Scrutton v. Pattillo, L. R. 19 Eq. 369; Underwood v. Wing, 4 De G., M. & G. 633; Wing v. Angrave, 8 H. L. C. 183; Wollaston v. Berkeley, L. R., 2 Ch. Div. 213; Wright v. Samada, 2 Salk. 593; R. v. Heuss, 2 Salk. 533; 5 B. & Ad. 91. See Best on Ev., 6th ed. 527; 1 Tay. on Ev., 7th ed. 209; 1 Tay. Med. Jur., 2d ed. 168; Wharton and Stille's Med. Jur.; Guy's Med. Jur.; 1 Beck. Med. Jur.; 1 Greenl. Ev. 38 n; 2 Kent's Com. 435. Compare Moehring v. Mitchell, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 269; McCartee v. Camel, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 455.

The testatrix and her two grandchil-

ABSENTED—ABSENTEE—ABSOLUTE.

ABSENTED.—Where the absence is such that a summons issued upon the day the attachment is sued out will be served upon the defendant in sufficient time before the return day to give the plaintiff all the right which he can have at the return term, the defendant has not so absented himself as that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him.<sup>1</sup>

ABSENTEE.—An absentee is a person who has resided in the State and has departed without leaving any one to represent him. It means, also, the person who never was domiciliated in the State and resides abroad.<sup>2</sup>

ABSOLUTE.—It means complete, unconditional, not relative, not limited, independent of anything extraneous. It is used in law to distinguish an estate in fee from an estate in remainder, the rights of man in a state of nature from those pertaining to him in his social relations; as in algebra to designate "any pure number standing without the conjunction of literal characters."<sup>3</sup>

dren, together with the father of the children, were lost in a shipwreck. They were all in the pavilion on deck after the vessel struck. The testatrix was washed out of the pavilion, but it was not shown whether she was carried overboard or to some other part of the deck. The children, with their father, were seen alive in the pavilion some ten or fifteen minutes afterwards. Held, that the evidence of the survivorship of the grandchildren was insufficient. In re Ridgway, 4 Redf. Sur. (N. Y.) 226.

California Rule.—When two persons perish in the same calamity, and it is not shown who died first, and there are no particular circumstances from which it can be inferred, survivorship is presumed from the probabilities resulting from the strength, age, and sex, according to certain rules, one of which is: If both be over 15 and under 60, and the sexes be different, the male is presumed to have survived. Code Civil Proc. § 1963, sub. 4, par. 40; Sanders v. Simcich, 65 Cal. 50; s. c., 2 Pac. Repr. 741.

Authorities for Absence.—Greenleaf on Evidence; Wharton on Evidence; Best on Evidence; Lawson on Presumptive Evidence; Wood on Limitations.

1. Kingsland v. Worsham, 15 Mo. 657; Chariton Co. v. Moberly, 59 Mo. 239.

The 103d article of war (Rev. St. § 1342) bars a trial for an offence committed more than two years before the issuing of the order for trial, "unless by reason of the offender absenting himself, or of some other manifest impediment, he shall not have been amenable to justice within that period." Held, that the language of this statute must be construed as that of other statutes of limitations, and the absence means absence from jurisdiction of military courts; that is, from the United States. In re Davison, 4 Fed. Rep. 507.

2. Morris v. Bienvenue, 30 La. Ann. Pt. 2, 878.

3. Johnson's Adm'rs v. Johnson, 32 Ala. 637. That is, an absolute interest in property which is so completely vested in the individual that he can by no contingency be deprived of it without his own consent. A policy of insurance contained the clause, "If the interest in the property to be insured is not absolute, it must be so represented to the company, and expressed in the policy in writing," etc. The applicant described the property as "his house." It was shown that at the time the legal title was in another; that insured had a contract for the purchase, had paid part of the purchase-money, and was in possession. The court charged that he was to be regarded as the owner of the property if he had the equitable title and his interest was such that the loss would fall on him if the property was destroyed. Held, to be correct. Hough v. Ins. Co., 29 Conn. 10.

By the words, "The rest and residue of all my property, personal, real, or mixed (after paying all just and lawful demands against my estate). I give and bequeath to my beloved wife," an "absolute" inheritable title or an estate in fee is passed in Massachusetts. Lincoln v. Lincoln, 107 Mass. 590.

A condition annexed to a devise, that no condition should be made until ten

ABSOLUTE INTEREST—ABSOLUTELY—ABSTRACT.

ABSOLUTE INTEREST.—A policy of insurance provided that "if the interest in property to be insured be a leasehold interest or other interest not absolute, it must be so represented and expressed in the policy." Held, that a mortgagor's estate was an absolute interest, and that an omission to disclose the mortgage was not a breach of the condition.<sup>1</sup>

ABSOLUTE TOTAL LOSS. See ACTUAL TOTAL LOSS.

ABSOLUTELY.—The word absolutely is an appropriate expression for the exclusion of the idea that an estate is either partial or conditional.<sup>2</sup>

ABSTRACT, as applied to records, ordinarily means a mere brief, and not a copy of that from which it is taken.<sup>3</sup> years after the death of testator's widow, was void as to personal estate, as suspending the absolute ownership beyond the period prescribed by the statute. Converse v. Kellogg, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 590.

By the absolute rights of individuals we mean those which are so in their primary and strictest sense, such as would belong to their persons merely in a state of nature, and which every man is entitled to enjoy out of society or in it. 1 Black. Com. 123; People v. Berberich, 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 224.

An absolute total loss takes place when the subject insured wholly perishes, or its recovery is rendered irretrievably hopeless, and is one which entitles the insured to claim the whole amount of his subscription, without giving notice of abandonment. Burt v. Insurance Co., 9 Hun (N. Y.) 383.

A sale of a minor's property without the prescribed formalities is absolutely null, but may be ratified by the minor after majority expressly or by implication. Means v. Robinson, 7 Texas, 502; Clay v. Clay's Heirs, 35 Texas, 509.

The words "absolute purchase of any pew in the church," in statute, held not to mean that the purchaser is to hold free from all claim or control of the incumbent or churchwardens, or free from all interest of these persons in the general property of the church; but they are used in opposition to the rights of leaseholders of pews and of those who have only sittings; and, subject to the necessary incidents of such a species of property, a person may not be improperly said to be an absolute purchaser of, and to have a freehold of inheritance in, the pew which he has bought. Ejectment, however, is not maintainable. Ridout v. Harris, 17 U. C. C. P. 88.

1. Washington Ins. Co. v. Kelley, 32 Md. 421; see Hough v. City Ins. Co., 29 Conn. 10.

2. A clause in a will bequeathing property to testator's daughters and directing the shares to "vest absolutely in them and their respective heirs of their bodies forever" does not create a separate estate in daughter married at the date of the will. Johnson's Adm'rs v. Johnson, 32 Ala. 637.

Trustees of a settlement or will with power of sale are persons "absolutely entitled" to purchase money of land paid into court under an act providing for taking land for public improvements and the means for ascertaining the compensation therefor. In re Hobson's Trusts, L. R. 7 Ch. Div. 708.

Where the first section of a statute vested the estate of an assignor in his assignee on the presentation of a petition, etc., the provision in a subsequent section that it should become "absolutely vested" has no new operation. Sayer v. Dufaur, 11 Q. B. 324.

The phrase "due absolutely and not on a contingency" is applicable to the past earnings of a party payable in the future on the estimate and certificate of a third person. Ware v. Gowen, 65 Me. 534.

In instructions presented to court that "In order to justify the inference of legal guilt from circumstantial evidence the existence of inculpatory facts must be absolutely incompatible with the innocence of the accused, and incapable of explanation on any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt," it was held, that the words "absolutely incompatible" imply that defendant's guilt must be established beyond the possibility of a doubt, and for that reason it was not error to refuse to give the instruction. State v. Rover, 13 Nev. 17.

3. Dickinson v. Railroad Co., 7 W. Va. 390.

A certificate reading "United States Land Office, Springfield, Mo., August 10,

ABSTRACT OF TITLE. See REAL ESTATE; DEEDS; CONVEYANCING.

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 1. Definition.                    | 8. Judicial Sales.                   |
| 2. England and the United States. | 9. Execution Sales.                  |
| 3. Arrangement of Abstract.       | 10. Tax Sales.                       |
| 4. Patents.                       | 11. Dedication to Public Use.        |
| 5. Deeds.                         | 12. Title by Descent.                |
| 6. Powers.                        | 13. Liens and Incumbrances.          |
| 7. Wills.                         | 14. Liability of Examiners of Title. |

1. Definition.—An abstract of title, or a brief of title, as it is sometimes called, is a short methodical summary of the documents and facts which affect the title to a piece of land.<sup>1</sup>

Whenever a contract for the sale of real estate is made, it is implied that the seller will before the completion of the contract show a good, marketable title, and until he does so the purchaser is not bound to accept a deed or pay the purchase-money.<sup>2</sup> The object of the abstract is to enable the purchaser, or his counsel, to pass more readily on the sufficiency of the title.

An abstract should contain whatever concerns the sources of the title and its condition. Not only should the descent and line of the title be clearly traced out, but all incumbrances, all chances of eviction, and adverse claims should be shown. The material parts of all patents, deeds, wills, judicial proceedings, and other records or documents which touch the title, and also liens and incumbrances of every nature, should be set forth. There should also be included those facts usually called matters in pais, such as births, majorities, marriages, descents, and successions, which connect the different parts of the title.<sup>3</sup>

2. England and the United States.—In England the vendor of land must furnish the purchaser with an abstract; and a purchaser not in possession is bound to pay interest on the purchase-money, and may take the rents and profits only from the time when a good title is first shown.<sup>4</sup> But in the United States the vendor is not strictly bound to furnish an abstract; his obligation extends only to his ability to give a marketable title.<sup>5</sup>

3. Arrangement of Abstract.—An abstract should have a caption showing the contents and method of arrangement, and, if lengthy 1868. I certify that the within plat is a correct abstract of the records of this office. John S. Waddill, Register." Held, that the word "abstract" was used in the sense of "copy" as required by statute. Wilhite v. Barr, 67 Mo. 284.

1. Warvelle defines it as follows: "A condensed history of the title to land, consisting of a synopsis or summary of the material or operative portion of all the conveyances, of whatever kind or nature, which in any manner affect said land, or any estate or interest therein, together with a statement of all liens, charges, or liabilities to which the same may be subject, and of which it is in any way material for purchasers to be apprised." Warvelle, Abstracts of Title, sec. 2. Banker v. Caldwell, 3 Minn. 94.

2. Shreck v. Pierce, 3 Clark (Iowa), 350; Espy v. Anderson, 14 Pa. St. 308.

3. See Chase et al. v. Heaney, 70 Ill. 268.

4. Williams Real Prop. 448; 1 Prest. Abst. 34; 1 Chitty Gen. Prac. 298.

5. Shreck v. Pierce, 3 Clark (Iowa), 350; Espy v. Anderson, 14 Pa. St. 308. But see Faisans v. Moore, 11 La. Ann. 741.

and complicated, an index. Plats and sketches of the premises should be inserted whenever they will assist to a more complete understanding of the situation of the property.

The following are some of the important points to be observed in abstracting the various documents which are apt to appear in a chain of title:

4. Patents.—1. The date; 2. Name of person to whom issued; 3. Words of heirship; 4. Recital of payment of purchase-money; 5. Person to whom payment made; 6. Recital of any assignment by certificate-holder; 7. Description of the land; 8. Signing, sealing, and other formalities; 9. Volume and page of record.

5. Deeds.—1. General character of the instrument; 2. Names and descriptions of the parties (note whether wife or husband joined in the deed); 3. Recitals which affect the title; 4. The consideration; 5. Receipt of payment; 6. The granting clause; 7. Description of the property; 8. The habendum; 9. The reddendum; 10. Conditions, limitations, etc.; 11. Covenants for title; 12. Signing, sealing, and witnesses; 13. Acknowledgment; 14. Registration.

6. Powers.—Powers which have been exercised or which are to be exercised should be set out verbatim. But such as have been released or extinguished in any way need not be set out in full.

7. Wills.—It has been said that a will should never be abstracted, but set out at large. There are, however, some things which certainly may be omitted, such as the testator's gratitude to God, his directions about interment, and small legacies of personal property, etc. But great care should be taken, for it has been held that the power to sell land may sometimes be implied from the imposition on the executor of duties which cannot be performed except by sale.<sup>1</sup> The abstract must of course show the date of the will, the method of its execution and attestation, the death of the testator, and the probate and registration.

8. Judicial Sales.—These are sales made by order of a court as distinguished from sales made by execution on a writ. The foreclosure of mortgages, judgments in partition, and decrees in probate proceedings are examples of judicial sales. The points to be particularly observed in abstracting are: 1. Jurisdiction of the court, in general, of the subject-matter and of the person (careful attention should be given to this point in probate proceedings); 2. The bill, complaint, or petition (whether it state a cause of action which would be good on general demurrer); 3. The judgment, order, or decree; 4. The sale (whether all formalities were complied with); 5. The report of the sale; 6. Confirmation of the sale; 7. The deed.

9. Execution Sales.—1. The judgment (attachment, if any); 2. The execution; 3. Claims of exemption; 4. Inquisition or appraisal (if required by the act); 5. Notice of sale; 6. Sale; 7. Redemption; 8. Confirmation; 9. The deed.

1. Skinner v. Wood, 76 N. Car. 109.

10. Tax Sales.—Tax titles are always looked upon with suspicion, and should be carefully investigated. The slightest flaw in the proceedings will invalidate them.<sup>1</sup> The points to be chiefly observed are: 1. The validity of the assessment; 2. The levy; 3. Special assessments (sidewalks, paving, etc.); 4. The collector's warrant; 5. Return of delinquent list; 6. Judgment and proceedings; 7. Notice of sale; 8. The sale; 9. The transfer or deed (as the statute may require). The records must be searched for some time after the transfer, to see if the conveyance has been impeached.

11. Dedication to Public Use.—Dedications may be by deed, but are very often implied from acts, such as selling lots bounded on the highway, long usage, etc.

12. Title by Descent.—The transmission of title on the death intestate of the owner of land is an important point in a chain of title. No rules can be laid down for its investigation, as the proof of death and of the person who answers to the description of heir varies in each case. Careful search should always be made both for record evidence, and also for matter in pais; and particular attention should be paid to the state of the law of descent at the time of intestate's death.

13. Liens and Incumbrances.—These are largely controlled by local laws. In general, the points to be guarded against are: 1. Liens in favor of the United States; 2. Debts due the State; 3. Official bonds; 4. Taxes; 5. Special assessments; 6. Judgments and executions; 7. Recognizances; 8. Attachments; 9. Lis pendens; 10. Mechanic's liens; 11. Vendor's liens; 12. Decedent's debts; 13. Legacies and annuities; 14. Trustee's expenses; 15. Mortgages and deeds of trust; 16. Leases; 17. Dower and curtesy; 18. Easements; 19. Miscellaneous liens.

14. Liability of Examiners of Title.—Persons who examine titles are liable in damages for want of skill and care. The implied contract out of which the action arises is not one of indemnity, but merely an agreement to use care, diligence, and skill.<sup>2</sup> But the examiner is so liable only to the person who employed him. He is not liable to a third party, unless he has made representations to him, or there is fraud or collusion between himself and his em-

1. See Braley v. Leaman, 30 Cal. 610; People v. Savings Union, 31 Cal. 132; Cahoon v. Coe, 52 N. H. 518, 524; Tierny v. Union Lumbering Co., 47 Wis. 248; State ex rel., etc., v. Cook, 82 Mo. 185; Willey v. Scoville's Lessees, 9 Ohio, 44; Shimmin v. Inman, 26 Me. 228; Smith v. Davis, 30 Cal. 536; Huntington v. Central Pac. R. Co., 2 Sawy. (U. S.) 503. See, generally, Cooley on Tax.; McInnery v. Reed, 23 Iowa, 410; Sibley v. Smith, 2 Mich. 486; Brown v. Veazie, 25 Me. 359.

2. Story, Bailm. § 431; Wharton Neg. 749; Dodd v. Williams, 3 Mo. App. 278; Rankin v. Shaeffer, 4 Mo. App. 108; Page v. Trutch, 8 Chicago Legal News, 385; Dundee, etc., Co. v. Hughes, 20 Fed. Repr. 39. See Clark v. Marshall, 34 Mo. 429; Chase v. Heaney, 70 Ill. 268; Chapman v. Chapman, 9 L. R. Eq. 276; Ireson v. Pearman, 5 Dowl. & R. 687; Waine v. Kempster, 1 F. & F. 695.

ployer.<sup>1</sup> An action cannot be maintained unless actual damage be shown.<sup>2</sup>

ABUSE AND MISUSE.—Abuse, in strictness, signifies to injure, diminish in value, or wear away by using improperly.

Abuse or misuse of corporate privileges is any positive act in violation of the charter, and in derogation of public right, wilfully done or caused to be done by those appointed to manage the general concerns of the corporation.<sup>3</sup>

A malicious abuse of legal process is where the party employs it for some unlawful object, not the purpose which it is intended by the law to effect.<sup>4</sup>

The word abuse applied to a woman is never used except with reference to sexual intercourse. The expression "abusing" in an indictment implies assaulting and something more.<sup>5</sup>

The word as used in a statute punishing carnal knowledge or "abuse" of children applies only to injuries to the genital organs, and does not include ill-usage.<sup>6</sup>

ABUT—ABUTTING. (See ADJOINING.)—Premises abut upon a street, road, or other premises where no other street, road, or land intervenes.<sup>7</sup>

1. Houseman v. Girard, etc., 81 Pa. St. 256; Hood v. Fahnestock, 8 Watts (Pa.), 489; Bracken v. Miller, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 110; Savings Bank v. Ward, 100 U. S. 195; Dundee, etc., v. Hughes, 20 Fed. Repr. 39; Siewers v. Commonwealth, 6 W. N. C. (Phila.) 17. See Donaldson v. Haldane, 7 C. & F. 762; Page v. Trutch, 8 Chicago Legal News, 385.

2. Kimball v. Connolly, 42 N. Y. 57. Authorities.—Preston's Abstracts of Title; Martindale's Abstracts of Title; Warvelle's Abstracts of Title; Moore's Abstracts of Title.

3. Baltimore v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 3 Pittsb. Rep. (Pa.) 20; Erie, etc., R. Co. v. Casey, 26 Pa. St. 318.

4. Mayer v. Walter, 64 Pa. St. 283.

Abuse of Discretion, and especially gross and palpable abuse of discretion, which are the terms ordinarily employed to justify an interference with the exercise of discretionary power, implies not merely error of judgment, but perversity of will, passion, prejudice, partiality, or moral delinquency. The exercise of an honest judgment, however erroneous it may appear to be, is not an abuse of discretion. The People v. The N. Y. C. R. Co., 29 N. Y. 431.

5. A rule for a habeas corpus directed to two justices before whom the prisoner had been tried for unlawfully assaulting and abusing a woman was discharged, two judges holding that the justices had jurisdiction, no charge of rape having been made, and the other two holding that, as there was evidence of rape, the word "abuse" in the information sufficiently covered the case to take it out of the jurisdiction. In re Thompson, 6 Hurl. & N. 192.

6. Dawkins v. State, 58 Ala. 376; s. c., 29 Am. Rep. 754.

7. An estate opposite a park, separated from it by a county road, is not an abutting estate. Holt v. City Council, 127 Mass. 408. A lot cannot be said to front on a public road when a railroad the bed of which is owned by the company runs between the lot and the road. Philadelphia v. Eastwick, 35 Penna. 75. Declaration in trespass as to an acre of land with the abutments. Verdict, Guilty as to one half. Held, that the plaintiff had not failed in his abutments. Winckworth v. Mayo, Cro. Jac. 184.

Where a small stream intervened between a lane and a lot of land, it was held that the premises adjoined but did not abut the lane by one judge, and by another that they were abutting. Wakefield Bd. v. Lee, 1 L. R. Ex. Div. 336.

Under a statute providing for assessment of owners of premises for the purpose of paving footways, etc., upon which said premises were fronting, adjoining, or abutting, said owners are only responsible for the footways on which their respective premises abutted; the north side, for instance, not being responsible for the footways on the south. Wakefield Bd. v. Mander, L. R. 5 C. P. Div. 248.

ABUTMENT—ACCEPT—ACCESS—ACCESSION.

ABUTMENT.—The abutment, in the sense in which the term is ordinarily used, is part of the bridge.<sup>1</sup>

ACCEPT—ACCEPTED.—The acceptance must be proved by some clear and unequivocal act of the party to be charged.<sup>2</sup>

ACCEPTANCE.<sup>3</sup> See BILLS AND NOTES.

ACCESS. (See BASTARDY; HUSBAND AND WIFE.)—At common law neither the husband nor wife could prove access or non-access. A statute allowing the parties to testify in their own behalf does not change the rule,<sup>3</sup> unless expressly indicated.<sup>4</sup>

ACCESSION—CONFUSION OF GOODS. See ACCRETION; BAILMENT; CONVERSION; FIXTURES.

- |                                  |                        |
|----------------------------------|------------------------|
| 1. Definition.            | 6. Mortgage.    |
| 2. Wrongful Possession.   | 7. Accounts.    |
| 3. Innocent Possession.   | 8. Trustees.    |
| 4. Admixture of Property. | 9. Real Estate. |
| 5. Confusion of Property. |                        |

1. Definition.—Strictly speaking, accession is where a thing which

1. Bardwell & Huntingdon v. Town of Jamaica, 15 Vt. 438. In speaking of a bridge in connection with the use for which bridges are erected, we can no more exclude the abutment than the flooring or framework of the bridge. Where a declaration alleged an injury to have been caused by the defects in a bridge, and it was shown that the defects were in the abutment, there was not such a variance as to be ground for reversing the judgment.

2. The delivery of goods to the place where the purchaser's agent directed, and the shipping by the agent to a port where defendant had given general directions to have such goods sent, constitute a sufficient acceptance. Snow v. Warner, 10 Metc. (Mass.) 132.

Where there was a parol contract for the sale of a horse, payment on delivery, and the purchaser called and exercised the horse and gave some directions, but before payment or delivery the horse died, held, that the buyer was not liable for the price. "The word 'accepted' imports not merely that there should be a delivery by the seller, but that each party should do something by which the bargain should be bound." Tempest v. Fitzgerald, 3 B. & Ald. 680.

There is no acceptance where a verbal purchase of winter tares was made, to be paid for on delivery and to be delivered when called for. Howe v. Palmer, 3 B. & Ald. 321.

Upon a verbal contract of sale of goods of more than $50 value, a delivery of them, in accordance with such contract, to a general carrier, not designated or selected by the buyer, does not constitute such a delivery and acceptance under the statute of frauds as to pass the title to the goods. Rodgers v. Phillips, 40 N. Y. 519.

Where a merchant sold goods to another upon an arrangement that a third party was to collect the account and pay over the same, less a commission, and such third party was furnished with duplicate bills of account, made out in the name of the purchaser, and wrote across those retained by the merchant the word "accepted," signing his name, such third party did not thereby make himself liable as a guarantor. Hatch v. Antrim, 51 Ill. 106.

An affidavit that a person has "accepted" an office does not sufficiently show a user to comply with the statute. 4 and 5 W. H. c. 76, s. 50, and a quo warranto cannot be granted against him on such affidavit. Queen v. Slatter, 11 Ad. & El. 505.

Accept and Receive.—The N. Y. Statute of Frauds provides that in certain cases the contract shall be void unless "the buyer shall accept and receive part of such goods." Held, that a delivery of goods to a general carrier, in pursuance of the order of a purchaser, to be transported to him, is not such an "acceptance and receipt" of the goods as takes the case out of the statute. Rodgers v. Phillips, 40 N. Y. 519.

3. Boykin v. Boykin, 70 N. Car. 262; s. c., 16 Am. Rep. 776. See BASTARDY and cases cited.

4. Tioga Co. v. South Creek, 75 Pa. St. 436.

belongs to one person becomes the property of some one else by reason of its becoming added to or incorporated with a thing belonging to the latter. This takes place in the case of the addition of buildings, plants, etc., to the soil, the erection of fixtures, and where two things are so united as to form one, as by the embroidering of cloth, the painting of a picture on canvas, etc.<sup>1</sup>

Blackstone includes under accession what is more correctly called specificatio, which takes place where a person makes a new thing (species) out of materials belonging to another, and thereby acquires the ownership of them, subject to making compensation to the former owner for their original value; he also includes under accession the acquisition of young animals born in confinement.<sup>2</sup> See also ANIMALS.)

1. Sweet's Law Dict.; 2 Kent's Com. 360.

2. Black. Com. ii. 404; Betts v. Lee, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 348; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 363.

Trees and Plants.—Fruit-trees growing upon land become part of the freehold. Adams v. Smith, 1 Ill. 221; see Griffin v. Bixby, 12 N. H. 454.

A and B were partners in the business of fruit-growing. A furnishing the land and money, and B the labor. By the terms of a submission to arbitration between them to wind up the partnership, A was to be charged with the value of all permanent improvements made by the firm. Held, that he was not chargeable with the increase, by reason of growth during the continuance of the partnership, in the value of vines which were growing on the land when the partnership was formed. Squires v. Anderson, 54 Mo. 193.

Crops.—Where a person entered upon the land of another without license, and cut grass therefrom and made the same into hay, held, that he acquired no property in such hay, and could not maintain an action for its destruction, caused by the negligence of another, while it was stacked upon such land. Murphy v. Sioux City, etc., R. Co., 55 Iowa, 473; Lindsay v. Winona, etc., R. Co., 29 Minn. 411; s. c., 43 Am. Rep. 228.

Animals.—The increase of animals belongs to the owner of the female. Stewart v. Ball, 30 Mo. 154; Hanson v. Millett, 55 Me. 184; Hazelbacker v. Goodfellow, 64 Ill. 238. See Tynson v. Simpson, 2 Hayw. (N. Car.) 147.

Where a female animal has increase, while held under a bailment or executory contract, the title remaining in the bailor or vendor until the agreed price is paid, the increase is the property of the bailor or vendor. Elmore v. Fitzpatrick, 56

Ala. 400; Allen v. Delano, 55 Me. 113. Putting a mare to pasture, in consideration of her services, does not entitle the bailee to the increase. Allen v. Allen, 2 Pa. 166.

Where the female is hired for a time limited and has increase during the term, the hirer will be entitled to it and not the general owner. Putnam v. Wyley, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 432; Concklin v. Havens, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 314; Hanson v. Millett, 55 Me. 184; Stewart v. Ball, 30 Mo. 154; Kellogg v. Lovely, 46 Mich. 131; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 151. A foal obtained under an agreement by which the owner of the mare arranged with another person that if he would put her to horse and pay the expense he should have the foal, became the property of such person. Linendoll v. Terhune, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 222.

Where the animal is loaned, its increase belongs to the owner. Orser v. Storms, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 687. See infra, p. 59; ACCRETION.

The offspring of slaves belong to the owner of the mother. Fowler v. Merrill, 11 How. (U. S.) 375. See Concklin v. Havens, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 314.

Ice which is formed belongs to the owner of the water. Higgins v. Kusterer, 41 Mich. 318.

Dividends.—A dividend earned but not declared belongs to the owner of the stock at the time when the dividend is actually declared. Brundage v. Brundage, 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 397; 60 N. Y. 544.

Sale.—B and others delivered milk to a cheese factory; each was credited with the amount of his milk, and all was manufactured together; the company sold all the cheese; each farmer was charged with the expense, and received his share of the proceeds in proportion to the milk furnished. Held, that B and the others were not partners, nor tenants in common in the cheese, nor was there a bail-

2. Wrongful Possession.—A trespasser who takes the property of another wilfully and without the owner's consent cannot acquire the right to it by accession or specification, though he has changed the species.<sup>1</sup>

3. Innocent Possession.—Where the property of one comes to the possession of another innocently, he may acquire the right to it if by accession the species be changed.<sup>2</sup>

4. Admixture.—If the materials of one person are united to the materials belonging to another by the labor of the latter, who furnishes the principal materials, the property in the joint product is in the latter by right of accession;<sup>3</sup> but the person who furnishes ment or agency as to the particular milk delivered. It was a sale of milk to be paid for in a certain time and manner. Butterfield v. Lathrop, 71 Pa. St. 225.

1. 2 Kent's Com. 364. See the able brief of Nicholas Hill, Jr., 3 N. Y. 380; Betts v. Lee, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 348; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 368; Curtis v. Groat, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 168; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 204; Hart v. Ten Eyck, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 62; Baker v. Wheeler, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 508; Silsbury v. McCoon, 3 N. Y. 379; Roth v. Wells, 29 N. Y. 471; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 307; Barron v. Cobleigh, 11 N. H. 557; Snyder v. Vaux, 2 Rawle (Pa.), 423; s. c. 21 Am. Dec. 466; Willard v. Rice, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 493; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 226; Hesseltine v. Stockwell, 30 Me. 237; Riddle v. Driver, 12 Ala. 590; Heard v. James, 49 Miss. 236; Lampton v. Preston, 1 J. J. Marsh (Ky.), 454; s. c., 19 Am. Dec. 104; Davis v. Easley, 13 Ill. 192; Single v. Schneider, 30 Wis. 570; Jenkins v. Steanka, 19 Wis. 128. See CONFUSION OF GOODS, infra, p. 54.

A trespasser who cuts grass growing on land is not, as to the owner of the land, the owner of the hay made from the grass, and cannot recover for its destruction by the negligence of such owner. Lindsay v. Winona, etc., R. Co., 29 Minn. 411; s. c., 43 Am. Rep. 228; Murphy v. Sioux City, etc., R. Co., 55 Iowa, 473.

The owner of timber trees cut from his land by a trespasser cannot be divested of his title thereto, although the trespasser has converted them into railroad ties and sold them to a bona-fide purchaser. Strubbee v. Trustees, 78 Ky. 481; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 251.

Crops sowed on land by a stranger to the title, and without authority or consent of the owner, belong to the owner of the soil. Freeman v. McLennan, 26 Kan. 151; Simpkins v. Rogers, 15 Ill. 397; Crotty v. Collins, 13 Ill. 567; Thomes v. Moody, 11 Me. 139. Compare Lindsay v. Winona, etc., R. Co., 29 Minn. 411;

s. c., 43 Am. Rep. 228; Brothers v. Hurdle, 10 Ired. (N. Car.) 490; De Mott v. Hagerman, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 220.

2. Silsbury v. McCoon, 3 N. Y. 378; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 307; Hyde v. Cookson, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 92; Baker v. Wheeler, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 508; Swift v. Barnum, 23 Conn. 523; Snyder v. Vaux, 2 Rawle (Pa.), 423; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 466; Worth v. Northam, 4 Ired. (N. Car.) 102; Riddle v. Driver, 12 Ala. 590.

Crop growing on Land held adversely.

—An action cannot be maintained to recover grain sown and harvested by defendant upon lands to which he claimed title, and of which he had the actual adverse and exclusive possession. Martin v. Thompson, 62 Cal. 618; s. c., 45 Am. Rep. 663. See Reilly v. Ringland, 39 Iowa, 106. Compare Lampton v. Preston, 1 J. J. Marsh (Ky.), 454.

3. 2 Kent's Com. 204; 2 Blackstone's Com. 404; Pulcifer v. Page, 32 Me. 404; s. c., 54 Am. Dec. 582; Merritt v. Johnson, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 473; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 289; Gregory v. Stryker, 2 Denio (N. Y.), 628; Hyde v. Cookson, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 92; McConike v. N. Y., etc., R. Co., 20 N. Y. 495; Stephens v. Santee, 49 N. Y. 35; Beers v. St. John, 16 Conn. 322; Ryder v. Hathaway, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 305; Stevens v. Briggs, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 177; Wetherbee v. Green, 22 Mich. 311; Dunn v. O'Neal, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 106; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 140; Lampton v. Preston, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 454; s. c., 19 Am. Dec. 104. Compare Silsbury v. McCoon, 3 N. Y. 379; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 307; Riddle v. Driver, 12 Ala. 590; Snyder v. Vaux, 2 Rawle (Pa.), 423; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 466.

Where A contracted with B to build a vessel, and A was to furnish the timber requisite to complete the frame of the vessel, and B was to advance money to A, and also to furnish the materials for the joiner's work; and the vessel, while standing on land hired by A, and in an unfinished state, was seized under a fi fa

all the goods upon which the labor is expended retains the ownership of them and of the article made from them.<sup>1</sup> (See MECHANIC'S LIEN.)

Where one by mistake in good faith has expended labor upon the property of another, not destroying its identity, nor converting it into something substantially different, nor essentially enhancing its value, he cannot recover compensation therefor from the owner, although the owner has availed himself of the benefit;<sup>2</sup> but if he has by his labor greatly increased the value of the property, he will become the owner.<sup>3</sup>

A wilful trespasser, however, acquires no property in the goods of another by any change wrought in them by his labor or skill, issued against A, and sold by the sheriff to C, who afterward completed the vessel and sold her to D,—in an action of trover brought by B against D it was held, that the property in the vessel was in D, and that B could not have any property in the vessel, under the contract, until she was completed and delivered to him. Merritt v. Johnson, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 473; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 28. See Andrews v. Durant, 11 N. Y. 35; People v. Commissioners, 58 N. Y. 242; Abbott v. Blossom, 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 353.

A railroad company made a contract with a rolling-mill company for the making at the mill of new rails out of old rails supplied by the railroad, with the addition of new iron, to be supplied by the mill, which was required for the top of the rails. Held, that if the railroad furnished the chief or principal part of the material of the new rails, the property in the material and in the new rails as finished remained in the railroad. Arnott v. Kansas Pac. R. Co., 19 Kans.

1. Babcock v. Gill, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 287; Gregory v. Stryker, 2 Denio (N. Y.), 628; Hyde v. Cookson, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 92; Eaton v. Munroe, 52 Me. 63; Eaton v. Lynde, 15 Mass. 242; Stevens v. Briggs, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 177; Foster v. Warner, 49 Mich. 641; Dunn v. O'Neal, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 106; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 140.

A let B have some canvas for a sail, under an agreement that it should be and remain the property of A until paid for. B made the sail, furnishing further materials for it, and then sold it without having paid for it. Held, that A could maintain replevin against the vendee to recover the sail. Eaton v. Munroe, 52 Me. 63.

An owner of pine lands, in contracting the pine to a shingle manufacturer, retained the title thereto until it should be fully paid for, and also reserved the right to seize the shingles manufactured from it if the manufacturer failed to perform the conditions of his contract. The manufacturer mixed these shingles with others, and, with the knowledge of his vendor's agent, treated them all as his own property and sold them to bona-fide purchasers. There was evidence tending to show that in buying the latter relied on this apparently exclusive ownership. Held, that they could maintain trover against the owner of the pine if he seized any shingles sold to them which had not been manufactured from his own timber. Foster v. Warner, 49 Mich. 641.

2. Isle Royal M. Co. v. Hertin, 37 Mich. 332; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 520. This case was distinguished from Wetherbee v. Green, post, in that the identity of the converted property was not destroyed, nor its value greatly increased. See Newton v. Porter, 5 Lans. (N. Y.) 416; affirmed, 69 N. Y. 133; s. c., 25 Am. Rep. 152; Spicer v. Waters, 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 227. Compare Single v. Schneider, 30 Wis. 570.

Where one person supplies the material, and another the labor under an agreement that he is to be paid for the labor by a certain share of the manufactured article, they become tenants in common. White v. Brooks, 43 N. H. 402.

A by mistake and in good faith cut cord-wood on the land of B, and hauled it to a landing and piled it, and the owner seized and sold it. Held, that the owner was not liable for the value of such labor. Isle Royal M. Co. v. Hertin, 37 Mich. 332; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 520.

3. In Wetherbee v. Green, 22 Mich. 311; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 653, Cooley, J., said: "Some of the cases place the right of the former owner to take the thing in its altered condition upon the question whether its identity could be made out by the senses. But this is obviously a very unsatisfactory test, and in many cases would wholly defeat the purpose which the law has in view in recognizing a change of title in any of these cases."

however great the change may be, provided it can be proved that the improved article was made from the original material.<sup>1</sup>

5. Confusion of Goods.—If a person without fraud, intentional wrong, or reckless disregard of the right of others mingle his goods with those of another person, in such manner that they

That purpose is not to establish any arbitrary distinctions, based upon mere physical reasons, but to adjust the redress afforded to the one party and the penalty inflicted upon the other, as near as circumstances will permit, to the rules of substantial justice. It may often happen that no difficulty will be experienced in determining the identity of a piece of timber which has been taken and built into a house; but no one disputes that the right of the original owner is gone in such a case. A particular piece of wood might, perhaps, be traced without trouble into a church organ, or other equally valuable article; but no one would defend a rule of law which, because the identity could be determined by the senses, would permit the owner of the wood to appropriate a musical instrument a hundred or a thousand times the value of his original materials, when the party who, under like circumstances, has doubled the value of another man's corn by converting it into malt is permitted to retain it, and held liable for the original value only. Such distinctions in the law would be without reason, and could not be tolerated. When the right to the improved article is the point in issue, the question how much the property or labor of each has contributed to make it what it is must always be one of first importance. The owner of a beam built into the house of another loses his property in it, because the beam is insignificant in value or importance as compared to that to which it has become attached, and the musical instrument belongs to the maker rather than to the man whose timber was used in making it, not because the timber cannot be identified, but because in bringing it to its present condition the value of the labor has swallowed up and rendered insignificant the value of the original materials. The labor in the case of the musical instrument is just as much the principal thing as the house is in the other case instanced; the timber appropriated is in each case comparatively unimportant. No test which satisfies the reason of the law can be applied in the adjustment of questions of title to chattels by accession, unless it keeps in view the circumstances of relative values. When we bear in mind the fact that what the law aims at is the accomplishment of substantial equity, we shall readily perceive that the fact of the value of the materials having been increased a hundredfold is of more importance in the adjustment than any chemical change or mechanical transformation, which, however radical, neither is expensive to the party making it nor adds materially to the value. There may be complete changes with so little improvement in value that there could be no hardship in giving the owner of the original materials the improved article."

One of two tenants in common of certain timber land conveyed his undivided half of the land by warranty deed to certain parties to whom he was indebted, such parties agreeing orally to reconvey upon the discharge of the indebtedness. Subsequent to the sale of his interest in the land, and under authority previously given by his co-tenant, the vendor sold a quantity of the timber growing upon the land to a third party, who cut and manufactured the same into hoops. An action for replevin was brought by the owner of the land to recover the hoops. It was shown upon trial that the value of the timber was $25, and that the value of the hoops was $700. Held, that evidence showing that the defendant purchased the timber and manufactured it in good faith was admissible; and that upon such showing he was entitled to have the jury instructed that the title to the timber was changed by a substantial change of identity, and that the remedy of the plaintiff was by an action of trespass. Wetherbee v. Green, 22 Mich. 311; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 653. See Haskin v. Record, 32 Vt. 575; Brown v. Sax, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 95; Elwell v. Burnside, 44 Barb. (N. Y.) 447; Baker v. Wheeler, Lock. Rev. Cas. (N. Y.) 470. Alford v. Bradeen, 1 Nev. 228; Harmon v. Gartman, Harp. (S. Car.) 430.

1. Murphy v. Sioux City, etc., R. Co., 55 Iowa, 473, and cases post, p. 55. See Salisbury v. McCoon, 3 N. Y. 379; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 307. In this case it was held, where a quantity of corn was taken from the owner by a wilful trespasser and converted by him into whiskey, that the property was not changed, and that the whiskey belonged to the owner of the original materials. In Chandler v. Edson, 9 John. (N. Y.) 362, it was held that where a party entered cannot be distinguished, such other person will be protected in his ownership, so far as the circumstances will permit.<sup>1</sup>

If the goods of one person without his fault or by his consent become so commingled with those of another, by the act of the latter, as to be undistinguishable therefrom, the former has the right to take and use from the common mass or lot his proportionate share, without restriction in choice to any particular portion of the common lot, provided there is no advantage in selection as to quality, value, or otherwise.<sup>2</sup> The same rule applies where the com-upon the land of another and cut down trees, of which he made shingles, he acquired no property in the timber or shingles. In Brock v. Smith, 14 Ark. 431, it was held that where one entered upon land as a trespasser, felled timber, and split it up into cord-wood, the bestowal of his labor in splitting the timber into cord-wood neither wrought a change in its specific character nor gave him any title by accession. To the same effect are also the following cases: Betts v. Lee, 5 John. (N. Y.) 348; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 368; Nesbit v. St. Paul Lumber Co., 21 Minn. 491; Brown v. Sax, 7 Cowen (N. Y.), 95; Freeman v. Underwood, 66 Me. 229. In this last case the defendant purchased a quantity of blueberries from persons who picked them from plaintiff's land as trespassers, and it was held that although he acted in good faith he became liable in trover to the true owner.

Where the property has been so changed in its character as to have lost its identity, it ceases to have the same legal existence, and the owner cannot pursue it against third persons. Cross v. Marston, 17 Vt. 533; s. c., 44 Am. Dec. 553; Peirce v. Goddard, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 559; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 764.

Where certain trunks belonging to A disappeared and were found, as claimed, amongst other trunks in the store of B, held, that, no tortious taking being proved, it was error to instruct the jury that if B wilfully took and carried away the trunks and afterwards mixed them with his own so that it was impossible to identify them, then A was entitled to recover any of B's goods to the amount taken; although such instruction would have been correct if B had been shown to be a wilful trespasser. Gray v. Parker, 38 Mo. 160.

1. Wetherbee v. Green, 22 Mich. 311; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 653; Ryder v. Hathaway, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 298; Smith v. Sanborn, 6 Gray (Mass.), 134; Pratt v. Bryant, 20 Vt. 333; Ringgold v. Ringgold, 1 H. & G. (Md.) 11.

If the property of each can be distinguished, it may be reclaimed. Frost v. Willard, 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 440.

H bought a wagon of B, on condition that it should remain the property of B until paid for. C repaired it for H by putting in new wheels and axles. H took it from C's possession without his knowledge or consent, and afterward agreed with C that the "running part" supplied by C should remain his property until paid for. H never paid either B or C, and neither had notice of the other's claim. B took the wagon back and sold it to D, who did not know of C's claim. Held, that D was liable in trover for the wheels and axles. Clark v. Wells, 45 Vt. 4. Compare Gregory v. Stryker, 2 Denio (N. Y.), 628.

If the property is not severable in its nature, the partition must necessarily be by agreement or proceedings in equity. Tripp v. Riley, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 333. See Channon v. Lusk, 2 Lans. (N. Y.) 211; Fiquet v. Allison, 12 Mich. 328; Horr v. Barker, 6 Cal. 489; Young v. Miles, 20 Wis. 615.

2. Chandler v. De Graff, 25 Minn. 88; Jewitt v. Partridge, 12 Me. 243; Smith v. Morrill, 56 Me. 566; Pratt v. Bryant, 20 Vt. 333; Perry v. Pettingill, 33 N. H. 433; Robinson v. Holt, 39 N. H. 557; Cochran v. Flint, 57 N. H. 514; Adams v. Wildes, 107 Mass. 123; Ryder v. Hathaway, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 298; Cushing v. Breed, 14 Allen (Mass.), 376; Moore v. Erie R. Co., 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 39; Clark v. Griffith, 24 N. Y. 595; Seymour v. Wyckoff, 10 N. Y. 213; Nowlen v. Colt, 6 Hill (N. Y.), 461; s. c., 41 Am. Dec. 756; Wilson v. Nason, 4 Bosw. (N. Y.) 155; Sims v. Glazener, 14 Ala. 695; Alley v. Adams, 44 Ala. 609; Wood v. Fales, 24 Pa. St. 246; Hamilton v. Rogers, 8 Md. 301; Randolph v. Gwynne, 3 Halst. Ch. (N. J.) 88; Stephenson v. Little, 10 Mich. 433; Fowler v. Hoffman, 31 Mich. 215; Dole v. Olmstead, 36 Ill. 150; Warner v. Cushman, 31 Ill. 283; Young v. Miles, 20 Wis. 615; Adams v. Meyers, 1 Sawyer. (U. S.) 306; South

mingling was caused by accident or vis major,<sup>1</sup> or by the mistake

Australian Ins. Co. v. Randell, L. R. 3 P. C. 101. Compare Brakely v. Tuttle, 3 W. Va. 86; Redington v. Chase, 44 N. H. 36.

Where a person taking his wheat to a mill to be ground, by the assent of the miller mingles it with the wheat of the miller, he does not thereby lose his property in the wheat, but retains a property in so many bushels of the common stock as he has put in; although, by a contract between the parties, the person delivering it is to receive a certain quantity of flour for a certain number of bushels of wheat. Inglebright v. Hammond, 19 Ohio, 337. See Adams v. Meyers, 1 Sawy. (U. S.) 306.

In filling certain contracts for railroad ties, plaintiff delivered about 20,000 in excess of the contracts, which defendants refused to accept. Such surplus having by the act of the plaintiff, and without fault of the defendants, become so intermingled with the accepted ties belonging to the latter as to be undistinguishable therefrom, held, that the defendants were entitled of right to take and use from the common lot a number equal to their proportionate share of the whole. Chandler v. De Graff, 25 Minn. 88.

Where various parties deliver grain for storage to the keeper of an elevator, who, without any agreement to that effect, and without the knowledge of the owners, but according to the custom in such cases, mixes in a common mass all the grain of the same kind and quality, the several owners become tenants in common of the entire amount in store of like quality; and where in such case the elevator and its contents are burned through the negligence of a railway company, each owner may recover of the company the value of his grain so destroyed. In such case the warehouseman would not be liable to the owners of the grain, as his act of mixing it was not a conversion; and the fact that one of the owners of the grain brought an action against the warehouseman to recover the value of his grain, on the ground that the act of mingling was a conversion of it, in which action he failed to recover, would not defeat him in his action against the railway company. Arthur v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 61 Iowa, 648; Stone v. Quale, 29 N. W. Repr. (Iowa) 326. See Dole v. Olmstead, 36 Ill. 150.

Where distilled spirits forfeited to the U. S. are mixed with other distilled spirits belonging to the same person (ignorant of the forfeiture), they are not lost to the government by such mixture, even though subsequently run through leaches for the purpose of rectification. The government will be entitled to its proportion of the result. The Distilled Spirits Cases, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 356.

Where A places his logs in a pile belonging to B, and marks them with the same mark as the logs of B are marked with, A can afterward claim only such logs as can be identified as his property. Dillingham v. Smith, 30 Me. 370.

This rule applies where one has made additions to machinery belonging to another. Alley v. Adams, 44 Ala. 609.

If a portion of the mass was destroyed, one owner cannot take out an amount equal to that put in by him, and throw the whole loss on the other party. Spence v. Union M. Ins. Co., L. R. 3 C. P. 427; Dole v. Olmstead, 36 Ill. 150, 41 Ill. 344.

Pelts piled by A upon those belonging to B will not render B's pelts liable to an execution against A. Gilman v. Hill, 36 N. H. 311. Or pork or lard so commingled. Huff v. Earl, 3 Ind. 306. Or oil in tanks. Wilkinson v. Stewart, 85 Pa. St. 255. Or hay. Robinson v. Holt, 39 N. H. 557. Or grain. Starr v. Winegar, 3 Hun (N. Y.), 491. See Low v. Martin, 18 Ill. 286; Nowlen v. Colt, 6 Hill (N. Y.), 461; s. c., 41 Am. Dec. 756; Seymour v. Wyckoff, 10 N. Y. 213; Samson v. Rose, 65 N. Y. 411; Kauffmann v. Schilling, 58 Mo. 218; Sims v. Glazener, 14 Ala. 695; Inglebright v. Hammond, 19 Ohio, 337.

1. Cotton belonging to different owners was shipped, in bales specifically marked, at Mobile for Liverpool; 43 bales belonged to the plaintiffs, and were insured by the defendants against the usual perils. In the course of her voyage the ship was wrecked near Key West; all the cotton was more or less damaged; some of it was lost, and some was so damaged that it had to be sold at Key West. The rest of the cotton was conveyed in another vessel to Liverpool. The marks on a very large number of the bales were so obliterated by seawater that none of the cotton lost or sold at Key West, and a portion only of that carried to Liverpool, could be identified as belonging to any particular consignee. Two only of the plaintiffs' 43 bales were identified, and these were delivered to the plaintiffs. Held, that in respect of the cotton lost and that sold at Key West there was a total loss of a part of each owner's cotton, and that all the owners became tenants in common of the cotton which arrived at Liverpool and could not be identified; the share of each owner's loss in the cotton totally lost or sold at Key West, and his share in the remainder which arrived at Liverpool, being in the proportion that the quantity shipped by him bore to the whole quantity shipped, according to the rule in cases of general average where it is not known whose goods are sacrificed; and, consequently, that there was no total loss, either actual or constructive, of the plaintiffs' 41 bales. Spence v. Union Marine Ins. Co., L. R. 3 C. P. 427. See Moore v. Erie R. Co., 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 39; Sheldon v. Sherman, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 368; Washburn v. Gilman, 64 Me. 163; Gentry v. Madden, 3 Ark. 127; Rogers v. Judel, 5 Vt. 236; Foster v. Juniata B. Co., 16 Pa. St. 393.

of one owner,<sup>1</sup> or by the wrongful act of a stranger,<sup>2</sup> or by any natural cause.<sup>3</sup> But if the commingling was made wilfully and without mutual consent, the property becomes that of the person whose property was originally invaded; if its distinct character is destroyed.<sup>4</sup>

1. Pratt v. Bryant, 20 Vt. 333; Ryder v. Hathaway, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 298; Moore v. Bowman, 47 N. H. 494; Thorne v. Colton, 27 Iowa, 425.

2. Bryant v. Ware, 30 Me. 295.

3. State v. Burt, 64 N. Car. 619. The rule of law as to confusion of goods does not apply to logs floating in a stream so distinctly marked that their identity is not lost. Goff v. Brainerd, 5 Atl. Repr. (Vt.) 393.

4. 2 Kent's Com. 364; Silsbury v. McCoon, 3 N. Y. 379; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 307; Roth v. Wells, 29 N. Y. 471; Joslin v. Cowee, 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 48; Hart v. Ten Eyck, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 62; Babcock v. Gill, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 287; Betts v. Lee, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 348; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 368; Curtis v. Groat, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 168; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 204; Brown v. Sax, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 95; Baker v. Wheeler, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 505; Gorden v. Jenny, 16 Mass. 465; Willard v. Rice, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 493; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 226; Smith v. Sanborn, 6 Gray (Mass.), 13; Treat v. Barber, 7 Conn. 280; Barron v. Cobleigh, 11 N. H. 557; Seavy v. Dearborn, 19 N. H. 351; Robinson v. Holt, 39 N. H. 557; Smith v. Morrill, 56 Me. 566; Hesseltine v. Stockwell, 30 Me. 237; s. c., 50 Am. Dec. 627; Dillingham v. Smith, 30 Me. 370; Loomis v. Green, 7 Me. 386; Snyder v. Vaux, 2 Rawle (Pa.), 423; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 466; Brakely v. Tuttle, 3 W. Va. 86; Brackenridge v. Holland, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 377; s. c., 20 Am. Dec. 123; Beach

v. Schmultz, 20 Ill. 185; Diversey v. Johnson, 93 Ill. 547; Jenkins v. Steanka, 19 Wis. 128; Root v. Bonnema, 22 Wis. 539; Stephenson v. Little, 10 Mich. 433; Riddle v. Driver, 12 Ala. 590; Alley v. Adams, 44 Ala. 609; Weil v. Silverstone, 6 Bush (Ky.), 698; The Idaho, 3 Otto (U. S.), 575.

The question of intent is for the jury. Taylor v. Jones, 42 N. H. 25.

To work a forfeiture of the whole mass where one has confused his own goods with those of other persons, two things are requisite; namely, that the confusion be made fraudulently, and that after such confusion the articles be incapable of identification or apportionment. Jewett v. Dringer, 30 N. J. Eq. 291. See Hesseltine v. Stockwell, 30 Me. 237; s. c., 50 Am. Dec. 627; Stephenson v. Little, 10 Mich. 433; Wetherbee v. Green, 22 Mich. 311; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 653; Starr v. Winegar, 3 Hun (N. Y.), 491; Alley v. Adams, 44 Ala. 609.

A junk-dealer by fraudulent collusion with the employees of a railroad company obtained large quantities of old iron at much less than the actual weight or value. On delivery it was thrown indiscriminately on other heaps of old iron belonging to him, so as to be undistinguishable. Held, that he must forfeit the whole mass to the company. Jewett v. Dringer, 30 N. J. Eq. 291. See McDowell v. Rissell, 37 Pa. St. 164; Redington v. Chase, 44 N. H. 36; Seavy v. Dearborn, 19 N. H. 351; Willard v. Rice, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 493; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 226; Beach v. Schmultz, 20 Ill. 185; Jenkins v. Steanka, 19 Wis. 128; Smith v. Welch, 10 Wis. 91.

Where materials are removed from a house by a mortgagor, and sold and used by his purchaser in building a house on other lands, the mortgagee cannot follow them. Peirce v. Goddard, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 559. See Madigan v. McCarthy, 108 Mass. 376; Beers v. St. John, 16 Conn. 322; Salter v. Sample, 71 Ill. 430.

Bricks laid in wall become part of the realty. Moore v. Cunningham, 23 Ill. 328. See Wadleigh v. Janvrin, 41 N. H. 503; Beard v. Duralde, 23 La. Ann. 284.

Where the materials can be distinguished there will be no forfeiture and each party may claim his property. Hesseltine v. Stockwell, 30 Me. 237.

6. Mortgage.—Where goods are mortgaged and are afterwards intermixed with other goods, the whole mass is covered by the

Where plaintiff cut logs on defendant's land and marked the same as his own, and commingled them,—in action for trover for logs taken by the defendant in excess of the number taken from him, held, that he was not liable for conversion until the plaintiff pointed out his property and demanded it. Smith v. Morrill, 56 Me. 566. See Bryant v. Ware, 30 Me. 295; Barron v. Cobleigh, 11 N. H. 559; May v. Bliss, 22 Vt. 477; Root v. Bonnewa, 22 Wis. 539; Goode-nov v. Snyder, 3 Greene (Iowa), 599; Stearns v. Raymond, 26 Wis. 74.

Where plaintiffs sent a large number of cloths to be printed, and the sheriff seized all the goods in the factory, and the plaintiffs then claimed 250 pieces, but not being able to identify their goods claimed that number of similar goods, held, that if the printers had actually confused them the claim must be allowed. Wood v. Fales, 24 Pa. St. 246.

A licensee mixed the coals gotten under the license with those gotten from his own colliery, and sold them together. He alleged that the coals gotten under the license were inferior in value to the other coals. Held, that as they had been mixed by the licensee's own act, he was not entitled to any inquiry as to how much the selling price of the coals was diminished by the mixture of the coals gotten under the license. Lord Rokeby v. Elliot, L. R. 9 Ch. D. 685; 13 Ch. D. 277. See Seymour v. Wyckoff, 10 N. Y. 213.

Execution.—If a person adds to goods acquired under a fraudulent sale, in which he participated, other goods subsequently purchased, he is not entitled, in an action against an officer who attaches all the goods as the property of the fraudulent vendor of the first-named goods, to recover the value of the goods subsequently purchased, if the mingling them with the other goods was purposely done or through want of proper care. Stearns v. Herrick, 132 Mass. 114.

If the purchaser of goods from an insolvent debtor, intentionally intermingles them with his own goods, and refuses to furnish to the sheriff seeking to levy an execution on them, as the property of the seller, the information necessary to distinguish and separate them, he cannot claim any advantage from the confusion of goods; and having interposed a statutory claim to the goods levied on, the duty is cast on him to furnish the evidence necessary to separate his own goods from the others. Lehman v. Kelly, 68 Ala. 192. See Weil v. Silverstone, 6 Bush (Ky.), 608; Chappell v. Cox, 18 Md. 513; Shumway v. Rutter, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 443; Sawyer v. Merrill, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 478; Taylor v. Jones, 42 N. H. 25; Albee v. Webster, 16 N. H. 362; Robinson v. Holt, 39 N. H. 557; Roth v. Wells, 29 N. Y. 471; McDowell v. Rissell, 37 Pa. St. 164; Smith v. Welch, 10 Wis. 91; Weil v. Silverstone, 6 Bush (Ky.), 608; Wellington v. Sedgwick, 12 Cal. 469. Compare Thorne v. Colton, 27 Iowa, 425; Treat v. Barber, 7 Conn. 274; Kingsbury v. Pond, 3 N. H. 511; Wilson v. Lane, 33 N. H. 466.

Where logs were seized under execution against the mortgagor, and the mortgagee sued the sheriff for damages, and it was contended that the logs were not so described in the mortgage as to be capable of identification, held, that as the difficulty of identification was caused by the wrongful confusion by the mortgagor of the logs with other logs, the mortgagee, being innocent, could not suffer thereby. Merchants' Nat. B. v. McLaughlin, 2 Fed. Rep. 128. See Beach v. Schmultz, 20 Ill. 185.

Replevin.—The owner of property wrongfully taken may pursue it so long as it can be identified, whatever alteration in form it may assume, unless it is annexed to or made a part of some other thing which is the principal, as timber converted into a house. Davis v. Easley, 13 Ill. 192. See Silsbury v. McCoon, 3 N. Y. 379; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 307, where corn was made into whiskey; Curtis v. Groat, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 168; Riddle v. Driver, 12 Ala. 590, where trees were made into charcoal; Foster v. Warner, 49 Mich. 641; Betts v. Lee, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 349; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 368; Chandler v. Edson, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 362, where lumber was made into shingles; Brock v. Smith, 14 Ark. 431, where trees were cut into cord-wood; Heard v. James, 49 Miss. 236, where lumber was made into staves; Snyder v. Vaux, 2 Rawle (Pa.), 423; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 466; Millar v. Humphries, 2 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 446, where trees were made into posts and rails; Hyde v. Cookson, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 92, where hides were made into leather; Pierrepont v. Barnard, 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 364; Fival v. Backus, 18 Mich. 218, where trees were made into timber; Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Hutchins, 32 Ohio St. 571; s. c., 37 Id. 282; Smith v. Gonder, 22 Ga. 353, where mortgage. So, also, if the goods are manufactured into a finished article, or there is any natural increase.<sup>1</sup> trees were made into railroad ties; Hal-leck v. Mixer, 16 Cal. 574; Moody v. Whitney, 34 Me. 563; Brewer v. Fleming, 51 Pa. St. 102, where trees were made into fire-wood; Brown v. Sax, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 95; Baker v. Wheeler, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 505; Davis v. Easley, 13 Ill. 192, where trees, or logs, were made into boards; Eastman v. Harris, 4 La. Ann. 193, where a raft of logs was made into fire-wood; Jackson v. Walton, 28 Vt. 43, where stone was taken from a quarry, dressed, and laid in a pavement.

As to what goods replevin may be brought, see Wingate v. Smith, 20 Me. 287; Hesseltine v. Stockwell, 30 Me. 237; Loomis v. Green, 7 Me. 386; Ames v. Miss. B. Co., 8 Minn. 467; Wood v. Fales, 24 Pa. St. 246.

Damages.—Timber was cut from lands of B by trespassers, who by their labor converted it into cord-wood and railroad ties, thus increasing its value threefold. It was sold to an innocent purchaser, who was sued by B for the value of the wood and ties. Held, that B could not recover the value of the timber as enhanced by the labor of the wrong-doers after it was severed from the realty. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Hutchins, 32 Ohio St. 571, 37 Id. 282. See Salmon v. Horwitz, 23 L. J. Q. B. 77; Weymouth v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 17 Wis. 556; Single v. Schneider, 30 Wis. 570; Ellis v. Wire, 33 Ind. 127; s. c., Am. Rep. 189; Moody v. Whitney, 38 Me. 174; Buckmaster v. Mower, 21 Vt. 204; Forsyth v. Wells, 41 Pa. St. 291; Herdic v. Young, 55 Pa. St. 176; Grant v. Smith, 26 Mich. 201; Farwell v. Price, 30 Mo. 587; Heard v. James, 49 Miss. 236. Compare Nesbit v. St. Paul L. Co., 21 Minn. 491; Pearson v. Inlow, 20 Mo. 322; Stuart v. Phelps, 39 Iowa, 14; Hungerford v. Redford, 29 Wis. 345; Smith v. Gonder, 22 Ga. 353; Bailey v. Shaw, 28 N. H. 297; Coxe v. England, 65 Pa. St. 212; Hill v. Canfield, 56 Pa. St. 454; Benjamin v. Benjamin, 15 Conn. 347.

1. Story on Bailments, § 292; Putnam v. Cushing, 10 Gray (Mass.), 334; Hardin v. Coburn, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 333; Comins v. Newton, 10 Allen (Mass.), 518; Sumner v. Hamlet, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 76. See Bryant v. Pennell, 61 Me. 108; Pulcifer v. Page, 32 Me. 404; s. c., 54 Am. Dec. 582; Cudworth v. Scott, 41 N. H. 456; Perry v. Pettengill, 33 N. H. 433; Putnam v. Cushing, 10 Gray (Mass.), 334; Simmons v. Jenkins, 76 Ill. 479; Merchants' Nat. B. v. McLaughlin, 2 Fed. Repr. 128; Jenckes v. Goffe, 1 R. I. 511; Fowler v. Merrill, 11 How. (U. S.) 375; Evans v. Merriken, 8 G. & J. (Md.) 39; Frost v. Willard, 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 440; Forman v. Proctor, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 124; Evans v. Merriken, 8 G. & J. (Md.) 39; Thorpe v. Cowles, 55 Iowa, 408; Kellogg v. Lovely, 46 Mich. 131; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 151.

Mortgage.—Where a mortgagor of goods intrusted with possession mingles them with his own goods, so that they cannot be distinguished, he loses his property as against the mortgagee, and the latter may claim the whole against the mortgagor and his consignees. Willard v. Rice, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 493; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 226. See Adams v. Wildes, 107 Mass. 123.

Where new materials are purchased, after giving a chattel mortgage, to supply the place of materials which are worn out, and the new materials, such as type, are so commingled with the old materials as not to be easily distinguished, held, that new materials (if not kept separate) become part of the old by accession, and are covered by the mortgage. Fowler v. Hoffman, 31 Mich. 215.

The mortgage of a vessel attaches to a new set of sails provided by the mortgagor, after its execution, to replace old sails. Southworth v. Isham, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 448.

Where leather, which has been cut and prepared to make into shoes is covered by a chattel mortgage, the shoes which are subsequently made will be also covered by the mortgage. Putnam v. Cushing, 10 Gray (Mass.), 334.

Animals.—Where one buys a mare on credit and gives a chattel mortgage on her for the entire purchase-price, and she is afterwards found to be with foal which is not weaned before the credit expires, he is not entitled to keep the colt if he makes default in payment and the mare is taken on the mortgage. Kellogg v. Lovely, 46 Mich. 131; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 151. See Forman v. Proctor, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 124; Thorpe v. Cowles, 55 Iowa, 408; Gundy v. Biteler, 6 Ill. App. 510; Evans v. Merriken, 8 G. & J. (Md.) 39; Fowler v. Merrill, 11 How. (U. S.) 375.

To entitle a chattel-mortgagee to the offspring of stock included in his mortgage, he must show that such offspring

7. Accounts.—The rules as to confusion of goods apply to accounts.<sup>1</sup>

8. Trustees.—Where an executor converts an estate into money, and mixes it with the general mass of his own money, and there is no identifying the particular money of the trust, the distributees or legatees have no preference over his other creditors, but were conceived prior to the date of his mortgage, or that since their birth they have been in the open possession of himself or his agent; and where the evidence in his behalf, as to the age of offspring and fact of their conception prior to his mortgage, was mere opinion of the witness, and not positive knowledge, held, insufficient. Thorpe v. Cowles, 55 Iowa, 408.

It has been held that unless the increase is included and the mortgagor remains in possession, the mortgage does not cover the increase. In an action of replevin, the property replevied was described as "one sorrel last spring's colt; twenty-six head of black and white spotted shoats, about ten months old," etc. Plaintiff claimed this property by virtue of a chattel mortgage, in which the property was described as "one bay mare eleven years old, named Tony; one gray horse about nine years old, named Pet; one sorrel mare four years old, named Bet; fifty head of hogs from six weeks to two years old." Evidence was introduced that one of said mares was in foal at the date of the mortgage, and dropped the colt replevied some time afterwards; also that some of the shoats replevied were pigged. Held, that as to the colt and shoats the verdict was not sustained by the evidence. See Winter v. Landphere, 42 Iowa, 471.

A chattel mortgage conveying a stock of goods and "all books of account and rights of credit arising out of said business" did not cover accounts subsequently accruing upon the sale of the goods by the mortgagor, with the consent of the mortgagee, in the regular course of trade. Lormer v. Allyn, 64 Iowa, 725.

Additions made to unfinished machinery which is covered by a mortgage are also included in the mortgage. Ex parte Ames, 1 Law Dec. (U. S.) 561. Jenckes v. Goffe, 1 R. I. 511.

Repairs and improvements made upon rolling stock by a company which had acquired the right to control the road, subsequently to the mortgage, are in the nature of accessions to a mortgaged chattel, and subject first to the mortgage that had priority of date. Hamlin v.

Jerrard, 72 Me. 62; s. c., 4 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 488.

Crops, Plants, etc.—Plants and shrubs, the growth of cuttings from plants and shrubs mortgaged, pass to the mortgagee by accession. Bryant v. Pennell, 61 Me. 108; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 550.

Pending foreclosure proceedings under a mortgage of certain land, together with the rents, issues, and profits thereof, the court is authorized to appoint a receiver to take possession of the mortgaged premises and harvest and market the crop growing thereon which had been planted by defendant; the crops in such case would be part of the mortgaged property. Montgomery v. Merrill, 65 Cal. 432.

Where a mortgagor brought trover for the conversion of a crop of growing corn, held, that he was entitled to recover the value of the corn in the crib in which it had been put by the defendant after husking, and that if the defendant had commingled it with his own corn the duty of separating it lay on him; also that the cost of husking and gathering could not be deducted. Stuart v. Phelps, 39 Iowa, 14. See Lewis v. Whittenmore, 5 N. H. 364; Benjamin v. Benjamin, 15 Conn. 347; Backenstoss v. Stahler, 33 Pa. St. 251; Cook v. Steel, 42 Tex. 53. Compare Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Hutchins, 32 Ohio St. 571; 37 Id. 282.

Where one mixes his own goods with those of another, which are mortgaged, and refuses to separate the goods, if the mortgagee takes the goods confounded with his own, he will not be a trespasser. Fuller v. Paige, 26 Ill. 358. See Rider v. Hathaway, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 298; Simpson v. Carleton, 1 Allen (Mass.) 109.

1. Where a surviving partner, after the death of his partner, still bought goods in the firm-name of another firm, of which he was a partner, and had or allowed the same to be charged to the old firm, the same as before the death of his partner, thereby so confounding that which was a liability of the firm with his as surviving partner as to render it impossible to separate the two, held, that the consequences of the confusion must fall upon him, unless he could

they must prove their claims.<sup>1</sup> (See EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.) A trustee must not mingle the trust fund with his own. If he does, the cestui que trust may follow the trust property, and claim every part of the blended property which the trustee cannot identify as his own.<sup>2</sup> (See TRUSTS.)

9. Real Property.—Where permanent buildings or improvements are made upon real property in the way of buildings, etc., they become the property of the owner of the land.<sup>3</sup> (See FIXTURES.)

ACCESSORY—ACCOMPLICE—AIDER—ABETTOR. See particular titles, as ABDUCTION, ABORTION, etc.; also CONFESSION; CONSPIRACY; HOMICIDE; STRIKES.

1. Definition.
2. Aiders and Abettors.
3. Intent.
4. Indictment.
5. Persons seeking to discover Crime.
6. Innocent Agent.
7. Common Purpose.
8. Before the Fact.
9. Knowledge.
10. Where the Crime suggested is committed in a Different Way.
11. Where the Crime committed is Probable Consequence of the Crime suggested.
12. Where Instigation is countermanded.
13. Instigation to commit a Crime different from the one committed.
14. Constructive Presence.
15. As Principals.
16. After the Fact.
17. As Principals.
18. Evidence.

1. Definition.—An accessory is a person guilty of a felonious offence, not by being the actor or actual perpetrator of the crime, nor by being present at its performance, but by being in some way concerned therein either before or after its commission. If he has been concerned in it before its commission he is termed an accessory before the fact; if after, an accessory after the fact. An accessory before the fact is one who, being absent at the time the crime is committed, yet procures, counsels, or commands another to commit it; and, in this case, absence is necessary to constitute him an accessory, for if he is present he is guilty of the crime as principal. Thus if A advises B to kill another, and B does it in the absence of A, in this case B is principal, and A accessory to the murder. An accessory after the fact is one who, knowing a felony to have been committed, receives, relieves, comforts, or assists the felon; and, generally, any assistance whatever given to a show the parts chargeable to each. Diversey v. Johnson, 93 Ill. 547.

Where a factor sold goods of his principal, together with his own, and took one note for whole amount, which was paid, held, that the principal could recover his proportion of the amount of the note. Beach v. Forsyth, 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 499.

1. Perry on Trusts, § 128.

2. Perry on Trusts, § 447.

3. 2 Kent's Com. 362; Ewell on Fixtures, 57.

Authorities for Accession.—2. Shouler felon, to hinder his being apprehended, tried, or suffering punishment, makes such assister an accessory,—as, furnishing him with a horse to escape his pursuers, money or victuals to support him, a house or other shelter to conceal him, or using open force and violence to protect him.<sup>1</sup>

2. To abet is to incite a person to commit a crime: an abettor is a person who, being present or in the neighborhood, incites another to commit a crime, and thus becomes a principal.<sup>2</sup> on Per. Prop. § 47 et seq.; Story's Bailments, § 40.

1. Brown's Law Dict. (Sprague's ed.); 2 Hawk. P. C. 316-318; Russell on Crimes (9th amd. ed.) 49; 4 Black. Com. c. 3; Wharton's Cr. L. § 213.

An accomplice is a person involved either directly or indirectly in the commission of the crime. To render him such, he must in some manner aid, or assist, or participate in the criminal act, and by that connection he becomes equally involved in guilt with the other party by reason of the criminal transaction. People v. Smith, 28 Hun (N. Y.), 626; Cross v. People, 47 Ill. 152.

The definition of an accomplice as "one who being present aids by acts or encourages by words the principal offender in commission of the offence" held erroneous, as such a person would be principal. Smith v. State, 13 Tex. App. 507.

Persons who play together at an unlawful game are several and joint offenders, and therefore not accomplices of each other. Stone v. State, 3 Tex. App. 675. Compare Smith v. State, 37 Ala. 472; Bass v. State, 37 Ala. 469; English v. State, 35 Ala. 428; Davidson v. State, 33 Ala. 350.

A person who joins in a game of tennis at the request of others, who are betting upon it, but without betting himself, is not an accomplice. Bass v. State, 37 Ala. 469; see Smith v. State, 37 Ala. 472.

The purchaser of liquor sold in violation of law is not an accomplice of the seller. People v. Smith, 28 Hun (N. Y.), 626; State v. Teahan, 50 Conn. 92.

A boy twelve years old who is coerced is not an accomplice. Beal v. State, 72 Ga. 200; People v. Miller, 6 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 99.

To hold an accessory as principal, he must do some act to connect him with the crime while it is being committed. Bean v. State, 17 Tex. App. 60.

Merely approval of the act or sympathy with the perpetrator is not sufficient to constitute one an accessory. State v.

Cox, 65 Mo. 29; Connaughty v. State, 1 Wis. 169. Nor concealing the felonious purpose. White v. People, 81 Ill. 333.

A conspiracy may be inferred where it is shown that any two of the parties charged aimed by their acts to accomplish the same unlawful purpose or object, one performing one part and another another part of the same so as to complete it, although they never met together to confer the means or to give effect to the design. U. S. v. Sacia, 2 Fed. Repr. 754.

It is sufficient if it is proved that the defendants pursued by their acts the same object often by the same means, one performing one part and another another part of the same, so as to complete it with a view to the attainment of the same object. Mussel Slough Case, 5 Fed. Repr. 680.

A conspiracy to plunder a wrecked vessel within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction of the United States is an offence under R. S. § 5440. U. S. v. Sanche, 7 Fed. Repr. 715.

Where two are engaged in committing a larceny from the person, all who are present, aiding or abetting, are principals; but one receiving stolen property is guilty of larceny alone. People v. Sligh, 48 Mich. 54.

3. Sweet's Law Dict.; 4 Bl. Com. 34.

Persons who are either actually or constructively present at the commission of an offence, aiding and abetting or counselling, and procuring the same to be done, are principals in the second degree. The aider and abettor of high treason is a principal in the first degree; the aider and abettor of a misdemeanor is also a principal in the first degree, but for a very different reason, namely, the maxim de minimis non curat lex (the law does not concern itself about trifles). Consequently aiders and abettors that are principals in the second degree are only found in the case of felonies, whether at common law or under any statute. The aider and abettor must participate in the felony, in the sense of acting in concert with those committing it; for although

Presence and participation are necessary to constitute a person an abettor.<sup>1</sup> But the mere fact of presence or failure to interfere to prevent the commission of a crime does not alone constitute the person a joint criminal with the active party, or cast on him the burden of proving his innocence.<sup>2</sup> He must do or say some-he is present, yet if he does not participate, but remains passive, he is not an abettor. Moreover, the participation must be with a felonious intent, and not in ignorance of the nature of the act. Brown's Law Dict. (Sprague's ed.); Sharp v. State, 6 Tex. App. 650; State v. Kirk, 10 Oregon 505; State v. Ellis, 12 La. Ann. 390; State v. McGregor, 41 N. H. 407; White v. People, 81 Ill. 333; Brennan v. People, 15 Ill. 511; Stevens v. People, 67 Ill. 587; Connaught v. State, 1 Wis. 169; U. S. v. Connaught, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 460; State v. Comstock, 46 Iowa, 265; Williams v. State, 20 Miss. 58; Raiford v. State, 59 Ala. 106; King v. State, 21 Ga. 220; Hately v. State, 15 Ga. 346; Clem v. State, 33 Ind. 418; Doan v. State, 26 Ind. 495; People v. Erwin, 4 Denio (N. Y.), 129; Lowenstein v. People, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 299.

In misdemeanors, aiders and abettors are principals, and may be so charged in the indictment. U. S. v. Gooding, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 460; Com. v. Macomber, 3 Mass. 254; Com. v. Barlow, 4 Mass. 439; Brown v. Perkins, 1 Allen (Mass.), 89; Stevens v. People, 67 Ill. 587; People v. Erwin, 4 Denio (N. Y.), 129; Lowenstein v. People, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 299; Dunman v. State, 1 Tex. App. 593.

Where an attachment is wrongfully levied by a constable upon property which is exempt from attachment, and the property is sold by virtue of the attachment proceedings at the instance and by the direction of D, who is not a party to the suit, held, that D is responsible to the owner of the property for the value thereof; that any person who aids, abets, or assists in the commission of a wrongful act is equally liable with the principal; and any person who causes a wrong to be done is himself responsible for the wrong, even though the wrong may be accomplished or effected through the action of an innocent person. Fish v. Street, 27 Kan. 270.

A statute which provides that "every person who shall assist, abet, counsel, cause, hire, or command another to commit any offence may be prosecuted and punished as if he were the principal offender" does not apply to the case of the purchaser of liquor sold contrary to law. State v. Teahan, 50 Conn. 92. See Harrington v. State, 36 Ala. 236; Peo- ple v. Smith, 28 Hun (N. Y.), 626, affirmed 92 N. Y. 665.

If there is a connection between the investigation and the committal of the offence, it is immaterial how long a period of time elapses. Com. v. Glover, 111 Mass. 395.

Trespass.—Any person who is present at the commission of a trespass, encouraging or inciting the same by words, gestures, looks, or signs, or who in any way, or by any means, countenances or approves the same, is, in law, deemed to be an aider and abettor, and liable as a principal. Cooper v. Johnson, 81 Mo. 483; Com. v. Hurley, 99 Mass. 433; People v. Hodges, 27 Cal. 340.

1. He must be present, and aiding and abetting; but if he assented to the crime and was in a situation where he might render some aid, he would be present and aiding in the commission of the crime. Com. v. Knapp, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 496; s. c., 20 Am. Dec. 491; Connaught v. State, 1 Wis. 169.

If one sees another hiding stolen property, and refuses to give information to officers searching for it, he is an aider and abettor. State v. St. Clair, 17 Iowa, 149. See State v. Turner, 19 Iowa 144; Kelly v. Commonwealth, 1 Grant (Pa.), 484; Brown v. State, 28 Ga. 199; Strawhorn v. State, 37 Miss. 422.

2. People v. Ah-Ping, 27 Cal. 489; People v. Woodward, 45 Cal. 293; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 176; Connaught v. State, 1 Wis. 169; Kemp v. Commonwealth, 80 Va. 443; Lowery v. State, 72 Ga. 649; Butler v. Commonwealth, 2 Duvall (Ky.), 435; Plummer v. Commonwealth, 1 Bush (Ky.), 76; Smith v. State, 37 Ark. 274; State v. Maloy, 44 Iowa, 104; Brown v. Perkins, 1 Allen (Mass.), 89, Fost. 350.

In State v. Hildreth, 9 Ired. (N. Car.) 440; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 369, the court said: "For one who is present and sees that a felony is about being committed and does in no manner interfere does not thereby participate in the felony committed." United States v. Jones, 3 Wash. (U. S.) 209.

Where a reasonable doubt exists as to a person's intention in interfering in a struggle between two other persons, he cannot be held to aid and abet. Guilford v. State, 24 Ga. 315.

Mere presence without endeavoring to thing showing consent to the felonious purpose, and must contribute to its execution.<sup>1</sup> The advice or encouragement may be by words, acts, signs, or motions;<sup>2</sup> and may be given by one incompetent to commit the offence as principal, by reason of not being of the particular sex, age, condition, or class.<sup>3</sup> Actual presence is not essential; it may be constructive.<sup>4</sup>

3. Intent.—When the existence of a particular intent forms part of the definition of an offence, a person charged with aiding and abetting the commission of the offence must be shown to have known of the existence of the intent on the part of the person so aided.<sup>5</sup> prevent the commission of a trespass will not render a person liable as a participator, but any encouragement or aid given, or any concert of action or aid thereto, will render such one liable as principal. Hilmes v. Stroebel, 59 Wis. 74.

A witness who testifies on trial for burning a jail that accused invited him to go down and see him "upset the jail," and he did go down and see him wrench off the lock from the door of the jail and enter it, and that the accused afterwards confessed to him that he had burned the jail, is not generally by such testimony deemed to be an accomplice. State v. Reader, 60 Iowa, 527.

1. State v. Hildreth, 9 Ired. (N. Car.) 440; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 369; White v. People, 81 Ill. 333. Where two persons are present at the time of a homicide, and but one commits the crime, and the other does not aid, abet, or assist, but afterwards they both, with guilty knowledge, conceal the fact of the crime, the one not participating in the crime is only guilty as an accessory after the fact, and is not guilty of murder.

2. Brown v. Perkins, 1 Allen (Mass.), 89; McMannus v. Lee, 43 Mo. 206; Brennan v. People, 15 Ill. 511; Kennedy v. People, 40 Ill. 488; R. v. Bingley, Russ. & R. C. C. 446; R. v. Kelly, Ib. 421.

3. An unmarried man who is present and aids a friend in committing bigamy is guilty as principal in the second degree. Boggus v. State, 34 Ga. 275.

A woman aiding and abetting an attempt to commit a rape is guilty as principal. State v. Jones, 83 N. Car. 605; s. c., 35 Am. Rep. 586; State v. Comstock, 46 Iowa, 265.

Aiders and abettors in statutory offences are punishable as principals, under the statute, although not expressly referred to in the statute, as in the case of one who aided a postmaster to make a false return to the auditor for the purpose of fraudulently increasing his compensation.

U. S. v. Snyder, 14 Fed. Repr. 554. Compare Stamper v. Commonwealth, 7 Bush (Ky.), 612; Bland v. Commonwealth, 10 Bush (Ky.), 622.

Although a wife was the real owner of a store, yet if her husband controlled and managed it, and spirituous liquors were sold therein without a license, he would be guilty of that offence; nor would it be material that the liquor was sold by a clerk in the store, if the husband were present at the time, controlling and managing it. Faircloth v. State, 73 Ga. 426.

4. Illustration: A, B, C, and D go out with a common design to rob. A commits the robbery; B stands by ready to help; C is stationed some way off, to give the alarm if any one comes. A is principal in the first degree; B, C, and D are principals in the second degree. Stephens Dig. Cr. L., Am. ed. 126.

State v. Hamilton, 13 Nev. 386, where by arrangement L built a fire on the top of a mountain in Eureka Co. as a signal to his confederates in Nye Co. of the approach of a stage with treasure which it was proposed to rob.

Presence may be constructive. McCarney v. People, 83 N. Y. 409. State v. Heyward, 2 N. & McC. (S. Car.) 312; s. c., 10 Am. Dec., 604; Ruloff v. People, 45 N. Y. 213; Selvidge v. State, 30 Tex. 60; Breese v. State, 12 Ohio St. 146; State v. Nash, 7 Iowa, 347; Com. v. Lucas, 2 Allen (Mass.), 170; Doan v. State, 26 Ind. 495; R. v. Kelly Russ. & R. C. C. 421. This case Mr. Stephens says (Dig. Cr. Law, Am. ed. 26, n.) "perhaps marks the line between a principal in the second degree and an accessory. B stole horses and brought them to A, who was waiting half a mile off; A and B then rode away on them. It was held that A was an accessory before the fact. The distinction is now of no importance." State v. Fley, 2 Brev. (S. Car.) 338; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 583.

5. B is indicted for inflicting on C an

4. Indictment.—If those who aid and abet the commission of a crime are required by statute to be indicted as principals, the indictment must be the same as though they were principals.<sup>1</sup> An indictment need not allege, when the prisoner is charged as accessory, the conviction of the principal.<sup>2</sup> Acquittal as principal in a murder is no bar to an indictment as accessory.<sup>3</sup> Aiders and abettors may be indicted or tried as principals in cases of murder.<sup>4</sup>

5. Persons seeking to discover Crime.—A person who enters into communication with criminals and assists them, without any criminal intent, but solely for the purpose of discovery and making known their crimes, is not an accomplice.<sup>5</sup>

6. Innocent Agent.—Whoever commits a crime by an innocent agent is a principal, but the agent is excused.<sup>6</sup>

injury dangerous to life, with intent to murder. A is indicted for aiding and abetting B. A must be shown to have known that it was B's intent to murder C; and it is not enough to show that A helped B in what he did. Stephens Dig. Cr. L., Am. ed. 26. If B and C have had a quarrel with A, and A approaches B and C, and B commands him to halt or he will shoot him, and C then shoots A, the circumstances do not necessarily import a common criminal intent between B and C to kill A, so as to make B guilty. People v. Leith, 52 Cal. 251; Savage v. State, 18 Fla. 909.

1. State v. Hessian, 58 Iowa, 68; State v. Fley, 2 Brev. (S. Car.) 338; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 583. The court held it is not material which of several is charged as principal in the first degree, for the mortal injury done by any one of the persons is the act of each and every one of them. State v. Kirk, 10 Oregon, 505. Held, one present, aiding and abetting in the commission of a felony, may be convicted on an indictment charging him directly with committing the crime.

2. State v. Crank, 2 Bailey (S. Car.) 66; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 117. An abettor in a crime may be guilty of murder, though his principal may be guilty of manslaughter or even legally innocent. See People v. Bearss, 10 Cal. 68; People v. Newberry, 20 Cal. 439; Hatchett v. Commonwealth, 75 Va. 925.

3. State v. Buzzell, 58 N. H. 257; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 586.

4. State v. Ross, 29 Mo. 32; Commonwealth v. Chapman, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 422; Freel v. State, 21 Ark. 212; State v. Putnam, 18 S. Car. 175; s. c., 44 Am. Rep. 569.

5. Where a person buys liquor sold in violation of the excise law. Com. v. Downing, 4 Gray (Mass.), 29; Com. v.

Willard, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 476; People v. Smith, 28 Hun (N. Y.), 626; affirmed, 94 N. Y. 649; Harrington v. State, 36 Ala. 236.

Where a person united with others to steal horses, in order to detect the thieves. State v. McKean, 36 Iowa, 343; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 530.

Where a detective joined criminal organization for the purpose of discovering and punishing the crime of murder. Campbell v. Commonwealth, 84 Pa. St. 187.

6. If A tells B, a child under seven, to bring him money belonging to C, and B does so, A is a principal. R. v. Manley, 1 Cox C. C. 104. Or gives a counterfeit bill to a boy, ignorant of its nature, to have it changed. Com. v. Hill, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 136. Or makes an innocent party the custodian of stolen goods. People v. McMurray, 4 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 234. Or induces a boy to commit arson. People v. Katz, 23 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 93. If a person incites an insane person or a child or other innocent agent to commit a crime, he is liable as principal. Com. v. McLoon, 101 Mass. 1; Com. v. White, 123 Mass. 116; s. c., see 25 Am. Rep. 116; People v. Adams, 3 Den. (N. Y.) 190; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 470; U. S. v. Ross, 1 Gall. (U. S.) 624; State v. Lucas, 55 Iowa, 321; State v. Simmons, 6 Jones L. (N. Car.) 21; Peden v. State, 61 Miss. 267; State v. Allen, 47 Conn. 121; People v. Knapp, 26 Mich. 112; Mitchell v. Commonwealth, 33 Gratt. (Va.) 845; Berry v. State, 4 Tex. App. 492; Taylor v. State, 9 Tex. App. 100; State v. Putnam, 18 S. Car. 175; s. c., 44 Am. Rep. 569; People v. Woodward, 45 Cal. 293; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 176; People v. Brown, 59 Cal. 345; Hamilton v. People, 113 Ill. 34; Lamb v. People, 96 Ill. 73; Brennan v. People, 15 Ill. 516; Williams v. State,

7. Common Purpose.—When several persons take part in the execution of a common criminal purpose, each is a principal, in respect of every crime committed by any one of them in the execution of that common purpose; but if any of the offenders commits a crime foreign to the common criminal purpose, the others are neither principals nor accessories unless they actually instigate or assist in its commission.<sup>1</sup>

47 Ind. 568; Com. v. Knapp, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 496; Norton v. People, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 37; Ruloff v. People, 45 N. Y. 213; 1 Bishop Cr. L. § 636; 1 Russ. on Crimes; 2 Wharton's Cr. Law, § 998.

1. A constable and his assistants go to arrest A at a house in which are many persons. B, C, and D, and others come from the house, drive the constable and his assistants off, and one of the assistants is killed, either by B, C, D, or one of their party. Each of the party is equally responsible for the blow, whether he actually struck it or not. Stephen's Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 27.

Three soldiers go to rob an orchard. Two get into a fruit-tree; the third stands at the door with a drawn sword, and stabs the owner, who tries to arrest him. The men in the tree are neither principals nor accessories, unless all three came with a common resolution to overcome all opposition. Stephen's Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 27.

Two parties of persons fight in the street about the removal of goods to avoid a distress. One of the persons engaged kills a looker-on totally unconcerned in the affray. The other persons present are not responsible for his crime. Stephen's Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 27.

Two persons go out to commit theft. One, unknown to the other, puts a pistol in his pocket, and shoots a man with it. The other person is not responsible for the shot. Stephen's Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 27.

Two private watchmen, seeing the prisoner and another person with two carts laden with apples, went up to them, intending as soon as they could get assistance to secure them; one of the watchmen walked beside the prisoner, and the other watchman beside the other person, at some distance from the prisoner. The other person wounded the watchman who was near him. Held, that the prisoner could not be convicted of his wounding, unless the jury should be satisfied that the prisoner and the other person had not only gone out with a common purpose of stealing apples, but also had the common purpose of resisting with extreme violence any person who might attempt to apprehend them. R. v. Collison, 4 C. & P. 565. Compare Frank v. State, 27 Ala. 37; Thompson v. State, 25 Ala. 41; Com. v. Campbell, 7 Allen (Mass.), 541; People v. Knapp, 26 Mich. 112; Watts v. State, 5 W. Va. 532.

If several conspire to beat A, but not to kill him, and, after tying him for the purpose of beating him, one of the conspirators abandons the enterprise and goes away, and the others kill A, the one who so went away cannot be convicted of murder. Harris v. State, 15 Tex. App. 629; see State v. Allen, 47 Conn. 121.

If several persons agree together to rob another, and for that purpose arm themselves with deadly weapons, and meet at the house of the person to be robbed, and to carry out their unlawful design one is left outside, ready to aid and assist, while the others enter and commit the crime agreed on, all are guilty of the robbery as principals. So, if those inside the house, while attempting to consummate the robbery, and in furtherance of such conspiracy, purposely kill the person they are attempting to rob, while he is resisting such attempt, and such killing is the natural and probable consequence of the common purpose, the person outside who is aiding and assisting is equally guilty as the one striking the fatal blow, though he did not, previous to such attempt, agree to or assent to such killing. Stephens v. State, 42 Ohio St. 150.

In April, 1882, W became the purchaser, upon conditions, of the right to operate a certain gas-well. He moved upon the premises and commenced operations preparatory to conducting the gas to practical use. In June, 1883, other parties made a contract with the persons from whom W had obtained the property, for the purchase of the same interest that had been conveyed to W. They thereupon entered upon the property whereon the well was situated and expelled W. In the struggle between the rival claimants H was killed by B, who was in the employ of W. W was indicted, found guilty of manslaughter, and sentenced to be imprisoned. Held, that the conviction was sustained by the evidence; that one who is present, with others, aiding or abetting in a common purpose, is responsible for the act of one of the party which results in the killing of a person, providing the killing was in pursuance of or an incidental probable consequence of such purpose. The intent to hold possession of property by a show of arms, for intimidation only, is unlawful and draws to itself the consequences of acts done in carrying it into execution. Weston v. Com., 111 Pa. St. 251.

8. Before the Fact.—An accessory before the fact is one who directly or indirectly counsels, procures, or commands any person to commit any crime which is committed in consequence of such counselling, procuring, or commandment.<sup>1</sup> Such accessory before the fact may be by statute indicted and tried as a principal.<sup>2</sup>

If several are associated together to commit a robbery, and one of them, while all are engaged in the common design, intentionally kills the person they are attempting to rob, in furtherance of the common purpose, all are equally guilty, though the others had not previously consented to the killing, where such killing was done in the execution of the common purpose, and was a natural and probable result of the attempt to rob. People v. Vasquez, 49 Cal. 560; People v. Pool, 27 Cal. 572; State v. Shelledy, 8 Iowa, 477; U. S. v. Ross, 1 Gall. (U. S.) 624; State v. Nash, 7 Iowa, 347; Stipp v. State, 11 Ind. 62; Stephens v. State, 42 Ohio St. 150; Breese v. State, 12 Ohio St. 146; Miller v. State, 25 Wis. 384; Carr v. State, 43 Ark. 99; Williams v. State, 9 Mo. 270; State v. Davis, 29 Mo. 391.

1. 4 Bl. Com. c. 3.

An accessory before the fact is defined by Lord Hale to be one who, being absent at the time of the offence committed, does yet procure, counsel, command, or abet another to commit a felony. 1 Hale P. C. 615. The bare concealment of a felony to be committed will not make the party concealing it an accessory before the fact. 2 Hawk. c. 29, s. 23. So words amounting to a bare permission will not render a man an accessory; as, if A says he will kill J. S., and B says, "you may do your pleasure for me," Hawk. P. C. b. 2, c. 29, s. 16. The procurement must be continuing; for if before the commission of the offence by the principal, the accessory countermands him, and yet the principal proceeds to the commission of the offence, he who commanded him will not be guilty as accessory. 1 Hale P. C. 618.

If B procures C to commit a robbery, and C kills A to conceal the robbery, B is guilty as accessory before the fact to the murder. State v. Davis, 87 N. Car. 514. See Washington v. State, 68 Ga. 570; Stratton v. State, 45 Ind. 468; Clem v. State, 33 Ind. 418; Goff v. Prime, 26 Ind. 196; Baker v. State, 12 Ohio St. 214; Jones v. State, 13 Tex. 168; State v. Mann, 1 Hayw. (N. Car.) 4; People v. Shepardson, 48 Cal. 189; People v. Hodges, 27 Cal. 340; Norton v. People, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 137; People v. McMurray, 4 Park Cr. (N. Y.) 234; People v. Knapp, 26 Mich. 112; Neither v. State, 10 Smedes & M. (Miss.) 191.

A person may render himself an accessory by the intervention of a third person, without any direct communication between himself and the principal. Thus if A bids his servant to hire somebody to murder B, and furnishes him with money for that purpose, and the servant hires C, a person whom A never saw or heard of, who commits the murder, A is an accessory before the fact. Fost. 121; R. v. Macdaniel, 1 Lea, 44; Hawk. P. C. b. 2, c. 29, ss. 1, 11; 1 Russ. Cri. (5th ed.) 166; R. v. Cooper, 5 C. & P. 535.

2. Noland v. State, 18 Ohio, 131; Brown v. State, 18 Ohio St. 496; Levy v. People, 80 N. Y. 327; State v. Cassidy, 12 Kan. 550; Ulmer v. State, 14 Ind. 52; Stipp v. State, 11 Ind. 62; Com. v. Hughes, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 430; Mitchell v. Commonwealth, 33 Gratt. (Va.) 845; People v. Davidson, 5 Cal. 133; People v. Bearss, 10 Cal. 68.

At common law the instigator was regarded as an accessory before the fact in felonies, and must be indicted and tried as such. In cases of misdemeanor, however, all were principals. People v. Lyon, 99 N. Y. 210; McCarney v. People, 83 N. Y. 409; Irvine v. Wood, 51 N. Y. 224; Wixson v. People, 5 Park Cr. (N. Y.) 121; Able v. Commonwealth, 5 Bush (Ky.), 698; Tully v. Commonwealth, 11 Bush (Ky.), 154; English v. State, 35 Ala. 428; Bieber v. State, 45 Ga. 570; Parsons v. State, 43 Ga. 197; U. S. v. White, 5 Cranch C. C. 38.

All distinction between principal and accessory before the fact has been abolished in Missouri. State v. Fredericks, 85 Mo. 145.

9. Knowledge that a person intends to commit a crime, and conduct connected with, and influenced by, such knowledge, is not enough to make the person who possesses such knowledge, or so conducts himself, an accessory before the fact to any such crime, unless he does something to encourage its commission actively.<sup>1</sup>

One who advises or encourages the commission of a felony, but is not actually or constructively present when it is committed, cannot be convicted under an indictment charging him as principal in the crime. Smith v. State, 37 Ark. 274.

Upon the trial of an indictment for larceny it did not appear that the prisoner was present at the warehouse from which the property was taken, or in its close vicinity, but there was proof upon the trial tending to show that he had part in planning the theft and in learning the situation of the premises and the ways of the keeper thereof; that the one who was in fact engaged in taking the property sent the porter of the warehouse to the house of the keeper with a letter, and promised a reward, upon his calling, after the delivery of it, at a specified street and number; and that on reaching the street, while searching for the number, he met the prisoner and conversed with him about the keeper and his whereabouts. Held, that the testimony was sufficient to authorize the submission of the question of the prisoner's participation as principal in the theft to the jury. McCarney v. People, 83 N.Y. 408.

Degree of Incitement.—Upon the subject of the degree of incitement and the force of persuasion used no rule is laid down. That it was sufficient to effectuate the evil purpose is proved by the result. On principle it seems that any degree of direct incitement with the actual intent to procure the consummation of the illegal object is sufficient to constitute the guilt of the accessory; and therefore that it is unnecessary to show that the crime was effected in consequence of such incitement, and that it would be no defence to show that the offence would have been committed although the incitement had never taken place. 2 Stark. Ev. 9, 3d ed. Where a man furnished a woman with corrosive sublimate at her request, which she took with intent to procure abortion, but he did not instigate her to take it, and his conduct was consistent with his having hoped that she would change her mind, it was held that he was not an accessory before the fact. R. v. Fretwell, 1 L. & C. 161; 31 L. J. M. C. 145. So a mere holder of stakes for a prize-fight who is not present, but who afterwards paid over the stakes to the winner, was held not an accessory after the fact to the manslaughter of the man who was killed in the fight. R. v. Taylor, L. R. 2 C. C. 148; 44 L. J. M. C. 67.

1. A supplies B with corrosive sublimate, knowing B means to use it to procure her own abortion, but being unwilling that she should take the poison, and giving it to her because she threatened to kill herself if he did not. B does so use it, and dies. Even if B is guilty of murdering herself, A is not an accessory before the fact to such murder. R. v. Fretwell, Leigh & C. 161. Contrast with this R. v. Russell, 1 Moody, 356.

B and C agree to fight a prize-fight for a sum of money. A, knowing their intention, acts as stakeholder. B and C fight, and C is killed. A is not present at the fight, and has no concern with it except as stakeholder. Even if in such a case there can be an accessory before the fact, A is not accessory before the fact to the manslaughter of C. R. v. Taylor, L. R. 2 C. C. R. 147.

L swore that M, himself, and several others were members of a secret organization, called "Ku-Klux"; that this band was bound by oath to keep secret the doings and works of their order; that they had officers, of whom M was the captain; that H rendered himself obnoxious to the order by talking about them, and that at one of their regular monthly meetings it was determined that he must be whipped; that accordingly a party of masked men, among whom were M and L, went to H's house at night, took him out and flogged him. L was present and saw the whipping administered, but did not actively participate in it. About a week after this, the society held a called meeting to take some further steps concerning H, as he continued to talk about them. M, L, and others were present. After discussion it was resolved that H should be put to death. L said he opposed this resolution and never did assent to it. M and one R volunteered to do the act. In the course of the following week M and R came to witness's house and after night picked up their guns and left, telling the wife of witness to set the clock back, as they were going to kill H, but returned after a while and stated that the night was too dark to accomplish their purpose. Some

10. Where the Crime suggested is committed in a Different Way.—When a person instigates another to commit a crime, and the person so instigated commits the crime, but in a different way from that in which he was instigated to commit it, the instigator is an accessory before the fact to the crime.<sup>1</sup>

11. Where Crime committed is Probable Consequence of Crime suggested.—If a person instigates another to commit a crime, and the person so instigated commits a crime different from the one which he was instigated to commit, but likely to be caused by such instigation, the instigator is an accessory before the fact.<sup>2</sup>

12. Where Instigation is countermanded.—If an accessory before the fact countermands the execution of the crime before it is executed, he ceases to be an accessory before the fact, if the principal had notice of the countermand before the execution of the crime, but not otherwise.<sup>3</sup>

13. Instigation to commit a Crime different from the one committed.—When a person instigates another to commit a crime, and the person so instigated commits a different crime, the instigator is not accessory before the fact to the crime so committed, unless such crime was committed with his assent or is a probable consequence of the instigation.<sup>4</sup>

time after that H was killed, and M soon afterwards confessed to witness that he and R had done it, and described how they had done the act. L had kept the secret until about one year before the trial, when he divulged it. His reason was that he was afraid of personal violence at the hands of the band. He had been examined as a witness before the coroner's jury that held the inquest over H's dead body, and also before a grand jury, and had denied any knowledge of the authors of the crime. Held, that L was not an accomplice. Melton v. State, 43 Ark. 367.

If one knows that a crime is contemplated and absents himself in order to facilitate its commission, he is guilty as principal. State v. Poynier, 36 La. Ann. 572.

1. A advises B to murder C by shooting; B murders C by stabbing; A is accessory before the fact to the murder of C. Stephen's Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 29. See Watt v. State, 5 W. Va. 532.

2. A describes C to B, and instigates B to murder C. B murders D, whom he believes to be C, because D corresponds with A's description of C. A is accessory before the fact to the murder of D. Foster Cr. Cas. 370.

A instigates B to rob C; B does so; C resists, and B kills C. A is accessory before the fact to the murder of C. Ib.

A advises B to murder C (B's wife) by poison. B gives C a poisoned apple, which C gives to D (B's child). B permits D to eat the apple, which it does, and dies of it. A is not accessory to murder of D. Saunders' Case, Plowd. 475; Hale Pleas. Cr. 431. See note, Stephen's Dig. Cr. L. (Am. Ed.) 29.

3. A advises B to murder C, and afterwards by letter withdraws his advice. B does murder C. A is not an accessory before the fact if his letter reaches B before he murders C; but he is if it arrives afterwards. 1 Hale Pleas. Cr. 618.

4. If the principal totally and substantially vary from the terms of the instigation—if, being solicited to commit a felony of one kind, he willingly and knowingly commit a felony of another, he will stand single in that offence, and the person soliciting will not be involved in his guilt. Thus if A command B to burn C's house, and he in so doing commits a robbery; now A, though accessory to the burning, is not accessory to the robbery, for that is a thing of a distinct and inconsequential nature. And if A counsels B to steal goods of C on the road, and B breaks into C's house and steals there, A is not accessory to the breaking the house, because that is a felony of another kind. He is, however, accessory to the stealing. But if the principal complies in substance with the instigation of the accessory, varying only in circumstances of time or place, or in the manner of execution, the accessory will be involved in his guilt; as if A commands

14. Constructive Presence.—A crime is deemed to be committed and punishable in one State (New York) when a person, though situate in another State (Ohio) and there originating and concoct-

B to murder C by poison and B does it by a sword or other weapon, or by any other means, A is accessory to this murder; for the murder of C was the object principally in contemplation, and that is effected; and it seems that if A counsels B to steal goods in C's house, but not to break into it, and B does break into it, A is accessory to the breaking. And where the principal goes beyond the term of the solicitation, yet, if in the event the felony committed was a probable consequence of what was ordered or advised, the person giving such orders or advice will be an accessory to the felony. As, if A advised B to rob C, and in robbing him B kills him, either upon resistance made, or to conceal the fact, or upon any other motive operating at the time of the robbery; or if A solicit B to burn the house of C, and B does it accordingly, and the flames take hold of the house of D, that likewise is burnt. In these cases A is accessory to B, both in the murder of C and in the burning of the house of D. Russell on Crimes (9th Am. Ed.), 62.

Where the principal wilfully commits a different crime from that which he is commanded or advised to commit, the party counselling him will not be guilty as accessory. But whether, where the principal by mistake commits a different crime, the party commanding or advising him shall stand excused, has been the subject of much discussion. It is said by Lord Hale, that if A commands B to kill C, and B by mistake kills D, or else in striking at C kills D, but misses C, A is not accessory to the murder of D, because it differs in the person. 1 Hale P. C. 617, citing 3 Inst. 51; R. v. Saunders, Plow. Com. 475. The circumstances of Saunders's case, cited by Lord Hale, were these: Saunders, with the intention of destroying his wife, by the advice of one Archer mixed poison in a roasted apple, and gave it to her to eat, and the wife having eaten a small part of it, and given the remainder to their child, Saunders making only a faint attempt to save the child, whom he loved and would not have destroyed, stood by and saw it eat the poison, of which it soon afterwards died. It was held that though Saunders was clearly guilty of the murder of the child, yet Archer was not accessory to the murder.

Upon the law as laid down by Lord

Hale, and upon R. v. Saunders, Mr. Justice Foster has made the following observations, and has suggested this case: B is an utter stranger to the person of C, and A therefore takes upon himself to describe him by his stature, dress, etc., and acquaints B when and where he may probably be met with. B is punctually at the time and place, and D, a person in the opinion of B answering the description, unhappily coming by, is murdered under a strong belief on the part of B that he is the man marked out for destruction. Who is answerable? Undoubtedly A: the malice on his part egreditur personam. The pit which he, with a murderous intention, dug for C, D fell into and perished. Through his guilt, B, not knowing the person of C, had no other guide to lead him to his prey than the description of A, and in following his guide he fell into a mistake, which it is great odds any man in his circumstances might have fallen into. "I therefore," continues the learned writer, "as at present advised, conceive that A was answerable for the consequences of the flagitious orders he gave, since that consequence appears in the ordinary course of things to have been highly probable." Foster, 370. With regard to Archer's case, the same learned author observes that the judges did not think it advisable to deliver him in the ordinary course of justice by judgment of acquittal, but for example's sake kept him in prison by frequent reprieves from session to session, till he had procured a pardon from the crown. Ibid. 371. Mr. Justice Foster then proposes the following criteria, as explaining the grounds upon which the several cases falling under this head will be found to rest. Did the principal commit the felony he stands charged with, under the flagitious advice, and was the event, in the ordinary course of things, a probable consequence of that felony? Or did he, following the suggestions of his own wicked heart, wilfully and knowingly commit a felony of another kind or upon a different subject? Foster, 372. See also Hawk. P. C. b. 2, c. 29, s. 22. Roscoe's Cr. Ev. (10th ed.) 184.

A instigates B to murder C; B murders D. A is not accessory before the fact to the murder of D. Foster Cr. Cas. 369, s. 1; State v. Lucas, 55 Iowa, 321; Watts v. State, 5 W. Va. 532.

ing the crime, consummates it in the other State (New York) by innocent agents there employed and acting under his authority.<sup>1</sup>

15. Accessories before the Fact as Principals.—At common law an accessory before the fact could only be tried jointly with the principal, or after the conviction of the principal;<sup>2</sup> but by statute in

A and B joined in a rape. After A had left the place, B, in attempting to escape, killed the woman. A was not an accessory to the homicide. People v. Knapp, 26 Mich. 112.

If a person, a party to an agreement to commit a burglary and steal goods from a store and conceal the same for disposition, who was not present at the time others of the conspirators were unloading and depositing the stolen goods at a pawnbroker's shop, when, upon being accosted by a police officer, some one of the persons who were present at such unloading and depositing shot and killed the officer, the co-conspirator who was absent at the time of the killing, not having aided or abetted, advised or encouraged, the homicide, nor, before its commission, advised the persons in charge of the stolen goods to oppose and resist any and all persons who should attempt to seize the same, or interrupt them in secreting or disposing of the goods, will not be liable criminally for the homicide. Lamb v. People, 96 Ill. 73.

A husband, desiring to obtain a divorce from his wife, employed a man to seduce her while he could be a witness. The man, not being able to accomplish his purpose by persuasion, resorted to force, and raped the woman, who screamed and endeavored to protect herself, while the husband stood by in a concealed place, and not only refused to assist her, but subsequently filed a petition for divorce on the ground of his wife's adultery on this occasion. The husband, under these circumstances, was held to be guilty of rape. People v. Chapman, 28 N. W. Repr. (Mich.) 896.

Several soldiers employed by the messenger of the secretary of state to assist in the apprehension of a person unlawfully broke open the door of a house where the person was supposed to be. Having done so, some of the soldiers began to plunder, and stole some goods. The question was, whether this was felony at all. Holt, C.J., observing upon this case, says that they were all engaged in an unlawful act is plain, for they could not justify the breaking a man's house without first making a demand. Yet all those who were not guilty of stealing were acquitted, notwithstanding their being engaged in an unlawful act of breaking the door; for this reason, because they knew not of any such intent, but it was a chance opportunity of stealing, whereupon some of them did lay hands. Anon. 1 Leach, 7 (s); 1 Russ. Cri. 162 (j), 5th ed. See also R. v. White, R. & R. 99; R. v. Hawkins, 3 C. & P. 392.

Three men went out into a field to shoot, and placed a target in a tree eight feet from the ground. They lay down on the ground, and each fired at it in turn. Their rifles were sighted to shoot 950 yards, and would probably be deadly at a mile. A boy in an apple-tree 393 yards off was killed by one of the shots; but it was uncertain which of the prisoners had shot him. They were all held to be guilty of manslaughter. Reg. v. Salmon, L. R. 6 Q. B. 79; 50 L. J., M. C. 25. It is, perhaps, open to doubt that if only one had fired his rifle all would have been equally guilty. Lord Coleridge, C.J., said, "the death resulted from the action of the three," and Stephen, J., said, "they unite to fire at the spot in question."

See Com. v. Campbell, 7 Allen (Mass.), 541; State v. Stalcup, 1 Ired. (N. Car.) 30; Watts v. State, 5 W. Va. 532; Manier v. State, 6 Baxt. (Tenn.) 595; Lamb v. People, 96 Ill. 73; Brennan v. People, 15 Ill. 511; State v. Lucas, 57 Iowa, 501; People v. Knapp, 26 Mich. 112; Miller v. State, 15 Tex. App. 125; Harris v. State, 15 Tex. App. 639.

1. People v. Adams, 3 Denio (N. Y.), 190; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 468; Com. v. White, 123 Mass. 430; s. c., 25 Am. Rep. 116; State v. Chapman, 6 Nev. 320.

2. 4 Black. Com. 40. See Stoops v. Commonwealth, 7 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 491; Holmes v. Commonwealth, 25 Pa. St. 221; Com. v. Knapp, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 477; People v. Lyon, 99 N. Y. 210; Able v. Commonwealth, 5 Bush (Ky.), 698; Tully v. Commonwealth, 11 Bush (Ky.), 154; State v. Wyckoff, 2 Vroom (N. J.), 65; Walrath v. State, 8 Neb. 80; Hughes v. State, 12 Ala. 458; Josephine v. State, 39 Miss. 613; Keech v. State, 15 Fla. 591; McCarty v. State, 44 Ind. 214; s. c., 15 Am. Rep. 232; 1 Archbald's Cr. P. & P. (Pomeroy's ed.) 68; 1 Whart. Cr. L. § 208; Bish. Cr. L. § 666.

most of the States he may be indicted, tried, convicted, and punished as if he alone and independently had committed the crime.<sup>1</sup> In misdemeanors there are no accessories, but all who participate in the commission of the act, or aid therein, are principals.<sup>2</sup>

16. Accessories after the Fact.—Every one is an accessory after the fact to a crime who, knowing a crime to have been committed

At common law the accessory is released by the acquittal of the principal. U. S. v. Crane, 4 McL. (U. S.) 317.

Before the 7 Geo. 4, c. 64, accessories could not, except by their own consent, be punished until the guilt of the principal offender was established. It was necessary, therefore, either to try them after the principal had been convicted or upon the same indictment with him, and the latter was the usual course. 1 Russ. Cri. 174, 5th ed. This statute is now repealed, and by the 24 and 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 1, it is enacted that "whosoever shall become an accessory before the fact to any felony, whether the same be a felony at common law or by virtue of any act passed or to be passed, may be indicted, tried, convicted and punished in all respects as if he were a principal felon." By s. 2, "whosoever shall counsel, procure, or command any other person to commit any felony, whether the same be a felony at common law, or by virtue of any act passed or to be passed, shall be guilty of felony, and may be indicted and convicted either as an accessory before the fact to the principal felony, together with the principal felon, or after the conviction of the principal felon, or may be indicted and convicted of a substantive felony, whether the principal felon shall or shall not have been previously convicted, or shall or shall not be amenable to justice, and may thereupon be punished in the same manner as an accessory before the fact to the same felony, if convicted as an accessory, may be punished."

Soliciting and inciting a person to commit a felony is not a substantive felony under this section, unless the felony is actually committed, but only a misdemeanor; and it is doubtful whether a soliciting and inciting is equivalent to a counselling and procuring. R. v. Gregory, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 77; 36 L. J., M.C. 60.

It was decided upon the 11 and 12 Vict. c. 46, s. 1 (which is in the same terms as the 24 and 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 1, and was passed to remedy a defect in the 7 Geo. 4, c. 64), that a person charged as an accessory before the fact may be convicted even though the principal be acquitted. R. v. Hughes, Bell C. C. 242. The two first counts charged A and B with stealing, and the third count charged B with receiving. No evidence was offered against A, who was acquitted and called as a witness. The evidence went to show that B was an accessory before the fact, and the jury found a general verdict of guilty. It was held that the conviction was good. Erle, J., said: "We consider that being an accessory before the fact now stands as a substantive felony, and that now the conviction of an accessory would stand good, and no wrong be done him, though he should be tried before the principal."

By the 24 and 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 5, "if any principal offender shall be in anywise convicted of any felony, it shall be lawful to proceed against any accessory either before or after the fact in the same manner as if such principal felon had been attained thereof, notwithstanding such principal shall die or be pardoned, or otherwise delivered before attainder; and every such accessory shall, upon conviction, suffer the same punishment as he would have suffered if the principal had been attained." By the 24 and 25 Vict. c. 94, s. 6 (replacing the 14 and 15 Vict. c. 100, s. 15), "any number of accessories at different times to any felony, and any number of receivers at different times of property stolen at one time, may be charged with substantive felonies in the same indictment, and may be tried together, notwithstanding the principal felon shall not be included in the same indictment, or shall be in custody or amenable to justice." Roscoe's Cr. Ev. (10th ed.) 185.

Evidence of Conviction of Principal Admissible.—Upon the trial of an accessory before the fact, the record of the conviction of the principal is proof prima facie of that fact; but this is not conclusive, and other evidence of the commission of the crime by the principal is admissible. State v. Mosley, 31 Kan. 355; Levy v. People, 80 N. Y. 327.

1. State v. Kirk, 10 Oregon, 505; State v. Mosley, 31 Kan. 355; State v. Cassady, 12 Kan. 550; Thomas v. State, 43 Ark. 149; Sutton v. State, 16 Tex. App. 490; State v. Mower, 25 N. W. Repr. (Iowa) 929; Minich v. People, 9 Pac. Repr. (Colo.) 4; Levy v. People, 80 N. Y. 327.

2. Faircloth v. State, 73 Ga. 426.

by another, receives, comforts, or assists him in order to enable him to escape from punishment, or rescues him from an arrest for crime, or, having him in custody for the crime, intentionally and voluntarily suffers him to escape, or opposes his apprehension : <sup>1</sup> provided that a married woman who receives, comforts, or relieves her husband, knowing him to have committed a crime, does not thereby become an accessory after the fact.<sup>2</sup>

1. Russell on Cr. (9th Am. ed.) 63-66. See Harrel v. State, 39 Miss. 702; Com. v. Filburn, 119 Mass. 297; People v. Gassaway, 28 Cal. 404; White v. People, 81 Ill. 323; Wren v. Commonwealth, 26 Gratt. (Va.) 952; Loyd v. State, 45 Ga. 321; State v. Payne, 1 Swan (Tenn.), 383; Com. v. Miller, 2 Ashm. (Pa.) 61.

An accessory after the fact, says Lord Hale, is where a person knowing the felony to be committed by another receives, relieves, comforts, or assists the felon. 1 Hale P. C. 618. Whether he be a principal, or an accessory before the fact. 2 Hawk. c. 29. s. 1; 3 P. Wms. 475. But a feme covert does not become an accessory by receiving her husband. This, however, is the only relationship which will excuse such an act, the husband being liable for receiving the wife. 1 Hale P. C. 621. So if a master receives his servant, or a servant his master, or a brother his brother, they are accessories, in the same manner as a stranger would be. Hawk. P. C. b. 2, c. 29, s. 34. But in some States, by statute, near relatives may aid each other without becoming accessories after the fact. 2 Cooley's Blackstone, 298 n. If a husband and wife knowingly receive a felon, it shall be deemed to be the act of the husband only. 1 Hale P. C. 621. But if the wife alone, the husband being ignorant of it, receive any other person being a felon, the wife is accessory, and not the husband. Id.

The accused must know that the defendant is guilty. Wren v. Commonwealth, 26 Gratt. (Va.) 952; Tully v. Commonwealth, 11 Bush (Ky.), 154; State v. Davis, 14 R. I. 281.

It must be shown that the criminal who was assisted committed the crime. Paston v. State, 12 Tex. App. 408; Wren v. Commonwealth, 26 Gratt. (Va.) 952. And that the crime is fully completed. See State v. Payne, 1 Swan (Tenn.), 383; Harrel v. State, 39 Miss. 702.

If A assaults B and mortally injures him, and C assists A before the death of B, C is not an accessory after the fact to the murder. Harrel v. State, 39 Miss. 702; Wren v. Commonwealth, 26 Gratt. (Va.) 952; 4 Black Com. 38.

A man who employs another person to harbor the principal may be convicted as an accessory after the fact, although he himself did no act to relieve or assist the principal. R. v. Jarvis, 2 Moo. & R. 40. So it appears to be settled that whoever rescues a felon imprisoned for the felony, or voluntarily suffers him to escape, is guilty as accessory. Hawk. P. C. b. 2, c. 29, s. 27. In the same manner, conveying instruments to a felon, to enable him to break jail, or to bribe the jailer to let him escape, make the party an accessory. But to relieve a felon in jail with clothes or other necessities is no offence, for the crime imputable to this species of accessory is the hindrance of public justice, by assisting the felon to escape the vengeance of the law. 4 Black. Com. 38.

One who receives money from the thief, knowing it to have been stolen, is not an accessory after the fact. People v. Shepardon, 48 Cal. 189.

A was convicted of concealing B, an alleged horse-thief. The case against B was reversed on error. Held, the judgment against A should also be reversed, without examination of errors assigned. Ray v. State, 13 Neb. 55.

One who conceals or aids a felon, not in order that he may escape arrest, trial, conviction, or punishment, but for some other purpose, cannot be convicted as an accessory after the fact under the Missouri Statutes. State v. Reed, 85 Mo. 194.

Merely suffering the principal to escape will not make the party an accessory after the fact, for it amounts at most but to a mere omission. 9 H. 4, st. 1; 1 Hale, 619. So if a person speak or write, in order to obtain a felon's pardon or deliverance. 26 Ass. 47. Or advise his friends to write to the witnesses not to appear against him at his trial, and they write accordingly. 3 Inst. 139; 1 Hale, 620. Or even if he himself agree for money not to give evidence against the felon. Moo. 8. Or know of the felony and do not discover it. 1 Hale, 371, 618. None of these acts will make a party an accessory after the fact.

2. R. v. Good, 1 C. & K. 185.

Where one assists in concealing stolen property and receives a part as his share he is guilty as accessory.<sup>1</sup>

17. Accessories after the Fact are Principals.—Every accessory after the fact to any crime is guilty of a substantive crime, for which he may be convicted, whether the principal has or has not been convicted, or is or is not amenable to justice, and for which he may be indicted either together with the principal or alone.<sup>2</sup>

18. Evidence.—In England and in most of the States it rests with the court whether the evidence of an accomplice may be received.<sup>3</sup> Upon the trial of an accessory before the fact, the

1. House v. State, 16 Tex. App. 25. Compare People v. Shepardson, 48 Cal. 189.

Goods were feloniously taken and removed in A's absence by his servant, and under A's direction; afterwards A was present and aided in secreting the goods. Held, that this was not larceny in A, who was a mere accessory. Norton v. People, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 137.

2. Loyd v. State, 45 Ga. 57; Wren v. Commonwealth, 26 Gratt. (Va.) 952; Sutton v. State, 16 Tex. App. 490.

Made so in Ohio by statute. Noland v. State, 19 Ohio St. 131.

In California, a receiver of stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen, is not an accessory after the fact. People v. Stakem, 40 Cal. 599; People v. Shepardson, 48 Cal. 189.

In Illinois, by statute, an accessory after the fact is not punishable as a principal. Reynolds v. People, 83 Ill. 479; s. c., 25 Am. Rep. 410.

Unless regulated by statute, the principal must be tried and convicted first. State v. Pybass, 4 Humph. (Tenn.) 442; Baron v. People, 1 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 246; U. S. v. Crane, 4 McL. (U. S.) 317; Stoops v. Commonwealth, 7 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 491; Com. v. Phillips, 16 Mass. 423; State v. Groff, 1 Murph. (N. Car.) 270.

3. Notwithstanding the common-law rule which formerly prevailed that witnesses who were interested in the inquiry were not admissible, an exception was always made in the case of an accomplice who was willing to give evidence; and this exception has been stated to be founded on necessity, since, if accomplices were not admitted, it would frequently be impossible to find evidence to convict the greatest offenders, Hawk P. C. b. 2, c. 46, s. 94. In the absence of statutory provision it is not a matter of course to admit an accomplice to give evidence on the trial, even though his testimony has been received by the committing magistrates; but an application to the court for the purpose must be made. 1 Phill. Ev. 91, 10th ed.; People v. Whipple, 9 Cow. (N. Y.), 707; Com. v. Brown, 130 Mass. 279. Compare Runnels v. State, 28 Ark. 121. The court usually considers not only whether the prisoners can be convicted without the evidence of the accomplice, but also whether they can be convicted with his evidence. If, therefore, there be sufficient evidence to convict without his testimony, the court will refuse to allow him to be admitted as a witness. So if there be no reasonable probability of a conviction even with his evidence, the court will refuse to admit him as a witness. Thus where several prisoners were committed as principals, and several as receivers, but no corroboration could be given as to the receivers against whom the evidence of the accomplice was required, Gurney, B., refused to permit one of the principals to become a witness. R. v. Mellor, Staff. Sum. Ass. 1833. See Ray v. State, 1 Greene (Iowa), 316; Wight v. Rindskopf, 43 Wis. 344. So in R. v. Saunders, Worc. Spr. Ass. 1842, on a motion to admit an accomplice, Patteson, J., said, "I doubt whether I shall allow him to be a witness; if you want him for the purpose of identification and there is no corroboration, that will not do." In R. v. Salt, Staff. Spr. Ass. 1843, where there was no corroboration of an accomplice, Wightman, J., refused to allow him to become a witness. 3 Russ. Cri. 602, 5th ed (j). And again in R. v. Sparks, 1 F. & F. 388, where the counsel for the prosecution applied for leave to call an accomplice who had pleaded guilty, Hill, J., refused to permit it until the other evidence had been given in order to see whether it was sufficient to corroborate that of the accomplice.

It is competent for the court to order the accomplice to be acquitted at the trial for the purpose of qualifying him as a witness for the State, or to accept a plea admitting guilt to such a degree as in the opinion of the court is requisite; or for record of the conviction of the principal is proof prima facie of that fact; but this is not conclusive, and other evidence of the commission of the crime by the principal is admissible.<sup>1</sup> The uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice is sufficient at common law to convict;<sup>2</sup> but this rule has been changed in some States by the court to assent to entering of a nolle prosequi. State v. Graham, 41 N. J. L. 15; s. c., 32 Am. Rep. 174. See State v. Lyon, 81 N. Car. 600; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 518; U. S. v. Ford, 9 Otto (U. S.), 594.

At the trial of an indictment against two persons jointly, if one of them offers himself as a witness, his testimony is competent against the other defendant, and may, by permission of the court, be introduced after the government has rested its case. Com. v. Brown, 130 Mass. 279.

It is within the discretion of the public prosecutor to determine whether or not the defendant, who is an accomplice, shall be permitted to become "State's evidence," and also whether, if he does, he is afterward entitled to exemption from further prosecution by reason of what he has done. State v. Runnels, 28 Ark. 121.

A defendant in a criminal action is competent and compellable by statute to testify for or against a co-defendant, provided his testimony does not criminate himself. State v. Smith, 84 N. Car. 705.

A was tried alone upon an indictment in which he was jointly indicted with B; the latter had never been arraigned, nor had a nolle prosequi been entered as to him. Upon the trial B was called as a witness on behalf of the people, no formal motion that he be admitted as a witness on their behalf having been made. Counsel for A objected that he was not a competent witness, having been jointly indicted with A for the offence with which the latter was charged. Held, that the objection was properly overruled and his testimony admissible. Taylor v. People, 12 Hun (N. Y.), 212, 63 N. Y. 143.

It makes no difference whether the accomplice has been convicted or not, or whether he be joined in the same indictment with the prisoner to be tried or not; provided he be not put upon his trial at the same time. Hawk P. C. b. 2, c. 46, s. 90; Taylor v. People, 12 Hun (N. Y.), 212. Where A, B, C, and D were indicted together, after plea, and before they were given in charge to the jury, Williams, J., allowed D to be removed from the dock and examined as a witness against his associates. R. v. Gerber, Temp. & M. 647. See also Winsor v. R., L. R. 1 Q. B. 390; 35 L. J., M. C. 161.

Where the accomplice has been joined in the indictment, and, before the case comes on, it appears that his evidence will be required, the usual practice is, before opening the case, to apply to have the accomplice acquitted. R. v. Rowland, Ry. & Moo. N. P. C. 401. See also a remark of Cockburn, C. J., in Winsor v. Reg., L. R. 1 Q. B. 390, approving of this course, where the prosecution call the witness, although, as pointed out by Lord Coleridge, in R. v. Bradlaugh, 15 Cox C. C. 217, he did not lay it down as a proposition of law that the accomplice could not be called without being first acquitted. Where the case has proceeded against all the prisoners, but no evidence appears against one of them, the court will, in its discretion, upon the application of the prosecutor, order that one to be acquitted for the purpose of giving evidence against the rest. R. v. Fraser, 1 McNally, 56. Where defendants are jointly indicted and jointly tried, they cannot be called for or against each other. R. v. Payne, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 349; Noyes v. State, 40 N. J. L. 429.

When Competent for Prisoner.—It is quite clear that an accomplice is a competent witness for the prisoner in conjunction with whom he himself committed the crime. R. v. Balmore, 1 Hale P. C. 305. But if he is charged in the same indictment, and is put upon his trial, he cannot be called. If he is charged in the same indictment, but not given in charge to the jury, and his trial is postponed, he may be called (without being acquitted) either for the prosecution or the defence; but if called for the prosecution, the better course is to take an acquittal; and if called for the defence, no acquittal need be taken. R. v. Bradlaugh, 15 Cox C. C. 217; R. v. Payne, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 349.

1. People v. Buckland, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 592; Levy v. People, 80 N. Y. 327; State v. Mosley, 31 Kans. 355; Arnold v. State, 9 Tex. App. 435; Keithler v. State, 10 Smedes & M. (Miss.) 192; State v. Ricker, 29 Me. 84; State v. Rand, 33 N. H. 216; Com. v. Knapp, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 477; State v. Duncan, 6 Ired. (N. Car.) 236; U. S. v. Hartwell, 3 Cliff. (U. S.) 221.

2. Wharton's Crim. Ev. § 441; Watson v. Commonwealth, 95 Pa. St. 418; statute,<sup>1</sup> and the general rule is that where a verdict is rendered exclusively on such testimony it should be set aside by the court, and it is the duty of the trial judge to advise the jury not to convict on the evidence of an accomplice who is uncorroborated as to the essential elements of the case.<sup>2</sup> It is not necessary that there

State v. Russell, 33 La. Ann. 135; Earl v. People, 73 Ill. 329; Collins v. People, 98 Ill. 584; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 105; State v. Potter, 42 Vt. 495; Stocking v. State, 7 Ind. 326; Johnson v. State, 2 Ind. 652; Dawley v. State, 4 Ind. 128; Johnson v. State, 65 Ind. 269; Ayers v. State, 88 Ind. 275; State v. Stebbins, 29 Conn. 463; State v. Watson, 31 Mo. 361; Sumpter v. State, 11 Fla. 247; Com. v. Holmes, 127 Mass. 424; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 391, note; State v. Hyer, 39 N. J. L. 598; Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 173; People v. O'Brien, 26 N. W. Repr. (Mich.) 795; White v. State, 52 Miss. 216; People v. Costello, 1 Denio (N. Y.), 83; People v. Davis, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 313; Lindsay v. People, 63 N. Y. 143 (but the rule is now changed by the N. Y. Penal Code); People v. Ryland, 28 Hun (N. Y.), 568; U. S. v. Neverson, 1 Mackey (D. C.), 152; U. S. v. Bicksler, 1 Mackey (D. C.), 341; State v. Holland, 83 N. Car. 624; s. c., 35 Am. Rep. 587; Olive v. State, 11 Neb. 1; Ingalls v. State, 48 Wis. 647.

1. Bowling v. Commonwealth, 79 Ky. 604; State v. Godell, 8 Oregon, 30; Lumpkin v. State, 68 Ala. 56; People v. Ryland, 28 Hun (N. Y.), 568; Myers v. State, 7 Tex. App. 640; Hannahan v. State, 7 Tex. App. 664; Heath v. State, 7 Tex. App. 464; Childers v. State, 52 Ga. 106; Middleton v. State, 52 Ga. 527.

2. Wharton's Crim. Ev. § 441; Zollicoffer v. State, 16 Tex. App. 312; Harrison v. State, 17 Tex. App. 442; Tisdale v. State, 17 Tex. App. 444; Marler v. State, 67 Ala. 55, 68 Ala. 580; Lumpkin v. State, 68 Ala. 56; Bowling v. Commonwealth, 79 Ky. 604; Craft v. Commonwealth, 80 Ky. 349; George v. State, 39 Miss. 570; White v. State, 52 Miss. 216; Fitzcox v. State, 52 Miss. 923; Hughes v. State, 58 Miss. 355; State v. Bayonne, 23 La. Ann. 78; Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 173; People v. Schweitzer, 23 Mich. 30; People v. Jenness, 5 Mich. 305; State v. Moran, 34 Iowa, 453; State v. Thornton, 26 Iowa, 79; State v. Schlagel, 19 Iowa, 169; State v. Jones, 64 Mo. 391; State v. Watson, 31 Mo. 361; State v. Kellerman, 14 Kans. 135; Craft v. State, 3 Kans. 450; State v. Litchfield, 58 Me. 267; State v. Cunningham, 31 Me. 355; Com. v. Scott, 123 Mass. 222; Com. v. Holmes, 127 Mass. 424; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 391; Com. v. Snow, 111 Mass.

411; Com. v. Price, 10 Gray (Mass.), 472; Com. v. Bosworth, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 397; State v. Williamson, 42 Conn. 261; State v. Wolcott, 21 Conn. 272; State v. Stebbins, 29 Conn. 463; State v. Howard, 32 Vt. 380; Dunn v. People, 29 N. Y. 523; Lindsay v. People, 63 N. Y. 143; People v. Evans, 40 N. Y. 1; People v. Costello, 1 Denio (N. Y.), 83; Coates v. People, 4 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 662; Carroll v. Commonwealth, 84 Pa. St. 107; State v. Hyer, 39 N. J. L. 598; Powers v. State, 44 Ga. 209; Brown v. Commonwealth, 2 Leigh (Va.), 769; Allen v. State, 10 Ohio St. 287; Ulmer v. State, 14 Ind. 52; Collins v. People, 98 Ill. 584; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 105; Earl v. People, 73 Ill. 329; Cross v. People, 47 Ill. 152; State v. Holland, 83 N. Car. 624; State v. Brown, 3 Strob. L. (S. Car.) 508; Sumpter v. State, 11 Fla. 247; Flanagan v. State, 25 Ark. 92.

The state of the law as to the corroboration of accomplices is somewhat peculiar. It has been repeatedly laid down that a conviction on the testimony of an accomplice uncorroborated is legal. The point was considered by the twelve judges, and so decided in R. v. Attwood, 1 Lea, 464, and again in R. v. Durham, Id. 478. And that the rule is so has also been acknowledged by Lord Hale, 1 Hale P. C. 304, 305; Lord Ellenborough, R. v. Jones, 2 Campb. 132; Lord Denman, R. v. Hastings, 7 C. & P. 152; Alderson, B., R. v. Wilks, Id. 273; Gurney, J., R. v. Jarvis, 2 Moo. & R. 40; and lastly, by the Court of Criminal Appeal, in R. v. Stubbs, 25 L. J., M. C. 16. See also R. v. Boyes, 1 B. & S. 311.

But while the law is thus fully established, the practice of judges is almost invariably to advise juries not to convict upon the evidence of an accomplice who is uncorroborated, and sometimes judges, where the testimony of the accomplice is the only evidence, take upon themselves to direct an acquittal of the prisoner. Of course it is always proper for a judge in the exercise of his discretion to advise a jury to acquit the prisoner in any case, but it is submitted that it is not usually his province to direct an acquittal unless there be no legal evidence against the prisoner, which in the face of the above decisions cannot be the case if an accomplice has given evidence against him.

should be other evidence which would of itself warrant a conviction.<sup>1</sup>

Accomplices admitted as witnesses for the prosecution are not of right entitled to pardon. The district attorney has no authority to exempt such accomplice from prosecution.<sup>2</sup>

The almost absolute terms, moreover, in which judges state it to be their practice to advise juries not to convict in such cases leave it impossible to conceive in what case the principle so frequently acknowledged in the cases above quoted is to receive any application. And lastly, the practice of not permitting the accomplice to be called until it appears that his evidence can be satisfactorily corroborated can only be justified on the assumption that on his evidence, uncorroborated, a legal conviction could not be founded. Thus the law remains in that anomalous state in which the bare existence of a principle is acknowledged, but which principle is constantly disapproved of and frequently violated. As the law now stands, it is universally agreed by all the authorities that, if the accomplice were uncorroborated, a judge would be wrong who did not advise the jury not to convict; whereas the Court of Criminal Appeal would be bound to pronounce an opinion that a judge who did not so advise them was right. Roscoe's Crim. Ev., 10th ed. 132.

In Collins v. People, 98 Ill. 584; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 105, Scholfield, J., after reviewing the English cases, said: "The tendency with us, at present, is to arbitrarily exclude as little as possible, but to listen and give credence to whatever tends to establish the truth. The innocent should not be convicted, nor should the guilty escape punishment, by reason of any merely arbitrary rule preventing the free and full exercise of the judgment as to the truthfulness or untruthfulness of testimony, and the reliance to be placed upon it in the trial of cases. In many, probably in most, cases, the evidence of an accomplice, uncorroborated in material matters, will not satisfy the honest judgment beyond a reasonable doubt; and then it is clearly insufficient to authorize a verdict of guilty. But there may frequently occur other cases, where, from all the circumstances, the honest judgment will be as thoroughly satisfied from the evidence of the accomplice of the guilt of the defendant as it is possible it could be satisfied from human testimony; and in such case it would be an outrage upon the administration of justice to acquit."

Although it is not usual to suffer a conviction upon the wholly uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice, and juries are advised not to convict without a confirmation as to the material facts; still, if the jury are fully convinced of the truth of the statements of a witness thus situated, they may convict upon his testimony alone. Lindsay v. People, 63 N. Y. 143.

If the court does not advise the jury to acquit the defendant, when the only evidence is the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, it is not ground for a reversal on appeal. State v. Potter, 42 Vt. 495.

1. Lumpkin v. State, 68 Ala. 56; Smith v. State, 59 Ala. 104; Lockett v. State, 63 Ala. 5; Marler v. State, 67 Ala. 55; Partee v. State, 67 Ga. 570; Com. v. Bosworth, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 397; Com. v. Hayes, 140 Mass. 366; State v. Litchfield, 58 Me. 267; State v. Potter, 42 Vt. 495; State v. Russell, 33 La. Ann. 135; Watson v. Commonwealth, 95 Pa. St. 418; State v. Watson, 31 Mo. 361; State v. Stebbins, 29 Conn. 463; People v. Costello, 1 Denio (N. Y.), 418, 424. Compare People v. Evans, 40 N. Y. 1; U. S. v. Harries, 2 Bond. (U. S.) 311; State v. Allen, 57 Iowa, 431.

But it must be corroborated by evidence tending to connect the defendant with the commission of the offence. Marler v. State, 67 Ala. 55; Com. v. Holmes, 127 Mass. 424; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 391; McCalla v. State, 66 Ga. 346; Kilrow v. Commonwealth, 89 Pa. St. 480; State v. Hyer, 39 N. J. L. 598; People v. Courtney, 28 Hun (N. Y.), 589; Coleman v. State, 44 Tex. 109; State v. Thornton, 26 Iowa, 80; People v. Davis, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 309; Watson v. Commonwealth, 95 Pa. St. 418; Cohea v. State, 11 Tex. App. 622; State v. Hennessy, 55 Iowa, 299; State v. Allen, 57 Iowa, 431.

Voluntary confessions are sufficient to corroborate the testimony of an accomplice. Partee v. State, 67 Ga. 570.

2. U. S. v. Ford (Whiskey Cases), 99 U. S. 594. See Com. v. Woodside, 105 Mass. 597; Com. v. Brown, 103 Mass. 422; State v. Graham, 41 N. J. L. 15; State v. Lyon, 81 N. Car. 600; U. S. v. Lee, 4 McLean (U. S.), 103. Compare Harden v. State, 12 Tex. App. 186; People v. Bruzzo, 24 Cal. 41.

Roscoe (Cr. Ev. 10th ed. 132): Although

Where an accomplice testifies as a witness, a liberal and full cross-examination, for the purpose of testing the truth of his statements, should be permitted.<sup>1</sup>

Lord Hale thought that if a man had a promise of pardon if he gave evidence against one of his confederates, this disabled his testimony—2 Hale P. C. 280—yet it was fully settled, before the statutes were passed which removed the disabilities of witnesses on the ground of interest, that such a promise, however it might affect the credibility of the witness, would not destroy his competency. R. v. Tonge, Kelynge 18. See State v. Cook, 23 La. Ann. 45; Casey v. State, 37 Ark. 67.

Where an accomplice, after making a confession upon the understanding that he is not to be prosecuted, refuses to testify, his confession may be given in evidence against him on his trial. Com. v. Knapp, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 477; Com. v. Price, 10 Gray (Mass.), 472; U. S. v. Ford, 99 U. S. 594. See Wight v. Rindskopf, 43 Wis. 349; People v. Whipple, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 707; Runnels v. State, 28 Ark. 121; Alderman v. People, 4 Mich. 414; State v. Condry, 5 Jones L. (N. Car.) 418.

If an accomplice be convicted after being made a witness by the State and received as such by the court, and after having made an ingenuous confession, such accomplice has an equitable claim to a judicial recommendation to the mercy of the pardoning power which cannot be withheld without a violation of an established rule of practice. State v. Graham, 41 N. J. L. 15; s. c., 32 Am. Rep. 174; State v. Lyon, 81 N. Car. 600; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 518; U. S. v. Ford (Whiskey Cases), 9 Otto (U. S.), 594. Compare Com. v. Dabney, 1 Rob. (Va.) 696; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 717.

Situation of an Accomplice when called as a Witness.—Where a receiver discovered the principals in a felony under a promise of favor, and also disclosed another felony of the same kind under an impression that by the course he had taken he had protected himself from the consequences, Coleridge, J., recommended the counsel for the prosecutor not to proceed with the indictment against the receiver for such other felony, adding, however, that if it was persisted in he was bound to try the case. The recommendation of the learned judge being yielded to, an acquittal was taken. R. v. Garside, 2 Lew. C. C. 38.

A prisoner who, after a false representation made to him by a constable in jail that his confederates had been taken into custody, made a confession, and was admitted as a witness against his associates, but on the trial denied all knowledge of the subject, was afterwards tried and convicted upon his own confession; and the conviction was upheld by all the judges. R. v. Burley, 2 Stark. Ev. 13, 3d ed. So where in a case of burglary an accomplice, who had been allowed to go before the grand jury as a witness for the crown, upon the trial pretended to be ignorant of the facts on which he had before given evidence, Coleridge, J., ordered a bill to be preferred against him, to which he pleaded guilty, and judgment of death was recorded. R. v. Moore, 2 Lew. C. C. 37. So where an accomplice, after making a full disclosure before the committing magistrate, refused when before the grand jury to give any evidence at all, Wightman, J., ordered his name to be inserted in the bill of indictment, and he was convicted on his own confession. R. v. Holtham, Staff. Spr. Ass. 1843, 3 Russ. Cri. 601, 5th ed. (h). So where an accomplice who was called as a witness against several prisoners gave evidence which showed that all, except one, who was apparently the leader of the gang, were present at a robbery, but refused to give any evidence as to that one being present, and the jury found all the prisoners guilty, Parke, B., thinking that the accomplice had refused to state that the particular prisoner was present in order to screen him, ordered the accomplice to be kept in custody till the next assizes, and then tried. R. v. Stokes, Staff. Spr. Ass. 1837, 3 Russ. Cri. 601, 5th ed. (h). The prisoner made a statement to a constable, and then repeated it to a magistrate upon oath. He then made a further statement on oath, adding, "I came here to save myself." Subsequently he refused to prosecute. It was held by five judges out of nine that both the statements made by him were receivable in evidence against him; and by seven out of nine that the first statement was admissible. R. v. Gillis, 11 Cox C. C. 69.

1. Lee v. State, 21 Ohio St. 151; see Com. v. Price, 10 Gray (Mass.), 472; Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 173.

When the evidence of an accomplice is corroborated, he occupies the same attitude of any other witness so far as the methods of contradicting or impeaching him is concerned. Craft v. Commonwealth, 81 Ky. 349.

The testimony of a witness who was present when a homicide was committed, but who did not in any way participate therein, but for a time thereafter concealed the fact, is sufficient without other evidence to authorize conviction.<sup>1</sup>

Evidence cannot be legally admitted as competent and sufficient corroboration which does not tend to confirm the testimony of the accomplice upon a point material to the issue, in the sense that it tends to prove the guilt of the defendant.<sup>2</sup>

The testimony of the accomplice should be corroborated as to the person of the prisoner against whom he speaks.<sup>3</sup>

While a conviction cannot be had upon the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice in the crime, without something else deposed by other witnesses to connect the defendant with it, yet it is impracticable to lay down any rule as to the precise amount of evidence which is requisite to sustain the accomplice's account identifying the defendant as one of the criminals,<sup>4</sup> further than

1. Lowery v. State, 72 Ga. 649.

2. Com. v. Holmes, 127 Mass. 424; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 391; Com. v. Bosworth, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 397; State v. Kyer, 39 N. J. L. 598; Kilrow v. Commonwealth, 80 Pa. St. 480; Territory v. Minney, 2 Pac. Repr. (N. Mex.) 357. See State v. Howard, 32 Vt. 380; State v. Wolcott, 21 Conn. 282; Lindsay v. People, 63 N. Y. 143; State v. Kellerman, 14 Kans. 135.

3. Watson v. Commonwealth, 95 Pa. St. 418; Carroll v. Commonwealth, 84 Pa. St. 107; Com. v. Drake, 124 Mass. 21; State v. Wolcott, 21 Conn. 271; State v. Smalls, 11 S. Car. 262; Bell v. State, 73 Ga. 572; McCalla v. State, 66 Ga. 346; Middleton v. State, 52 Ga. 527; Childers v. State, 52 Ga. 106; Craft v. Commonwealth, 80 Ky. 349; Hoyle v. State, 4 Tex. App. 239; State v. Adams, 20 Kan. 311; State v. Hing, 16 Nev. 307; State v. Allen, 57 Iowa, 431; State v. Lawlor, 28 Minn. 216; State v. Odell, 8 Oregon, 30. Compare State v. Watson, 31 Mo. 361.

4. Bell v. State, 73 Ga. 572.

Proof of combination must be given before acts and declarations are admissible. People v. Parish, 4 Denio (N. Y.), 153.

Giving or refusing an instruction that conviction may be had on unsupported testimony of accomplice is in discretion of the court below, and the appellate court will not reverse its action in that respect. Ingalls v. State, 48 Wis. 647.

It is discretionary with the court to direct an acquittal on corroborative testimony of an accomplice. That an accomplice was induced to testify by an offer of immunity only goes to his credibility. Black v. State, 59 Wis. 471; Olive v. State, 11 Neb. 1.

Whether a witness is an accomplice is for the jury. Under Gen. Stat. Minn. 1878, c. 73, sec. 104, corroborating evidence, without the aid of the testimony of the accomplice, must connect the defendant with the offence, but it need not be sufficient alone to establish his guilt. State v. Lawlor, 28 Minn. 216.

A thirteen-year-old boy, who, under threats and coercion of another, takes part in the commission of a felony is not an accomplice, and his testimony is sufficient to sustain a conviction without corroboration. People v. Miller, 6 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 99.

A co-conspirator is a competent witness. U. S. v. Sacia, 2 Fed. Repr. 754.

Admissions of one of several charged as conspirators are not admissible unless made during the existence of the conspiracy and in aid of the common design. Johnson v. Miller, 63 Iowa, 529.

Declarations of a co-conspirator made before the purposes of the conspiracy have been accomplished are competent. State v. Weaver, 57 Iowa, 730.

Declarations of one of a combination for an illegal object are admissible against the others, when the combination and intent is clearly established. Waterbury v. Sturtevant, 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 353.

Where two unite in an undertaking to defraud, the admissions of one are competent against both, although there is no evidence of conspiracy. Riehl v. Evansville Found. Assoc., 104 Ind. 70.

Two defendants charged with fraudulently obtaining property by prearrangement and fraud of one not denied, proof of subsequent participation in the fraud and its fruits by the other is sufficient proof of combination. Lincoln v. Claffin, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 132.

that there must be other evidence sufficient to satisfy the jury of the fact.

It is not necessary that the testimony of the accomplice should be corroborated as to every material fact. State v. Hennesy, 55 Iowa, 299; State v. Allen, 57 Iowa, 431.

The wife of a convict in a penitentiary not connected with the charge is a competent witness to corroborate an accomplice. State v. McIntire, 58 Iowa, 572. See Woods v. State, 76 Ala. 35; s. c., 52 Am. Rep. 314; Dill v. State, 1 Tex. App. 286; Haskins v. People, 16 N. Y. 344; U. S. v. Horn, 5 Blatchf. (U. S.) 102.

Where two were jointly indicted for a burglary, and the theory was that one had broken in and entered the building while the other was present abetting, held, that an admission of the one supposed to have broken in and entered has no force as evidence against his co-defendant. People v. Stevens, 47 Mich. 411.

Where two persons were jointly indicted for murder and there was no evidence of a conspiracy prior to the conflict resulting in the homicide, upon the separate trial of one testimony of threats made by the other some months before the homicide held incompetent. State v. Weaver, 54 Iowa, 730.

Declarations of an alleged conspiracy cannot be admitted until after proof of the conspiracy, and the declarations must have been made during the progress of the conspiracy and in furtherance of its objects. U. S. v. Gunnell, 3 Cent. Repr. (D. C.) 764.

Nature of Corroboration.—Mr. Roscoe says (Cr. Ev. 10th ed. 133): Another point which arises with respect to the corroboration of accomplices, and upon which the authorities are by no means so well agreed, is as to what is the nature of the corroboration which ought to be required. We say required, but it is rather difficult to say by what or how the requirement is to be exacted, for by law no corroboration is required at all. See R. v. Gallagher, 15 Cox C. C. 292. The practice, however, is for the present purpose much more important than the principle, and we shall, therefore, consider how far the evidence ought to be corroborated.

It must be recollected that an accomplice is in most cases present at the commission of the offence; and even if not so, he may be presumed to be on those terms of intimacy with the accused which would render his knowledge of all the circumstances attending the commission of the crime extremely probable. There may be many witnesses, therefore, who give testimony which agrees with that of the accomplice, but which, if it does not serve to identify the accused parties, is no corroboration of the accomplice; the real danger being that the accomplice should relate the circumstances truly, and at the same time attribute a share in the transaction to an innocent person.

It may indeed be taken that it is almost the universal opinion that the testimony of the accomplice should be corroborated as to the person of the prisoner against whom he speaks. This was so held by Patteson, J., in R. v. Addis, 6 C. & P. 388, and again in R. v. Kelsey, 2 Lew. 45; by Williams, J., in R. v. Webb, 6 C. & P. 595; by Alderson, B., in R. v. Wilks, 7 C. & P. 272; and by Lord Abinger, C.B., in R. v. Farlar, 8 C. & P. 106.

And in the later case of R. v. Stubbs, 25 L. J., M. C. 16, Parke, B., said, "My practice always has been to tell the jury not to convict the prisoner, unless the evidence of the accomplice be confirmed, not only as to the circumstances of the crime, but also as to the person of the prisoner;" and Cresswell, J., added, "You may take it for granted that the accomplice was at the commission of the offence, and may be corroborated as to the facts; but that has no tendency to show that the parties accused were there."

What appears to be required is that there should be some fact deposed to independently altogether of the evidence of the accomplice, which, taken by itself, leads to the inference not only that a crime has been committed, but that the prisoner is implicated in it. Thus upon an indictment for receiving a sheep knowing it to have been stolen, an accomplice proved that a brother of the prisoner and himself had stolen two sheep, and that the brother gave one of them to the prisoner, who carried it into the house in which the prisoner and his father lived, and the accomplice stated where the skins were hid. On the houses of the prisoner's father and the accomplice being searched, a quantity of mutton was found in each, which had formed parts of two sheep corresponding in size with those stolen, and the skins were found in the place named by the accomplice. Patteson, J., held that this was sufficient; the finding of the mutton in the possession of the prisoner in itself raising an implication of guilt on his part, which the testimony of the accomplice confirmed. R. v. Birkett, 8 C. & P. 732. It is not necessary that the accomplice should be corroborated in every particular; but there must be a sufficient amount of confirmation to satisfy the jury of the truth of his story. R. v. Gallagher, 15 Cox C. C. 292.

Corroboration may be supplied by circumstantial evidence.<sup>1</sup> If any evidence is admitted as competent by way of corroborating an accomplice, so as to make it safe for the jury to convict, which is

The point about which the opinions of judges appear to have fluctuated is as to whether where several are indicted, and the evidence of the accomplice is confirmed as to some only and not as to others, the jury ought to be advised to acquit those against whom there is no corroboration. On the one hand it is strongly urged in a note by Mr. Starkie to the case of R. v. Dawber, 3 Stark. N. P. C. 34 (n), that a witness, if believed at all, must be believed in toto, and he cannot be considered as speaking the truth as to some of the prisoners and not as to the others. The view of Mr. Starkie is supported by the case to which the note is appended; there, on the trial of several prisoners, an accomplice who gave evidence was confirmed in his testimony with regard to some of the prisoners, but not as to the rest; Bayley, J., informed the jury that if they were satisfied by the confirmatory evidence that the accomplice was a credible witness, they might act upon his testimony with respect to others of the defendants, though as far as his evidence affected them he had received no confirmation; and all the defendants were convicted. But to the argument used by Mr. Starkie it may be answered that the whole practice of requiring corroboration is founded on the supposition that there are degrees of credibility, and that an accomplice, though not absolutely incredible, is only credible when confirmed; and that he will only speak the truth in part is just as probable as that he will not speak the truth at all. And this is the view that has been taken in the majority of the cases; thus, in R. v. Wells, M. & M. 326, where an indictment was preferred against several as principals and accessories, the case was proved by the testimony of an accomplice, who was confirmed as to the accessories, but not as to the principal; Littledale, J., advised the jury that the case ought not to be considered as proved against the principal, and that all the prisoners ought, therefore, to be acquitted. So in R. v. Morris, 7 C. & P. 270, on an indictment against A as principal and B as receiver, where the evidence of an accomplice was corroborated as against A, but not as against B, Alderson, B., thought that it was not sufficient; and in R. v. Stubbs, 25 L. J., M. C. 16, Jervis, C. J., said, "There is another point to be noticed: when an accomplice speaks as to the guilt of three prisoners, and his testimony is confirmed as to two of them only, it is proper, I think, for the judge to advise the jury that it is not safe to act on his testimony as to the third person in respect of whom he is not confirmed; for the accomplice may speak truly as to all the facts of the case, and at the same time in his evidence substitute the third person for himself in his narrative of the transaction."

By whom to be corroborated.—The practice of requiring the evidence of an accomplice to be confirmed appears to apply equally when two or more accomplices are produced against a prisoner. In a case where two accomplices spoke distinctly to the prisoner, Littledale, J., told the jury that if their statements were the only evidence, he could not advise them to convict the prisoner, adding that it was not usual to convict on the evidence of one accomplice without confirmation, and that in his opinion it made no difference whether there were more accomplices than one. R. v. Noakes, 5 C. & P. 326. Sed qu. In one case it was held by Mr. Justice Park that a confirmation by the wife of an accomplice was insufficient, as the wife and the accomplice must be considered as one for this purpose. R. v. Neale, 7 C. & P. 168. See also R. v. Jellyman, 6 C. & P. 604. See note 4. ante, p. 79.

1. When, in addition to the confession of a defendant, there is proof of circumstances which, although they may have an innocent construction, are nevertheless calculated to suggest the commission of the crime charged, and for the explanation of which the confession furnishes the key, the case cannot be taken from the jury for a non-compliance with the statute—§ 395, Code Crim. Pro.—which declares that a defendant's confession "is not sufficient to warrant a conviction without additional proof that the crime charged has been committed." People v. Jaehne, 7 East'n Repr. (N. Y.) 290.

not legally entitled to that effect, it is a subject for exception and ground for a new trial.<sup>1</sup>

A confession is to be treated as evidence of the corpus delicti; in other words, as competent proof of the body of the crime, though insufficient without corroboration to warrant a conviction.<sup>2</sup>

Evidence of good character is always admissible in defence.<sup>3</sup>

ACCIDENT. See ACT OF GOD; CONTRACTS; CARRIERS; EQUITY; HOMICIDE; MISTAKE; MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS; NEGLIGENCE; RAILROADS; TRESPASS; SHIPPING.

1. Accident at Law.

2. Accident in Equity.

1. At Law—Definition.—An accident is an event from an unknown cause, or an unusual and unexpected event from a known cause; a chance, or casualty.<sup>4</sup> To constitute an accident, in the legal sense of the word, the casualty must be such as the defendant could not have avoided by the use of the kind and degree of care necessary to the exigency and in the circumstances in which he was placed.<sup>5</sup>

Test of Liability.—The test of liability for the result of an accident turns upon the fact whether the person causing the accident was guilty of negligence or not. If so, he is liable for the result of his negligence, unless the plaintiff was also guilty of contributory negligence; but if no negligence can be shown, and the accident occurred in the prosecution of a lawful act, no action, civil or criminal, can be supported for an injury arising therefrom.<sup>6</sup>

Any fact or circumstance which tends to corroborate any material part of the testimony of an accomplice is admissible for what it is worth, although it may not inculcate the accused on trial. State v. Maney, 2 N. Eng. Repr. (Conn.) 926.

In Roberts v. State, 55 Ga. 220, it is ruled that "light circumstances, such as constant and easy access to the place whence the goods are stolen, the defendant's presence thereabouts when the goods are missed, the fact that he drove a single dray there, and that such a dray was seen being unloaded, about the break of day, where the goods were found, may be weighed by the jury as corroborating proof."

1. Com. v. Holmes, 127 Mass. 424; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 391; Com. v. Bosworth, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 397.

2. People v. Jaehne, 7 East'n Repr. (N. Y.) 290.

3. U. S. v. Gunnell, 3 Cent. Repr. (D. C.) 764.

Authorities for Accessory.—Bishop's Crim. Law; Wharton's Crim. Law; Desty's Crim. Law; Wharton's Crim. Evidence; Roscoe's Crim. Evidence.

4. Thus, if a railroad-bed, engine, and cars are in good order, and the engineer and other attendants are skilful and careful, and yet the rail breaks and the train is crushed, and the employees and passengers are killed, that is an unusual and unexpected event from a known cause, and therefore an accident. But if the track is out of order and the engine worn and unmanageable, and on account thereof there is the like result as above stated on the good road, that is not an unusual and unexpected event, but a usual and expected event from such a cause: it is not an accident, but it is negligence. Crutchfield v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 76 N. Car. 320. An accident may happen from an unknown cause; but it is not essential that the cause should be unknown. It may be an unusual result of a known cause, and therefore unexpected by the party. Schneider v. Provident L. Ins. Co., 24 Wis. 28; s. c., 1 Am. Rep. 157. It does not include the ordinary misfortunes in business. Langdon v. Bowen, 43 Vt. 512.

5. Brown v. Kendall, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 292. See Chase v. Barrett, 4 Paige (N. Y.), 148; Jones v. Woodhull, 1 Root (Conn.), 298; Brown v. Elliott, 17 N. J. Eq. 353; Morris v. Platt, 32 Com. 75; Schneider v. Provident Ins. Co., 24 Wis. 28.

6. In Brown v. Kendall, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 292, Shaw, C. J., laid down the rule that "the plaintiff must come prepared with evidence to show that the intention was unlawful or that the defendant was in fault." Compare Morgan v. Cox, 22 Mo. 373; s. c., 66 Am. Dec. 623; Conway v. Reed, 66 Mo. 355.

This rule applies to injuries to the person;<sup>1</sup> to property, as by the leakage of water from a neighboring dam or reservoir;<sup>2</sup> the

1. The defendant having interfered to part his dog and the plaintiff's, which were fighting, in raising his stick for that purpose accidentally struck the plaintiff in the eye, severely injuring him. Held, that he was not liable. Brown v. Kendall, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 292.

The defendant threw a stone at plaintiff's daughter and put out her eye. It appeared that the injury was accidental. Held, the plaintiff could not recover. Harvey v. Dunlop, Hill & D. Sup. (N. Y.) 193.

One hunting in a wilderness is not bound to anticipate the presence of another man, and he is not liable for an injury caused unintentionally by him to a person of whose presence he was not aware. Bizzell v. Booker, 16 Ark. 308.

The defendant injured a child on the highway by running over him. Held, that, under the circumstances, he was not liable. Hartfield v. Roper, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 615. See HOMICIDE.

Several persons being together had a playful altercation, during which one of them, in sport, pointed an old pistol, thought to be unloaded, at another. It went off and killed the latter. Held, that the person causing the death was not guilty of involuntary manslaughter. Robertson v. State, 2 Lea (Tenn.) 239.

W., being on board a ship, and B. in a boat, alongside, had a dispute about payment for some goods, both being intoxicated. W., to get rid of B., pushed away the boat with his foot; B., reaching out to lay hold of a barge to prevent his boat from drifting away, overbalanced himself, fell into the water, and was drowned. Held, W. was not guilty of manslaughter. R. v. Waters, 6 C. & P. 328.

The defendant was an ignorant quack who undertook to cure a man and gave him emetics until he died. Held, that if the prisoner acted with an honest intention and expectation of curing the deceased by this treatment, although death, unexpected by him, was the consequence, he was not guilty of manslaughter. Com. v. Thompson, 6 Mass. 134.

Plaintiff, in defending himself from an assault, wounded a bystander. Held, not liable. Morris v. Platt, 32 Com. 75. Compare Welch v. Durand, 36 Conn. 182; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 55.

A child came upon the defendant's premises and fell into an uncovered cistern. Held, not liable. Hargreaves v. Decon, 25 Mich. 1.

See, generally, R. v. Murray, 5 Cox C. 509; R. v. Mastin, 6 C. & P. 396; R. v. Dalloway, 2 Cox C. 273; R. v. Williamson, 3 C. & P. 635; R. v. Spenser, 10 Cox C. C. 525; In re Finney, 12 Cox C. C. 625; R. v. Macleod, 12 Cox C. C. 535; R. v. Noakes, 4 F. & F. 921; R. v. Van Butchell, 3 C. & P. 629; Kohn v. Lovett, 44 Ga. 251; Roulston v. Clark, 3 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 366; Zoebisich v. Tarbell, 10 Allen (Mass.), 385; Frost v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 10 Allen (Mass.), 387; Victory v. Baker, 67 N. Y. 366; Murray v. McLean, 57 Ill. 378; Henkel v. Murr., 31 Hun (N. Y.), 28; Carter v. Columbia, etc., R. Co., 19 Shand (S. Car.), 20; s. c., 45 Am. Rep. 754; Cahill v. Layton, 57 Wis. 600; s. c., Am. Rep. 46; Ex parte Stell, 4 Hughes (U. S.), 157; Miles v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 4 Hughes (U. S.), 172; Hounsell v. Smyth, 7 C. B. N. S. 731; Stone v. Jackson, 16 C. B. 199; Bolch v. Smith, 7 Hurl. & N. 736; Gautret v. Egerton, L. R. 2 C. P. 371; Beatty v. Gilmore, 16 Pa. St. 463; Bush v. Johnston, 23 Pa. St. 209; Beach v. Frankenburg, 4 W. Va. 712; Beardsley v. Swann, 4 McLean (U. S.), 333; Burton v. Davis, 15 La. Ann. 448; Hannon v. Agnew, 96 N. Y. 439; Converse v. Walker, 30 Hun (N. Y.), 566; Sikes v. Sheldon, 58 Iowa, 744; Wright v. Clark, 50 Vt. 130; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 496; Gillespie v. McGowan, 100 Pa. St. 144; s. c., 45 Am. Rep. 365; Yarnall v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 726; s. c., 75 Mo. 575; Lary v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 78 Ind. 323; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 572; Union S. T. Co. v. Rourke, 10 Ill. App. 474; Hearne v. St. Charles St. R. Co., 34 La. Ann. 160.

2. Where water from a newly constructed reservoir broke through some old vertical shafts apparently filled with earth and flooded a mine, which ran to passages connected with the old shafts, held, that the constructor of the reservoir was liable for damage caused. Fletcher v. Rylands, L. R. 1 Exch. 265. Blackburn, J., said: "We think the true rule of law is that the person who, for his own purposes, brings on his lands and collects and keeps there anything likely to do mischief if it escapes is prima facie answerable for all the damage which is the natural consequence of its escape." This doctrine was repudiated in Losee v.

explosion of a steam-boiler;<sup>1</sup> sparks emitted from a steam-dredge, causing neighboring property to take fire;<sup>2</sup> or from a steamboat;<sup>3</sup> or a locomotive;<sup>4</sup> or from the use of a steam-whistle;<sup>5</sup> or the noises of a passing train;<sup>6</sup> or from the use of fire upon one's premises;<sup>7</sup> or lights;<sup>8</sup> or injuries resulting from the use of horses;<sup>9</sup> or by animals fera natura,<sup>10</sup> or domestic ani-

Buchanan, 51 N. Y. 476; s. c., 10 Am. Rep. 623, where it was held that one who erected upon his premises a steam boiler, having in it no defect known to him or discoverable by the application of known tests, and who operated it with care and skill, was not answerable to an adjacent proprietor for damages caused by its explosion. "Here, if one builds a dam, etc., and the lands of a neighbor are thus flooded, he is not liable for the damage without proof of some fault or negligence on his part." To the same effect are Garland v. Towne, 55 N. H. 57, and Marshall v. Wellwood, 38 N. J. L. 339. Compare Ball v. Nye, 99 Mass. 582; Wilson v. New Bedford, 108 Mass. 261; Gorham v. Gross, 125 Mass. 232; Cahill v. Eastman, 18 Minn. 324.

1. Losee v. Buchanan, 51 N. Y. 476; s. c., 10 Am. Rep. 623; Spencer v. Campbell, 9 Watts & S. (Pa.) 32; U. S. v. Taylor, 5 McLean (U. S.), 22; Marshall v. Wellwood, 38 N. J. L. 339; R. v. Gregory, 4 F. & F. 153. Compare Fay v. Davidson, 13 Minn. 523.

2. Hinds v. Barton, 25 N. Y. 544; Teall v. Barton, 40 Barb. (N. Y.) 137.

3. Cook v. Champlain Trans. Co., 1 Den. (N. Y.) 137. See Read v. Morse, 34 Wis. 315; Crandall v. Goodrich Trans. Co., 16 Fed. Repr. 75.

4. The test in the case of a chartered railroad company is whether in using its engines it fails in the diligence good specialists in this department are accustomed to exercise, and the burden is on the plaintiff to show negligence. Flynn v. San Francisco R., 40 Cal. 14; Rood v. R., 18 Barb. (N. Y.) 80; Read. R. v. Yeiser, 8 Pa. St. 366; Aldridge v. R., 3 M. & G. 515; Morris & E. R. Co. v. State, 36 N. J. 553; Field v. N. Y. Cent. R. Co., 32 N. Y. 339; 4 West. Jur. 333; 5 Am. Law Rev. 208.

This rule is otherwise as to unchartered companies where damage caused by the emission of sparks is in itself evidence of negligence. Jones v. Festiniog R. Co., 3 Q. B. 733.

5. Hahn v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 51 Cal. 605.

6. Coy v. Utica, etc., R. Co., 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 643; Phila., etc., R. Co. v. Stinger, 78 Pa. St. 219; Hall v. Brown, 54 N. H. 495; Norton v. Eastern R. Co., 113 Mass. 366; Favor v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 114 Mass. 350; Culp v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 17 Kan. 475; Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Thomas, 60 Ind. 107.

7. In Clark v. Foot, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 422, the rule is thus laid down: "If A sets fire to his own fallow ground, as he may lawfully do, which communicates to and fires the woodland of B. his neighbor, no action lies against A, unless there was some negligence or misconduct in him or his servant."

Tourtellot v. Rosebrook, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 460; Barnard v. Poor, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 378; Batchelder v. Heagan, 18 Me. 32; Hewey v. Nourse, 54 Me. 256; Fraser v. Tupper, 29 Vt. 409; Miller v. Martin, 16 Mo. 508; Dewey v. Leonard, 14 Minn. 153; Bizzell v. Booker, 16 Ark. 308; Fahn v. Reichart, 8 Wis. 255; Lansing v. Stone, 37 Barb. (N. Y.) 15; Simons v. Morrier, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 419; Hind v. Barton, 25 N. Y. 544; Case v. Hobart, 25 Wis. 654; Dean v. McCarty, 2 Upp. Can. Q. B. 448; Gillson v. North Gray R. Co., 33 Upp. Can. Q. B. 129; Achenbach v. Johnston, 84 N. Car. 264. Compare Kripper v. Biebel, 28 Minn. 139; Reiper v. Nichols, 31 Hun (N. Y.), 401; Read v. P. R. Co., 44 N. J. L. 280; Ayer v. Starkie, 30 Conn. 304 (under statute).

8. Wood v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 51 Wis. 196.

9. A person whose horse, frightened by a locomotive, became uncontrollable, ran away with him upon the land of another and broke a post there is not liable for the damage. Brown v. Collins, 53 N. H. 442. See, generally, Bigelow v. Reed, 51 Me. 325; Unger v. 42d St. R. Co., 51 N. Y. 497; Strouse v. Whittlesey, 41 Conn. 559; Center v. Collins, 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 94; Goshorn v. Smith, 92 Pa. St. 435; Goodman v. Taylor, 5 C. & P. 410; Holmes v. Mather, L. R. 10 Exch. 261. See Vincent v. Stinehour, 7 Vt. 62; s. c., 29 Am. Dec. 145.

10. As bees. Earl v. Van Alstine, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 630.

Rats are, it seems, a necessary evil in navigation, and their presence therefore in a ship in reasonable numbers does not render her unseaworthy. Their action is not an act of God, but it is an inevita-

mals;<sup>1</sup> or to domestic animals;<sup>2</sup> or from the handling of dangerous goods in ignorance of their character;<sup>3</sup> or from ice or snow upon the sidewalk in front of the defendant's premises;<sup>4</sup> or falling from the roof of an owner or occupier.<sup>5</sup>

2. In Equity.—The jurisdiction of equity extends to relief in many cases of accident. In its equitable sense the word has been defined as "an unforeseen and injurious occurrence not attributable to mistake, neglect, or misconduct."<sup>6</sup>

Extent of Jurisdiction.—This jurisdiction may be grouped under three heads: where bonds, promissory notes, etc., are lost or destroyed;<sup>7</sup> where the obligor in a bond is unable through some accident to pay the penalty named therein,—the remedy in this case having been extended to all cases of forfeiture and penalties, irrespective of accident;<sup>8</sup> and where a power created by way of use has ble accident; and therefore if they gnaw a hole in the ship and let in the seawater, this is a "danger or accident of the seas" within the meaning of the ordinary exception in a charter-party, and the owners are not liable. Pandorf v. Hamilton, L. R. 16 Q. B. D. 629. Compare Carstairs v. Taylor, L. R. 6 Ex. 217.

1. The owner of a domestic animal is not in general liable for an injury committed by such animal, unless it be alleged and shown that the defendant had notice of its vicious propensities. Van Leuven v. Lyke, 1 N. Y. 515. But the owner of a mischievous dog will be liable even as regards a trespasser who is bitten in the daytime by the animal, it being at large on its master's premises. Loomis v. Terry, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 496.

2. Bush v. Brainard, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 78; Munger v. Tonawanda R. Co., 4 N. Y. 349; Knight v. Abert, 6 Pa. St. 472; Leseman v. S. Car. R. Co., 4 Rich. L. (S. Car.) 413; Hess v. Lupton, 7 Ohio, 216; Aurora, etc., R. Co. v. Grimes, 13 Ill. 587; Illinois, etc., R. Co. v. Carraher, 47 Ill. 333; Durham v. Musselman, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 96; Union Pacific R. Co. v. Rollins, 5 Kans. 157; Caulkins v. Matthews, 5 Kans. 191; Maltby v. Dihel, 5 Kans. 430; Hughes v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 66 Mo. 325; Turner v. Thomas, 71 Mo. 596. Compare Young v. Harvey, 16 Ind. 314; Wright v. Clark, 50 Vt. 130; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 496.

3. Parrot v. Wells, Fargo & Co., 15 Wall. (U. S.) 524; Pierce v. Winsor, 2 Cliff. (U. S.) 18. See Thomas v. Winchester, 6 N. Y. 397.

4. Flynn v. Canyon Co., 40 Md. 312; s. c., 17 Am. Rep. 603; Kirby v. Boylston Market Assoc., 14 Gray (Mass.), 249; Van Dyke v. Cincinnati, I Disney (Ohio), 532; Chambers v. Ohio L. & T. Co., 1 Disney (Ohio), 327; Moore v. Gadsden, 93 N. Y. 12; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 352; Wenzlick v. McCotter, 87 N. Y. 122; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 358; Hartford v. Talcott, 48 Conn. 525; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 189.

5. Kirby v. Boylston Market Assoc., 14 Gray (Mass.), 249. Compare Shipley v. Fifty Associates, 101 Mass. 251; Garland v. Towne, 55 N. H. 55.

6. Smith's Eq. 36. But equity will not interfere where the equity of the defendant is equal to or greater than that of the party invoking its aid, as where the former is a bona fide purchaser for value, or the latter a mere volunteer. Story's Eq. Juris. (13th Ed.) § 106 et seq.

7. A bond of indemnity against the future discovery of lost instruments may be always demanded from the complainant both in equity and under the common-law system of most of the States. Bridgeford v. Masonville Mfg. Co., 34 Conn. 546; Almy v. Reed, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 421; Bispham on Equity, § 177. Re-execution of the instrument may be ordered or an alternative decree framed providing for the case of the future discovery of the lost instrument. Story's Eq. Juris. (13th Ed.) § 84. Where a note is not negotiable or is overdue at the time of its loss, the remedy is at law and not in equity. Byles on Bills, 300-1 and notes; Wright v. Maidstone, 1 R. & J. 701; Savannah Nat. Bank v. Haskins, 101 Mass. 370.

8. Equity, considering the penalty simply as a security for the principal debt, on payment of the latter with interest, discharges the obligor from further liability. Where the measure of the injury is not computable, equity will not relieve against payment of an amount agreed on as "stipulated damages," the question being, however, one purely of intention, and the mere use of the words "stipulated damages" not determining which been defectively executed.<sup>1</sup> There are other cases where equity will relieve a party from the effect of an unforeseen occurrence, some of which are referred to in the note.<sup>2</sup>

rule to apply. Nesbit v. Brown, 1 Dev. Eq. (N. Car.) 30; Rogan v. Walker, 1 Wis. 527; 3 Lead. Cas. Eq. (3d Am. Ed.) 683; Streeper v. Williams, 12 Wright (Pa.) 454; Chase v. Allen, 13 Gray (Mass.) 45. Where there is an agreement to reduce a debt in case of prompt payment, a party who does not fulfil the condition will not be relieved against payment of the whole original amount. Thompson v. Hudson, L. R. 4 H. L. Cas. 1; Sterne v. Beck, 11 Week. Rep. 791; Robinson v. Loomis, 51 Pa. St. 78.

A court of equity will not lend its aid actively to enforce a forfeiture, but will leave the parties to their legal remedies. Oil Creek R. Co. v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 54 Pa. St. 65; Livingston v. Tompkins, 4 John. Ch. (N. Y.) 415; 4 Kent's Com. 130.

1. Relief will be granted both where the instrument itself is informal and where there has been a defective execution of a formal instrument. Tollet v. Tollet, 1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 234; Garth v. Townsend, L. R. 7 Eq. 220; Morse v. Martin, 34 Beav. 200. In favor of purchasers for value, mortgagees, lessees, creditors, a wife, a legitimate child, or a charity, but not in favor of a husband, grandchild, or of the settlor himself. Thorpe v. McCullum, 1 Gilm. (Ill.) 615; In re Dyke's Estate, L. R. 7 Eq. 337; King v. Roney, 5 Ir. Ch. 64; Bixby v. Eley, 2 Bro. C. C. 325; Tollet v. Tollet, 1 Lead. Cas. 229; Pepper's Will, 1 Pars. Eq. 436; Porter v. Turner, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 114. See, however, as to "grandchildren," Huss v. Morris, 63 Pa. St. 367. This rule does not apply to powers in trust, the exercise of which is obligatory. Brown v. Higgs, 8 Ves. 570; Brown v. Pocock, 6 Sim. 257; Penny v. Turner, 2 Phil. 493; White's Trusts, Johns. 656; Whiting v. Whiting, 4 Gray (Mass.), 240.

2. Insufficient Assets, etc.—Where an executor pays debts or legacies, and it turns out that from some unexpected occurrence the assets are insufficient for all demands, the unpaid creditor or legatee will be permitted to recover from the executor, and the latter from his distributee. So, where a former will is cancelled on an unfounded presumption that a later one is duly executed; where boundaries have been accidentally confused, etc. In all these cases suitable relief will be granted. See Story's Eq. Juris. (13th Ed.) § 90 et seq.

Destruction of Demised Premises by Fire.

—But equity will not afford relief so as entirely to release a person from doing a thing which he has expressly covenanted to do, but of which the performance, by reason of some accidental occurrence, has become unexpectedly burdensome; as where demised premises are destroyed by fire, if the tenant has expressly covenanted to pay rent, he will not be relieved from doing so, though he has lost the enjoyment of the premises. Fowler v. Bott, 6 Mass. 63; Hallett v. Wylie, 3 John. (N. Y.) 44; Brewer v. Herbert, 30 Md. 301. But if the hiring is of apartments in a building, the lease is terminated by destruction of the building by fire. Stockwell v. Hunter, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 448; Graves v. Berdan, 26 N. Y. 498; Winton v. Cornish, 5 Ohio. 477. Compare Helburn v. Moffard, 7 Bush (Ky.), 169.

Test in Such Cases.—The test is whether the continued existence of a specific thing is a condition on which the parties have contracted.—in which case, even in the absence of any warranty, the parties will be excused in case before the breach performance becomes impossible from the perishing of the thing without default of the contractor; and the distinction is as much observed at law as in equity. See, for cases of such implied condition. Dexter v. Norton, 47 N. Y. 62; Wells v. Colman, 107 Mass. 514; Thomas v. Knowles, 122 Mass. 22; Lovering v. Buck Mt. Coal Co., 54 Pa. St. 291. For cases where such condition was held wanting. see School District v. Dauchy, 25 Conn. 530; School Trustees v. Bennett, 27 N. J. L. 513; Adams v. Nichols, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 275.

Authorities for Accident.—1 Story's Eq. Juris., 13th ed. 84 et seq.; 14 Am. Law Rev. 1; Thompson on Negligence; Wharton on Negligence.

ACCIDENT INSURANCE. (See also ACCIDENT; CONTRACTS; CONTRIBUTION; INSURANCE; NEGLIGENCE; PROXIMATE AND REMOTE CAUSE.)

1. Definition. Distinction between Accident and Other Insurance.
2. The Policy.
3. Definition of an Accident in its Application to Insurance.
4. Instances of what are Accidents.
5. Instances of what are not Accidents.
6. Proximate and Remote Cause in Accident Insurance.
7. Stipulations in the Policy Limiting the Liability of the Company.
  - (a) Due Diligence for Personal Safety.
- (b) Conformity to Common Carrier's Rules.
- (c) Death Caused by Taking Poison.
- (d) Travelling by Public or Private Conveyance.
- (e) Suicide while Insane.
8. Voiding the Policy by a Change of Occupation.
9. What is Total Disability.
10. Notice of Accident to the Company.
11. Measure of Damages.
12. Miscellaneous Matters.

1. Definition.—Distinction between Accident and Other Insurance.—Accident insurance is an insurance against injury or loss of life, which, though applied to a particular class of risks, depends upon essentially the same principles as other insurance. It is said in effect and analogy to more nearly resemble fire than life insurance, and to be truly a provision for indemnity, except in cases of death, when it becomes a contract to pay a fixed sum of money upon the happening of death caused by accident.<sup>1</sup> The whole matter of accident insurance has been regulated in England by statute,<sup>2</sup> which limits the right to effect such insurance to those over twelve years of age.

2. The Policy.—In England, accident policies, like marine policies, are divided into time and voyage policies. The first-named are by the year or for life, and can only be distinguished from ordinary life policies in the nature of the risk. They are not limited as to place, and cover all forms of accident. The voyage policies may or may not be limited as to time, and are always limited as to space to a prescribed journey.<sup>3</sup>

In the United States the policy is usually a contract by which the company agrees to pay a stipulated sum per week during disability caused by accident, and a gross sum in case of death by accident.<sup>4</sup>

3. Definition of an Accident.—An accident, in its application to insurance policies, has been defined as an injury which happens by reason of some violence, casualty, or vis major to the assured, without his design or consent or voluntary co-operation.<sup>5</sup>

1. 7 American Law Rev. 585.

This is not a contract of indemnity, because a person cannot be indemnified for the loss of life as he can in case of a house or shop. Alderson, B., in Theobald v. Railway Passengers' Assur. Co., 10 Ex. R. 45; 23 L. J. Ex. 249; 23 L. T. 222; 18 Jur. 583; 2 W. R. 528. But see Bradburn v. The Great Western Railway Co., L. R. 10 Ex. 1; 44 L. J. Ex. 9; 31 L. T. (N. S.) 464; 23 W. R. 48.

The central idea of such a policy is partial indemnity against accident. Hill v. Hartford Ins. Co., 22 Hun (N. Y.), 187.

2. 27, 28 Vict. c. 125; Porter's Laws of Insurance (1884), c. 24, p. 431.

3. Porter's Laws of Insurance, p. 434.

4. Bliss on Life Insurance, § 395.

5. 7 Am. Law Rev. 588.

It is an unusual and unexpected result attending the performance of a usual and necessary act. It is any unexpected event

4. Instances of what are Accidents.—The following have been held, under the circumstances of each case, to be accidents: an injury to the spine;<sup>1</sup> drowning by falling into water in a fit, or so falling because of an accidental wound (and the presumption in such cases will be in favor of death by drowning and not by fits), nor will suicide be presumed;<sup>2</sup> falling across a railroad track in a fit;<sup>3</sup> hernia resulting from external violence;<sup>4</sup> rupture of a blood-vessel from over-exercise with Indian clubs;<sup>5</sup> peritonitis caused which happens as by chance, or which does not take place according to the usual course of things. North American Ins. Co. v. Burroughs, 69 Pa. St. 43.

It is something which takes place without any intelligent or apparent cause, without design and out of course. Mallory v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 47 N. Y. 52.

Any event which takes place without the foresight or expectation of the person acted upon or affected by the event. Ripley v. Railway Passengers' Assurance Co. (U. S. C. C., West. Dist. Mich. 1870), 2 Big. Cases, 738.

An event that takes place without one's foresight or expectation; an event which proceeds from an unknown cause, or is an unusual effect of a known cause, and therefore not expected. Schneider v. Provident Life Ins. Co., 24 Wis. 28.

Railroad Accident.—An accident occurring in the course of travelling by railway, and arising out of the fact of the journey. It does not necessarily depend upon any accident to the railway or machinery connected with it. Alderson, B., in Theobald v. Railway Passengers' Assurance Co., 10 Exch. 45.

The term "accidental," as used in an accident policy, is used in its ordinary sense, and means "happening by chance, unexpectedly, or not as expected." Barry v. U. S. Mut. Acc. Assoc., 23 Fed. Rep. 712.

1. Injury to Spine.—Assured sprained muscles of his back in lifting a heavy weight, and was held entitled to recover under a proviso that the injury must be due to a material or external cause operating upon the person of the insured. Martin v. Travellers' Co., 1 F. & F. 505.

2. Drowning.—In Trew v. Railway Passengers' Assurance Co., 6 H. & N. 839, it was held that death by drowning while bathing was an accident, and it should be left to the jury to say whether death resulted from the action of the water or from natural causes. Where a man while bathing in a pool only a foot deep suddenly became insensible and fell face downwards into the water and died, and the condition of the body showed that he breathed after the fall, the court held that death was caused by the action of water on the lungs, and that the falling was an accident within the policy. Reynolds v. Accidental Ins. Co., 18 W. R. 1114; s. c., 22 L. T. (N. S.) 820.

Where a man is found dead in the water, he may be presumed to have come to his death by drowning, and not by fits. Even if he fell into the water in a fit and was thus drowned, the insurer would be liable, as death would be caused by the action of the water, and not by the fit. Winspear v. Accidental, etc., Ins. Co., 6 L. R. (Q. B. Div.) 42; 43 L. T. 459; 29 W. R. 116.

Where an accidental wound caused the insured to fall into the water and be drowned, this was still an accident. If a man might have come to his death by accidental drowning or suicide, the presumption will be in favor of accident rather than intention. Mallory v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 47 N. Y. 52; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 410.

3. Accident Caused by Fits.—Where a man was seized with a fit and fell on the railroad track from the platform in front of an approaching train and was killed, it was held that the cause of death was the being run over, and not the fit. Lawrence v. Accident Co., L. R. 7 Q. B. D. 216; 50 L. J. (Q. B.) 522; 29 W. R. 802.

4. Hernia from External Violence.—In Fitton v. Accidental Death Ins. Co., 17 C. B. (N. S.) 122, the deceased fell with violence on the floor of his room, and thereby produced an immediate rupture, which resulted in strangulated hernia and death after a surgical operation. It was held that the policy, though excluding hernia generally, must be construed to mean hernia arising within the system independently of external violence.

5. Rupture of Blood-vessel by Over-exercise.—In McCarthy v. Travellers' Insurance Co., 8 Biss. C. C. 362, the death was alleged to have occurred by reason of the rupture of a blood-vessel, sustained while exercising with Indian clubs. Held, that if the deceased used the clubs for exercise in the ordinary way, and without the interference of any unusual circumstances, the injury was not accidental; but if there occurred any unforeseen accident or involuntary movement of the body which, in connection with the

by an accidental blow;<sup>1</sup> attack upon insured by highwaymen while pursuing his journey on foot;<sup>2</sup> stepping off a train of cars and falling through a concealed hole in a bridge;<sup>3</sup> falling from the cars while walking in sleep;<sup>4</sup> death from an overdose of medicine taken by mistake;<sup>5</sup> death of an insane person who commits suicide by hanging is an accidental death.<sup>6</sup>

5. Instances of what are not Accidents.—The following have been held, under the circumstances of each case, not to be accidents: Sunstroke;<sup>7</sup> rupture caused by jumping from railway train.<sup>8</sup>

With these decisions may be compared various others, construing the "voluntary exposure to obvious danger" clause in accident policies. Most of these cases exonerate the insurance company from liability, because of the failure of the insured to comply with use of the clubs, brought about the injury, then such means were accidental and within the terms of the policy.

1. Peritonitis caused by Accidental Blow.—In North American Ins. Co. v. Burroughs, 69 Pa. St. 43, the insured while pitching hay was struck on the bowels by the handle of the fork, which slipped in his hands, and died from the peritoneal inflammation which ensued. The jury found the blow was an accident and the cause of the death, and the court sustained the verdict.

2. Attack by Highwaymen.—Where the insured, while pursuing his journey on foot, was attacked by highwaymen, the question was as to whether this was an accident. The court observes: "The injuries were effected by violence, but was there any accident? . . . Perhaps, in a strict sense, any event which is brought about by design of any person is not an accident, because that which has accomplished the intention and design, and is expected is a foreseen and foreknown result, and therefore not strictly accident. Yet I am persuaded this contract should not be interpreted so as thus to limit its meaning; for the event took place unexpectedly and without design on Ripley's part. It was to him a casualty, and, in the more popular and common acceptance of the word 'accident,' if not in its precise meaning, includes any event which takes place without the foresight or expectation of the person acted upon or affected by the event." Ripley v. Railway Pass. Ass. Co., 2 Bigelow L. & Acc. Cas. 738.

3. Burkhard v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 102 Pa. St. 262.

4. Scheiderer v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 58 Wis. 13; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 618.

5. Penfold v. Universal Life Co., 85 N. Y. 317; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 660. Compare Pollock v. United States Mut. Assoc., 102 Pa. St. 230; Mutual Life Ins.

Co. v. Lawrence, 8 Brad. (Ill. App.) 488.

6. Accident Ins. Co. of North America v. Crandall (U. S. Sup. Ct., Error to Circuit Court for District of Illinois, March 7, 1887, not yet reported.)

7. Sunstroke.—Where a policy contracted to pay to the representatives of the insured, "in the event of his sustaining any personal injury during the said intended voyage, from, or by reason, or in consequence of, any accident whatsoever." The insured died by sunstroke, to which he did not knowingly and without adequate motive expose himself, but it was held that the defendants were not liable, because his death could not be said to have arisen from accident, within the meaning of the policy. Cockburn, C. J., remarked: "It is difficult to define the term 'accident,' as used in a policy of this nature, so as to draw with perfect accuracy a boundary line between injury or death from accident, and injury or death from natural causes, such as shall be of universal application. At the same time we think we may safely assume that, in the term 'accident,' as so used, some violence, casualty, or vis major, is necessarily involved. We cannot think disease produced by the action of a known cause can be considered as accidental." Sinclair v. Maritime Passenger Assurance Co., 3 El. & El. 478; 4 L. T. (N. S.) 15; 30 L. J. (Q. B.) 77; 7 Jur. (N. S.) 367.

In American policies, sunstroke is usually excepted in express terms. 8 Alb. L. J. 85.

8. Rupture by Jumping from Train.—A rupture caused by jumping from a railway train before it had stopped is not a bodily injury effected through violent and accidental means; the rupture is the result, and not the means; the injured man meant to jump down and did so, and nothing unforeseen happened in jumping down. Southard v. Railway Passengers' Assurance Co., 34 Conn. 574.

this stipulation in the contract. They are of value, however, in determining what the authorities consider to be death resulting from accident.<sup>1</sup>

6. Proximate and Remote Cause in Accident Insurance.—It is essential to a recovery under a policy of accident insurance that the accident shall be the proximate, and not the remote cause of injury or death. An injury which is clearly the result of accident, but which is simply the means of bringing into activity a dormant disease, will not authorize a recovery. While this is, in brief, the state of the law, the dividing line between proximate and remote cause is always a narrow one, and the decision in the cases will often depend upon extreme niceties of distinction as to facts.<sup>2</sup>

1. Stone v. U. S. Casualty Co., 34 N. J. Law, 371; Providence Life, etc., Co. v. Martin, 32 Maryland, 310; Schneider v. Providence, etc., Life Ins. Co., 24 Wis. 28; Tooley v. Railway Pass., etc., Co., 3 Biss. (C. C.) 399; Sawtelle v. Railway Pass. Assur. Co., 15 Blatchf. (C. C.) 216; Neill v. Travellers' Ins. Co., (U. C. C. P.) 17 Canadian L. J. 44; Lowell v. Accident Ins. Co., 3 Ins. L. J. 877; 5 Ins. L. J. 559; Wright v. Sun Mut. Ins. Co., 29 U. C. (C. P.) 221; Tuttle v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 134 Mass. 175; s. c., 45 Am. Rep. 316; National Benef. Assoc. v. Jackson, 114 Ill. 533; s. c., 13 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 597.

2. In Barry v. U. S. Mutual Acc. Assoc. (C. C. E. D. Wis. 1885), 23 Fed. Rep. 712, it was shown that the deceased sustained an accidental injury to an internal organ, and it was held that if the injury necessarily produced inflammation, and the inflammation produced a disordered condition of the injured part, whereby other organs of the body could not perform their natural and usual functions, and in consequence of which the injured person died, the original injury will be considered as the proximate and sole cause of death; but if an independent disease or disorder, not necessarily produced by the injury, supervened upon the injury, or if the alleged injury merely brought into activity a then existing but dormant disorder or disease, and death resulted wholly or in part from such disease, the injury cannot be considered the sole and proximate cause of death.

In Smith v. Accident Ins. Co., L. R. 5 Exch. 302, the assured, while washing his feet in an earthenware pan, and resting them on its edge, broke the pan and cut his foot under the ankle against the sharp side. He had always been a sober and healthy man, and had never suffered from erysipelas at any time. The wound was carefully dressed, but five days afterwards erysipelas set in between the ankle and knee, about five or six inches above the wound, and he died in three days of erysipelas, which was consequent upon the wound, and for which there was no other known cause. The policy insured against all cuts, etc., "where such accidental injury is the direct and sole cause of death to the insured," but not against "erysipelas or any other disease or secondary cause or causes arising within the system of the insured before, or at the time of, or following such accidental injury, whether causing such death directly or jointly with such accidental injury." A majority of the court held that the company were protected by the condition, and the case was distinguished from Fitton v. Accidental Death Ins. Co., 17 C. B. (N. S.) 122, because in that case no reference was made to secondary causes (which clause the company had inserted after Fitton's case), and the hernia was there instantaneously caused by the accident. But Kelly, C. B., in his dissenting opinion, urges that the true effect of the condition is to exempt the company only where erysipelas arises within the system and is collateral to the accident, and wholly independent of it. 8 Alb. L. J. 86.

In Harris v. Travellers' Ins. Co. (Superior Court of Chicago, 1868) the deceased was a fireman, who was accidentally buried under a falling wall, but soon rescued without apparent injury, and continued his work for three months, when he took poison. In suit to recover the insurance on the ground that the accident rendered him insane, it was not only held to be suicide if he was sane, but, if he was insane on account of the accident, the death was held too remote to be covered by the policy, which includes only proximate results. See, generally, Trew v. Railway Pass. Assur. Co., 6 H. & N. 839; Reynolds v. Accidental, etc., Ins. Co., 18 W. R. 1141; s. c., 22 L. T. (N. S.) 820; Winspear v. Accidental, etc., Ins. Co., 6 L. R. (Q. B. Div.) 42; 43 L. T. 459; 29 W. R. 116; Mallory v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 47 N. Y. 52; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 470;

7. Stipulations in the Policy Limiting the Liability of the Company.—

(a) The Party Insured is Required to Use all Due Diligence for Personal Safety and Protection.—Policies of accident insurance contain various clauses limiting the liability of the company. The one which has been most frequently construed requires, in substance, that the insured shall use all due diligence for personal safety and protection. It is not a breach of this condition to step upon an insecure joist in the second floor of a house in course of construction for the insured;<sup>1</sup> nor for an engineer of a locomotive to attempt performance of what is properly the brakeman's duty, viz., crossing the tender of his locomotive to apply the brakes upon the next car;<sup>2</sup> nor for a passenger to attempt to board a train of cars in slow motion;<sup>3</sup> but an attempt to pass from one car to another at night may be unnecessary exposure;<sup>4</sup> driving into a railway yard and across tracks after warning of the danger is such exposure, as is also walking on a railroad track on a dark and rainy night.<sup>5</sup> Where the insured by a voluntary act exposed himself

Lawrence v. Accident Co., L. R. 7 Q. B. Div. 210; 50 L. J. (Q. B.) 522; 29 W. R. 802; Fitton v. Accidental Death Ins. Co., 17 C. B. (N. S.) 122; McCarthy v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 8 Biss. (C. C.) 362; North Am. Ins. Co. v. Burroughs, 69 Pa. St. 43.

The party insured is required to use all due diligence for personal safety and protection.

1. In Stone v. U. S. Casualty Co., 34 N. J. L. (5 Vroom) 371, the person injured stood upon a joist on the second floor of a building which was being erected for him, and it broke, causing him to fall and be killed, but this was held to be no want of due diligence.

2. In Providence Life, etc., Co. v. Martin, 32 Maryland, 310, the engineer of a locomotive slipped, fell, and was killed while going into the tender to put on a brake, which was properly the fireman's business, but he was held not to have been needlessly exposing himself.

3. In Schneider v. Provident, etc., Life Ins. Co., 24 Wis. 28, it was held that an attempt to get upon the cars whilst they are in slow motion is not wilful and wanton exposure to unnecessary danger. Sawyer v. U. S. Casualty Co. (Superior Court of Mass., Worcester), 8 Am. L. R. (N. S.) 233.

In Tooley v. Railway Pass., etc., Co., 3 Biss. (C. C.) 399, the assured took a ticket from A. to B. When the train reached B. he got out, and the signal was given to proceed to C., and the train had begun to move. Assured then attempted to get in whilst the train was in motion, and was killed. It was held to be natural and prudent for a man who wanted to go on in the train to get in while it was moving, and that the insurers were therefore liable.

4. A condition in a policy of accident insurance providing against getting in and out, etc., of moving cars and other conveyances will not include mere passing from one part to another of a train through which a passage was possible and contemplated, but such passing may be exposure to unnecessary danger, especially if done at night. Sawtelle v. Railway Pass. Assurance Co., 15 Blatchf. (C. C.) 216.

5. In Neill v. Travellers' Ins. Co. (U. C. C. P.), 17 Canadian L. J. 44, the insured, by driving into a railway yard and across the tracks after having been warned of danger, was held to have voluntarily incurred unnecessary danger, and a verdict for plaintiff was set aside and nonsuit entered.

In Lowell v. Accident Ins. Co., 3 Ins. L. J. 877, the jury found that walking on a railroad track on a dark and rainy night, at a time when the deceased knew that trains were frequently passing both ways, was not an "obvious risk," but the Lord Chief Justice said, "Very well, that is a verdict for the plaintiff, but I shall stay the execution, and if the question is one of law for the judge, I should decide it quite the other way, for I should say the deceased was running a risk which was very 'obvious' indeed." The verdict was afterwards set aside. 5 Ins. L. J. 559. See also Wright v. Sun Mut. Ins. Co., 29 U. C. (C. P.) 221.

In Tuttle v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 134 Mass. 175; s. c., 45 Am. Rep. 316, a policy of insurance against accident provided that there should be no recovery for death or injury in consequence of exposure to obvious or unnecessary danger, and that the insured should use all diligence for personal safety and protection. The into a hidden danger, the existence of which he had no reason to suspect, in stepping from a train of cars standing upon a draw-bridge, he does not commit a breach of this condition;<sup>1</sup> nor is it a breach of this clause for a traveller while asleep or in a dazed and unconscious condition to involuntarily walk to the platform of a car and fall therefrom.<sup>2</sup> Where a party, insured against injuries effected through external, violent, and accidental means, receives an injury while in the discharge of his regular duties as yard-switchman or brakeman of a railway company, from which he dies, a recovery cannot be defeated on the ground of voluntary exposure to danger, when the accident is one contemplated by the parties to the insurance.<sup>3</sup> sured was killed by a railway train while he was running on the track in front of it, in the night, to get on a train approaching in the other direction on a parallel track. Held, that there could be no recovery.

1. In Burkhard v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 102 Pa. St. 262; s. c., 48 Am. Rep. 205, an accident policy excepted death or injury "by voluntary exposure to unnecessary danger," and "while walking or being on the road-bed or bridge of any railway." The insured stepped off a railway train stopped at a drawbridge at night, fell through a concealed hole in the bridge and was killed. Held, not within the exceptions, and the company was liable. The court observes: "To make him guilty of a 'voluntary exposure to danger' he must intentionally have done some act which reasonable and ordinary prudence would pronounce dangerous. The contradicted evidence shows that several other passengers got out of the coach, and some of them in advance of the insured. They certainly apprehended no danger. It is customary for male passengers to alight when a train stops for any length of time. No notice was given to passengers that it was dangerous to get out of the coach where it stood. So far as appears, the bridge, with the exception of this hole, was well covered with plank and entirely safe. When the intestate alighted other passengers were standing on the bridge near the brakeman. The latter was sitting on timber that was lying on the footwalk of the bridge, and was to be used in the repairs being made. The passengers had no knowledge of these repairs. The brakeman held his lantern so placed on the floor that another timber cast its shadow over this hole, making it impossible for the insured to see it. He could see that portion of the floor lighted by the lantern, and the passengers standing thereon. He could see the brakeman near them. He stepped out of the coach in plain sight of the brakeman. He had a right to suppose he would land on a floor as firm as that on which the others stood. Neither word nor sight gave him any notice of danger. He did not approach the opening caused by the draw, and was not injured thereby. It is true he voluntarily left the car, but a clear distinction exists between a voluntary act and a voluntary exposure to danger. Hidden danger may exist, yet the exposure thereto without any knowledge of the danger does not constitute a voluntary exposure to it. The approach to an unknown and unexpected danger does not make the act a voluntary exposure thereto. The result of the act does not necessarily determine the motive which prompted the action. The act may be voluntary, yet the exposure involuntary. The danger being unknown the injury is accidental." The court distinguishes Morel v. Miss. Valley Ins. Co., 4 Bush (Ky.), 535; Lovell v. Accident Ins. Co., 3 Ins. Law Jour. 877; Sawtelle v. Railway Pass. Ass. Co., 15 Blatchf. (C. C.) 216, and kindred cases.

2. In Schneider v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 58 Wis. 13; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 618, where a traveller by railway, while asleep and unconscious, involuntarily arose and walked to the car platform, and fell therefrom and was injured, held, not a case of "voluntary exposure," "design," or "self-inflicted injuries."

3. See, generally, Shilling v. Acc. Death Ins. Co., 1 F. & F. (Eng.) 116; National Beneficial Assoc. v. Jackson, 114 Ill. 533; s. c., 13 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 597.

In Morel v. Mississippi Valley Life Ins. Co., 4 Bush (Ky.), 535, the plaintiff was insured against personal injury by any accident within the meaning of the policy. In travelling he inadvertently put his arm out of the car window, whereby his hand was injured. There was no clause in the policy requiring him to exercise diligent care. The company demurred,

(b) The Traveller must Comply with the Rules of the Common Carrier.—Where a policy provides that the insured must comply with the rules of the common carrier and exercise due diligence for self-protection, standing upon the steps of a car while approaching a station, in violation of a known rule of the company, will bar a recovery.<sup>1</sup>

(c) Condition against Liability for Death caused by taking Poison.—Where a policy provides that its benefits shall not extend to death or injury caused “by the taking of poison,” an involuntary taking of poison, by mistake, is within the provision, and bars a recovery.<sup>2</sup> Where, however, a policy was “conditioned to be void if he die by his own hand or act, voluntary or otherwise,” and death resulted from an overdose of medicine, taken by mistake, the provision was construed as intended to cover the varieties of suicidal self-destruction.<sup>3</sup>

(d) Construction of Clause “Travelling by Public or Private Conveyance.”—Although the decisions are not uniform, a policy insuring against “any accident while travelling by public or private conveyance, provided for the transportation of passengers,” will and the court sustained the demurrer, and held that the injury, being caused by his own carelessness, gave him no right to compensation. Compare, however, Farlow v. Kelly, 11 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 104, and note to that case, where the U. S. Supreme Court decided that such an act on the part of a passenger was not contributory negligence. This decision on this particular point conflicts with the weight of authority. See, further, Hoffman v. Travellers’ Ins. Co. (N. Y. Supreme Court, Clinton Circuit, Sept. 1871), reported in Baltimore Underwriter, Jan. 30, 1873, and 8 Alb. Law Jour. 87; Pratt v. Travellers’ Ins. Co. (N. Y. Supreme Court, Chemung Circuit, Oct. 1871), 8 Alb. L. J. 88; Travellers’ Ins. Co. v. Seaver (U. S. Supreme Court, unreported, cited Bliss on Ins. (2d Ed.) § 402); Bon v. Railway Pass. Assoc., 56 Iowa, 664; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 127.

1. Traveller must Comply with the Rules of the Common Carrier.—In Ben v. Railway Pass. Assurance Co., 55 Iowa, 664; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 127, the plaintiff was insured against accidents while travelling on conveyances of any common carrier, provided he complied with the rules and regulations of the carrier, and exercised due diligence for self-protection. While riding on a railway car, approaching a station, he stood on the steps, in violation of the carrier’s rule, known to him, and was thrown therefrom and injured. Held, that he could not recover on the policy.

2. Death caused by accidentally taking Poison.—In Pollock v. United States Mutual Acc. Assoc., 102 Pa. St. 230, an accident policy declared that benefits shall not be held to extend to any case of death or personal injury unless the claimant shall establish by direct and positive proof that the death or personal injury “was caused by external, violent, and accidental means,” and that it shall not extend to any death or disability which may have been caused “by the taking of poison.” It was held that the association was not liable where the insured drank poison by mistake for a harmless beverage. The court remarks, “It is not necessary that the poison be taken with an intent to produce death, in order to defeat a claim flowing from the right of membership. If the poison be innocently taken, and without any knowledge of the injurious effect which it was likely to produce, and did produce, so far as the person taking it is concerned, the effect may be said to be accidental. If we go a step further, and admit in such case that the ‘means’ are accidental, yet it is one of the accidental means expressly excepted from the protective power of the certificate.”

3. Death from an overdose of medicine taken by mistake is within a policy against death by accident “conditioned to be void if he die by his own hand or act, voluntarily or otherwise,” the aim of the condition being merely to cover the varieties of suicidal self-destruction. Penfold v. Universal Life Co., 85 N. Y. 317; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 660.

Taking an overdose of laudanum to relieve pain is not within such clause. Mutual Life Co. v. Laurence, 8 Bradwell (Ill.), 488.

not cover an accident occurring in the course of the journey, but while the insured is pursuing a part of his journey on foot.<sup>1</sup>

(e) Suicide while Insane.—A policy of accident insurance providing that "this insurance shall not extend to death or disability which may have been caused wholly or in part by bodily infirmities or disease, or by the taking of poison, or by suicide or self-inflicted injuries," will not exempt the company from liability to an insane person who commits suicide by hanging. The decision simply extends to accident insurance, a well-settled principle of insurance law, and declares that such a death is not only effected through violent and external means, but is also accidental because by an insane person.<sup>2</sup>

8. Voiding the Policy by a Change of Occupation.—Where a policy is issued to cover accidents occurring in the prosecution of a certain business, the following have been held not to be such changes of business as will increase the risk and render the policies void: Pitching hay while on a visit to a grandfather;<sup>3</sup> a school-teacher

1. What is Construction of Clause "Travelling by Public or Private Conveyance."—In Northrup v. Railway Pass. Assurance Co., 2 Lans. (N. Y.) 166, an accident ticket insured against "any accident while travelling by public or private conveyance, provided for the transportation of passengers." The assured started by public conveyance for Madison County. On landing at the steamboat wharf at Geneva she started to walk from the steamboat to the railroad, about seventy rods, in further prosecution of her journey, and, while walking, slipped and fell on the sidewalk and received injuries from which she died. There were carriages to transport the passengers, but she chose to walk. The company contended that the contract only covered risks, "while travelling by public or private conveyance," and that a woman's legs could not be held to be either, within the meaning of the contract. The court held, however, that the risk covered the whole journey, and that constructively a person who was walking from steamboat to cars on a through trip was to be deemed travelling by public conveyance from one end of it to the other.

In Ripley v. Railway Pass. Assurance Co., 2 Big. Cas. 738, the assured was going from Grand Haven, Michigan, to Dalton. He reached Muskegon Village at eleven o'clock at night, and thence started for Dalton on foot. When about half-way there, at midnight, he was waylaid and murdered. He held a traveller's ticket, and suit was brought upon it. The court below held that he could not recover, and the decision was subsequently affirmed by the United States Supreme Court. Ripley v. Insurance Co., 16 Wall. (U. S.) 336.

2. Suicide while Insane—A very recent case in the United States Supreme Court presented the question whether a policy of insurance against "bodily injuries effected through external, accidental, and violent means," and occasioning death or complete disability to do business, and providing that "this insurance shall not extend to death or disability which may have been caused wholly or in part by bodily infirmities or disease, or by the taking of poison, or by suicide or self-inflicted injuries," covered a death by self-hanging while the insured was insane. In holding that the company was not exempted from liability, the court decided that the clause of the policy as to "bodily injuries effected through external, accidental, and violent means" did not speak of what the injury was "caused by," but looked only to the "means" by which it is effected. No one doubts that hanging is a violent means of death. As it affects the body from without it is external, and according to the decisions as to suicide under policies of life insurance it cannot when done by an insane person be held to be other than accidental. Accident Insurance Company of North America v. Crandall, United States Supreme Court, Error to the Circuit Court for District of Illinois, March 7, 1887, not yet reported.

3. In North Am. Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Burroughs, 69 Pa. St. 43, the insured was hurt in pitching hay while on a visit to his grandfather. The company objected that he did not give notice of, or pay for, the extra hazard of doing this work, which was outside his ordinary occupation. But the court said there was no evidence of any change in his occupation, and that what he did on this visit out of employment engaging in the building of two dwelling-houses;<sup>1</sup> an engineer of a locomotive crossing the tender to apply the brakes on a car when this was the duty of the brakemen.<sup>2</sup> The question as to whether or not there is a change of occupation is for the jury.<sup>3</sup> An ironmonger, engaged in trade, who calls himself an esquire, does not thereby make a misrepresentation as to his occupation which will avoid the policy.<sup>4</sup> An insurance company which grants a policy covering death through external, violent, and accidental means to a yard-switchman or brakeman of a railroad company is considered to have contemplated the dangers of his employment and is liable to him in case of accident.<sup>5</sup>

9. What is Total Disability.—Accident insurance policies are now carefully drawn to avoid the payment of an indemnity for anything but total disability from the performance of the duties of the occupation in which the insured is engaged. The decisions, where the disability is partial, depend upon the clause in the policy. Where such clause read "any bodily injury to the said insured of so serious a nature as wholly to disable him from following his usual business, occupation, or pursuits," it was held, in effect, that a disability which incapacitated the assured from following his usual occupation, business, or pursuits," was a breach.<sup>6</sup> did not amount to a change of business within the meaning of this policy.

1. In Stone v. U. S. Casualty Co., 34 N. J. Law, 371, the company defended upon the ground that the policy became void if the assured changed his occupation to a more hazardous one, and claimed that the assured, who was a school-teacher, had so changed his business, because when the accident occurred he was engaged in the building of two dwelling-houses. The court charged that "changing occupation" meant an engaging in another employment as a usual business (a question for the jury), which the court above affirmed and said that it was preposterous to affirm that because he, a teacher out of employment, had two houses built by contract, he thereby became a builder by profession. See also Provident Life Ins. & Investment Co. v. Fennell, 49 Ill. 180.

2. In Provident Life Insurance & Investment Co. v. Martin, 32 Md. 310, the assured was a locomotive engineer. The company contended that, in climbing over the tender to apply the brakes on the next car, he was acting outside of his regular occupation and doing the work of a brakeman and thus avoiding the policy. But the court said there was no warranty or stipulation that the assured should not engage in any other occupation, nor that the company should be liable only for accidents occurring in the course of his regular employment, but, on the contrary, the policy covered all accidents, except certain specified ones.

3. Stone v. U. S. Casualty Co., 34 N. J. Law, 371.

4. Where a man being engaged in trade as an ironmonger calls himself an esquire, and says nothing about the trade, this does not amount to a statement false in fact. At most he has not stated all he might have stated. But this only makes his statement imperfect, not untrue, and the court will not deem such an omission to be a suppressio veri or suggestio falsi. Perrins v. Marine & Travellers, etc., Co., 2 E. & E. 317.

5. National Beneficial Assoc. v. Jackson, 114 Ill. 533; s. c., 13 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 597.

6. In Hooper v. The Accidental Death Ins. Co., 5 H. & N. 546, the insured was a solicitor, and while riding on horseback severely sprained his right ankle. On the same day he called in a surgeon, under whose care he remained for upwards of six weeks. For four weeks he was confined to his bedroom and an adjoining room on the same floor, and was unable to walk or stand, and for the next two weeks he could not leave the house. The plaintiff was able to write letters, read law and the like, while lying on the couch, but was unable to attend to business which could not be transacted in his house. The policy allowed five pounds per week for accidents which "shall cause any bodily injury to said insured of so serious a nature as wholly to disable him from following his usual business, occupation, or pursuits." The plaintiff claimed for four weeks total disability.

Where the clause read "accident and injury which totally disabled and prevented him from all kinds of business," it was held that there could be no recovery because it was not shown that there was a "total disability to labor."<sup>1</sup> Where the clause read "while totally disabled and prevented from the transaction of all kinds of business," it was held that such language could not be construed to mean "partially disabled from some kinds of business."<sup>2</sup> Where the clause read "wholly disable and prevent him from the prosecution of any and every kind of business pertaining to his occupation, and then only 'for such period of continuous total disability,'" it was held that total disability did not mean inability to do substantially "all kinds of his accustomed labor to some extent."<sup>3</sup>

10. Notice of Accident to the Company.—The policy usually calls for immediate notice of the accident to the company. How far the notice given complies with the stipulation in the policy is a question for the jury. Reasonable but not capricious evidence of immediate notice may be demanded.<sup>4</sup>

The defendants contended that he must be so disabled that the surgeon would forbid his doing any business at all, and said, if he had been a dancing-master, he might be said to be totally disabled. But so long as he could do any part of his work by himself or his clerk, he was not totally disabled, but only partially disabled. Pollock, C. B. said that there was no sound distinction between the case of a dancing-master and an attorney. For, if the dancing master could not dance, he might play an instrument and teach others how to use their limbs in dancing, and an attorney, prostrate, deprived of sense and motion, might to some extent, by partners and clerks, carry on his business. And he held that, if the plaintiff was wholly disabled from carrying on his business as he usually carried it on the company would be liable.

1. Rhodes v. Railway Pass. Ins. Co., 5 Lans. (N. Y.) 71.

2. In Lyon v. Railway Pass. Assur. Co., 46 Iowa, 631; s. c., 6 Repr. 169, an instruction to the jury upon a policy of accident insurance in case of total disability to transact all kinds of business that plaintiff might recover though he were able to do some parts of the accustomed work pertaining to his business, although he could not to some extent do all parts and engage in all the employments thereof is error. An instruction to the jury on such a policy, that the disability is to be referred to any business in which the assured is qualified to engage is error. The policy prescribes the terms of a contract of insurance, and where it stipulates that the company will indemnify the assured for loss of time while totally disabled he cannot recover except upon proof of total disability, nor would the rule be varied if he should be totally disabled in his own pursuit and able to engage in some other employment.

3. Saveland v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. (Supreme Court, Wisconsin, November, 1886), 30 Northwestern Rep. 237.

4. Notice to the Company.—In Provident Life Ins. & Inv. Co. v. Martin, 32 Md. 310, the policy required notice to the company, when an injury occurred, "as soon thereafter as possible." The accident and death occurred July 21. Within less than a week thereafter the widow reported the death to the company's agent, who had already heard of the accident. She then proceeded to procure affidavits on August 18 and 28 and September 4, which were received by the agent and forwarded to Chicago, to the home office, about the latter date. The company contended that notice was not given soon enough, but the court said that this question was properly left to the jury, who found for the plaintiff, and added: "If it were a matter of law, our judgment thereon would coincide with the conclusion the jury must have reached."

Whether "immediate notice" such as the policy calls for is given is for the jury. Lyon v. Ins. Co., 46 Iowa, 631; s. c., 6 Repr. 169. See also Provident Life Ins. & Inv. Co. v. Baum, 29 Ind. 236.

Reasonable but not capricious evidence of immediate notice of the loss to the company may be required. Braunstein v. Accidental Death Ins. Co., 1 B. & S. 782.

Such evidence must be such as a court of justice would hold to be reasonable. Trew v. Railway Pass. Assur. Co., 6 Jur. (N. S.) 759.

Notice within seven days may be demanded. Gamble v. Accidental Ins. Co., 14 Irish R. (C. L.) 204 Exch.

11. Measure of Damages.—In England and the United States the measure of damages depends upon essentially different principles, because in the latter country it is the universal custom to measure this indemnity, in a clause of the policy, by a fixed sum payable for the weeks of total continuous disability from all work.<sup>1</sup>

12. Miscellaneous Matters.—Arbitration.—In England a condition in the policy as to arbitration is held to be a condition precedent, and requires arbitration in the manner prescribed.<sup>2</sup>

Insurable Interest.—Accident, like other insurance, must rest upon an insurable interest in the real payee. Every man has an insurable interest in his own life, and when he takes a policy payable to a payee named by him and accepted by the company, the company cannot set up a lack of insurable interest.<sup>3</sup>

Locomotive Engineer may Recover upon Passenger's Ticket.—It has been held that where a locomotive engineer purchased a passenger's insurance ticket and was accidentally killed while riding on an engine and in charge of it, he could recover.<sup>4</sup>

Recovery over by Insurance Company.—The right of an insurance company, compelled to pay damages under their policy, to recover over against the person or company whose act or negligence has caused the death or injury has been denied in two cases.<sup>5</sup>

1. Measure of Damages.—The measure of damages in cases where indemnity is payable for injury is not the proportion which the injury bears to the amount payable for loss of time and profits, which is the same thing, but the assured is to recover indemnity for the expense and pain and loss immediately connected with the injury, without taking in the remote consequences, and without exceeding in any event the total sum payable in case of death. Theobald v. Railway Passengers' Assur. Co., 10 Ex. Ch. 45; Art. Accident Insurance, 8 Alb. L. J. 89.

2 Arbitration.—Braunstein v. Accidental Death Ins. Co., 1 B. & S. 782.

3. Insurable Interest.—In England it has been held that an accident insurance is within the statute 15 Geo. III. ch. 48, § 2 (which statute provides that it shall be competent to show that the policy was in fact made on account of a person other than the person with whom it is expressed to be made), and, like any other insurance on lives, must rest on an insurable interest in the real payee of the policy, and although the policy was payable to the deceased, and the suit was brought by his administratrix, it was really, for the benefit of another party, who paid the premiums.

In Provident Life Ins. & Inv. Co. v. Baum, 29 Ind. 236, a policy was made payable to a payee who was accepted by the company. The company denied an insurable interest in the payee, but the court held that none need be proven, as every man has an insurable interest in his own life, and the insured, in this case, had appointed and the company accepted the payee.

4. Locomotive Engineer may Recover upon Passengers' Ticket.—In Brown v. Railway Pass. Assoc. Co., 45 Mo. 221, an accident ticket insuring against "any accident while travelling by public or private conveyance provided for the transportation of passengers" was purchased by a locomotive engineer. He was accidentally killed while riding on an engine, and in charge of it. (See this case doubted in 8 Alb. L. J. 91.)

5. Recovery over by Insurance Company.—In Mobile Life Ins. Co. v. Brame, 95 U. S. 754, this right was denied upon the ground that the relation between the plaintiff and the assured was created by a contract to which the defendant was not a party, and that the damage to the plaintiff in being compelled to make good its contract with the assured was not a necessary or proximate result of the wrong done by the defendant in killing the assured.

In Connecticut Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. N. Y. & N. H. R. R., 25 Conn. 265, the same rule was applied where the plaintiff sought to recover for the killing of its assured by negligence on the part of the railway.

Authorities for Accident Insurance.—Accident Insurance, 8 Alb. Law Jour. (1874) 85; Bliss on Life Insurance (2d Ed. 1874), § 395, p. 702; May, Law of Insurance (2d Ed. 1882), § 514, p. 780; Porter, Laws of Insurance (1884), chap. 24, p. 431.

ACCOMMODATING—ACCORD AND SATISFACTION.

ACCOMMODATING.—By using the words “accommodating terms” in a contract, the parties must have intended that the purchase-money, or some part of it, should be permitted to remain in vendor’s hands, as if a loan for his convenience.<sup>1</sup>

ACCOMMODATION PAPER. See BILLS AND NOTES.

ACCOMPLICE. See ACCESSORY.

ACCORD AND SATISFACTION. See BAILMENTS; BILLS AND NOTES; PAYMENTS.

- |                                      |   |
|--------------------------------------|---|
| 1. Definition. Effect.        | 10. Additional Security.           |
| 2. Tender not Accepted.       | 11. Payment by Note.               |
| 3. Must be Legal.             | 12. Note for Note.                 |
| 4. Advantageous to Creditors. | 13. Joint Obligors.                |
| 5. Performance.               | 14. Joint Tort-feasors.            |
| 6. Part Payment.              | 15. Joint Makers of a Note.        |
| 7. Payment in Property.       | 16. Joint Creditors.               |
| 8. New Consideration.         | 17. Fraud &amp; Misrepresentation. |
| 9. Note of Third Person.      | 18. When Set Aside.                |

1. Definition.—Accord and satisfaction is the substitution of another agreement between the parties in satisfaction of the former one, and an execution of the latter agreement.<sup>2</sup>

Accord and satisfaction forms a complete bar to any further action on the original claim, but accord without satisfaction does not bar such action.<sup>3</sup>

Accord without satisfaction is not a good plea;<sup>4</sup> neither is satisfaction without accord.<sup>5</sup>

1. Plaintiff agreed to sell, and defendant to purchase, a brig, and the terms were to be accommodating. Held, under such a contract the vessel might pass by delivery. Rice v. McLaren, 42 Me. 157.

2. Pulliam v. Taylor, 50 Miss. 251, 257.

Accord is a satisfaction agreed upon between the party injuring and the party injured, which, when performed, is a bar to all actions upon this account. 3 Black. Com. 15.

When executed, in parol, it is a good defence to an action on a covenant in a sealed instrument which sounds in damages, although secured by a penalty. Cabe v. Jameson, 10 Ired. (N. Car.) 193.

A promise to pay at a future time accrued damages may be pleaded as a release of, or a defence to, the original cause of action; but it will not sustain the plea of accord and satisfaction. Herr v. O'Connor, 63 Pa. St. 341.

3. Bac. Abr. tit. Acc. and Satisf.

4. Parker v. Ramsbottom, 3 B. & C. 257.

5. Hardman v. Bellhouse, 9 M. & W. 596.

An agreement or accord which is to operate as a satisfaction of an existing liability must, before it can have that effect, be fully executed. It is merely executory, as long as by its terms something remains to be done in the future. Bragg v. Pierce, 53 Me. 65; Kromer v. Heim, 75 N. Y. 574; Brooklyn Bank v. De Grauw, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 342; Russell v. Lytle, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 390; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 537; Dolsen v. Arnold, 10 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 530; Geary v. Page, 9 Bosw. (N. Y.) 300; Tilton v. Alcott, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 598; Noe v. Christie, 51 N. Y. 272; Mitchell v. Hawley, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 414; Brennan v. Ostrander, 50 N. Y. Super. Ct. 426; Rising v. Cummings, 47 Vt. 345; Piper v. Kingsbury, 48 Vt. 480; Ballard v. Noaks, 2 Ark. 45; Flack v. Garland, 8 Md. 188, 191; Hearn v. Kiehl, 38 Pa. St. 147, 149; Schilling v. Durst, 42 Pa. St. 126; McKean v. Reed, Litt. Sel. Cas. (Ky.) 305; s. c., 12 Am. Dec. 318; Clark v. Bowen, 22 How. (U. S.) 270; Heathcote v. Crookshanks, 2 Term. R. 241.

At common law, without satisfaction, an accord is no bar to a suit upon the original obligation; but if the accord is founded upon a new consideration, and accepted as satisfaction, it operates as such satisfaction and bars the remedy upon the old contract. The circumstances of each case must determine whether there has been a new consideration in legal contemplation. Hall v. Smith, 15 Iowa, 584; Babcock v. Hawkins, 23 Vt. 561.

2. Tender not Accepted.—Tender of performance can never take the place of satisfaction, unless accepted. Accord to be good must be in full satisfaction, and must be executed; readiness to perform is not enough.<sup>1</sup>

There is a distinction between an engagement to accept a promise in satisfaction and an agreement requiring performance of the promise. If the promise itself and not its performance is accepted in satisfaction, this is a good accord, and satisfaction without performance. But otherwise if the performance is required to discharge the demand. Whitney v. Cook, 53 Miss. 551; Molyneux v. Collier, 13 Ga. 406.

An acceptance of an agreement with mutual promises, on which the creditor has a legal remedy for its non-performance, is a satisfaction of a debt. Goodrich v. Stanley, 24 Conn. 613; Billings v. Vanderbeck, 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 546.

One security may sometimes be pleaded in bar of another. Thatcher v. Dudley, 2 Root (Conn.), 169; Seaman v. Haskins, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) Cas. 195; Bank v. Letcher, 3 J. J. Marsh (Ky.), 196.

An agreement by two, each having an action for false imprisonment pending against the other, to discontinue their respective actions, and an actual discontinuance accordingly is a good accord and satisfaction. Foster v. Trull, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 456; Vedder v. Vedder, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 257.

The acceptance by a bailor from the bailee of a part payment, and of the bailee's notes for the residue of the value, is not—the notes being unpaid—an accord and satisfaction which waives the bailor's right to arrest. Person v. Civer, 29 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 432. See BAILMENTS.

A right of action by the owner of a chattel for injuries done to it in the possession of a bailee is not barred by a settlement between the owner and the bailee. Rindge v. Coleraine, 11 Gray (Mass.), 157.

Accord and satisfaction cannot discharge a specialty, though it will discharge damages arising from a breach of the specialty. Mitchell v. Hawley, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 414; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 260; Garvey v. Jarvis, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 179; Esmond v. Van Benschoten, 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 376.

1. Russell v. Lytle, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 390. See PAYMENTS.

Accord with tender of satisfaction is insufficient. Brooklyn Bank v. De Grauw, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 342; Watkinson v. Inglesby, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 392; Daniels v. Hallenbeck, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 408; Dolzen v. Arnold, 10 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 530; Tilton v. Alcott, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 598; Osborn v. Robbins, 37 Barb. (N. Y.) 483; Hawley v. Foote, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 517; Crane v. Maynard, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 408; Noe v. Christie, 51 N. Y. 270; Flack v. Garland, 8 Md. 188, 191; Hearn v. Kiehl, 38 Pa. St. 147, 149; Blackburn v. Ormsby, 41 Pa. St. 57; Coblentz v. Wheeler & Wilson Mfg. Co., 40 Ark. 180; Cushing v. Wyman, 44 Me. 121; Molyneux v. Collier, 13 Ga. 407; Simmons v. Clark, 56 Ill. 96; Frost v. Johnson, 8 Ohio, 393; Smith v. Keels, 15 Rich. (S. Car.) 318; Maze v. Miller, 1 Wash. (U. S.) 328.

But see Tucker v. Edwards, 7 Colo. 209, where it was held that where a plaintiff had his choice between two modes of satisfaction, the constant readiness of the defendant to do either is sufficient. He need not make actual tender until the plaintiff makes his choice.

"It ought to be executed; a different decision would overthrow all the books." Allen v. Harris, 1 Ld. Raym. 122.

"I, A, hereby agree to deliver B his mare, and I, B, agree to dismiss all suits against A, on delivery of said mare," was held not operative to dismiss the suit until the delivery of the mare. Ogilvie v. Hallan, 58 Iowa, 714.

To constitute a good accord and satisfaction, it must be accepted as such. Barnes v. Lloyd, 2 Miss. 584; Evans v. Wells, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 325; Eaton v. Lincoln, 13 Mass. 424; Young v. Jones, 64 Me. 563; Watson v. Elliott, 57 N. H. 511; Pettis v. Ray, 12 R. I. 344.

A plea founded upon services should aver that the services were accepted in satisfaction of the plaintiff's demand. Without such averment of acceptance the plea is bad. Johnson v. Hunt, 81 Ky. 321.

Saying "it is not enough, but there will be no trouble," at the time of payment, is not an acceptance in full satisfaction. Willey v. Warden, 27 Vt. 655.

To a declaration alleging a breach on

3. Must be Legal.—An accord and satisfaction to be valid must rest upon a legal consideration, and the thing to be done also must be legal.<sup>1</sup> an agreement therein set forth, and consequent damage to the plaintiffs, it was pleaded that a certain agreement had been come to between plaintiffs and defendants after disputes had arisen. The plea did not in terms admit or deny the alleged breach; nor did it in terms state that the agreement pleaded had been accepted by the parties in accord and satisfaction of the causes of action alleged in the declaration. Held, that such plea was bad. It could not be assumed that an agreement had been accepted in accord and satisfaction. Barclay v. Bank of New South Wales, L. R. 5 App. Cas. 374.

4. Advantageous to Creditors.—It must be advantageous to the creditor, and he must receive an actual benefit therefrom which he would not otherwise have had.<sup>2</sup>

Acceptance by a ward, after he is of age, of promissory notes which the guardian had not collected, and was therefore liable to pay, is not a good plea to an action on the guardian's bond unless they are collected. Com. v. Miller, 5 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 205.

But where a stockholder in a building association, under resolution of the association permitting borrowers to withdraw, on the payment of a stipulated amount, the stock to be then "withdrawn and cancelled," withdrew, paid off his loans and stock, which was then marked on the books as cancelled and withdrawn, it was held that the company could not afterwards recover for dues which subsequently accrued thereon. After an acceptance of the terms of the resolution and payment by the debtor of the sums found thereby to be due, the new contract was executed and a case of accord and satisfaction made out. Miller v. Second Jefferson Building Assoc., 14 Wright (Pa.), 32.

Where a debtor gave a bond for the benefit of his creditors to a trustee, on which bond judgment was entered, and where one of his creditors accepted said judgment and acted on it, it was held to be a sufficient acceptance to make a valid accord and satisfaction. Seaman v. Haskins, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) Cas. 195.

It is necessary that the money should be offered in satisfaction of the claim, and the offer accompanied with such acts and declarations as amount to a condition that if the money is accepted it is accepted in satisfaction, and such that the party to whom it is offered is bound to understand therefrom that if he takes it, he takes it subject to such condition. Preston v. Grant, 34 Vt. 201; Towslee v. Healey, 39 Vt. 522; Boston Rubber Co. v. Peerless Wringer Co., 58 Vt. 553.

In cases of composition deeds or agreements between a debtor and his creditors an executory accord can sometimes serve as a bar to proceedings on the original claim; and they have been held upon grounds peculiar to that class of instruments to bar an action by a separate creditor, who had signed the composition, to recover his debt, although the composition agreement was still executory. Good v. Cheeseman, 2 B. & A. 335; Bayley v. Homan, 3 Bing. N. C. 915.

1. Edgecombe v. Rodd, 5 East, 294.

Where defendant pleads accord and satisfaction by articles prohibited from sale by statute, the plaintiff may treat the transaction as void; and if its validity is insisted upon by the defendant he may show that it falls within the statutory prohibitions. Smith v. Grable, 14 Iowa, 429; Drisbach v. Keller, 2 Pa. St. 77; Walan v. Kerby, 99 Mass. 1.

It cannot be predicated upon an illegal contract, such as one for the subletting of convicts. Gordon v. Mitchell, 68 Ga. 11.

A contract made by an aged man with his grandson, that if the latter will aid the grandfather in inducing a young lady to marry him, write letters to her, and use his influence with the lady to marry the grandfather, the latter will deliver to the grandson a note he holds against him for $5000 is against the policy of the law, and is void. Johnson v. Hunt, 81 Ky. 321.

2. Davis v. Noaks, 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 494; Logan v. Austin, 1 Stewart (Ala.) 476.

Restoring to the injured party his chattels or land, of which he has been wrongly dispossessed by the defendant, is no consideration to support a promise by the injured person (to defendant) not to sue him for those injuries. Keeler v. Neal, 2 Watts (Pa.), 424.

Where A held a note against B and C, partners, and all three agreed that C should turn over the partnership property to B, who was to pay the note, it was held to be a good accord and satisfac-

5. Not by Stranger.—Performance must be by the debtor or his agent; not by a stranger, as the creditor is not bound to receive performance at the hands of such.<sup>1</sup>

6. Part Payment.—The payment in money of a part of the whole debt is not a good satisfaction, even if accepted,<sup>2</sup> unless tion as between A and C. Rusk v. Gray, 83 Ind. 589.

1. Clow v. Borst, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 37; Daniels v. Hallenbeck, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 408; Stark v. Thompson, 3 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 302.

A stranger voluntarily paying the amount due to the creditor does not acquire by such payment any right of action against the debtor; neither does such voluntary payment bar the creditor's right of action against the debtor. Brown v. Chesterville, 63 Me. 241.

But when the stranger acts as the debtor's agent, or the creditor accepts the payment in discharge of the debtor's liability, it will be a good satisfaction. Rusk v. Soutter, 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 371, 373; Webster v. Wyser, 1 Stew. (Ala.) 184; Leavitt v. Morrow, 6 Ohio St. 71; Britton v. Lewis, 8 Rich. (S. Car.) Eq. 271; Simpson v. Eggington, 10 Exch. 845; Belshaw v. Bush, 11 C. B. 191; Snyder v. Pharo, 25 Fed. Rep. 398.

Accord and satisfaction with a person acting without authority as administrator or executor of a deceased person becomes valid on his subsequently receiving letters testamentary or of administration. Vroom v. Van Horne, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 549; Priest v. Watkins, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 225.

2. Line v. Nelson, 38 N. J. L. 358; Daniels v. Hatch, 1 Zabr. (N. J.) 391; Warren v. Skinner, 20 Conn. 557; Vance v. Lukenbill, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 249; Jones v. Bullitt, 2 Litt. (Ky.) 242; Bryan v. Foy, 69 N. Car. 45; Hayes v. Davidson, 70 N. Car. 573; Mitchell v. Sawyer, 71 N. Car. 70; Moore v. Hylton, 1 Dev. (N. Car.) Eq. 429; Brooks v. Moore, 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 394; Geary v. Page, 9 Bosw. (N. Y.) 290; Harrison v. Close, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 450; Johnston v. Brame, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 270; Russell v. Lytle, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 390; Inman v. Griswold, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 199; Allen v. Roosevelt, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 100; Dederick v. Leman, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 333; Beardsley v. Davis, 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 159; Bunge v. Koop, 5 Robt. (N. Y.) 1; Bliss v. Shwartz, 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 215; Von Gerhardt v. Lighte, 13 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 101; Curran v. Rummell, 118 Mass. 482; Clifton v. Litchfield, 106 Mass. 34; Walan v. Kerby, 99 Mass. 3; Twitchell v. Shaw, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 48; Tuttle v.

Tuttle, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 554; Donohue v. Woodbury, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 148; Howe v. Mackay, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 44; Makepeace v. Harvard College, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 208; Shaw v. Clark, 6 Vt. 507; Miller v. Holden, 18 Vt. 337; Rising v. Cummings, 47 Vt. 345; Cavaness v. Ross, 33 Ark. 572; Eve v. Mosely, 2 Strobh. (S. Car.) 203; Sullivan v. Finn, 4 Greene (Iowa), 544; Spann v. Baltzell, 1 Fla. 301; Ramsdell v. U. S., 2 Ct. of Cl. 508; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Davis, 11 Pac. R. (Kan.) 421.

Payment of a less sum of money than the whole debt without a release is no satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim. A mere agreement to accept less than the real debt would be nudum pactum. Geiser v. Hershner, 4 Gill & Johns. (Md.) 305; Barber v. State, 24 Md. 390; Maddux v. Bevan, 39 Md. 499; Loney v. Bailey, 43 Md. 22; Oberndorff v. Bank of Baltimore, 31 Md. 132; Seymour v. Minturn, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 160; Boyd v. Hitchcock, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 72; Rose v. Daniels, 8 R. I. 381; Lathrop v. Page, 129 Mass. 19.

Such release must be under seal. Harrison v. Close, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 447; Ryan v. Ward, 48 N. Y. 204; Gordon v. Moore, 44 Ark. 349; Mech. Bank v. Hazard, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 353.

Where the holder of a promissory note surrenders it to the maker and takes one of less amount in satisfaction, it is a full discharge, and no action can be maintained for the unpaid portion. The surrender is equivalent to a release under seal. Draper v. Hitt, 43 Vt. 439. See BILLS AND NOTES.

But taking a less amount than that which is due without surrendering the note is not a satisfaction. Pearson v. Thomason, 15 Ala. 700; Silvers v. Reynolds, 2 Harr. (N. J.) 275.

Taking a check or receipt for a smaller sum than the amount due on promissory notes in payment and satisfaction of the notes is not necessarily an attempt to discharge a larger sum by payment of a smaller; the notes being salable like any other personal property. Rockwell v. Taylor, 41 Conn. 55.

A being indebted to B in 125*l.* 7*s.* 9*d.* for goods sold and delivered, gave B a check for 100*l.* payable on demand, which B accepted in satisfaction. Held the amount is disputed at the time of the payment, or is contingent.<sup>1</sup>

to be a good accord and satisfaction. Goddard v. O'Brien, L. R. 9 Q. B. D. 37.

A receipt in full, when the whole amount has not been paid, will not prevent recovery of the balance due. Ryan v. Ward, 48 N. Y. 204; Miller v. Coates, 66 N. Y. 609; Bunge v. Koop, 48 N. Y. 225; Harriman v. Harriman, 12 Gray (Mass.), 341. See PAYMENTS.

A parol release of a judgment for less than the amount due is invalid although indorsed on the execution. Weber v. Couch, 134 Mass. 26.

The fact that the debtor is insolvent at the time when his creditor promises to accept from him a less sum than is due in full satisfaction of the debt does not affect the question of the consideration of such promise. Pearson v. Thomason, 15 Ala. 700.

Where the amount of payment exceeds the principal and only falls short in the calculation of interest, the accord and satisfaction will be valid. The question as to interest depends much on the circumstances of settlement, and its computation is not always precise. Johnston v. Brannan, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 268; Tenth Nat. Bank v. Mayor of N. Y., 4 Hun (N. Y.), 429; Tuttle v. Tuttle, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 551. Compare Beer v. Foake, L. R. 11 Q. B. D. 221.

Receiving part payment under protest, though tendered in full, will not establish accord and satisfaction. People v. Supervisors of Cortland Co., 40 How. (N. Y.) 53.

In Maine it is provided by statute that any payment less than the amount actually due, which has been received in full payment, will bar further action on the original claim. Weymouth v. Babcock, 42 Me. 42; Austin v. Smith, 39 Me. 203.

Both parties, however, must concur in the agreement. It does not apply to a part payment with an agreement that the debtor shall have "his own time to pay the balance." Mayo v. Stevens, 61 Me. 561.

So in Georgia a part payment bars further action if the accord and satisfaction is actually executed. But not when only part of the amount agreed upon has been paid. Rogers v. Ball, 54 Ga. 15; Tyler Cotton Press Co. v. Chevalier, 56 Ga. 494; Troutman v. Lucas, 63 Ga. 466.

1. Alvord v. Marsh, 12 Allen (Mass.), 606; Donohue v. Woodbury, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 151; Simmons v. Almy, 103

Mass. 33; Easton v. Easton, 112 Mass. 443; Stimpson v. Poole, 141 Mass. 502; Stockton v. Frey, 4 Gill (Md.), 406; Howard v. Norton, 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 161; Pierce v. Pierce, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 243; Brooks v. Moore, 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 393; Powell v. Jones, 44 Barb. (N. Y.) 521; Palmerton v. Huxford, 4 Denio (N. Y.), 166; Taylor v. Nussbaum, 2 Duer (N. Y.), 302; Neary v. Bostwick, 2 Hilt. (N. Y.) 514; Ogborn v. Hoffmann, 52 Ind. 439; Warren v. Skinner, 20 Conn. 559; Potter v. Douglass, 44 Conn. 541; Bull v. Bull, 43 Conn. 455; McDaniels v. Lapham, 21 Vt. 222; Childs v. Millville Mut. Ins. Co., 56 Vt. 609; McCall v. Nave, 52 Miss. 494; Tyler Cotton Press Co. v. Chevalier, 56 Ga. 494; Mathis v. Bryson, 4 Jones (N. Car.) L. 503; Wapello Co. v. Sinnaman, 1 G. Greene (Iowa), 413; Brick v. Plymouth Co., 63 Iowa, 462; Cool v. Stone, 4 Iowa, 219; Harris v. Kennedy, 48 Wis. 500; Berdell v. Bissell, 6 Col. 162; Watson v. Elliott, 57 N. H. 511; Bryant v. Proctor, 14 B. Mon. (Ky.) 451; U. S. v. Childs, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 232. Compare Fulton v. Monona Co., 47 Iowa, 622; Wilson v. Palo Alto Co., 65 Iowa, 18.

Where a plaintiff, after an injury sustained in his person from the tort of the defendant, agrees with the defendant or his agents that in satisfaction of such injury the defendant should pay the expenses incurred by the plaintiff by reason of his injury, and should furnish him with a free conveyance to his point of destination, and the defendant performs his part of the agreement, the plaintiff cannot recover further damages for the tort. Stockton v. Frey, 4 Gill (Md.), 406; Coon v. Knap, 8 N. Y. 402; Ludington v. Miller, 6 Jones & Sp. (N. Y.) 478; Rideal v. Great W. R. Co., 1 F. & F. 706.

And where there is no express agreement that the amount paid shall be in satisfaction either in whole or in part of the cause of action, the presumption is that it was intended by the parties as a full recompense for the injury and operates as an accord and satisfaction barring a subsequent action to recover damages for the same injury. Hinckle v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 15 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 391; s. c., 31 Minn. 434.

Where D., a passenger, was injured by the negligence of a railroad company and accepted a sum of money in full satisfaction and discharge of all the claims and causes of action he had against the company, held, that the cause of action was

7. Payment in Property.—A money debt may be satisfied by payment in property, if so accepted, whatever its value may be.<sup>1</sup>

8. New Consideration.—Although an agreement by a creditor to accept payment of a part of his debt in satisfaction of the whole, together with payment of such part by the debtor, does not, generally speaking, constitute an accord and satisfaction, yet this rule of law contemplates a part payment that is strictly a mere part performance of the original obligation, and which in consequence confers no new benefit on the creditor, and imposes no new burden on the debtor. But where by a mode or time of part the defendant's negligence, which had been satisfied in the deceased's lifetime, and that the death of D. did not create a fresh cause of action. Read v. Great East. R. Co., L. R. 3 Q. B. 555.

Where a woman accepted $55 in full payment and satisfaction of any claim for damages to certain city lots against a railroad by reason of the construction of said railroad; and where subsequently the grade in front of the lots was raised 5 feet to the great damage of said lots, it was held that she could not recover any further damages. Kansas City v. Olathe R. Co., 30 Kan. 288.

A contractor's acceptance of payment from the government and his assurance that this payment will close the accounts was held to be a full discharge of all liabilities of the government for damages resulting from the contract. Morris v. U. S., 4 Ct. of Cl. 354; Murphy v. U. S., 14 Ct. of Cl. 508.

A written agreement acknowledging the receipt of promissory notes for a certain sum payable in three and twelve months in full satisfaction of an assault and battery, was held to be a bar to further proceedings. Peace v. Stennett, 4 J. J. Marsh (Ky.), 449. See also Smith v. Kerr, 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 155.

But where the plaintiff after being injured by a railroad accident, not supposing that he had received any serious injuries, accepted from the railroad a trifling sum in compensation for damage to his clothes, it was held that the receipt of this sum could not be set up as an accord and satisfaction for a patent and severe injury to the brain or spine. Roberts v. Eastern Counties R. Co., 1 F. & F. 460.

Neither was it a defence to an action by a father for the seduction of his daughter that she had previously received an allowance for the support of a bastard child. Sellers v. Kinder, 1 Head. (Tenn.) 134.

1. Blinn v. Chester, 5 Day (Conn.), 360; Bull v. Bull, 43 Conn. 455; Rose v.

Hall, 26 Conn. 392; Williams v. Stanton, 1 Root (Conn.), 426; Neal v. Handley, 6 N. East. Repr. (Ill.) 45; Fisher v. May, 2 Bibb. (Ky.) 449; Jones v. Bullitt, 2 Litt. (Ky.) 242; Reid v. Bartlett, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 273; Bliss v. Shwartz, 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 215; Bryant v. Gale, 5 Vt. 416; Ridlon v. Davis, 51 Vt. 457.

An agreement to accept property in satisfaction is executed by a delivery to the person appointed by the party to receive it. Anderson v. Highland Turnpike Co., 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 86; Grocers' Bank of N. Y. v. Fitch, 1 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 651.

An agreement that the debtor shall relinquish property in satisfaction of a debt is not valid, unless it is also agreed at what time it shall be relinquished. Pence v. Smock, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 315; State Bank v. Littlejohn, 1 Dev. & Bat. (N. Car.) L. 563, 565.

It is, however, only when property is received in satisfaction, without any price being agreed upon at which it is to be estimated between them, that it becomes a valid accord and satisfaction. But when the debtor delivers to his creditor and the creditor receives property at a price agreed upon by them, and the amount thus paid is less than the debt, it is not accord and satisfaction notwithstanding the creditor agrees to take it as full payment of the debt. Howard v. Norton, 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 161.

Where a creditor agreed to take certain property of his debtor in satisfaction of his debt upon the faith of the representations of the debtor as to its condition, and he took it under such agreement after he had an opportunity to test their truth, held, that this was a good accord and satisfaction. Williams v. Phelps, 16 Wis. 80.

It is not a good accord and satisfaction, however, to pay a debt upon a revenue bond by delivery and acceptance of property. Collectors of revenue must receive money. Martin v. U. S., 4 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 487.

payment, variant from that provided for in the contract, a new benefit is or may be conferred or burden imposed, a new consideration arises out of the transaction, and gives validity to the agreement of the creditor.<sup>1</sup>

Payment in part at an earlier date or in a different place than that agreed upon is a good satisfaction, if so received.<sup>2</sup>

1. Rose v. Hall, 26 Conn. 392; Warren v. Skinner, 20 Conn. 557; Blinn v. Chester, 5 Day (Conn.), 359; Bull v. Bull, 43 Conn. 455; Pearson v. Thomason, 15 Ala. 700; Higgins v. Halligan, 46 Ill. 173; Bailey v. Cowles, 86 Ill. 333; Vance v. Lukebill, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 249; Curran v. Rummell, 118 Mass. 482; Brooks v. White, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 283; Schmidt v. Ludwig, 26 Minn. 85; Mitchell v. Sawyer, 71 N. Car. 70; Hayes v. Davidson, 70 N. Car. 573; Watson v. Elliott, 57 N. H. 511, 513; Daniels v. Hatch, 21 N. J. L. 391; Douglass v. White, 3 Barb. (N. Y.) Ch. 621; Brooks v. Moore, 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 394; Taylor v. Nussbaum, 2 Duer (N. Y.), 302; Bowe v. Gano, 9 Hun (N. Y.), 6.

Where A, being indebted to B, and having an intention to petition in bankruptcy, proposed a compromise to B through his own attorney C, and where B agreed to receive a certain portion of the debt in full settlement, which portion A accordingly paid over to C, and C notified B that he had received the amount for him, to which B made no objection, and A in consequence took no further steps to become a bankrupt,—held, that the payment to C was in effect a payment to B; and that A's abandoning his intention of becoming a bankrupt was a sufficient consideration for receiving a part of the debt in settlement of the whole. Hinckley v. Arey, 27 Me. 362.

Procuring a written agreement from one probably liable on the default of the defendant that he will take no advantage of the discharge of the defendant is a good consideration to make part payment a satisfaction. Booth v. Campbell, 15 Md. 569.

Where the answer set forth that a certain contract was assigned to the plaintiff in full payment and satisfaction of a certain note sued on, it is immaterial how much was due on the contract. Luke v. Johnnycake, 9 Kan. 511.

An agreement by a creditor to release a portion of his debt in consideration that the debtor, who was insolvent, would apply the yearly proceeds of his personal labor in payment of the residue is valid. Merchants' Bank v. Davis, 3 Ga. 112; Molyneaux v. Collier, 13 Ga. 407.

In an action on a liquidated debt of $299, the creditor orally agreed to accept $150 in full if the debtor paid the costs and expenses. The $150 was paid. The debtor subsequently paid the costs. Held, that the last payment made a sufficient additional consideration, and that the transaction was a good accord and satisfaction. Mitchell v. Wheaton, 46 Conn. 315.

Where a debtor transfers specific property to trustees for the use of his creditors under a mutual agreement signed by the creditors whereby they accept the property in full satisfaction and discharge of their several demands, there is a valid accord and satisfaction. Bartlett v. Rogers, 3 Sawy. (U. S.) 62; Therasson v. Peterson, 4 Abb. Ct. App. (N. Y.) 396; Watkinson v. Inglesby, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 386; McCreary v. McCreary, 5 Gill & J. (Md.) 147; Murray v. Snow, 37 Iowa, 410.

Where a debtor has induced a number of creditors to accept a composition less than their entire demand, each acting upon the faith of the engagement of the others, it will be a valid accord and satisfaction. Such a composition would be enforced, as it would otherwise operate as a fraud upon the other creditors who were induced by it to accept the composition. Daniels v. Hatch, 1 Zab. (N. J.) 391; Murray v. Snow, 37 Iowa, 410; Fellows v. Stevens, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 294; Greenwood v. Lidbetter, 12 Price, 183; Steinman v. Magnes, 11 East, 390.

Where the assignee of a note has joined in such a composition, and the satisfaction has been duly executed, it will be a valid accord and satisfaction so as to bar the assignee to recover from his assignor. Pontions v. Durlinger, 59 Ind. 27.

But an agreement by a creditor with his debtor to accept a certain percentage of the debt in full satisfaction thereof, "provided that no other creditor shall receive more than the same percentage of his claim," is void for want of consideration. Perkins v. Lockwood, 100 Mass. 249; Bemis v. Hoseley, 16 Gray (Mass.), 63.

2. Smith v. Brown, 3 Hawks (N. Car.), 580; Jones v. Bullitt, 2 Bush (Ky.), 49;

9. Note of Third Person.—The note of a third person for a less amount than due, given and received in payment, is a good satisfaction.<sup>1</sup>

10. Additional Security.—It is the general rule that giving further security for part of a debt, or other security, though for a less sum than the debt, and acceptance of it in full of all demands, make a valid accord and satisfaction.<sup>2</sup>

Fenwick v. Phillips, 3 Metc. (Ky.) 87; Williams v. Langford, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 566; Ricketts v. Hall, 2 Litt. (Ky.) 249; Brooks v. White, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 283; Bowker v. Childs, 3 Allen (Mass.), 434; Barry v. Goodrich, 98 Mass. 335; Schweider v. Lang, 29 Minn. 254; Levy v. Very, 12 Ark. 148; Rose v. Hall, 26 Conn. 392. Robertson v. Campbell, 2 Call (Va.), 421; Reid v. Hibbard, 6 Wis. 175, 193.

A contract was made to pay $2000 in Mississippi, but the creditor agreed to accept $1500 in full satisfaction if paid in New York. Held, that this was a sufficient consideration to bind the payee if the tender of payment in New York was made before the withdrawal of the proposition reached Mississippi. Jones v. Perkins, 29 Miss. 139.

If it is agreed to pay at an earlier date, such payment must be made promptly to make it a valid satisfaction. Harding v. Commercial Loan Co., 84 Ill. 251; Robertson v. Campbell, 2 Call (Va.), 421.

When an agreement is made by a debtor to deliver, in full satisfaction of a larger sum due, his notes or money for a less sum, even though there is a consideration for the agreement it must, in order to operate as a discharge, be fully and fairly performed in all its parts, both in time and amount. Memphis v. Brown, 1 Flipp. (U. S.) 188.

Though part payment of a debt is not a sufficient consideration for the release of the whole, nevertheless a release under seal of a judgment is valid, the seal importing a consideration. Maclary v. Reznor, 3 Del. Ch. 445.

A mere offer of the judgment creditor to accept a less amount in satisfaction of the judgment, if the offer is not accepted by the debtor, will not be a sufficient accord and satisfaction to bar the recovery of the full amount of the judgment. Bird v. Smith, 34 Me. 63; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 635.

1. Brassell v. Williams, 51 Ala. 349; Letcher v. Bank, 1 Dana (Ky.), 82; Smith v. Bettger, 68 Ind. 254; Lee v. Oppenheimer, 32 Me. 253; Goodnow v. Smith, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 414; Brooks v. White, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 283; Guild v. Butler, 127 Mass. 386; Webb v. Goldsmith, 2 Duer

(N. Y.), 413; Frisbie v. Larned, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 450; Booth v. Smith, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 66; Le Page v. McCrea, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 164; Stagg v. Alexander, 55 Barb. (N. Y.) 70; Conkling v. King, 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 375; Bliss v. Schwartz, 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 215; 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 186; Boyd v. Hitchcock, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 76; Bunge v. Koop, 5 Rob. (N. Y.) 12; Staford v. Bacon, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 522; Currie v. Kennedy, 78 N. Car. 91; Dryden v. Stephens, 19 W. Va. 1.

But where the note of the third party is obviously void, as the note of an infant; and where such note has been successfully defended on such ground, the accord and satisfaction will be set aside as void for want of consideration. Wentworth v. Wentworth, 5 N. H. 410.

Where the note of a third person, payable to the creditor, is given in payment of a debt, but is not indorsed by the debtor, it does not extinguish the debt, but is considered only to be collateral security. Hunter v. Moul, 98 Pa. St. 13.

Where A owed B, and C owed A, it was agreed between the parties that B should receive C's note in satisfaction of his debt. C was insolvent at the time, but the fact was not known. Held, that A's debt was extinguished. Cadens v. Teasdale, 53 Vt. 469.

The giving and receiving of one obligation in lieu of another, the parties to which or some of them are different, may be pleaded as an accord and satisfaction. But to render it available the condition of one or both parties must be rendered better. Bullen v. McGillicuddy, 2 Dana (Ky.), 90; Mehan v. Thompson, 71 Me. 492.

Where a note of a third party for the full amount has been given and accepted in payment of a preceding debt, it extinguishes even a judgment debt. State Bank v. Fletcher, 5 Wend. (N. Y.) 85; Booth v. Smith, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 66; Jones v. Ransom, 3 Ind. 327; Sanders v. Branch Bank at Decatur, 13 Ala. 353.

2. Boyd v. Hitchcock, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 76; Le Page v. McCrea, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 164; Nevins v. Deperries, 1 Edm. (N. Y.) Sel. Cas. 196; Pardee v. Wood, 8 Hun (N. Y.), 584; Dolsen v. Arnold,

11. Payment by Note.—It is the well-settled rule in most of the States that a note of the debtor given and received in payment of a pre-existing debt does not extinguish the right of action on the debt, unless it be expressly so understood by the parties.<sup>1</sup> (See BILLS AND NOTES.)

10 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 529; Kellogg v. Richards, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 116; Strong v. Dean, 55 Barb. (N. Y.) 337; Gunn v. McAden, 2 Ired. (N. Car.) Eq. 79; Gordon v. Price, 10 Ired. (N. Car.) 385; Colburn v. Gould, 1 N. H. 279; Pulliam v. Taylor, 50 Miss. 251; Glenn v. Smith, 2 Gill & J. (Md.) 404; Mason v. Campbell, 27 Minn. 54; McIntyre v. Kennedy, 29 Pa. St. 448, 454; Whitsett v. Clayton, 5 Colo. 476; Maze v. Miller, 1 Wash. (U. S.) 328.

If a creditor receive from his debtor in satisfaction of his claim a note for a less sum, signed by the debtor and his wife, which all the parties at the time suppose is binding upon her, and such note is afterward paid out of her separate property, it will constitute a valid discharge of the original debt. Bowker v. Harris, 30 Vt. 424.

So is a note for less amount than the debt indorsed by a third party a good accord and satisfaction. Varney v. Conery, 77 Me. 527.

Where a promise by a debtor to pay a smaller sum than that which is due to extinguish an existing debt is reinforced by the debtor's giving, as additional security, a mortgage of real estate in which his wife joins, the pledge of her inchoate right of dower for such payment is sufficient to make it a valid accord and satisfaction. Keeler v. Salisbury, 33 N. Y. 648.

Where one party furnished another with money, and accepted a note therefor with the understanding that the payor should procure third parties to assign to himself certain liens on lands claimed by the payee, which liens the payor should hold for the benefit of the payee in satisfaction of the note, such agreement amounted to an accord and satisfaction and constituted a payment of the note. Treadwell v. Himmelmann, 50 Cal. 9.

In the absence of fraud, an acceptance by the creditor of a third person's deed of all his title in certain land may be a good consideration to sustain an agreement to take a part for the whole debt, although the title fail. Reed v. Bartlett, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 273.

When a draft upon a third person is offered by the debtor and accepted in full satisfaction by the creditor, who thereupon surrenders the evidences of indebtedness and the draft is duly paid, it amounts to a good accord and satisfaction. Stagg v. Alexander, 55 Barb. (N. Y.) 70. Compare Weddigen v. Boston Elastic Fabr. Co., 100 Mass. 422; Wentworth v. Wentworth, 5 N. H. 410.

The acceptance of an Eastern draft, though for less than the amount of a judgment, may be good as an accord and satisfaction thereof. Reid v. Hibbard, 6 Wis. 175.

But where a debtor, merely for the purpose of securing a part of the note and not by way of substitution, gives a mortgage on his own estate alone, it is a mere accord without satisfaction, and does not extinguish the debt. Platts v. Walrath, Hill & Den. Suppl. (N. Y.) 59.

The acceptance of a new security for an existing debt does not operate as a payment unless so intended by the parties. Kemmerer's Appeal, 102 Pa. St. 558.

So an assignment of property by deed to secure debts, with a power of sale on giving six months' notice, will not be a valid satisfaction, but only a collateral security even where no notice has been given; such an assignment will at no time bar an action on the original debt unless specially provided in the deed. Emes v. Widdowson, 4 C. & P. 151; Jones v. Fennimore, 1 Greene (Iowa), 134; Stone v. Miller, 16 Pa. St. 450.

1. Glenn v. Smith, 2 Gill & J. (Md.) 493; Larrabee v. Talbott, 5 Gill (Md.), 426; Wyman v. Rae, 11 Gill (Md.), 416; Mudd v. Harper, 1 Md. 110; Young v. Hibbs, 5 Nebr. 433; Jones v. Johnson, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 276; Estate of Davis, 5 Whart. (Pa.) 530; Weakly v. Bell, 9 Watts (Pa.) 273; Brown v. Olmsted, 50 Cal. 162; Steamb. Charlotte v. Hammond, 9 Mo. 59; Sellers v. Johnson, 65 N. Car. 104; Hill v. Sleeper, 58 Ind. 221; Bishop v. Welch, 35 Ind. 521; Nightingale v. Chafee, 11 R. I. 609; Wilburr v. Jernegan, 11 R. I. 113; Swain v. Frazier, 35 N. J. Eq. 326; Judge v. Fiske, 2 Speer's L. (S. Car.) 436; Exp. Williams, 17 S. Car. 396; Brown v. Duncel, 46 Mich. 29; Mason v. Warner, 43 Mich. 439; Jeffrey v. Cornish, 10 N. H. 505; Wright v. First Crockery Ware Co., 1 N. H. 281; Wil-

12. Note for Note.—The giving of a new note for an old one, which has become due, does not extinguish the old note nor the debt unless it is so expressly agreed; especially where the creditor thereby would be deprived of surety.<sup>1</sup> (See BILLS AND NOTES.)

13. Joint Obligors.—An accord and satisfaction with one of several

helm v. Schmidt, 84 Ill. 183; Dougal v. Cowles, 5 Day (Conn.), 511; Brugman v. McGuire, 32 Ark. 733; Costar v. Davies, 8 Ark. 213; Keel v. Larkin, 72 Ala. 493; Graves v. Shulman, 59 Ala. 406; Sheehy v. Mandeville, 6 Cranch (U. S.), 253; Re Hurst, 1 Flipp. (U. S.) 462; Bank of U. S. v. Daniel, 12 Pet. (U. S.) 32; Risher v. The Frolic, 1 Woods (U. S.), 92; Sibree v. Tripp, 15 M. & W. 23.

Giving a note is no payment of a book debt. It only suspends the right of action during the time allowed for payment by the note. Putnam v. Lewis, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 389; Burdick v. Green, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 247; Whitbeck v. Van Ness, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 409; Murray v. Gouverneur, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 438, note; Herring v. Sanger, 3 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 71, note; Frisbie v. Larned, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 450; Conkling v. King, 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 372; Hughes v. Wheeler, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 77; but see Myers v. Wells, 5 Hill (N. Y.), 463.

This principle does not hold good, however, when the note has been transferred. Harris v. Johnston, 3 Cranch (U. S.), 308.

In Massachusetts, Maine, and Vermont the doctrine has been held that a note given and received in payment of an antecedent account is a bar to an action on the account, whether the note is paid or not. Fowler v. Bush, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 230; Melledge v. Boston Iron Co., 5 Cush. (Mass.) 158; Wyman v. Fabeus, 111 Mass. 81; Homes v. Smyth, 16 Me. 177; Bangor v. Warren, 34 Me. 324; Shumway v. Reed, 34 Me. 560; Newall v. Hussey, 18 Me. 249; Varner v. Nobleborough, 2 Greenl. (Me.) 121; Stephens v. Thompson, 28 Vt. 77; Hutchins v. Olcott, 4 Vt. 549; Kimball v. The Anna Kimball, 2 Cliff. (U. S.) 4; Hudson v. Bradley, 2 Cliff. (U. S.) 130.

Giving a negotiable note in these States is not payment so as to prevent the vendor from retaining the goods until payment in case of the buyer's insolvency while the note is yet unnegotiated. Arnold v. Delano, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 33.

The presumption in Massachusetts that a note is payment of a contract debt is subject to qualification, and may be rebutted and controlled by evidence or by the admitted facts of the case. Parham Sewing-machine Co.

v. Brock, 113 Mass. 194; Appleton v. Parker, 15 Gray (Mass.) 176; Morton v. Austin, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 392; Taft v. Boyd, 13 Allen (Mass.), 86; Curtis v. Hubbard, 9 Metc. (Mass.) 328; Butts v. Dean, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 76; Lovell v. Williams, 125 Mass. 439; Re Clapp, 2 Low. (U. S.) 226. The same is held in Maine. Perrin v. Keene, 19 Me. 355. And in Vermont. Lazell v. Lazell, 12 Vt. 448, where it was held not to be extended to a case in which the note was lost.

The doctrine held in those States that the delivery and acceptance of a promissory note in payment of a pre-existing debt extinguishes the debt does not extend to checks, even from a third party upon a fourth. Weddigen v. Boston Elastic Fabr. Co., 100 Mass. 422; Marrett v. Brackett, 60 Me. 524.

A void note received in payment of a debt does not extinguish the debt; as in the case of a note given for a patent right, which fact was not recorded on the face of the note as required by statute. Graham's Estate, 14 Phila. (Pa.) 280.

1. Hess v. Dille, 23 W. Va. 90; Merchants' Bank v. Good, 21 W. Va. 455.

One note is paid by another when the latter is accepted as payment; and if it be negotiable the presumption is that it is so received. Weston v. Wiley, 78 Ind. 54.

Whether a new note takes the place of the old and cancels it, or the old note is actually paid and a new note is discounted for the amount of it, it is a renewal, if a renewal is intended. It is the intention of the parties and their understanding of it which makes it a renewal. Flanagan v. Hambleton, 54 Md. 222; U. S. Bank v. Bank of Georgia, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 333; Slaymaker v. Gundacker, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 83; Gault v. McGrath, 8 Casey (Pa.), 397; Hacker v. Perkins, 5 Whart. (Pa.) 95; Cake v. Lebanon Bank, 86 Pa. St. 303; Re Dixon, 2 McCrary (U. S.), 556; Auburn City Bank v. Hunsiker, 72 N. Y. 252; Second Nat. Bank v. Poucher, 56 N. Y. 348; Cadiz Bank v. Slemmons, 34 Ohio St. 142.

A note given in satisfaction of a prior one operates as a discharge, and releases the sureties thereon. Wolf v. Fink, 1 Pa. St. 435.

obligors, whether they are bound jointly or jointly and severally, discharges the others, and may be pleaded in bar by all; but to have this effect there must be a technical release under seal.<sup>1</sup>

1. Line v. Nelson, 38 N. J. L. 358; Cornell v. Masten, 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 157; Rowley v. Stoddard, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 207; Frink v. Green, 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 455; Booth v. Campbell, 15 Md. 569; Goss v. Ellison, 136 Mass. 503; American Bank v. Doolittle, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 123; Stimpson v. Poole, 141 Mass. 502; Ward v. Johnson, 13 Mass. 148; Tuckermann v. Newhall, 17 Mass. 581; Shaw v. Pratt, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 305; Smith v. Bartholemew, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 276; Burson v. Kincaid, 3 Pa. 57; U. S. v. Thompson, Gilp. (U. S.) 614; Lovejoy v. Murray, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 1; Elliott v. Holbrook, 33 Ala. 659; Brown v. Marsh, 7 Vt. 327; Vandever v. Clark, 16 Ark. 331; Armstrong v. Hayward, 6 Cal. 183; Drinkwater v. Jordan, 46 Me. 432; Berry v. Gillis, 17 N. H. 9; McAllister v. Dennin, 27 Mo. 40; Ayer v. Ashmead, 31 Conn. 447.

Accord and satisfaction with one of several inures to the benefit of all. Wallace v. Rensall, 7. M. & W. 204; Nicholson v. Revill, 4 A. & E. 675.

A release without a seal will have the same effect if the instrument itself shows a consideration. Heckman v. Manning, 4 Colo. 543.

But an unsealed instrument given without consideration in terms releasing one of several joint debtors, but expressly reserving the creditors' rights against the others, will not discharge them. Honegger v. Weinstein, 47 N. Y. Super. Ct. 125; Northern Ins. Co. v. Potter, 63 Cal. 157.

Where a creditor receives from one of a number of joint and several debtors by successive guardian bonds, a sum considerably less than the aggregate amount of their indebtedness, and gives him an instrument under seal releasing all claims against him or his representatives, and covenanting to execute any and all instruments which may be necessary to relieve the party making such payment from all liability to the other joint debtors, such instrument will have the effect of an equitable release to the other debtors of all in excess of their aliquot portion of the joint indebtedness. Dudley v. Bland, 83 N. Car. 220.

A release to one of two joint and several obligors is a release of both, but a covenant not to sue one of two obligors cannot have the effect of a release of both. Crane v. Alling, 15 N. J. L. 423; Walker v. McCulloch, 4 Me. 421; Russell v. Adderton, 64 N. Car. 417; Winston v. Dalby, 64 N. Car. 299.

An instrument not under seal purporting to discharge one of two joint debtors from his share of the debt for a consideration stated is no defence to an action against the joint debtors. McAllester v. Sprague, 34 Me. 296.

If the creditor of a corporation by an instrument under seal release a stockholder from all personal liability for his debt, he thereby discharges the corporation and the other stockholders to the same extent as the one to whom the release is executed, and if it be only for his proportion of the debt the company and other stockholders are released pro tanto. Prince v. Lynch, 38 Cal. 528; Phoenix Bank v. Bumstead, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 77.

The voluntary release of one joint-judgment debtor releases his co-defendant. Lamb v. Gregory, 12 Neb. 506; U. S. v. Thompson, Gilp. (U. S.) 614; Collier v. Field, 1 Mon. Terr. 612.

A mere judgment against one of several co-debtors without execution will not be an accord and satisfaction so as to discharge the co-debtors. McLaurine v. Monroe, 30 Mo. 462.

An accord and satisfaction with one of several joint debtors on payment of his proportion of the debt does not discharge the others if it was not the intention of the parties. Burke v. Noble, 48 Pa. St. 168; Noble v. Burke, 5 Phila. (Pa.) 526.

In Tennessee it was held that the jury, under proper instructions, must judge whether the effect of a release of the obligor in an instrument was to discharge a co-obligor entirely or to discharge one from the joint liability for his co-obligor's half of the obligation. Richardson v. McLemore, 5 Baxt. (Tenn.) 586.

In the same State accord and satisfaction to be a valid release need not be under seal, although it must be signed. An unsigned entry on a note, "Received of M. $1063, his part, principal and interest of this to date," was held not to operate as a release to M., and parol evidence was not admissible to show that such release was intended by the parties. Simpson v. Moore, 6 Baxt. (Tenn.) 371.

A judgment confessed by one partner operates as a satisfaction and releases the firm. Frisbie v. Larned, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 450.

A creditor of a dissolved partnership accepted in part satisfaction of his claim

14. Joint Tort-feasors.—A written instrument given to one of two joint tort-feasors, and reciting the receipt from him of a certain sum "as full payment as per claim," is a bar to an action against the other tort-feasors, and oral evidence is inadmissible to show that the sum paid was intended to be received as part and not as full payment.<sup>1</sup>

the note of one of the partners, and promised to discharge the maker from liability for the partnership debt. Held, to be an effectual release of the other partners. Luddington v. Bell, 77 N. Y. 138; s. c., 33 Am. Rep. 601; Waydell v. Luer, 3 Den. (N. Y.) 410; Arnold v. Camp, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 409; Gray v. Brown, 22 Ala. 262.

But a release of one partner does not release the other if the release so provides. Williams v. Hitchings, 10 Lea (Tenn.), 326.

So it was held not to be the release of a partnership debt, but merely a covenant to indemnify the partner who paid the money, where the creditor, upon receiving nearly one half of the amount of a partnership's obligation from one of the partners, signed a receipt which contained the following clause: "I do hereby consent and agree that the other partners shall and will duly pay the balance on said obligation without further cost and detriment to said T." (the paying partner). Hendrick v. O'Neill, 48 Ga. 631.

1. Goss v. Ellison, 136 Mass. 503.

Accord and satisfaction by one of several obligors or wrong-doers is a satisfaction as to all; and a partial satisfaction by one of several wrong-doers is a satisfaction pro tanto as to all. Merchants' Bank v. Curtis, 37 Barb. (N. Y.) 317.

Where the amount of damages for an injury by two or more joint tort-feasors to plaintiff is undecided, and not susceptible of estimation, the release of one of them for a certain sum releases them all—Long v. Long, 57 Iowa, 497; Urton v. Price, 57 Cal. 270—unless the creditor has expressly renewed his right against the other debtors. Irwin v. Scribner, 15 La. Ann. 583. And this holds good even where it was provided that the other defendants were not to be affected by the stipulation, and that plaintiff reserved all rights against them. Mitchell v. Allen, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 543.

After judgment has been rendered, the tort-feasors become joint debtors, and the judgment creditor may compromise with one and discharge him from liability, without affecting the liability of the others for the balance remaining due on the judgment or discharging them therefrom. Irvine v. Millbank, 36 N. Y. Super. Ct. 264.

In an action against two joint carriers for negligence, a parol release of one before suit, was considered a release of both, though the release had been made at the request of the party not released, and with the express understanding that it should not affect the rights of the plaintiff against this party. Bronson v. Fitzhugh, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 185.

In an action of trespass against two persons for assault and battery, judgment was obtained against one by default. The plaintiff, while suit against the second one was pending, released the judgment against the first defendant, in order to render him a competent witness. Held, that the release discharged both defendants. Allen v. Wheatley, 3 Blackf. (Ind.) 332.

So where a convict, injured by the negligence of the contractors under whom he was employed, received compensation from the State, he was debarred from suing the contractors. Metz v. Soule, 40 Iowa, 236.

Where the facts in the case are such that the amount of damages sustained by the injured party can be made certain, it becomes a question of fact for the court and the jury to decide whether he has received full satisfaction for his injuries through an accord and satisfaction with one of the defendants. In such a case, a release of one of the wrong-doers, not under seal, will be explained according to the intention of the parties, and a release of one will not release all. Ellis v. Esson, 50 Wis. 138; Brown v. Cambridge, 3 Allen (Mass.), 475; Stone v. Dickinson, 5 Allen (Mass.), 29; Shaw v. Pratt, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 307; Pond v. Williams, 1 Gray (Mass.), 630, 636; McCrillis v. Hawes, 38 Me. 568; Gilpatrick v. Hunter, 24 Me. 18; Eastman v. Green, 34 Vt. 390; Spencer v. Williams, 2 Vt. 209; Chamberlin v. Murphy, 41 Vt. 110; Sloan v. Herrick, 49 Vt. 328; Ellis v. Bitzer, 2 Ohio, 89; Knickerbacker v. Colver, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 111; Matthews v. Chicopee Co., 3 Robt. (N. Y.) 712; Bank v. Messenger, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 37; Irvine v. Milbank, 15 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) N. S. 378.

15. Joint Makers of a Note.—The discharge of one maker of a joint and several note discharges all the joint makers.<sup>1</sup> (See BILLS AND NOTES.)

16. Joint Creditors.—An accord and satisfaction with one of two or more joint creditors bars an action by the other creditors against the debtor.<sup>2</sup>

17. Fraud and Misrepresentations.—Accord and satisfaction procured by the debtor's wilfully misrepresenting or suppressing any

Merchants' Bank v. Curtis, 37 Barb. (N. Y.) 319; Snow v. Chandler, 10 N. H. 92; Bloss v. Plymale, 3 W. Va. 393; Line v. Nelson, 38 N. J. L. 358; Gunther v. Lee, 45 Md. 60; Bonney v. Bonney, 29 Iowa. 448; Neligh v. Bradford, 1 Nebr. 451.

So, where a release of one of several obligors showed upon its face, and in connection with the surrounding circumstances, that it was not the intention of the parties to release the co-obligors, and the court was convinced that the whole scheme of procuring a separate release of one of the obligors was a plan of all for escaping the full payment of an honest debt, the instrument was construed merely as a covenant not to sue, and the co-obligors were held not to be discharged. Parmelee v. Lawrence, 44 Ill. 405.

A release under seal, however, of one of several joint wrong-doers releases them all. The sealed instrument implies a sufficient consideration for the release, and a proviso reserving the right of action against the others is void. Ruble v. Turner, 2 Hen. & Mun. (Va.) 88; Gilpatrick v. Hunter, 24 Me. 18; Gunther v. Lee, 45 Md. 60.

In Alabama, all releases take effect according to the intentions of the parties, and an acceptance of a partial satisfaction from one joint trespasser, with receipt accordingly, is only available to the others as part satisfaction. Smith v. Gayle, 58 Ala. 600.

1. Crawford v. Roberts, 8 Ore. 324.

But the mere promise to release one of the makers of a joint and several note because of his paying a part thereof is without lawful consideration, and void. Smith v. Bartholomew, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 256; Small v. Older, 57 Iowa. 326.

C. & W. gave a joint and several note to H. for $71. H. made a verbal agreement with W. that if he would pay him $21.55 he would not call on W. for the payment of the note, but would look to C. for the residue. W. thereupon paid the $21.55, which was indorsed on the note. H. afterward brought an action on the note against C. & W., and they pleaded the agreement with H. and the acceptance of the $21.55 in bar of the action. It was held that the agreement between H. and W. and the acceptance of the $21.55 was no satisfaction of the note, nor bar to plaintiff's action. Harrison v. Close, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 448.

2. Austin v. Hall, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 286; Decker v. Livingston, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 479; Myrick v. Dame, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 248; Kimball v. Wilson, 3 N. H. 96. But see Upjohn v. Ewing, 2 Ohio St. 13; Reigart v. Ellmaker, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 121; Eisenhart v. Slaymaker, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 153.

A and B bought a quantity of railroad iron on joint account and sold the iron to a corporation in their joint name. After the sale A settled with the corporation, taking in payment part cash and part railroad stock and giving a receipted bill for the price of the iron in full with interest. B afterward commenced a suit against the railroad company for his proportion of the amount, joining A as plaintiff. It was held that the settlement made by A with the corporation released the latter from liability. Osborn v. Martha's Vineyard R. Co., 140 Mass. 549.

So is accord and satisfaction with one partner of a firm good against the other partners, and a release by one partner will be a release by all. Yandes v. Lefavour, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 371; Gregg v. James, 1 Ill. 107; White v. Jones, 14 La. Ann. 681; Vanderburgh v. Bassett, 4 Minn. 242; Allen v. Farrington, 2 Sneed (Tenn.), 526; Scott v. Trent, 1 Wash. (Va.) 77; Salmon v. Davis, 4 Binn. (Pa.) 375; Noyes v. New Haven, etc., R. Co., 30 Conn. 1; Doremus v. McCormick, 7 Gill (Md.), 49.

Where one partner signs a general release to a debtor of the firm and it does not appear to what demands it is intended to apply, or that the subscribing partner has any separate demand against the debtor, the release will be a discharge from debts due to the partnership. Emerson v. Knower, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 63.

ACCORD AND SATISFACTION—ACCORDING.

material fact in the statement of his affairs is void; and a sealed release based thereon will be set aside.<sup>1</sup>

18. When Set Aside.—An accord and satisfaction will be set aside if it is shown that the parties to the transaction were mutually mistaken in regard to some facts.<sup>2</sup>

ACCORDING.—The words "according to" a contract, or law, or statute imply that everything has been done in compliance with the terms of the instrument, law, or statute referred to, it being understood that the construction of the law or statute is governed by the recognized principles of the law at the time the words were used.<sup>3</sup>

1. Stafford v. Bacon, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 532; Dolsen v. Arnold, 10 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 531; Pierce v. Drake, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 475; Willson v. Foree, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 110; Central Bank v. Pindar, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 467; Baker v. Spencer, 58 Barb. (N. Y.) 248; Brown v. Montgomery, 20 N. Y. 287; Delaware Bank v. Jarvis, 20 N. Y. 226; Galoupeau v. Ketchum, 3 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 175; Bridge v. Batchelder, 9 Allen (Mass.), 394; Ilisley v. Jewett, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 168; Abercrombie v. Mosely, 9 Port. (Ala.) 145; Maynard v. Johnson, 4 Ala. 116; Mooring v. Mobile Marine Ins. Co., 27 Ala. 254; Long v. Spruill, 7 Jones (N. Car.), 96; Reynolds v. French, 8 Vt. 85; Watson v. Owens, 1 Rich. (S. Car.) 111; Newall v. Hussey, 18 Me. 249; Comstock v. Smith, 23 Me. 202; Pope v. Tunstall, 2 Ark. 209; Cave v. Hall, 5 Mo. 59; Slocumb v. Holmes, 2 Miss. 139.

A composition and discharge will be set aside where it was induced by representations of insolvency and poverty, while the debtor previously had made a fraudulent conveyance of his property. Richards v. Hunt, 6 Vt. 251; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 545.

Where no consideration has passed, equity will not enforce the execution of a release given by a layman in plain ignorance of the law, when dealing with a lawyer and led by him to do the very opposite of what he at the time expressed his intention to do, and this although no false statement was made. Mellon v. Webster, 5 Mo. App. (Mo.) 449.

A person injured by alleged negligence of the servants of a railroad company executed a paper purporting to be a written release discharging his right of action against the company for his injuries. The release was signed by him while he was under the influence of opiates administered to alleviate his pains caused by said injuries, he being unable to understand what he was doing. The release was set aside as void. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Doyle, 18 Kan. 58.

Where a judgment debtor furnished his own money to a third party with instructions to buy from his creditor the judgment against him for a smaller amount in full satisfaction of the whole, and this third party did so satisfy the judgment without disclosing the real facts, it was held that such satisfaction was void and the payment only partial. Shaw v. Clark, 6 Vt. 507; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 578.

A release by an ignorant woman who was injured by the negligence of a company, and which release was signed by her during the illness caused by said injuries, and upon the inducements of the company's physician who attended her, and in the absence of her friends, was held to be void. Eagle Packet Co. v. Defries, 94 Ill. 598.

A release to be available as a bar to an action at law must have been obtained while the signer was absolutely free from duress, as in the case of a seaman who gave a release to the master of a vessel of all claims for damages for assault and battery. Such release must appear to be a reasonable satisfaction. Mitchell v. Pratt, Taney (U. S.), 448; Rourke v. Story, 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 54.

2. Calkin v. Griswold, 11 Hun (N. Y.), 210; Burr v. Veeder, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 412; Mowatt v. Wright, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 355, 360; Wheadon v. Olds, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 174.

But where the accord was made upon the advice of a third party, who was mistaken as to some facts, the consequent satisfaction formed a bar to further action if the principals in the transaction were not mistaken about the facts. Thompson v. Bennett's Adm'r, 34 Mo. 477.

A condition of an accord agreement, like that of any other contract, may be waived by both parties. Cary v. McIntyre, 7 Colo. 173.

3. The words "according to the form of the statute" at the head of the proclamations, indorsed on a fine, import that

ACCOUNT—ACCOUNT STATED. See ACCOUNT RENDER; AGENCY; ATTORNEY AND CLIENT; AUDITOR; BOOKS AS EVIDENCE; EXECUTOR AND ADMINISTRATOR; GUARDIAN AND WARD; INTEREST; LIMITATIONS; PARTNERSHIP; TRUSTS.

- |                                     |                                     |
|-------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 1. Definition.               | 10. Third Parties.           |
| 2. Open Account.             | 11. Set-off.                 |
| 3. Settled Account.          | 12. Illegal.                 |
| 4. Account Stated.           | 13. New Promise.             |
| 5. Official Accounts.        | 14. Balance.                 |
| 6. How Stated.               | 15. Interest.                |
| 7. Acquiescence, Admissions. | 16. Parties not Merchants.   |
| 8. Reasonable Time.          | 17. Opening the Account.     |
| 9. To Whom Stated.           | 18. Surcharging, Falsifying. |

1. Definition.—An account is a list or statement of monetary transactions, such as payments, purchases, sales, debts, credits, etc., in most cases showing a balance or result of comparison between items of an opposite nature, e.g., receipts and payments.<sup>1</sup>

A detailed statement of the mutual demands in the nature of debt and credit between parties, arising out of contracts or some fiduciary relation.<sup>2</sup>

the fine was proclaimed as required by the statute. Doe v. Harrison, 3 B. & Ad. 765.

Where coaches and cabriolets are allowed by statute to stand in certain places, according to the statutes made for that purpose, and a subsequent statute gives the vestrymen of a church a right to make certain regulations as to where a certain stand should be, a coach or cabriolet, after a prohibition from the vestrymen, from such stand cannot be said to stand there, according to the statutes, and may be impounded. Frost v. Williams, 7 Ad. & Ell. 773.

The insertion of a clause in a bond enlarging it so as to include a subsequent advance, the accompanying mortgage remaining unchanged, does not affect the operation of the mortgage, nor enlarge the meaning of the words "according to the conditions of said bond" in said mortgage so as to include the advance. Stoddard v. Hart, 23 N. Y. 556.

From the averment that defendant "subscribed for twenty shares of the capital stock," etc., "according to the statute incorporating the company," etc., it would be intended that he had done everything required by the charter in order to become a subscriber, and especially so on general demurrer. Fiser v. Railroad Co., 32 Miss. 360.

A devise to the next male heir nearest in kindred and relation to testator "according to law" was construed to mean that the estate should go in the same manner the law would have given it to the heir of the testator. McIntyre v. Ramsey, 23 Penn. 317.

An averment that an affidavit was made according to law will be held to mean within the time required by law. McElhaney v. Gilleland, 30 Ala. 183.

Where a statute provides that appeals from justices must be tried, according to equity and justice without regard to any defect in the summons, or other process before the justice, a defect in a notice cannot be considered on appeal. Abrams v. Johnson, 65 Ala. 465.

1. Sweet's Law Dict.

2. Bouvier's Law Dict.

The term implies that one is responsible to another for moneys or other things, either on the score of contract or of some fiduciary relation of a public or private nature, created by law or otherwise. Whitwell v. Willard, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 216. It cannot include a claim to have taxes on land refunded on the ground that they were excessive through the wrongful and illegal conduct of the assessor. Stringham v. Winnebago Co., 24 Wis. 594.

A statement of a balance of account without disclosing debits and credits is not an account. A balance is but the conclusion or result of the debit and credit sides of an account. An account is a detailed statement of mutual demands in the matter of debt and credit between parties, arising out of contract or some fiduciary relation. McWilliams v. Allan, 45 Mo. 573.

2. Open Accounts.—An open account is one in which some item of the contract is not settled by the parties, whether the account consists of one item or many; or where there have been running or current dealings between the parties, and the account is kept open with the expectation of further dealings.<sup>1</sup>

3. Settled Accounts.—A voluntary settlement of accounts between parties affords presumption that all items properly chargeable at the time were included. This presumption is not conclusive, but clear and convincing proof that such items were unintentionally omitted is necessary to sustain a subsequent claim to recover them.<sup>2</sup>

Account as used in a bequest of "all my accounts" does not include a savings-bank account. Gale v. Drake, 51 N. H. 78.

The fact that a person has a copy of an account against another person is no evidence that he is the owner, nor is it any evidence of authority to collect it. Dutcher v. Beckwith, 45 Ill. 460.

1. Sheppard v. Wilkins, 1 Ala. 62; Goodwin v. Harrison, 6 Ala. 438. Every new item in a running open account draws with it all preceding items. Ring v. Jamison, 2 Mo. App. 584.

Where all the items in an account relate to one transaction, it constitutes a continuous account, regardless of intervening statements of balance. Lamb v. Hanneman, 40 Iowa, 41.

A creditor is not bound to furnish an itemized account before bringing suit for amount due. Foster v. Newbrough, 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 645.

Where the facts show various transactions running through a series of years, entirely separate and independent, and payment made on items wholly disconnected with prior transactions, it is not an instance of a running account. Compton v. Johnson, 1 West. Repr. (Mo.) 395.

2. Bull v. Harris, 31 Ill. 487; Lee v. Reed, 4 Dana (Ky.), 109; Kennedy v. Williamson, 5 Jones L. (N. Car.) 284; Stebbins v. Niles, 25 Miss. 267; Leighton v. Grant, 20 Minn. 345; Rowell v. Marcy, 47 Vt. 627; Lockwood v. Thorne, 18 N. Y. 285; McNeil v. Baker, 6 W. Va. 153.

A settled account will, generally, be deemed conclusive between the parties, unless some fraud, mistake, omission, or inaccuracy is alleged and shown. Ruffner v. Hewitt, 7 W. Va. 585. See Bull v. Harris, 31 Ill. 487; Lee v. Reed, 4 Dana (Ky.), 109; Farmer v. Barnes, 3 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 109; Kennedy v. Williamson, 5 Jones L. (N. Car.) 284; Bourke v. James, 4 Mich. 336; Mills v. Geron, 22 Ala. 669.

In an assumpsit for work and labor the plaintiff cannot avoid a settlement of the account between himself and the defendant for mistakes or errors in items thereof. Such avoidance can only be had in an action to set aside the settlement. Roach v. Gilmer, 3 Utah, 389.

An account settled cannot be opened if it appears that the plaintiff was aware when he made the settlement of the facts on which he bases his claim to relief. Quinlan v. Keiser, 66 Mo. 603.

Where on the settlement of an account the debtor agrees to give his note for the balance, but fails to do so, the account becomes due immediately. Kronenberg v. Binz, 56 Mo. 121.

The execution of a note raises a presumption that all matters between the parties up to that date have been settled. Allen v. Bryson, 25 N. W. Repr. (Iowa) 820; Grimmell v. Warner, 21 Iowa, 12.

A payment made and accepted as an adjustment of an unsettled or unliquidated demand will operate as a satisfaction, although shown to be much less than the creditor was entitled to receive and would have received had he brought an action. The fact that the creditor dissented at the time of the settlement can make no difference, if he finally accepted the debtor's offer and agreed to the settlement. Roach v. Gilmer, 3 Utah, 389.

A settlement between the parties is prima facie to be taken as a settlement of all demands, but is not conclusive, and is no bar to a recovery for matter not included in the settlement, though existing at the time, and evidence is admissible to show that certain matters were not so included. Normandin v. Gratton, 12 Oreg. 505; s. c., 8 Pac. Repr. 653.

The mere settlement of an account does not in itself constitute an agreement, or amount to a contract, though there may be evidence of a contract. Peterson v. U. S., 2 Wash. (U. S.) 40. See 1 Myers Fed. Dec. 21.

4. Account Stated.—When two persons, having had monetary transactions together, close the account by agreeing to the balance appearing to be due from one of them, this is called an account stated. It is of importance from the fact that it operates as an admission of liability by the person against whom the balance appears; or, in the language of the common law, "the law implies that he against whom the balance appears has engaged to pay it to the other;" and on this implied promise or admission an action may be brought.<sup>1</sup>

A settled account may be corrected when proved to have been made under a mutual mistake as to important facts. Newell v. Smith, 3 Atl. Repr. (Conn.) 674.

1. Sweet's Law Dict.; Black Com. 111, 164; Chitty on Contracts, 599 et seq.; Reinhardt v. Hines, 51 Miss. 344; McCall v. Nave, 52 Miss. 494; Stebbins v. Niles, 25 Miss. 267; Hawkins v. Long, 74 N. Car. 781; Stenton v. Jerome, 54 N. Y. 480; May v. Kloss, 44 Mo. 300; Zacarino v. Pallotti, 49 Conn. 360.

An account closed is not an account stated. Bass v. Bass, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 187; Volkening v. De Graaf, 81 N. Y. 268; Mandeville v. Wilson, 5 Cranch. (U. S.) 15. See ACCOUNT SETTLED, ante.

An account stated must be made with knowledge, or opportunity of knowledge, on the part of the debtor of all the circumstances. Kinney v. Heatley, 7 Pac. Repr. (Oregon) 359.

An account stated is an agreement between persons who have had previous transactions, fixing the amount due in respect to such transactions, as distinguished from a mere admission or acknowledgment. It is a new cause of action. It is not a contract upon a new consideration, and does not create an estoppel, but establishes prima facie the accuracy of the items charged without further proof. McKinster v. Hitchcock, 26 N. W. Repr. (Neb.) 705.

The mere rendering of an account does not make it an account stated, and an omission to object to it raises only a presumption of assent, which may be rebutted by circumstances tending to a contrary inference. Guernsey v. Rexford, 63 N. Y. 631.

An account stated may consist of but a single bill of goods. 2 Chitty on Contr. (11th ed.) 962; Cobb v. Arundell, 26 Wis. 553; Highmore v. Primrose, 5 M. & S. 65; Lane v. Hill, 18 Q. B. 252. Compare Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 29 Alb. L. J. 85.

Where the account is stated with reference to only one item, that item must consist of a debt then due and owing. Lemere v. Elliott, 6 H. & N. 656; Gough v. Findon, 7 Exch. 48; Lubbock v. Tribe, 3 M. & W. 607; Tucker v. Barrow, 7 B. & C. 623; Green v. Davies, 4 B. & C. 235; Whitehead v. Howard, 5 Moore, 105.

The charges may all be on one side. 2 Chitty on Contr. (11th Am. Ed.) 962; Rutledge v. Moore, 9 Mo. 537; Kock v. Bonitz, 4 Daly (N. Y.), 117.

Where the evidence of plaintiffs showed that defendants had rendered statements of purchases and sales of stocks as they were severally made, and monthly statements of account, and that when the account was finally closed there was a balance shown to be due to plaintiffs by defendants' books, for which balance plaintiffs received a check as payment, such acceptance of the check was an adjustment of the account; and the evidence did not tend to show a cause of action, and the jury were properly directed to find for the defendants. Pyncheon v. Day, 5 West'n Repr. (Ill.) 698.

Principles.—An account stated is a demand on one side which is admitted on the other for a definite amount due; and the admission must be voluntary, but need not be in express terms. Powell v. Pacific R. Co., 65 Mo. 658.

The acknowledgment must be unqualified. Calvert v. Baker, 4 M. & W. 417; Evans v. Verity, R. & M. 239.

To maintain an action upon an account stated, an account balanced and rendered, with an assent to the balance, express or implied, must be proved. Volkening v. De Graaf, 81 N. Y. 268. See Cape Girardeau, etc., R. Co. v. Kimmel, 58 Mo. 83.

Admission of balance due on account renders a party liable in account stated. Tassey v. Church, 4 Watts & S. (Pa.) 141; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 65.

If the agreement as to amount due is the result of an error in regard to the items, or in the computation of interest,

The simple rendering of an account between the parties and agreeing upon the amount due are sufficient facts on which to it is not conclusive. Town v. Wood, 37 Ill. 512.

It is not necessary to prove an express promise to pay. Claire v. Claire, 10 Neb. 54. See Cochrane v. Allen, 58 N. H. 250; Atwater v. Fowler, 1 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 417; Terry v. Sickles, 13 Cal. 427; Stebbins v. Niles, 25 Miss. 267. Compare Killam v. Preston, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 15.

An account cannot be stated with reference to a debt payable on a contingency. Baker v. Heard, 5 Exch. 959.

To prove an account stated, it is not always necessary to show actual examination and assent. Receipt by the party, and the elapsing of a reasonable time without any objection to the account, are an implied admission that the account is correct, and truly though not conclusively stated. Benites v. Hampton, 3 Utah, 369; s. c., 3 Pac. Repr. 206.

Where there are cross-demands, it is not necessary that the items should consist of debts due in presenti, or that they should be legal debts; but equitable claims may also be brought into the account. Laycock v. Pickles, 4 B. & S. 497.

But where the account is stated with reference to only one item, that item must consist of a debt then due and owing. Lemere v. Elliott, 6 H. & N. 656; Gough v. Findon, 7 Exch. 48; Tucker v. Barrow, 7 B. & C. 623; Whitehead v. Howard, 5 Moore, 105.

An agreement to pay future compound interest cannot be enforced as an account stated. Young v. Hill, 67 N. Y. 162; s. c. 23 m. Rep. 99.

An account stated cannot be based on an appraisal where it does not appear that both parties mutually agreed on the appraisers, or recognized them as authorized to bind them by their action. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Peters, 45 Mich. 636. See Bates v. Townley, 2 Exch. 152.

The omission of a debtor to dispute the accuracy of an account within a reasonable time after it is presented to him has no further effect than to enable the creditor to recover the amount of it without proof of the correctness of any of its items. It is not an estoppel, but the account is still open to impeachment for errors and mistakes, and the debtor may still insist upon the statute of limitations as a defence. Bucklin v. Chapin, 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 443.

An account examined and signed by the parties will be deemed a stated account, notwithstanding it contains the phrase "errors excepted." Branger v. Chevalier, 9 Cal. 353.

Where the uncontroverted testimony before a referee disclosed that there was an account stated between the parties on a certain date, and it also appears by the referee's own report that he could not have arrived at the conclusion held in said report without holding that the parties were not bound by said stated account, held, that this was error, and that the report of the referee should not have been confirmed. Killops v. Stevens, 29 N. W. Repr. (Wis.) 390.

Persons not Concluded.—An insane person, nor an infant, is not concluded by an account stated. 1 Chitty's Cont. (11th Am. Ed.) 187, and cases cited. Nor an ignorant person who cannot read. Guenivet v. Perret, 18 La. Ann. 356. Compare Stewart v. Connor, 13 Ala. 94.

A kept cash with a banker, and the balances to his credit were stated from time to time in a pass-book. He became a lunatic, but the account continued to be kept by his family; and in the pass-book, the entries in which were in the banker's handwriting, a balance was stated to the credit of A. Held, that this was not evidence to support a count on an account stated with A, in an action by his representative against the banker to recover the amount of such balance. Tarback v. Bispham, 2 M. & W. 2.

Although the party who receives the account stated may be estopped to deny its correctness by omission to object, the principle does not apply to the party who furnishes the account; as to him, it contains certain admissions and is generally regarded as correct, but it is nevertheless open to explanation for any omissions or mistakes. Schettler v. Smith, 2 J. & Sp. (N. Y.) 17. See Nau-man v. Zoerhlaut, 21 Wis. 472.

The presentation by a party to his debtor of an account in which he charges a gross sum for services does not preclude the creditor from showing what the services were reasonably worth, and recovering a larger sum than that at which they were so charged by him. Williams v. Glenney, 16 N. Y. 389; Stryker v. Cassidy, 76 N. Y. 50; Harrison v. Ayers, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 336.

When a party to whom a bill for services is presented for payment, upon paying a part of the amount, objects to maintain an action;<sup>1</sup> but if one of the parties does not agree to the balance, an action upon an account stated cannot be maintained.<sup>2</sup>

An admission by a party of a specific amount as due, which amount is the balance of an account, will empower the court to give judgment for such sum as an account stated.<sup>3</sup>

Although an account stated may be founded upon a mere equitable liability, it must be a direct liability from the defendant to the plaintiff.<sup>4</sup>

If the plaintiff declare upon an account stated with him in a representative character,—for instance, as executor,—it must appear that the defendant admitted that the debt was due to the plaintiff in that character.<sup>5</sup>

5. Official Account.—An account stated by an accounting officer is not conclusive nor prima-facie evidence of the indebtedness of the government, nor can an action be brought upon it.<sup>6</sup>

the bill, it does not become an account stated, so as to conclude the party presenting it, or prevent his recovering what his services were worth. Brownson v. Hoffman, 7 Hun (N. Y.), 674.

But where, previous to signing, a party objects to the items in the statement of an account as incorrect, but afterwards signs it as correct, he waives his objections to the account. Roach v. Gilmer, 3 Utah, 389; McDaniels v. Lapham, 21 Vt. 222; McDaniels v. Bank, 29 Vt. 230.

When a sum of money is secured by a deed and a balance is struck for the purpose of ascertaining how much remains due thereon, and the obligor admits the correctness of the account and promises to pay it, an action will not lie as on a stated account, but must be brought upon the security. Young v. Hill, 67 N. Y. 162; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 99. See Middleditch v. Ellis, 2 Exch. 623.

1. Hutchinson v. Market Bank, 48 Barb. (N. Y.), 302; Cobb v. Arundell, 26 Wis. 553; Claire v. Claire, 10 Neb. 54; Knowles v. Michel, 13 East, 249.

2. Cape Girardeau, etc., R. Co. v. Kimmel, 58 Mo. 83; Volkening v. De Graaf, 81 N. Y. 268; Porter v. Cooper, 1 C. M. & R. 387.

Where, in an action, plaintiff failed to show any assent, express or implied, on the part of defendants, that they were indebted to plaintiff in the balance claimed and no amendment of the pleadings was asked, held, that a dismissal of the complaint was proper, although there might have been some evidence of indebtedness. Volkening v. De Graaf, 81 N. Y. 268.

3. May v. Klass, 44 Mo. 300.

4. Chitty's Cont. (11th Am. Ed.) 962.

Baker v. Heard, 5 Exch. 959; Petch v. Lyon, 9 Q. B. 147.

The defendant promised the plaintiff, orally, that if certain goods were supplied to A, a third party, he would see the plaintiff paid for them. The plaintiff accordingly supplied the goods, and A left the country without having paid for them. The defendant subsequently orally acknowledged his liability to the plaintiff for the price of the goods. Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover, upon the account stated, founded upon the acknowledgment; for, although the admission of a liability to pay a liquidated sum is prima-facie evidence of an account stated, evidence had been properly given to show the nature of the consideration upon which it was founded; and, it appearing that the sum acknowledged was not the subject of a direct liability from the defendant to the plaintiff, a verdict for the defendant had been rightly entered. Wilson v. Marshall, 2 Ir. R. C. L. 356; 14 W. R. 699—Exch. Cham.

The circumstance that the Statute of Frauds bars a party from recovering upon a mere parol contract does not prevent the liability created thereby from forming a good ground for an action founded upon a subsequent statement of accounts between the parties. Id.

5. Chitty's Cont. (11th Am. ed.) 964.

6. McKnight v. U. S., 13 Ct. of Cl. 292. U. S. Treasury settlements are only prima-facie evidence of the correctness of the balance certified; it is competent for accounting officers to correct mistakes and to restate the balance. Soule v. U. S., 100 U. S. 8; s. c., B'k 25,

6. How Stated.—To make an account stated there must be a mutual agreement between the parties as to the allowance or disallowance of their respective claims; and to establish such an account so as to preclude a party from impeaching it, save for fraud or mistake, there must be proof of assent to the account as rendered, either express or implied from failure to object within a reasonable time after presentation.<sup>1</sup>

L. C. P. Co. 536; U. S. v. Eckford, 1 How. (U. S.) 250.

In suits brought by the government against individuals, no claim for a credit shall be admitted upon trial unless it has been presented to the accounting officers of the Treasury and by them disallowed. Railroad Co. v. U. S., 101 U. S. 453; s. c., B'k 25, L. C. P. Co. 1068; Halliburton v. U. S., 13 Wall. (U. S.) 63; s. c., B'k 20, L. C. P. Co. 533; U. S. v. Giles, 9 Cranch (U. S.), 212.

In Hunt v. Edger, 93 Ind. 311, the court said: "The inference, therefore, appears to us to be obvious that the annual settlement of a county treasurer with the county commissioners, as to its conclusiveness, ought to rest, and does in fact rest, upon substantially the same basis as that occupied by formal settlements made by private parties having mutual dealings, and presumably representing adverse interests."

In Washington Co. v. Parlier, 5 Gilm. (Ill.) 232, an action against a collector of revenue for failing to pay over an alleged amount of public money still remaining in his hands, the court said: "In making this settlement, the commissioners act as the agents of the county, and do not adjudicate as a court. They could enter up no judgment against the defendant for the balance found due, nor have they any means of enforcing payment of such balance, except by a resort to the ordinary courts of law. As the fiscal agents of the county, their mistakes may be inquired into and corrected as well as those of an individual acting in his own behalf. The record of this settlement is but a memorandum of the transaction, and is only prima-facie evidence of the correctness of the result stated."

The rule of the construction thus announced by the Supreme Court of Illinois is supported by apparently well-considered cases in other States. Supervisors v. Birdsall, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 453; People ex rel. v. Supervisors, 65 N. Y. 222; Supervisors v. Jones, 19 Wis. 61; County of Marion v. Phillips, 45 Mo. 75; State v. Roberts, 62 Mo. 388; Howe v. State, 53 Miss. 57.

1 C. of L.—8

1. Lockwood v. Thorn, 11 N. Y. 170, 18 N. Y. 290; Stenton v. Jerome, 54 N. Y. 480; Volkening v. De Graaf, 81 N. Y. 268; Avery v. Leach, 9 Hun (N. Y.), 106; Kock v. Bonitz, 4 Daly (N. Y.), 117; Bruen v. Hone, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 586; Hutchinson v. Market Bank, 48 Barb. (N. Y.) 302; Homes v. DeCamp, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 34; Union Bank v. Knapp, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 96; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 181; Tharp v. Tharp, 15 Vt. 105; Brown v. Van Dyke, 8 N. J. Eq. 795; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 250; Robertson v. Wright, 17 Pratt (Va.), 534; Rufner v. Hewitt, 7 W. Va. 585; Reinhart v. Hines, 51 Miss. 344; Anding v. Levy, 57 Miss. 51; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 435; McCall v. Nave, 52 Miss. 494; Stebbins v. Niles, 25 Miss. 267; Coopwood v. Bolton, 26 Miss. 212; Langdon v. Roane, 6 Ala. 518; Darby v. Lastropes, 28 La. Ann. 605; Mansell v. Payne, 18 La. Ann. 124; Terry v. Sickles, 13 Cal. 427; Pulliam v. Booth, 21 Ark. 420; Cape Girardeau, etc., R. Co. v. Kimmel, 58 Mo. 83; May v. Kloss, 44 Mo. 300; White v. Hampton, 10 Iowa, 238; Bouslog v. Garrett, 39 Ind. 338; Cobb v. Arundell, 26 Wis. 553; Albrecht v. Gies, 33 Mich. 389; White v. Campbell, 25 Mich. 463; Smith v. Kennedy, 1 Wash. Ter. 55; Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129; Lane v. Hill, 18 Q. B. 252; Calvert v. Baker, 4 M. & W. 417; Lemere v. Elliott, 6 H. & N. 656.

The rule applies to accounts between merchants residing in different countries. Freeland v. Heron, 7 Cranch (U. S.), 147; 1 Myer's Fed. Dec. 21, § 17; Stebbins v. Niles, 25 Miss. 267; Murray v. Toland, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 569; Bainbridge v. Wilcocks, 1 Baldw. (U. S.) 539; 1 Myer's Fed. Dec. 21, § 17.

What Transactions amount to Statement of Account between Parties generally.—Where A was shown an account, and he objected to one of the items, but made no remark with respect to the rest, held, evidence of an account stated by him of the items of the account to which no objection was made. Chisman v. Count, 2 M. & G. 317; 2 Scott N. R. 569.

But receiving an account rendered,

The defendant must be shown not only to have admitted a debt, but also, expressly or by inference, he must have acknowledged that some certain amount of money was due from him. The acknowledgment must be unqualified, and not contingent or in the alternative.<sup>1</sup> and making no objection, or admitting its correctness, does not preclude the debtor, when sued upon it, from controverting particular charges; it is a circumstance for the consideration of the jury. Bertrand v. Taylor, 32 Ark. 470.

If a merchant neglects, after a reasonable time, to object to an account rendered by his factor, showing sales at a price below that at which the factor was authorized to sell, he is deemed to acquiesce in it, and it is treated as a stated account. Richmond Mfg. Co. v. Starks, 4 Mason (U. S.), 297.

The adjustment of a loss by fire will sustain an action as upon an account stated. Smith v. Glens Falls Ins. Co., 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 556.

An admission by a defendant that so much was agreed to be paid to the plaintiff for the sale of standing trees, made after the trees had been felled and taken away by the defendant, will support a count for an account stated, though not for goods sold and delivered. Knowles v. Michel, 13 East, 249; s. p., Pinchon v. Chilcott, 3 C. & P. 236.

Where the parties, in settlement of a disputed claim, agree upon the amount due, and the one against whom the claim was made executes a written agreement to pay the sum so fixed, in an action upon the agreement he is precluded from setting up as a defence that nothing was in fact due. Dunham v. Griswold, 100 N. Y. 224.

Where a merchant furnishes goods to workmen on orders from their employer and receives his pay from the employer on presentation of the orders, the amount being fixed by the orders and deducted from the wages of the workmen, the arrangement is evidence of an account stated. Bull v. Brockway, 48 Mich. 523.

1. Where a commercial agent purchased for and shipped to his principal two boat-loads of potatoes, furnishing invoices, statements of account, bills of purchase, quantities, commissions and expenses, crediting the principal with advances, and claiming a certain balance, and the principal examined such account, making no objection thereto except as to the quantity of potatoes furnished, whereupon the agent deducted the items objected to, leaving them to be settled after the potatoes should be received, and the principal paid the balance of the account, held, that there was an account stated which could not properly be opened without legal evidence of fraud, misconduct, or mistake. Gilchrist v. Brooklyn Grocers' Mfg. Ass'n, 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 390.

If interest be credited to one of two partners upon the books of the firm kept by its clerk, on moneys advanced beyond the capital agreed to be furnished by him, and the other partner, on examining the account with such clerk, makes no objection to it, that is sufficient to establish an account stated between them, and such interest should be allowed upon an accounting. Lloyd v. Carrier, 2 Lans. (N. Y.) 364.

Where one partner renders to the other a statement purporting to set forth all debits and credits, the account so rendered, if not objected to in a reasonable time, becomes an account stated. Lawrence v. Ellsworth, 41 Ark. 502.

Where a loss by fire is adjusted and the insurer promises to pay the amount, it becomes an account stated. Smith v. Glens Falls Ins. Co., 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 556; 62 N. Y. 85.

In an action by the executors of the payee of a note against the makers, the executors proved the note, with the following indorsement upon it, signed by the makers and one of the executors: "Hull, 1838.—Memorandum, that the sum of 1l. 7s. 6d., one quarter's interest, was paid on the within note. William Purdon, Thomas Purdon,"—held sufficient evidence of an account stated with the executors, without any proof of the time of the testator's death. Purdon v. Purdon, 10 M. & W. 562; 12 L. J. Exch. 3.

An agreement respecting the transfer of an interest in land, required by the Statute of Frauds to be in writing and signed, cannot be enforced by an action upon the agreement against the transferee for the stipulated consideration, notwithstanding that the transfer has been effected, and nothing remains to be done but to pay the consideration; but if, after the transfer, the transferee admits to the transferor that he owes him the stipulated price, the amount may be recovered as money due upon an account

7. Acquiescence—Admissions.—The acquiescence of the parties must depend upon the special circumstances of each case in general. When a party indebted upon an account receives and retains it stated. Cocking v. Ward, 1 C. B. 858; 15 L. J. C. P. 246

A balance stated by the parties after a hearing before referees had commenced, and which was reported to the referees, and entered by them on their minutes, concludes the parties. Clark v. Fairchild, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 576.

What do not.—Mere admissions not strong or pertinent enough to constitute an agreement will not sustain an account stated. Kirtan v. Wood, 1 Mood & Rob. 253; Lane v. Hill, 18 Ad. & El. (N. S.) 252; Morton v. Rogers, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 576. Nor an acknowledgment of a sum due. Evans v. Verity, Ryan & M. 239. Nor an acknowledgment wrongfully obtained, or not intended. Stenton v. Jerome, 54 N. Y. 480; Tucker v. Barrow, 1 M. & R. 518. Nor acceptance by one not duly authorized. Thallimer v. Brinckerhoff, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 394. Nor the offer to pay a less sum. Atkinson v. Woodall, 31 L. J. M. C. 174. Nor a qualified acknowledgment. Evans v. Verity, R. & M. 230.

So a mere conjecture expressed by one party to another, as to a certain sum being due to the latter, affords no proof of an account stated, unless it be adopted by the latter. Hughes v. Thorpe, 5 M. & W. 656. Nor does a mere offer to pay a sum of money, unaccompanied by any admission that there was a debt due. Wayman v. Hilliard, 7 Bing. 101.

An account rendered by a husband to his wife of the receipt and expenditure by him of moneys belonging to her separate estate, although retained by her without objection for four months, does not thereby become conclusive upon her as an account stated. Southwick v. Southwick, 1 Sweeny (N. Y.), 47.

A computation of interest due upon a bond and mortgage, made out by the holder and delivered to the mortgagor, is not conclusive as an account stated; and the omission of the latter to object to it merely raises a presumption of its correctness, which may be rebutted by proof. Guernsey v. Rexford, 63 N. Y. 631.

Among the papers of a testator were found two letters, sealed and directed, "For G., my late servant." G. had been in his service as housekeeper for some years before his death, but had left him for some time previously to that event. These letters contained promissory notes for large sums of money; and one of the letters stated that the testator inclosed 200*l.* as a mark of respect; and the other letter stated that the inclosed was for her long and faithful services. G. applied to the executors for payment of the notes, and upon seeing the notes they paid her a portion, and promised to pay the remainder, but afterwards refused to do so. Held, as an action was not maintainable by G. upon the notes, which were in effect a legacy, and an informal one, in not being duly attested as required by 7 Will. 4 and 1 Vict. c. 26, and therefore void, that the action was not maintainable on an account stated, inasmuch as the promise of the executors was made on a supposed debt which in fact was not due. Gough v. Findon or Tindon, 7 Exch. 48; 21 L. J. Exch. 58.

In an action for goods sold, and on an account stated, to recover the value of growing poles purchased from the plaintiff by the defendant, and afterwards carried away by them, it appeared that, at the time of the bargain, some memorandums in writing had been made, but which were neither stamped nor signed by the parties; and that the defendant, after the poles were carried away, admitted that a balance was due to the plaintiff, who, under these circumstances, was nonsuited. Held, that such nonsuit was proper, as it was not proved that the defendant had admitted a precise and definite sum to be due to the plaintiff; and, therefore, that he could not recover on the account stated, without reference to the memoranda, which were not admissible. Teall v. Auty, 4 Moore, 542.

An acceptor of a bill of exchange, on application to him for payment, answered that the bill had been altered as to the acceptance, by being made payable at a particular place; that he never made it payable there, nor elsewhere than at his own house; and that he should take such steps as the law would authorize on the subject; that he had been prepared for payment, and the party might have had the money by calling at his house. Held, that this was no acknowledgment of a subsisting debt. Calvert v. Baker, 4 M. & W. 417.

The plaintiff demanded 40*l.* upon an agreement by the defendant, an incoming tenant, to pay for growing crops; he offered to pay 17*l.* Held, no evidence beyond such time as is reasonable under the circumstances, and, according to the usage of the business, for examining and returning it, without communicating any objections, he is considered to acquiesce in its correctness, and he becomes bound by it as an account stated. Signature to the account or express admission is not necessary.<sup>1</sup> to support an account stated. Wayman v. Hilliard, 7 Bing. 101; 4 M. & P. 729.

Where there have been no pre-existing mutual accounts or dealings, a statement furnished and retained without objection will not constitute an account stated. Mellon v. Campbell, 11 Pa. St. 415.

A copy of account against a person from the books of a corporation, given to him by the book-keeper of the corporation, who also performed the duties of secretary and assistant-treasurer thereof, upon his request, is not binding upon such corporation as an account stated, in the absence of any authority in such book-keeper to bind the corporation, or of any intention on his part to do so. Harvey v. West Side Elevated R. Co., 13 Hun (N. Y.), 392.

An award is generally not evidence of an account stated as between the parties to the submission. Bates v. Townley, 2 Exch. 152. Compare Keen v. Batshore, 1 Esp. 194; Salmon v. Watson, 4 Moore, 73.

An account stated cannot be based on an appraisal where it does not appear that both parties mutually agreed are the appraisers, or recognized them as authorized to bind them by their action. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Peters, 45 Mich. 636. See Buschman v. Morling, 30 Md. 384.

The retention of an account containing an item of loan to a third person for whom the party receiving the account is not responsible is not an acquiescence. Porter v. Lobach, 2 Bosw. (N. Y.) 188; Spangler v. Springer, 22 Pa. St. 454.

An account stated cannot be based on an appraisal where it does not appear that both parties mutually agreed on the appraisers, or recognized them as authorized to bind them by their action. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Peters, 45 Mich. 636.

The rule of acquiescence ought not to be applied to a party who claims that the statute of limitations began to run from the time of rendering the account. White v. Campbell, 25 Mich. 463; Rutledge v. Moore, 9 Mo. 537; Carver v. Hayes, 47 Me. 257; Morse v. Allen, 44 N. H. 33; Hughes v. Thorpe, 5 M. & W. 656; Lane v. Hill, 18 Q. B. 252; Calvert v. Baker, 4 M. & W. 417; Evans v. Verity, R. & M. 239; Burgh v. Legge, 5 M. & W. 418.

Where objection was made to an item of credit in an account rendered by one party to another, and notice of the objection was given at the time of its rendering, or soon after, and the balance shown by the account so rendered was carried forward into subsequent accounts rendered, which were received and filed without objection, but without waiving or withdrawing the objection to the disputed item of credit, and the party rendering the accounts afterwards settled and paid the balance exhibited against him by his accounts so rendered, and obtained a receipt therefor, under an agreement that the said disputed item should remain open, and not be considered as acquiesced in by the other party, held, that as to the disputed item of credit, the accounts so rendered are not to be regarded as accounts stated. Dudley v. Geauga Iron Co., 13 Ohio St. 168.

A letter containing merely a conjecture as to the amount due is not evidence of an account stated. Hughes v. Thorpe, 5 M. & W. 656.

A mere offer to pay a sum of money, unaccompanied by any admission that there is a debt due, will not constitute an account stated. Wayman v. Hilliard, 7 Bing. 101.

It is for the court to decide whether a conversation amounts to an account stated. Bishop v. Cambre, 3 C. & P. 55.

Where, on a settlement of accounts between the plaintiff and the defendant, a balance was struck, which the defendant agreed was correct, adding, however, that when he had done certain things there would not be much, if anything, between them, it was held that this was good evidence of an account stated. Rigby v. Jeffrys, 7 Dowl. 561. See Calvert v. Baker, 4 M. & W. 417; Evans v. Verity, R. & M. 239.

An allegation that the plaintiff and the defendant "have had accountings and settlements" is not an averment of an account stated. Ward v. Farrelly, 9 Mo. App. 370.

1. White v. Hampton, 10 Iowa, 238; s. c., 62 Am. Dec. 81; Smith v. Marvin, 27 N. Y. 137; Bullard v. Raynor, 30 N. Y. 197; Guernsey v. Rexford, 63 N. Y. 631; Volkening v. De Graaf, 81 N. Y. 268; Powell v. Noye, 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 184;

But the silence of the party to whom the account is sent may Lockwood v. Thorne, 11 N. Y. 179; Owen v. Boerum, 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 187; Towsley v. Denison, 45 Barb. (N. Y.) 490; Avery v. Leach, 9 Hun (N. Y.), 106; Bruen v. Hone, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 586; Murray v. Toland, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 569; Atwater v. Fowler, 1 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 417; Philips v. Belden, 2 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 1; Hutchinson v. Market Bank, 48 Barb. (N. Y.) 302; Case v. Hotchkiss, 1 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 324; Gilchrist v. Brooklyn, etc., Assoc. 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 390; 59 N. Y. 495; Brown v. Vandyke, 8 N. J. Eq. 795; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 250; Darlington v. Taylor, 2 Grant (Pa.), 195; Bevan v. Cullen, 7 Pa. St. 281; Thurmond v. Sanders, 21 Ark. 255; Shepard v. Bank, 15 Mo. 148; Powell v. Pacific R. Co., 65 Mo. 658; Langdon v. Roane, 6 Ala. 518; s. c., 41 Am. Dec. 60; Burden v. McElmoyle, 1 Bail. Ch. (S. Car.) 375; Gooch v. Vaughan, 92 N. Car. 610; Hawkins v. Long, 74 N. Car. 781; Stebbins v. Niles, 25 Miss. 267; Coopwood v. Bolton, 26 Miss. 212; Rufner v. Hewett, 7 W. Va. 585; Townes v. Birchett, 12 Leigh (Va.), 173; Craighead v. Bank, 7 Yerg. (Tenn.) 799; Tharp v. Tharp, 15 Vt. 105; Freeman v. Howell, 4 La. Ann. 196; s. c., 50 Am. Dec. 561; Darby v. Lastrapes, 28 La. Ann. 605; Mansell v. Payne, 18 La. Ann. 124; Terry v. Sickles, 13 Cal. 427; Treas v. Truitt, 2 Colo. 489; Benites v. Hampton, 3 Utah, 369; Cobb v. Arundell, 26 Wis. 553; White v. Campbell, 25 Mich. 463; Freeland v. Heron, 7 Cranch (C. C.), 147; Baker v. Biddle, Baldw. (U. S.) 394; Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129; Marye v. Strouse, 6 Sawy. (U. S.) 204; s. c., 5 Fed. Repr. 483; Willis v. Jernegan, 2 Atk. 251; Sherman v. Sherman, 2 Vern. 276.

In Pennsylvania the receipt of an account by a debtor without objection makes it prima-facie evidence of the claim. Verrier v. Guillon, 97 Pa. St. 63. See Spangler v. Springer, 22 Pa. St. 454.

In Wharton v. Anderson, 28 Minn. 301, the court said: "There is some confusion in the books as to the precise effect of a stated account upon the rights of the parties, but we are inclined to the opinion that it is only prima-facie evidence of the correctness of the balance, and not conclusive upon it, unless in arriving at the agreed balance there has been some concession made upon items disputed between the parties, so that the balance is the result of a compromise, or some act has been done or forborne in consequence of the accounting, and relying upon it, which would put the party claiming the benefit of it in a worse position than as though it had not been had, so as to bring the case within the principles of an estoppel in pais. A stated account not affected by such new consideration or estoppel may be impeached for mistake or error in law or in fact with respect to the items included in it, or for omission of items. These positions are sustained by weighty authority."

The acceptance and retention of an account without objection, although tending to establish an admission of its correctness, is not conclusive; it may be met by proof of mistake undiscovered while the account was so retained, and the question then becomes one of fact for a jury. Sharkey v. Mansfield, 90 N. Y. 227.

The rule that delay in objecting to an account stated will be deemed an acquiescence applies to corporations. Bradley v. Richardson, 2 Blatchf. (U. S.) 354.

An account containing an item of a loan to a third person, for which the party to whom the account is stated is not responsible, does not become conclusive by being retained for several months. Porter v. Lobach, 2 Bosw. (N. Y.) 188. See Spangler v. Springer, 22 Pa. St. 454.

If the party has previously disclaimed all liability upon the account, he is not bound to examine the items and object to them. Quincy v. White, 63 N. Y. 370.

Where two statements are made of the account, and the first is approved, no notice need be taken of the second one. Cartwright v. Greene, 47 Barb. (N. Y.) 9.

An account rendered by a husband to his wife, of moneys disbursed for her use, out of her separate estate, does not become any account stated, though retained without objection. Southwick v. Southwick, 1 Sweeny (N. Y.), 47.

Where the pass-book of a depositor in a bank is written up and delivered to him and retained without objection, it constitutes an account stated. Marye v. Strouse, 6 Sawyer (U. S.), 204; s. c., 5 Fed. Repr. 483; Leather Manuf. Bank v. Morgan, 117 U. S. 96; Schneider v. Irving Bank, 1 Daly (N. Y.), 500; Hutchinson v. Market Bank, 48 Barb. (N. Y.) 302; Welsh v. German Am. Bank, 73 N. Y. 424; Peddicord v. Connard, 85 Ill. 102; Craighead v. Bank, 7 Yerg. (Tenn.) 399; Union Bank v. Knapp, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 96; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 181. Compare Picket v. Merchants' Bank, 32 Ark.

be explained by showing that he was absent from home, suffering 346; Ex parte Randleson, 2 Deac. & Chit. 534.

The writing-up of a depositor's bank-book and return of checks and vouchers, if it becomes an account stated by his negligence in not discovering and giving notice of errors, can yet be impeached for fraud or mistake. Welsh v. German Am. Bank, 73 N. Y. 424.

A depositor who had been in the habit of checking out all his money shortly after he deposited it, was notified of a balance long after he supposed he had exhausted his account, and immediately withdrew it. He made no inquiry or objection, but sued the bank, nearly two years afterwards, for an alleged balance. Held, that the depositor's course in withdrawing the balance on notification of it was a strong case of acquiescing in an account stated, which required him to bring himself within some rule that would allow him to impeach it, and that he had the burden of impeaching it. Amer. Nat. Bank v. Bushey, 45 Mich. 135; and where the pass-book is written up several times upon the same basis, and the amounts shown thereon drawn out, and several years elapse before a formal demand is made for the amount of missing checks claimed to be charged thereon in error, there is clear evidence of an account settled. Clark v. Mechanics' Nat. Bank, 15 Week. Dig. (N. Y.) 505.

A presented his account to B, who corrected some items. Held, it became an account stated as to the items not objected to, binding upon B's representatives. Sergeant v. Ewing, 36 Pa. St. 156.

A father who receives a bill of goods charged to his account, and retains it for a year without objection, must be deemed to have acquiesced in its correctness, and cannot afterward insist that the goods were sold to his son, and that the latter was not authorized to buy goods on his credit. Avery v. Leach, 9 Hun (N. Y.), 106.

The defendant on being shown the plaintiff's account by the clerk of the latter, objected to one item, but made no remark as to the others, and promised to send corn for the balance. Held, to be sufficient evidence of an account stated. Chisman v. Count, 2 M. & G. 307; Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129; Sergeant v. Ewing, 36 Pa. St. 156; Lockwood v. Thorne, 11 N. Y. 170; s. c., 62 Am. Dec. 81.

Where an account was presented to the debtors, and they asked time to pay by instalments on account of the heavy balance, and one month afterward sent a check for an instalment, and they gave no notice that they rejected the account after examination,—held, that they must be deemed to have acquiesced. Macpherson v. Small, 41 N. Y. Super. Ct. 536.

A delivered goods to B, to be sold and the proceeds applied upon a debt due from A to B. A claimed a balance due him, and proved that B admitted the correctness of the amount, and said he would pay it over. Held, that though the sale was absolute in law, there was evidence that it was accompanied by a trust that the defendant should account for the proceeds, and that the facts showed a sufficient consideration for the account stated by B to entitle A to recover the balance, as money due upon an account stated. Howard v. Brownhill, 2 Com. L. R. 125; s. c., 23 L. J. Q. B. 23.

Where a person who had worked for another fifteen or twenty years, and had received from his employer's book-keeper several statements of his account from the books, each beginning with the balance on the last preceding statement, and kept the next to the last some seven months, until the last was rendered, before making any objection thereto,—held, that the effect of his receiving and keeping the statements was to make them accounts stated, and cast the burden of impeaching them for error upon the party alleging it. Wiley v. Brigham, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 106.

Where the E. Bank receiving from H., one of its customers, a sight draft for collection, forwarded the same for that purpose to its correspondent, the Y. Bank, which sent it to a third bank, but in the mean time, supposing it to have been paid, gave the E. Bank credit therefor in its semi-monthly account, and the latter credited the amount to H., but, being afterward notified by the Y. Bank of the mistake, refused to take back the draft, claimed that the latter bank should suffer the loss, on the ground of delay in collecting, and continued for two and a half years afterward to render accounts to H. without charging the draft back to him,—held, that there was an account stated between the E. Bank and H. in respect to the draft, which precluded it from denying its liability therefor. Harley v. Eleventh Ward Bank, 76 N. Y. 618.

Drawing for the balance as shown by from illness, or expected shortly to see the other party and intended and preferred to make his objections in person.<sup>1</sup>

If a party pays the balance of an account stated under duress of goods or person, he is not bound by such payment.<sup>2</sup> Or gives the account stated is an admission of its correctness. Lockwood v. Thorne, 11 N. Y. 170; s. c., 62 Am. Dec. 81. Also a payment of the balance. Bruen v. Hone, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 586. Also the correction of the account by the debtor. Sergeant v. Ewing, 36 Pa. St. 156.

A party stated an account and sent it with a check for the balance by a messenger to the other party. Objection was made that the balance was too small, but the check was received and cashed. Held, that the party was concluded by the acceptance. Davenport v. Wheeler, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 231.

Defendant immediately after the receipt of an account stated for goods sold to him, and which had already been under his control and inspection for five months, made two part payments thereon. In the letter containing the last payment he acknowledged that there was a balance still due, provided the goods still on hand were "up to the contract." Held, that from these facts the law raised an implied agreement that the account was correct. Samson v. Freedman, 102 N. Y. 699.

Where the account was rendered by a mistake, the silence of the party will not make it an account stated. Polhemus v. Heiman, 50 Cal. 438.

A plaintiff put in evidence an account signed by the defendant, showing a balance of 321*l.* 5*s.* to be due. The first item in this account was, "To principal and interest of old account with Dr. J. French, transferred as per letter, 146*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*" The letter was as follows: "I hereby acknowledge to have received from J. M. French, Esq., 321*l.* 5*s.*, and should I die during my absence from England, or at any time before the said debt is liquidated, it is my desire that he should be paid out of whatever property I might possess at the time of my death, with legal interest on the same." Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover the 146*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*, the evidence showing a mere promise, without consideration, to pay the debt of a third person. French v. French, 3 Scott, N. R. 121; 2 M. & G. 644.

Where an account has been assigned, an admission made either before or after the assignment may be proved. Powell v. Pacific R. Co., 65 Mo. 658.

Evidence tending to show that the account was received and held by the defendant, who offered no objection to it, will not supply an omission to plead an account stated. Ward v. Farrelly, 9 Mo. App. 370; Emery v. Pease, 20 N. Y. 62.

The signature of a party's name to an account current is not conclusive evidence of his owing the amount stated; but the implied admission may be rebutted by competent proof as fraud, error, or mistake. Nichols v. Alsop, 6 Conn. 477; Perkins v. Hart, 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 237; Stewart v. Conner, 13 Ala. 94.

1. Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129; Lockwood v. Thorne, 18 N. Y. 289.

Silence on the part of one receiving an account will not give it the force of an account stated, unless the circumstances are such as to justify an inference of his assent to its correctness. If he has previously disclaimed all liability upon the account, he is not bound to examine the items and object to them, upon its delivery to him, in order to avoid the effect of silence as an admission. Quincey v. White, 63 N. Y. 370.

Where a person for whose account goods had been sold by another, on receiving from the latter an account of sales, called on him several times for the purpose of getting explanations and a more detailed account, and was promised such an account when receiving a payment, but was never furnished therewith, though he waited a long time and wrote for it, held, that he had not in any way so acquiesced in the account so rendered to him as to make it binding on him as an account stated. Carpenter v. Nickerson, 7 Daly (N. Y.), 424.

2. Stenton v. Jerome, 54 N. Y. 480; Dunham v. Griswold, 100 N. Y. 224; Kelsey v. Hobby, 16 Pet. (U. S.) 269. See Quincey v. White, 63 N. Y. 370; Tucker v. Barrow, 7 B. & C. 623.

Where an agreement is made by parties in satisfaction of a claim in dispute between them, where each is cognizant of all the facts, and no fraud or imposition is practised, it is valid and binding upon them, regardless of the merits of the original claim, and cannot be set aside unless it be shown that the same was procured by duress. If such an agreement be procured by threats of criminal prosecution it may be avoided; but a threat of legal process, even including arrest and imprisonment, is not sufficient to constitute duress. Dunham v. Griswold, 100 N. Y. 224.

a receipt for a balance accompanied by a protest against one of the items.<sup>1</sup>

Giving a note for a balance is not necessarily an admission of correctness of the account, but may be prima-facie evidence of a settlement.<sup>2</sup>

1. Smith v. Drew, 10 Ben. (U. S.) 614.
2. Morton v. Rogers, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 576; McDougall v. Cooper, 31 N. Y. 498; Sherman v. McIntyre, 7 Hun (N. Y.), 592; Dutcher v. Porter, 63 Barb. (N. Y.) 15; Smith v. Holland, 61 Barb. (N. Y.) 333; Treadwell v. Abrams, 15 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 219; Rosencrantz v. Mason, 85 Ill. 262; Hill v. Sloan, 59 Ind. 181; Dunbar v. Miller, 1 Brock. (U. S.) 85. See Burmester v. Hogarth, 11 M. & W. 97; Oliver v. Dovatt, 2 Moo. & Rob. 230; Jardine v. Payne, 1 B. & A. 663.

A promissory note is evidence of a settlement between the parties thereto, and may be received in evidence in support of the common count upon an account stated. Orr v. Hopkins, 1 Pac. Repr. (N. Mex.) 181.

It is prima-facie evidence that, at the date of it, there was a settlement of all demands between the parties. Dutcher v. Porter, 63 Barb. (N. Y.) 15. In Stiles v. Brown, 1 Gill (Md.), 350, it was held that the giving of a note for the balance forecloses an inquiry into all antecedent transactions, unless on the ground of error or fraud.

In August, 1844, the defendant gave the plaintiff a promissory note for 23*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.*, which the note described as being the amount of interest due on a note for 117*l.* 4*s.*, dated 6th July, 1838, up to 6th July, 1844. Held, to be evidence of an account stated in August, 1844, of a subsisting debt of 117*l.* 4*s.* Perry v. Slade, 8 Q. B. 115.

A note payable five years after date, for value received, is evidence of an account stated, against which the Statute of Limitations does not commence running until the maturity of the note. Fryer v. Roe, 12 C. B. 437.

I O U.—The plaintiff lent money to A upon B's promise to become surety for its repayment, and, after the money was advanced, A and B signed and delivered to the plaintiff the following memorandum: "We jointly and severally owe you £60." Held, evidence for the jury of an account stated by A and B jointly. Buck v. Hurst, L. R. 1 C. P. 297.

An I O U in the defendant's writing, not addressed to any one, but produced by the plaintiff, is prima-facie evidence of an account stated with him. Douglas v. Holme, 4 P. & D. 685; 12 A. & E. 641; s. p., Payne v. Jenkins, 4 C. & P. 324.

At the sale of an estate, one of the conditions being that a deposit should be paid immediately, a lot was knocked down to a person, who having no money with him, an arrangement was entered into, with the sanction of the vendor's solicitor, in virtue of which the vendee gave his I O U, addressed to the auctioneer, for the deposit, and signed a memorandum that he had purchased the property and paid the deposit, and bound himself to complete the purchase, which memorandum was also signed by the auctioneer as agent of the vendor. The bargain having afterwards gone off, held, that the auctioneer might recover the amount of the I O U under an account stated. Cleave v. Moors, 3 Jur. N. S. 48, Exch.

The directors of a mine conducted on the cost-book principle, wanting money to work the mine, entered into an agreement that they should each take 100 shares in it, at 1*l.* per share, and each of them accordingly gave his I O U to the secretary for 100*l.* Held, evidence of an account stated between the secretary and a director who had given his I O U pursuant to the agreement. Graves v. Cook, 2 Jur. N. S. 475, Exch.

Upon a sale of a leasehold, the vendee agreed to pay a deposit of 50*l.*, and the residue on completion. Instead of actually paying the 50*l.*, he gave the vendor 5*l.* and an I O U for 45*l.* Held, that the vendor, failing to make a good title, was not entitled to recover the 45*l.*, as money due upon an account stated, and that the defence was admissible under the plea of never indebted. Wilson v. Wilson, 14 C. B. 616; 2 C. L. R. 818; 18 Jur. 581; 23 L. J. C. P. 137.

Where a defendant verbally agreed to purchase of the plaintiff the lease and good-will of his premises, and on being asked for a deposit, gave an I O U for 25*l.*, but afterwards refused to complete the purchase, held, that the I O U was evidence of an account stated. Lemere v. Elliott, 6 H. & N. 656; 7 Jur. N. S. 1206; 30 L. J. Exch. 350; 4 L. T. N. S. 304.

8. Reasonable Time.—What is a reasonable time where there is no dispute as to the facts is matter of law. But where the proofs are contradictory, the question is one of law and fact; and in that case may properly be submitted to the jury, under the instructions of the court as to the law.<sup>1</sup> It is to be determined by reference

1. Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129; s. c., 19 L. C. P. 885; 1 Myer's Fed. Dec. 18; Terry v. Sickles, 13 Cal. 427; Gatling v. Newell, 9 Ind. 577; Lockwood v. Thorne, 18 N. Y. 285; Roth v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 34 N. Y. 548; Kingsley v. Wallis, 14 Me. 57; Murray v. Smith, 1 Hawks. (N. Car.) 41; Darby v. Lastropes, 28 La. Ann. 605; Freeman v. Howell, 4 La. Ann. 196; s. c., 50 Am. Dec. 561. See Story's Eq. Juris. § 520; Sherman v. Sherman, 2 Vern. 276; 2 Parsons Cont. 661.

Between merchants at home, an account which has been presented, and no objection made thereto after the lapse of several posts, is treated under ordinary circumstances as being by acquiescence a stated account. Between merchants in different countries, a rule founded in similar considerations prevails. If an account has been transmitted from one to the other, and no objection is made after several opportunities of writing have occurred, it is treated as an acquiescence in the correctness of the account transmitted, and therefore it is deemed a stated account. In truth, in each case the rule admits or rather requires the same general exposition. It is, that an account rendered shall be deemed an account stated from the presumed approbation or acquiescence of the parties, unless an objection is made thereto within a reasonable time. That reasonable time is to be judged of, in ordinary cases, by the habits of business at home and abroad; and the usual course is required to be followed, unless there are special circumstances to vary it or to excuse a departure from it. L. Story's Eq. Juris. (13th ed.), § 526. What constitutes a reasonable time in such a case is a question of law. Oil Co. v. Van Etten, 107 U. S. 129; Perkins v. Hart, 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 237; Toland v. Sprague, 12 Pet. (U. S.) 334; Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129; Lockwood v. Thorne, 11 N. Y. 170; s. c., 62 Am. Dec. 81.

If an account is made up and sent by one party to the other by mail, and the latter keeps it for some considerable time without making any objection, he is held to have acquiesced in it. Stenton v. Jerome, 54 N. Y. 480; Davenport v. Wheeler, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 231; Bailey v. Bensly, 87 Ill. 556.

If he retains the account, and permits several mails to pass without objecting to it, he will be held to have admitted its correctness. Freas v. Truitt, 2 Col. 489; Brown v. Vandyke, 4 Halst. Ch. (N. J.) 795; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 250; Murray v. Toland, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 569. The court cannot take judicial notice of the car-time and number of mails. Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129. Several months is not a reasonable time. Davenport v. Wheeler, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 231; Wiley v. Brigham, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 106. Three years is not a reasonable time. Lawrence v. Ellsworth, 41 Ark. 502.

Where the account is between merchants residing in different countries, two years is not a reasonable time. Bainbridge v. Wilcocks, 1 Baldw. (U. S.) 539; s. c., 1 Myer's Fed. Dec. 21, § 17. See Bruen v. Hone, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 586; Seymour v. Marvin, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 80. The time within which an account shall be taken as a stated one, unless objected to, cannot be definitely stated; it depends on the circumstances of the case, whether an acquiescence or a presumed agreement to the correctness of the account exists. Bainbridge v. Wilcocks, 1 Baldw. (U. S.) 539; 1 Myer's Fed. Dec. § 16.

The defendants asked the court to instruct as follows: "That if the plaintiff made out his account on the 16th of May, and then sent it to the defendants, it was within a reasonable time, if the defendants on the 28th of May, by letter, notified the plaintiff of their dissatisfaction with that account." The court refused the instruction. On appeal, the court said: "If the car-time between Hagerstown and Chicago were ten hours, and there were 'several posts' between the time when the account sent to the defendants, on the 16th of May, reached them, and the 28th of May, when they replied, the court properly refused the instruction asked. Whether these facts were in evidence does not appear. We are asked to take judicial notice of them. This we cannot do, however well satisfied we may be upon the subject. They should have been proved by proper testimony." Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129; s. c., 1 Myer's Fed. Dec. 18.

Full accounts were rendered by defendants to plaintiff from time to time, to the relations of the parties, or the usual course of business of the particular class of persons concerned.<sup>1</sup>

9. To whom Stated.—The account must have been stated to the debtor himself or his agent, and it is not sufficient if made to a stranger.<sup>2</sup> If the account be stated to or by an agent, his authority must be shown.<sup>3</sup>

10. Third Parties who assume or guarantee a debt are bound by an account stated the same as the original debtor.<sup>4</sup>

11. Set-off.—If the buyer has stated an account with the vendor, in which the vendor has, by mutual agreement, received credit for the amount of goods sold, as a set-off against items admitted to be due by the vendor to the buyer, this is an equivalent to an actual cash payment by the buyer of the price of the goods.<sup>5</sup> during the course of their joint business. All such accounts had been rendered before February, 1865, when, after a discussion of one item, the account was stated and settled. This was accepted until the fall of 1867, two and a half years thereafter. Held, that it was too late to open the account, except for fraud, error, or mistake. Burke v. Isham, 53 N. Y. 631.

Where a firm in New York City, on February 1st, sent an account stated to their customers in Ulster County, and on February 17th drew for the balance, and the draft was paid, held, that the account could not be opened, except for mistake or fraud. Lockwood v. Thorne, 11 N. Y. 170; s. c., 62 Am. Dec. 81.

1. Freeman v. Howell, 4 La. Ann. 196; s. c., 50 Am. Dec. 561.

2. Breckon v. Smith, 1 Ad. & El. 488; Bates v. Townley, 2 Exch. 152; Tucker v. Barrow, 7 Barn. & Cress. 623; Hoffar v. Dement, 5 Gill (Md.), 132; Thurmond v. Sanders, 21 Ark. 255.

The statement may be in writing or by word of mouth. Singleton v. Barrett, 2 Crompt. & J. 368.

In an action on an account stated against the three defendants as partners, in which the defendant H. alone appeared and answered, it appeared on the trial, after evidence showing that the defendants B. and M. originally composed the firm, under the name of B. & M., and that the defendant H. subsequently became a partner, and the firm-name was, therefore, changed to B., M. & Co.; that the plaintiff sent by mail, from Stockton, his place of residence, a copy of an account, inclosed in an envelope and properly directed to the defendant H. at Frisco, his residence and post-office address. This account was headed "B. & M. in acct. with L. Benites," and contained a large number of items running through several years, only one of which was charged to the firm of B., M. & Co., and showed a balance of $1663.70 due to the plaintiff. No letter or other writing accompanied it explaining it, or why it was sent to the defendant H., nor demanding payment. There was no evidence whatever showing the distance between Stockton and Frisco, nor the time required for transportation of the mail between those places, nor the number or frequency of mail communication between them, nor the length of time which had elapsed after the mailing of said account to the defendant H. before the commencement of this action; nor did it appear when this action was commenced. There was evidence that the defendant H. received the account. Held, that no account stated between the parties was shown, and a ruling on the trial refusing to admit a copy of such account in evidence against the defendants was not error. Benites v. Hampton, 3 Utah, 369.

3. Harvey v. West Side, etc., R. Co., 13 Hun (N. Y.), 392; Thallimer v. Brinkerhoff, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 394.

4. Bullock v. Boyd, 1 Hoffm. Ch. (N. Y.) 294; Buck v. Hurst, L. R. 1 C. P. 297.

5. Benjamin on Sales (Bennett's Ed.), § 711; Livingstone v. Whiting, 15 Q. B. 722; s. c., 19 L. J. Q. B. 528. See Dudley v. Geauga Iron Co., 13 Ohio St. 168; Bushee v. Allen, 31 Vt. 631; Filer v. Peebles, 8 N. H. 226; White v. Whiting, 8 Daly (N. Y.), 23; Smith v. Tucker, 2 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 193; Johnson v. Johnson, 4 Call (Va.), 38.

An itemized account for cotton sold and shipped by defendant to plaintiffs, on which he claimed a balance due him, and pleaded it as a set-off, having been furnished by him to them, as he testified, and retained by them without objection to the weights of the cotton as therein

Where there are cross-demands, it is not necessary that the items should consist of debts due in presenti, or that they should be legal debts, but equitable claims may also be brought into the account.<sup>1</sup>

12. Illegal.—A claim which is absolutely void by reason of an illegality or immorality in the consideration cannot be relied on in support of a count upon an account stated.<sup>2</sup>

13. New Promise.—The stating of an account is in the nature of a new promise.<sup>3</sup> specified; that portion of the account cannot be excluded as evidence, on motion, because defendant further states that he did not himself weigh the cotton, but that the weights were furnished to him by the public weigher. Sloan v. Guice, 77 Ala. 392.

1. Laycock v. Pickles, 4 B. & S. 497, 506.

2. Dunbar v. Johnson, 108 Mass. 519; Keane v. Brandon, 12 La. Ann. 20. See Thomas v. Hawkes, 8 M. & W. 140; Cooking v. Ward, 1 C. B. 858, 870; Kennedy v. Brown, 13 C. B. N. S. 677; Mostyn v. Mostyn, 39 L. J. Chan. 780.

It is no bar to action on account stated, that the defendant's indebtedness was for liquors sold by the plaintiff on Sunday, contrary to law, if the account was not stated on Sunday; but if the sale was illegal for want of a license, the action on an account stated could not be maintained. Melchoir v. McCarty, 31 Wis. 605; s. c., 11 Am. Rep. 605. See Dunbar v. Johnson, 108 Mass. 519.

Compare Suc. of Ross, 22 La. Ann. 480; Smith v. Marvin, 27 N. Y. 137; Bullard v. Raynor, 30 N. Y. 197; Young v. Hill, 67 N. Y. 162; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 99.

3. 3 Parsons Cont. (7th Ed.) 83; Smith v. Glens Falls Ins. Co., 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 556; Holmes v. DeCamp, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 34; Montgomerie v. Ivers, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 38; Hoyt v. Wilkinson, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 31. See White v. Campbell, 25 Mich. 463; McClellan v. West, 70 Pa. St. 183; Johns v. Lantz, 63 Pa. St. 324; Benites v. Hampton, 3 Utah, 369; Foster v. Allanson, 2 T. R. 479. Compare Verrier v. Guillon, 97 Pa. St. 63.

Under a statute providing that the acknowledgment of a debt must be in writing and signed by the party to be charged, in order to take the debt out of the statute of limitations, an account stated, which is not supported by evidence of some writing signed by the party to be charged, will not prevent the running of the statute against the previously existing liabilities included therein. Chace v. Trafford, 116 Mass. 529; s. c., 17 Am. Rep. 171.

A mutual account which has been closed by stoppage of business transactions between the parties does not become by such cessation an account stated, so as to be withdrawn from the exception in the statute of limitations in favor of merchants' accounts. Mandeville v. Wilson, 5 Cranch (U. S.), 15.

In August, 1844, the defendant gave the plaintiff a promissory note for 23*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.*, which the note described as being the amount of interest due on a note for 117*l.* 4*s.*, date July 6, 1838, up to July 6, 1844. Held, to be evidence of an account stated in August, 1844, of a subsisting debt of 117*l.* 4*s.* Perry v. Slade, 8 Q. B. 115.

When the defendant claims the benefit of the statute on the ground that the account sued on has been converted into a stated one, through his assent to it as rendered to him, it is not enough to substantiate the defence that there is no evidence as to whether he objected or not, nor is it sufficient to sustain such a defence to prove that upon and after the exhibition of the account he remained perfectly passive. He must go further. He must show some word or act marking or implying that he assented to the account. White v. Campbell, 25 Mich. 463.

A, on August 6, 1868, agreed in writing to pay B a sum of money in August, 1870; immediately afterwards A presented to B an account of moneys previously advanced by him to B, or to B's use. On February 2, 1869, A wrote to B, in answer to a letter received from him, stating that he preferred to give no reply, and that he placed his papers in the hands of counsel; also calling B's attention to the fact that he seemed to have forgotten that A had paid him certain amounts. In August, 1870, B's counsel wrote to A's counsel demanding payment of the full sum due from A to B by the terms of the agreement in writing. A's counsel answered that A would pay the amount, less the sums paid by A to and for B, as appeared by the account theretofore furnished. B's counsel replied, declining the offer. In an action

14. Balance.—The balance of a stated account is principal: it cannot be re-examined to ascertain the items or their character.<sup>1</sup>

15. Interest.—An account stated draws interest from the time it was rendered.<sup>2</sup>

16. Parties not Merchants.—The doctrine of liability from retaining a stated account without objection has been held to be only applicable between merchants; but between other parties such retention is a circumstance for the consideration of the jury.<sup>3</sup> brought on March 6, 1875, by B against A, to recover the amount due on the instrument in writing. Held, that the rendering of the account by A to B had not prevented the statute of limitations from running against the same, and that therefore A could not set up the amount due on the account as a set-off to B's claim. Held, further, that there was nothing in A's letter to B, or B's silence after its reception, which would estop B from setting up the bar of the statute of limitations to A's claim of set-off. Held further, that there was nothing in the correspondence between B's counsel and A's counsel which suspended B's right of action, or amounted to a promise by B to pay the account, or constituted an agreement by him that it should apply as payment on the contract, so as to bar the running of the statute of limitations thereon, and enable A to take advantage of the same as a set-off. Verrier v. Guillon, 97 Pa. St. 63.

1. McClelland v. West, 70 Pa. St. 183; Hawkins v. Long, 74 N. Car. 781; Marye v. Strouse, 6 Sawy. (U. S.) 204; s. c., 5 Fed. Repr. 483; Hodge v. Manley, 25 Vt. 210; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 253; Orr v. Hopkins, 1 Pac. Repr. (N. Mex.) 181.

2. Case v. Hotchkiss, 1 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 324.

Compound interest is not recoverable merely because included in an account stated. Young v. Hill, 67 N. Y. 162; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 99.

3. Auding v. Levy, 57 Miss. 51; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 435. See Rich v. Eldredge, 42 N. H. 153; Southwick v. Southwick, 1 Sweeny (N. Y.), 47. Compare Tounes v. Birchett, 12 Leigh (Va.), 173; Shepard v. Bank, 15 Mo. 148.

The Albany Law Journal in reviewing this case says: "This point does not seem to have been raised or passed upon in Lockwood v. Thorne, 11 N. Y. 170, a case between tanners and leather merchants; Stenton v. Jerome, 54 N. Y. 480, a stockbroker and a customer; Case v. Hotchkiss, 1 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 324, attorney and client; Towsley v. Denison, 45 Barb. (N. Y.) 490, a vender of stone and a canal contractor. So of Terry v. Sickles, 13 Cal. 427, where it does not appear that the parties were merchants. White v. Hampton, 10 Iowa, 238, is not at all in point. The question does not seem to have been raised in Tharp v. Tharp, 15 Vt. 105. All these cases, however, enforce the doctrine of account stated between others than merchants as an estoppel."

In Brown v. Kimmel, 67 Mo. 430, a case for professional services, which holds the contrary doctrine, the court said: "The rule at best is a very flexible one, and undoubtedly depends in its application on the circumstances of each case, to be judged by the nature of the transaction, the habits of the business in which it occurs, and the course of trade."

In Marye v. Strouse, 6 Sawy. (U. S.) 204; s. c., 5 Fed. Repr. 483, it was held that the writing-up of a pass-book between a broker and his customer made it an account stated; and in Leather, etc., Bank v. Morgan, 117 U. S. 96, it was held that the balancing of a pass-book between a bank and depositor made it an account stated. The court said: "The object of a pass-book is to inform the depositor from time to time of the condition of his account as it appears upon the books of the bank. It not only enables him to discover errors to his prejudice, but supplies evidence in his favor in the event of litigation or dispute with the bank. In this way it operates to protect him against the carelessness or fraud of the bank. The sending of his pass-book to be written up and returned with the vouchers is therefore, in effect, a demand to know what the bank claims to be the state of his account; and the return of the book with the vouchers is the answer to that demand, and, in effect, imports a request by the bank that the depositor will, in proper time, examine the account so rendered, and either sanction or repudiate it."

A pass-book kept by an employee, occasionally handed in to the book-keeper of the employer, by whom all necessary entries were made therein, is an account stated between the parties. Burke v. Wolfe, 6 Jones & S. (N. Y.) 263.

17. Opening the Account—Fraud—Mistake.—If there has been any mistake, omission, accident, fraud, or undue advantage by which the account stated is vitiated and the balance incorrectly stated, it will not be conclusive between the parties, but it may be opened and re-examined.<sup>1</sup>

See Shepard v. Bank, 15 Mo. 148; Powell v. Pacific R. Co., 65 Mo. 658; White v. Hampton, 10 Iowa, 238; White v. Campbell, 25 Mich. 463; Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129; s. c., B'k 19 L. C. P. 885; Union Bank v. Knapp, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 96; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 181; Bank v. Stickney, 4 Scam. (Ill.) 4; Fallansbee v. Parker, 70 Ill. 11; Peddycord v. Connard, 85 Ill. 102; Harley v. Eleventh Ward Bank, 76 N. Y. 618.

1. Story's Eq. Juris. (13th Ed.) 523; Samson v. Freedman, 102 N. Y. 699; Carpenter v. Kent, 101 N. Y. 591; Sharkey v. Mansfield, 90 N. Y. 227; Harley v. Eleventh Ward Bank, 76 N. Y. 618; McIntyre v. Warren, 3 Abb. App. Dec. 99; McDougall v. Cooper, 31 N. Y. 498; Lockwood v. Thorne, 18 N. Y. 157; Kock v. Bonitz, 4 Daly (N. Y.), 117; Wilde v. Jenkins, 4 Paige (N. Y.), 481; Newell v. Smith, 3 Atl. Repr. (Conn.) 674; Forman v. Brooks, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 212; Chatam v. Niles, 36 Conn. 403; Goodwin v. U. S. Ins. Co., 24 Conn. 591; Vandeveer v. Statesir, 39 N. J. L. 593; Brown v. Vandyke, 8 N. J. Eq. 795; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 250; Shirk's App. 3 Brew. (Pa.) 119; Jones v. Dunn, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 109; Hawkins v. Long, 74 N. Car. 781; Sloan v. Guice, 77 Ala. 392; Rembert v. Brown, 17 Ala. 667; Petec v. Crawford, 51 Miss. 43; La Trobe v. Hayward, 13 Fla. 190; Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Snelling, 59 Tex. 116; Horan v. Long, 11 Tex. 230; Bertrand v. Taylor, 32 Ark. 470; Roberts v. Totten, 13 Ark. 609; Kronenberger v. Binz, 56 Mo. 121; Carroll v. Paul, 16 Mo. 226; St. Louis, etc., Co. v. Colorado Nat. Bank, 8 Colo. 70; Branger v. Chevalier, 9 Cal. 353; Eddie v. Eddle, 61 Ill. 134; Gage v. Parmelee, 87 Ill. 329; Kinney v. People, 3 Scam. (Ill.) 357; Wharton v. Anderson, 28 Minn. 301; White v. Campbell, 25 Mich. 463; Bankhead v. Alloway, 6 Cold. (Tenn.) 56; Dickerson v. Nabb, Sneed (Ky.), 320; s. c., 2 Am. Dec. 725; Oil Co. v. Van Etten, 107 U. S. 325; Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129; s. c., 1 Myer's Fed. Dec. 18; Perkins v. Hart, 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 237; Chappedelaine v. Dechenaux, 4 Cranch (U. S.), 306; s. c., 1 Myer's Fed. Dec. 22.

What is sufficient evidence of misrepresentation to open an account stated. Upton v. Bedlow, 4 Daly (N. Y.), 216.

If the error or fraud affects all the items of the account it will be opened de novo. Branger v. Chevalier, 9 Cal. 353.

A written acknowledgment that an account is correct, made without consideration, will not estop a party from showing that it is incorrect as against parties having notice of its incorrectness before acting upon it. Higham v. Harris, 8 N. East. Repr. 255.

One is not precluded from showing the actual state of an account because he may have gratuitously stated the amount of it different from what it in truth was, unless some element of estoppel intervenes. Higham v. Harris, 5 West. Repr. (Ind.) 644.

A settlement of an account between parties, involving the receipt and disbursement of moneys, will not preclude a party to such settlement from afterward preferring a claim for overcharges and misrepresentations in respect to the subject-matter settled, if afterward discovered. Anthony v. Day, 52 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 35.

An account settled by bond or release may be opened for fraud or collusion, or where the settlement was made under suspicious circumstances; but in such a case the burden is upon the complainant. Love v. White, 4 Hayw. (Tenn.) 210. See Kelsey v. Hobby, 16 Pet. (U. S.) 269; Gray v. Washington, Cooke (Tenn.), 321.

If a person is of weak mind the court will open an account stated, if it is shown that an undue advantage has been taken of him. Rembert v. Brown, 17 Ala. 667. See Compton v. Greer, 2 Dev. Eq. (N. Car.) 93.

In an action upon an account stated, where the answer denies the allegations of the petition, and alleges affirmatively that an account existed between plaintiffs and defendant; that plaintiffs were defendant's bankers; and that they, with intent to defraud defendant, concealed from him the real condition of the account, and failed to credit him with deposits made by him, and charged him with items with which he was not chargeable, held, that the allegations of fraud contained in the answer were sufficient, if proven, to vitiate the account stated, if one existed; and that the question of such fraudulent concealment should be

Where, after a settlement and adjustment of an account between the parties, a mistake as to one item thereof is discovered, and an action is brought to correct the mistake, this does not give to the defendant a right to have the whole account opened. The submitted to the jury with other issues in the case. McKinster v. Hitchcock, 26 N. W. Repr. (Neb.) 705.

A stipulation that the settlement of the accounts was "subject to the correction of errors and omissions which may be hereafter found therein" does not render it any the less a settled account, and subject to all the rules applicable to stated accounts. Young v. Hill, 67 N. Y. 162; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 99.

When it cannot be opened.—A mere allegation of error is not sufficient. Gilchrist v. Brooklyn Grocers' Assoc., 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 390; 59 N. Y. 495; Forman v. Brooks, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 212.

It will not be opened for a clerical error, when such error does not affect the result. Wilson v. Frisbie, 57 Ga. 269. Nor if the plaintiff was aware when he made the settlement of the facts on which he bases his claim to relief. Quinlan v. Keiser, 66 Mo. 603. See Hager v. Thompson, 1 Black. (U. S.) 80.

An account which has been closed for over six years cannot be opened on the ground of a recently discovered mistake. Randel v. Ely, 6 Brews. (Pa.) 270.

If the party has been negligent in detecting the errors, the account will not be opened. Leather Mfrs.' Bank v. Morgan, 117 U. S. 96; Bruen v. Hone, Barb. (N. Y.) 586; George v. Johnson, 45 N. H. 456; Stearns v. Page, 7 How. (U. S.) 819; Winston v. Street, 2 Patt. & H. (Va.) 169; Fraser v. Hext, 2 Strob. Eq. (S. Car.) 250; Gregory v. Forrester, 1 McC. Ch. (S. Car.) 318, 332; Hutchins v. Hope, 7 Gill (Md.), 119; Burke v. Isham, 53 N. Y. 631; Augsbury v. Flower, 68 N. Y. 619; Dakin v. Demming, 6 Paige (N. Y.), 95; Ogden v. Astor, 4 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 311; Atwater v. Fowler, 1 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 417; Randel v. Ely, 3 Brews. Pa. 270.

Lapse of time is no bar to the opening of a stated account where there has been fraud, even if the party committing the fraud be dead. Botifeur v. Weyman, 1 McC. Ch. (S. Car.) 156. See Ogden v. Astor, 4 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 311.

Where the parties have acquiesced in a settlement for a long period, there must be clear and distinctive evidence of fraud or mistake to open a stated account. Augsbury v. Flower, 68 N. Y. 619.

Where the parties took the balance from the books of one of them, and each agreed to waive all claims against each other which were not included in the balance, the subsequent discovery of the omission of an item which would affect the balance is not ground for opening the account. Hamilton, etc., Co. v. Goodrich, 6 Allen (Mass.), 191.

A settlement deliberately made, followed by an agreement in writing, signed and sealed by the parties, though one was compelled from necessity to retire from the business, and withdraw his capital and was laboring at the time under financial embarrassment as well as great mental anguish, will not be set aside on trivial grounds. Gage v. Parmelee, 87 Ill. 329.

After a judgment, an execution and sale under a mortgage bond, the court will not open the account, though there be some degree of irregularity in the accounts if from the whole they appear to be fairly closed. Bloodgood v. Zeily, 2 Caine's Cas. (N. Y.) 124.

A stated account cannot be opened for a mistake in law. Commissioners v. Gherky, Wright (Ohio), 493.

Items for liquor and tobacco extravagantly used, do not furnish ground for opening an account. Iley v. Niswanger, 1 McC. Ch. (S. Car.) 523.

An agent for the collection of rents, rendered regular accounts, and submitted his books for inspection; but the principal, in consequence of his aversion to investigating accounts, and of his great confidence in the agent, signed receipts in full, and settlements of the accounts without examination. Held, that the accounts would not be opened except for fraud clearly proved, or for the correction of specific errors pointed out by the plaintiff in his bill. Phillips v. Bellden, 2 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 1. See Ogden v. Astor, 4 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 311.

When a creditor knowingly signs a statement acknowledging the satisfaction of a claim recited in it, he cannot afterwards maintain an action upon that claim against his debtor upon the ground of mistakes in the account, without first notifying him of those mistakes, and requiring correction. Roach v. Gilmer, 3 Utah, 389.

A, being surveyor to trustees of a turnpike road, delivered annual accounts, in which the real expenditure mistake may be corrected and the right of the parties readjusted in regard thereto; but in other respects defendant is bound by the account, actually settled, unless he can show some mistake or fraud in the settlement in respect to other items.<sup>1</sup> was understated. These accounts were believed by the trustees to be correct, as A intended, and they were acted upon on that assumption. There was no actual fraud by A, his object being to make the apparent expenditure as light as possible, and to avoid complaints from the trustees. Eventually the omitted items were brought into one account on the discovery of their omission by the trustees, who, however, refused to pay the same. A having brought an action, held, that he could not recover, on the ground that a man shall not be allowed to affirm at one time and deny at another, making a claim on those whom he has deluded to their disadvantage, and founding that claim on the very matters of the delusion. Cave v. Mills, 7 H. & N. 913.

A mere threat to sue upon a claim, and to arrest the person against whom it is made in such suit, or by virtue of an execution which may be issued upon a judgment obtained therein, is not such duress as will avoid a promise to pay the claim, induced by the threat. Dunham v. Griswold, 100 N. Y. 224. See DURESS.

Pleadings.—The pleadings should set forth the items of the mistake or fraud and distinctly allege that such items were omitted or fraudulent. Story's Eq. Juris. §§ 523, 527; Thelkeld v. Dobbins, 45 Ga. 144; Langdon v. Roane, 6 Ala. 518; s. c., 41 Am. Dec. 60; Walker v. Driver, 7 Ala. 683; Kronenberger v. Binz, 56 Mo. 121; Badger v. Badger, 2 Cliff. (U. S.) 137; Redman v. Green, 3 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 54; Praitt v. Weyman, 1 McC. Ch. (S. Car.) 156; Horan v. Long, 11 Tex. 230; Bullock v. Boyd, 1 Hoffm. Ch. (N. Y.) 294; Nourse v. Prime, 7 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 69; Young v. Hill, 67 N. Y. 162; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 99; Towsley v. Denison, 45 Barb. (N. Y.) 490. See Hampton v. Michael, 6 Gratt. (Va.) 151; Glenn v. Salter, 50 Ga. 170; Champion v. Joslyn, 44 N. Y. 653; Bright v. Coffman, 15 Ind. 371.

The particular act of fraud, misrepresentation, or concealment must be stated distinctly, also how, when, and in what manner it was perpetrated. The charges must be definite and reasonably certain, capable of proof and clearly proved. If a mistake is alleged, it must be stated with precision and made apparent, so that the court may rectify it, with a feeling of certainty that they are not committing another and perhaps greater mistake, and especially must there be distinct averments as to the time when the fraud, mistake, concealment, or misrepresentation was discovered, and what the discovery is, so that the court may clearly see whether by the exercise of ordinary diligence the discovery might not have been before made. Stearns v. Page, 7 How. (U. S.) 819; s. c., B'k 12, L. C. P. 928; 1 Myer's Fed. Dec. 26, § 30; Chubbuck v. Vernam, 42 N. Y. 432.

A plaintiff cannot impeach an account stated, set up by the defendant, unless he has alleged the error or mistake therein in his pleadings; and when that defence is set up to a general bill for an account, it is prima facie a bar to the suit until specific errors therein are assigned, and he must, therefore, amend his bill so as to set them up.

An account stated or settled is a mere admission that the account is correct. It is not an estoppel, but is still open to impeachment for mistakes and errors. Its effect is to establish, prima facie, the accuracy of the items without proof, and the party seeking to impeach it is bound to show authoritatively the mistake or error alleged. Barker v. Hoff, 52 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 382.

Where an account is stated, including a usurious transaction, and the balance assigned, the assignee cannot set up the usury, to defeat an item included in the account; it is a defence personal to the borrower. Bullard v. Raynor, 30 N. Y. 197.

1. Carpenter v. Kent, 101 N. Y. 591; Consequa v. Fanning, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 587; s. c., 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 511; Pauling v. Creagh, 54 Ala. 646; Bankhead v. Alloway, 6 Coldw. (Tenn.) 56; Higginson v. Fabre, 3 Dessau (S. Car.), 89.

Where an error occurs by the omission to include a certain sum, such error may be corrected, and the sum collected. McDougall v. Cooper, 31 N. Y. 498.

Where a party has his pass-book written up by a bank, he cannot, after a considerable lapse of time, open the settlement to recover unlawful interest charged him. Peddycord v. Connard, 85 Ill. 102. See Radcliffe v. Wightman, 1

ACCOUNT STATED—ACCOUNT RENDER.

18. Surcharging—Falsifying.—Where the mistake, or omission, or inaccuracy, or fraud, or imposition is not shown to affect or stain all the items of the transaction, the court will allow the account to stand with liberty to the plaintiff to surcharge or falsify it; the effect of which is to leave the account in full force and vigor as a stated account, except so far as it can be impugned by the opposing party.<sup>1</sup>

ACCOUNT RENDER.

- |  |  |
|--|--|
| 1. Definition.                                | 6. Arbitration.                                       |
| 2. History, in England and the United States. | 7. Judgment quod computet.                            |
| 3. When Account lies, and on what Demands.    | 8. Auditors.  |
| 4. Process.                                   | 9. Final Judgment.                                    |
| 5. Defence.                                   | 10. Error and Execution.                              |
|  | 11. Account Render as it exists in the United States. |

1. Definition.—Account is a writ or action brought against a person who, by means of his office as a guardian, or for some business he has undertaken as an agent, or some money he has received for another, ought to render an account to him, and refuses to do it; and he that calls him to an account shall recover of him not only what shall be found due, but damages also for the wrong done him.<sup>2</sup>

2. History.—Account is a very ancient common-law writ, now nearly obsolete, the object of which was to compel parties to render a true statement of monetary transactions which had arisen between them. In England for many years recourse has usually been had to courts of equity, as those courts extended their remedy to many cases of implied and constructive trusts, as well as to matters of fraudulent contrivance and tortious misconduct, which the action at common law could never have reached.<sup>3</sup> A full account of the action and its process may be found in Bacon's Abr., "Account," where the difficulties attending the common-law action are set forth more at large. The reproaches cast upon it would not seem, however, to be altogether well founded, as will

McC. Ch. (S. Car.) 408; Bullard v. Raynor, 30 N. Y. 197. Compare Bullock v. Boyd, Hoffm. Ch. (N. Y.) 294; Barrow v. Rhineland, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 550.

1. 1 Story's Eq. Juris. (13th Ed.) § 523. See Gover v. Hall, 3 Har. & J. (Md.) 43; Brown v. Vandyke, 4 Hals'd Eq. (N. J.) 795; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 250; Bullock v. Boyd, 1 Hoffm. Ch. (N. Y.) 294; Bruen v. Hone, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 586; Philips v. Belden, 2 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 1.

Surcharging applies to the balance of the whole account, and supposes credits omitted which ought to be allowed. Falsification applies to some items of the debits, supposing it to be wholly false or in part erroneous. Bruen v. Hone, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 586.

Where the plaintiff opens a stated account, and falsifies certain charges in it, the defendant may open it also, and correct a mistake in the rate of interest. Higginson v. Fabre, 3 Dessau (S. Car.), 89. See Floyd v. Priester, 8 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 248.

The account may be falsified by showing that a wrong charge was included in it. Young v. Hill, 67 N. Y. 162; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 99.

Authorities for Account.—Story's Equity Jurisprudence; Parsons on Contracts; Wharton on Contracts; Chitty on Contracts, 11th Am. Ed.; Greenleaf on Evidence; Abbott's Trial Evidence.

2. Imp. M. Pl. 143; Troubat & Haly's Pr. (5th Edit.) vol. ii. p. 138.

3. Wharton's Law Lexicon (7th Edit.), "Account."

appear from an examination of the case of Godfrey v. Saunders,<sup>1</sup> where, after a bill for an account had been fruitlessly pending in chancery for more than twelve years, it was finally determined in this form of action in the course of two years. By the judicature Act 1873, sec. 34 (3), all causes and matters for the taking of partnership or other accounts have been assigned to the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice.

In most of the States of the United States, the right to the common-law action exists, and in some it has been rendered very effective by certain statutory enactments; but inasmuch as discovery is the main object sought by the action, to enable the plaintiff to give evidence of his right, and that can be more readily obtained and questions in dispute more readily settled in equity, resort is generally had to that jurisdiction in those States where a separate tribunal exists. In New York the action of account has fallen into disuse, the remedy there adopted being by bill in chancery.<sup>2</sup> In Massachusetts, the courts having power to appoint auditors, assumpsit has been substituted.<sup>3</sup> In Pennsylvania the jury are authorized by statute<sup>4</sup> to settle the accounts and find the sum actually due to the plaintiff or defendant. Under the authority of the compulsory arbitration laws, cases of account render may be referred to arbitrators, who are "to determine on the whole merits of the cause, and report the balance due by either party to the other."

3. When Account lies.—By the common law, account lay only against a guardian in soccage, bailiff, or receiver, or by one in favor of trade and commerce against another wherein both were named merchants; that is to say, against all who had charge or possession of the lands, goods, chattels, or moneys of another with a liability to render an account thereof, such as partners, trustees, guardians, and all who could be specially described as above. It was the proper form of action between partners, one of whom cannot bring assumpsit against the other unless there be an account settled between them, and a balance struck.<sup>5</sup> As the action lies only on the ground that money, or its equivalent, has come to the hands of the defendant, to be accounted for, it cannot be maintained against a dormant partner who has received nothing, and has therefore no account to render;<sup>6</sup> nor will account lie against an active partner unless it can be shown that money of the firm has come into his hands.<sup>7</sup> It is said that at common law it only lies between two merchants; not where the partnership consists of a larger number.<sup>8</sup> When there are two defendants the

1. 3 Wils. 94.

2. Duncan v. Lyon, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 351.

3. Fanning v. Chadwick, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 420, 424.

4. Act 4th April, 1831, P. L. 492; Purdon, 54.

5. Foster v. Allenson, 2 T. Rep. 479;

1 C. of L.—9

Moravia v. Levy, cited in 2 T. Rep. 483; Andrews v. Allen, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 241.

6. Spear v. Newell, 2 Paine (U. S.), 267.

7. Demmy v. Dougherty, 1 Pears. (Pa.)

236.

8. Beach v. Hotchkiss, 2 Conn. 425;

Appleby v. Brown, 24 N. Y. 143. But plaintiff must show a joint liability.<sup>1</sup> The action also lay against an attorney-at-law for money received for his client;<sup>2</sup> by a landlord against a tenant, under a lease in which the rent was a share of the profits; between principal and factor; and, generally, wherever one person has received money as the agent of another.<sup>3</sup>

By various statutes passed in England, the last being 4 Anne, ch. 16, sec. 27, the right of action, heretofore limited to the parties to the contract, on the ground of privity between them, was given to executors, executors of executors, and to administrators; and was allowed to be maintained against the executors and administrators of every guardian, bailiff, and receiver, and also by one joint tenant and tenant in common, his executors and administrators, against the other, as bailiff, for receiving more than his just share and proportion; and against his executors and administrators. The action therefore now lies not only against all who can be charged as bailiff or receiver, but also against their personal representatives, and against joint tenants, or tenants in common without any actual appointment as bailiff or receiver. These statutes have become either part of the common law in the United States, or their substance for the most part has been incorporated into various statutes. There is this difference between the liability of a bailiff and receiver, for a bailiff is entitled to a just allowance for his charges and expenses; but this distinction does not apply to partners, for one partner, even though charged as receiver, is entitled to every just allowance against the other.<sup>4</sup> Though an infant may be an executor, or may be charged in trover, being a tort, he is not liable if he be made factor, bailiff, or receiver, for what he does during his infancy, either in law or in equity, for the same reason that other acts of his bind him not.<sup>5</sup> So also an executor who makes a profit of the estate of his testator is not, for this reason, liable to an action of account render, for it is a tort;<sup>6</sup> nor does such an action lie by a legatee against an executor.<sup>7</sup>

4. On what Demands Account lies.—Account lies only for a thing uncertain, arising out of a contract, express or implied, but not for any tort or certain debt. It will not, therefore, lie to recover mesne profits.<sup>8</sup> Nor for rent reserved on a lease; nor against a lessee or bailee of goods who wastes them, or who refuses to deliver them.

see Whelen v. Watmough, 15 S. & R. (Pa.) 153; Portsmouth v. Donaldson, 32 Pa. St. 202.

1. Griffith v. Willing, 3 Binn. (Pa.), 317.

2. Bredin v. Kingland, 4 Watts (Pa.), 420.

3. Long v. Fitzsimmons, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 530; Shriver v. Nimmick, 41 Pa. St. 91; Harrington v. Deane, Hob. 36.

4. James v. Browne, 1 Dall. (U. S.) 340.

5. Co. Litt. 172.

6. Anon. 1 Hayw. (N. Car.) 226; Conklin v. Bush, 8 Pa. St. 514.

7. Eaves v. Eaves, Mart. (La.) 45. In Pennsylvania this action is expressly allowed against an executor for the recovery of a legacy. 24th Feb., 1834, P. L. 83; Purdon, 54. So, also, Vermont and Connecticut to residuary legatees. See Rev. Stat. of Conn. 1875, p. 467, and Vermont Rev. St. of 1880.

8. Harker v. Whitaker, 5 Watts (Pa.),

5. Process.—The process in account render issues upon a præcipe, and the writ is in the usual form of personal actions. Where imprisonment for debt is abolished bail is not demandable. If no appearance is entered, the plaintiff may take judgment quod computet, by default, which is, however, interlocutory only.<sup>1</sup> The declaration must charge the defendant, in a proper manner,<sup>2</sup> as bailiff, receiver, or guardian, for there is a difference as to the liability of the defendant in this respect.<sup>3</sup> Where the defendant is charged as receiver the rule is imperative that the plaintiff shall set forth by whose hands the money was received; and if he be charged as bailiff, the declaration must describe the goods of which he had the care and management.<sup>4</sup> Defects in the declaration must be taken advantage of on demurrer, or they will be cured by final judgment. The authorities on this head are collected in 1 Vin. Abr., "Account," F. pl. 9, margin. A variance between the declaration and evidence was fatal, but it is now amendable even at the trial.<sup>5</sup>

6. Defence.—The pleas in defence are ne unques bailiff or receiver, plene computavit (fully accounted), or a release, or non-age or payment; and these pleas may be joined. Pleas in bar to the right of action must be so pleaded, and cannot afterwards be pleaded before the auditors;<sup>6</sup> but, except in case of a release, or plene computavit, if the defendant be once chargeable, he cannot plead in bar, but must plead before auditors.<sup>7</sup>

7. Arbitration.—Under the compulsory arbitration laws of Pennsylvania, the arbitrators appointed by virtue thereof have power to determine the whole merits of the cause, and to frame an account from which they deduce their award.

8. Judgment quod computet.—In the action of account there are two judgments. The first is that the defendant do account; for which purpose the court assigns auditors to take and declare the account between the parties. This judgment is interlocutory only, and a writ of error does not lie thereon.<sup>8</sup> Though if the defendant has pleaded in bar, and the bar is adjudged good, the plaintiff may have a writ of error, for this judgment is final until reversed.<sup>9</sup>

9. Auditors.—In Pennsylvania the act of 4th of April, 1831,<sup>10</sup> provides that the jury, in an action of account render, shall have full power to settle the accounts between the parties, and find in favor of the plaintiff, or one or more of the defendants, such sum or sums as shall appear to be due. When this course is adopted a formal

1. Kitchen v. Strawbridge, 4 Wash. C. C. (Pa.) 841.

2. Hughes v. Worsley, 15 Miss. 492; McKay v. Brown, 13 Vt. 593; Smith v. Smith, 2 Root (Conn.) 42; Barnum v. Landon, 25 Conn. 137; Wilson v. Wilson, 2 South. (N. J.) 791; Wright v. Guy, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 227.

3. Troubat & Haly's Pr. (5th Edit.) vol. ii. sec. 1690.

4. McMurray v. Rawson, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 59.

5. McAdam v. Orr, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 550.

6. Lee v. Abrams, 12 Ill. 111; Kelly v. Kelly, 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 419.

7. Morgan v. Adams, 37 Vt. 233.

8. Beitter v. Zeigler, 1 P. & W. (Pa.) 135.

9. 1 Vin. Abr., "Account," U. pl. 22, margin.

10. P. L. 492; Purdon, 54.

judgment quod computet is not necessary. Where, however, this course is not allowable, and the court, on motion of the plaintiff, has assigned auditors, the proceedings before them are in the nature of a new action, and the defendant is put to plead whatever matter discharges him from liability to the plaintiff, in consequence of not having accounted with him as he ought. As has already been said, what might have been pleaded in bar to the action shall not be allowed as a discharge before the auditors; nor can anything be pleaded before the auditors contrary to what has been previously pleaded and found by verdict.<sup>1</sup> The judgment quod computet settles conclusively the liability of the defendant to account, but it does not prevent him from demanding an issue upon each and every item with which the plaintiff seeks to charge him in account. The auditors may make the proper charges and allow the proper credits without regard to the judgment to account, for it is not to be inferred from this judgment that the defendant has received all the precise sums and at the precise times mentioned in the declaration.<sup>2</sup> If the matters offered by the defendant before the auditors are disputed by the plaintiff, he may demur or take issue. These demurrers or issues are certified by the auditors to the court, where the matter of law is decided by the court, and of fact by a jury; which being returned to the auditors, they report an account accordingly.<sup>3</sup> If either party has cause of complaint against the auditors, redress is to be had by application to the court. And in all cases of dispute before auditors the exception must be taken before them, and certified as above in the shape of an issue for trial; it is too late to file exceptions to the report after it has been returned.<sup>4</sup> The auditors must examine all articles of account, though incurred since the writ, and the whole must be brought down to the time

1. Sutton v. Adams, 45 Pa. St. 67; Bishop v. Eagle, 10 Mod. 22; Geoffry v. Saunders, 3 Wils. 113, 114; Spear v. Newell, 2 Paine (U. S.), 267; Spencer v. Usher, 2 Day (Conn.), 116; Cro. Car. 116; Porter v. Wheeler, 37 Vt. 281; Baxter v. Thompson, 26 Vt. 559; Day v. Lockwood, 24 Conn. 185.

2. Newbold v. Sims, 2 S. & R. (Pa.) 317.

3. Crousillat v. McCall, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 433; Miller v. Anspach, cited in Troubat & Haly's Practice (5th Edit.), vol. ii. § 1705, note. Per curiam.—The practice in this action has been long well settled, and has been recognized, in Pennsylvania, in the case of Crousillat v. McCall, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 433.

If the matters offered by either party are disputed by the other, he may either demur or take issue before the auditors. If there are more points of dispute than one, there may be a demurrer, or an issue on each, which are to be certified by the auditors to the court, and then the matters of law will be decided by the court and the issues in fact by a jury, after which the account will be finally settled by the auditors, according to the results of the trial. If either party desires an issue and the auditors refuse permission, the court will set the matter to rights. So, if the auditors conduct themselves with any manner of impropriety, to the injury of either party, redress may be had on application to the court. The exceptant does not allege that he put in his plea before the auditors, and claimed an issue thereon; the exception now filed is, in fact, the claim of an issue. It is too late, therefore; and it would introduce irregularity and confusion into the proceedings of an action already sufficiently complicated to allow it. The court must, therefore, treat the exception as a mere nullity.

4. Snyder v. Castor, 4 Yeates (Pa.), 358; Crousillat v. McCall, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 433.

when the auditors make an end of their account.<sup>1</sup> It is the province of the auditors to weigh the evidence, and investigate the facts and determine thereon, and a report will not be set aside for a mistake of fact.<sup>2</sup> The report must be a special one, and not merely an award of a balance.<sup>3</sup>

10. Final Judgment.—If the report certify that the defendant refused to account, judgment shall be that the plaintiff recover according to the value mentioned in the declaration.<sup>4</sup> If it contain an account in favor of the plaintiff, the judgment is that the plaintiff do recover against the defendant so much as he (the defendant) is found in arrears.<sup>5</sup> The judgment carries costs,<sup>6</sup> and where the defendant has resisted the plaintiff's claim by pleading, there shall be a judgment for damages.<sup>7</sup> The plaintiff may have judgment for a greater amount than the damages laid in the declaration.<sup>8</sup> The auditors may report a balance in favor of the defendant,<sup>9</sup> but it is doubtful whether judgment can be entered on such a report.<sup>10</sup>

11. Error and Execution.—To the final judgment a writ of error lies; but although it be found erroneous and reversed, the first judgment will stand in force, for the two judgments are distinct and perfect. If on error, after the last judgment, the first is reversed, the last is consequently reversed also.<sup>11</sup>

This action is the first of a civil nature to which process of execution against the person was given, and in which the action of debt was given against the jailer who let any one escape committed to prison for arrearages of account found by auditors.<sup>12</sup> This right is, of course, lost where imprisonment for debt is abolished. The other executions in this action are the same as in all the personal civil actions.

12. Account Render as it exists in the United States.—Although in those States which have independent courts of chancery a bill in equity has generally superseded the old common-law action of account, there are many States in which this action still exists, and in which it has been brought at various times, as Connecticut, Illinois, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont.<sup>13</sup> It is also an avail-

1. Robinson v. Bland, 2 Burr. 1086; Cousher v. Tulam, 4 Wash. C. C. (Pa.) 442.

2. Parker v. Avery, Kirby (Conn.), 353; Wood v. Barney, 2 Vt. 369.

3. Shewell v. Fell, 4 Yeates (Pa.), 51; Willson v. Willson, 2 South. (N. J.) 791; Finney v. Harbeson, 4 Yeates (Pa.), 514; Spencer v. Usher, 2 Day (Conn.), 116; Thomas v. Alsop, 2 Root (Conn.), 12.

4. Williams v. White, Cro. Eliz. 806; Pierce v. Clark, Lutw. 63.

5. 1 Selw. N. P. 5.

6. Harrison v. Warner, 3 Luz. L. Reg. 225.

7. Gratz v. Phillips, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 568.

8. Gratz v. Phillips, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 568.

9. Dickerson v. Whittlesay, 2 Root (Conn.), 121.

10. McCall v. Crousillat, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 7.

11. 1 Vin. Abr.; "Account," pl. 22.

12. Statute Westm. 2, 13 Edw. I. c. 11.

13. Barnum v. Landon, 25 Conn. 137; Spalding v. Day, 37 Conn. 428; Day v. Lockwood, 24 Conn. 185; Usher v. Spencer, 2 Day (Conn.), 120; Starkey v. Peters, 18 Conn. 181; Smith v. Brush, 11 Conn. 159; Pond v. Pond, 2 Root (Conn.), 41; Smith v. Smith, 2 Root (Conn.), 42; Daven v. Chapman, 5 Conn. 14; Lacon v. Davenport, 16 Conn. 341; Mantz v. Col- able action in the United States courts.<sup>1</sup> In 1818 in New York, Chancellor Kent, sitting in Equity, declared, in the case of Duncan v. Lyon,<sup>2</sup> that "courts of law and equity have concurrent jurisdiction in matters of account, and it is conceded that an action of account at law may be brought by one partner against another;" but in 1843 the Supreme Court said that the action had become obsolete.<sup>3</sup> Since which time the action seems to have been brought only four times.<sup>4</sup> It is recognized by the statute law.<sup>5</sup> In Connecticut the action of account at common law has been allowed in several cases,<sup>6</sup> even against three defendants where the action is against them jointly, notwithstanding the statute<sup>7</sup> that an action instituted against two or more defendants to compel them to render an account shall be by bill in equity, it being held that that statute has reference to cases where the defendants are sued to answer severally.<sup>8</sup> It also lies before a justice of the peace,<sup>9</sup>

lins, 4 H. & McH. (Md.) 65; Gibbs v. Claggett, 2 Gill & J. (Md.) 14; Green v. Johnson, 3 Gill & J. (Md.) 389; Sargent v. Parsons, 12 Mass. 149; Fowle v. Kirkland, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 299. The action of account render has been abolished in Massachusetts. Rev. Stats. c. 118, § 43; Appleby v. Brown, 24 N. Y. 143; Bredin v. Deven, 2 Watts (Pa.), 95; Bredin v. Kingland, 4 Watts (Pa.), 420; Long v. Fitzsimmons, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 530; Griffith v. Willing, 3 Binney (Pa.), 317; Irvine v. Hanlin, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 220; Dennison v. Goehring, 7 Pa. St. 175; Perch v. Quiggle, 57 Pa. St. 247; Dureya v. Witcomb, 31 Vt. 395; Hydeville Co. v. Barnes, 37 Vt. 588; Foster v. Ives, 53 Vt. 458. The action of account has been established by statute in Vermont. Revised Laws, 1880, §§ 1202-1217; Lee v. Abrams, 12 Ill. 111; Crow v. Mark, 52 Ill. 332; Hunt v. Gorden, 52 Miss. 194; Knowles v. Harris, 5 R. I. 402; Closson v. Means, 40 Me. 337; Gratz v. Phillips, 3 Binn. (Pa.) 474; Smith v. Woods, 3 Vt. 485; McPherson v. McPherson, 11 Ired. (N. Car.) 391; Hale v. Hale, 3 Day (Conn.), 377.

1. Jordan v. Wilkins, 2 Wash. C. C. 482; Cousher v. Tulam, 4 Wash. C. C. 442; Spear v. Newell, 2 Paine (U. S.), 268; Travers v. Dyer, 16 Blatchf. C. C. 178.

2. 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 351.

3. The words of the court (Bronson, J.) are as follows: "In this State it does not appear that more than one action of account was ever brought before—Jacobs v. Fountain, 19 Wend. 121—and the present experiment will probably be the last. In England the action seems not to have been brought more than a dozen times within the last two centuries, and in most of the cases the difficulty has been about the form of the remedy rather than the rights of the parties. One of the last cases which I have noticed in the English books was brought in 1768 and ended in 1770—Godfrey v. Saunders, 3 Wils. 73. But it is worthy of remark that the account was never taken. The case was decided on demurrer to a plea before the auditors. Ch. J. Wilmot said he was glad to see the action revived, but at the same time told the counsel the court was in 'some doubt how the judgment must be entered and about the damages,' and he recommended expedition, as the plaintiff was very old and the cause had been depending (in chancery and at law) fourteen years, and it was high time it should be ended. . . . There have been three cases since that time. . . . In some of the States the action is in use in a modified form, to supply the defect in their system from the want of a court of equity. In this State there is no such reason for attempting to revive and remould a remedy which was always difficult and has now become obsolete." McMurray v. Rawson, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 59.

4. Kelly v. Kelly, 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 419; Woolever v. Knapp, 18 Barb. (N. Y.) 265; Hall v. Fisher, 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 441; Appleby v. Brown, 24 N. Y. 143.

5. 1 N. Y. Rev. S. 750, § 9; 2 ibid. 385, § 49.

6. Mumford v. Avery, Kirby (Conn.), 163; Wetmore v. Woodbridge, Kirby (Conn.), 164; Griggs v. Dodge, 2 Day (Conn.), 28; Smith v. Chapman, 5 Conn. 14; Oveatt v. Sage, 7 Conn. 95; Lacon v. Davenport, 16 Conn. 331; Barnum v. Landon, 25 Conn. 137.

7. Rev. Stat. 478.

8. Barnum v. Landon, 25 Conn. 137.

9. Rev. Stat. 1875, title 19, ch. 17, § 3; Bulkly v. Lewis, 1 Root (Conn.), 217.

ACCOUNT RENDER—ACCOUNTABLE.

and by residuary legatees against executors.<sup>1</sup> The jurisdiction of equity is concurrent.<sup>2</sup> In Massachusetts, where the action originally lay,<sup>3</sup> it has been abolished.<sup>4</sup> In Maine the action has been expressly sanctioned by statute.<sup>5</sup>

The States in which the action of account render appears to be most in use are Connecticut, Vermont, and Pennsylvania,—in Vermont under a statute,<sup>6</sup> and in Connecticut and Pennsylvania at common law. In the last two States certain statutes have been passed which render this action more effective and less dilatory. In every case, however, the old common-law process is preserved, and the statutory modifications have extended the right of action, or have altered the rules of evidence or pleading only; except in Pennsylvania, where the right has been given to the jury to settle the account and find a final judgment, without the necessity of appointing auditors.<sup>7</sup> The reports of Vermont abound with cases which may be found cited in the Revised Statutes of 1880, page 277, etc. The only modification that need be noticed is the right of the defendant to plead before the auditors any plea in bar, just as if no judgment quod computet had been rendered.<sup>8</sup> In Connecticut the most important change is that jurisdiction is given to justices of the peace.<sup>9</sup>

ACCOUNTABLE.—A party has a reasonable ground to expect upon receiving notes indorsed by the payee's name, followed by the word "accountable," that said payee would be "subject to pay," "responsible," or "liable for," or make good the amount of said notes as soon as they became due and payable, without subjection to a previous demand upon the makers.<sup>10</sup> A provision making an officer "accountable to" another may imply authority to remove him.<sup>11</sup>

ACCOUNTABLE RECEIPT.—An accountable receipt is an instrument acknowledging the receipt of money or personal property, coupled with an obligation to account for or pay or deliver the whole or some part of it to some person.<sup>12</sup>

1. Rev. Stat. 1875, title 19, ch. 17, § 4.

2. Ibid. ch. 4, § 6.

3. Fowle v. Kirkland, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 299.

4. R. S. c. 118, § 43.

5. R. S. c. 115, § 57.

6. Rev. St. 1880, §§ 1202-1217.

7. Act 4th April, 1831, P. L. 492; Purdon, 54.

8. Vermont Rev. St. 1880, § 1205.

9. Conn. R. St. 1875, title 19, ch. 17, § 3.

10. Furber v. Caverly, 42 N. H. 74.

A bequest of personal estate declaring that legatee shall not be accountable for depreciation of farming implements and stock, with a devise over of the residence, held to give an absolute title in the farming implements and stock. Breton v. Mockett, 9 Ch. Div. 95.

11. McPhillips v. McPhillips, 9 R. I. 536.

12. State v. Riebe, 27 Minn. 315. "Boston, Aug. 15, 1868. Received of Wm. J. Dale, Surgeon-General of Mass., my discharge and check, No. 6979 for $100. George P. Gill. Witness, Frederick P. Cutting." This, not acknowledging that anything has been received to be accounted for, is not an accountable receipt within a statute making an accountable receipt for money, goods, or other property a subject of forgery, and is fatal to an indictment for forgery as of an accountable receipt. Commonwealth v. Lawless, 101 Mass. 32. See State v. Wheeler, 19 Minn. 98; R. v. West, 2 C. & K. 496. See ACQUITTANCE.

Definition. ACCOUNT-BOOKS—ACCRETION. In whom Title vests.

ACCOUNT-BOOKS. See BOOKS AS EVIDENCE.

ACCRETION—ALLUVION—AVULSION—RELICION. See ACCESSION; BOUNDARIES; RIPARIAN RIGHTS; SALVAGE; WATERS.

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| 1. Definition.                                   | 5. Rivers and Streams.          |
| 2. In whom Title vests.                          | 6. Islands formed by Accretion. |
| 3. Must be Slow to vest Title in Riparian owner. | 7. Seaweed.                     |
| 4. Relicion.                                     | 8. Stranded Property.           |

1. Definition.—Accretion is the increase of real estate by the addition of portions of soil by gradual deposition through the operation of natural causes to that already in possession of the owner. The term "alluvion" is applied to the deposit itself, while accretion rather denotes the act.<sup>1</sup>

2. In whom Title vests.—All lands gained from the sea by alluvion, where the gain is by small and imperceptible degrees, shall go to the owners of the land adjoining.<sup>2</sup>

1. 3 Washb. on Real Prop. 451; Bouvier's Law Dict., title "Accretion."

2. 2 Blacks. Com. 262; Middleton v. Pritchard, 3 Scam. (Ill.) 510; Hagan v. Campbell, 8 Port. (Ala.) 9; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 267; Camden & Atlantic Land Co. v. Lippincott, 45 N. J. L. 405; Mulry v. Norton, 100 N. Y. 424; East Hampton v. Kirk, 84 N. Y. 218; Lammers v. Nissen, 4 Neb. 250.

The principle that accretion by alluvion belongs to the owner of the shore upon which it is deposited rests on the consideration that, while he is liable to lose soil by the action of the water, he should also have the benefit of accretion by the same action. It in no manner depends upon the duty of keeping up levees and embankments to guard against the overflow of the river. Municipality No. 2 v. Cotton Press, 18 La. 122; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 625.

The title to lands reclaimed from the water of a harbor, like the title to natural accretion, was held to be in the owner of the adjoining property. Lockwood v. N. Y. & H. R. Co., 37 Conn. 387.

When soil has been wrongfully deposited by human hands in the ocean or other public waters, in front of the uplands, so that the water-line is carried further out, the same rule applies as when such a deposit has been gradually made by natural causes, i. e., the accretion becomes the property of the owner of the upland, and his title still extends to the water-line.

Plaintiff owned a lot in the city of B., bounded easterly by the water-line of the East River, and southerly by the central line of J. Street, which street terminated at said water-line. A wharf had been built in front of his lot, extending to the centre of said street, which plaintiff maintained, receiving wharfage from all persons using the same. The city authorities built a pier at the end of the street, shutting off from the water that portion of plaintiff's wharf in front of his half of the street. In an action to recover damages, held, that the erection of the pier was a wrongful interference with plaintiff's rights, and rendered the city liable; that the pier was to be considered as an accretion, and so much of it as was in front of his half of the street became his; also, that plaintiff was entitled to recover, as damages, the wharfage received by the city from that portion of the pier in front of his land; that defendant, having wrongfully collected the wharfage, was not entitled to any allowance for expenses incurred in collecting the same, or for the cost of building the wrongful structure, or keeping it in repair. Steers v. Brooklyn, 101 N. Y. 51. Compare 3 Washb. on Real Prop. (4th Ed.) 55; citing Austin v. Rutland R. Co., 45 Vt. 215.

Where the sea instead of retreating encroaches on the land, property so gradually submerged belongs to the State. Wilson v. Shiveley, 11 Oregon, 215.

But the owner of a beach which is suddenly overflowed, and which years afterward reappears, retains title thereto. Mulry v. Norton, 100 N. Y. 424.

A party as a riparian owner cannot be protected as to accretions to his land which are not in existence and which may or may not exist in the future. Taylor v. Underhill, 40 Cal. 471.

3. Must be slow.—Accretion, to vest a title in the owner of the abutting shore, must be so slow that its increase should be imperceptible;<sup>1</sup> but if sudden and considerable it belongs to the sovereign.<sup>2</sup>

4. Reliction.—Reliction is the increase of land by the retreat or recession of water from the shore of a sea, river, or lake.<sup>3</sup>

5. Accretion on Rivers and Streams.—The owner of land on a stream has a right to all the accretions thereto caused by the deposition of alluvion thereon, without regard to the question whether such accretions were formed solely by natural causes, or by such causes influenced by the artificial works of others, and without regard to the question whether such stream is navigable or not.<sup>4</sup>

1. Angell on Watercourses, § 53; Halsey v. McCormick, 18 N. Y. 147; Emans v. Turnbull, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 314; Mulry v. Norton, 100 N. Y. 424; Cook v. McClure, 58 N. Y. 437; Lovington v. St. Clair, 64 Ill. 56; s. c., 23 Wall. (U. S.) 68; Kraut v. Crawford, 18 Ia. 549; Benson v. Morrow, 61 Mo. 352; Hopkins Academy v. Dickinson, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 551.

The test of what addition is gradual and imperceptible is that though the witnesses may see from time to time that progress has been made they could not perceive it while the progress was going on. County of St. Clair v. Lovington, 23 Wall. (U. S.) 46; s. c., 16 Am. Rep. 516.

2. 2 Blacks. Com. 261; Emans v. Turnbull, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 314.

Where considerable quantities of soil are by a sudden action of the water taken from the land of one and deposited upon or against the land of another it is called "avulsion," and the title to such soil remains in the original owner, unless he fails to claim his right of ownership until it has united with the soil of the other owner. Angell on Watercourses, § 60; 3 Washb. R. P. 60; Woodbury v. Short, 17 Vt. 387.

3. Bouvier's Law. Dict.

Land lost by submergence may be regained by reliction, unless the submergence has been followed by such a lapse of time as precluded the identity of the land from being established. Mulry v. Norton, 100 N. Y. 424.

Reliction takes place most frequently in lakes and ponds. The owner of land bounded on a lake, whether navigable or not, has title to the land left dry by the gradual and imperceptible recession of the water. Warren v. Chambers, 25 Ark. 120; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 23; Banks v. Ogden, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 57; Granger v. Swart,

1 Woolw. (U. S.) 88; Murry v. Sermon, 1 Hawks (N. Car.), 56; Boorman v. Sunnuchs, 42 Wis. 233.

But in Louisiana it has been held that alluvion which forms upon the shores of Lake Pontchartrain is not susceptible of private ownership: such alluvion does not, therefore, become the property of owners of lots fronting on said lake. It is the accretion made by rivers and streams only that belong to the proprietors of adjacent lands. Zeller v. Southern Yacht Club, 34 La. Ann. 837.

Where the boundary line of land bordering on an artificial pond was expressed in the deed "to commence at a stake near the high-water mark of the pond, and to run thence along the high-water mark of said pond to the upper end of said pond," it was held that the boundary line was fixed and permanent, and that the grantee was not entitled to any accretions or land left dry by the pond's receding, although the gradual and imperceptible result of natural causes. It would have been otherwise had the deed not permanently fixed the boundary line. Cook v. McClure, 58 N. Y. 437; s. c., 17 Am. Rep. 270; but see Mansur v. Blake, 62 Me. 38.

In order to entitle the adjoining property-holders to the right of possession of the land left bare by the receding water the recession must be slow, gradual, and imperceptible. In case of a sudden and sensible recession of the water the ownership of the land will not be changed. Warren v. Chambers, 25 Ark. 120; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 23; Lynch v. Allen, 4 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 62; Woodbury v. Short, 17 Vt. 387; Boorman v. Sunnuchs, 42 Wis. 233; Murry v. Sermon, 1 Hawks (N. Car.) 56.

4. New Orleans v. U. S., 10 Pet. (U. S.) 662; Jones v. Soulard, 24 How. (U. S.) 41; Saulett v. Shepherd, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 502;

6. Islands.—If an island is formed by accretion in an unnavigable stream, the ownership of such island will be determined by

Schools v. Risley, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 110; Jones v. Johnston, 18 How. (U. S.) 150; Handly v. Anthony, 5 Wheat. (U. S.) 380; Barney v. Keokuk, 94 U. S. 324; Lovington v. County of St. Clair, 64 Ill. 56; s. c., 16 Am. Rep. 516; Godfrey v. City of Alton, 12 Ill. 29; Seaman v. Smith, 24 Ill. 523; Lammers v. Nissen, 4 Neb. 245; Halsey v. McCormick, 18 N. Y. 147; Wetmore v. Atl. White Lead Co., 37 Barb. (N. Y.) 70; Posey v. James, 7 Lea (Tenn.), 98; Minto v. Delaney, 7 Oregon, 337; Giraud v. Hughes, 1 Gill & J. (Md.) 249; Patterson v. Gelston, 23 Md. 432; Chapman v. Hoskins, 2 Md. ch. 485; DeLord v. New Orleans, 11 La. Ann. 699; Municipality No. 2 v. Cotton Press, 18 La. 122; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 624; Kennedy v. Municipality No. 2, 10 La. Ann. 54; Barrett v. New Orleans, 13 La. Ann. 105; Benson v. Morrow, 61 Mo. 353; Smith v. St. Louis Schools, 30 Mo. 290; Adams v. Frothingham, 3 Mass. 353; Deerfield v. Arms, 17 Pick. (Mass.) 41; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 271; Hopkins Academy v. Dickinson, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 544; Niehaus v. Shepherd, 26 Ohio St. 45; Kraut v. Crawford, 18 Iowa, 549; Morgan v. Scott, 26 Pa. St. 51; Miller v. Hepburn, 8 Bush (Ky.), 326. Compare Ferrière v. New Orleans, 35 La. Ann. 209.

Even where the alluvion is formed at a bar which existed at the time the original grant of the land was made, but which was not included in the survey, being covered with water during the greater part of the year, the government's surveyor running the line as near the bank as possible, considering the river the line, the owner of the land was held to be entitled to it, though at low water the distance across the bar to the water was nearly half a mile. Stephenson v. Goff, 10 Rob. (La.) 99; s. c., 43 Am. Dec. 171; but see Fulton v. Frandolig, 63 Tex. 330.

The right to accretions as such in the bed of a river depends on actual contiguity. Any separation of the claimant's land from the alluvion by the land of another defeats the claim. Re State Reservation Comm'rs, 37 Hun (N. Y.), 537; Bates v. Illinois, etc., R. Co., 1 Black. (U. S.) 204; Saulett v. Shepherd, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 502; Posey v. James, 7 Lea (Tenn.), 98; Bristoll v. Carroll County, 95 Ill. 84; Beaufort v. Duncan, 1 Jones (N. Car.), 234; New Orleans v. Gravier, 11 Mart. (La.) 620.

Where a new shore is formed on a not navigable river from the opposite side by the wearing-away of the stream, the land on the new shore is to be divided between the owners entitled to it, according to the following rule: Give to each owner a share of the new shore line in proportion to what he held in the old shore line, and complete the division of the land by running a line from the bound between the parties on the old shore to the point thus ascertained on the new. Batchelder v. Keniston, 51 N. H. 496; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 143; Johnston v. Jones, 1 Black (U. S.), 209; Deerfield v. Arms, 17 Pick. (Mass.) 41; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 276; Knight v. Wilder, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 199; Hopkins Academy v. Dickinson, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 552; Wonson v. Wonson, 14 Allen (Mass.), 85; O'Donnell v. Kelsey, 10 N. Y. 412; Winnisimmet Co. v. Wyman, 11 Allen (Mass.), 438. Compare Rust v. Boston Mill Corp., 6 Pick. (Mass.) 158; Sparhawk v. Bullard, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 96; Emerson v. Taylor, 9 Greenl. (Me.) 43; Gray v. Deluce, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 9; Mott v. Thayer, 2 Bosw. (N. Y.) 10.

A tract of land bordering upon the Mississippi River was divided into parcels, some of which subdivisions or lots extended to the river bank, as it then was. These lots became the property of various persons. Subsequently there were accretions along the river front, and in adjusting the matter of such accretions among the several adjacent riparian owners it was held the proper mode was to measure the entire river front as it was found to be when the lots were laid out, and note the aggregate number of feet frontage, as well as that of each lot; then measure a line drawn as nearly as may be with the middle thread of so much of the stream as lies opposite the shore line so measured; then divide the thread line into as many equal parts as there are lineal feet in the shore line, giving to each proprietor as many of these parts as his property measures feet on the shore line; and then complete the division by drawing lines between the points, designating the lot or parcel belonging to each proprietor both upon the shore and river lines. Kehr v. Snyder, 114 Ill. 313.

Accretions to a strip of land in a city along the river bank, which is reserved for a public highway and other public uses, partakes of the same nature as the original reservation; and the city holds title to it subject to the same uses and the filum aquæ. It belongs to the owner of the land on whose side of this line it is formed; or if the island is situated on the line, so much of it as lies on his side, while the other part belongs to the owner of the other shore.<sup>1</sup> conditions. The city has no right, however, to make an unqualified disposition of it to a railroad company to be held and used as private property, but may grant the right of way over it to such railroad company. Cook v. City of Burlington, 30 Iowa, 94; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 649. See also Godfrey v. City of Alton, 12 Ill. 29; s. c., 52 Am. Dec. 476.

The riparian owner has the title to all the alluvial deposits on his property, and it does not matter whether the property has changed from rural to urban or whether a street has been laid out between a tract of land and the river. As long as the vacant strip between the river and the street has never expressly been dedicated to public use it belongs, with its accretion, to the owner of the land, and the legislature cannot deprive him of his right. It would be otherwise, however, if, on the plan by which the street was laid out, said strip had been marked "quay," or with any other word indicative of the intent to dedicate it to public use. Municipality No. 2 v. Cotton Press, 18 La. 122; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 624; Westmore v. Atlantic, etc., Co., 37 Barb. (N. Y.) 70; Banks v. Ogden, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 57; Donovan v. New Orleans, 35 La. Ann. 461.

Where in a city a street is laid out, extending to a navigable river, accretions formed at the foot of the street are considered a continuation of the street; and adjoining owners will not have the right to close up the space between the river and the end of the street, although they have a statutory right to erect piers and bulkheads and fill up the river-bed in front of their lands. People v. Lambier, 5 Denio (N. Y.), 9; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 273.

A riparian proprietor is entitled to the accretions made to his land by the river, and the statute of limitations in its application to such accretions relates back to the time it began to run in favor of the riparian owner as to the main bank. The accretions, in becoming a part of the land to which they are joined, take the title and condition of that land just as it exists at the time of their formation. If the riparian owner is barred, or partially barred, by the statute of limitations as to the bank, he will be barred as to the accretions in like manner, although they may have been deposited but a year or a day. Campbell v. Laclede Gas Co., 84 Mo. 353.

Where the owner of land bordering upon a stream sees his land wearing away by the water he may rubble or secure his bank in any way so as to keep the channel in its present location, but he may not build a bulkhead and throw the current on the opposite shore. Gerish v. Clough, 48 N. H. 9; s. c., 2 Am. Rep. 165; Angell on Watercourses, §§ 330-334; but see Diedrich v. Northwestern R. Co., 42 Wis. 248.

1. McCullough v. Wall, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) L. 68; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 715; Ingraham v. Wilkinson, 4 Pick. (Mass.) 268; s. c., 16 Am. Dec. 342; Deerfield v. Arms, 17 Pick. (Mass.) 41; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 276; Hopkins Academy v. Dickinson, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 548; Middleton v. Pritchard, 3 Scam. (Ill.) 510.

If an island was washed away, in whole or in part, after it was surveyed and then reformed on the same bed, the owner of it, as it was before it was so washed away, would be entitled to it; but if it was washed away and the land sought to be recovered was made by deposits to and against the survey of the main land, then such deposits became the property of the owner of the survey. Buse v. Russell, 86 Mo. 209.

At common law only those rivers were deemed navigable in which the tide ebbs and flows; and grants of land bounded on rivers or upon the margin of the same, or along the same above tide-water, carry the exclusive right and title of the grantee to the centre of the stream, unless the terms of the grant clearly denote the intention to stop at the edge or margin of the river; and the public, in cases where the river is navigable for boats and rafts, have an easement therein, or a right of passage as a public highway. 3 Kent's Com. 427.

In the United States various opinions have been held by the courts about the term "navigable rivers." In some States all rivers "of sufficient capacity to float the products of the mines, the forests, or the tillage of the country through which they flow, to market, or for the floating of vessels, boats, rafts, or logs," are called "navigable rivers," and the abutting owners own only to high-water mark. In others the common-law rule prevails, and the owners of land situated on these rivers above tide-water own to the centre of the stream, subject to the easement of navigation. In some, the decisions are both ways. Carson v. Blazer, 2 Binn. (Pa.) 475; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 463; Shrunk v. Schuylkill Nav. Co., 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 71; Monongahela Bridge Co. v. Kirk, 46 Pa. St. 112; Flanagan v. Philadelphia, 42 Pa. St. 230; Barclay R. Co. v. Ingham, 36 Pa. St. 200; Bird v. Smith, 8 Watts (Pa.), 439; Union Canal v. Landis, 9 Watts (Pa.), 228; Cates v. Wadlington, 1 McCord (S. Car.), 580; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 699; Bullock v. Wilson, 2 Porter (Ala.), 436; Elder v. Burrus, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 358; Wilson v. Forbes, 2 Den. (N. Car.) 30; Collins v. Benbury, 3 Ired. (N. Car.) 277; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 722; Ingram v. Threadgill, 3 Ired. (N. Car.) 59; McManus v. Carmichael, 3 Iowa, 1; Tomlin v. Dubuque, etc., R. Co., 32 Iowa, 106; Haight v. Keokuk, 4 Iowa, 199; Musser v. Hershey, 42 Iowa, 356; Wood v. Hustis, 17 Wis. 417; Cobb v. Smith, 16 Wis. 692; Harrington v. Edwards, 17 Wis. 586*; The Montello, 20 Wall. (U. S.) 430; Wisconsin River Co. v. Lyons, 30 Wis. 61; Weise v. Smith, 3 Oregon, 445; Felger v. Robinson, 3 Oregon, 455; Bowman v. Wathen, 2 McLean (U. S.), 376; Railroad Co. v. Schurmeir, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 272; Barney v. Keokuk, 94 U. S. 324; Martin v. Waddell, 16 Pet. (U. S.) 376; Pollard's Lessee v. Hogan, 3 How. (U. S.) 212; Goodtitle v. Kibbe, 9 How. (U. S.) 471; Genesee Chief v. Fitzhugh, 12 How. (U. S.) 443; Com. v. Chapin, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 199; Com. v. Charlestown, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 180; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 161; Ingraham v. Wilkinson, 4 Pick. (Mass.) 268; Stover v. Freeman, 6 Mass. 435; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 155; Adams v. Pease, 2 Conn. 481; East Haven v. Hemingway, 7 Conn. 186; Middletown v. Sage, 8 Conn. 221; Chapman v. Kimball, 9 Conn. 38; Berry v. Snyder, 3 Bush (Ky.), 266; Miller v. Hepburn, 8 Bush (Ky.), 326; Berry v. Carle, 3 Greenl. (Me.) 266*; Spring v. Russell, 7 Greenl. (Me.) 273; Spring v. Seavey, 8 Greenl. (Me.) 138; Wadsworth v. Smith, 11 Me. 278; s. c., 26 Am. Dec. 525; Granger v. Avery, 64 Me. 292; Browne v. Kennedy, 5 Harr. & J. (Md.) 195; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 503; Hayes v. Bowman, 1 Rand. (Va.) 417; Mead v. Haynes, 3 Rand. (Va.) 33; Bell v. Gough, 3 Zab. (N. J.) 656; Townsend v. Brown, 4 Zab. (N. J.) 80; Cobb v. Davenport, 3 Vroom (N. J.), 369; Stevens v. Pater-son, etc., R. Co. 5 Vroom (N. J.), 537;

7. Seaweed.—Seaweed which by action of the elements or the

Arnold v. Mundy, 1 Halst. (N. J.) 1; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 356; Morgan v. Reading, 3 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 366; The Magnolia v. Marshall, 39 Miss. 109; Lorman v. Benson, 8 Mich. 18; Rice v. Ruddeman, 10 Mich. 126; Ryan v. Brown, 18 Mich. 196; Walker v. Board of Public Works, 16 Ohio, 540; Lamb v. Ricketts, 11 Ohio, 311; Gavitt v. Chambers, 3 Ohio, 495; Benner v. Platter, 6 Ohio, 505; Blanchard v. Porter, 11 Ohio, 138; Cox v. State, 3 Blackf. (Ind.) 193; Young v. Harrison, 6 Ga. 141; Middle-town v. Pritchard, 3 Scam. (Ill.) 500; Board of Trustees v. Haven, 5 Gilm. (Ill.) 548; City of Chicago v. Lafin, 49 Ill. 177; Braxon v. Bressler, 64 Ill. 488; Comm'rs of the Canal Fund v. Kempshall, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 404; Varick v. Smith, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 137; Palmer v. Mulligan, 3 Cai. (N. Y.) 307; s. c., 2 Am. Dec. 270; People v. Platt, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 195; Hooker v. Cummings, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 90; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 249; Exp. Jennings, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 518; Canal Appraisers v. People, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 574; Shaw v. Crawford, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 236; Starr v. Child, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 152; Morgan v. King, 35 N. Y. 455; People v. Canal Appraisers, 33 N. Y. 461; O'Fallon v. Daggett, 4 Mo. 343; Benson v. Morrow, 61 Mo. 345; Jones v. Soulard, 21 How. (U. S.) 41.

Owners of land bounded by unnavigable rivers, or of navigable rivers above tide-water, in States where the soil under water has not been made by statute, the property of the State, own to the middle of the stream, unless the conveyance denotes an intention to stop short of that. McCullough v. Wall, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) L. 68; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 715; The Magnolia v. Marshall, 39 Miss. 109; Eusminger v. People, 47 Ill. 384; Berry v. Snyder, 3 Bush (Ky.), 266; Wood v. Hustis, 17 Wis. 418; Luce v. Carley, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 451; Cobb v. Smith, 16 Wis. 692; Lowell v. Robinson, 16 Me. 357; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 671; Ross v. Faust, 54 Ind. 471; Cold Springs Iron-works v. Talland, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 496; Ingraham v. Wilkinson, 4 Pick. (Mass.) 268; Hatch v. Dwight, 17 Mass. 289; and see Ridgway v. Ludlow, 58 Ind. 248, where the same principle is applied to a lake. And it is not changed where by means of a dam a mill-pond is formed. The abutting owners own yet to the middle of the stream. Hathorne v. Stinson, 3 Fairf. (Me.) 183; Lowell v. Robinson, 16 Me. 357; Waterman v. Johnson, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 261; Finley v. Hershey, 41 movements of the sea is cast upon the beach is considered to be accretion, and belongs to the owner of the beach.<sup>1</sup>

8. Stranded Property.—Property carried away by a flood and stranded on another's land remains the property of the one who owns it at the time of the flood. He can reclaim it or abandon it as he pleases. His refusal to remove it from the land where it was stranded does not divest him of his right in it, nor does it bar his right of entry to reclaim it. The owner of the soil has no lien on it, and cannot convert it to his own use; but he may, after notice given, cast it back into the stream.<sup>2</sup>

Iowa, 389. See BOUNDARIES; RIPARIAN RIGHTS.

When, however, the deed clearly indicates that it was the intention of the grantor to exclude the stream, it will be so excluded. Child v. Starr, 4 Hill (N. Y.), 369; Kingman v. Sparrow, 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 201; Yates v. Van De Bogert, 56 N. Y. 526; Bradford v. Cressey, 45 Me. 9; Dunlap v. Stetson, 4 Mason (U. S.), 349; McCullough v. Wall, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) L. 68; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 715.

Riparian proprietor's ownership of land under water, where it exists, is measured by lines at right angles to the bank, without regard to the course of the line bounding the remainder of the tract, and without regard to the depth of the water. The middle of such lines, drawn from bank to bank, will be the flum aqua. Hopkins Academy v. Dickinson, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 544.

Where a river changes its course so as to cut off a point of the property of a landowner, this will not change the ownership; the title to the island thus formed will still be in the original owner. Hopkins Academy v. Dickinson, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 544; Bonewits v. Wygant, 75 Ind. 41.

If the river in changing its course leaves its bed dry, and seeks a new one, the owners on both sides of the old bed will have the title to land thus formed; the dividing line being the former flum aqua. Hopkins Academy v. Dickinson, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 544.

Where the intermediate space between a survey on the mainland of the Missouri River and a surveyed island, at the times of the surveys, consisted of a slough, and since then the slough has so filled up as to connect the island and the mainland and to make them one continuous tract of land, the adjacent owners of the island and the survey are entitled to the accretions to their respective lands; but if the slough simply filled up from the bottom, or by deposits within its bed, and the accretions did not form on the one side or the other, then the centre of the slough as it was before the water left it is the boundary between the survey and the island. Where the shore lines of two tracts of land divided by a watercourse receive accretions until they come together, the line of contact will then be the division line. If the slough gradually filled up as the water receded, the same principle is applied, and the new land belongs to the riparian owner from whose shore the water receded, and it is immaterial whether the water was navigable in the common-law sense or general acceptance of the term, or was a non-navigable stream. Buse v. Russell, 86 Mo. 209.

Alluvion, whether it effects an accretion to the shore, or whether it forms islands, alters the position of the original flum aqua, and it will always be located by taking the middle of a line, drawn at right angles from bank to bank, no matter how recently the bank may be formed. Miller v. Hepburn, 8 Bush (Ky.), 326; Clark v. Campan, 19 Mich. 329; Knight v. Wilder, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 202; Bay City Gas-light Co. v. Industrial Works, 28 Mich. 182; Stolp v. Hoyt, 44 Ill. 220; Deerfield v. Arms, 17 Pick. (Mass.) 41; Bonewits v. Wygant, 75 Ind. 41.

1. Phillips v. Rhodes, 7 Metc. (Mass.) 323; Emans v. Turnbull, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 322; Anthony v. Gifford, 2 Allen (Mass.), 550; Mather v. Chapman, 40 Conn. 382; Church v. Meeker, 34 Conn. 432. But not the seaweed that grows and accumulates on the bed of a navigable river, below low-water mark. Chapman v. Kimball, 9 Conn. 38; Hollister v. Union Co., 9 Conn. 443. And seaweed floating between high and low water-mark, although the bottom of the mass may touch the beach, is the property of the public. Anthony v. Gifford, 2 Allen (Mass.), 549.

2. Foster v. Juniata Bridge Co., 16 Pa. St. 393; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 506; Eiter v. Edwards, 4 Watts (Pa.), 65.

The owner of land on which property of another is cast by a storm or a flood,

ACCUE—ACCUMULATED SURPLUS.

ACCUE—ACCURED—ACCRUING.—These words, in their generally received sense, are used of something which is to be added or attached to something else.<sup>1</sup> Due and payable.<sup>2</sup> Vested.<sup>3</sup>

ACCUMULATED SURPLUS (of a corporation).—It is the fund

although he has no title to it, is not bound to preserve it for the owner. He may free his land from the incumbrance. Proctor v. Adams, 113 Mass. 377; Livezey v. Philadelphia, 64 Pa. St. 106.

The owner of the stranded property has, however, the right to enter the premises on which it was stranded and retake it, but is bound to do as little damage as possible. Berry v. Carle, 3 Greenl. (Me.) 269*; Treat v. Lord, 42 Me. 552; Carter v. Thurston, 58 N. H. 104; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 584; Sheldon v. Sherman, 42 N. Y. 484; Hetfield v. Baum, 13 Ired. (N. Car.) L. 394; Brown v. Chadbourn, 31 Me. 9; s. c., 50 Am. Dec. 641.

To exempt the owner of the stranded property from liability for any injury which the owner of the land on which it was stranded may have sustained, he must be entirely free of negligence. Thompson v. Androscoggin Co., 54 N. H. 545; Sheldon v. Sherman, 42 N. Y. 484; Livezey v. Philadelphia, 64 Pa. St. 106; Lehigh Bridge Co. v. Lehigh Coal & N. Co., 4 Rawle (Pa.), 9; s. c., 26 Am. Dec. 111.

It seems, however, that the owner of the property, although not guilty of negligence, will be responsible for the damage done by it if he reclaims it. Gould on Waters, § 102; Reeder v. Anderson, 4 Dana (Ky.), 193; Chase v. Corcoran, 106 Mass. 286; Moore v. Erie R. Co., 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 39; Sheldon v. Sherman, 42 N. Y. 484. See SALVAGE.

Authorities for Accretion.—Washburne on Real Property; Bouvier's Law Dict.; Blacks. Com.; Kent's Com.; Angell on Watercourses.

1. Johnson v. Humboldt, 91 Ill. 95.

2. Mundt v. Sheboygan, etc., 31 Wis. 451; Kennedy v. Barrier, 36 Mo. 128; Hall v. Pritchett, 3 Q. B. Div. 215; Fay v. Halloran, 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 297.

3. Hartshorne v. Ross, 2 Disney (Ohio), 15.

Cause of Action shall accrue or shall have accrued.—The sixth section of the act provides that suit must be brought "within one year from the time the cause of action accrued." When, then, did the cause of action accrue? We think the cause of action accrued whenever the defendant's liability became perfect and complete. Kennedy v. Barrier, 36 Mo. 128.

The statute likewise provides that notice shall be given to the company "within thirty days after such claim or demand shall have accrued." The time of payment of the laborers was on the 15th day of each month, and it was customary for them to wait until the 15th of the next month for payment for all work done by them after the 15th of the last month. We are of opinion that the demand of the plaintiff did not accrue until the 15th day of December. Mundt v. Sheboygan, etc., 31 Wis. 451.

All Rights that had accrued.—We suppose the term "accrued" is equivalent in its meaning to the word "vested," which necessarily implies that something has been imparted to or conferred upon a third person. Hartshorne v. Ross, 2 Disney (Ohio), 15.

The terms "shall have accrued" have in one case been held to mean "shall have existed," where there has been an inchoate right or title, effect to which, however, could not be given until there was some intrusion upon that right. Weber v. Harbor Commissioners, 18 Wall. 57.

Accrue and Occur distinguished.—The word "occur" means "to happen" in its general and most popular sense, whilst the word "accrue" is to be added or attached to something else, in its generally received sense. Johnson v. Humboldt, 91 Ill. 95.

Costs that have accrued.—"All the costs that have accrued," when the words are used in the compromise of a pending suit, or in a private statute providing for such compromise, mean costs that would follow the judgment, and do not include attorney's fees. Tallassee Man. Co. v. Glenn, 50 Ala. 489.

Accruing or Owning.—"When the words 'accruing or owing' are used, as they plainly are, to designate two classes of debts, they can receive each a distinct meaning only by taking one as denoting debts which are not yet payable, and the other as denoting those which are." Dresser v. Johns, 6 C. B. (N. S.) 434, citing Jones v. Thompson, 27 Law J. Q. B. 234.

Accruing.—It is intended to apply to those cases in which there is a debitum in presenti solvendum in futuro. Jones v. Thompson, supra.

ACCUSE—ACCUSTOMED—ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

the corporation has in excess of its capital stock after payment of its debts.<sup>1</sup>

ACCUMULATION. See DEVISE; TRUST; WILLS.

ACCUSE—ACCUSED.—The expression "to accuse" is used to denote the bringing a charge against one before some court or officer; and the person thus charged is often referred to as the "accused."<sup>2</sup>

ACCUSTOMED.—Where a deed conveyed a water privilege with the power and appurtenances as they now exist, with the right to rebuild and repair the dam, and to pass and repass, in the use of the same, "over the accustomed way," it was held that the right of way must be regarded as limited to the last accustomed way.<sup>3</sup>

ACKNOWLEDGMENT. See CONVEYANCES; DEED; LIMITATIONS (STATUTE OF); NOTARY.

- |                                |   |
|--------------------------------|---|
| 1. Definition.          | 8. Subsequent Acknowledgment.      |
| 2. Who may take.        | 9. Proof by Subscribing Witnesses. |
| 3. Who may not take.    | 10. Married Women.                 |
| 4. The Certificate.     | 11. Divorce—Abandonment.           |
| 5. Corporations.        | 12. Legacy.                        |
| 6. Impeachment—Fraud.   | 13. Agent—Attorney.                |
| 7. Validating Statutes. | 14. By Order of Court.             |

1. Definition.—The act of one who has executed a deed in going before some competent officer or court and declaring it to be his act or deed, together with the certificate of the officer that it has been so acknowledged.<sup>4</sup>

1. People's Ins. Co. v. Parker, 6 Vroom (N. J.), 578. Compare State ex rel., etc., v. Utter, 5 Vroom (N. J.), 489.

2. People v. Braman, 30 Mich. 468.

Threat to accuse.—It has been held that a threat to procure witnesses to support a complaint already made is not a threat to accuse. Rex v. Gill, 1 Lewin C. C. 305.

"Threat of Accusation."—It has been held that a threat to cause process falsely stated to have been issued not to be served on a party for a crime was within the statute; the court remarking that "a threat of accusation, in the sense of the statute, comprehends a threat to use any of the preliminary means necessary to cause a person to be proceeded against for a criminal offence." Com. v. Murphy, 12 Allen, 449; Com. v. Dorns, 108 Mass. 488.

A threat to accuse need not be a threat to charge before any judicial tribunal; a threat to charge before any third person is sufficient. Robinson's Case, 2 Moo. & Rob. 14.

"Is accused."—The first ground of appeal presents for inquiry what is meant by the word "accused." Though frequently used in that sense, it does not necessarily import the charge of a crime by judicial procedure. "In its popular sense it is used to express a charge or imputation merely. In this sense, one may be accused of that which is no legal offence; as, if he is charged with immoral or disgraceful conduct or official delinquency. It certainly is not synonymous with "arrested under criminal process." Popular sense will support the construction that a slave is "accused" when the commission of a capital felony is charged or imputed to him. State v. South, 5 Rich. (S. C.) 489.

"Charge and accuse."—The term "charge and accuse" thus used, and in this connection, does not mean to actually charge before a grand jury or a magistrate, but to impute to him these offences falsely, as a means of inducing him to pay money to avoid such actual prosecution. Com. v. O'Brien et al., 12 Cush. (Mass.) 90.

3. Ferriss v. Knowles, 41 Conn. 308. Cf. Queen v. Mayor, 8 Ad. & Ell. 182.

Accustomed Way.—Where a deed of a tannery and dam gave the right to rebuild and to pass and repass in the use of the same over the "accustomed way," held, that the covenant referred to a custom existing at the date of the deed, and that it gave no right to rebuild at a previous and different locality. Ferris v. Knowles, 41 Conn. 308.

4. Bouvier's Law Dict.; Brown's Law Dict. (Sprague's Ed.)

2. Who may take.—In the various States, the officers qualified to take acknowledgments are named by statute.<sup>1</sup> An attesting witness may take an acknowledgment;<sup>2</sup> also American consuls in foreign countries;<sup>3</sup> a judge of a Supreme Court, as he is inclusively a justice of the peace;<sup>4</sup> an officer de facto;<sup>5</sup> a deputy in the name of the principal;<sup>6</sup> a provost-marshal in a place under military occupation;<sup>7</sup> a relative of the party making the acknowledgment.<sup>8</sup> The attorney for the husband may take the Hill v. Bacon, 43 Ill. 477, holds the act to be simply ministerial. See Biscoe v. Byrd, 15 Ark. 655; Learned v. Riley, 14 Allen (Mass.), 109; Odiorne v. Mason, 9 N. H. 30; Crumbaugh v. Kugler, 2 Ohio St. 373. Compare Wasson v. Connor, 54 Miss. 352; Keffr v. Russell, 69 Ill. 666; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 634.

Under the Ohio statute a deed must be acknowledged to pass title. Smith v. Hunt, 13 Ohio, 260.

Under the New York and Texas statutes a deed must be acknowledged to hold good against subsequent purchasers. Morss v. Salisbury, 48 N. Y. 636; Wood v. Chapin, 13 N. Y. 509; Menley v. Zeigler, 23 Tex. 88.

A notary public or justice of the peace cannot properly take the acknowledgment of a person to a deed if he believes him mentally incompetent to make a will; nor may he take an acknowledgment through a third person. Hoban v. Piquette, 52 Mich. 346.

A certificate of acknowledgment written on a piece of paper separate from the deed, and pasted to it, is, if in proper form, a valid certificate. Schramm v. Gentry, 63 Tex. 583.

The acknowledgment must all be in writing, it cannot be partly in writing and partly in parol. Ennor v. Thompson, 46 Ill. 214; Lindley v. Smith, 46 Ill. 523.

Sheriff's Deed.—A sheriff's deed made in 1878 was executed by one acting as deputy sheriff. Held, that such deputy was the proper person to acknowledge its execution, and a certificate of acknowledgment by the district clerk that "personally appeared H., sheriff of T. Co., by S., deputy, to me well known, and acknowledged that he executed the foregoing deed for the purposes and consideration and in the capacity therein set forth and expressed," being formal in all other respects, was sufficient. Terrell v. Martin, 64 Tex. 121.

1. The mayor of a town cannot take acknowledgments under a statute authorizing mayors of cities to do so. Dundy v. Chambers, 23 Ill. 312.

Federal Statutes.—U. S. R. S. §§ 1071, 1778; vol. 2, §§ 251, 451.

2. Baird v. Evans, 58 Ga. 350.

3. Scanlan v. Wright, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 523; s. c., 25 Am. Dec. 344; Palmer v. Stevens, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 147; Welsh v. Hill, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 373.

4. Middlebury College v. Chenny, 1 Vt. 336. Under the N. Y. statute the vice-chancellor had no power to take acknowledgments. Ridabock v. Levy, 8 Paige (N. Y.), 197; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 682.

5. Brown v. Lunt, 37 Me. 423; Woodruff v. McHarry, 56 Ill. 218; Prescott v. Hayes, 42 N. H. 56; Hamilton v. Pitcher, 53 Mo. 354.

6. Emmal v. Webb, 36 Cal. 203; Muller v. Boggs, 25 Cal. 175; Touchard v. Crow, 20 Cal. 150; Lynch v. Livingston, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 463; Rose v. Newman, 26 Tex. 131; Cook v. Knott, 28 Tex. 85; Babbitt v. Johnson, 15 Kan. 252; Gibbons v. Gentry, 20 Mo. 468; Abrams v. Ervin, 9 Iowa, 87; Woodruff v. McHarry, 56 Ill. 218; Hope & Sawyer, 14 Ill. 254; Kemp v. Porter, 7 Ala. 138; McRaven v. McGuire, 9 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 34; Gordon v. Leech, 81 Ky. 229; Drye v. Cook, 14 Bush (Ky.), 459; Talbott v. Hooser, 12 Bush (Ky.), 408; Moore v. Farrow, 3 A. K. Marsh (Ky.), 41; Beaumont v. Yeatman, 8 Humph. (Tenn.) 542.

In some States the deputy may take acknowledgments in his own name. Touchard v. Crow, 20 Cal. 150; Cook v. Knott, 28 Tex. 85; McCraven v. McGuire, 23 Miss. 100; McRaven v. McGuire, 9 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 34; Beaumont v. Yeatman, 8 Humph. (Tenn.) 542; Talbott v. Hooser, 12 Bush (Ky.), 408.

In Mississippi and Alabama clerks of probate courts may take acknowledgments. James v. Fisk, 9 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 144; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 111; McCraven v. McGuire, 23 Miss. 100; Halso v. Seawright, 65 Ala. 431.

In California a deputy recorder may take an acknowledgment in the name and as the act of his principal. Muller v. Boggs, 25 Cal. 175.

7. Paul v. Carpenter, 70 N. Car. 502.

8. A commissioner of deeds, in taking wife's acknowledgment.<sup>1</sup> Such persons, however, must be properly qualified, as notaries public or other public officers, to take such acknowledgments. A trustee of a trust deed.<sup>2</sup> An officer of a corporation whose duty it is to countersign and register its deeds.<sup>3</sup> A commissioner holding office "during pleasure of the governor" may take acknowledgments after the governor's term of office has expired.<sup>4</sup>

3. Who may not take Acknowledgments.—An officer whose term of office has terminated.<sup>5</sup> A party interested in the conveyance cannot take the acknowledgment,<sup>6</sup> and the recording of such deed will an acknowledgment of the execution of a deed, acts ministerially and not judicially; and it is not therefore any valid objection to his act that he is related to the parties. Lynch v. Livingston, 6 N. Y. 433; Remington Paper Co. v. O'Dougherty, 81 N. Y. 474.

1. Magistrates interested in the transaction are not competent to take the examination of a married woman for the conveyance of her land. The solicitor of the husband is not as such disqualified. Romanes v. Frazier, 16 Grant Ch. (U. C.) 97; 17 Id. 267.

2. Bennett v. Shipley, 82 Mo. 448. Compare Darst v. Gale, 83 Ill. 136.

If the married woman acknowledges before her trustee a deed to his wife of the land in satisfaction of the trust deed, it is void. Jones v. Porter, 59 Miss. 628.

A deed of trust is executed by a man and his wife to two trustees to secure a debt, the grantors in the deed acknowledge it before one of the grantees, a trustee, as a notary public, and on this acknowledgment it is admitted to record. Held, such acknowledgment and recordation are invalid, and the deed is an absolute nullity as to the married woman, and is to be regarded as an unrecorded deed as to the male grantor. Tavener v. Barrett, 21 W. Va. 658.

3. Sawyer v. Cox, 63 Ill. 130.

4. Thorn v. Frazier, 60 Tex. 259.

5. Gilbraith v. Gallwan, 78 Mo. 452. Compare Grotenkemper v. Carver, 4 Lea (Tenn.), 375.

When a justice of the peace has ceased to fill that office in the county, though filling the same office in another county, he has no authority to sign his name to a blank or defective certificate of acknowledgment, so as to make the certificate operate by relation as of the day of its date. Carlisle v. Carlisle, 78 Ala. 542.

One who was county judge at the time such office was abolished, and thereafter, in pursuance of the statute, county auditor and clerk of board of supervisors, had no power, as such last-named officer, to take acknowledgments. Goodykoontz v. Olsen, 54 Iowa, 174.

6. Hogans v. Carruth, 18 Fla. 587; Wasson v. Connor, 54 Miss. 352; Jones v. Parter, 59 Miss. 628; Green v. Abraham, 43 Ark. 420; Brown v. Moore, 38 Tex. 645; Wilson v. Traer, 20 Iowa, 233; Hammers v. Dole, 61 Ill. 307; West v. Krebaum, 88 Ill. 263; Stevens v. Hampton, 46 Mo. 404; Dail v. Moore, 51 Mo. 589; Groesbeck v. Seeley, 13 Mich. 329; Davis v. Beazley, 75 Va. 491; Withers v. Baird, 7 Watts (Pa.), 227; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 754. See Dussaume v. Burnett, 5 Iowa, 95. Compare Lynch v. Livingston, 6 N. Y. 432; Kimball v. Johnson, 14 Wis. 682. As regards these two cases, Bliss, J., says (Stevens v. Hampton, supra): "They seem to recognize a contrary doctrine, although I think there is no real conflict. In the former case, an ordinary acknowledgment was held to be a ministerial act, and hence did not come under the prohibition against the action of judges or jurors who were relatives of the parties. In the latter case, a mortgage was given to a married woman to secure her for money loaned which belonged to her separate estate and was acknowledged before her husband. . . . Here the husband was not a party to the instrument, and could have no interest in the separate estate of the wife." Cf. Nat. Bank v. Conway, 14 Bank. Reg. 513.

Where one of the grantees was a judge of the court in which a sheriff's deed had to be acknowledged, held, no objection to the deed. Lewis v. Curry, 74 Mo. 49.

A person cannot take his own acknowledgment. Groesbeck v. Seeley, 13 Mich. 329; Beaman v. Whitney, 22 Me. 413; Davis v. Beazley, 75 Va. 491.

In New York it is held that relationship to one of the parties is no bar to taking the acknowledgment. Lynch v. Livingston, 6 N. Y. 433; Remington Paper Co. v. O'Dougherty, 81 N. Y. 474.

A trustee who receives commissions is disqualified. Brown v. Moore, 38 Tex. 645. Compare Dial v. Moore, 51 Mo. 589.

not be constructive notice to subsequent purchasers.<sup>1</sup> An officer cannot take an acknowledgment outside of his jurisdiction,<sup>2</sup> but the parties obtaining such acknowledgment are estopped to deny its validity in the absence of fraud.<sup>3</sup>

A deed of trust acknowledged before the trustee therein, where its execution is duly proved, is good between the parties thereto and those claiming under them. Siemers v. Kleeburg, 56 Mo. 196; Black v. Gregg, 58 Mo. 565; Bennett v. Shipley, 82 Mo. 448.

An acknowledgment of the execution of a deed taken by a party to it does not authorize it to be recorded, and the record of it imparts no notice to subsequent purchasers or incumbrancers. But such acknowledgment taken before the curing act of March 8, 1883 (Ark.), was validated by that act, except in cases where it affected vested rights, or the conveyances of minors or insane persons. Green v. Abrahams, 43 Ark. 420.

1. Brown v. Moore, 38 Tex. 645; Green v. Abraham, 43 Ark. 420; Stevens v. Hampton, 46 Mo. 404; Hainey v. Alberry, 73 Mo. 427; Hammers v. Dole, 61 Ill. 307; Dussaume v. Burnett, 5 Iowa, 103; Wilson v. Traer, 20 Iowa, 231; Barney v. Sutton, 2 Watts (Pa.), 31; Withers v. Baird, 7 Watts (Pa.), 227; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 754; Hastings v. Vaughn, 5 Cal. 315; Price v. McDonald, 1 Md. 403; Johns v. Scott, 5 Md. 81; Beauman v. Whitney, 20 Me. 413; Shults v. Moore, 1 McLean (U. S.), 520.

The deed is good as between the parties, and should prevail against subsequent deeds to those who had actual notice. Stevens v. Hampton, 46 Mo. 404; Dussaume v. Burnett, 5 Iowa, 103; Beauman v. Whitney, 20 Me. 413; Caldwell v. Head, 17 Mo. 561; Cooly v. Rankin, 11 Mo. 647.

2. Gitting v. Hall, 1 H. & J. (Md.) 14; s. c., 2 Am. Dec. 502; Johns v. Reardon, 3 Md. Ch. 57; Harris v. Burton, 4 Harr. (Del.) 66; Share v. Anderson, 7 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 43; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 421; Howard, etc., Assoc. v. McIntyre, 3 Allen (Mass.), 572; Hughes v. Wilkinson, 37 Miss. 482; Garrison v. Hayden, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 222; McCulloch v. Myers, 1 Dana (Ky.), 522; Dickerson v. Talbot, 14 B. Mon. (Ky.), 60; Hedger v. Ward, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 106; Moore v. Vance, 1 Ohio, 12; Lynch v. Livingston, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 463; 6 N. Y. 422; Thurman v. Cameron, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 91; Jackson v. Hunter, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 495; Jackson v. Colden, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 266.

See, as to power of officers to take acknowledgments outside of county or jurisdiction, Learned v. Riley, 14 Allen (Mass.), 109; Odiome v. Mason, 9 N. H. 30; Duly v. Brooks, 30 Mo. 515; Biscoe v. Byrd, 15 Ark. 655; Hughes v. Wilkinson, 37 Miss. 482; Crumbaugh v. Kugler, 2 Ohio St. 373; Moore v. Moore, 3 Ohio St. 154; Hopkins v. Menderback, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 231; Jackson v. Colden, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 266; Colton v. Seavey, 22 Cal. 496.

If no place appears in the certificate it is presumed that the officer acted within his jurisdiction. Rockleff v. Norton, 19 Me. 279; Bradley v. West, 60 Mo. 33; Huxley v. Harrold, 62 Mo. 516; Sidwell v. Birney, 69 Mo. 144; Dunlap v. Daugherty, 20 Ill. 397; Morrison v. White, 16 La. Ann. 100; Carpenter v. Dexter, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 513.

The instrument may be referred to aid the certificate if no locality appears. Brooks v. Chaplin, 3 Vt. 281; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 209; Fuhrman v. Loudon, 13 S. & R. (Pa.) 386; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 608; Truluck v. Peeples, 1 Ga. 3. Or parts of the certificate itself, such as the caption, seal, the accompanying certificate, from another State, of official character, etc. Sidwell v. Birney, 69 Mo. 144; Robidoux v. Cassilegi, 10 Mo. App. 516; Chiniquy v. Catholic Bishop, etc., 41 Ill. 148; Dunlap v. Daugherty, 20 Ill. 397; Hardin v. Osborne, 60 Ill. 93; Wright v. Wilson, 17 Mich. 192; Adams v. Medsker, 25 W. Va. 128. Compare Willard v. Cramer, 36 Iowa, 22; Hardin v. Kirk, 49 Ill. 153.

The omission of the venue in an acknowledgment taken by a justice of the peace. Held, obviated by proof that such officer was at the time a justice of the peace in the county where it was taken, and as such took it. Also that judicial notice is taken as to justices of the peace by the courts in the county. Graham v. Anderson, 42 Ill. 514. See Irving v. Brownell, 11 Ill. 402; Dunlap v. Daugherty, 20 Ill. 397; Harding v. Osborne, 60 Ill. 93; Scott v. Gallagher, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 347.

The name of the county where the acknowledgment is taken must appear. Willard v. Cramer, 36 Iowa, 22; Dunlap v. Daugherty, 20 Ill. 397; Chiniquy v. Bishop of Chicago, 41 Ill. 148; also the State, Hardin v. Osborne, 60 Ill. 93.

3. The proof of fraud must be clear and convincing. Jackson v. Colden, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 266; Meyer v. Gossett, 38

4. The Certificate.—The certificate is legal evidence of the execution of the deed.<sup>1</sup> The official character of the person taking the acknowledgment must appear in the certificate, and when so appearing is prima-facie evidence of his authority<sup>2</sup> and jurisdic-

Ark. 377; Miller v. Wentworth, 82 Pa. St. 280; Johnson v. Van Velsor, 43 Mich. 208; Hourtienne v. Schnoor, 33 Mich. 274; Barnett v. Proskauer, 62 Ala. 486; Stevens v. Hampton, 46 Mo. 404.

1. Young v. Duvall, 109 U. S. 573.

2. Thompson v. Morgan, 6 Minn. 292; Baze v. Arper, 6 Minn. 220; Thurman v. Cameron, 34 Wend. (N. Y.) 87; Trustees v. McKechnie, 90 N. Y. 618; Belo v. Mayer, 79 Mo. 67; Harding v. Curtis, 45 Ill. 252; Irving v. Brownell, 11 Ill. 402; Wright v. Bundy, 11 Ind. 398; Johnson v. Haines, 2 Ohio, 55 s. c.; 15 Am. Dec. 533; Evans v. Lee, 11 Nev. 194; Bell v. Fry, 5 Dana (Ky.), 341; Coles v. Miller, 8 Gratt (Va.) 6; Hassler v. King, 9 Gratt. (Va.) 115; Tuten v. Gazen, 18 Fla. 751; Ruggles v. Bucknor, 1 Paine (U. S.), 358; Carpenter v. Dexter, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 513.

A notary's seal is evidence of his official character. Harding v. Curtis, 45 Ill. 252.

Where a certificate contains no evidence of the official character of the officer, such character may be proved aliunde. Bennet v. Paine, 7 Watts (Pa.), 334; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 765. See Jeffreys v. Callies, 4 Dana (Ky.), 470; Vanness v. Bank, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 21; Shults v. Moore, 1 McLean (U. S.), 520.

A commissioner appointed by the governor of a State to take acknowledgments in another State is an officer of the State from which he derives his appointment. The courts of that State are bound to take judicial notice of his official acts, and these require no other authentication than his seal of office. Smith v. Van Gilder, 26 Ark. 527; Irving v. Brownell, 11 Ill. 402; Vance v. Schuyler, 6 Ill. 160.

But if the certificate does not state that the commissioner is authorized to take acknowledgments, the defect is fatal. Uhler v. Hutchinson, 23 Pa. St. 110.

Acknowledgment of Deeds in Another State—Official Character of the Person taking it—How shown.—A deed for an interest in land in Illinois was executed by parties resident of another State, and acknowledged by them before a justice of the peace in such other State. The county clerk of the proper county, in his certificate of the official character of the justice of the peace, failed to certify that he himself was the clerk of a court of record. Held, that was not required, and that the deed was admissible in evidence without being so certified. The statute relating to conveyances provides that where a deed is acknowledged or proved before a justice of the peace of another State, there shall be added a certificate of the "proper clerk," under the seal of his office, of the official character of such justice of the peace. The "proper clerk" in such section is the one in whose office the evidence of the official character of justices of the peace is kept and preserved by law, and he is not required to certify that he is a clerk of a court of record. Grand Tower, etc., Co. v. Gill, 111 Ill. 541.

A certificate which recited that it was made before the clerk of a county court, and which bore the imprint of the seal of said court, but failed to state, and it was not otherwise shown, that said court was a court of record, or that the clerk was the holder of its seal, is defective. Fogg v. Holcomb, 64 Iowa, 621.

A deed conveying land lying in West Virginia, in which it is recited that the grantors are "of the county of Fayette, in the State of Pennsylvania," with a certificate of two justices of its acknowledgment before them indorsed thereon, headed "Fayette County, ss.," and also accompanied by a certificate under the seal of the Court of Common Pleas of Fayette County, State of Pennsylvania, that the said two justices were at the time of said acknowledgment of Fayette County, in the State of Pennsylvania, was properly admitted to record in this State upon said certificates, it sufficiently appearing therefrom that the "Fayette County" mentioned was of the State of Pennsylvania. Adams v. Medsker, 25 W. Va. 128.

The Wisconsin Statute, 1858, as amended 1859, did not prescribe the form of a certificate of acknowledgment of a deed executed out of a State before a notary public, or require it to be made in accordance with the laws of the place where it was made; and such a certificate is sufficient where it would have been in substantial compliance with the laws of this State, if made here. Where, therefore, a deed of substitution by an attorney in fact to convey land was acknowledged before a notary public in the District of tion,<sup>1</sup> and the certificate, in the absence of fraud, is conclusive of the facts recited.<sup>2</sup> The evidence of official character may appear either in the body of the certificate or in the signature.<sup>3</sup>

Columbia, and the notary's certificate failed to recite, as required by the laws of Congress then in force in said district, that the grantor named in the deed was well known to him, or that his identity was proved, etc., held, that the certificate was sufficient. Knight v. Leary, 54 Wis. 460.

See generally Livingston v. McDonald, 9 Ohio, 168; Johnson v. Haines, 2 Ohio, 55; De Segond v. Culver, 10 Ohio, 188; Ewing v. Savary, 3 Bibb. (Ky.) 235; Bell v. Fry, 5 Dana (Ky.), 341; Harding v. Curtis, 45 Ill. 252; Dawson v. Hayden, 67 Ill. 52; Adams v. Bishop, 19 Ill. 395; McCormick v. Evans, 33 Ill. 327; Hope v. Sawyer, 14 Ill. 254; Buckmaster v. Job, 15 Ill. 328; Bennet v. Paine, 7 Watts (Pa.), 334; Scott v. Gallagher, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 347; Hultz v. Ackley, 63 Pa. St. 142; Crispen v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 415; Smith v. Van Gilder, 26 Ark. 527; Coles v. Miller, 8 Gratt. (Va.) 6; Hassler v. King, 9 Gratt. (Va.) 115. Eaton v. Woydt, 32 Wis. 277; Wells v. Atkinson, 24 Minn. 161; Morton v. Smith, 2 Dill. (U. S.) 316; Willink v. Miles, Pet. C. C. 429.

1. Rockleff v. Morton, 19 Me. 274; Bradley v. West, 60 Mo. 33.

2. Wright v. Bundy, 11 Ind. 398; McNeely v. Rucker, 6 Blackf. (Ind.) 391; Hill v. Bacon, 43 Ill. 477; Monroe v. Poorman, 62 Ill. 528; Lickmon v. Harding, 65 Ill. 505; Kerr v. Russell, 69 Ill. 666; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 634; Russell v. Baptist Theo. Sem., 73 Ill. 337; Tunison v. Chamblin, 88 Ill. 379; Baldwin v. Snowden, 11 Ohio St. 203; Hartley v. Frosh, 6 Tex. 208; Smith v. McGuire, 67 Ala. 34; Johnson v. Wallace, 53 Miss. 331; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 699; Stone v. Montgomery, 35 Miss. 83; Allen v. Lenoir, 53 Miss. 321; Meyer v. Gossett, 38 Ark. 377; Miller v. Wentworth, 82 Pa. St. 280; Heeter v. Glasgow, 79 Pa. St. 79; Hall v. Patterson, 51 Pa. St. 289; Michener v. Cavender, 38 Pa. St. 334; Louden v. Blythe, 27 Pa. St. 22; Shrader v. Decker, 9 Pa. St. 14; Barnett v. Barnett, 15 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 72; Jamison v. Jamison, 3 Whart. (Pa.) 457; Withers v. Baird, 7 Watts (Pa.), 227; Priest v. Cummings, 16 Wend. (N. Y.) 617; Tooker v. Sloan, 30 N. J. Eq. 394; Greene v. Godfrey, 44 Me. 25; Bissett v. Bissett, 1 H. & McH. (Md.) 211; Ridgeley v. Howard, 3 H. & McH. (Md.) 321; Young v. Duval, 109 U. S. 573; Paxton v. Marshall, 18 Fed. Rep. 361.

The following cases hold that the certificate is only prima-facie evidence of the facts recited, but it will be found on examination that the cases generally involve questions of fraud, duress, or failure to observe the requirements of statute. Jackson v. Schoonmaker, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 161; Jackson v. Hayner, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 468; Jackson v. Cairns, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 300; Jackson v. Perkins, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 308; People v. Galloway, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 540; Thurman v. Cameron, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 87; Gillett v. Stanley, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 121; Sanford v. McLean, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 122; Knowles v. McCamly, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 346; Linsley v. Brown, 13 Conn. 192; Smith v. Ward, 2 Root (Conn.), 378; s. c., 1 Am. Dec. 80; Marsh v. Mitchell, 26 N. J. Eq. 497; Louden v. Blythe, 16 Pa. St. 532, 27 Pa. St. 22; Dodge v. Hollinshead, 6 Minn. 25; Dewey v. Campau, 4 Mich. 565; Stevens v. Doe, 6 Blackf. (Ind.) 475; Bailey v. Landingham, 53 Iowa, 722; Ray v. Crouch, 10 Mo. App. 321; Steffen v. Bauer, 70 Mo. 399; Eyster v. Hathaway, 50 Ill. 521; Smith v. McGuire, 67 Ala. 34; Allen v. Lenoir, 53 Miss. 321; Cent. Bank v. Copeland, 18 Md. 305; Lucas v. Cobbs, 1 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 228; Phillips v. Green, 3 A. K. Marsh (Ky.), 7; Woodhead v. Foulds, 7 Bush (Ky.), 222; Ford v. Teal, 7 Bush (Ky.), 156; Young v. Duvall, 109 U. S. 573.

A certificate which does not clearly show that it was issued by an officer duly authorized is fatally defective, Cassell v. Cooke, 8 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 268; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 610.

A commissioner's certificate is presumptive evidence of the execution and acknowledgment of a deed out of the State. Hultz v. Ackley, 63 Pa. St. 142.

An officer who has taken an acknowledgment may issue the certificate at any time thereafter while he remains in office, provided rights of third parties have not intervened. Hannon v. Magee, 57 Miss. 410.

3. Johnson v. Haines, 2 Ohio, 278; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 533; Cassell v. Cooke, 8 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 368; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 610.

A defective or informal certificate of acknowledgment, to which the officer's name is signed, may operate as an attestation; but this effect cannot be allowed to a printed form of certificate to which his name is not signed, although his name and style of office are written by

An officer cannot impeach his certificate.<sup>1</sup>

Nothing will be presumed in favor of a certificate. It must comply substantially with the statutory requirements, and state all the facts necessary to show valid official act.<sup>2</sup> Thus, an examination made in a language the person did not understand is not valid.<sup>3</sup>

Officers have the right, or may be compelled by mandamus, to correct at any time a mistake in their certificate; and when so amended it will have the same effect as if it had been properly made at first.<sup>4</sup> The omission of unimportant words is usually him in the body of the paper. Carlisle v. Carlisle, 78 Ala. 542.

As to what constitutes a description of official character, see Sparrow v. Hovey, 41 Mich. 708; Final v. Backus, 18 Mich. 218; Livingston v. McDonald, 9 Ohio, 168; Rowley v. Berrian, 12 Ill. 200; McIntire v. Ward, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 296; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 417.

In Van Ness v. Bank, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 17, construing a Maryland statute, it was held that no description of official character is necessary.

1. A mortgage bore the notarial seal and signature of "S. S.," but S. S. testified that he never affixed his seal to it, and that he believed himself to have been the only S. S. notary in Cincinnati. Held, that the seal prima facie proved itself, and that the presumption in favor of the deed was not rebutted. Wright v. Bundy, 11 Ind. 398. See Stone v. Montgomery, 35 Miss. 83. Compare Garth v. Fort, 15 Lea (Tenn.), 683.

2. Jacoway v. Gault, 20 Ark. 190; McDaniel v. Needham, 61 Tex. 269. As to what is a substantial compliance with the statute, see Monroe v. Arledge, 23 Tex. 478; Belcher v. Weaver, 46 Tex. 293; Watkins v. Hall, 57 Tex. 1; Tubbs v. Gatewood, 26 Ark. 128; Cavender v. Smith, 5 Iowa, 157; Tiffany v. Glover, 3 Green (Iowa), 387; Dickerson v. Davis, 12 Iowa, 353; Newman v. Samuels, 17 Iowa, 528; Todd v. Jones, 22 Iowa, 146; Rosenthal v. Griffin, 23 Iowa, 263; Robson v. Thomas, 55 Mo. 581; Alexander v. Merry, 9 Mo. 510; Spitznagle v. Vanhersch, 13 Neb. 338; Becker v. Anderson, 11 Neb. 497; Bigelow v. Livingston, 28 Minn. 57; Wells v. Atkinson, 24 Minn. 161; Knight v. Leary, 54 Wis. 459; Hiles v. LaFlesh, 59 Wis. 465; Wilson v. Henry, 40 Wis. 594; Calumet, etc., Co. v. Russell, 68 Ill. 426; Alvis v. Morrison, 63 Ill. 181; Harvey v. Dunn, 89 Ill. 585; Tully v. Davis, 30 Ill. 103; Owen v. Norris, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 479; Nelson v. Graff, 44 Mich. 433; Hopkins v. Delancy, 8 Cal.

85; Henderson v. Grewell, 8 Cal. 581; Bryan v. Ramirez, 8 Cal. 461; Welch v. Sullivan, 8 Cal. 511; Wood v. Cochrane, 39 Vt. 544; Chandler v. Spear, 22 Vt. 388; Sheldon v. Stryker, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 284; Drye v. Cook, 14 Bush (Ky.), 459; Davis v. Bogle, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 315; Clements v. Pearce, 63 Ala. 284; Barnett v. Proskauer, 62 Ala. 486; Hobson v. Kissam, 8 Ala. 357; Basshar v. Stewart, 54 Md. 376; Warner v. Hardy, 6 Md. 525; Morse v. Clayton, 21 Miss. 373; Kelly v. Calhoun, 95 U. S. 710; Carpenter v. Dexter, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 513; Talbot v. Simpson, Pet. C. C. 188.

The following cases hold that the statute must be strictly complied with: Wetmore v. Laird, 5 Biss. (U. S.) 160; Knighton v. Smith, 1 Oregon, 276; Trammel v. Thurmond, 17 Ark. 203; Tully v. Davis, 30 Ill. 103; Myers v. Boyd, 96 Pa. St. 427; Rogers v. Adams, 66 Ala. 600; Ridgely v. Howard, 3 H. & McH. (Md.) 321; Dewey v. Campau, 4 Mich. 565; Buell v. Irwin, 24 Mich. 145; Mount v. Kesterson, 6 Coldw. (Tenn.) 452; Wickersham v. Reeves, 1 Iowa, 413.

Where a commissioner takes an acknowledgment to a conveyance of land, he must comply with the statute of the State where the land is located. Keller v. Moore, 51 Ala. 340; Brannon v. Brannon, 2 Disney (Ohio), 224.

3. Fisher v. Meister, 24 Mich. 447.

The examination may be made by an interpreter, but he must be properly sworn. Dewey v. Campau, 4 Mich. 565; Norton v. Meader, 4 Sawy. (U. S.) 603. See also De Arnaz v. Escandon, 59 Cal. 486. Compare, as to swearing of interpreter, Walter v. Weaver, 57 Tex. 569.

4. Jordan v. Corey, 2 Ind. 385; s. c., 52 Am. Dec. 516; Hutchinson v. Ainsworth, 63 Cal. 286; Wannall v. Kern, 51 Mo. 150; Miller v. Powell, 53 Mo. 252; Skinner v. Fulton, 39 Ill. 484; Calumet, etc., Co. v. Russell, 68 Ill. 426; Bowby v. Thunder, 3 Atl. Repr. (Pa.) 588; Fall v. Roper, 3 Head (Tenn.), 485; Brinkley not fatal to the validity of the certificate;<sup>1</sup> but parol evidence

v. Tomeny, 9 Baxt. (Tenn.) 275; Elliott v. Peirsol, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 328. Compare Merritt v. Yates, 71 Ill. 636; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 128; O'Farrall v. Simplot, 4 Iowa, 381.

If proper privy examination was held, and an incorrect certificate made by mistake, it may be corrected; but if the required examination was not properly made, the certificate cannot be corrected. Garth v. Fort, 15 Lea (Tenn.), 683; Looney v. Adamson, 48 Tex. 621; Johnson v. Taylor, 60 Tex. 360.

The officer may be compelled by mandamus to correct his certificate, but a court of equity has no power to correct his mistakes. Wannall v. Kern, 51 Mo. 365; Miller v. Powell, 53 Mo. 252. This case is criticised in Gilbraith v. Gallivan, 78 Mo. 452. In Simpson v. Montgomery, 25 Ark. 365, it was held that equity would relieve as against such mistakes. See Johnson v. Taylor, 60 Tex. 360; Dalton v. Rust, 22 Tex. 133.

A justice of the peace cannot be compelled by mandamus to correct his certificate. Merritt v. Yates, 71 Ill. 636; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 128.

A notary having made and delivered a defective certificate, cannot amend it in the absence of the grantor. Enterprise Transit Co. v. Sheedy, 103 Pa. St. 492; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 130; Merritt v. Yates, 71 Ill. 636; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 128.

An officer cannot correct his certificate after his term of office has expired. Gilbraith v. Gallivan, 78 Mo. 452. Compare Grottenkemper v. Carver, 4 Lea (Tenn.), 375.

When an acknowledgment is properly made but defectively certified, a party interested may have an action to correct the certificate; and where, in foreclosure proceedings, objection is made to the introduction of the mortgage on the ground that the certificate is defective, the plaintiff should be permitted to amend the complaint and prove that the acknowledgment was made in compliance with the statute, and have judgment reforming the certificate. Hutchinson v. Ainsworth, 63 Cal. 286.

In most cases the certificate may be admitted in evidence, although the mistake has not been corrected. Merchants' Bank v. Harrison, 39 Mo. 433; Sharp v. Hamilton, 12 N. J. L. 109; Northrop v. Wright, 7 Hill (N. Y.), 476.

Under the Ohio statute of 1857 an officer may correct his mistakes. Kilbourn v. Fury, 26 Ohio St. 153.

In Tennessee the officer may correct his certificate by making oath in open court. Brinkly v. Tomeny, 9 Baxt. (Tenn.) 275; Fall v. Roper, 3 Head (Tenn.), 485; Garth v. Fort, 15 Lea (Tenn.), 683.

Art. 4353 of the Texas R. S. does not permit the validating of conveyances when in fact the law had not been complied with in taking the acknowledgment, but gives only a new remedy for ascertaining the fact that the acknowledgment was in fact properly made. Johnson v. Taylor, 60 Tex. 360.

Presumption after Twenty Years' Registration.—Where the deed has been registered for twenty years, but certificate is defective, the probate shall be presumed to be proper, and this presumption is conclusive and cuts off all inquiry on the subject. Stroud v. McDaniel, 12 Lea (Tenn.), 617. See Riecke v. Westenhoff, 10 Mo. App. 358. But lapse of time will not cure a certificate relating to trusts. Fell v. Young, 63 Ill. 106.

1. Omissions which have been held not Fatal.—"Personally" before the word known. Rosenthal v. Griffin, 23 Iowa, 263; Todd v. Jones, 22 Iowa, 146; Hopkins v. Delany, 8 Cal. 85; Weich v. Sullivan, 8 Cal. 511; Alexander v. Merry, 9 Mo. 514; Davis v. Bogle, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 315.

Of the words of identity. Northrop v. Wright, 7 Hill (N. Y.), 476; Hunt v. Johnson, 19 N. Y. 279; Watkins v. Hall, 57 Tex. 1; Hiles v. La Flesh, 59 Wis. 465; Mount v. Kesterson, 6 Coldw. (Tenn.) 452; Hornbeck v. Mut. Building Ass'n, 88 Pa. St. 64; Bell v. Lyle, 10 Lea (Tenn.), 44.

Of the surname. Chandler v. Spear, 22 Vt. 388.

The word "seal." Nichols v. Stewart, 15 Tex. 226.

Of the grantor's name, when it can be supplied from instrument or signature. Wise v. Postlewait, 3 W. Va. 452; Phillips v. Ruble, Litt. Sel. Cas. 221; Magness v. Arnold, 31 Ark. 103; Sanford v. Bulkley, 30 Conn. 344; Wilcoxon v. Osborn, 77 Mo. 621; Lincoln v. Thompson, 75 Mo. 613. Or the surname. Chandler v. Spear, 22 Vt. 388. See OMISSIONS, FATAL, post.

"Given under my hand and seal of office" where the official seal is in fact affixed. Webb v. Huff, 61 Tex. 678.

"And deed." Spitznagle v. Vanhessh, 13 Neb. 338.

"Her act and deed." Stuart v. Dutton, 39 Ill. 91; Solyer v. Romanet, 52 Tex. 562.

is not admissible to prove an essential fact which has been

"And acknowledged the said mortgage." Basshor v. Stewart, 54 Md. 376.

Of the name of the State. Robidoux v. Cassilegi, 10 Mo. App. 516. Or of the county where it is expressed in the deed. Furhman v. Loudon, 13 S. & R. (Pa.) 386; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 608; Ansier v. Schieffelin, 72 Pa. St. 106; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 659. Or of the place. Rackleff v. Norton, 19 Me. 274; Huxley v. Harold, 62 Mo. 516.

"Fully" before "known" in wife's acknowledgment. Hartshorn v. Dawson, 79 Ill. 108.

"Known," in "being made fully known," etc. Hornbeck v. Mutual, etc., Ass'n, 88 Pa. St. 64.

"Husband" where the blank is left unfilled. Gorman v. Stanton, 5 Mo. App. 585.

"Be" in the sentence "known to me to —" Johnson v. Badger, etc., Co., 13 Nev. 351.

"Before me" after the word "acknowledged." Gordon v. Leech, 81 Ky. 229.

"Are" after "who." Hartshorn v. Dawson, 79 Ill. 108.

"Consideration" in the sentence "for the consideration and purposes." Monroe v. Arledge, 23 Tex. 478.

The title of a trustee. Dail v. Moore, 51 Mo. 589.

"His" before "free and voluntary act." Dickerson v. Davis, 12 Iowa, 353.

"Appeared" after the word "personally." Scharfenburg v. Bishop, 35 Iowa, 60.

"Sealed and delivered" in wife's acknowledgment. Barton v. Morris, 15 Ohio, 408; Mullins v. Weaver, 57 Tex. 5. Compare Toulmin v. Heidelberg, 32 Miss. 268.

"Seal" before "of office" where statute does not require a seal. Nichols v. Stewart, 15 Tex. 226.

"Hand and seal" where seal was actually attached. Harrington v. Fish, 10 Mich. 415; Webb v. Haff, 61 Tex. 677.

Omitting "out of presence" when "separate and apart" is used. Nippel v. Hammond, 4 Colo. 211.

The following acknowledgment held sufficient: "State of Arkansas, Pulaski County. On this, the nineteenth day of May, 1877, before me, J. L. Bay, a notary public in and for said county, personally appeared Theodore B. Mills and Hannah A. Mills, his wife, grantors in the foregoing deed of conveyance, to me well known, who acknowledge that he had executed the same for the consideration and purposes mentioned. And on this day voluntarily appeared before me ———, to me well known as the person whose name appears upon the within and foregoing deed, and in the absence ——— said husband declared that ——— had of her own free will executed the foregoing deed for the purposes therein contained and set forth, and that she relinquishes her dower in and to the property conveyed freely and without compulsion or undue influence of her husband. Witness," etc. (Signed and sealed by the notary.) Donahue v. Mills, 41 Ark. 421. Compare Hartshorn v. Dawson, 79 Ill. 108; Merritt v. Yates, 71 Ill. 636; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 128.

Omissions which have been held fatal. — "And does not wish to retract" in wife's acknowledgment. Linn v. Patton, 10 W. Va. 187; La Bourgeoise v. McNamara, 5 Mo. App. 576.

"For the purposes herein set forth." Little v. Dodge, 32 Ark. 453; Jacoway v. Gault, 20 Ark. 190; Shryock v. Cannon, 39 Ark. 434; Currie v. Kerr, 11 Lea (Tenn.), 138.

"Known." Tully v. Davies, 30 Ill. 103. See Brinton v. Seever, 12 Iowa, 389; Rogers v. Adams, 66 Ala. 600.

"Signed" in "signed, sealed, and delivered." Smith v. Elliott, 39 Tex. 201.

"Ill usage." Hawkins v. Burress, 1 H. & J. (Md.) 513.

"Acknowledged." Dewey v. Campau, 4 Mich. 565; Harrington v. Fish, 10 Mich. 415; Newman v. Samuels, 17 Iowa, 528; Bowman v. Wettig, 39 Ill. 416; Pickney v. Burrage, 31 N. J. Eq. 21.

"Voluntary." Wickersham v. Reeves, 1 Iowa, 413; Newman v. Samuels, 17 Iowa, 528.

The words "of identity." Fryer v. Rockefeller, 63 N. Y. 268; Forgarty v. Finlay, 10 Cal. 239; Wolf v. Fogarty, 6 Cal. 224; Fell v. Young, 63 Ill. 106; Murphy v. Williamson, 85 Ill. 149; Coburn v. Herrington, 114 Ill. 104; Gove v. Cather, 23 Ill. 634; Shephard v. Carriel, 19 Ill. 313; O'Ferrall v. Simplot, 4 Greene (Iowa), 162; Smith v. Garden, 28 Wis. 685.

Statement of the private examination of wife. Harty v. Ladd, 3 Oregon, 353; Elliott v. Richardson, 9 Baxt. (Tenn.) 293.

The omission of grantor's name. Smith v. Hunt, 13 Ohio St. 260; Hayden v. Wescott, 11 Conn. 129; Buell v. Irwin, 24 Mich. 145. Or of wife's name. Merritt v. Yates, 71 Ill. 636; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 128; Trustees v. Davidson, 65 Ill. 124.

The insertion of grantee's name for omitted;<sup>1</sup> redundant words may be rejected if the certificate is complete without them;<sup>2</sup> and clerical or grammatical errors may be corrected.<sup>3</sup> The use of words of equivalent import will not invalidate the certificate.<sup>4</sup> Words vital to the correctness of the that of grantor. Wood v. Cochrane, 39 Vt. 544.

Mistake in Christian-name of grantor. Boothroyd v. Engles, 23 Mich. 19.

Omission of Christian-name of grantor in the signature. Hiss v. McCabe, 45 Md. 77.

"Sealed and delivered" in "signed, sealed, and delivered." Toulman v. Heidelberg, 32 Miss. 268. Compare Barton v. Morris, 15 Ohio, 408.

A notary's certificate was insufficient where the county for which the notary was appointed was not appended in connection with the words "notary public." Willard v. Cramer, 36 Iowa, 22.

A certificate by a justice of the peace, appended to a deed, which states that the grantors, man and wife, appeared before him, and that the wife, being examined apart, "acknowledged she signed the said deed of her own free will and accord, and without fear, constraint, or persuasion of her husband, who all acknowledged they signed, sealed, and delivered the same for the purposes therein contained," is not a substantial compliance with the requisitions of the statute, and does not render the deed admissible evidence without further proof. Boykin v. Smith, 65 Ala. 294.

The omission of the word "consideration" in the acknowledgment is fatal. But where the execution is otherwise proven at the trial it is admissible, notwithstanding the defective acknowledgment. Griesler v. McKennon, 44 Ark. 517; Wright v. Graham, 42 Ark. 140.

A certificate, formal in other respects, which declares that the party whose name appears to a deed to which the certificate is attached appeared "and acknowledged that ——" had signed, sealed, and delivered the same, is not sufficient. The certificate should have shown on its face that he, the one whose name appeared, acknowledged that he executed the same. Huff v. Webb, 64 Tex. 284; Buell v. Irwin, 24 Mich. 152.

1. Rollins v. Menager, 22 W. Va. 461; Ridgely v. Howard, 3 Har. & McH. (Md.) 321; Montgomery v. Hobson, Meigs (Tenn.), 437; Westbrooks v. Jeffers, 33 Tex. 86; Smith v. Elliott, 39 Tex. 201; Hays v. Hays, 5 Rich. L. (S. Car.) 31; Barnett v. Barnett, 15 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 72; Williams v. Baker, 71 Pa. St. 476; Leckman v. Harding, 65 Ill.

505; Kerr v. Russell, 69 Ill. 666; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 634; Ennor v. Thompson, 46 Ill. 215.

2. Stuart v. Dutton, 39 Ill. 91; Tourville v. Pierson, 39 Ill. 446; Chester v. Rumsey, 26 Ill. 97; Nelson v. Graff, 44 Mich. 433; Crowley v. Wallace, 12 Mo. 143; Whitney v. Arnold, 10 Cal. 531; Bradford v. Dawson, 2 Ala. 203.

An acknowledgment as follows: "I further certify that the said instrument is executed and proved or acknowledged according to the laws of this State." The word "proved" is surplusage, as there is no certificate of proof to which it can apply. Nelson v. Graff, 44 Mich. 433.

3. As the words "foregoing mortgage" in the certificate to a deed. Ives v. Kimball, 1 Mich. 308. Or if the certificate bears prior or different date to the deed. Gest v. Flock, 2 N. J. Eq. 108; Eaton v. Trowbridge, 38 Mich. 454; Gorman v. Stanton, 5 Mo. App. 585.

The use of the words "a power of attorney" in place of "deed." Hurt v. McCartney, 18 Ill. 129.

No date. Lea v. Polk, etc., Co., 21 How. (U. S.) 493; Webb v. Huff, 61 Tex. 677; Wickes v. Caulk, 5 H. & J. (Md.) 36; Kelly v. Rosenstock, 45 Md. 389; Brooks v. Chaplin, 3 Vt. 281; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 209; Rackleff v. Norton, 19 Me. 274; Huxley v. Harrold, 62 Mo. 516.

Or grammatical errors. Frostburg, etc., Ass'n v. Brace, 51 Md. 508. See Merritt v. Yates, 71 Ill. 636; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 128. Or the word "husband" instead of "deed." Calumet, etc., Co. v. Russell, 68 Ill. 426.

"Contract" for "retract." Belcher v. Weaver, 46 Tex. 293; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 267.

The insertion of the wrong county in caption. Angier v. Schieffelin, 72 Pa. St. 106; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 659.

Erasures and Interlineations.—See Bowlby v. Thunder, 3 Atl. Repr. (Pa.) 588; Devinney v. Reynolds, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 328.

4. Jacoway v. Gault, 20 Ark. 190; De-launay v. Burnett, 9 Ill. 454; Tiffany v. Glover, 4 Iowa, 387; Cavender v. Smith, 5 Iowa, 157; Dickerson v. Davis, 12 Iowa, 353; Hall v. Gittings, 2 H. & J. (Md.) 380; Alexander v. Merry, 9 Mo. 514; Chouteau v. Allen, 70 Mo. 290; Sheldon v. Stryker, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 284; Jackson v. Gumaer, 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 552; certificate cannot be supplied by intendment,<sup>1</sup> a defective certificate of acknowledgment may, from necessity, operate as a substitute for the formal attestation of a witness, to prevent the instrument being inoperative as a conveyance, because the officer before whom its execution is acknowledged imperfectly certifies the facts, from ignorance, mistake, or carelessness. In such cases, the officer making the certificate becomes a witness, and his signature an attestation.<sup>2</sup>

The omission of, or a mistake in, the date will not invalidate the certificate.<sup>3</sup>

Thurman v. Cameron, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 187; Kelly v. Calhoun, 95 U. S. 710. Compare Butterfield v. Beall, 3 Ind. 203.

"Deposes and says" held equivalent to "acknowledge." Chouteau v. Allen, 70 Mo. 290.

"Executed" to "signed, sealed, and delivered." Smith v. Williams, 38 Miss. 48; Dorn v. Best, 15 Tex. 62; and, vice versa, Belcher v. Weaver, 46 Tex. 293; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 267; Stuart v. Dutton, 39 Ill. 91; Little v. Dodge, 32 Ark. 453; Tabbs v. Gatewood, 26 Ark. 128.

"Willingly" to "without any bribe, threat, or compulsion." Belcher v. Weaver, 46 Tex. 293; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 267.

"Executed" to "act and deed." Sharp v. Hamilton, 12 N. J. L. 109.

"Legally authorized and assigned" to "duly commissioned and sworn." Hall v. Gittings, 2 H. & J. (Md.) 380.

"Freely and of her own accord" to "freely as her voluntary act and deed." Dundas v. Hitchcock, 12 How. (U. S.) 256.

"For the purposes herein specified" equivalent to "for the purposes therein contained." Davis v. Bogle, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 317.

"Separate and apart" equivalent to "privily." Coombes v. Thomas, 57 Tex. 321.

"To be their act and deed for the uses and purposes therein mentioned," equivalent to "they signed, sealed, and delivered." Sharp v. Hamilton, 12 N. J. L. 109.

"Personally acquainted with" to "know personally." Kelly v. Calhoun, 95 U. S. 710.

"Acknowledge" when words of similar import are used. Choteau v. Allen, 70 Mo. 290.

On the same paper, and following the signatures to an assignment for the benefit of creditors, was written a notary's certificate of acknowledgment. It bore the same date as the assignment, and named as the persons acknowledging the ones who apparently executed the assignment. It stated that the persons named were to the notary known "to be the individuals described in, and who executed, the same," instead of the words "the foregoing instrument." Held, that the words "the same" referred to the instrument to which the certificate was appended, and sufficiently identified it; and that the certificate showed a due acknowledgment of the instrument. Smith v. Boyd, 101 N. Y. 473.

Where a tax deed is executed by a deputy county clerk, an acknowledgment reciting that such deputy county clerk appeared before the acknowledging officer, and that he acknowledged the execution of the deed by him "as such county clerk," is sufficient; the words "as such county clerk" meaning "as such deputy county clerk." Ward v. Walters, 63 Wis. 39.

Phrases held not to be equivalent: "I am satisfied" not equivalent to "personally known." Shepard v. Carriel, 19 Ill. 313; Fryer v. Rockefeller, 63 N. Y. 268. Compare Hiles v. La Flesh, 59 Wis. 465.

1. Newman v. Samuels, 17 Iowa, 528; Wickersham v. Reeves, 1 Iowa, 413; Fogarty v. Finlay, 10 Cal. 239; Jacoway v. Gault, 20 Ark. 190; Stanton v. Button, 2 Conn. 527; Hayden v. Wescott, 11 Conn. 129; Short v. Conlee, 28 Ill. 219; Tully v. Davis, 30 Ill. 103; Merritt v. Yates, 71 Ill. 636; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 128; Gaines v. Catron, 1 Humph. (Tenn.) 514; Harrison v. Wade, 3 Coldw. (Tenn.) 505.

2. Sharpe v. Orme, 61 Ala. 263; Rogers v. Adams, 66 Ala. 600; Carlisle v. Carlisle, 78 Ala. 542.

3. Webb v. Huff, 61 Tex. 677; Irving v. Brownell, 11 Ill. 402; Huxley v. Harold, 62 Mo. 516; Sidwell v. Birney, 69 Mo. 146; Rackleff v. Norton, 19 Me. 274; Brooks v. Chaplin, 3 Vt. 281; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 209; Gest v. Flock, 1 Green's Ch. (N. J.) 108; Kelly v. Rosenstock, 45 Md. 389; Wickes v. Caulk, 5 H. & J. (Md.) 36; Trulock v.

The identity of the party making the acknowledgment is an essential feature, and must appear in the certificate.<sup>1</sup> The name

Peeples, 1 Ga. 3; Hobson v. Kissam, 8 Ala. 357; Bradford v. Dawson, 2 Ala. 203; Lea v. Polk, etc., Co., 21 How. (U. S.) 493; Yorty v. Paine, 62 Wis. 154.

B, a married woman, joined with C, her husband, and D, her brother, in a mortgage covering her undivided interest and the undivided interest of D in certain real estate; the mortgage was dated April 23, 1874, and the acknowledgment—which as to B was in the statutory form of a married woman's separate acknowledgment—was dated April 21, 1874. The mortgage was recorded April 24, 1874, and was given to secure a debt contracted by D individually. Held, a sale by virtue of it carried all the interest of B in the premises. Hagenbuch v. Phillips, 6 Eastern Repr. (Pa.) 802.

In Wickes v. Caulk, 5 H. & J. (Md.) 36, the deed offered in evidence was dated the 6th of October, 1707, and the acknowledgment was certified to have been made on the 6th October, but omitted to state the year, and the deed was recorded on the 8th of January, 1707. There, by inference and intendment, the time of recording was made to correct the date of the deed, and to supply the particular year in the acknowledgment. In Kelly v. Rosenstock, 45 Md. 389, the mortgage bore date the 6th of August, 1872, but the particular day of the month of August, 1872, upon which the acknowledgment was made, was omitted to be stated. Held, that by looking to the date of the mortgage, and the clerk's certificate endorsed thereon of the time when it was filed for record, the particular day of the month when the acknowledgment was made was with certainty supplied.

A tax deed was executed February 5, 1881, but the certificate of acknowledgment purported to bear date February 5, 1880. Held, that the mistake in the date of the certificate did not invalidate the deed, nor was the acknowledgment so defective as to prevent the deed from being lawfully recorded. Yorty v. Paine, 62 Wis. 154.

Where a mortgage was signed by the husband, and beneath his signature thereto the wife on the same day added: "I hereby join in the execution of the foregoing conveyance, in token that I relinquish all claim of dower in said premises," affixing her signature and seal; to which a justice of the peace added a certificate in these words: "Sworn to and subscribed before me this day," bearing date seventeen days after the mortgage,—held, that the mortgage was neither attested nor acknowledged, and that it was, therefore, inoperative for any purpose. Dugger v. Collins, 69 Ala. 324.

It is no objection to the filing of the certificate of acknowledgment that the date of the certificate is written on an erasure. Anon., 16 C. B. 574.

1. Fryer v. Rockefeller, 63 N. Y. 268; Miller v. Link, 2 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 86; Pinckney v. Burrage, 31 N. J. L. 21; Hayden v. Wescott, 11 Conn. 129; Callaway v. Flash, 50 Mo. 420; Garnier v. Barry, 28 Mo. 438; Wolf v. Fogarty, 6 Cal. 224; Bryan v. Ramirez, 8 Cal. 461; Henderson v. Grewell, 8 Cal. 581; Fogarty v. Finlay, 10 Cal. 239; Kimball v. Semple, 25 Cal. 440; Becker v. Quigg, 54 Ill. 390; Coburn v. Herrington, 114 Ill. 104; Lindley v. Smith, 46 Ill. 523; Tully v. Davis, 30 Ill. 103; Shepard v. Carriel, 19 Ill. 313; Gove v. Cather, 23 Ill. 634; Reynolds v. Kingsbury, 15 Iowa, 238; Brinton v. Seevers, 12 Iowa, 389; Smith v. Garden, 28 Wis. 685; Johnson v. Walton, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 258; Fall v. Roper, 3 Head (Tenn.), 485; Garnet v. Stockton, 7 Humph. (Tenn.) 84; Peacock v. Tompkins, 1 Humph. (Tenn.) 135. Compare Sanford v. Bulkley, 3 Conn. 348.

An examination of the cases which hold that the omission of words of identity is not a fatal defect show that there did not exist at the time a statute requiring such personal identification, or that the statute was substantially complied with. Northrop v. Taylor, 7 Hill (N. Y.), 476; Thurman v. Cameron, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 87; Hunt v. Johnson, 19 N. Y. 279; West Point Iron Co. v. Reymert, 45 N. Y. 703; Sheldon v. Stryker, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 284; Warner v. Hardy, 6 Md. 525; Sanford v. Bulkley, 30 Conn. 344; Hopkins v. Delany, 8 Cal. 85; Welch v. Sullivan, 8 Cal. 511; Tully v. Davis, 30 Ill. 103; Alexander v. Merry, 9 Mo. 514; People v. Cheeseman, 16 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 400; s. c., 7 Colo. 376; Rosenthal v. Griffin, 23 Iowa, 263; Todd v. Jones, 22 Iowa, 146; Bell v. Evans, 10 Iowa, 353.

The omission of the words of identity can only be objected to by a subsequent purchaser for value. Choteau v. Burlando, 20 Mo. 482.

In the body of a deed, one of the grantors was described as Robert P. McClintock, and the deed was signed "R. Parker McClintock." The certificate of of the grantor should appear, although it is now generally held that if the name can be ascertained from the deed, the certificate will be sustained.<sup>1</sup>

A certificate of acknowledgment to a deed, made by the officer merely on the assurance of another that the party executed it, is a nullity.<sup>2</sup> acknowledgment showed that Robert P. McClintock acknowledged the deed. Held, that this was sufficient to show he and R. Parker McClintock were one and the same person. Grand Tower, etc., Co. v. Gil, 111 Ill. 541.

A sheriff's deed does not require the words of identity. Ogden v. Walters, 12 Kan. 282; Lamorque v. Langlais, 8 Mo. 328.

The officer is at liberty to judge for himself as to what is a sufficient acquaintance with the party to enable him to certify to the identity of the party. Wood v. Bach, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 134; Nippel v. Hammond, 4 Colo. 211. See Rexford v. Rexford, 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 6; Jones v. Bach, 48 Barb. (N. Y.) 568.

In Tennessee the officer need not state in a married woman's acknowledgment that she is known to him. Bell v. Lyle, 10 Lea (Tenn.). 44.

Acknowledgment of a deed which fails to recite that the grantor was known to the officer is fatally defective; yet if it recites that the grantor signed the instrument in his presence, it may operate as an attestation. Rogers v. Adams, 66 Ala. 600.

The certificate must state that the subscribing witness knew the person who executed the deed, and a statement that he saw him sign it is not sufficient proof of his identity. Jackson v. Osborn, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 555; s. c., 20 Am. Dec. 649. See also Jackson v. Gould, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 366; Dias v. Glover, 1 Hoff. Ch. (N. Y.) 74.

The certificate of the officer to a deed executed by agents, to the effect that the agents, naming them, were personally known to him, and that each of them had acknowledged the execution of the deed as agent, and being otherwise sufficient, is a sufficient compliance with the statute requiring him to certify that they were the individuals who signed the instrument. Little v. Weatherford, 63 Tex. 638.

The use of the words "I am satisfied" in place of "personally known" held a fatal defect. Shepherd v. Carriel, 19 Ill. 313; Fryer v. Rockefeller, 63 N. Y. 268. Compare Hiles v. La Flesh, 59 Wis. 405.

The omission of "personally" before the word "known," or "appeared" after "personally," held not a fatal defect. West Point Iron Co. v. Reymert, 45 N. Y. 703; Shelden v. Stryker, 42 Barb. (N. Y.). 284; Warner v. Hardy, 6 Md. 525; Alexander v. Merry, 9 Mo. 514; Robson v. Thomas, 55 Mo. 581; Tully v. Davis, 30 Ill. 103; Rosenthal v. Griffin, 23 Iowa, 263; Todd v. Jones, 22 Iowa, 146; Scharfenburg v. Bishop, 35 Iowa, 60; Hopkins v. Delany, 8 Cal. 85; Welch v. Sullivan, 8 Cal. 511; Davis v. Bogle, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 315. See Hunt v. Johnson, 19 N. Y. 279; Jackson v. Gumaer, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 552; Thurman v. Cameron, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 87; Henderson v. Grewell, 8 Cal. 581; Bell v. Evans, 10 Iowa, 353; Tiffany v. Glover, 3 Greene (Iowa), 387; Delannay v. Burnett, 4 Gilm. (Ill.) 454; Kelly v. Calhoun, 95 U. S. 710; Carpenter v. Dexter, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 513.

As to what has been held insufficient compliance with the statute, see Becker v. Quigg, 54 Ill. 390; Brinton v. Seevers, 12 Iowa, 389; Gould v. Woodward, 4 Greene (Iowa), 82; Fryer v. Rockefeller, 63 N. Y. 268; Miller v. Link, 2 T. & C. (N. Y.) 86; Wolf v. Fogarty, 6 Cal. 224.

Negligence.—A notary public is not liable for negligence in, and certifying to identity, when in reality he did not know the party, and party procuring certificate was guilty of contributory negligence. Oakland Bank v. Murfey, 9 Pac. Repr. 843. Compare Fogarty v. Finlay, 10 Cal. 239.

1. Sanford v. Bulkley, 30 Conn. 344; Magness v. Arnold, 31 Ark. 103; Bradford v. Dawson, 2 Ala. 203; Lincoln v. Thomson, 75 Mo. 613; Wilcoxson v. Osborn, 77 Mo. 621; Wise v. Postlewait, 3 W. Va. 452; Chandler v. Spear, 22 Vt. 388; Lone v. Shields, 3 Yerg. (Tenn.) 405; Phillips v. Ruble, Litt. Sel. Cas. (Ky.) 221; Carpenter v. Dexter, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 513; Kelly v. Rosenstock, 45 Md. 389.

Compare Hayden v. Wescott, 11 Conn. 129; Hiss v. McCabe, 45 Md. 77; Smith v. Hunt, 13 Ohio, 260. See Wood v. Cochrane, 39 Vt. 544.

2. Mays v. Hedges, 79 Ind. 288. See Harrison v. McWhirter, 12 Neb. 152.

It must appear from the certificate that the party has acknowledged or executed the instrument. This may be shown by the use of the word "acknowledged" or "executed," or as the statute may direct.<sup>1</sup>

A certificate must be construed with reference to the instrument it is attached to, and the instrument is allowed to help out the construction of the certificate. And if the certificate is inconsistent with the instrument and ambiguous, the court will look to the instrument, or any part of it, together with the certificate, in order to arrive at the true meaning of the officer.<sup>2</sup>

The signature of the officer must be affixed to the certificate. It is not a compliance with the statute if he signs his name in the

1. Chouteau v. Allen, 70 Mo. 290; Cabell v. Grubbs, 48 Mo. 353; Ingraham v. Grigg, 13 Sneed & M. (Miss.) 22; Hoboken Land Co. v. Kerrigan, 31 N. J. L. 13; Stanton v. Button, 2 Conn. 527; Basshor v. Stewart, 54 Md. 376; Jackson v. Gilchrist, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 89; Stuart v. Dutton, 39 Ill. 91; Short v. Conlee, 28 Ill. 219; Bryon v. Ramirez, 8 Cal. 461; Henderson v. Grewell, 8 Cal. 581; Wise v. Postlewait, 3 W. Va. 452; Smith v. Williams, 38 Miss. 48; Dorn v. Best, 15 Tex. 62; Jacoway v. Gault, 20 Ark. 190; Dewey v. Campau, 4 Mich. 565. See EQUIVALENT WORDS, ante, p. 152.

The word "acknowledged" cannot be supplied by intendment or construction. Stanton v. Button, 2 Conn. 527; Dewey v. Campau, 4 Mich. 565. Compare Chouteau v. Allen, 70 Mo. 290; Basshor v. Stewart, 54 Md. 376.

Where the certificate is in the form of a jurat, held sufficient. Ingraham v. Grigg, 13 S. & M. (Miss.) 22.

Where the certificate fails to show a separate acknowledgment of the wife, but does show that she was privately examined, it is not invalid. Kenneday v. Price, 57 Miss. 771.

"Act and deed" is equivalent to "executed." Sharp v. Hamilton, 7 Halst. (N. J.) 109. See Davis v. Bogle, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 315; Hall v. Thompson, 1 S. & M. (Miss.) 443; Brown v. Farran, 3 Ohio, 140.

W. S., the attorney named in the deed for that purpose, appeared before a justice of the peace, and that officer certified that "personally appeared W. S., etc.," omitting the words "and acknowledged the said mortgage." In the same certificate the justice further certified that, at the same time, the mortgagee appeared and made oath that the consideration set forth in the mortgage was true and bona fide; and this certificate was appended to the mortgage in the usual way, and the mortgage was thereupon duly recorded.

On exception to the sale of the mortgaged premises, on the ground that the mortgage was not duly acknowledged, it was held that every reasonable intendment should be made in support of the certificate, and the instrument to which it was attached. That from the face of the whole writing, including the certificate, there was no doubt as to what was done, and that the act done was in accordance with the authority delegated. That the words omitted by mere clerical misprision were supplied by the context with positive certainty; and that what might be fairly and clearly understood or implied, in reading the acknowledgment in connection with the deed, was of the same effect as if it had been in terms expressed. Basshor v. Stewart, 54 Md. 376.

2. Wilcoxson v. Osborn, 77 Mo. 621; Lincoln v. Thompson, 75 Mo. 613; Samuels v. Shelton, 48 Mo. 444; McClure v. McClurg, 53 Mo. 173; Wells v. Atkinson, 24 Minn. 161; Ives v. Kimball, 1 Mich. 316; Harrington v. Fish, 10 Mich. 415; Newton v. McKay, 29 Mich. 1; Nelson v. Graff, 44 Mich. 433; Calumet, etc., Co. v. Russell, 68 Ill. 426; Logan v. Williams, 76 Ill. 175; Hiles v. La Flesh, 59 Wis. 465; Chase v. Whiting, 30 Wis. 544; Middleton v. Findla, 25 Cal. 80; Chandler v. Spear, 22 Vt. 388; Brooks v. Chaplin, 3 Vt. 281; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 209; Sanford v. Bulkley, 30 Conn. 344; Angier v. Schieffelin, 72 Pa. St. 106; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 659; Furman v. London, 13 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 386; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 608; Basshor v. Stewart, 54 Md. 376; Kelly v. Rosenstock, 45 Md. 389; Hall v. Gettings, 2 H. & J. (Md.) 380; Wise v. Postlewait, 3 W. Va. 452; Sharpe v. Orme, 61 Ala. 263; Ingraham v. Grigg, 13 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 22; Morse v. Clayton, 13 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 373; Lone v. Shields, 3 Yerg. (Tenn.) 405; Kelly v. Calhoun, 95 U. S. 710; Carpenter v. Dexter, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 515.

body of the certificate.<sup>1</sup> The signature must show the official character of the person taking the acknowledgment.<sup>2</sup>

If an official seal is prescribed by statute, the officer must use a seal complying with all the statutory requirements;<sup>3</sup> but if no

1. Marston v. Brashaw, 18 Mich. 81. Jefferson, etc., Assoc. v. Heil, 81 Ky. 513; Carlisle v. Carlisle, 78 Ala. 542.

2. Johnston v. Haines, 2 Ohio, 55; Carlisle v. Carlisle, 78 Ala. 542.

If the official character of the officer taking the acknowledgment appears in the body of the certificate, it is sufficient. Brown v. Farrar, 3 Ohio, 140.

Where the letters "J. P." were annexed to the official signature, and the certificate showed the official character of the officer, held sufficient. Final v. Backus, 18 Mich. 218. See Rowley v. Berrian, 12 Ill. 200.

Attached to a deed were two acknowledgments, one of the grantor, and the other of his wife. The second certificate immediately followed the first, and was the only one signed by the officer taking the acknowledgment. Held, that the certificates were in effect one certificate. Wright v. Wilson, 17 Mich. 192.

If the official character of the person taking the acknowledgment does not appear in the certificate, it may be proved aliunde. Shults v. Moore, 1 McLean (U. S.), 520; Bennet v. Paine, 7 Watts (Pa.) 334; Scott v. Gallagher, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 347. Compare Johnson v. Haines, 2 Ohio, 55.

3. Texas Land Co. v. Williams, 51 Tex. 51; McKellar v. Peck, 39 Tex. 381; Ballard v. Perry, 28 Tex. 347; Little v. Dodge, 32 Ark. 453; Dail v. Moore, 51 Mo. 589; Meskimen v. Day, 10 Pac. Repr. (Kan.) 14; Booth v. Cook, 20 Ill. 129; Skinner v. Fulton, 39 Ill. 384; Mason v. Brock, 12 Ill. 273; Moore v. Titman, 33 Ill. 358; Holbrook v. Nichol, 36 Ill. 161; Buel v. Irwin, 24 Mich. 145; Hastings v. Vaughn, 5 Cal. 315; Kemper v. Hughes, 7 B. Mon. (Ky.) 255; Miller v. Henshaw, 4 Dana (Ky.) 325; Fleming v. Richardson, 13 La. Ann. 414; McLaurin v. Wilson, 16 Shand. (S. Car.) 402; McCreary v. McCreary, 9 Rich Eq. (S. Car.) 34; Dunn v. Adams, 1 Ala. 527; Duncan v. Duncan, 1 Watts (Pa.), 322; Barney v. Sutton, 2 Watts (Pa.), 31; Richards v. Randolph, 5 Mason (U. S.), 115.

In Robinson v. Robinson, 5 N. Eastern Repr. (Ill.) 188, the court said: "It is not essential to the validity of a deed that the notary's seal should be attached. A deed may be valid and binding on the parties who execute it, without any acknowledgment before an officer. The purpose of the certificate of acknowledgment is to prove the execution of the deed; and where there is no certificate of acknowledgment other proof may be presented to prove the execution of the instrument; and when thus proven the deed is as operative and binding on the parties as it would be if properly acknowledged before an officer. There is ample evidence in the record to prove that the grantors executed the deed; and the fact that the notary failed to affix his official seal to the certificate of acknowledgment did not affect the validity of the instrument." See Bank v. Pursly, 3 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 238; Tyler v. Bank, 7 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 557; Homes v. Smith, 16 Me. 181.

The absence of a seal may be cured by a validating act. Cole v. Wright, 70 Ind. 179.

The seal must be on the same sheet with the deed and certificate. Winkler v. Higgins, 9 Ohio St. 599.

The official seal must be used; a private seal or scrawl will not answer. Mason v. Brock, 12 Ill. 273; s. c., 52 Am. Dec. 490; Skinner v. Fulton, 39 Ill. 484; Dunn v. Adams, 1 Ala. 527.

Unless permitted by statute. Fogarty v. Sawyer, 23 Cal. 570.

The courts are bound to take judicial notice of the seal of a commissioner appointed by the governor to take acknowledgments in another State. Smith v. Van Gilder, 26 Ark. 527; Irving v. Brownell, 11 Gilm. (Va.) 402.

Courts take notice of the seals of notaries public. Yeaton v. Fry, 5 Cranch (U. S.), 535; Chanoine v. Fowler, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 173; Porter v. Judson, 1 Gray (Mass.), 175; Stoddard v. Sloan, 65 Iowa, 680.

The record of a deed, acknowledged before a notary in this State, but not authenticated with his notarial seal, cannot be received in evidence. Meskimen v. Day, 35 Kan. 46.

The absence from a notary's seal of the emblems and devices required by the statute does not invalidate his certificate of the acknowledgment of a deed. Sonfield v. Thompson, 42 Ark. 46.

The omission of the word "seal" between "and" and "of office" is not a fatal defect. Nichols v. Stewart, 15 Tex. 226.

seal is required by statute, or a special form of seal prescribed, then the omission to affix a seal, or the use of such one as the officer may select, will not invalidate the certificate.<sup>1</sup>

Only purchasers for value can take advantage of a defective acknowledgment.<sup>2</sup> If the property has passed into the possession of a bona-fide purchaser without notice, or is in the possession of an innocent grantee, the certificate is conclusive,<sup>3</sup> and parol evi-

In Webb v. Huff, 61 Tex. 677, the court said: "But it is objected that the notary did not add the words 'Given under my hand and seal of office,' etc. These venerable words ought, no doubt, to be used by all notaries, especially as they have been adopted into the form given by the statute; but we do not think that their presence or their absence will affect the validity of the instrument. When the notary has appended his official signature and seal to the certificate, the seal gives authority to the document as well as to the signature. And it will add no weight whatever for him to append the words 'this is my seal,' 'this is my signature,' or any equivalent words."

1. Davis v. Roosevelt, 53 Tex. 305; Collins v. Boyd, 5 Dana (Ky.), 316; Thompson v. Robertson, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 383; Harrison v. Simmons, 55 Ala. 510; Powers v. Bryant, 7 Port. (Ala.) 9; Jacques v. Weeks, 7 Watts (Pa.), 261; Farnum v. Buffum, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 260; Fund Com'rs v. Glass, 17 Ohio, 542; Irving v. Brownell, 11 Ill. 402; Cole v. Wright, 70 Ind. 179; Ingoldsbey v. Quan, 12 Cal. 564; Thompson v. Morgan, 6 Minn. 292.

The official seal of which the courts will take notice—in the absence of statutory regulation—consists in an impression on wax or wafer affixed to the instrument, or upon the substance of the paper; and not in any particular words identifying the person of the officer. Phillips, In re, 14 Bankr. Reg. 219.

2. Martin v. Halley, 61 Mo. 196; Bishop v. Schneider, 46 Mo. 472; Cho-teau v. Burlands, 20 Mo. 482.

3. Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, 100 Ill. 385; Kerr v. Russell, 69 Ill. 666; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 634; Lickmon v. Harding, 65 Ill. 505; Board v. Davieson, 65 Ill. 124; Calumet, etc., Co. v. Russell, 68 Ill. 426; Marston v. Brittenham, 76 Ill. 611; Baldwin v. Snowden, 11 Ohio St. 203; McHenry v. Day, 13 Iowa, 445; De Arnaz v. Escandon, 59 Cal. 486; Singer Mfg. Co. v. Rook, 84 Pa. St. 442; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 204; Miller v. Wentworth, 82 Pa. St. 280; Heeter v. Glasgow, 79 Pa. St. 79; s. c., 21 Am. Rep. 46; Williams v.

Baker, 71 Pa. St. 476; Hall v. Patterson, 51 Pa. St. 289; Hayden v. Wescott, 11 Conn. 129; Elwood v. Klock, 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 55; Ridgely v. Howard, 3 H. & McH. (Md.) 321; Harkins v. Forsyth, 11 Leigh (Va.), 29; Johnson v. Wallace, 53 Miss. 331; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 699; Shivers v. Simmons, 54 Miss. 520; Robinson v. Noel, 49 Miss. 253; Stone v. Montgomery, 35 Miss. 83; Willis v. Gatman, 53 Miss. 731; Shields v. Netherland, 5 Lea (Tenn.), 193; Harpending v. Wylie, 14 Bush (Ky.), 380; Cahall v. Citizens, etc., Assoc., 61 Ala. 232; Walter v. Weaver, 57 Tex. 569; Kocurek v. Marak, 54 Tex. 201; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 623; Davis v. Kennedy, 58 Tex. 516; Hartley v. Frosh, 6 Tex. 208; O'Farrell v. Simplot, 4 Iowa, 396; Stillwell v. Adams, 29 Ark. 346; Holt v. Moore, 37 Ark. 145; Elliott v. Piersol, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 338; Paxton v. Marshall, 18 Fed. Repr. 361. Compare Bridge v. Hare, 98 Pa. St. 561.

Where the wife claimed that the interpreter did not correctly explain the contents of the deed to her, but said that it was a mortgage, held, that the certificate was conclusive of the facts recited. De Arnaz v. Escandon, 59 Cal. 486. Or that her signature was forged. Kerr v. Russell, 69 Ill. 666; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 634. See Lickman v. Harding, 65 Ill. 505; Johnson v. Van Velsor, 43 Mich. 208.

To impeach the certificate of the acknowledgment of a deed, the proof must show a conspiracy between the officer taking the acknowledgment and the grantee, or that the officer practised imposition or fraud upon the grantor, and the testimony of the grantor alone is not sufficient to overcome the certificate and the officer's testimony in support of the same. Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, 100 Ill. 385. See Warrick v. Hull, 102 Ill. 280; Worrall v. McDonald, 66 Ala. 572; Grotenkemper v. Carver, 10 Lea (Tenn.), 280.

It may be regarded as well settled that except in such cases of fraud and collusion which are brought home to some party claiming under the deed, if the certificate is regular and complete, as in this case, no parol evidence will be received to contradict the facts set forth dence cannot be introduced to impeach it, provided it is not defective upon its face.

5. Corporation.—The certificate should state the position of the officer affixing the corporate seal, his authority, that he knows the corporate seal, and that the same is affixed to the conveyance by order of the board of directors, or other trustees of the corporation, and that he subscribed his name thereto as a witness of the execution thereof.<sup>2</sup> In the absence of statutory provision, the on the face of the certificate; and, on the other hand, if the certificate fails to state any essential fact, the existence of it cannot be proven by parol; her acknowledgment cannot rest partly in parol and partly in writing—it must all be in writing. Ennor v. Thompson, 46 Ill. 215; Ridgely v. Howard, 3 H. & McH. (Md.) 321; Lickman v. Harding, 65 Ill. 505; Kerr v. Russell, 69 Ill. 666; Montgomery v. Hobson, Meigs (Tenn.), 437; Westbrooks v. Jeffers, 33 Tex. 86; Hays v. Hays, 5 Rich. (S. Car.) 31; Williams v. Baker, 71 Pa. St. 476; Barnett v. Barnett, 15 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 72; Rollins v. Menager, 22 W. Va. 461.

A certificate is not successfully impeached by the testimony of the husband and wife that the husband remained in the clerk's office while the privy examination was taken, the husband stating that he does not remember whether he was out of hearing or not, and the wife being silent on this point, and saying that she signed the deed and acknowledged it. Grottenkemper v. Carver, 10 Lea (Tenn.), 280. See Miller v. Marx, 55 Ala. 322; Smith v. McGuire, 67 Ala. 34; Kerr v. Russell, 69 Ill. 666; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 634. Or by the uncorroborated testimony of the wife. Knowles v. Knowles, 86 Ill. 1; McPherson v. Sanborn, 88 Ill. 150; Biggers v. St. Louis, etc., Co., 9 Mo. App. 210; Smith v. Allis, 52 Wis. 337; Johnson v. Van Velsor, 43 Mich. 208; Hourtienne v. Schnoor, 33 Mich. 274; Allen v. Lenoir, 53 Miss. 324; Ins. Co. v. Nelson, 103 U. S. 544.

1. Watson v. Bailey, 1 Binn. (Pa.) 470; s. c., 2 Am. Dec. 462; Jourdan v. Jourdan, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 268; Barnet v. Barnet, 15 S. & R. (Pa.) 72; Leftwich v. Neal, 7 W. Va. 569; Ennor v. Thompson, 46 Ill. 214; Harty v. Ladd, 3 Oregon, 353; Pool v. Chase, 46 Tex. 207; Coal Creek Co. v. Heck, 15 Lea (Tenn.), 497; Pribble v. Hall, 13 Bush (Ky.), 161; Paxton v. Marshall, 18 Fed. Repr. 361.

The grantee in a mere quit-claim deed cannot be regarded as an innocent purchaser without notice of the rights of a prior purchaser from the same grantor by a deed defectively acknowledged. Watson

v. Phelps, 40 Iowa, 482; Springer v. Bartle, 46 Iowa, 688; Fogg v. Holcomb, 64 Iowa, 621.

2. Lovett v. Steam Saw-mill Assoc., 6 Paige, Ch. (N. Y.) 60.

A conveyance of property by a corporation may be executed like a conveyance by an individual, through any agent having authority to represent the company for that purpose. It has been held that a statutory provision that it "shall be lawful for any corporation to convey lands by deed of bargain and sale, sealed with the common seal of said corporation, and signed by the president or presiding member or trustee, and two other members of the corporation, and attested by a witness" did not prohibit other methods of execution by authorized agents. Morawetz on Corp. (2d ed.), § 335; citing Bason v. Mining Co., 90 N. Car. 417; Morris v. Keil, 20 Minn. 531.

In the absence of statutory provisions, the only formalities necessary to the valid execution of a deed by a corporation are sealing with the corporate seal and delivery. It is usual to sign the corporate name. Ang. & Ames Corp. § 225; Flint v. Clinton Co., 12 N. H. 430.

But it is not necessary that the corporate name should be signed. Ang. & Ames Corp. § 225; Osborne v. Tunis, 1 Dutch. (N. J.) 633; Cooch v. Goodman, 2 Q. B. 580. Except where it is required by statute. Isham v. Bennington Iron Co., 19 Vt. 251.

At common law, the signature of the corporation is its corporate seal. City of Tiffin v. Shawhan, 9 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 556; Gordon v. Preston, 1 Watts (Pa.), 385; Frankfort Bank v. Anderson, 3 A. K. Marsh (Ky.), 932; Beckwith v. Windsor Manuf. Co., 14 Conn. 594; Doe v. Hogg, 4 Bos. & P. 306.

A deed was made of the E. W. L. Co., and signed, "In witness whereof, we hereunto set our hands and seals. A. B., President, etc.; C. D., Treasurer, etc." The acknowledgment was in form, "Personally appearing, A. B and C. D. acknowledged the foregoing instrument to be their free act and deed before me," etc. Held, that it was a deed of the cor-person affixing the corporate seal is the proper person to make the acknowledgment.<sup>1</sup>

6. Impeachment—Fraud.—When there is no appearance before an officer, his false certificate of acknowledgment is void; but when there is an appearance and acknowledgment of it in some manner, then the official certificate is conclusive of every fact appearing on its face; and evidence of what passed at the time of the acknowledgment is inadmissible to impeach the certificate, except in case of fraud or imposition, and where knowledge or notice of the fraud or imposition is brought home to the grantee.<sup>2</sup> poration. Tenney v. East Warren, etc., Co., 43 N. H. 343; see McDaniels v. Flower, etc., Co., 22 Vt. 274.

In Frostburg Mut. Build. Assoc. v. Brace, 51 Md. 508, the certificate of the justice stated that the attorney of the corporation appeared and acknowledged the mortgage to be his act and deed, instead of the act and deed of the corporation. Held, that the acknowledgment was aided by intentment, and that it should be read and understood as the acknowledgment of the corporation by its attorney, according to what was the manifest intention.

A deed purporting to convey title to land, by a national bank, to which was signed the corporate name, with the bank seal affixed by "John Kerr, Prest.," and "R. P. Aunspaugh, Cashier," had affixed thereto the following certificate of acknowledgment: "This day personally appeared John Kerr, president of said First National Bank of the city of Dallas, and R. P. Aunspaugh, cashier of said bank, both of whom are to me well known, and severally acknowledged that they executed the above and foregoing instrument for the purposes and considerations therein contained" (signed by the officer and authenticated with his seal). Held, that the acknowledgment was a sufficient compliance with the statute requiring the president of a corporation, in making a deed, to acknowledge it to be "the act of the corporation." Muller v. Boom, 63 Tex. 91; Monroe v. Arledge, 23 Tex. 480.

To an assignment for the benefit of creditors executed by a corporation was appended a notary's certificate that M. C., president, and A. M., cashier, of the corporation, "acknowledged that they executed and delivered the same as their voluntary act and deed, for the uses and purposes therein contained." Held, that this was a sufficient certificate that the corporation acknowledged the instrument. Eppricht v. Nickerson, 78 Mo. 483.

By § 1745 Rev. Stat. of Ohio, the Mayor is intrusted with the custody and use of the corporate seal; this being so, and the proper mode of executing a deed of land owned by the corporation being by affixing the seal of the corporation, quære, can the corporation empower the City Clerk to make a valid deed of corporate real property? Tiffin v. Shawhan, 43 Ohio, St. 178; s. c., 9 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 556.

1. Kelly v. Calhoun, 95 U. S. 710.

2. Meyer v. Gossett, 38 Ark. 377; Halt v. Moore, 37 Ark. 148; Johnson v. Wallace, 53 Miss. 331; Stone v. Montgomery, 35 Miss. 83; Hester v. Glasgow, 79 Pa. St. 79; s. c., 21 Am. Rep. 461; Singer Manuf. Co. v. Rook, 84 Pa. St. 442; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 204; Michener v. Cavender, 38 Pa. St. 337; Williams v. Baker, 71 Pa. St. 482; Mays v. Hedges, 79 Ind. 288; Hartley v. Frost, 6 Tex. 208; Davis v. Kennedy, 58 Tex. 516; Baldwin v. Snowden, 11 Ohio St. 203; Marsh v. Mitchell, 26 N. J. Eq. 497; White v. Graves, 107 Mass. 325; Kerr v. Russell, 69 Ill. 666; Eyster v. Hathaway, 50 Ill. 522; Rollins v. Menager, 22 W. Va. 461; Worrell v. McDonald, 66 Ala. 572; Coleman v. Smith, 55 Ala. 368; Shields v. Netherlands, 5 Lea (Tenn.), 193; De Arnaz v. Escandon, 59 Cal. 486; Bissett v. Bissett, 1 H. & McH. (Md.) 211; Borland v. Walrath, 33 Iowa, 133; Hourtienne v. Schnoor, 33 Mich. 274; Smith v. Allis, 52 Wis. 337; Ins. Co. v. Nelson, 103 U. S. 544. Compare Bridge v. Hare, 98 Pa. St. 561.

The following cases hold that the certificate is prima-facie evidence of the facts recited and of its own validity: Jackson v. Hoyner, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 472; Jackson v. Schoonmaker, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 161; Hall v. Patterson, 51 Pa. St. 289; Borland v. Walrath, 33 Iowa, 130; Edgerton v. Jones, 10 Minn. 429; Annan v. Folsom, 6 Minn. 500; Dodge v. Hollinshead, 6 Minn. 25; Landers v. Bolton, 26 Cal. 406; Young v. Duvall, 100 U. S. 573; Belo v. Mayes, 79 Mo. 67; Wannell v. Kern, 57 Mo. 480; Steffern v. Bauer, 70 Mo. 399; Sharpe v. McPike, 63 Mo. 300;

7. Validating Statutes.—A retrospective statute curing defects in legal proceedings where they are in their nature irregularities only, and do not extend to matters of jurisdiction, is not void on constitutional grounds, unless expressly forbidden. Of this class

Clark v. Edwards, 75 Mo. 87; Webb v. Webb, 87 Mo. 540.

As the certificate forms part of the deed, is essential to its validity, and purchasers are invited to look to and rely upon it, the evidence impeaching it ought to be clear, convincing, and conclusive, reaching a high degree of certainty, leaving upon the mind no fair, just doubts. Smith v. McGuire, 67 Ala. 34; Tett v. Rogers, 12 Bush (Ky.), 564; Hughes v. Colman, 10 Bush (Ky.), 246; Kavanaugh v. Day, 10 R. I. 393; Russell v. Baptist, etc., Sem., 73 Ill. 337; Kerr v. Russell, 69 Ill. 666; Riecke v. Westenhoff, 10 Mo. App. 358; Smith v. Allis, 52 Wis. 337; Insurance Co. v. Nelson, 103 U. S. 544.

A married woman may show against all the world that she never made any acknowledgment at all of the execution of a deed, and that the certificate of acknowledgment is a forgery or entire fabrication of the officer; but if she actually made some kind of acknowledgment before an officer qualified to take it, his certificate will be conclusive as to the terms of the acknowledgment and the concomitant circumstances, in favor of all persons who, themselves innocent of fraud or of collusion to deceive or influence her, have taken the instrument on faith of the certificate. Donahue v. Mills, 41 Ark. 421.

Where a mortgage, or other conveyance, is duly acknowledged before a proper officer, and the requisite certificate of acknowledgment is affixed in the form prescribed by statute, this circumstance constitutes such cogent proof of a free agency and absence of restraint as to be perfectly conclusive, unless rebutted by clear proof of fraud or imposition practised on the grantor, in which the officer or the mortgagee participated. Downing v. Blair, 75 Ala. 216; Miller v. Marx, 55 Ala. 322; Moog v. Strang, 69 Ala. 98; Johnston v. Wallace, 53 Miss. 331; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 699.

A certificate of acknowledgment to a deed, made by the officer merely on the assurance of another that the party executed it, is a nullity. Mays v. Hedges, 79 Ind. 288.

It may be shown that the officer had not jurisdiction. Scott v. Gallagher, 11 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 347. Or that he did have jurisdiction, although the certificate, by clerical error, stated otherwise. Angier v. Schiefflin, 72 Pa. St. 106; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 659; Bennett v. Paine, 7 Watts (Pa.), 334. Or that the court where the acknowledgment was taken was, or was not, a court of record. Pierce v. Hakes, 11 Harris (Pa.), 231.

Evidence can be given to show that the grantor, who had executed a deed fifty years before, was non compos. Jackson v. Schoonmaker, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 161.

Separate Acknowledgment of Wife.—

The wife cannot impeach for fraud the certificate of her acknowledgment to a deed when the same is in conformity to the requisitions of the statutes, and when there is an adequate consideration paid to support the deed, if the purchaser neither participated in the fraud nor had knowledge of its existence. Davis v. Kennedy, 58 Tex. 516.

The validity of a deed made by a husband and wife in trust to secure money advanced, on the faith thereof, to the husband, an innocent third person, where the probate is in due form by the proper officers, cannot be impeached upon the ground that the deed and the certificate of privy examination were dated earlier than the date of actual execution, or that the married woman was not unable to appear before the clerk in proper person, or that the commission to take the privy examination was in blank when issued, or that the privy examination was not taken in the most approved mode. The fact that the husband misled the wife as to the nature of the instrument she was called upon by him to sign, and which she executed at his request and without reading it, does not constitute such fraud as will enable her to contradict, by parol, the certificate of acknowledgment and privy examination to a trust deed to secure money loaned to the husband, neither the creditor nor the trustee being present, nor having any reason to suspect the imposition. Shields v. Netherlands, 5 Lea (Tenn.), 193.

The unsupported testimony of the wife is insufficient. Knowles v. Knowles, 86 Ill. 1; Marston v. Brittenham, 76 Ill. 611. See notes, ante.

A wife may prove that she was a minor, although the certificate states that she was of age. Williams v. Baker, 71 Pa. St. 476.

are the statutes to cure irregularities where a statutory power has failed of due and regular execution through the carelessness of officers, or other cause.<sup>1</sup>

1. Cooley's Const. Lim. (4th Ed.) 462, 463. If the thing wanting, or which failed to be done, and which constitutes the defect in the proceedings, is something the necessity for which the legislature might have dispensed with by prior statute, then it is not beyond the power of the legislature to dispense with it by subsequent statute. And if the irregularity consists in doing some act, or in the mode or manner of doing some act, which the legislature might have made immaterial by prior law, it is equally competent to make the same immaterial by a subsequent law. Cooley Const. Lim. (4th Ed.) 463. See 19 Am. Law Rev. 378, 379; 12 Cent. L. J. 2. In Johnson v. Taylor, 60 Tex. 360, the court said: "The statute does not attempt to create a right where none before existed, but simply to permit parties to show, if they can, by the judgment of a court, that which, before the statute was enacted, could only be shown by the certificate of the designated officer."

Webb v. Den, 17 How. (U. S.) 578; Watson v. Mercer, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 88; Howard v. Moox, 64 N. Y. 262; Foster v. Essex Bank, 16 Mass. 245; Lycoming v. Union, 15 Pa. St. 166; Journey v. Gibson, 56 Pa. St. 57; Shonk v. Brown, 61 Pa. St. 320; Tate v. Stooltzfoos, 16 S. & R. (Pa.) 37; s. c., 16 Am. Dec. 546; Barnett v. Barnett, 15 S. & R. (Pa.) 72; s. c., 16 Am. Dec. 516; Underwood v. Lilly, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 97; Watson v. Bailey, 1 Binn. (Pa.) 476; Dulany v. Tilghman, 6 Gill & J. (Md.) 461; Dengenhart v. Cracraft, 36 Ohio St. 549; Chesnut v. Shane, 16 Ohio St. 599; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 387; Gibson v. Hibbard, 13 Mich. 217; Logan v. Williams, 76 Ill. 175; Maxey v. Wise, 25 Ind. 1; Newman v. Samuels, 17 Iowa, 528; Blount v. Janesville, 31 Wis. 648; Hoskinson v. Adkins, 77 Mo. 537; Dentzel v. Waldie, 30 Cal. 142; Danville v. Pace, 25 Gratt. (Va.) 1; Stroud v. McDaniel, 12 Lea (Tenn.), 617; Green v. Abraham, 43 Ark. 420; Johnson v. Taylor, 60 Tex. 360. Compare Ala. Ins. Co. v. Boykin, 38 Ala. 510; Rich v. Flanders, 39 N. H. 304.

But such laws are unconstitutional so far as they affect vested rights (an examination of the cases cited above will show that they also sustain this rule). Cooley's Const. Lim. (4th Ed.) 472; Green v. Drinker, 7 W. & S. (Pa.) 440; Southard

v. Cent. R. Co., 26 N. J. L. 13; Grove v. Todd, 41 Md. 633; s. c., 20 Am. Rep. 76; Good v. Zercher, 12 Ohio, 364; Barton v. Morris, 15 Ohio, 408; Logan v. Williams, 76 Ill. 175; Russell v. Rumsey, 35 Ill. 362; Brinton v. Seever, 12 Iowa, 389; Meighen v. Strong, 6 Minn. 177; Thompson v. Morgan, 6 Minn. 292; Carpenter v. Dexter, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 513.

The purchaser of a mortgage is bound to take notice of an act validating acknowledgments. Journey v. Gibson, 56 Pa. St. 57.

A statute validating acknowledgments does not apply to tax deeds. Goodykoontz v. Olsen, 54 Iowa, 174.

A defective acknowledgment is not cured by a subsequent statute adopting the form used. Texas Land Co. v. Williams, 51 Tex. 51.

To make valid the defective acknowledgment of a deed, under an act legalizing the acknowledgment of all deeds which had been duly recorded, etc., it was not necessary that the record should be a literal copy in every respect of the instrument, but it was essential that it should embody every material part of the instrument, and that the language of the instrument should be so nearly copied into the record as that the subject-matter of the instrument could be identified with certainty by the record. Fogg v. Holcomb, 64 Iowa, 621.

Where land was conveyed by a deed defectively acknowledged, but duly recorded, and afterwards an act was passed by the legislature legalizing the acknowledgment, but before the passage of such act the grantor conveyed the same land to another, held, that, as between the parties, the case was the same as if there had been no acknowledgment certified upon the first deed, but its execution had been proved by parol; and that the second grantee, in the absence of proof that he was an innocent purchaser for value, could not claim title superior to the first grantee. Fogg v. Holcomb, 64 Iowa, 621; Nolan v. Grant, 53 Iowa, 392.

The act of Arkansas, 1883, to cure defective acknowledgments of deeds, etc., cannot operate in the supreme court in a case decided in the circuit court before its passage. The judgment of the circuit court must be tested by the law as it then existed. Wright v. Graham, 42 Ark. 140.

8. Subsequent Acknowledgment.—Where the acknowledgment of a deed is fatally defective as to the wife, no title passes, and a subsequent proper acknowledgment, after a conveyance to another party, will not cure the defective acknowledgment.<sup>1</sup> If a wife's acknowledgment is defective, she may make a new acknowledgment, which will relate back where the rights of third parties do not intervene.<sup>2</sup>

9. Proof by Subscribing Witnesses.—The statutes of many if not all the States provide for proving the execution of deeds and other instruments intended to be recorded by the oath of a subscribing witness or witnesses, or, when the witnesses cannot be had, by proof of the handwriting of the grantor and witnesses, which shall have the same effect as an acknowledgment. But the practice is very seldom resorted to. A defect in, or want of, an acknowledgment may frequently be cured in this way. But where a married woman is required to be examined by the officer, she must, in general, be present and acknowledge the instrument.<sup>3</sup>

10. Married Women.—At common law a married woman could not convey land by deed.<sup>4</sup> The statutes which exist in the several

1. Durfee v. Garvey, 65 Cal. 406; Enterprise T. Co. v. Sheedy, 103 Pa. St. 492.

2. Cohall v. Mutual, etc., Assoc., 61 Ala. 232.

3. Martindale on Conveyancing, §266. See Wood v. Harrow, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 434; Parker v. Phillips, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 94; Jackson v. Vickory, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 406; Johnson v. Prewitt, 32 Mo. 553; Simpson v. Simpson, 93 N. Car. 373; Davis v. Higgins, 91 N. Car. 382.

When a deed has been duly acknowledged, although there appears to have been a subscribing witness, it is not necessary to call him for the purpose of proving its execution. Simmons v. Havens, 101 N. Y. 427.

Art. 5008 Pasch. Dig. (Tex.) provides for that purpose as follows: "The proof of any instrument of writing for the purpose of being recorded shall be by one or more of the subscribing witnesses personally appearing before some officer authorized to take such proof, and stating, on oath, that he or they saw the grantor or person who executed such instrument subscribe the same; or that the grantor or person who executed such instrument of writing acknowledged in his or their presence that he had subscribed and executed the same for the purposes and consideration therein stated; and that he or they had signed the same as witnesses at the request of the grantor or person who executed such instrument; and the officer taking such proof shall make a certificate thereof, sign and seal the same with his official seal." Held, that the absence of the names of the witnesses in the certificate invalidated it. McDaniel v. Needham, 61 Tex. 269.

4. 2 Black. Com. 291, 292; Martin v. Dwelly, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 9; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 245; Davis v. Andrews, 30 Vt. 681; Pratt v. Battles, 28 Vt. 685; Concord Bank v. Bellis, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 277; Lowell v. Daniels, 2 Gray (Mass.) 161; Dow v. Jewell, 18 N. H. 340; Thayer v. Torrey, 37 N. J. L. 339; Perrine v. Perrine, 3 Stock. (N. J.) 144; Johns v. Reardon, 11 Md. 465; Young v. State, 7 G. & J. (Md.) 253; Lindley v. Smith, 46 Ill. 523; Hughes v. Lane, 11 Ill. 123; Reynolds v. Kingsbury, 15 Iowa, 238; Russell v. Rumsey, 35 Ill. 362; Stuart v. Dutton, 39 Ill. 91; Baxter v. Bodkin, 25 Ind. 172; Owen v. Norris, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 479; Dewey v. Campau, 4 Mich. 565; Pribble v. Hall, 13 Bush (Ky.) 61; Cope v. Meeks, 3 Head (Tenn.), 388; Laird v. Scott, 5 Heisk. (Tenn.) 314; Harston v. Doe, 12 Leigh (Va.), 445; Grove v. Zumbro, 14 Gratt. (Va.) 501; Lefevre v. Murdock, Wright (Ohio), 205; Ward v. McIntosh, 12 Ohio St. 231; Good v. Zercher, 12 Ohio St. 364; Degenhart v. Cracraft, 36 Ohio St. 549; Koltenbrock v. Cracraft, 36 Ohio St. 584; Tubbs v. Gatewood, 26 Ark. 128; Little v. Dodge, 32 Ark. 453; Landers v. Bolton, 26 Cal. 408, Ewald v. Corbett, 32 Cal. 493; Goode v. Smith, 13 Cal. 81; Chauvin v. Wagner, 18 Mo. 531; Wamsell v. Kem, 57 Mo. 478; Steffen v. Bauer, 70 Mo. 399; Bartlett v. O'Donohue, 72 Mo. 563; Goff v. Roberts, 72 Mo. 570; Bernard v. Elder, 50 Miss. 336;

States authorizing conveyance of land by married women carefully regulate the manner of taking and forms of acknowledgment; and such statutes must, either strictly or in effect, substantially be followed.<sup>1</sup>

Allen v. Lenoir, 53 Miss. 321; Hathaway v. Davenport, 2 Jones L. (N. Car.) 152.

1. Mason v. Brock, 12 Ill. 273; s. c., 52 Am. Dec. 490; Livingston v. Kettelle, 1 Gilm. (Ill.) 116; s. c., 41 Am. Dec. 166; Hughes v. Lane, 11 Ill. 123; s. c., 50 Am. Dec. 434; Calumet, etc., Co. v. Russell, 68 Ill. 426; Coleman v. Billings, 89 Ill. 183; Shroder v. Keller, 84 Ill. 46; Chesnut v. Shane, 16 Ohio, 599; s. c., 49 Am. Dec. 387; Purcell v. Goshorn, 17 Ohio, 105; s. c., 49 Am. Dec. 448; Carr v. Williams, 10 Ohio, 305; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 87; Degenhart v. Cracraft, 36 Ohio St. 549; Scott v. Purcell, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 66; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 453; Reynolds v. Kingsbury, 15 Iowa, 238; Goode v. Smith, 13 Cal. 81; Landers v. Bolton, 26 Cal. 439; Ewald v. Corbett, 32 Cal. 493; Leonis v. Lazzarovich, 55 Cal. 52; Muir v. Gallo-way, 61 Cal. 498; Chauvin v. Wagner, 18 Mo. 531; Wamsell v. Kem, 57 Mo. 478; Tubbs v. Gatewood, 26 Ark. 128; Little v. Dodge, 32 Ark. 453; Wentworth v. Clark, 33 Ark. 432; Shryock v. Cannon, 39 Ark. 434; Belcher v. Weaver, 46 Tex. 293; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 267; Looney v. Adamson, 48 Tex. 619; Jourdan v. Jourdan, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 268; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 730; Martin v. Dwelly, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 9; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 245; Mer-iam v. Harsen, 2 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 232; Den v. Geiger, 9 N. J. L. 225; Thayer v. Torrey, 37 N. J. L. 339; Young v. State, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 253; Grave v. Todd, 41 Md. 633; s. c., 20 Am. Rep. 76; Harston v. Doe, 12 Leigh (Va.) 445; Langhorn v. Hobson, 4 Leigh (Va.) 224; Grove v. Zumbro, 14 Gratt. (Va.) 501; Den v. Lewis, 8 Ired. (N. Car.) 70; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 338; Kottman v. Ayer, 1 Strob. (S. Car.) 552; James v. Fisk, 9 S. & M. (Miss.) 144; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 111; Bernard v. Elder, 50 Miss. 336; Allen v. Lenoir, 53 Miss. 321; Henderson v. Rice, 1 Cald. (Tenn.) 224; Laird v. Scott, 5 Heisk. (Tenn.) 314; Gregory v. Ford, 5 B. Mon. (Ky.) 471; Nantz v. Bailey, 3 Dana (Ky.), 111; Martin v. Davidson, 3 Bush (Ky.), 572; Pribble v. Hall, 13 Bush (Ky.), 61.

Arkansas.—Since the adoption of the Arkansas constitution of 1874, no acknowledgment by a married woman of her deed of conveyance of her separate property is necessary. Donohue v. Mills, 41 Ark. 421.

Illinois.—The act of March 27, 1869, provides that any feme covert, being above the age of eighteen years, joining with her husband in the execution of any deed, mortgage, conveyance, power of attorney, or other writing of or relating to the sale, conveyance, or other disposition of lands or real estate, should be bound and concluded by the same, in respect to her right, title, claim, interest, or dower in such estate, as if she were sole and of full age; and the acknowledgment or proof of such deed, mortgage, conveyance, power of attorney, or other writing might be the same as if she were sole. Of this act this court, in Hogan v. Hogan, 89 Ill. 431, said: "This statutory enactment worked a marked change in the law. Thereafter the acknowledgment ceased to be the effective means to work the transfer of title. The certificate of her acknowledgment might thenceforth have been the same as that required in the case of a feme sole; and without any acknowledgment whatever, proof of her execution of a conveyance might have been made as at common law. So, also, from that time forth, her contract in writing, made jointly with her husband, for the disposition of her lands, became binding upon her, and might have been enforced in a court of chancery, and she compelled to a specific performance of the same." And so, too, for the same reason, the deed of a married woman may be reformed the same as one of a woman unmarried. Knox v. Brady, 74 Ill. 476; Edwards v. Schoeneman, 104 Ill. 278; Bradshaw v. Atkins, 110 Ill. 323.

The certificate of acknowledgment of a married woman to a conveyance which omits "and for the purposes therein expressed" is defective, and vitiates the validity of the conveyance. Currie v. Kerr, 11 Lea (Tenn.), 138.

Though the statute must be complied with in order to pass title to a married woman's separate property, it does not necessarily follow that an instrument willingly executed by her, and actually acknowledged as required by law, is absolutely void, simply because of the officer's failure to make the proper certificate which the facts authorized, and which the law required him to make. Johnson v. Taylor, 60 Tex. 360.

The acknowledgment of a married woman of the execution of a deed conveying her separate property which ac-

The certificate is an essential part of the due execution of a deed by which the real estate of a married woman is to be transferred. It cannot be aided by parol proof,<sup>1</sup> or corrected in equity;<sup>2</sup> it is prima-facie evidence that the statute has been complied with,<sup>3</sup> and, except as against bona-fide purchasers,<sup>4</sup> it may be impeached for fraud.<sup>5</sup>

Where the statute requires an examination of the wife apart from her husband, the failure to do so, and have such examination appear in the certificate substantially as the statute prescribes, is knowledge states that she made herself a party to the deed "for the purpose of relinquishing her right of dower" in the lands described, she having no right of dower, present or prospective, but an estate in fee, must be considered and construed to be an acknowledgment of the due execution according to the import of the language of the deed. Evans v. Summerlin, 19 Fla. 858.

In a deed by husband and wife, conveying land patented to the husband, as assignee of a certificate, it is not necessary, as against one not a stranger to the title, that the separate acknowledgment of the wife should be in accordance with the statute regulating conveyances of her separate estate, there being nothing to show that the wife really owned the land in her own separate right. Tom v. Sayers, 64 Tex. 339.

1. Jourdan v. Jourdan, 9 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 268; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 724; Robinson v. Noel, 49 Miss. 253; Willis v. Gattman, 53 Miss. 721; Leftwitch v. Neal, 7 W. Va. 569; First Nat. Bank v. Paul, 75 Va. 594; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 740; Harty v. Ladd, 3 Oregon. 353; Pendleton v. Buitton, 3 Conn. 406; Hayden v. Westcott, 11 Conn. 129; Martin v. Hargardine, 46 Ill. 322; Graham v. Anderson, 42 Ill. 514; O'Terrall v. Simplot, 4 Iowa, 381; Smith v. Hunt, 13 Ohio, 260; s. c., 42 Am. Dec. 201; Gray v. Ulrich, 8 Kan. 112. See Elliott v. Piersol, 1 McLean (U. S.), 11; s. c., 1 Peters (U. S.), 328.

In such a case, the feme covert will not be permitted by parol evidence to contradict the facts set out in the certificate of her privy examination, acknowledgment, and declaration, so as to avoid the effect of the deed of trust, unless she first establish by parol evidence, satisfactorily, that with the concurrence of those claiming under the deed of trust, the married woman has been defrauded or imposed upon by the pretended privy examination, acknowledgment, and declaration. Rolins v. Menager, 22 W. Va. 461.

2. Barnett v. Shackelford, 6 J. J. Marsh (Ky.), 532; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 100;

Campbell v. Taul, 3 Yerg. (Tenn.) 548; Shields v. Netherlands, 5 Lea (Tenn.), 193; Shields v. Netherlands, 5 Lea (Tenn.), 194; Barrett v. Tewsbury, 9 Cal. 13; Gebb v. Rose, 40 Md. 387; Grove v. Todd, 41 Md. 633; Sillman v. Cummins, 13 Ohio, 116; Kotenbrock v. Cracraft, 36 Ohio St. 584; Grapengather v. Fejervary, 9 Iowa, 163; Wannell v. Kern, 51 Mo. 150; Russell v. Rumsey, 35 Ill. 362; Lindley v. Smith, 58 Ill. 250; Dickinson v. Glenn, 27 Conn. 104; Lane v. McKeen, 15 Me. 304; Townsend v. Chapin, 12 Allen (Mass.), 476; Jewett v. Davis, 10 Allen (Mass.), 68; Martin v. Dwelly, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 9; Drury v. Foster, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 24.

Although a married woman cannot be compelled to execute the acknowledgment, yet a court of equity will enforce her contract. Burns v. McGregor, 90 N. Car. 222. Compare Williams v. Baker, 71 Pa. St. 476. See CERTIFICATE, post, p. 170.

The certificate to the deed of a married woman may be amended by supplying the omitted words, under section 2082 of the Code, and will relate to the execution of the deed as between the vendor and vendee, but not to the prejudice of intervening creditors or bona-fide purchasers. Stroud v. McDaniel, 12 Lea (Tenn.), 617.

3. Young v. Duvall, 109 U. S. 573; Marsh v. Mitchell, 26 N. J. L. 497; De Arnaz v. Escandon, 59 Cal. 486, and cases cited, ante, p. 147, note 2.

4. See cases cited, ante, p. 158, note 3.

5. See FRAUDS, ante, p. 160.

There must be some allegation of fraud, or imposition practised toward the wife,—some fraudulent combination between the parties interested and the officer taking the acknowledgment. Worrell v. McDonald, 66 Ala. 572.

See White v. Graves, 107 Mass. 325; s. c., 9 Am. Rep. 38; Singer Manuf. Co. v. Rook, 84 Pa. St. 442; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 204; Kerr v. Russell, 69 Ill. 666; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 634; Johnson v. Wallace, 53 Miss. 331; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 699 pear that she "does not wish to retract;"<sup>1</sup> or that she willingly executes the deed;<sup>2</sup> or that she freely acts without any du-

Moorman v. Board, 11 Bush (Ky.), 135; Pease v. Barbiers, 10 Cal. 436; Hutchinson v. Ainsworth, 63 Cal. 286.

The words "and the deed being read to her" are not substantially the same as the words "being fully explained to her." Watson v. Michael, 21 W. Va. 568.

Where it appears to the court, or officer taking the acknowledgment of a married woman to a deed, that she is acquainted with its contents, and that they are familiarly known to her, he would be justified in certifying that she was made acquainted with the contents, and the design of the law would be accomplished, although the officer imparted no information to her. Drew v. Arnold, 85 Mo. 126.

But it may be remarked that a private explanation of the contents of the deed is not required by the Missouri statute. Belo v. Mayes, 79 Mo. 67; Webb v. Webb, 87 Mo. 510; Ray v. Crouch, 10 Mo. App. 321. Compare Steffen v. Bauer, 70 Mo. 399.

The phrase "she fully understood the contents of said deed" held not equivalent to "having the same fully explained to her." Langton v. Marshall, 59 Tex. 296.

Husband and wife sign deed conveying her inheritance in land, but the certificate of her acknowledgment fails to state that "the deed was explained to the wife." The husband died in 1865; the wife in 1870. In ejectment by the wife's heirs to recover the land, held, the deed was insufficient to pass the wife's interest, and her heirs are entitled to recover. The certificate must show that she knew what she was doing, did it willingly, and does not wish to retract, and substantially comply with the terms of the law in every particular. Bolling v. Teel, 76 Va. 487.

Where the married woman did not speak English, and the deed was explained to her by the officer through an interpreter of her own selection, she cannot be heard to say that he was incompetent or corrupt, or failed to interpret correctly. The proper practice in such cases is for the interpreter to be sworn. Walter v. Weaver, 57 Tex. 569.

Where the certificate states that she was made acquainted with the contents of the instrument, without stating that this was done by the certifying officer or any particular person held, a valid acknowledgment. Jansen v. McCahill, 22

Cal. 563. See Kavanagh v. Day, 10 R. I. 393; Thomas v. Meier, 18 Mo. 573; Gregory v. Ford, 5 B. Mon. (Ky.) 471; Martin v. Davidson, 3 Bush (Ky.), 572; Tourville v. Pierson, 39 Ill. 446.

The Ohio statute of 1831 required the officer to read or otherwise make known to the wife the contents of the deed; but it was held that the officer was not required to certify that he had done so. Card v. Patterson, 5 Ohio St. 319; Chestnut v. Shane, 16 Ohio, 599; S. P. Stevens v. Doe, 6 Blackf. (Ind.) 475; Gregory v. Ford, 5 B. Mon. (Ky.) 471; Coleman v. Billings, 89 Ill. 183.

An acknowledgment of a married woman who was certified to be deaf and dumb, that the nature of the transaction was duly explained to her by signs, and that she had in like manner signified her assent, was allowed by the court. In re Harper, 6 M. & G. 732; 7 Scott, N. R. 431.

1. Linn v. Patton, 10 W. Va. 187; Bateman's Petition, 11 R. I. 585; McMullin v. Eagan, 21 W. Va. 233; Grove v. Zumbro, 14 Gratt. (Va.) 501; Belcher v. Weaver, 46 Tex. 293; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 267; Ruleman v. Pritchett, 56 Tex. 482; Le Bourgeoise v. McNamara, 5 Mo. App. 576; Landers v. Bolton, 26 Cal. 548.

The word "contract" held equivalent to "retract," 46 Tex. 293; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 267.

In Ohio the omission of the words "that she is still satisfied therewith" held a fatal defect. Ward v. McIntosh, 12 Ohio St. 231. To same effect as regards the words "and does not wish to retract," Hughes v. Lane, 11 Ill. 123; Chauvin v. Wagner, 13 Mo. 531.

2. Pratt v. Battels, 28 Vt. 685; Dennis v. Tarpenny, 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 371; Garrett v. Moss, 22 Ill. 363; McMullin v. Eagan, 21 W. Va. 233; Leftwich v. Neal, 7 W. Va. 569; Bartlett v. Fleming, 3 W. Va. 163; Bagby v. Emberson, 79 Mo. 139; Louden v. Blythe, 27 Pa. St. 22; Bateman's Petition, 11 R. I. 585; Henderson v. Rice, 1 Coldw. (Tenn.) 223; Laird v. Scott, 5 Heisk. (Tenn.) 314; Wright v. Duffield, 2 Baxt. (Tenn.) 218; Blackburn v. Pennington, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 217; Gill v. Fauntleroy, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 177; Tubbs v. Gatewood, 26 Ark. 128; Stillwell v. Adams, 29 Ark. 346; Chaffe v. Oliver, 39 Ark. 531; Little v. Dodge, 32 Ark. 453; Bernard v. Elder, 50 Miss. 336; Jones v. Lewis, 8 Ired. L. (N. Car.) 70; Belcher v. Weaver, 46 Tex. 293; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 267.

ress.<sup>1</sup> Where the statute requires an express relinquishment of dower, the omission to so insert it is a fatal defect.<sup>2</sup>

11. Divorce—Abandonment.—A woman who has been divorced a vinculo is a feme sole and may make a conveyance of her property.<sup>3</sup> Where a husband has abandoned his wife, and a pre-

The word "understandingly" is equivalent to "freely" and "voluntarily." Anderson v. Bewley, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 29; Moorman v. Board, etc., 11 Bush (Ky.) 135; Smith v. Elliott, 39 Tex. 201. See Battin v. Bigelow, 1 Pet. C. C. 452.

"Their voluntary act and deed" held not a fatal defect. Brown v. Farran, 3 Ohio, 140.

The omission of the word "freely" held not to be a fatal defect. Merriam v. Harsen, 2 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 232. See Allen v. Lenoir, 53 Miss. 321.

"Freely and of her own accord" is equivalent to "freely as her voluntary act and deed." Dundas v. Hitchcock, 12 How. (U. S.) 256.

"Without any bribe, threat, or compulsion," equivalent to "willingly." Belcher v. Weaver, 46 Tex. 293; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 267.

"Desired" to acknowledge is not equivalent to "willingly executed." Bartlett v. Fleming, 3 W. Va. 163.

"In due form" not equivalent to "voluntarily." Lucas v. Cobbs, 1 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 228.

Omission of words "ill usage" in statutory form is fatal. Hawkins v. Burress, 1 H. & J. (Md.) 513.

If the certificate does not show that she executed the deed "without compulsion or undue influence of her husband," the deed is void. Chaffe v. Oliver, 39 Ark. 531.

Voluntary Appearance.—It is not essential that the officer's certificate show that she comes voluntarily. Mickel v. Gardner, 41 Ark. 491.

1. Eadie v. Slimmon, 26 N. Y. 9; Motes v. Carter, 73 Ala. 553; Currie v. Kerr, 11 Lea (Tenn.), 138; Kocourek v. Marak, 54 Tex. 201; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 623; Bagby v. Emberson, 79 Mo. 139; Marston v. Brittenham, 76 Ill. 611; Tapley v. Tapley, 10 Minn. 448; Wamboole v. Foote, 2 Dak. 1; Central Bank v. Copeland, 18 Md. 305; Little v. Dodge, 32 Ark. 453.

A suit was brought to foreclose a mortgage made by husband and wife of land, a part of which belonged to him and a part to her. Her answer sets up that he obtained her signature by physical violence, and that he and the officer who took her acknowledgment, both of whom died before her answer was filed, represented to her that the mortgage did not cover her land. Held, that her testimony is not sufficient to impeach the mortgage. Ins. Co. v. Nelson, 103 U. S. 544.

Where a note and mortgage by husband and wife, and the certificate of acknowledgment of the mortgage by both, are perfectly fair and regular on their face, a defence against them by the wife on the ground that they were executed by her under undue influence and coercion on the part of the husband, and that she never in fact acknowledged the mortgage, can be sustained only upon perfectly clear, convincing and satisfactory evidence; in general, the unsupported testimony of the wife alone, to contradict the certificate, will not be regarded as sufficient. Smith v. Allis, 52 Wis. 337.

When the testimony relied on to impeach the certificate is based on the fraud and duress of the husband in procuring the wife's signature, and the evidence of such fraud and duress proceeds from the husband and wife only, their credibility is affected by their interest; and when (as in this case) the testimony relates exclusively to occurrences between themselves, in the privacy of domestic life, and is uncorroborated by any other evidence, while the testimony is full and positive that the wife was informed of the contents of the conveyance, and that she voluntarily executed and acknowledged it, the evidence is not sufficient to overcome the certificate. Smith v. McGuire, 67 Ala. 34.

A threat to arrest the husband, who has committed a crime, is not duress as regards the wife. Compton v. Bunker Hill Bank, 96 Ill. 301; s. c., 36 Am. Rep. 147. A threat by the husband to poison himself does not constitute duress. Wright v. Remington, 41 N. J. L. 48; s. c., 32 Am. Rep. 180. Compare Eadie v. Slimmon, 26 N. Y. 9.

The word "restraint" held equivalent to "constraint." Edmonson v. Harris, 2 Tenn. Ch. 153.

2. Becker v. Quigg, 54 Ill. 390; Lindley v. Smith, 46 Ill. 524; Thomas v. Meier, 18 Mo. 573.

3. Piper v. May, 51 Ind. 283. See Rosenthal v. Mayhugh, 33 Ohio St. 155.

Where a decree of divorce obtained by a married woman is void, but she assumption of his death exists, and she has no other means of support than a house and lot on which they resided before such abandonment, she may convey the property as a feme sole.<sup>1</sup>

ACKNOWLEDGMENT—ACQUAINTED.

12. Legacy.—A release executed by a married woman of a legacy charged upon land cannot be recorded unless it be separately acknowledged by her.<sup>2</sup>

13. By Agent—Attorney.—When a deed is acknowledged by an agent or attorney, in order to bind the principal it must be made in his name. The signing must be expressed to be his act, done by his agent or attorney. Consequently, both the names of the principal and agent must, substantially, appear in the execution of the deed, showing not only that the grant and seal were those of the principal, but by whom these acts were done. If the deed be the deed of the attorney,—as, for instance, if by it he grants, or he sets his seal, and the like,—it is void as to the principal.<sup>3</sup>

14. By Order of Court.—When the legal title to land in trust was cast by descent upon a married woman, and the law required that a deed executed by her should be acknowledged as executed voluntarily, and she refused so to acknowledge it, the court compelled her by decree.<sup>4</sup>

ACQUAINTED.—When used in a certificate means to have a substantial knowledge of the subject-matter of the paper to which the certificate is affixed.<sup>5</sup>

sumes her maiden name, lives apart from her husband, and continuously acts and represents herself as a feme sole, a deed of conveyance of her separate real estate, made and acknowledged by her as an unmarried woman, is valid and binding. Reis v. Lawrence, 63 Cal. 129; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 83.

1. Rosenthal v. Mayhugh, 33 Ohio St. 155.

Married Woman living as Feme Sole.—Where married woman has lived in United States separate and apart from her husband for more than 20 years, he never having been in the United States, and during such time she has had no relations with him, but has been living part of the time under her maiden name, and part of the time under the name and as the wife of a man with whom she has formed a meretricious connection, and she executed a deed as a feme sole of certain of her separate property acquired in the United States, she will not be permitted to fall back upon her marriage relation, and avoid her deed on the ground that the certificate of the notary does not recite that she was examined "separate and apart" from her husband: and such deed, executed as a feme sole, will be held valid. Hand v. Hand, 8 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 705.

2. Powell's Appeal, 98 Pa. St. 403. See French v. Strumberg, 52 Tex. 92.

3. 3 Washburne Real Prop. (4th Ed.) 277; Evans v. Wells, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 325; Elwel v. Shaw, 16 Mass. 42; Fowler v. Shearer, 7 Mass. 14; Brinley v. Shaw, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 337; Mussey v. Scott, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 215; Shanks v. Lancaster, 5 Gratt. (Va.) 110; Hackney v. Butts, 41 Ark. 394; McDonald v. Bear River, etc., Co., 13 Cal. 235; Clarke v. Courtney, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 319.

Venus.—"Be it known that on this thirtieth day of June, A.D. 1856, personally came before me James O. Gill, by his attorney in fact, Robert Whitacre, the signer and sealer of the foregoing deed, and acknowledged the same to be his own free act and deed." Held, that this certificate is, in effect, that Whitacre appeared before the acknowledging officer as attorney in fact for Gill, and acknowledged that the deed executed by him as such attorney was Gill's free act and deed, and is a sufficient acknowledgment of Gill's deed. Bigelow v. Livingston, 28 Minn. 31.

4. Perry on Trusts, § 48, citing Dundas v. Biddle, 2 Pa. St. 160.

Authorities for Acknowledgment.—Washburne Real Prop.; Tiedeman on Real Prop.; Martindale Convey.; Boone Real Prop.; Proffatt on Notaries; Cooley's Const. Lim.

5. Bohan v. Casey, 5 Mo. App. 101.

ACQUIESCED—ACQUIRED—ACQUITTAL.

ACQUIESCED.—This word denotes a mere submission to, and not approbation of or assent to, the thing acquiesced in.<sup>1</sup>

ACQUIESCENCE. See ESTOPPEL.

ACQUIRED.—In the law of descent the word includes all lands that came in any other way than by gift, devise, or descent from a parent or ancestor of a parent.<sup>2</sup>

In a California statute prohibiting the impairing of "rights acquired" under provision which the act repealed, the right to resort to an arbitrary presumption of detriment in an action for the conversion of personal property, previous to the trial at which the presumption would have arisen, was held not to be a "right acquired" within the meaning of the act.<sup>3</sup>

ACQUITTAL.—Where the accused was arraigned, a jury impanelled and sworn, and the cause given them in charge, no objection being interposed by the accused to the indictment or other proceedings, it was held that the dismissal of the indictment for an alleged insufficiency, which did not really exist, operated as an acquittal of the defendant.<sup>4</sup>

ACQUITTANCE.—This word denotes a release or written discharge of a sum of money or debt due; usually in the form of a receipt.<sup>5</sup>

Cf. Ætna Fire Insurance Co. v. Tyter, 16 Wendt. (N. Y.) 385.

Personally acquainted with.—To be "personally acquainted with" and to "know personally" are equivalent phrases. Personal knowledge to the extent certified necessarily included the personal identity of the officers as well as the incumbency of their offices. A defect of such knowledge as to either point would be inconsistent with the language used, and falsify the certificate. Kelly v. Calhoun, 5 Otto (U. S.) 710.

1. Allen v. McKeen, 1 Sumner, 276. In order to negative submission to, or acquiescence in an interruption to twenty years' enjoyment of a light, it is not necessary that the party interrupted shall have brought an action or suit, or taken any active steps to remove the obstruction: it is enough to show that he has in a reasonable manner communicated to the party causing the interruption that he does not really submit to or acquiesce in it. Glover v. Coleman, L. R. 10 C. P. 108.

2. Re Miller's Wills, 2 Lea (Tenn.), 54.

3. Tully v. Tranor, 53 Cal. 274.

Otherwise acquired.—In the Tennessee statute of descents, where the words used are "actually purchased, or otherwise acquired," the last words have a limited meaning, as opposed to purchase by the actual payment of money or consideration, and do not include lands acquired by descent. Roberts v. Jackson, 4 Yerg. (Tenn.) 308; Hoover v. Gregory, 10 Yerg. (Tenn.) 444.

4. Lee v. State, 26 Ark. 260. "Where the jury were discharged against the consent of the defendants (in a case of misdemeanor only) because the district-attorney was not prepared with evidence to support the prosecution, such a discharge was equivalent to an acquittal, and the defendants could never be brought to trial again for the same offence." People v. Barrett & Ward, 2 Cain's Cases (N. Y.), 304. So when the accused in a criminal prosecution is put upon trial, on a valid indictment, before a legal jury, and the jury is discharged by the court without good cause, and without the consent of the defendant, he has incurred the first peril, and the discharge of the jury is equivalent to an acquittal. State v. Walker, 26 Ind. 346. Cf. Klock v. People, Parker's Crim. Rep. (N. Y.) 676; Com. v. Cook et al., 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 777; Mounts v. State, 14 Ohio, 295.

5. "A discharge, acquittance, or release—call it what you will—is as valid without a seal as with it." Milliken et al. v. Brown, 1 S. & R. (Pa.) 398.

In Statute.—"The word acquittance, although perhaps not, strictly speaking, synonymous with receipt, includes it."

ACQUITTED.—This word is a word of technical import, and must be understood in its technical sense, to wit, an acquittal on trial by a jury.<sup>1</sup>

ACROSS.—This word is used in its common acceptation, from one side to the other, unless there is evidence that the parties intended to use it in a different sense.<sup>2</sup>

ACT.—In the legal sense this word may be used to signify the result of a public deliberation. Also a decree, edict, law, judgment, resolve, award, determination. When a bill is duly passed by a legislative body it becomes an act of that body; that is, a thing done.<sup>3</sup>

State v. Shelters, 51 Vt. 102, where it was held that a writing in the common form of a receipt for money paid is an acquittance within the East. Stats. s. 1, c. 114, providing for the punishment of those who alter, forge, or counterfeit acquittances. The document called a "clearance" issued by friendly societies which purports to be a certificate that the member receiving it has paid all dues and demands up to a certain date is not an "acquittance or receipt for money" within s. 23 of 24 and 25 Vict. c. 98. Reg. v. French, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 217. A scrip certificate in a railway company is not an "accountable receipt" nor an "acquittance or receipt" within the meaning of the 11 Geo. 4 and 1 Will. 4, c. 66, s. 10; Clark v. Newsam, 1 Ex. 130; cf. West's Case, 1 Den. C. C. 258. To a bill of parcels of the following tenor, viz., "Mr. J. L. bought of E. & C.—the above charged to G. C.," the purchaser, J. L., added these words: "By order E. & C.," it was held that this addition amounted to an acquittance of J. L. and was a forgery within the statute of 1804, c. 620, § 1; Com. v. Ladd, 15 Mass. 526.

Receipt and Acquittance.—A memorandum importing that one had paid a sum to another, but not importing any acknowledgment from that other of his having received it, is not such a receipt and acquittance as the statute 2 G. 2, c. 25, § 1, makes it capital to forge and utter. R. v. Harvey, 1 Russ. & Ry. 227.

1. Thomas v. De Graffenreid, 2 N. & M'C. (S. Car.) 143. "Saying that the plaintiff was 'discharged' is not sufficient; it is not equal to the word 'acquitted,' which has a definite meaning. Where the word 'acquitted' is used, it must be understood in the legal sense, namely, by a jury on the trial." Morgan v. Hughes, 2 Term Rep. 225, 231. "But in the case now under consideration, it is stated that he was 'acquitted by the grand jury's finding no bill.' The manner of acquittal is set down in such a way as to show that it was not intended to be used in its technical sense. And although when a technical word is used without any qualification the court will give it its technical meaning; yet, when it is accompanied with such qualification as shows that it was intended to be understood in a different sense, it will be taken with such qualification. And although the declaration may not be drawn in the most technical form, I do not know that the facts could have been set out with more precision. If it had been 'discharged' instead of 'acquitted,' it is admitted that it would have been sufficient. And in common parlance I think 'acquitted' is as clearly expressive of the idea intended to be conveyed as 'discharged.'" Teague v. Wilks, 3 M'C. (S. Car.) 461.

2. Under a grant of a right of way, across the plaintiff's lot of land, the grantee has not a right to enter at one place, go partly across, and then come out at another place on the same side of the lot. Comstock v. Van Deuten, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 163.

In the deed conveying a lot of land, the grantor made the following reservation: "And the said A. hereby reserves to himself the right of passing and re-passing with teams in the most convenient place across the land conveyed." Held, that the term "across" did not necessarily confine the right of way to a transverse one, over the lot.

The contract declared upon, and proved by the memorandum produced, was that the horses were to run four miles "across a country." That is an expression of which we cannot take judicial notice. The meaning of that expression was a question for the jury, to be decided by them upon the evidence before them. The evidence showed that by this expression the rider is excluded from riding through an open gate. Evans v. Pratt, 3 M. & G. 759, 762.

3. Chumatero v. Potts, 2 Montana, 284.

ACT OF GOD. See ACCIDENT; CONTRACT.

1. From what Duties a Person is excused by Act of God.—If a man be prevented by the "Act of God" from the performance of a duty imposed by common law or by statute, he is excused.<sup>1</sup> A common carrier is an insurer of the goods which he carries, but he

An act in legislation is a statute or law made by a legislative body. People v. Tephaine, 3 Parker's Cr. R. 244.

Judicial Act.—"A judicial act is an act performed by a court touching the rights of parties or property brought before it by voluntary appearance, or by the prior action of ministerial officers; in short, by ministerial acts." Flournoy v. Jeffersonville, 17 Ind. 173.

Ministerial Act.—"A ministerial act may be defined to be one which a person performs in a given state of facts, in a prescribed manner, in obedience to the mandate of legal authority, without regard to, or the exercise of, his own judgment upon the propriety of the act being done." Ibid.

Act done, in Lease.—A proviso in a lease giving power of re-entry if the lessee "shall do or cause to be done any act, matter, or thing contrary to and in breach of any of the covenants," does not apply to a breach of the covenant to repair, the omission to repair not being an act done within the meaning of the proviso. Doe v. Stevens, 3 B. & Ad. 299.

Act of the Congress.—The words "act of the Congress" are as strong and unequivocal as "statute of the Congress." U. S. v. Smith, 2 Mason, 143.

Act or Intention, in Insurance Policy.—The words "act" and "intention" mean the same as the word "act" alone, for act implies intention. Chapman v. Republic Life Ins. Co., 6 Biss. 238. The condition of a policy of insurance was that it should be void in case the insured should "die by his own hand or act, voluntary or otherwise;" it was held that this did not cover the case of a death purely accidental from an overdose of poison. Penfold v. Universal Life Ins. Co., 85 N. Y. 317.

Act in his Official Capacity.—A deputy sheriff is entitled, in respect to liabilities incurred by the doing of an act in his official capacity, to the protection of the short statute of limitations contained in the Code. The taking by a deputy sheriff of property, and the sale of that property under execution, are "acts in his official capacity," and he is entitled to the protection given by the Code. Cumming v. Brown, 43 N. Y. 514.

Suffer any Act.—Under a settlement providing a forfeiture when the life tenant "should do or suffer any act" whereby the dividends should become payable to another person, the court said: "When the words 'shall do or suffer any act' are used, they are to be understood as meaning to endure or sustain, and to apply to something being done in invitum." Roffey v. Bent, L. R. 3 Eq. Cas. 759.

In Pursuance of the Act.—A thing is to be considered to be done in pursuance of the act when the person who does it is acting honestly and bona fide, either under the powers which the act gives, or in discharge of the duties which it imposes. Smith v. Shaw, 10 B. & C. 284; Thomas v. Stephenson, 2 El. & Bl. 108.

Public Act.—All acts for regulating the taking of fish are public statutes, and the court must ex officio take notice of them. Burnham v. Webster, 5 Mass. 266. A patent for land granted by a sister State is one of those public acts to which every other State is bound to give full faith and credit, under the Constitution of the United States. Lassly v. Fontaine, 4 Hen. & M. 146. If a statute makes it felony to steal the notes of any particular incorporated bank, the statute by which that bank was incorporated thereby becomes a public statute. U. S. v. Porte, 1 Cranch C. C. 369. To constitute a statute a public act, it is not necessary that it should be equally applicable to all parts of the State. It is sufficient if it extends to all persons within the territorial limits described in the statute. Pierce v. Kimball, 9 Me. 54. The charter of a village corporation is a public law, and need not be recited in pleading, as the court will take judicial notice thereof. Village of Winooski v. Gokey, 49 Vt. 282.

Passing of the Act.—The time defined by the words "passing of the Bankruptcy act, 1861," is the time when the act of 1861 received the royal assent, and not the time when it came into operation. In re Dalzell, L. R. 2 Ch. Div. 9; Eliot v. Cranston, 10 Rh. I. 88.

Act in all my Business.—A power of attorney "to act in all my business, in all concerns, as if I was present myself and to stand good in law in all my land and other business," gives no power to sell land. Ashley v. Bird, 14 Am. Dec. 313.

1. Wear Commissioners v. Adamson, 1 Q. B. D. 548.

is not responsible for a loss caused by an "Act of God."<sup>1</sup> It is important, therefore, to know exactly what is meant by the term "act of God."

2. Definition.—A loss is said to be caused by an act of God when it results immediately from a natural cause, without the intervention of man, and could not have been prevented by the exercise of prudence, diligence, and care, and the use of those appliances which the situation of the party renders it reasonable that he should employ.

3. The loss must result from a natural cause, such as an extraordinary flood,<sup>2</sup> or a storm of unusual and extraordinary violence,<sup>3</sup> or a

1. Riley v. Horne, 5 Bing. 220; Elliott v. Rossell, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) Rep. 1.

Ordinarily, when a man contracts absolutely to do a certain thing, he is not excused by an event which renders the performance impossible. Jemison v. McDaniel, 25 Miss. 83. "Where it is an answer to an alleged breach of contract that the thing done or left undone was so by the act of God, what is meant is that it was not within the contract. Baily v. De Crespigny, L. R. 4 Q. B. 185. This . . . well shows the modern tendency . . . to reduce all the rules on this subject to rules of construction. By the modern understanding of the law, we are not bound to seek for a general definition of 'the act of God,' or vis major, but only to ascertain what kind of events were within the contemplation of the parties, including in the term 'event' an existing but unascertained state of facts. This is yet more apparent if one attempts to frame any definition of the term 'act of God.' It does not include every inevitable accident; contrary winds, for example, are not within the meaning of the term in a charter-party. Nor is the reason far to seek: the risk of contrary winds, though inevitable, is one of the ordinary risks which the parties must be understood to have before them and to take upon them in making such a contract." Pollock on Contracts, p. 366. If this notion of the "act of God" is borne in mind, it may serve to explain some cases which would otherwise appear anomalous.

Some contracts always contain express or implied conditions that if performance be rendered impossible by certain specified events the contract shall be discharged. Thus contracts whose performance depends upon the continued existence of a specified thing are discharged by the destruction of the thing from no default of either party. Taylor v. Caldwell, 3 B. & S. 826; Walker v. Tucker, 70 Ill. 527; Dewey v. School Dist. 19 Am. L. Reg. N. S. 550. and note; Dexter v. Norton, 47 N. Y. 62. In like manner a contract whose performance depends upon the personal capacity of the parties is discharged by their death or incapacitating illness. Hall v. Wright, E. B. & E. (96 E. C. L. R.) 793; Robinson v. Davison, L. R. 6 Ex. 269; Farrow v. Wilson, L. R. 4 C. P. 744; Scully v. Kirkpatrick, 79 Pa. St. 324; Allen v. Baker, 86 N. Car. 91; Siler v. Gray, 86 N. Car. 566.

2. International, etc., R. Co. v. Halloren, 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 343; s. c., 53 Tex. 46; Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Sulphur Springs, etc., Dist., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 166; s. c., 96 Pa. St. 65; Gates v. Southern Minn. R. Co., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 237; s. c., 28 Minn. 110; Sheldon v. Sherman, 42 N. Y. 484; Reed v. Spaulding, 30 N. Y. 630; Lipford v. Railroad Co., 7 Rich. (S. Car.) 409; Wallace v. Clayton, 42 Ga. 443; Lovering v. Buck Mt. Coal Co., 54 Pa. St. 291; Bell v. McClintock, 9 Watts (Pa.), 119; Lehigh Br. Co. v. Lehigh, etc., Co., 4 Rawle (Pa.), 9; Bietry v. New Orleans, 22 La. Ann. 149; Ill. Cent. R. Co. v. Bethel, 11 Ill. App. 17; China v. Southwick, 12 Me. 238; Morris Canal Co. v. Ryerson, 27 N. J. L. 457; Shrewsbury v. Smith, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 177; Lapham v. Curtis, 5 Vt. 371; Higgins v. Chesapeake, etc., Co., 3 Harr. (Del.) 411; Tenny v. Miner's Ditch Co., 7 Cal. 335; Hoffman v. Tuolumne W. Co., 10 Cal. 413; Wolf v. St. Louis, etc., Co., 10 Cal. 541; Richardson v. Kier, 34 Cal. 63; Campbell v. Bear River Co., 35 Cal. 679; Chidester v. Consolidated D. Co., 59 Cal. 197; Nicholls v. Marsland, L. R. 2 Ex. 1; s. c., L. R. 10 Ex. 255. It should be carefully observed that floods may be none the less extraordinary in their character because several happen in rapid succession of equal violence. This is merely evidence for the jury that the particular flood is not extraordinary, but is of a kind more or less likely to occur in the region. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Gilliland, 56 Pa. St. 445.

3. A storm of unusual and extraordinary violence. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. v.

severe frost,<sup>1</sup> or drought,<sup>2</sup> a sudden gust of wind or tempest,<sup>3</sup> lightning, earthquake, sudden death, or illness.<sup>4</sup>

4. The natural cause must be the immediate<sup>5</sup> and not the remote

Anderson, 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 407; s. c., 94 Pa. St. 351; Livezey v. Philadelphia, 64 Pa. St. 106. A storm greater and more destructive than had been experienced within forty years. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Davis, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 261; Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. King, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 269; Briddon v. Great Northern R. Co., 28 L. J. Ex. 51; Ballentine v. North Mo. R. Co., 40 Mo. 491; Fenwick v. Schmaltz, L. R. 3 C. P. 313.

1. The freezing of a canal. Bowman v. Teal, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 306; Parsons v. Hardy, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 215; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 521; Allen v. Mercantile M. Ins. Co., 44 N. Y. 437; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 700; Wing v. N. Y., etc., R. Co., 1 Hilt. (N. Y.) 235; contra, O'Connor v. Foster, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 418; Cooper v. Young, 22 Ga. 272; McGrau v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 18 W. Va. 361; s. c., 9 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 188; Engster v. West, 35 La. Ann. 119; s. c., 48 Am. Rep. 232; Field on Dam., § 386.

Or river. Harris v. Rand, 4 N. H. 259; s. c., 17 Am. Dec. 421; Lowe v. Moss, 12 Ill. 477; West v. Berlin, 3 Iowa. 532; Worth v. Edmunds, 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 40; Vail v. Pacific R. Co., 63 Mo. 230; contra, Engster v. West, 35 La. Ann. 119; s. c., 48 Am. Rep. 232. The freezing of goods in transit where there is no negligence on the part of the carrier. Vail v. Pacific R. Co., 63 Mo. 230; McGrau v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 9 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 188; s. c., 18 W. Va. 361; Wolf v. Am. Ex. Co., 43 Mo. 422; Wing v. N. Y., etc., R. Co., 1 Hilt. (N. Y.) 235; Swetland v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 102 Mass. 276.

2. Ward v. Vance, 93 Pa. St. 499.

3. The Lady Pike, 2 Biss. (U. S.) 141; Gillott v. Ellis, 11 Ill. 579; Nugent v. Smith, L. R. 1 C. P. 423; s. c., 14 Alb. L. J. 164. Where the plaintiff was injured by the fall of a liberty pole caused by a gale of wind, it was held that no one was responsible to him. Allegheny v. Zimmerman, 95 Pa. St. 287; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 649. It has also been held that a failure of the wind causing a vessel to run aground and sink was an "act of God." Colt v. McMeen, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 159; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 200.

4. Story Bail, § 25; Friend v. Wood, 6 Grattan (Va.), 195; McCall v. Brock, 5 Strob. (S. Car.) 119. Where the principal in a recognizance to appear at court and answer to an indictment was thrown from a horse and disabled, it was held that his illness so caused was an act of God, which excused him from appearing. People v. Tubbs, 37 N. Y. 586. As to sickness or death preventing performance of contract, see ante. Death by drowning. Trew v. Railroad Pass. Ins. Co., 6 Hurl. & N. 839.

5. Coosa River S. B. Co. v. Barclay, 30 Ala. 120; Railroad Co. v. Reeves, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 176; Michaels v. N. Y., etc., R. Co., 30 N. Y. 564; Sprowl v. Kellar, 4 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 382; Steele v. McTyler, 31 Ala. 667; s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 516.

In Smith v. Sheppard (Abbot on Ship, pt. 3, ch. 4, § 1), a vessel was lost by striking a floating mast attached to a vessel which had been sunk by getting on a bank that had suddenly and unexpectedly been made dangerous by an extraordinary flood. Coming in contact with the mast attached to the sunken ship, the defendant's vessel was forced by it upon the bank, altered suddenly by the flood, and was wrecked. The flood which changed the bank was the ultimate cause of the misfortune, but it was held to be too remote. The immediate cause of the loss was the coming in collision with a floating mast which someone had attached to the sunken vessel. To the same effect see McArthur v. Sears, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 190; Merritt v. Earle, 31 Barb. 38; s. c., 29 N. Y. 115; Trent & Mersey Nav. Co. v. Wood, 4 Dougl. 290; Hays v. Kennedy, 41 Pa. St. 378; McHenry v. Phila., etc., R. Co., 4 Harr. (Del.) 448; Chicago R. Co. v. Shea, 66 Ill. 471.

Running on a sand-bar recently formed. Friend v. Woods, 6 Gratt. (Va.) 189.

On the other hand, act of God is, according to some authorities, an occurrence which is beyond the bounds of human ability to prevent, and is therefore to be considered as a phrase tantamount to "inevitable accident." Jones on Bailments, 104-5; Story on Bail, 489. Thus the striking of a vessel upon a rock unknown to the master—Williams v. Grant, 1 Conn. 437; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 255—or the running upon an unknown snag in a river, while following the usual course of navigation, have both been held to excuse the carrier from responsibility. Smyrl v. Niolon, 2 Bailey (S. Car.), 421; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 146; John- cause; and it must be free from the intervention of any human agency.<sup>1</sup>

5. Negligence.—It follows that if a man's negligence has in any way contributed to the injury which has been brought about, he will not be excused.<sup>2</sup> But if the negligence is only the remote son v. Friar, 4 Verg. (Tenn.) 48; s. c., 26 Am. Dec. 215; Faulkner v. Wright, 1 Rice (S. Car.), 108; Gordon v. Buchanan, 5 Verg. (Tenn.) 71; Turney v. Wilson, 7 Id. 340; Collier v. Valentine, 11 Mo. 299; s. c., 49 Am. Dec. 81; Fish v. Chapman, 2 Ga. 349; Neal v. Sanderson, 2 Sm. & Mar. (Miss.) 572; s. c., 41 Am. Dec. 609; Walpole v. Bridges, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 222.

It must be borne in mind that charters often contain clauses exempting the carrier from responsibility for losses caused by the "perils of the sea," or "the perils of navigation." The phrases are not synonymous with act of God, but have a broader meaning and embrace a larger variety of causes. Ferguson v. Brown, 12 Md. 9; Christenson v. Am. Ex. Co., 15 Minn. 270; Bouvier's Law Dict.; Brown's Law Dict. 2d Ed.; 41 Am. Dec. 281, note; Story on Bailments, § 512.

See Reg. v. Bennett, Bell C. C. 1, where fireworks kept by the prisoner either accidentally or through the negligence of his servants exploded, and, setting fire to a neighboring house, caused a person's death. Held, that the illegal act of the prisoner in keeping the fireworks was too remotely connected with the death to support an indictment for manslaughter.

1. Steele v. McTyer, 31 Ala. 667; s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 516; Transportation Co. v. Tiers, 4 Zab. (N. J.) 697; s. c., 64 Am. Dec. 304; Dunson v. N. Y., etc., R. Co., 3 Lans. (N. Y.) 265; Michaels v. N. Y., etc., R. Co., 30 N. Y. 564; Reed v. Spaulding, 30 N. Y. 630; McArthur v. Sears, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 190; Campbell v. Moore, Harp. (S. C.) 468; Levezey v. Phila., 64 Pa. St. 106; Phila., etc., R. Co. v. Anderson, 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 407; s. c., 94 Pa. St. 351; Polock v. Pioche, 35 Cal. 416. Contra: Railroad Co. v. Reeves, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 176; Morrison v. Davis, 20 Pa. St. 171; Denny v. N. Y., etc., R. Co., 11 Gray (Mass.), 481.

A loss arising from an accidental fire is not caused by an act of God unless the fire was started by lightning or some other superhuman agency. Forward v. Pittard, 1 Term R. 27; Miller v. Steam Nav. Co., 10 N. Y. 431.

A loss caused by the great fire in Chicago did not result from the act of God. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Sawyer, 69 Ill.

285; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 613; Merchants' Des. Co. v. Smith, 76 Ill. 542; Thoroughgood v. Marsh, 1 Cowen (N. Y.) 105; Hollister v. Nowlen, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 234; Rockingham, etc., Ins. Co. v. Boscher, 39 Me. 253; Parker v. Flagg, 26 Me. 291; Hale v. N. J., etc., Co., 15 Conn. 539; Cox v. Peterson, 30 Ala. 608; Hunt v. Morris, 6 Mart. (La.) 676; Gilmore v. Carman, 1 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 279; Chevallier v. Straham, 2 Texas, 115; Singleton v. Hilliard, 1 Strob. (S. Car.) 203; Patton v. McGrath, Dudley (S. Car.), 159; Graff v. Bloomer, 9 Pa. St. 114; Garrison v. Memphis Ins. Co., 19 How. (U. S.) 315; Lyon v. Meils, 6 How. (U. S.) 419; Hall v. Railroad Cos., 13 Wall. (U. S.) 372; Grille v. General S. Co., L. R. 1 C. P. 600; Morewood v. Pollock, 1 El. & B. 743; Hyde v. Trent, etc., Co., 5 Term R. 389.

But where a fire was driven into a town from burning woods by a tornado and destroyed a lot of freight cars, the loss did result from an act of God. P. R. Co. v. Fries, 87 Pa. St. 234. Nor is the explosion of a steam boiler an act of God. McCall v. Brock, 5 Strob. (S. Car.) 119; Buckley v. Naumkeag, etc., Co., 24 How. (U. S.) 386; Caldwell v. N. J. S. Co., 56 Barb. 425; s. c., 47 N. Y. 282; The Edwin, 1 Sprague (U. S.), 477; Hill v. Sturgeon, 28 Mo. 323.

2. Thus, where the master of a vessel, without reasonable necessity, deviated from his course, it was held to be such negligence as to render the shipowners liable for a loss arising from the "dangers of the sea." Crosby v. Fitch, 12 Conn. 410; Pruitt v. Railroad Co., 62 Mo. 527; Bowman v. Teall, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 306; Swetland v. B. & A. R., 102 Mass. 276; Wing v. N. Y. & E. R., 1 Hilt. (N. Y.) 235; McPadden v. Railroad Co., 44 N. Y. 478; Heazle v. Railroad Co., 76 Ill. 501; Railroad Co. v. Reeves, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 176; Richards v. Gilbert, 5 Day (Conn.), 415; Sherman v. Wells, 28 Barb. (N. Y.) 403; Fergusson v. Brent, 12 Md. 9; Sprowl v. Kellar, 4 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 382; Hill v. Sturgeon, 28 Mo. 323.

What such negligence must amount to in order to create liability differs in every case. It is, however, clear that if it be in direct casual connection with the in-cause of the accident, or if the act alleged to amount to negligence only consists of a failure to provide full and efficient safeguards against violent and extraordinary winds, storms, rains, etc., this will not be held to constitute grounds of liability.<sup>1</sup> The carrier is not bound to show that it was absolutely impossible, under any circumstances, to prevent the loss; it is sufficient if he proves that by no reasonable precaution under the circumstances could it have been prevented.<sup>2</sup> jury, and a violation of such reasonable care as a cautious and prudent man would take to protect his property against loss by ordinary storm, wind, rain, etc., then the person who is guilty of such negligence will be liable for the harm done. Converse v. Brainerd, 27 Conn. 607; Amentrout v. Railroad Co., 1 Mo. App. 158; Backhouse v. Sneed, 1 Murphy (N. C.), 173; Bailiffs of Romney Marsh v. Trinity House, L. R. 5 Exch. 208; Wing v. N. Y. & E. R., 1 Hilton (N. Y.), 235; N. J. Steamboat Co. v. Tiers, 4 Zab. (N. J.) 697; Seigel v. Eisen, 41 Cal. 109; Vail v. Railroad Co., 63 Mo. 230; Condict v. Railroad Co., 54 N. Y. 500; Donny v. Railroad Co., 13 Gray (Mass.), 481; Penn. R. Co. v. Mitchell, 4 Weekly Notes of Cases (Phila.), 3; Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. David, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 261; Wolf v. Am. Ex. Co., 43 Mo. 422; Klauber v. Am. Ex. Co., 21 Wis. 21.

Where goods on board a vessel were injured by the bursting of a pipe which had frozen, it was held that although a hard frost may be considered an act of God, yet the master was bound to guard against the known effects of frost on water-pipes, and was therefore negligent. Siordet v. Hall, 4 Bing. 607.

A man is negligent if he does not take precautions against such rises or high water in a stream as are usual and ordinary, and reasonably anticipated at particular periods of the year. Dorman v. Ames, 12 Minn. 451.

1. If the act of God was of such an overwhelming and destructive character as by its own force, and independently of the particular negligence alleged or shown, to produce the injury, there would be no liability though there was some negligence on the part of the carrier. To create liability, it must have required the combined effect of the act of God and the concurring negligence of the party to produce the injury. Balt., etc., R. Co. v. Sulphur Springs, etc., Dist., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 166; s. c., 96 Pa. St. 65.

Though in default, the carrier may show that the loss would have happened without such default. Collier v. Valentine, 11 Mo. 299; s. c., 49 Am. Dec. 81.

Where a canal boat was delayed on account of the lameness of a horse, and an extraordinary flood caught the boat and damaged the cargo, it was held that the use of the lame horse could not be considered as the proximate cause of the loss, and the carrier was excused. Morrison v. Davis, 20 Pa. St. 171; 57 Am. Dec. 695.

2. In the recent case of Nugent v. Smith, L. R. 1 C. P. D. 19, 423, the defendant, a common carrier by sea, received from the plaintiff a mare to be carried from London to Aberdeen. In the course of the voyage, the ship encountered rough weather, and the mare received such injuries that she died. The jury found that the injuries were caused partly by more than ordinary bad weather, and partly by the violent struggling of the mare herself, without any negligence on the part of the defendant's servants. The Court of Common Pleas held that the defendant was liable, and said that in order to constitute an act of God "the damage or loss in question must have been caused directly and exclusively by such a direct and violent and sudden and irresistible act of nature as the defendant could not by any amount of ability foresee would happen; or, if he could foresee that it would happen, could not by any amount of care and skill resist so as to prevent its effect." This ruling was reversed by the Court of Appeals. "All that can be required of the carrier," said Cockburn, C. J., "is that he shall do all that is reasonably and practically possible to insure the safety of the goods. If he uses all the known means to which prudent and experienced carriers usually have recourse, he does all that can reasonably be required of him; and if, under such circumstances, he is overpowered by storm or other natural agency, he is within the rule which gives immunity from the effects of such vis major as the act of God. I do not think that, because some one may have discovered some more efficient method of securing the goods which has not become generally known, or, because it cannot be proved, that if the skill and ingenuity

ACT OF INSOLVENCY—ACTING—ACTIONS.

ACT OF INSOLVENCY.—As regards banks, it is an act which shows the bank to be insolvent, such as non-payment of its circulating notes, bills of exchange, or certificates of deposit; failure to make good the impairment of capital, or to keep good its reserve: in fact, any act which shows that the bank is unable to meet its liabilities as they mature, or to perform those duties which the law imposes for the purpose of sustaining its credit.<sup>1</sup>

ACTING.—When the word is used in the expression "acting as attorney," it means no more than attending, and does not satisfy a statute which requires the attorney to state that he subscribes as such attorney.<sup>2</sup>

ACTIONS. (See also ABATEMENT; EVIDENCE; JUDGMENT; LIMITATION OF ACTIONS; NEGLIGENCE; PRACTICE; all recognized forms of action under respective heads—ACCOUNT RENDER; ASSUMPSIT; COVENANT; DEBT; DETINUE; REPLEVIN; TRESPASS; TRESPASS ON THE CASE; TROVER; etc., etc.)

- |                                   |  |
|-----------------------------------|--|
| 1. Definition.             | 8. Commencement.                          |
| 2. When Maintainable.      | 9. Consolidation.                         |
| (a) Motive.                | (a) Union of Legal and Equitable Demands. |
| (b) Damages.               | 10. Joinder.                              |
| (c) Proof of Same.         | 11. Splitting.                            |
| (d) Legality.              | (a) Same Security.                        |
| (e) Wrongdoer.             | 12. Cumulation.                           |
| (f) Class.                 | 13. Statutory Actions.                    |
| 3. Right Must be Complete. | 14. Local and Transitory.                 |
| 4. Consent.                | 15. Discontinuance.                       |
| 5. Nudum Pactum.           | (a) Termination.                          |
| 6. Demand.                 |  |
| 7. Appearance.             |  |

1. Definition.—An action is a legal prosecution in an appropriate court by a party complainant against a party defendant to

of engineers or others were directed to the subject something more efficient might not be produced, that the carrier can be made liable."

Where it was sought to hold a railroad company liable for an accident, which occurred by reason of the breaking of a rail occasioned by extreme and intense cold, it was held that this was properly to be esteemed the act of God; and, although it was possible to conceive of rails so manufactured as to withstand any degree of cold, yet that the company could not be expected to supply such rails, and could not be held liable for a failure to do so. McFadden v. Railroad Co., 44 N.Y. 478.

And so where an accident occurred through an embankment being swept away by an unexampled and extraordinary flood, it was held that the railroad company were not bound to provide an embankment sufficient to withstand such a flood. Withers v. North Kent R. Co., 27 L. J. Ex. 417.

See also, to the same general effect, Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Coleman, 28 Mich. 440; Brehm v. Gt. Western R. Co., 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 256; Tyner v. Railroad, 111 Mass. 546; Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Ashcroft, 48 Ala. 15; Stokes v. Railroad, 1 F. & F. 291; Wyborn v. North Kent R. Co., 1 F. & F. 162; Murray v. Railroad, 27 L. J. (N. S.) 762. See generally, upon the subject, Wharton on Contracts, § 308; 2 Pars. on Contracts, § 138, and notes; Notes to Coggs v. Bernard, 1 Sm. L. C. (8th Am. Ed.) 422-441; Pollock on Contracts, (Wald's Ed. 1885), p. 366 seq.; Story on Bailments; 1 Thompson on Negligence, 86 seq.; 14 Am. Law Rev. 1; Sweet's Law Dict.; Bouvier's Law Dict.

1. In re Manuf. Nat. Bank, 1 Cent. Law Jour. 19.

2. Everhard v. Poppleton, 5 Q. B. 179. Where a testator left certain property in trust, and declared that if either of the trustees should decline to act, the survivor of the trustees so acting should appoint obtain the judgment of that court in relation to some rights claimed to be secured or some remedy claimed to be given by law to the party complaining.<sup>1</sup>

Action includes suits in equity as well as proceedings at law.<sup>2</sup>

2. When Maintainable.—(a) A malicious motive in asserting a legal right to do a particular thing will not give a right of action.<sup>3</sup>

(b) Damages.—As a general rule an action will not lie for a tort unless there has been a wrongful act and actual or legal damage, but, where the injury is the result of an inevitable accident or a lawful act done in a lawful manner without negligence or in necessary self-defense, there being no legal injury, there is no tort to sustain an action.<sup>4</sup>

(c) Proof of Same.—An action will lie for the vindication of a right, without proof of actual damages.<sup>5</sup>

other trustees, it was held that when both the trustees wholly declined to act in the trust, they had never been trustees so acting as to entitle them to appoint other trustees. Sharp v. Sharp, 2 B. & Ald. 405.

1. Wait's Actions and Defenses, 10.

2. Central Pac. R. R. Co. v. Dyer, 1 Sawyer, 641.

3. Mahan v. Brown, 13 Wend. 261; Auburn, etc., Co. v. Douglass, 9 N. Y. 444; Chatfield v. Wilson, 28 Vt. 49; Occum Co. v. Sprague Manufacturing Co., 34 Conn. 530; Jenkins v. Fowler, 24 Pa. St. 308; Glendon Iron Co. v. Uhler, 75 Pa. St. 467; Smith v. Johnson, 76 Pa. St. 191; Fabin v. Richard, 8 Wis. 255; Stevenson v. Newnham, 13 C. B. 285; Smith v. Bowler, 2 Disney (Ohio), 153.

The plaintiff's ulterior motives and purposes of bringing suit cannot be inquired into. Ramsey v. Gould, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 398.

See as to malice forming a consideration. Lumley v. Gye, 2 Ell. & Bla. 216; Cothel v. Jones, 11 C. B. 713.

4. Harvey v. Dunlap, Hill & Denio, 193; Bennett v. Ford, 47 Ind. 264; Brown v. Collins, 53 N. H. 442; Holmes v. Mather, L. R. 10 Ex. 261; Scott v. Shepherd, 3 Wes. 403.

A man is not liable to an action for the consequences of his doing a lawful act in a proper manner; nor for the consequences of enjoying his own property in the way property is usually enjoyed, unless an injury results to another from the want of proper care or skill on his own part, or unless he goes beyond the legitimate use of his own property. Radcliffe v. Mayor, etc., of Brooklyn, 4 N. Y. 195; Howe v. Young, 16 Ind. 312; Carhart v. Auburn Gas Light Co., 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 297; Thomasson v. Agnew, 24 Miss. 93.

Obstructions or nuisances in a street or highway causing special damages; a nuisance on one's own land injurious to the personal health or comfort of another; diversion of surface water from the land of another by excavation in one's own or the backing of water by dams, etc., upon the land of another are consequential injuries which will support an action though resulting from the use of one's own or another's property. Wabash, etc., Canal Co. v. Spears, 16 Ind. 441.

No action will lie for consequential damages resulting from the exercise of a legal right under legislative authority unless on the ground of negligence in the manner of its exercise. Morris, etc., R. R. Co. v. Newark, 10 N. J. Eq. 352.

An avoidable injury to person or reputation, whether in a corporate or private character, entitles the injured party to redress. Detroit Daily Post Co. v. McArthur, 16 Mich. 477; Toff v. West Shore & Ontario Terminal Co., 46 N. J. L. 34.

There must be an injury to the plaintiff or a benefit to the wrongdoer to render even a wrongful act actionable. Morgan v. Bliss, 2 Mass. 111; McEndre v. Piles, 6 Litt. (Ky.) 101; Nichols v. Valentine, 36 Me. 322.

5. The erection of a building so that water from the roof falls upon plaintiff's ground. Ely v. Corson, 13 Haz. Pa. Reg. 335.

"I may daily walk through my neighbor's inclosures without any appreciable injury, but if such a plea would protect me in a persistence therein, my trespasses would in time ripen into a right. To prevent this the law redresses by action where the injury is confessedly inappreciable." Delaware & Hudson Canal Co. v. Torrey, 33 Pa. St. 143. Also Thomas v. Brackney, 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 654, Car-

(d) Legality.—An action cannot be maintained on any ground or cause which the law declares illegal,<sup>1</sup> nor can a cause of action arise from an undertaking prohibited by statute.<sup>2</sup> (See CONTRACT.)

(e) Wrongdoer.—The prevention of the doing an unauthorized and unlawful act does not give a good cause of action to an incipient wrongdoer who is interfered with.<sup>3</sup>

(f) Class.—Damages sustained alike by all individuals of a class give no foundation for an action by any individual of the class.<sup>4</sup>

3. Right Must be Complete.—The right of action must be complete before action brought and the subsequent occurrence of a material fact will not avail in maintaining the action.<sup>5</sup>

hart v. Auburn Gas Light Co., 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 297; Honsee v. Hammond, 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 89; O'Riley v. McCheaney, 3 Lans. (N. Y.) 278; Graver v. Scholl, 42 Pa. St. 58; Dudley v. Tilton, 14 La. Ann. 283.

For intrusion on a right of way. Williams v. Esling, 4 Pa. St. 486; Schnable v. Koehler, 28 Pa. St. 181.

1. Davidson v. Lanier, 4 Wall. 447; Rolfe v. Delmar, 7 Rob. La. 80; Stewartson v. Lothrop, 12 Gray (Mass.), 52; Howard v. Harris, 8 Allen (Mass.), 297; Pearce v. Brooks, L. R., 1 Exch. 213; Smith v. White, L. R. 1 Eq. Cas. 626; Gunler v. Lecky, 30 Ala. 591.

Every contract growing out of or connected with an illegal or immoral act is absolutely void and will not be enforced in law and equity. Courts are influenced by no tenderness for parties, but exclusively by reasons of public policy. Deans v. M'Landon, 30 Miss. 343.

No action lies for the price of fraud. Boatner v. Yarborough, 12 La. Ann. 249.

2. Peck v. Burr, 10 N. Y. 294; Hathaway v. Moran, 44 Me. 67; Lord v. Chadbourne, 42 Me. 429. A contract made in violation of a statute is void and is not rendered valid by the repeal of the statute. Robinson v. Barrows, 48 Me. 186.

So also a right of action created by a statute and which has been perfected is not impaired nor is the suit upon it affected by the repeal of the statute. Steamship Co. v. Joliffe, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 450; Peters v. Goulden, 27 Mich. 171. Held in Wisconsin to apply only to repeal of statute giving new forms of remedy for old rights; providing new modes of prosecution for offences existing by law outside the statute repealed.

3. Where a railroad company brought a special action on the case against the defendant for preventing their constructing a branch track across a public highway where they were not legally authorized so to construct it, it was held that the action was not maintainable; that if the defendant wrongfully entered upon the land of another to prevent the construction of such branch railroad, he would be liable to the owner in an action of trespass therefor, but not to the railroad for merely preventing their violating the law. Bangor, etc., R. R. Co. v. Smith, 49 Me. 9.

No immunity for a wrongful act done to the injury of another's right can be claimed on the ground of public interest by any person, corporate or individual. Henderson v. Railroad Co., 17 Texas, 560.

4. Corrier v. West Side Elevated, etc., R. R., 6 Blatchf. (C. C.) 487.

The only remedy for a neglect by a corporation from which an individual suffers in common with the rest of the public is by indictment. Weightman v. Washington, 1 Black. 39.

No private action can be maintained for public wrongs. Ayers v. Sawrenge, 63 Barb. (N. Y.) 454.

5. McCullough v. Colby, 4 Bosw. (N. Y.) 603, 5 Bosw. (N. Y.) 477; Wattson v. Ghibou, 17 Abb. (N. Y.) 184; Buchanan v. Comstock, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 582; Hare v. VanDeusen, 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 92; Oathout v. Ballard, 4 Barb. (N. Y.) 33; Smith v. Aylesworth, 40 Barb. (N. Y.) 104; Bostwick v. Mench, 4 Daly (N. Y.), 68; Church v. Frost, 3 Thomp. Cook. 318; Moore v. Maple, 25 Ill. 341; Wadley v. Jones, 55 Ga. 329; Muller v. Earle, 5 Jones & Sp. 388; Castrique v. Bernabo, 6 Q. B. 498; Wing v. Accumulative Assurance Co., 3 C. B. (N. S.) 151.

To entitle a plaintiff to bring suit for an interference with a vested right, he must have complied with the laws relating thereto. Norris v. Lapsley, 5 Cal. 47.

4. Consent.—Consent to an act generally bars all right of action for injuries arising therefrom.<sup>1</sup>

5. Nudum Pactum.—A nudum pactum creates no legal right, and its breach creates no right to legal redress.<sup>2</sup>

6. Demand—When Required.—Demand must be alleged to support an action, on a contract to be performed by delivery of property;<sup>3</sup> on a contract for payment of goods, neither time nor place of payment being specified;<sup>4</sup> on an order to deliver goods;<sup>5</sup> for the price of goods delivered on a promise to account at certain prices, or return on demand;<sup>6</sup> on a contract payable in anything other than money,<sup>7</sup> or where the undertaking is collateral.<sup>8</sup>

Where the debt is payable in personal property, to be delivered at a particular time, and the debtor fails to deliver it at such time;<sup>9</sup> where there was an entire failure of consideration upon which plaintiff paid defendant's debt and defendant became at once liable to refund;<sup>10</sup> on a promise to do a certain act or pay a sum of money, and the act has not been done;<sup>11</sup> on a promise to pay money if a stranger should fail to do a certain action;<sup>12</sup> by an

1. Illinois Central R. Co. v. Allen, 39 Ill. 205; State v. Beck, 1 Hill (S. Car.), 363; Pillow v. Bushnell, 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 156; Root v. Shields, 1 Woblv. 340, 354; Walker v. Fitts, 24 Pick. (Mass.) 191.

If a debtor procures the signatures of his creditors to an agreement to settle their claims for a percentage, one of them, who afterwards learns that another was induced to sign by the promise of a larger percentage, may maintain an action on the original claim without returning composition notes received by him from the debtor or their proceeds. Cobb v. Tirrell, 137 Mass. 143.

Where one beneficially interested in a cause from ignorance of the law surrenders his rights, he cannot hold the opposite party to a knowledge of the law and charge him for a loss occasioned by his own indiscretion; so where a constable levied on and sold property already bound by executions in the hands of the sheriff, and paid over the money to the plaintiffs in the executions in the sheriff's hands, and the plaintiffs afterwards paid the same back to the constable under the advice that his levy and sale had divested the executions in the sheriff's hands of their liens, it was held, that the plaintiffs could not afterwards charge the sheriff with negligence, although he was advised that the proceedings of the constable had divested the executions in his hands of their liens and had acted under that advice. Harrison v. Marshall, 6 Port. (Ala.) 65.

2. The discontinuance of a favor gives no cause of action. Travis v. Duffan, 2 Tex. 49.

3. Martin v. Channin, 7 Mo. 277; Bradley v. Farrington, 4 Ark. 532.

4. Frazee v. McCord, 1 Ind. 224. Upon a contract for payment in such goods as should suit the payee, he is bound to demand such goods specifically, and within a reasonable variety before action.

5. Decker v. Birhap, 1 Morr. (Iowa) 62.

6. Bolles v. Stearns, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 320.

7. Wyatt v. Bailey, 1 Morr. (Iowa) 396.

8. January v. Duncan, 3 McLean (C. C.), 19.

In a suit brought upon an instrument, "For value received, I promise to pay A $500 in castings, at B & C's foundry in Augusta; said A's present account to go in part payment, the castings to be taken at 6 cts. per pound," no time being fixed, demand and refusal must be proven. Hotchkiss v. Newton, 10 Ga. 560.

Where a miller fraudulently drew into his boom and manufactured logs owned by other parties, who then transferred to a third party, such third party must show a demand and notice after transfer to support an action. Root v. Bonemma, 22 Wis. 539.

9. Crabtree v. Messersmith, 19 Iowa, 179.

10. Pennington v. Clifton, 10 Ind. 172.

11. Lent v. Padelford, 10 Mass. 230. No demand is necessary where both plaintiff and defendant have equal knowledge of the matter, as, for instance, an act to be done by a stranger.

12. Dyer v. Rich, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 180.

owner for the recovery of property from a bona-fide purchaser from one having no authority to sell;<sup>1</sup> when an obligation to pay is complete;<sup>2</sup> where there is a joint indebtedness and the creditor has applied the property of one debtor to the payment of the whole debt;<sup>3</sup> for property wrongfully taken from the owner;<sup>4</sup> when the party to be charged had no right to expect, and is not injured by the omission of demand;<sup>5</sup> where an account is payable in goods, the party has ceased trading and is not in a position to pay them, and there has been no unreasonable delay;<sup>6</sup> for money for goods received to be sold at certain prices or returned on demand, and the goods have been sold and money received;<sup>7</sup> for the value of wheat, to be delivered when threshed.<sup>8</sup>

When not Required.—A demand need not be alleged for the maintenance of a suit by a client against his attorney for money collected;<sup>9</sup> where the time for the payment of property is fixed;<sup>10</sup> on an agreement to return a note, after a reasonable time;<sup>11</sup> upon a promise to pay money, time of payment not being specified, after a reasonable time;<sup>12</sup> on a promise to pay on demand;<sup>13</sup> where it is the duty of a party, by contract or otherwise, to remit or apply money in his hands without demand.<sup>14</sup>

7. Appearance.—(a) What Constitutes.—A formal entry, plea, or motion, ascertainable by the record, constitutes an appearance.<sup>15</sup>

1. Whitman, etc., Co. v. Tuttle, 4 Nev. 494.

2. Watson v. Walker, 23 N. H. 471.

3. Walsh v. Ostrander, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 213.

4. New York, etc., Co. v. Richmond, 6 Bosw. (N. Y.) 213.

5. Randon v. Barton, 4 Tex. 289.

6. Brooks v. Jewell, 14 Vt. 470.

7. Wyman v. Fowler, 3 McLean (C. C.), 467.

On a contract for brick, received from time to time in installments, paid for by a due bill for thirty days, an action for a residue undelivered must be preceded by demand and refusal. Widner v. Walsh, 3 Col. 548.

8. State v. Mooney, 65 Mo. 494.

9. Shepherd v. Crawford, 71 Ga. 458.

If from the nature of the case a demand would be of no avail if made, it is unnecessary to put the defendant in mora before bringing suit. Rosenthal v. Baer, 18 La. Ann. 573.

10. Campbell v. Clark, 1 Hempst. 67.

11. Henley v. Bush, 33 Ala. 636.

12. Niemayer v. Brooks, 44 Ill. 77.

13. Ross v. Lafayette, etc., R. Co., 6 Ind. 297.

14. Catterlin v. Somerville, 22 Ind. 482; Ferguson v. Dunn, 28 Ind. 58; Stacy v. Graham, 14 N. Y. (4 Kern.) 492.

A specific objection to a necessary demand, made prior to bringing suit, waives all other objections. Bartlett v. Adams, 43 Ind. 447.

Plaintiff inclosed his land and thereby made a partition fence, and upon calling upon defendant for one-half value, no objection was made as to the estimate, but that he was not liable; held, that there was no necessity for an estimate of the value in order to bring the suit. Bartlett v. Adams, 43 Ind. 477.

Where a demand that should be made by a certain day is prevented by a restraining order obtained by debtor, it may be made as soon as the order is dissolved. Pay v. Shanks, 56 Ind. 554.

15. Scott v. Hull, 14 Ind. 136.

The following steps have been held equivalent to an appearance:

Service of an order of court applied for and obtained, giving time to answer, with a notice signed "Attorney for defendant." Ayers v. Western R. Corp., 48 Barb. (N. Y.) 132.

Putting in an answer. Hayes v. Shattuck, 21 Cal. 51; Ins. Co. of North America v. Swineford, 28 Wis. 257.

Or a demurrer. Kegy v. Welden, 10 Ind. 550; Knight v. Low, 15 Ind. 374; Evans v. Iles, 7 Ohio, 233.

Or a motion to dissolve an attachment. Whiting v. Budd, 5 Mo. 443; Duncan v. Wickliffe, 4 Metc. (Ky.) 118.

Motion for a continuance. Shaffer v. Trimble, 2 Greene, Iowa, 464.

General Appearance.—An appearance will be taken to be general unless the contrary appears.<sup>1</sup>

Its Effect.—Whatever operates as a general or unqualified appearance waives all defects or irregularities affecting the notice, process, or service necessary to obtain jurisdiction over the defendant.<sup>2</sup>

Special Appearance.—An appearance for any particular purpose,

Motion to set aside an interlocutory order. Tallman v. McCarty, 11 Wis. 401.

Taking part in the trial. Scott v. Niles, 40 Vt. 373.

Motion to mitigate damages, for a new trial and taking exceptions. Wilson v. Fowler, 3 Ark. 463.

Or taking an appeal. Tree v. Big Stand Iron Co., 13 Ohio, 563; Weaver v. Stone, 2 Grant (Pa.) Cas. 422.

Appearance and offer to file answer. Tennison v. Tennison, 40 Mo. 110.

Appearing in supreme court and taking part in the argument of a case reserved estops defendant from denying appearance below. Cleveland, etc., Co. v. Mara, 26 Ohio, 185.

Written consent by attorney to continuance to a subsequent term. Bazzo v. Wallace, 16 Neb. 290.

What is not an Appearance.—Indorsing admission of service on summons. Nat. Bank v. Rogers, 12 Minn. 529.

Giving notice of retainer. Wandelaar v. Coomer, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 328; Vanderpoel v. Wright, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 209; Mann v. Carley, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 148.

Giving bail. Lauveau v. Ervin, 12 Rich. (S. Car.) 31.

Giving bond to dissolve attachment. Clark v. Bryan, 16 Md. 171.

Giving attachment bond. Coplinger v. Steamboat, 14 Ind. 480.

Notice of motion to dissolve attachment. Glidden v. Packard, 28 Cal. 649.

Motion to quash. Ferguson v. Rose, 5 Ark. 517; Gooch v. Jeter, 5 Ark. 383.

Filing answer by attorney protesting to jurisdiction. Sullivan v. Frazee, 4 Robt. (N. Y.) 616.

Taking a deposition. Scott v. Hull, 14 Ind. 136; Bentz v. Eubanks, 32 Kans. 321.

Motion to set aside judgment, there being no personal service of process. Lutes v. Perkins, 6 Mo. 57.

1. Deshler v. Foster, 1 Morr. (Iowa) 403; Abbott v. Semple, 25 Ill. 107; Flake v. Carson, 33 Ill. 518; Aultman v. Steinnan, 8 Neb. 109; Collier v. Falk, 66 Ala. 223.

2. Once having appeared, the cause may proceed no matter what irregularity there is. Knox v. Summers, 3 Cranch. 496; Legee v. Thomas, 1 Blatchf. 11; Suydam v. Pitcher, 4 Cal. 280; Payne v. Farmers' Bank, 29 Conn. 415; Deputy v. Betts, 4 Han. (Del.) 352; Miles v. Goodwin, 35 Ill. 53; Little v. Vance, 14 Ind. 22; Bell v. Pierson, 1 Morr. (Iowa) 21; Hall v. Biever, 1 Morr. (Iowa) 113; Harris v. Guin, 18 Miss. 563; Winchester v. Cox, 3 Iowa, 575; Choteau v. Rice, 1 Minn. 192; Lewis v. Nickols, 26 Mo. 298; State v. Woolery, 39 Mo. 525; Fox v. Reed, 3 Grant (Pa.) 81; Anderson v. Morris, 12 Wis. 689; Johnson v. Knoblauch, 14 Minn. 16; Johnson v. West, 43 Ala. 689; Humphrey v. Newhall, 48 Ill. 116; Carpenter v. Central Park R., 11 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. N. S. 416; Vernon v. West School District, 38 Conn. 112; Adams Exp. Co. v. Hill, 43 Ind. 157; Shuster v. Finan, 19 Kan. 114; Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Nicholson, 60 Ind. 158; Hart v. Smith, 17 Fla. 767; Berry v. Conklin, 23 Kan. 460; Hulett v. Nugent, 71 Mo. 131; Lane v. Leech, 44 Mich. 163.

Defendant's voluntary appearance is equivalent to personal service. Christal v. Kelly, 88 N. Y. 285.

A general appearance is not equivalent to service in time to avoid statute of limitations. Etheridge v. Woodly, 83 N. Car. 11.

After appearance and plea in a case of an attachment against the property of a defendant not in reach of personal process, the case stands as if the suit were brought in the usual manner. Toland v. Sprague, 12 Pet. 300.

An appearance, however, does not enable a court to take cognizance of questions not submitted to its jurisdiction. United States v. Yates, 6 How. 605; Payne v. Farmers' Bank, 29 Conn. 415.

An appearance of defendant where plaintiff has two remedies waives objections to the remedy pursued. Fisher v. Hepburn, 48 N. Y. 41.

Appearance of a party to have his case put at the foot of the docket gives the court sufficient jurisdiction to render a personal judgment. Crear v. Clough, 52 Mo. 55.

such as to take advantage of defects, is not a waiver of those defects.<sup>1</sup>

Withdrawal.—Generally, appearance may be withdrawn by leave of court.<sup>2</sup>

Authority.—Usually an appearance by an attorney will be presumed to have been made with authority.<sup>3</sup>

8. Commencement.—Except in Connecticut and Vermont, the issuing or suing out of the writ is the commencement of the action. In those States the service is the commencement.<sup>4</sup> A suit in

1. Campbell v. Swasey, 12 Ind. 70; Allen v. Lee, 6 Wis. 478; Nye v. Liscom, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 263; Ames v. Winsor, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 207.

The filing a motion to dismiss for want of jurisdiction is a voluntary appearance, waiving defect in summons. Handy v. Insurance Co., 37 Ohio, 366.

An appearance for moving to quash a writ for want of jurisdiction or insufficiency of service does not subject to the jurisdiction or waive the illegality. Hodges v. Brett, 4 Greene (Iowa), 345; Milburn v. Fouts, 4 Greene (Iowa), 346; Ulmer v. Hiatt, 4 Greene (Iowa), 439; Johnson v. Buells, 26 Ill. 66; Weil v. Lowenthal, 10 Iowa, 575; Billin v. White, 25 La. Ann. 624; Bank of Tenn. v. Anderson, 3 Sneed (Tenn.), 669; Camp v. Tibbetts, 2 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 20; Stetson v. Goldsmith, 30 Ala. 602; Morris v. Thierry, 29 La. Ann. 362; Covert v. Clark, 23 Minn. 539. But see Curtis v. Jackson, 23 Minn. 539; Harkness v. Hyde, 98 U. S. 476; Fare v. Gunter, 82 Mo. 522; Shaw v. Rowland, 32 Kan. 154.

A rule of court requiring pleas and motions in abatement to be filed within two days after entry of action is not dispensed with by a special appearance. Mitchell v. Union Life Ins. Co., 45 Me. 104.

An appearance to set aside an irregular judgment is not a waiver of any right. Pomeroy v. Betts, 31 Mo. 419.

Or in arrest of judgment. Schell v. Leeland, 45 Mo. 289.

Appearance merely to object, not waiver of want of jurisdiction. Standley v. Arnow, 13 Fla. 361.

To constitute a waiver of defects there must be an intention to appear. Merkee v. Rochester, 20 N. Y. Supreme Ct. 157.

A general appearance does not preclude the afterwards setting up want of jurisdiction. Wheelock v. Lee, 74 N. Y. 495.

This is so also when taken with a motion to dismiss writ for want of proper service. Michels v. Stork, 44 Mich. 22.

Petition for removal to Federal court in which parties not served join is not an appearance, as to them, in State court. Schwab v. Mabley, 47 Mich. 512. See Small v. Montgomery, 17 Fed. Rep. 865; Hendrickson v. Chicago, etc., R., 22 Fed. Rep. 569.

Non-appearance.—A party not appearing waives nothing in regard to jurisdiction or authority of the court, or in the way of objections to the proceedings, and competency and sufficiency of plaintiff's evidence. Clark v. Van Vracken, 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 278.

In Pennsylvania an appearance de bene esse is good if held by the court that the process is sufficient. Boland v. Mason, 66 Pa. 138.

2. Dana v. Adams, 13 Ill. 691.

An appearance entered through fraud or mistake may be withdrawn. See Michen v. McCoy, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 501; United States v. Yates, 6 How. 605.

A withdrawal leaves the case as if there had been no appearance, and does not submit to the jurisdiction. Graham v. Spencer, 14 Fed. Rep. 603.

3. Martin v. Judd, 60 Ill. 78; Leslie v. Fisher, 62 Ill. 118.

When sued on a record in which judgment has been entered on an attorney's appearing for the defendant, said defendant may deny authority by special plea. Hill v. Mendenhall, 21 Wall. 453.

A regular appearance, even without authority, confers jurisdiction. England v. Garner, 90 N. Car. 197.

4. Carpenter v. Butterfield, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) Cas. 145; Hogan v. Cuyler, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 203; Parker v. Colcord, 2 N. H. 36; Ford v. Phillips, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 202; Reed v. Brewer, Peck, (Tenn.) 276; Thompson v. Bell, 6 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 560; Day v. Lamb, 7 Vt. 426; Gates v. Bushnell, 9 Conn. 530; Downer v. Garland, 21 Vt. 362; Cox v. Cooper, 3 Ala. 256; Whitaker v. Turnbull, 3 Harr. (Del.) 172; Fearle v. Simpson, 2 Ill. 30; Swisher v. Swisher, Wright (Ohio), 755; Caldwell v. Heitsch, 9 W. & S. (Pa.) 51.

To render the action "commenced" in Vermont, there must be service of the equity is commenced when the bill is filed, not when defendant is served.<sup>1</sup>

9. Consolidation.—The consolidation of actions rests in the discretion of the court on motion made for that purpose.<sup>2</sup>

Union of Legal and Equitable Demands.—A party who claims a legal title must proceed at law, while one whose title or claim is equitable must proceed by the forms and rules of equity proceedings.<sup>3</sup> writ sufficiently completed to call upon the defendant to answer. Kirby v. Jackson, 42 Vt. 552.

The filing of a summons and complaint is the commencement of an action in relation to real estate only for the purpose of operating as constructive notice to purchasers, etc., from the defendant, and for no other purpose. Haynes v. Onderdonk, 2 Hun (N. Y.), 619.

If the summons be sued out before the days of grace have expired, the cause of action does not exist on a note. Collins v. Montemy, 3 Ill. App. 182.

Commencement will be presumed when appearance made and answer filed, if record shows no issuance of writ or any objection taken. Charlestown v. Hay, 74 Ind. 127.

No property being attached and no service attempted, an action cannot be properly entered. Searles v. Hardy, 75 Me. 461.

1. Gordon v. Tyler, 53 Mich. 629.

2. Worthy v. Chalk, 10 Rich. (S. Car.) 141; McRae v. Boast, 3 Rand. (Va.) 481; Scott v. Brown, 1 Nott & M. (S. Car.) 417; Lewis v. Daniel, 45 Ga. 124.

A court of equity may consolidate with or without consent of complainants. Burnham v. Dalling, 13 N. J. L. 310. See also Groff v. Musser, 3 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 262; Reid v. Dodson, 1 Overt. (Tenn.) 396; Clason v. Church, Col. (N. Y.) Cas. 62; 1 Johns. (N. Y.) Cas. 29.

Several suits which might have been comprised in one writ may be consolidated on motion, on payment of costs in all suits but one, unless the defences are different. Powell v. Gray, 1 Ala. 77.

Several actions of ejectment comprising the same question and defence have been consolidated. Den v. Kimble, 10 N. J. L. 335; Jackson v. Stiles, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 282.

Even when one suit has been commenced before another, unless causing prejudice or delay to plaintiff. Dunning v. Bank, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 23.

Defence must be same or there must be no defence, or questions arising must be identical. Wilkinson v. Johnson, 4 Hill (N. Y.), 746; Logan v. Mechanics'

Bank, 13 Ga. 201; Howard v. Chamberlain, 64 Ga. 684.

Lands which are the subject of different actions, being situated in different counties, or parties to the one not being interested in the subject of the other, the actions cannot be consolidated. Mayor v. Coffin, 90 N. Y. 312.

Promissory Notes.—Actions on promissory notes having the same drawer, indorser, and indorsee will be allowed to consolidate. Bank v. Cohen, 2 Nott & M. (S. Car.) 440.

Actions on such notes drawn at different dates and payable at different times, though by same plaintiff against same person, cannot be consolidated unless the defences are the same. Worley v. Glentworth, 10 N. J. L. 241; Thompson v. Shepherd, 9 Johns. 262.

The amount of notes must not exceed jurisdiction. Parrott v. Green, 1 McCord (S. Car.), 53.

Practices.—Two suits consolidated must be conducted as if one and the same. Castro v. Whitlock, 15 Tex. 437.

A motion to consolidate must be made before trial. Eleventh Ward Sav. Bank v. Hay, 8 Daly (N. Y.), 328.

Patents.—Two suits for infringement of different patents in one machine may be consolidated. 24 Fed. Rep. 90.

3. Hurt v. Hollingsworth, 100 U. S. 100; S. P. La Mothe Manufacturing Co. v. Union Tube Works Co., 7 Repr. 138.

While M. was occupying lands as a homestead a creditor caused them to be sold on execution, and H. bought them and took a sheriff's deed but did not get possession. Later M. sold the lands to M. and gave him a deed and possession. Of course the title then depended on the validity of the homestead claim: if the land was exempt, the execution sale was a nullity; if it was not, then M.'s conveyance was void, for when it was made his title had been divested. To determine the question, M. brought suit to vacate the sheriff's deed as a cloud on the title, and H. answered, denying the homestead exemption, alleging his own purchase and that M. wrongfully withheld the land

10. Joinder.—Several causes of action may be joined in the same suit, provided they are of the same nature and arise in the same right. Actions differing in form have been allowed to be joined.

Entire rights of action arise out of one and the same contract; several, out of different acts or contracts.<sup>1</sup> from him, and asking judgment for possession. The circuit court, partly on a stipulation of parties, entertained both claims, heard the evidence as to the homestead claim and decided that it was invalid, and then rendered judgment dismissing M.'s suit and granting H.'s demand for possession. Held, that a Federal court cannot entertain two such demands in one action. The first is strictly a suit in equity seeking especial relief which only a court of chancery can grant. The second is an action at law for the recovery of real property. The two cases are entirely different in their nature and can be determined where the distinctions between equitable and legal proceedings are maintained only in separate suits. In the one case, if the allegations of the plaintiff be sustained the judgment must be declaratory and prohibitory, adjudging that the deed of the sheriff to the defendant constitutes a cloud upon his title, and enjoining the defendant from asserting any claim to the premises under it. In the other cases, if the defendant establishes his averments the judgment must be for the possession of the premises and the rent and the profits.

In the Federal courts such a blending of equitable and legal causes of action in one suit is not permissible. See Hurt v. Hollingsworth, 100 U. S. 100.

The statute adopting State laws of procedure for Federal courts does not adopt a State law allowing equitable defences to be set up against a demand of legal cognizance, e.g., in an action on a judgment. Montejo v. Owen, 14 Blatchf. 324; S. P. La Mothe Manufacturing Co. v. National Tube Works, 7 Repr. 138.

Where one of two innocent parties must suffer from the misconduct of a third, he who placed it in the power of such third party to work the injury must suffer the loss. Bailey v. Crim, 8 Repr. 455; Rawls v. Deshler, 4 Abb. (N. Y.) App. Dec. 12.

After recovery in an ejectment suit a law proceeding is instituted for the mesne profits. On failure to recover by reason of the bar of the statute of limitations, recourse to equity will not be allowed. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 21 Md. 585.

Equity cannot be resorted to after plaintiffs have failed to make out a case in an action for damages for non-performance of contract for sale of land. Towle v. Jones, 1 Robt. (N. Y.) 87.

Under the provisions of the N. Y. Code for the joinder of legal and equitable actions, one demanding in one suit the removal of a cloud on his title and recovery of possession must allege facts necessary to support him if sought in separate suits. Bockes v. Lansing, 74 N. Y. 437.

In general, claims to equitable relief, and to a judgment at law, cannot be prosecuted in the same action. Mayo v. Madden, 4 Cal. 27; Harvey v. Dewitt, 13 Gray (Mass.), 536; Reubens v. Joel, 13 N. Y. 488.

1. Com. Dig., "Action," G.; 1 Bac. Abr. 51-2; 2 Saund. 117; Holland v. Bothmar, 4 T. R. 229; Halleck v. Powell, 2 Caines, 217; Union Cotton Manufactory v. Lobdell, 13 Johns. 462.

Several items of account arising at different times need a contract, either express or implied, embracing all the items, to make an entire demand. Secor v. Sturges, 16 N. Y. 548.

An account for goods sold, all due, is an entire demand. Guernsey v. Carver, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 492.

A creditor holding several notes against the same debtor, each of which, separately, is within a justice's jurisdiction, while the amount of all exceeds it, may sue on them separately before a justice, or, if all due and in the same right, may unite them in one suit before a court of larger jurisdiction. Ferguson v. Cul-ton, 8 Tex. 283.

So in Pennsylvania the court will on appeal consolidate separate suits before a justice on different promissory notes. Boyle v. Grant, 18 Pa. St. 162.

The law of Louisiana will not favor a number of distinct suits against the same person; nor the uniting in one suit demands against several distinct persons. Leverich v. Adams, 15 La. Ann. 310.

Deposits on two accounts at a bank in trust for two children give rise to separate claims on depositor's death by his children. Ellison v. New Bedford, etc., Savings Bk., 130 Mass. 48.

Where there are two contracts, one express, the other implied, two separate

11. Splitting of Actions.—An entire claim or demand arising out of a single transaction, whether in the nature of contract or tort, cannot be divided into separate and distinct claims and the same form of action brought for each, or two suits maintained without defendant's consent.<sup>1</sup> causes of action may be combined in one suit under the New York Code. Hawk v. Thorn, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 164.

Breaches of contract requiring separate findings are independent causes of action, though arising on the same contract. Boyce v. Christy, 47 Mo. 70; Brownell v. Pacific R. Co., 47 Mo. 239.

Claims as of an executor cannot be joined with those accruing by private right. But such as in their nature must accrue in one's own right, as for work and labor done, may be joined with those accruing in the right of testator. Bulkeley v. Andrews, 39 Conn. 523.

A cause of action against the trustee of an insolvent savings bank to recover damages caused by his unauthorized investments cannot be joined with one on a bond given by him to assist in making up a deficiency in the assets of the bank. The N. Y. Code does not apply where the liability is by operation of law and fact. French v. Salter, 17 Hun (N. Y.), 546.

Two bills of goods do not constitute one demand if one may be sued on before the other becomes due. Stickel v. Steel, 41 Mich. 350.

Counts charging negligence in inspection of title, and deceit, may be joined in one action against the representative of a deceased attorney-at-law. Tichenor v. Hayes, 41 N. J. L. 193.

Where distinct and separate judgments in different amounts are asked the parties cannot unite, though against the same person. Independent Sch. Dist. v. Same, 50 Iowa, 322.

An action on a note against maker and indorser cannot be joined with an action on account against the indorser only. Thorpe v. Dickey, 51 Iowa, 676.

Nor an action for conversion of personal property and an account in same complaint. Thompson v. St. Nicholas Bank, 6 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 163.

Nor actions against three successive county treasurers for misinvestment. Firth v. Roe, 60 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 432.

A demand for rents of land with an allegation of their conversion is not a joinder of tort and contract. Finch v. Baskerville, 85 N. C. 205.

A note with a promise to pay interest at one time and principal at another may be the foundation of two actions, though the principal be due when the action for interest is brought. Dulaney v. Payne, 101 Ill. 325; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 205.

1. Wagner v. Jacoby, 26 Miss. 532; Farrington v. Payne, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 432; Herriter v. Porter, 23 Cal. 385; Brannenburgh v. Indianapolis, etc., R. Co., 13 Ind. 103; Logan v. Caffrey, 30 Pa. St. 196; Smith v. Jones, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 229; Avery v. Fitch, 4 Conn. 362; Vance v. Lancaster, 3 Hayw. (Tenn.) 130; Colvin v. Corwin, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 557; Firemen's Ins. Co. v. Cochran, 27 Ala. 228; Chicago R. Co. v. Nichols, 57 Ill. 464; State v. Shinn, 42 N. J. L. 138; Hennequin v. Barney, 24 Fed. Rep. 580; Olcott v. Hugus, 105 Pa. St. 350; Hoff v. Myers, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 270.

Where in an action upon an award in favor of two partners the defendant insisted upon a misjoinder of parties, he having bought the interest of one of the parties, and the court had given the plaintiff leave to amend by striking out the name of his partner as a plaintiff, held, that the defendant had agreed that the interests of his creditors should be separate, and could not complain that he was held to his contract. Carrington v. Crocker, 37 N. Y. 336.

An action will lie in case of partial breach, for such breach, notwithstanding the full time has not elapsed, unless the contract is indivisible; but such recovery will bar a further claim for damages of the breach sued on. Crabtree v. Hagenbaugh, 233.

The court may try such counts as are in its jurisdiction, though there may be other counts not in the jurisdiction setting forth different causes of action. Diblee v. Davison, 25 Ill. 486.

Independent sales of liquor in cask, made on different days may be sued for separately. Cushman v. Ban, 2 Hilt. (N. Y.) 340.

Suit brought and judgment recovered upon certain items in an account bar a subsequent suit upon other items in the same account not claimed in the first action. Borngesser v. Harrison, 12 Wis. 544.

The test of entirety is whether the same evidence is necessary to support all

(a) Same Security.—When two suits for the same cause of action are founded upon different securities, the plaintiff may branches of a claim. Crips v. Talvande, 4 McCord. (S. C.) 20.

The taking by one act of several chattels of the same person will only support one action. Any articles omitted cannot be recovered. Folsom v. Clemence, 119 Mass. 473.

A cause of action founded on conversion of personal property may be joined with one founded on contract. The tort may be waived and the suit brought on the implied contract. Logan v. Wallis, 76 N. C. 416.

A party who has paid judgment and costs against him cannot after reversal recover judgment in one suit and costs in another. Clayes v. White, 83 Ill. 540.

An account for a bill of goods purchased in one day is to be taken as one entire transaction in the absence of evidence of a contrary intention. Magruder v. Randolph, 77 N. Car. 79.

The action against a decedent's executor or administrator for deceit of decedent does not merge a judgment obtained against decedent's surviving partner for the debt contracted by means of the deceit. Morgan v. Skidmore. 3 Abb. (N. Y.) N. Cas. 92.

Action for wrongful conversion cannot be joined with one for proceeds of same property. Teall v. Syracuse, 32 Hun (N. Y.), 332.

But false representations and conversion may. Silver v. Holden, 50 N. Y. Super. Ct. 236.

Possession of real estate and foreclosure of mortgage cannot be asked for in one action. Butler University v. Conard, 94 Ind. 353.

A had two horses killed at the same time on a railroad, and sued the company before a justice for the killing of one horse, and recovered judgment for $100, the limit of the jurisdiction. Held, that he could not afterwards maintain an action before a justice for the other horse. Camp v. Morgan, 21 Ill. 255.

A party cannot bring several suits for several sums past due on a lease. If more than one payment is due, these payments should be consolidated in one suit. Casselberry v. Forquer, 27 Ill. 170. See Lee v. Kearny Committee, 42 N. J. L. 543.

Where a party has demands against another resting in account, and having brought suit on the trial withdraws from the jury some of the items, while he submits others, he cannot sustain an action to recover the items so withdrawn.

Stevens v. Lockwood, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 644.

An entry on land, and felling trees and a conversion of them, are distinct causes, and when united in a complaint cannot be severed by the court, both causes failing together. Frost v. Duncan, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 560.

The doctrine that when an order is drawn on a fund it amounts to an assignment thereof does not apply to an order for a part of the fund only. This gives no lien as against the drawee. He has a right to stand on the singleness of his original contract, and to decline any legal or equitable assignments by which it may be broken into fragments. Mandeville v. Welch, 5 Wheat. 286.

There being several different claims arising out of the same contract, payable at different times, all those due must be included in an action brought. Reformed, etc., Church v. Brown, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 191.

An owner may maintain separate actions of ejectment for two lots, for which there was a contract of sale, and the payment of the whole purchase-money under one verdict is payment of the purchase-money in the other. Roddy v. Harsh, 62 Pa. 129.

Where the second ground of action was not within the knowledge of the plaintiff at the time of commencing the first action, the objection to a subsequent action does not apply. Risley v. Squire, 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 280.

A creditor may bring an action for his claims notwithstanding the pendency of an action against him by the debtor in which such claims might have been set up as a counter-claim. Liggnot v. Redding, 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 285; Taggart v. Rice, 37 Vt. 47.

Privity.—Where an action in form ex delicto is brought to recover damages for an injury arising from a breach of contract, some privity between plaintiff and defendant must be shown. Gray v. Ottolinger, 12 Rich. (S. Car.) 101.

A submission to an issue framed by court, superseding two ejectment suits and an equity suit, is binding, and the verdict conclusive. Long's Appeal, 92 Pa. 171.

A party cannot maintain two inconsistent actions to enforce the same right. Pott's Appeal, 5 Pa. 500.

Where a person can have an adequate remedy by an order in a cause already pending in the same court, or under a prosecute both to judgment, but he may only have one satisfaction.<sup>1</sup>

12. Cumulation.—It is not always necessary to enforce a statutory remedy in order to pursue a statutory right; but where a statute confers a right and declares the course necessary to enforce it, the remedy so provided must be adopted. The ordinary remedies provided by common law or general legislation cannot be pursued.<sup>2</sup>

When a statute prescribes a new remedy for an existing common-law right, the new remedy is cumulative.<sup>3</sup>

13. Statutory Remedies.—One who sues on a right of action given by statute must present a case within the provisions of the stat-

bill in equity already filed by him, another or separate action will not lie. Mason v. Miles, 63 N. Car. 564; Whitaker v. Bond, Phil. Eq. (N. Car.) 227.

An action on a promissory note given for work and labor done and materials furnished by the plaintiff in erecting and repairing certain buildings of the defendant cannot be maintained if it appears that the plaintiff, prior to the commencement of the suit, had instituted proceedings in another court to enforce his lien on the buildings for the same debt. Ogden v. Bodle, 2 Duer (N. Y.), 611.

The fact that an action for an accounting has been brought in which the defendant may be required to account for moneys received after the commencement of the action does not oblige the plaintiff to obtain such accounting; but he may make such items the subject of a new action. Tyler v. Willis, 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 213; 13 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 369.

1. Stillwell v. Bertrand, 22 Ark. 379.

The true test is whether satisfaction has been had; if not, both proceedings on the primary debt and collateral may be continued. Corn Exchange Ins. Co. v. Babcock, 8 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) N. S. 256.

2. The Highland Light, Chase Dec.

150; James v. Atlantic Delaine Co., 11 Bankr. Reg. 390; St. Pancras v. Battenberg, 2 C. B. (N. S.) 477; Dudley v. Mayhew, 3 N. Y. 9; First Nat. Bank of Whitehall v. Lamb, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 434; Haley v. Petty, 42 Ark. 392; McKinney v. Monongahela Nav. Co., 14 Pa. St. 65; Ward v. Severance, 7 Cal. 126; Fuller v. Edings, 11 Rich. (S. Car.) 239; Butler v. State, 6 Ind. 165; Cole v. Muscatine, 14 Iowa, 296; Hazen v. Essex Co., 12 Cush. (Mass.) 475; Camden v. Allen, 26 N. J. L. 398; Weller v. Wegand, 2 Grant (Pa.), 103; Brown v. White Deer, 27 Pa. St. 109; Babb v. Mackey, 10 Wis. 371.

A statute which provides that a penalty imposed by it may be recovered by a summary proceeding upon complaint before two or more justices does not bar the party from his remedy by action. Collinson v. Newcastle & Darlington R. Co., 1 Car. & Kir. 546; Lichfield v. Simpson, 82 B. 65. See Law v. Salter, 51 N. Y. 1.

Where a statute authorized a corporation to forfeit the shares of stock of a subscriber for the non-payment of instalments due upon a stock subscription, an exercise of the right of forfeiture on the part of the corporation will bar any subsequent action for such instalments. Small v. Herkimer Mfg. Co., 2 N. Y. 330; Mills v. Stewart, 41 N. Y. 384.

A railroad had in its construction the legal right to pass over and destroy a highway in a town, and a general statute provided for the injury done. To recover for the acts done according to law, the declaration must be specially founded on the statute. Henniker v. Contoocook Valley R., 29 N. H. 146.

Where a remedy is given for only part of an injury authorized by statute, the common law may be resorted to for the residue. Troy v. Cheshire R. Co., 23 N. H. 83; Gibbes v. Beaufort, 20 S. Car. 213.

If the remedy given by statute is not adequate, it is not presumed to be exclusive. Johnston v. Louisville, 11 Bush (Ky.), 527.

3. Cox v. Robins, 9 N. J. L. 384; Colden v. Eldred, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 220; Fryeburgh Canal v. Frye, 5 Me. 38; Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Howard, 6 Har. & J. (Md.) 483; Booker v. M'Robert, 1 Call. (Va.) 243; People v. Craycroft, 2 Cal. 243; Selden v. D. & H. Canal Co., 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 362; Adams v. Richardson, 42 N. H. 212; Bruce v. Hudson Canal Co., 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 371.

A statutory remedy, given by express or implied provision, does not take away the common-law remedy, but is cumulative. Wells v. Steele, 31 Ark. 219.

This rule is applicable to maritime law. The Waverly, 7 Biss. 465.

ute.<sup>1</sup> Any court which has jurisdiction of the matter and can obtain jurisdiction of the parties may enforce a legal liability incurred, or a personal right of action fixed either by the common or statute law.<sup>2</sup>

14. Local and Transitory Actions.—Laws prescribing where defendants are to be sued are never understood as including suits local in their character, unless expressly set out.<sup>3</sup> Actions founded on privity of estate are local; on privity of contract, transitory.<sup>4</sup>

1. Whittemore v. Cutter, 1 Gall. 429.

The construction of the statute, however, if remedial must be liberal. See also Bowditch v. Boston, 101 U. S. 16.

2. Dennick v. R. Co., 103 U. S. 11.

The fact that the right of action is given by statute does not vary the principle. Ex parte Van Riper, 20 Wend. 614.

Where a statute requires a citizen to erect a fire-escape, or imposes any absolute duty, any person damaged by the non-performance may maintain an action. Willey v. Mulledy, 78 N. Y. 310.

3. Rev. Stat. § 5198—designating courts in which national banks may be sued—will be construed as referring to transitory actions only. Actions local in their nature may be maintained in the proper State court against a national banking association in a county or city other than where it is established. Casey v. Adams, 102 U. S. 66.

4. Henwood v. Cheeseman, 3 Serg. & Rawle (Pa.), 503.

Actions founded on contracts with respect to lands are transitory. Livingston v. Jefferson, 1 Brock. 203.

What have been held Local.—Trespass or nuisance to real estate. Sumner v. Finnegan, 15 Mass. 284; Livingston v. Jefferson, 1 Brock. 203.

Trespass quare clausum. Roach v. Damson, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 425.

Replevin. Robinson v. Mead, 7 Mass. 353.

Covenant of seizin. Clarkson v. Gifford, 1 Cai. (N. Y.) 5.

Contract for conveyance of land. Parker v. McAllister, 14 Ind. 12.

Debt on a judgment in a court of the State. Smith v. Clark, 1 Ark. 63; Barner v. Kenyon, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) Cas. 381. Action for obstructing a way. Crook v. Pitcher, 61 Md. 510.

What held Transitory.—Actions on contracts and for personal injuries, and for injuries to personal property. Glen v. Hodges, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 67; Gardner v. Thomas, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 134; Shaver v. White, 6 Munf. (Va.) 112; Northern, etc., v. R. Co. v. Scholl, 16 Md. 331.

Trespass quare clausum, in Virginia. Livingston v. Jefferson, 1 Brock. 203.

Replevin, in Pennsylvania. Powell v. Smith, 2 Watts (Pa.), 126.

Account for rents and profits of land. Lewis v. Martin, 1 Day (Conn.), 263.

Debt and covenant between lessor and lessee for recovery of rent. Henwood v. Cheeseman, 3 Serg. & Rawle (Pa.), 503; Lienow v. Ellis, 6 Mass. 331; Birney v. Haim, 2 Litt. (Ky.) 263.

Bill for rescinding contract for land. Lewis v. Morton, 5 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 3.

Assault and battery. Watts v. Thomas, 2 Bibb. (Ky.) 458; Redgrave v. Jones, 1 Har. & M. (Md.) 195.

Action against a railroad company for killing stock. Illinois, etc., R. Co. v. Swearinger, 33 Ill. 289.

Actions against a town to recover damages caused by defects in highways. Titus v. Frankfort, 15 Me. 89.

Bill in equity to enjoin trespass on realty by felling timber. Powell v. Cheshire, 17 Ga. 357.

An action local at common law may be brought in a court having jurisdiction by statute. Curtis v. Attwood, 51 Conn. 169.

The New York statute relative to locality of actions applies only to causes arising in the State. Actions to recover damages for negligence are personal and transitory, and may be brought wherever the defendant can be found. Barney v. Bumstenbinder, 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 212.

An original action lies in Massachusetts against the members of a joint-stock company as partners, though the statute of the State in which the company existed provided that suits against joint-stock companies should be prosecuted in the name of the president or treasurer. The action under the statute is local. Gott v. Dinsmore, 111 Mass. 45.

A suit to subject assets descended to the heir, to the payment of his ancestor's debts must be prosecuted in the place in which the property is situate by equitable proceedings. Williams v. Ewing, 31 Ark. 229.

15. Discontinuance.—A discontinuance does not operate to prevent a subsequent suit for the same cause of action in every case.<sup>1</sup> Plaintiff has absolute right to discontinue at common law before or after issue joined and without leave of court.<sup>2</sup>

(a) Termination.—A suit does not end before complete satisfaction of or discharge from the judgment.<sup>3</sup>

ACTUAL is something real, in opposition to constructive or speculative,—something “existing in act.”<sup>4</sup>

Transitory actions upon contracts can be brought in any county of the State where service can be had. 46 Mich. 552.

Action on a certificate entitling plaintiff to interest in certain real property and dividends, title being in defendants as trustees, is transitory. Roche v. Marvin, 92 N. Y. 398.

A life-insurance company may be sued in the county where the person insured resided, under an act requiring insurance companies to be sued in county where “property insured” was. Quinn v. Fidelity Beneficial Assoc., 100 Pa. St. 382.

1. Bingham v. Wilkins, Crabbe, 50; Holmes v. The Lodemia, Crabbe, 434; Gibson v. Gibson, 20 Pa. 9; Steelman v. Sites, 35 Pa. St. 216; Bloss v. Plymale, 3 W. Va. 393.

Arbitration.—A submission to arbitration is a discontinuance unless there is some agreement. Norwood v. Stephens, 7 Coldw. (Tenn.) 1.

Where pending a suit a submission to arbitration was made, and on award a discontinuance, it was held regular, but no bar to a second action. Cunningham v. Craig, 53 Ill. 252.

Agreement to arbitrate made out of court operates as a discontinuance. Eddings v. Gillespie, 12 Heisk. (Tenn.) 548.

This is not affected by Wisconsin Code. Noble v. Strachan, 32 Wis. 314; Bertschy v. McLeod, 32 Wis. 205; McLeod v. Bertschy, 33 Wis. 205.

2. The right to discontinue terminates when the action is ready for judgment, though not formally entered. Carleton v. Darcy, 43 N. Y. Super. Ct. 373.

Discontinuance against two joint wrongdoers on a consideration paid by one is not a bar for the same cause against the other. Barrett v. Third Ave. R. Co., 45 N. Y. 628.

Terms.—The court may exercise its discretion as to the terms on which a discontinuance is allowed. Wilder v. Boynton, 63 Barb. (N. Y.) 547.

Assent.—Plaintiff may discontinue without assent of defendant, but cannot thereby deprive him of any rights which he may possess. Cunningham v. White, 45 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 486.

Time.—Discontinuance cannot be obtained after verdict in favor of one defendant who has set up a separate defence and before verdict as to other defendants. Meador v. Dollar Savings Bank, 56 Ga. 605.

Fraud.—Discharge of an action obtained by fraud or misrepresentation to prejudice of plaintiff not valid. Larabee v. Sewall, 66 Me. 376.

3. Walton v. Sugg, Phil. (N. Car.) L. 98; Capehart v. Van Campen, 10 Minn. 158.

4. State v. Wells, 31 Conn. 210.

Fraud, Actual and Constructive (distinguished).—“Actual fraud implies deceit, artifice, trick, design, some direct active operation of the mind. Constructive fraud is indirect, and may be implied from some other act, or omission to act, which may be, in moral contemplation, entirely innocent; but which, without the explanation or actual proof of its innocence, is evidence of fraud.” People v. Kelly, 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 457. Fraud may be actual or constructive. Actual fraud consists in any kind of artifice by which another is deceived. Constructive fraud consists in any act of omission contrary to legal or equitable duty, trust, or confidence justly reposed which is contrary to good conscience and operates to the injury of another. Jackson v. Jackson, 47 Ga. 99, 109.

Actual Possession.—Possession means simply the owning or having a thing in one's own power; it may be actual or it may be constructive. Actual possession exists where the thing is in the immediate occupancy of the party; constructive is that which exists in contemplation of law without actual personal occupation. Brown v. Volkening, 64 N. Y. 76, 80. “Actual possession,” as a legal phrase, is put in opposition to the other phrase “possession in law,” or constructive possession. Actual possession is the same as pedis possessio or pedis positio; and these mean a foothold on the land, an actual entry, a possession in fact, a standing upon it, an occupation of it, as a real demonstrative act done. It is the contrary of a possession in law, which follows in the wake of title, and is called constructive possession. Churchill v. Underdonk, 59 N. Y. 134, 136. See Jackson v. Sellick, 8 J. R. 262; Wagoner v. Hastings, 5 Pa. St. 300. "Actual possession" is that which is accompanied with the real and effectual enjoyment of an estate with the reception of its fruits, and is contradistinguished from imaginary or fictitious possession. Suffol v. Hepburn, 1 Cal. 263. "Actual possession" as much consists of a present power and right of dominion as an actual corporal presence. Min-turn v. Burr, 16 Cal. 107, 109. By "actual possession" is meant a subjection to the will and dominion of the claimant, and is usually evidenced by occupation—by a substantial inclosure—by cultivation, or by appropriate use, according to the particular locality and quality of the property. Coryell v. Cain, 16 Cal. 567, 573. "Actual possession" of land is the purpose to enjoy, united with or manifested by such visible acts, improvements, or inclosures as will give to the locator the absolute and exclusive enjoyment of it. Staminger v. Andrews, 4 Nev. 59, 68. There are two kinds of possession of real property known to the law—actual and constructive. It is "actual possession" when in the immediate occupancy of the party. It is actual when the owner goes upon the land to take possession, and exercises acts of ownership over it. It is actual also where one having the title is in possession of lands by his tenant, agent, or steward. Fleming v. Maddox, 30 Iowa, 240. In the case cited (Churchill v. Underdonk, 59 N. Y. 134) actual possession was interpreted to mean an actual occupation of the same; in other words, a possession in fact as contradistinguished from that constructive one which the legal title draws after it. The correctness of that construction is apparent. The word "actual" in the statute is specially significant. It is plainly used in opposition to "virtual" or "constructive," and means an open, visible occupancy. Cleveland v. Crawford, 7 Hun (N. Y.), 616, 619. Cf. Orme's Case, L. R. 8 C. P. 281; Hadfield's Case, ibid. 306. The occupation of pine land by annually making turpentine on it is such an "actual possession" as will oust a constructive possession by one claiming merely under a superior paper title. Bynum v. Carter, 4 Ired. N. C. 310. See Wolf v. Ament, 1 Grant's Cases, 150. By "actual possession," as the terms are here used, is meant that possession which is accompanied by the real and effectual enjoyment of the property. Davis v. Water Works, 57 Cal. 543. The words "actual possession" have two separate and distinct meanings which should not be confounded; yet some courts have confounded them, but we trust this court will not follow such examples. "Actual possession" is used as opposed to "constructive possession," such possession as the law construes to be in a man when there is no real possession. In this sense of the words actual possession, the possession of my tenant, agent, or steward is my "actual possession"—that is to say, the possession is actual and not constructive. But actual possession has another meaning. It means a possession continued from day to day; such a possession as when it is interfered with needs a summary remedy. This is the sense in which actual possession is used in the Code. Langworthy v. Myers, 4 Iowa, 18, 27. Cf. Neubrandt v. State, 53 Wis. 89. The "actual possession" mentioned in the Maine statutes of 1853, c. 34, § 1, is a possession which is open, notorious, and adverse in its character, and does not differ from that mentioned in the R. S. of 1840, c. 45, § 23, excepting as to the time of its continuance. Peabody v. Hewett, 52 Me. 33, 45.

Actual and Continued Change of Possession.—In the statute of frauds, the words "actual and continued" are applied to the change of possession. They mean an open, public change of possession which is to continue and be manifested continually by outward and visible signs, such as render it evident that the possession of the judgment debtor has ceased. He must cease from the apparent as well as real ownership. Topping v. Lynch, 2 Robertson (N. Y.), 484, 488, approved Steele v. Benham, 84 N. Y. 634. Cf. Camp v. Camp, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 628; Randall v. Parker, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 73; Grant v. Lewis, 14 Wis. 487; Brunswick v. McClay, 7 Neb. 137; Steele v. Benham, 84 N. Y. 634; Stevens v. Irwin, 15 Cal. 503.

Actual Delivery.—"Actual delivery" consists in the giving real possession of the thing sold to the vendee or his servants, or special agents, who are identified with him in law, and represent him. Bolin v. Huffnagle, 1 Rawle (Pa.), 1, 19.

Actual Notice is such as has been proved to have been given to a party directly and personally, or such as he is presumed to have received personally, because the evidence within his knowledge was sufficient to put him upon inquiry; and actual notice may be proved by the facts of the case from which it can be inferred. Johnson v. Dooly, 72 Ga. 297.

The "actual notice" required by the statute is not synonymous with actual knowledge. We think the true rule is, that notice must be held to be actual when the subsequent purchaser has actual knowledge of such facts as would "put a prudent man upon inquiry which, if prosecuted with ordinary diligence, would lead to actual notice of the right or title in conflict with that which he is about to purchase." Brinkman v. Jones, 44 Wis. 498, 519.

We will take leave of this point by remarking that it would, perhaps, be more accurate to say that actual notice, in the case we have been considering, is shown when the proof, positive or presumptive, authorizes the clear and satisfactory conclusion that the purchaser had knowledge of the encumbrance, or would have had it if he had not wilfully declined to search for it, and thus his conscience is affected by it. Jordan v. Pollock, 4 Ga. 145, 158. "Actual notice" does not require positive and certain knowledge, such as seeing the deed; but that is sufficient notice, if it be such as men usually act upon in the ordinary affairs of life. When it is shown that purchasers are affected with a knowledge of such circumstances, then the foundation is laid from which the inference of "actual notice" may be drawn. Beattie v. Butler, 21 Mo. 313, 323. Cf. Curtis v. Munday, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 405; Vaughn v. Tracy, 22 Mo. 415; Masterson v. West End R. Co., 5 Mo. App. 64.

The Kansas Code, concerning the opening-up of judgments rendered upon service by publication, provides as one condition that the party shall "make it appear to the satisfaction of the court, by affidavit, that during the pendency of the action he had no actual notice thereof in time to appear in and make his defence." To constitute the "actual notice" specified in the statute, it is not necessary that the defendant be fully informed as to time of commencing suit, the court in which it is commenced, the property that has been attached, the exact amount claimed, the day named for answer, or other details of the action. It is enough that he is distinctly and clearly notified that a suit has been commenced and is pending against him, and notified from such a source and within such a time that by the exercise of ordinary and reasonable care and prudence he can ascertain all details and make his defence. Beckwith v. Douglas, 25 Kan. 229.

Actual Total Loss is where the subject insured wholly perishes, or its recovery is rendered irretrievably hopeless; a constructive total loss takes place when the subject insured is not wholly destroyed, but its destruction is rendered highly probable, and its recovery, though not hopeless, yet exceedingly doubtful. Butt v. Brewers and Malsters' Ins. Co., 9 Hun (N. Y.), 383.

An actual total loss is where the vessel ceases to exist in specie; becomes a "mere congeries of planks," incapable of being repaired; or where, by the peril insured against, it is placed beyond the control of the insured, and beyond his power of recovery. Globe Ins. Co. v. Sherlock, 25 Ohio St. 50.

A cargo was insured for $2339, "only against general average and absolute total loss." The ship was wrecked and the cargo sold for salvage, after payment of which and costs there was left $750. Held, that the insurers were not liable. Gould v. Louisiana Mut. Ins. Co., 20 La. Ann. 259.

Actual Cash Payment.—The provision of a statute requiring a limited partner to contribute in "actual cash payments," is not violated by a payment in checks of third persons, it being conceded that they represented cash, and that the amount actually went into the firm business. Hogg v. Orgill, 34 Pa. St. 344.

Contra: authorizing a firm to apply for its benefit, and as part of its capital, United States bonds payable to bearer in the hands of a bailee, is not "an actual cash payment as capital" by a special partner, even though subsequently the bonds are applied for the benefit of the firm, and realize more than the necessary amount in cash. Haggerty v. Foster, 103 Mass. 17. Cf. Pierce v. Bryant, 5 Allen, 91; Haviland v. Chase, 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 283.

Actual Cash Value.—In an insurance policy the term "actual cash value" means the sum of money the insured goods would have brought for cash, at the market price, at the time when and the place where they were destroyed. Mack v. Lancashire Ins. Co., 4 Fed. Rep. 59. Cf. Wolfe v. Howard Ins. Co., 7 N. Y. 583.

Actual Cost.—It is apparent that the terms "actual cost," "real cost," and "prime cost," used in these sections, are phrases of equivalent import, and mean the true and real price paid for the goods upon a genuine bona-fide purchase. United States v. Sixteen Packages, 2 Mason, 48. Cf. Alfonso v. U. S., 2 Story, 421. Under a lease between two railroads, whereby, when extra trains were required, the lessee was to be allowed "the actual cost of running the same," it was held that the term "actual cost" meant money actually paid out. Lexington, etc., R. Co. v. Railroad Co., 9 Gray (Mass.), 226.

Actual Determination.—A judgment of affirmance by default is not an "actual determination." McMahon v. Rauhr, 47 N. Y. 67. Cf. Caughy v. Smith, ibid. 244; Frank v. Benner, 3 Daly, 422. A remittitur controls the court below, and a judgment in pursuance of it cannot be said to be an "actual determination." Wilkins v. Earle 42 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 253.

Actual Market Value.—The market value of goods is the price at which the owner of them, or the producer of them, holds them for sale—the price at which they are freely offered in the market; such prices as he is willing to receive if the goods are sold in the ordinary course of trade; the price which the purchaser must pay to get the goods. That is the "actual market value." Cases of Champagne, 1 Ben. 241. Cf. Quarter Casks of Sherry Wine, 2 Ben. 249; Six Cases of Ribbons, 3 Ben. 536.

Actual Military Service.—The term service, in its restricted sense, is the exercise of military functions in the enemy's country in the time of war, or the exercise of military functions in the soldier's own State or country in case of insurrection or invasion; and in this sense the words of the statute, "actual military service," should be understood. Van Deuzer v. Estate of Gordon, 39 Vt. 111. A person in the naval service of the United States is not within the "actual military service." Abrahams v. Bartlett, 18 Iowa, 513. By the insertion of the words "actual military service," the privilege, as respects the British soldier, is confined to those who are on an expedition. Drummond v. Parish, 3 Curteis, 522, 542. But having marched into the enemy's country, from which he never returned, being encamped among a hostile population, and acting in conjunction with soldiers who were confronted by the rebel army, although he was in winter quarters, and not at the time of writing occupied with any present movement of the troops, but was apparently on some service detached from his own regiment, we cannot say that he was not a soldier "in actual service." Leathers v. Greenacre, 53 Me. 561, 573. "Actual military service" is confined to those who are on an expedition. A soldier at home on furlough cannot make a valid nuncupative will within the provision made in favor of soldiers in actual military service. Smith's Will, 6

Phila. 104. Cf. White v. Repton, 3 Curteis, 818; Gould v. Safford's Estate, 39 Vt. 498.

Actual Occupation.—By "actual occupant," in designating the individual against whom an action of ejectment might be brought, was intended no more than the "tenant in possession," as that term was used in the former practice. Occupant is he that has possession, one who has the actual use or possession of a thing. A soldier of the United States, claiming to be in charge, under superior officers, of real property, as property of the United States, is not the actual occupant, and an action cannot be maintained against him. People v. Ambrecht, 11 Abb. Pr. 97. An owner of land is not in the actual occupancy of the same, within the meaning of § 49 of the act concerning private corporations (ch. 23 Gen. Stat. p. 203), unless he is an actual resident thereon. Hunt v. Smith, 9 Kan. 137, 145. Cf. Smith v. Sanger, 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 360.

Actual Ouster.—By "actual ouster" is not meant a physical eviction; but a possession attended with such circumstances as to evince a claim of exclusive right and title, and a denial of the right of the other tenants to participate in the profits. Burns v. Byrne, 45 Iowa, 285.

Actual Residence.—Although a party may derive his title to different tracts of lands from different sources, yet if the tracts adjoin one another and are all in one inclosure, and there is no one but the owner residing thereon, such residence is an "actual residence" upon all the tracts. Wharton v. Bunting, 73 Ill. 16.

Actually Sold.—When are lands "actually sold" at a tax sale so as to entitle the treasurer to his fees? Clearly when the sale is completed; when he has collected from the purchaser the amount of the bid. Miles v. Miller, 5 Neb. 269; cf. Fredelley v. Disereus, 26 Ohio, 312.

Actual Settler.—I have before explained who may be an "actual settler" to demand a warrant—namely, one who has gone upon and occupied land with a bona-fide intention of an actual present residence; although he should have been compelled to abandon his settlement, by the public enemies, in the first stages of his settlement. But actual settlement intended by the ninth section (Act 3d April, 1792—3, Smith's Laws, Penn. 209) consists in clearing, fencing, cultivating, two acres of ground, at least, on each hundred acres, erecting a house thereon for the habitation of man, and a residence of five continued years next following his first

ADDITION—ADDITIONAL.

ADDITION—ADDITIONAL.—These words denote the idea of joining or uniting one thing to another.<sup>1</sup>

settling, if he shall so long live. This kind of settling more properly deserves the name of improvements, as the different acts to be performed clearly import. This will satisfactorily explain what at first appeared to be an absurdity in that part of the proviso which declares that "if such actual settler shall be prevented from making such actual settlements." Per Washington, J., Balfour v. Meade, 1 Wash. C. C. Rep. (U. S.) 18, 26.

Actual Damages.—The "actual damages" sustained by the patentee are, according to the fourteenth section of the act of July 4, 1836 (5 U. S. Stat. at Large, 123), to be the sum fixed by the verdict. Stephens v. Felt, 2 Blatchf. 37.

Actual Control, Care, or Management.—The Texan code does not mean by these words, actual possession. A person in constructive possession of an animal upon the range—as an agent and the like—may exercise "actual control, care, or management" without even reducing the animal into actual possession, and, as we have seen, may thus constitute the owner within the meaning of the law. Moore v. State, 8 Tex. App. 496.

Actually Occupied.—A person rented a house in which he resided. He let out beds by the night. Held, a person who lives in a house, and merely lets out parts of it in the manner described, does not cease to be the actual occupier. King v. Inhabitants, 4 Ad. & Ell. 497. Cf. King v. Inhabitants, ibid. 612. A let a shed contiguous to a passage-way between the shed and A's store, and received the rent, knowing that the shed was used for gaming. Held, that A did not "actually occupy" the shed. Com. v. Dean, 1 Pick. 387.

Actually Employed.—Where 6 and 7 Vict. c. 73, § 12, required that an applicant for admission as an attorney, during the whole time of service under the articles shall be "actually employed" in the business of an attorney, it was held, that a period of eleven months during which the clerk had been absent, through sickness, could not be counted as service, as he had not been "actually employed" as an attorney or solicitor during the whole of the five years. Ex parte Moses, L. R. 9 Q. B. 1.

Actual Seizure.—An execution debtor was possessed of a mansion-house and grounds, and also of a farm, which, with the exception of two outlying fields, adjoined the grounds and formed part of one block with them. The farm was in the debtor's occupation, although the accounts were kept distinct. The farmhouse was a mile distant from the mansion-house in a direct line. On the 19th of May a writ of f. fa. was executed at the mansion-house by the under-sheriff, who informed persons in charge there, including the steward of the estate, that all the goods on the estate were seized; and a man was left in possession. No act of seizure was done at the farmhouse or upon the farm on that day, the under-sheriff intending what he had done to be a seizure of the whole; but on the following day a man was put in possession at the farm-house. The goods on the farm were claimed by assignees under a bill of sale made for an antecedent debt, and for the purpose of giving it a preference over the execution, and which was executed on the evening of the 19th after the seizure at the mansion-house was completed. At the time of the execution of the bill of sale, it was known to the solicitor of the assignees that the judgment creditor had threatened to seize, and that a writ of f. fa. on the same judgment had been executed in another county; and it was expected by him, but not known, that a writ had been delivered to the sheriff of the county in which the goods lay. Held, that what was done on the 19th of May amounted to an "actual seizure" of the goods on the farm and at the farm-house. Gladstone v. Padwick, L. R. 6 Ex. 203.

1. Where a court orders a bond to be given "in addition to" the one originally taken, such additional bond does not supersede the original one. Walter v. McSherry, 21 Mo. 76. The term "additional" embraces the idea of joining or uniting one thing to another, so as thereby to form an aggregate. We add by bringing things together. "Additional security" is that which, united with or joined to the former, is deemed to make it as an aggregate sufficient as a security from the beginning. 53 Miss. 626, 645.

Addition erected to a Building.—An "addition erected to a former building," to constitute a building within the meaning of the mechanics' lien law (Nix. Dig. 487, § 5), must be a lateral addition. It must occupy ground without the limits of the building to which it constitutes an addition; so that the lien shall be upon

ADDITION—ADDRESS OF LETTERS.

ADDRESS OF LETTERS.—By the law of negotiable instruments the mailing of a notice of dishonor, properly addressed to an indorser or drawer, will in cases where such notice may be given by mail, be deemed sufficient notification of dishonor as to such drawer or indorser.<sup>1</sup>

the building formed by the addition, and the land upon which it stands. Updike v. Skillman, 27 N. J. Law, 131. It is very evident that the legislature meant by the word "addition" (Nix. Dig. 487, § 5) to embrace something which in common parlance would not be designated as a building, or the phraseology would not have been used, that such addition should be considered a building for the purposes of the act. A piazza is an "addition" to a building within the meaning of the 5th section. Whitenack v. Noe, 11 N. J. Eq. 321.

Any Addition of Building.—Where the owner of two adjoining messuages conveys one of them, and it is agreed by him and his grantee that if the latter shall make "any addition of building" westwardly, he shall not extend it northwardly beyond a certain line, the grantee is not thereby restricted from raising his building higher, though by so doing he interrupts the access of light and air to the windows of the grantor's house. Atkins v. Bordman, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 457.

All Future Erections or Additions.—The right of a tenant to remove trade fixtures may doubtless be qualified by the covenants in the lease. But we are of opinion that the covenant to deliver up in good order "all future erections or additions" to or upon the premises is limited, in purpose and effect, to new buildings erected or old buildings added to; and cannot be extended so as to deprive the tenants of the right to remove trade fixtures, much less personal property, put by them upon the premises during the term. Holbrook v. Chamberlin, 116 Mass. 155, 162.

1. 2 Dan. Neg. Instr. (3d Ed.) § 1021; 2 Edwards Bills & Notes (3d Ed.), § 812; Dobree v. Eastwood, 3 C. & P. 250; Stocken v. Collin, 7 M. & W. 515; Friend v. Wilkinson, 9 Gratt. (Va.) 31; Shelburne Falls Bank v. Townsley, 102 Mass. 177; Miller v. Hackley, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 375; Knott v. Venable, 42 Ala. 186; Bell v. Hagerstown Bank, 7 Gill (Md.), 216; True v. Collins, 3 Allen (Mass.), 438.

The full name of the party to whom the notice is to be sent, and the name of the town or city, is a sufficient address. Ames's Cas. Bills & Notes; True v. Collins, 3 Allen (Mass.), 440.

The address must not be too general. A notice of dishonor, sent to a large city, addressed to an indorser by his surname only, is insufficient. 2 Ames's Cas. Bills and Notes, p. 849; Walter v. Haynes, Ry. & Moo. 149; True v. Collins, 3 Allen (Mass.), 438.

It has been said that such a notice would be insufficient, although sent to a small town. True v. Collins, 3 Allen (Mass.), 438.

A notice addressed to "W. E. Rose, Columbia, S. C.," held sufficient. Benedict v. Rose, 16 S. Car. 629.

Where the name of the indorser is a very common one—John Smith, for instance—it is doubtful if an address giving the full name would be sufficient where the notice is sent to a large city. Story Prom. Notes (7th Ed.), § 346.

Where there are several towns of the same name in different States, the name of the State must be added, if known. Story Prom. Notes (7th Ed.), § 348; Beckwith v. Smith, 22 Me. 125.

A notice addressed to a post-office by a name other than its official name is sufficient, if such name was one by which the post-office was commonly known. Bank of Geneva v. Howlett, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 328.

"Where the party to be charged has added to his signature the name of a place, it is sufficient in addressing the notice to follow the signature and name given." 2 Ames's Cas. Bills and Notes, p. 849. See Mann v. Moors, Ry. & Moo. 249; Burmeister v. Barron, 17 Q. B. 828.

Where a mistake is made in the address, but the notice is nevertheless duly received, it will be sufficient. Walter v. Haynes, Ry. & Moo. 149. Unless the error in the address is calculated to mislead the party to be notified. Story Promissory Notes (7th Ed.), § 347.

If the indorser be dead at the time of dishonor, notice must be sent to his executor or administrator, if it can be ascertained on reasonable inquiry who or where he is. 2 Dan. Neg. Instr. (3d Ed.) § 1000; Oriental Bank v. Blake, 22 Pick.

ADEQUATE—AD FILUM AQUÆ.

ADEQUATE.—That which is sufficient for the purpose required.<sup>1</sup>

AD FILUM AQUÆ.—To the thread of the stream; to the middle of the stream.<sup>2</sup> (See also FILUM AQUÆ.)

(Mass.) 206; Barnes v. Reynolds, 4 How. (Miss.) 114; Cayuga Co. Bank v. Bennett, 5 Hill (N. Y.), 236.

Where no legal representative had been appointed at the time of dishonor, a notice addressed to "The Legal Representatives of James M. Boyd, deceased, Lynchburg," was held sufficient. Boyd's Adm'r v. City Savings Bank, 15 Gratt. (Va.) 501; Pillow v. Hardeman, 3 Humph. (Tenn.) 538.

It seems that a notice addressed in the name of the deceased would also be sufficient. Stewart v. Eden, Executrix, 2 Caines R. (N. Y.) 121.

But a notice addressed to "the estate" of the deceased has been held insufficient, as that term might apply to the heir-at-law as well as to the executor or administrator. Massachusetts Bank v. Oliver, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 557.

Notice of dishonor may be addressed to either the residence or the place of business of the person to be notified. Bank of Columbia v. Lawrence, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 578. See U. S. Bank v. Hatch, 6 Pet. 250; Exch. Co. v. Boyer, 3 Rob. (La.) 307; Adams v. Wright, 14 Wis. 408; Stedman v. Gooch, 1 Esp. 3.

Where the person to be notified resides in one town and does business in another, neither of which is that where the person sending notice resides, notice may be sent by mail addressed to the person to be notified either at the town where he resides or that where he does business. Morton v. Westcott, 8 Cush. (Mass.) 425; Bank of Columbia v. Lawrence, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 578; Van Vechten v. Pruyn, 13 N. Y. 549.

Where the actual residence during a part of the year is different from the domicile of the person to be notified, notice may be sent addressed to such person at such place of actual residence. Thus a notice may be sent to a senator addressed to him at Washington while the senate is in session. Chouteau v. Daniel Webster, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 1.

1. Adequate Cause.—The expression "adequate cause" means such as would commonly produce a degree of anger, rage, resentment, or terror, in a person of ordinary temper, sufficient to render the mind incapable of cool reflection. Boyett v. State, 2 Tex. App. 93, 100. It may be that the judge below took the view of Paschal's Digest, article 2254, that there could be no "adequate cause" for passion beyond those stated in that article. If so, he was in error. Our supreme court says: "Articles 2251, 2252, 2253, and 2254, Paschal's Digest, are explanatory of article 2250. We do not understand that these explanations and examples are legislative restrictions, and that in no case can a homicide be reduced from murder to manslaughter unless the party can bring himself within the rules and examples given. We regard the law rather as giving instances or examples by which the mind could be rendered incapable of cool reflection. There may be other 'adequate causes' for sudden passion besides those instanced in the article." West v. State, 2 Tex. App. 460, 476. What amount of injury must be inflicted to produce the "adequate cause" specified in the statute cannot be fixed by any definite general rule, but must depend upon the particular circumstances of each particular case. The amount of the injury is therefore a question of fact for the determination of the jury, under proper instructions from the court. Williams v. State, 7 Tex. App. 396. Cf. Jones v. State, 10 Tex. App. 421.

Adequate Crossings.—But the law nowhere defines what constitutes the other "adequate crossings" which the statute authorizes, nor has it been determined, so far as we can discover, by judicial construction. Then, as an adequate crossing is to be constructed, and such crossing is not defined as matter of law, it must be determined as a question of fact. Gray v. Burlington, etc., R. Co., 37 Iowa, 119.

2. Bouvier's Law Dict.

Alluvion, whether it affects an accretion to the shore, or whether it forms islands, alters the position of the original filum aquæ, and it will always be located by taking the middle of a line, drawn at right angles from bank to bank, no matter how recently the bank may be formed. Miller v. Hepburn, 8 Bush (Ky.), 326; Clark v. Campau, 19 Mich. 329; Knight v. Wilder, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 202; Bay City Gas-light Co. v. Industrial Works, 28 Mich. 182; Stolp v. Hoyt, 44 Ill. 220; Deerfield v. Arms, 17 Pick. (Mass.) 41; Bonewits v. Wygant, 75 Ind. 41. See also ACCRETION.

ADHERING—ADJACENT.

ADHERING.—The use of this word has been confined to the expression "adhering to the king's enemies, or the enemies of the United States," in the description of the crime of treason.<sup>1</sup>

ADJACENT.—This word is distinguished from adjoining, inasmuch as it does not denote touching or contiguous to.<sup>2</sup>

The owner of property half a mile distant from a railway is not an "adjacent occupant or proprietor."<sup>3</sup>

1. Adhering to the king's enemies must of necessity be against the king; and, therefore, if an Englishman assist the French, being at war with us, and fight against the king of Spain, who is an ally of the king of England, this is treason, as adhering to the king's enemies against the king,—for the king's enemies are hereby strengthened and encouraged,—and so is within the express words of 25 Edw. III., of "adhering to the king's enemies." Vaughan's Case, 2 Salkeld, 634. Rebels, being citizens, are not enemies within the meaning of the constitution; hence a conviction for treason, in promoting a rebellion, cannot be sustained under that branch of the constitutional definition which speaks of "adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort." U. S. v. Greathouse, 2 Abbott (U. S.), 364.

2. Adjacent, strictly speaking, does not mean adjoining; it means that it shall be in the neighborhood, or convenient, or near to. Henderson v. Long, 1 Cooke (Tenn.), 128. The interpretations given to the word "adjacent" by Walker are "lying close," "bordering upon something." The legislature evidently intended to restrict the grant to the owners of the lands bordering upon, or adjoining the water covering the subject of the proposed patent. The People v. Schermerhorn, 19 Barbour, 540, 556. The term "adjacent owner" as used in the act, to designate the persons entitled to purchase lands under water, is not limited to the owner of the land lying next to it, e.g., the owner of the land between high and low water line, but means the owner of the upland which is bounded by the river. Mayor, etc., of New York v. Hart, 16 Hun, 380. Under the act of 3d of April, 1832, for the opening of streets, etc., in New Orleans, which provides that a contribution to pay the expense of opening shall be assessed on the lots and premises "adjacent to" and fronting that part of the street so opened, straightened, or improved, it was held that the only lots subject to assessment were those to which a new front was given or added to by the new street. "We think," said the court, "the word adjacent, applied to lots, is synonymous with the word contiguous. In another and more general relation, it might have a more extended meaning; but in the sense in which it is used—to wit, to discriminate as to locality from other lots—we can only give this meaning to it in a statute like this, which undertakes to divest a right of property, and is consequently subjected to strict rules of interpretation." Re Municipality for Opening Roffignac Street, 7 La. Ann. 76.

3. Continental Imp. Co. v. Phelps, 47 Mich. 299.

Hoyt, J., in the case of the U. S. v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 29 Alb. L. J. 24, construing the word "adjacent" in the company's charter, which grants the privilege of cutting timber from "adjacent" public lands for use in the construction of the work, held that it has a broader meaning than "adjoining," and is synonymous with "neighboring," and said: "Congress, in enacting section 2 of defendant's charter, saw fit to use the word 'adjacent,' and in determining the intent of this section we must investigate the meaning of the word 'adjacent' as there used. Sometimes it has a meaning given it which is synonymous with the word 'adjoining,' but it is as often applied in a more extended sense, as in the 'vicinity' or the 'neighborhood' of, while 'adjoining' and 'contiguous' are never used in such enlarged sense. Congress, then, having selected from several synonymous words the one having, as applied to the subject in the section in which it is used, the broadest meaning and most extended signification of the whole, must be held to have intended the broadest rather than the more restricted signification to be given to it in the interpretation of said section, and therefore to hold that this section restricted the defendant to lands adjoining or contiguous to the line of the road, would be contrary to all rules of interpretation, while if we apply the usual rules we must hold that its rights are extended by this section beyond lands adjoining or contiguous to its line of road to lands anywhere in the vicinity or neighborhood of its said line of road. Was the land in question in the neighborhood of defendant's line of road, within the meaning of

ADJOINING.

ADJOINING.—Contiguous, touching, in actual contact with. Where two towns touch at the corners, they are adjoining.<sup>1</sup>

section two? The design of this question was to allow the company to take timber from public lands to build its road, and when we once concede that under this section the defendant is authorized to go beyond adjoining lands, as the use of the word 'adjacent' compels us to do, it must follow that the use of the more enlarged word was for the benefit of the Northern Pacific R. Co., and it must be so construed by the court as to effect the object of its enactment. And we are of opinion that timber land nearest to the line of the road must be held to be neighboring timber land, even although there may intervene large tracts of land not timbered. If this be so, then under the facts of these cases, as above stated, the lands from which the timber in question was cut was in the neighborhood of the line of the road where it was used, and therefore 'adjacent' thereto, within the meaning of section two of the charter of the defendant Northern Pacific R. Co. Besides, under the facts proven in these cases, the lands in question would probably come within a more restricted use of the word 'adjacent,' for the line of defendant's road runs for several hundred miles through a country almost entirely destitute of timber, and the belt upon which this timber in question was cut was the first timber land near said road reached by it in the course of its construction; therefore though this timber be more than one hundred miles from the line of defendant's road, we are of the opinion that it must under the circumstances be held to be 'adjacent thereto,' within the meaning of section two of defendant's charter."

1. Ground cannot be properly said to "adjoin" a house unless it be absolutely contiguous, without anything between them: Rex v. Hodges, 1 Moody & Malkin, 341. Cf. Peverelly v. People, 3 Parker C. C. (N.Y.) 59. These two towns in fact are "next adjoining" in no other sense than that of touching at the corners. Holmes v. Carley, 31 N. Y. 289. The word "adjoining," in its etymological sense, means touching or contiguous, as distinguished from lying near or adjacent. In the Matter of Ward, 52 N. Y. 395, the words "along" and "adjoining" are used as synonymous terms. This is manifest from the immediate context, and from the use of the word "along" in the same connection, without the word "adjoining." Both words as used imply contiguity, contact. Walton v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 67 Mo. 56. But appellants say that adjoining does not mean to touch, but to be near to. We are of the opinion that the words "adjoining to the present boundaries" as used in this charter do not mean simply near to, but next to. Irna v. Pool, 46 Iowa, 256. The words "adjoining to or occupied with" are to be taken in connection and tend to explain each other: they mean something more than adjacent or contiguous, which they might be if there were a solid wall between, or were in another occupation. Devoe v. Commonwealth, 3 Metcalf (Mass.) 316, 327. The whole yard of a house of correction, though divided by a public street, against which it is suitably fenced and protected, must be regarded as adjoining or appurtenant. Com. v. Curley, 101 Mass. 24. Where, by agreement, a wall has been built on land dividing the property of an individual from that of a railway company, and the individual and the company are, by the same agreement, the joint owners of the land, on which the wall is built, that circumstance does not affect the individual, so as to prevent him from being considered an "adjoining" owner. Directors v. Blackmore, L. R. 4 Eng. & Irish App. Cas. 610. Lessees of lands separated from railroad land, by a private road, of which they had the exclusive right of user during their tenancies, held to be owners of "immediately adjoining land." Coventry v. London, etc., R. Co., L. R. 5 Eq. Cas. 104.

Holmes v. Carley, 31 N. Y. 289. The appellant owned premises separated from a street by a wall five feet high, belonging, together with the land on which it stood, to another person. The appellant had no direct access from his premises to the street, but in order to reach it had to pass for a short distance down a public footpath, or over other intervening land. Held, that the appellant was not the owner of premises "fronting, adjoining, or abutting" on the street within the meaning of s. 150 of the Public Health act, 1875, and therefore was not liable to contribute to the expenses of sewerage and paving the street under that section. Lightbound v. Bebington Local Board, L. R. 14 Q. B. 849.

A was the owner of three houses fronting a street called York Place, and adjoining or abutting at the rear upon a footpath at the end of a street called St. Julian St., which formed a cul-de-sac. The ground at the back of these houses was five feet above the level of St. Julian St., and the wall, which was the property

ADJOURN—ADJOURNMENT—ADJUDGED.

ADJOURN—ADJOURNMENT.—These words denote a continuance from day to day.<sup>1</sup>

ADJUDGED.—Deemed, held, declared. Usually applied to the declaration or sentence of a court.<sup>2</sup> of A, was about twelve feet high on the outside. There was no access from A's premises to St. Julian St. Held, that his premises "adjoined or abutted on" St. Julian St., and consequently that he was chargeable with his proportion of the expenses of paving, etc., that street. Newport U. S. Authority v. Graham, L. R. 9 Q. B. 183.

The defendants claim that "adjoining" means "near;" the prosecutors that it means, "touching," in contact with. The latter is the proper signification, and it is the more readily to be adopted in this case, because it thus restricts the grant of eminent domain, which is never to be extended by unnecessary implication. Akers v. N. N. J. R. Co., 43 N. J. Law, 110.

1. An "adjournment" is a putting off until another time or place. People v. Martin, 5 N. Y. 26. Where the constitution of Arkansas provided that "every order or resolution in which the concurrence of both houses of the General Assembly may be necessary, except on questions of adjournment, shall be presented to the governor, and before it shall take effect be approved by him" (art. vi. § 16), it was held: "An adjournment," says Mr. Blackstone, "is no more than a continuance of the session from one day to another, as the word itself signifies." The concurrent resolution had for its sole object the continuance of the session from the ninth of March, 1881, when it would have otherwise expired, till the nineteenth of the same month. This is clearly germane to the matter of "adjournment," and the resolution did not require the approval of the governor. Trammell v. Bradley, 37 Ark. 374, 379.

Adjourned Session.—The sole question in the cause is, whether the adjournment from the 16th of May to the fourth Monday in June was a continuation of the April term, or constituted a distinct term. But an "adjourned session" is the same session with that at which the adjournment was made. Mechanics' Bank v. Withers, 6 Wheaton (U. S.), 106.

Adjourned Term.—The "adjourned term," as its name manifestly imports, is but a continuation of the previous term; and although it is continued for the trial of the causes on a particular division, it by no means follows that the power of 'the court over the business which has been done, and the entries made, is taken away. It is the same term prolonged, and although prolonged for purposes specified in the order, and although the court, as a matter of justice to the counsel and suitors, would not take up any causes not set for trial at such "adjourned term," yet as its session or term has not finally closed, it has power over its record to make it conform to the truth, and to see that injustice is not done by allowing an erroneous judgment to stand against a party, but should, as in the case before us, micro motu, vacate it and set down the cause for a rehearing at the regular succeeding term. If the term has not closed and the court is still in session, it is not concluded by its previous order, but has power to rescind it, for so long as the term continues this power necessarily results. It is not like the case of a special, distinct term held after the regular term has been brought to a final close. In such case, the court would be concluded by the final adjournment. Van Dyke v. State, 22 Ala. 57. Cf. Keen v. Queen, 10 Q. B. 927.

3. Where a judgment read, "Whereupon, etc., it is considered by the court here that the said Z. P. be confined and imprisoned at hard labor in the State prison for the term of ten years," on objection that he was not by the court adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor, the court said: "Our statute does not require such language to be introduced either into the annunciation or record of the sentence. No judgment of the form contended for can anywhere be found. The word 'adjudged' is here used by the legislature, perhaps not very aptly, as synonymous with 'deemed,' which latter word is frequently found in correspondent places. They have so employed the word 'adjudged' in the act respecting lotteries, Rev. Laws 272, § 1. All lotteries shall be and are hereby adjudged to be common and public nuisances." State v. Price, 11 N. J. Law, 203, 217. Where a statute disqualifies as a witness any person who "shall, upon conviction, be adjudged guilty of perjury," a person is not rendered incompetent until by judgment sentence has been pronounced upon him; a verdict of guilty alone is not sufficient. In this case the court said: "The learned counsel for the plaintiff in error contends that there is no difference in meaning

ADMINISTRATION—ADMIRALTY.

ADMINISTRATION.—The management and settlement of the estate of a deceased person who has left no executor.

ADMEASUREMENT OF DOWER. See DOWER.

ADMINISTRATOR. See EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

ADMIRALTY. See SHIPPING.

1. History.
2. Jurisdiction of Colonial Courts.
3. Of U. S. Courts.
4. Over what Waters it extends.
5. Over Torts as affected by Place.
6. Over Internal Commerce.
7. Over Foreign Waters.
8. What Persons within.
9. What Vessels within.
10. Over Bridges, etc.
11. General Scope of Jurisdiction.
12. Contracts within Jurisdiction.
13. Contracts not Maritime.
14. Torts within Jurisdiction.
15. Prize Causes.
16. Jurisdiction Exclusive.
17. Maritime Lien.
18. Courts having Jurisdiction.
19. Procedure in Admiralty.
20. Actions in rem.
21. Actions in personam.
22. Joinder of Actions.
23. Pleadings.
24. Set-off and Recoupment.
25. Action Pending.
26. Evidence.
27. Trial.
28. Decree.
29. Restraint of Lower Court.

1. History.—The general method of admiralty procedure conforms rather to the civil than to the common law; hence it has been supposed that the admiralty jurisprudence of England, like between the words 'deemed' and 'adjudged' used in the penal enactments of the revised statutes, and urges that the word 'adjudged' in the section under consideration should be read as if written 'deemed.' It is, perhaps, enough to say that it, in fact, reads 'adjudged,' and that whatever difference there is between the two terms is in favor of our interpretation of the statute. Moreover, the phrase 'deemed' is not in its meaning, when used in legislative expression, so much more favorable to the plaintiff in error as to turn us from our view of the question. To 'damn' or 'condemn' is 'to deem, think, or judge any one to be guilty, to be criminal, to give judgment, or sentence, or doom of guilt; to adjudge, or declare the penalty or punishment.' (Rich. Dict. in voce Damn.) And 'judge not, that ye be not judged' of our New Testament is 'Nyle ye deme, that ghe be not demed' of Wicliffe." Blaufus v. People, 69 N. Y. 107. Where the condition of a bond was that it should be void "if the defendant pay all sums of money, damages, and cost that should be adjudged against him if the injunction should be dissolved," when the injunction was dissolved it was held, "It is clear that, within the terms of the condition of this bond, the amount of the judgment at law was not 'adjudged' against the defendant upon the dissolution of the injunction." Corder v. Martin, 17 Mo. 41. I think that the "sum adjudged" means the sum in respect of which the order of adjudication is made. In re Ricardo v. Board of Health, 2 Hurl. & H. 256, 264.

1. In Statute.—Crossman v. Crary, 37 Iowa, 684: "The word 'administration' means, as here used [in statute declaring administration shall not be originally granted after five years], the management of the estate of a decedent, and expresses the jurisdiction assumed by the proper probate court over it. This jurisdiction is assumed by the appointment of the administrator; when that is done administration is said to have been granted. It does not refer simply to the act of appointment of the administration, although that act is included in the thought expressed for 'administration;' management of the estate is assumed by the appointment."

Expenses of, in Statute.—Lester et al. v. Mathews, 56 Ga. 655: "Plaintiff further alleges that the consent verdict, and which sets out the fees to be paid to proponent's counsel, after 'expenses of administration,' meant by the expression 'expenses of administration' the fee of plaintiff and his associates—in law, a fee to resist by the heirs-at-law the settling up of a will: and if the words do not bear that signification in law, it asserts that the parties to the consent verdict so meant. . . . We do not think such a fee embraced in the meaning of those words."

that of the ecclesiastical courts, was originally an importation from the Latinized countries of the Continent,<sup>1</sup> and the exact time of its introduction has been fixed at the reign of Edward III.<sup>2</sup>

Later writers have asserted a more ancient origin for the English courts of admiralty, making them coeval with the tribunals of the common law, and originally cognizant of all litigated matters related to the sea.<sup>3</sup> But, however ancient and originally extensive this jurisdiction was, at and for a long time before the American Revolution the English admiralty was an inferior court not of record,<sup>4</sup> having a very limited jurisdiction,<sup>5</sup> and subject to humiliating correction by writ of prohibition issuing out of the King's Bench.

2. Jurisdiction of Colonial Courts.—The courts of vice-admiralty which existed in all the American colonies, administered by deputies of the governor or proprietary, under royal patent, exercised without hindrance a jurisdiction as wide as any writer has ever claimed for the ancient English admiralty.<sup>6</sup>

3. Jurisdiction of Courts of the United States.—Article 3, § 2 of the United States Constitution confers upon the courts of the United States cognizance "of all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction."

Under this grant of the organic law it is now well settled that "the jurisdiction in admiralty conferred by the Constitution on the Federal courts is that jurisdiction which had been and was being exercised in admiralty in this country prior to and at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, and not the jurisdiction of England nor that of Continental Europe."<sup>7</sup>

4. Jurisdiction, over what Waters it Extends.—It has never been

1. 1 Black Com. 80 et seq.

2. 3 Black Com. 69.

3. Benedict's Admiralty, ch. v.

4. 3 Black Com. 69.

5. See Benedict's Adm. 60, for an enumeration of the subjects of English admiralty jurisdiction, and id. ch. vi. for a history of the quarrel between the courts of common law and admiralty, resulting in the victory of the former and the curtailment of the jurisdiction of the latter, tempore James I. and Charles I.

6. "The commissions of the vice-admirals in the colonies in North America, insular and continental, contained a much larger jurisdiction than existed in England when they were granted." Waring v. Clarke, 5 How. p. 454.

See in Benedict's Adm. 69 the text of a commission granting Vice-Admiral Lord Cornbury jurisdiction in "all civil and maritime causes and . . . business civil and maritime whatsoever," arising in "the maritime parts whatsoever" of New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut. This is a larger power than any English judge dared to claim at that time (1701).

7. Per Billings, D. J., in Cope v. Vallette Dry Dock, 10 Fed. Repr. 142, citing Insurance Co. v. Dunham, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 1, and Ex parte Easton, 95 U. S. 68. This view of the admiralty jurisdiction of the United States has not obtained without much opposition. Story, J., propounded it in his celebrated judgment in De Lovio v. Boit, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 398 (1815); but many judges wished to assimilate the U. S. courts of admiralty to those of Great Britain. See The Thos. Jefferson, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 428; Ramsey v. Allegre, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 611; Steamboat Orleans v. Phœbus, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 175; Peyroux v. Howard, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 324. Judge Story's views, however, have triumphed, until the latest authority can assert that the admiralty system of the United States embraces "the water-borne commerce of the United States conducted on its internal navigable waters as well as on the high seas, and has grown to include all maritime services and contracts, and all injuries when inflicted upon such waters." Henry on Jurisdiction and Procedure, p. vi.

doubted but that admiralty has jurisdiction over the high seas,<sup>1</sup> which begin at low-water mark.<sup>2</sup>

The Federal courts early declared their jurisdiction to extend over waters within the body of a county<sup>3</sup> having any tidal movement, however slight.<sup>4</sup>

The act of 1845<sup>5</sup> purported to extend admiralty jurisdiction to certain cases arising on the "lakes and navigable waters connecting said lakes," and this statute has been held constitutional as a regulation of the powers of district courts sitting in admiralty; but if regarded as an attempt to confer a new jurisdiction, unconstitutional,—jurisdiction in all admiralty and maritime causes having been given to the U. S. courts by the Constitution itself, so that the legislature cannot lawfully diminish such jurisdiction, and naturally cannot enlarge it.<sup>6</sup>

By the case last cited, and numerous subsequent decisions, the Supreme Court of the United States has now established the doctrine that the constitutional grant extends admiralty jurisdiction not only over waters affected by the ebb and flow of the tide, but over all the navigable waters of the nation, and "wherever ships float and navigation successfully aids commerce, whether internal or external."<sup>7</sup> Canals are navigable waters within this rule.<sup>8</sup>

5. Jurisdiction over Torts as affected by Place.—To give admiralty jurisdiction in cases of tort, the wrong complained of must have occurred on the water; that the cause originated on the water is not enough if the damage actually occurred on shore.<sup>9</sup> But matters on land incidental to maritime occurrences are within the jurisdiction.<sup>10</sup>

6. Jurisdiction over Internal Commerce.—It was at one time supposed that matters arising upon voyages between ports of the

1. The Thomas Jefferson, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 428.

2. De Lovio v. Boit, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 398; U. S. v. Hamilton, 1 Mass. 152. Long Island Sound is a part of the high seas. The Martha Anne, Olc. (U. S.) 18. So also is the mouth of a tidal river a mile and a half wide. U. S. v. Smith, 3 Wash. (U. S.) 78. In criminal statutes, however, the phrase is used in contradistinction to landlocked ports, bays, and harbors, which, though subject to tidal ebb and flow, are within the jurisdiction of the governments of the surrounding countries. U. S. v. Wiltberger, 5 Wheat. (U. S.) 76; U. S. v. Wilson, 3 Blatchf. (U. S.) 435; U. S. v. Grush, 5 Mass. 290.

3. Waring v. Clarke, 5 How. (U. S.) 441.

4. Peyroux v. Howard, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 324.

5. 5 U. S. Stat. at Large, 726. As embodied in Rev. Stat. § 566, the portions of the act obnoxious to the decisions infra are omitted.

6. The Genesee Chief, 12 How. (U. S.) 443, overruling The Thomas Jefferson, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 428; Steamboat Orleans v. Phœbus, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 175.

7. The Hine v. Trevor, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 555; Fretz v. Bull, 12 How. (U. S.) 466; The Magnolia, 20 How. (U. S.) 295; The Moses Taylor, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 411; The Commerce, 1 Black (U. S.) 574; The Daniel Ball, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 557.

8. The Avon, 1 Brown Adm. 170; The Oler, 2 Hughes (U. S.), 12; Ex parte Boyer, 109 U. S. 629.

9. The Plymouth, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 20; The Maud Webster, 8 Bend. (U. S.) 547. Thus, an injury done to one standing on a wharf by a bale of cotton falling upon him from a ship's tackle alongside cannot be redressed in admiralty. The Mary Stewart, 10 Fed. Repr. 137.

10. Moxon v. The Fanny, 2 Pet. Adm. 309.

same State were not within the Federal admiralty jurisdiction,<sup>1</sup> but the contrary is now well settled.<sup>2</sup>

7. Jurisdiction over Foreign Waters.—Whenever the suit itself naturally falls within the admiralty jurisdiction, that the matters complained of occurred in foreign waters is immaterial.<sup>3</sup>

8. Jurisdiction What Persons within.—Jurisdiction does not depend on the citizenship of the parties,<sup>4</sup> and though courts are not bound to adjudicate litigations between foreigners,<sup>5</sup> they may lawfully do so,<sup>6</sup> and are bound to finally decide a controversy under which rights have already been acquired.<sup>7</sup> Such suits are usually entertained,<sup>8</sup> but libels by foreign seamen for wages against ships of their own nationality are discouraged;<sup>9</sup> yet completion or abandonment of voyage by the vessel, and wrongful discharge or maltreatment of the sailors will always induce the court to adjudicate their claims,<sup>10</sup> unless debarred by treaty.<sup>11</sup>

9. Jurisdiction—What Vessels within.—All ships or vessels are prima facie subject to the jurisdiction of admiralty; but ships of war belonging to a foreign friendly nation are not subject to seizure by the admiralty courts of the United States,<sup>12</sup> and vessels belonging to and engaged in the service of a city government have the same immunity.<sup>13</sup>

Barges,<sup>14</sup> canal-boats,<sup>15</sup> lighters and scows,<sup>16</sup> a floating elevator,<sup>17</sup> and a wharf-boat<sup>18</sup> are all vessels for purposes of jurisdiction; a log-raft,<sup>19</sup> a floating saloon,<sup>20</sup> and a dry-dock<sup>21</sup> are not.

10. Jurisdiction over Bridges, etc.—Since there can be no maritime lien upon things not engaged in navigation, admiralty cannot entertain a suit to recover damages for the wrongful obstruction of navigation by a bridge;<sup>22</sup> and the converse is equally true that in

1. vide the dictum of Nelson, J., in Moore v. American Transportation Co., 24 How. (U. S.) 6, and compare N. J. Steam Navigation Co. v. Merchants' Bank, 6 How. (U. S.) 344; Maguire v. Card, 21 How. (U. S.) 249.

2. The Commerce, 1 Black (U. S.), 574; The Belfast, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 624; Langley v. The Syracuse, 6 Blatchf. (U. S.) 2; The Elmira Shepherd, 8 Blatchf. (U. S.) 341.

3. The Sailor's Bride, Bro. Adm. 68; The Champion, Bro. Adm. 520; The Diana, 1 Lush. 539; The Courier, 1 Lush. 541; The Greifswald, Swab. 430.

4. Peyroux v. Howard, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 324.

5. Thomassen v. Whitwill, 9 Bend. (U. S.) 113; The Carolina, 14 Fed. Repr. 424.

6. The Sailor's Bride, Bro. Adm. 68.

7. Covert v. Wexford, 3 Fed. Repr. 577.

8. The Belgenland, 114 U. S. 355; The Maggie Hammond, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 435; The Russia, 3 Bend. (U. S.) 471.

9. Fry v. Cook, 14 Fed. Repr. 424; The Bucherdass Ambaidass, 1 Low. (U. S.) 569. Ordinarily seamen should apply to the consul of the ship's country for redress.

10. The Herwine, 3 Sawy. (U. S.) 80; The Lilian M. Vigus, 10 Bend. (U. S.) 385.

11. The Elwine Kreplin, 9 Blatchf. (U. S.) 438.

12. Long v. The Tampico and Progreso, 16 Fed. Repr. 491. This rule is one of general international law. The Constitution, L. R. 4 P. D. 39.

13. The Fidelity, 16 Blatchf. (U. S.) 596.

14. The Dick Keyes, 1 Biss. (U. S.) 408.

15. The Kate Tremaine, 5 Bend. (U. S.) 60.

16. The General Cass, 1 Bro. Adm. 337.

17. The Alabama, 22 Fed. Repr. 449.

18. The Old Natchez, 9 Fed. Repr. 476.

19. A Raft of Cypress Logs, 1 Flippin (U. S.), 543.

20. The Hendrik Hudson, 3 Bend. 419.

21. Cope v. Vallette Dry-dock, 10 Fed. Repr. 142.

22. The Rock Island Bridge, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 213.

admiralty the owners of a bridge cannot recover for injuries done their property by the negligent navigation of a passing vessel.<sup>1</sup> The same rule applies to injuries to and by wharves,<sup>2</sup> dry-docks,<sup>3</sup> buildings on piers,<sup>4</sup> and marine railways.<sup>5</sup>

11. General Scope of Jurisdiction.—The subjects of admiralty jurisdiction are "maritime contracts and maritime torts, including captures jure belli, and seizures on water for municipal and revenue forfeitures. Contracts, claims, or services purely maritime, and touching rights and duties appertaining to commerce and navigation, are cognizable in the admiralty, and so also are torts or injuries of a civil nature committed on navigable waters."<sup>6</sup>

The test of jurisdiction in tort is locality, and what waters and places are within it has been already shown.<sup>7</sup>

As to contracts, the criterion is their nature and subject-matter; and if they refer to maritime services, transactions, or casualties, they are within admiralty jurisdiction, without regard to the place where they are made or are to be performed.<sup>8</sup>

Jurisdiction is not lost by losing possession of a thing seized;<sup>9</sup> it extends to the distribution of things sold under judicial decree,<sup>10</sup> and assets so distributed can be marshalled as in equity;<sup>11</sup> and all matters incidental to a controversy are within the jurisdiction whenever the principal point is within it.<sup>12</sup>

12. Contracts within Jurisdiction.—That all "contracts, claims, and services essentially maritime"<sup>13</sup> are proper subjects for admiralty has always been admitted; but the rule is often difficult of application, and a study of the decisions in which jurisdiction over particular cases has been granted or denied is the only reliance in practice.

Average contribution is maritime in its nature, and therefore enforceable in admiralty;<sup>14</sup> but a personal action by shipowners against the consignees of cargo already delivered, for their contributive share, cannot be sustained.<sup>15</sup>

1. The Neil Cochran, 1 Bro. Adm. 162.

2. The Ottawa, 1 Bro. Adm. 356; The C. Accame, 20 Fed. Repr. 642.

3. Cope v. Vallette Dry-dock, 10 Fed. Repr. 142.

4. The Plymouth, 32 Wall. (U. S.) 20.

5. The Professor Morse, 23 Fed. Repr. 803.

Where the injury complained of is done by a floating vessel, it would seem to be strictly a maritime tort, cognizable in admiralty; but the rule is well established, at least in the circuits. Vide The Arkansas, 17 Fed. Repr. 383, and Henry on Jurisdiction and Procedure, 69.

6. Per Clifford, J., in The Belfast, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 637.

7. The Genesee Chief, 12 How. (U. S.) 443, and §§ 4-7, supra.

8. Insurance Co. v. Dunham, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 1.

It is not necessary that libellant should be seeking to enforce a maritime lien. breach of any maritime contract is enough to confer jurisdiction. Maury v. Culliford, 10 Fed. Repr. 388.

9. U. S. v. The Little Charles, 1 Brock. Marsh. (U. S.) 347.

10. Osborn v. U. S., 91 U. S. 474; Andrews v. Wall, 3 How. (U. S.) 568.

11. The Edith, 94 U. S. 518.

12. Davison v. Sealskins, 2 Paine (U. S.), 324, where goods seized and sold by pirates were recovered in admiralty, though retaken on land.

13. Ex parte Easton, 95 U. S. 68.

14. Dike v. The St. Joseph, 6 McLean (U. S.) 573.

15. Cutler v. Rae, 7 How. (U. S.) 729; but the circuit courts have ventured to think this case overruled by Insurance Co. v. Dunham, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 1. Vide Bark San Fernando v. Jackson, 12 Fed. Repr. 341.

Bounties for sea services are distributable by admiralty courts<sup>1</sup> and proceedings to limit shipowners' liability under the act of 1851 are cognizable by them.<sup>2</sup>

The following contracts have been expressly decided to be maritime in their nature: An agreement to share salvage moneys,<sup>3</sup> or pay seamen's wages;<sup>4</sup> contracts for freight,<sup>5</sup> pilotage,<sup>6</sup> wharfage,<sup>7</sup> salvage,<sup>8</sup> towage,<sup>9</sup> passage,<sup>10</sup> dockage,<sup>11</sup> ransom,<sup>12</sup> lockage,<sup>13</sup> insurance,<sup>14</sup> repairs and supplies,<sup>15</sup> measuring cargo,<sup>16</sup> removing ballast,<sup>17</sup> stevedoring,<sup>18</sup> and cooerage of cargo.<sup>19</sup>

Bottomry bonds,<sup>20</sup> and charter parties,<sup>21</sup> whether under seal or not,<sup>22</sup> are to be sued on in admiralty, and money loaned on the credit of the ship may be recovered therein, whether the loan is evidenced by writing or not.<sup>23</sup> Forfeitures of vessels<sup>24</sup> and penalties<sup>25</sup> incurred by their owners are within the jurisdiction, and so also are suits to establish title to or recover possession of vessels,<sup>26</sup> and disputes between part owners as to the disposition of the common property.<sup>27</sup>

13. Contracts not Maritime.—It is well settled that admiralty has no jurisdiction over contracts for building vessels,<sup>28</sup> nor furnishing labor,<sup>29</sup> and materials<sup>30</sup> towards their construction, nor storing on land even such aids to navigation as sails.<sup>31</sup>

Partnership accounts, though arising out of the ocean carrying

1. The Lucy Anne, 3 Ware (U. S.), 253; vide 12 Op. Atty.-Gen. 314.

2. Norwich Co. v. Wright, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 104; Rev. Stat. U. S. §§ 4282-7; Sup. Ct. Rules in Adm. 54.

3. Andrews v. Wall, 3 How. (U. S.) 568.

4. Sheppard v. Taylor, 5 Pet. Adm. 675.

5. Lands v. A Cargo of Coal, 4 Fed. Repr. 478.

6. Gottfried v. Miller, 104 U. S. 521.

7. Ex parte Easton, 95 U. S. 68.

8. Houseman v. The North Carolina, 15 Pet. (U. S.) 40.

9. The May Queen, Sprague (U. S.), 588.

10. The Pacific, 1 Blatchf. (U. S.) 569.

11. The Vidal Sala, 12 Fed. Repr. 207.

12. Maisonnaire v. Keating, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 325.

13. The Steamboat Bob Connell, 1 Fed. Repr. 218.

14. Insurance Co. v. Dunham, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 1.

15. The General Smith, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 438; The Virgin v. Vyfhuis, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 538.

16. Constantine v. Schooner River Queen, 2 Fed. Repr. 731.

17. Roberts v. Bark Windermere, 2 Fed. Repr. 722.

18. The Canada, 7 Fed. Repr. 119; The Senator, 21 Fed. Repr. 191; The Velox, 21 Fed. Repr. 479. There are, however, decisions the other way. Paul v. The Ilex, 2 Wood (U. S.), 229. Approved in The Ole Oleson, 20 Fed. Repr. 384, where see a review of cases turning on the question what services are maritime.

19. Hubbard v. Roach, 2 Fed. Repr. 393.

20. The Draco, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 157.

21. The Fifeshire, 11 Fed. Repr. 743.

22. Drinkwater v. The Spartan, 1 Ware (U. S.), 145.

23. The J. R. Hoyle, 4 Biss. (U. S.) 234.

24. U. S. v. The Sally, 2 Cranch, 406.

25. U. S. v. The Queen, 11 Blatchf. (U. S.) 416.

26. Ward v. Peck, 18 How. (U. S.) 267.

27. The Seneca, 3 Wall. Jr. (U. S.) 385. But the limits of this power are still uncertain, and it cannot be said to extend to a sale of the vessel and distribution of the proceeds among the disputing owners. Cf. Tunno v. The Betsina, 5 Am. L. Reg. 406; Lewis v. Kinney, 5 Dill. (U. S.) 159; Coyne v. Caples, 8 Fed. Repr. 638.

28. People's Ferry Co. v. Beers, 20 How. (U. S.) 393.

29. Bradley v. Bolles, Abb. Adm. 569.

30. Edwards v. Elliott, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 532.

31. Gilbert v. Roach, 2 Fed. Repr. 393.

trade,<sup>1</sup> or relating to rights of part owners in their ships,<sup>2</sup> cannot be settled in admiralty, that court having no chancery powers.<sup>3</sup>

Admiralty cannot enforce mortgages or pledges of vessels, these being purely land contracts.<sup>4</sup>

The maritime character of a contract sometimes depends on the place where it is executed, for though agreements for repairs and supplies are ordinarily enforceable in admiralty,<sup>5</sup> if the repairs are made or supplies furnished at the home port of the vessel—that is, at the place where her owners, or, if more than one, her managing owner, resides,<sup>6</sup>—they are classed with contracts for construction;<sup>7</sup> and an endeavor has been made to extend the same rule to the work of unloading cargo at the home port.<sup>8</sup>

14. Torts within Jurisdiction.—The term “tort,” when used in reference to admiralty jurisdiction, is not “confined to wrongs or injuries committed by direct force, but includes wrongs suffered in consequence of the negligence or malfeasance of others, where the remedy at common law is by an action on the case.”<sup>9</sup>

The test of jurisdiction has been already shown to be the place of committing the tort, whether upon navigable waters or not.<sup>10</sup>

The tort, however, to be maritime must be done by a vessel, i.e., by those or some of those in charge of her, in their representative capacity as agents and servants of the owners. To call an assault by one passenger upon another a maritime tort because occurring on the deck of a ship is obviously absurd.

But when the act complained of was done by the agents of the owners, and as such agents, the jurisdiction is undoubted, and has been even held to include such apparently malicious acts as the abduction of a child by the master,<sup>11</sup> the wrongful taking of cargo not destined for the ship,<sup>12</sup> and wilful refusal to give a bill of lading for goods on board.<sup>13</sup>

It is now settled that an action for negligence resulting in death may be brought in admiralty by the persons entitled to sue under the statute prevailing at the place of the accident;<sup>14</sup> after much conflict of opinion the supreme court have now held that in the

1. Vandewater v. Mills, 19 How. (U. S.) 82.

2. Kellum v. Emerson, 2 Curt. (U. S.) 79; The Orleans v. Phœbus, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 175; Grant v. Poillon, 20 How. (U. S.) 162; Ward v. Thompson, 22 How. (U. S.) 330.

3. Dean v. Bates, 2 Wood. & M. (U. S.) 87.

4. The John Jay, 17 How. (U. S.) 399; The Emily Souder, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 666.

5. Vide § 12, ante.

6. Rev. Stat. § 4141; St. Louis v. The Ferry Co., 11 Wall. (U. S.) 423; Morgan v. Parham, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 471. What is the home port is always a question of fact, towards the decision of which the vessel's registry and port of hail as painted on her stern are persuasive but not conclusive evidence. The Martha Washington, 1 Cliff. (U. S.) 463; The Mary Chilton, 4 Fed. Repr. 847; The Norman, 6 Fed. Repr. 406; The Plymouth Rock, 13 Blatchf. (U. S.) 505.

7. The General Smith, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 438.

8. The E. A. Barnard, 2 Fed. Repr. 712.

9. Leathers v. Blessing, 105 U. S. 360.

10. Vide ante, §§ 4, 5, and 11.

11. Steele v. Thacher, Ware (U. S.), 91; The Yankee v. Gallagher, McAll (U. S.), 467; Tillmore v. Moore, 4 Fed. Repr. 231.

12. The Dauntless, 7 Fed. Repr. 366.

13. The Markee, 14 Fed. Repr. 112.

14. Steamboat Co. v. Chase, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 522; Sherlock v. Alling, 93 U. S. 99.

absence of State or national legislation no such action will lie in admiralty where the negligence occurred on the high seas.<sup>1</sup>

15. Prize Causes.—Prize money is recoverable in admiralty,<sup>2</sup> whether the prize was taken on the high seas or in port;<sup>3</sup> and, in general, all cases of prize are within the jurisdiction conferred by constitutional grant.<sup>4</sup>

16. Jurisdiction Exclusive.—No State court can exercise jurisdiction in rem upon any maritime contract or tort, even if the right to the process in rem has been conferred by a State statute;<sup>5</sup> but under the judiciary acts of the United States,<sup>6</sup> which "save the right of a common-law remedy where the common law is competent to give it," any suitor may proceed either in personam in the admiralty, or bring an ordinary suit in any court that is open to him.<sup>7</sup> That a cause, therefore, may be promoted in admiralty does not prove that it must be brought there, unless it is desired to begin by process in rem.<sup>8</sup>

17. The Maritime Lien.—Another test of jurisdiction is the existence or absence of the maritime lien, which is a right or privilege in a vessel or cargo to be carried into effect by legal process.<sup>9</sup> It arises both out of contracts on behalf of vessel and cargo, and torts done by a vessel, which, in this regard, is treated as a sentient being, endowed with a personality capable of being called to account for injuries inflicted by it.<sup>10</sup>

Wherever a maritime lien exists, admiralty will enforce it by process in rem, i. e., seizure of the thing upon which the lien exists, and it is the only court that can do so.<sup>11</sup>

18. Courts having Jurisdiction.—By Rev. Stat. U. S. § 563, exclusive original jurisdiction in admiralty is given to the various district courts of the United States, except where it shall in special cases be conferred by statute on the circuit courts.<sup>12</sup> This law

1. The Harrisburg, 119 U. S. 199, reversing 15 Fed. Repr. 610. But even in this latest decision the court have not signified their opinion of the doctrine of The E. B. Ward, Jr., 17 Fed. Repr. 456, and McDonald v. Mallory, 77 N. Y. 546, viz., that for the purposes of this jurisdiction a ship remains a portion of the soil of her home State, and therefore subject to State statutes. On this point the ruling of the court decides nothing more than that if a suit in rem can be maintained under a State statute for death resulting from negligence on the high seas, the State statute of limitations also applies, and unless process issues within the period prescribed by such statute the suit is barred.

2. Keane v. The Gloucester, 2 Dall. (U. S.) 36.

3. The Emulous, 1 Gall. (U. S.) 563.

4. The Prize Cases, 2 Black (U. S.), 635.

5. The Lottawanna, 21 Wall. (U. S.)

558; The Moses Taylor, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 411. But where the contract is not maritime, as for shipbuilding, the State courts may by State statute exercise what is practically jurisdiction in rem. Edwards v. Elliott, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 532; Scull v. Shakespear, 77 Pa. St. 297; affirmed in U. S. S. C., not reported.

6. Rev. Stat. U. S., §§ 563 and 711.

7. Leon v. Galceran, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 185; Schoonmaker v. Gilmore, 102 U. S. 118.

8. Steamboat Co. v. Chase, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 522.

9. The Nestor, 1 Sumn. (U. S.) 73; The City of Mecca, L. R. 6 P. D. 106.

10. The China, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 53. For particular cases creating maritime liens, vide SHIPPING.

11. Vandewater v. Mills, 19 How. (U. S.) 82.

12. U. S. R. S. § 71 gives the circuit court concurrent jurisdiction in seizures for slave-trading, and § 5308 in condemeffectually prevents any foreign power,<sup>1</sup> or any State, or any other Federal court assuming to dispose of an admiralty suit;<sup>2</sup> but territorial courts may, by authority of the local legislature, exercise admiralty jurisdiction.<sup>3</sup>

If the amount involved, exclusive of costs, exceeds $50, an appeal lies from the district to the circuit court;<sup>4</sup> and if, in like manner, it exceeds $5000, to the Supreme Court of the United States.<sup>5</sup>

The time and manner of appealing to the circuit court are regulated by the rules in admiralty of the supreme court<sup>6</sup> and the various district and circuit courts.

An appeal to the supreme court, to become a supersedeas, must be taken within sixty days from the final decree, and at all events within two years.<sup>7</sup>

19. Procedure in Admiralty.—The admiralty courts of the United States, subject to the Federal statutes<sup>8</sup> and the rules prescribed from time to time by the supreme court, administer justice according to the general procedure of admiralty in all civilized countries, though more especially in accordance with the forms handed down to us by the English maritime courts.<sup>9</sup>

This procedure by libel, or petition and answer, resembles rather the civil law than any other, is administered in even a more liberal spirit than a court of equity,<sup>10</sup> and permits amendments in the discretion of the court at any time.<sup>11</sup> The great and distinguishing feature of admiralty jurisprudence is that wherever a maritime privilege or lien attaches to a vessel or cargo, or both, there by an action in rem such vessel or cargo is impleaded and made the defendant,<sup>12</sup> and the person opposing the libellant can only become technically the "claimant," and be permitted to take his property out of custody and contest the cause by giving a bond or stipulation which shall represent the thing defendant.<sup>13</sup>

Actions in personam are those in which an individual is charged personally in respect to some matter of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction.<sup>14</sup> All actions must belong to one of these two classes.

20. Actions in Rem.—The process by which such actions are begun commands a seizure of the res. Its allowance is a judicial act,<sup>15</sup> but in the United States is regulated by supreme court nations of property used by persons in insurrection.

1. Glass v. The Betsey, 3 Dall. (U.S.) 6.

2. The Hine v. Trevor, 4 Wall. (U.S.)

555.

But an "admiralty suit" is one brought not only upon a maritime contract or tort, but under admiralty procedure; any one content with the "common-law remedy" may pursue it. Compare § 16, supra.

3. Am. Ins. Co. v. Canter, 1 Pet. (U.S.) 511.

4. U. S. Rev. Stat. § 631.

5. Acts, Sept. 24, 1789, and March 1, 1875; Supp. to Rev. Stat., vol. i. p. 136.

6. Rules 45-46.

7. U. S. Rev. Stat. §§ 1007-8; Rodd v. Heartt, 17 Wall. (U.S.) 354; Rubber Co. v. Goodyear, 6 Wall. (U.S.) 153.

8. U. S. Rev. Stat. §§ 911-913.

9. Manro v. Almeida, 10 Wheat. (U.S.) 473.

10. Richmond v. New Bedford Copper Co., 2 Low. (U.S.) 315.

11. The Edwin Post, 6 Fed Repr. 206.

12. The Moses Taylor, 4 Wall. (U.S.) 411; The Sabine, 101 U.S. 384.

13. U. S. v. Ames, 99 U.S. 35.

14. The Sabine, supra.

15. The John, 2 Hagg. p. 317.

rules;<sup>1</sup> yet because it is the act of the law, no action will lie for false arrest of the res.<sup>2</sup>

No process (except in forma pauperis by special allocatur) can issue without security for costs entered, while to secure the release of the thing seized a stipulation for the value of the thing arrested is necessary, which once given represents the res,<sup>3</sup> and forever discharges the lien sought to be enforced.<sup>4</sup>

Any one having the right of possession may become the claimant,<sup>5</sup> whose death does not abate the suit.<sup>6</sup>

The persons signing the stipulation to release the thing seized are liable individually to the full amount of the stipulation, but no farther.<sup>7</sup> A person not signing, even the claimant, cannot be made liable,<sup>8</sup> but the liability of those who have signed can be fixed in the same suit in which the stipulation was given, and decree entered directly against them.<sup>9</sup>

21. Actions in Personam.—A citation or monition to appear and answer, containing a clause in the nature of a warrant of arrest or capias, where the State law would permit arrest,<sup>10</sup> or of attachment<sup>11</sup> against non-residents, is the appropriate method of beginning these actions.

Stipulators cannot surrender their principal like bail, but are responsible for the amount decreed.<sup>12</sup>

Attachments may issue in tort as well as contract,<sup>13</sup> and are not confined to maritime seizures.<sup>14</sup>

22. Joinder of Actions.—The rules of the Supreme Court permit actions in rem and personam to be joined in the same libel for wages, pilotage, and collision,<sup>15</sup> and there would not seem to be any impropriety in joining them in any case.<sup>16</sup> They are, however, generally regarded as separate and cumulative.<sup>17</sup>

Proceedings in rem, however, may be changed to those in personam by amendment.<sup>18</sup>

1. The St. Lawrence, 1 Black (U. S.), 522.

2. Thompson v. Lyle, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 166; The Apollon, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 362.

3. The Lucille, 19 Wall. (U. S.) 73; The Lady Pike, 96 U. S. 461.

4. The Thales, 3 Bend. (U. S.) 327; The White Squall, 4 Blatchf. (U. S.) 103.

Nor can the res ever be rearrested, even by other parties, for the enforcement of the same lien. Such parties should petition to become co-libellants. The Nahor, 9 Fed. Repr. 213.

5. The Prometheus, 1 Low (U. S.), 491.

6. The James A. Wright, 10 Blatchf. (U. S.) 160.

7. The Webb, 14 Wall. (U. S.) 406.

8. The Gran Para, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 497. These rules, growing out of the doctrine that the stipulation represents the res, are not changed by the fact that the admiralty may be enforcing a lien given by State law, and represented by a bond given under that law. The Edith, 94 U. S. 518.

9. The Alligator, 1 Gall. (U. S.) 145.

10. Adm. Rule, 47; The Carolina, 14 Fed. Repr. 424; The Kentucky, 4 Blatchf. (U. S.) 48.

11. Adm. Rule 2.

12. Adm. Rule 3. Holmes v. Dodge, 1 Abb. Adm. 60; Gaines v. Travis, ibid. 422; In re Loring Snow, 2 Curt. (U. S.) 485.

13. Manro v. Almeida, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 473.

14. Miller v. The U. S., 11 Wall. (U. S.) 268; Atkins v. The Disintegrating Co., 18 Wall. (U. S.) 272.

15. Adm. Rules, 13-15.

16. Newell v. Norton, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 257.

17. The Prince Albert, 5 Ben. (U. S.) 386; The Zodiac, 5 Fed. Repr. 220; Ins. Co. v. Alexandre, 16 Fed. Repr. 279.

18. The Virgin, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 538; Chamberlain v. Ward, 21 How. (U. S.) 548.

23. Pleadings.—Admiralty pleadings are in general simple and untechnical.<sup>1</sup>

The libel must show the jurisdiction of the court,<sup>2</sup> and if it is filed by a part of the persons interested for the benefit of all, it must state that fact.<sup>3</sup> It need not be sworn to (though this is usually done), but the answer must be sworn to in any event.<sup>4</sup>

The claimant or respondent may both answer and demur,<sup>5</sup> and the libellant should not prolong the pleadings by a replication, but amend his libel.<sup>6</sup>

24. Set-off and Recoupment.—No statute especially authorizes admiralty to take cognizance of set-off, hence it is admitted only to diminish compensation, not as an independent right,<sup>7</sup> and not even then unless the court would have jurisdiction if it were presented as an original demand.<sup>8</sup>

Recoupment is, however, admitted in cases of both tort and contract, even to the extent of compelling contribution among tortfeasors.<sup>9</sup>

25. Action pending.—That a suit for the same cause is pending in a State or foreign court is no bar to proceedings in admiralty.<sup>10</sup>

26. Evidence.—The common-law rules of evidence do not apply in admiralty,<sup>11</sup> nor the statutes of States in which the courts sit;<sup>12</sup> but U. S. statutes, of course, do apply.

From the nature of the causes heard, the character of the witnesses and the place (the sea) where much documentary evidence is prepared, the rules of admiralty are lax, and must often bend to the circumstances of a peculiar case.<sup>13</sup>

27. Trial.—Jury trials are not a right in admiralty unless given by express statute;<sup>14</sup> ordinarily the hearing is before the judge alone.

Though the proof may differ from the allegations of the pleadings, unless the variance is so great as to be misleading the court will proceed to a decree.<sup>15</sup>

28. Decree.—In actions in personam the decree, like an ordinary judgment, is against persons and corporations properly served with process within the territorial limits of the court's jurisdiction, or against the attached property of persons not so served.<sup>16</sup>

1. Du Pont de Nemours v. Vance, 19 How. U. S. 162.

2. Boon v. The Hornet, Crabbe, (U. S.) 426.

3. Ins. Co. v. Johnson, Blatchf. & H. (U. S.) 19.

4. Coffin v. Jenkins, 3 Story, (U. S.) 108.

5. The William Penn, 3 Wash. (U. S.) 484.

6. The Sarah Anne, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 206.

7. Willard v. Dorr, 3 Mason (U. S.), 161.

8. The James and Catherine, Bald'w, (U. S.) 544.

9. The David Faust, 1 Ben. (U. S.) 183; The North Star, 106 U. S. 17.

10. The Tubal Cain, 9 Fed. Repr. 834; The Peshawur, L. R. 8 P. D. 32.

11. The J. F. Spencer, 3 Ben. (U. S.) 337.

12. The Independence, 3 Curt. (U. S.) 360.

13. The Vivid, 4 Ben. (U. S.) 319.

14. Gillet v. Pierce, Bro. Adm. 553. The right is secured on the demand of either party in certain cases arising on the Western lakes and rivers by U. S. Rev. Stat. § 566.

15. The William Penn, 3 Wash (U. S.) 484; The Clement, 2 Curt. (U. S.) 363.

16. Boyd v. Urquhart, 1 Sprague (U. S.), 433.

ADMIRALTY—ADOPTION OF CHILDREN.

A decree in rem is against the res itself, and binds parties, privies and strangers; for to the proceeding all the world are parties,<sup>1</sup> and such decree cannot be questioned even in the courts of a country whose ship has been condemned by a foreign tribunal.<sup>2</sup>

Decrees in rem are usually entered also against the stipulators for the release of the thing seized; they then become, with decrees in personam, liens upon the real estate of stipulators and respondents according to the law of the State where they are entered,<sup>3</sup> and are enforceable by execution, directed to the U. S. marshal, in the nature of a writ of fieri facias.<sup>4</sup>

29. Restraint of Lower Courts.—Obviously all questions of jurisdiction may be raised at the hearing of a cause and considered on appeal; but the law permits the Supreme Court of the U. S. to issue to district courts, "when proceeding as courts of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction," writs of prohibition,<sup>5</sup> for the purpose of preventing them from assuming a jurisdiction with which they are not legally vested.<sup>6</sup>

If, however, the case which the applicant for the writ alleges to be without the jurisdiction, appears to be really of a maritime nature, the writ will be refused, and the complaining party left to his remedy of appeal;<sup>7</sup> for the writ is not of right, but rests in the sound discretion of the court.<sup>8</sup>

ADOPTION OF CHILDREN. See BASTARDY; PARENT AND CHILD.

1. Definition.—The act by which a person takes the child of another into his family, and treats him as his own.<sup>9</sup>

1. Hollingsworth v. Barbour, 4 Pet. (U. S.) 466. The res, however, must have been actually seized; without it there is no jurisdiction to make the decree. Taylor v. Carryl, 20 How. (U. S.) 583; Miller v. U. S., 11 Wall. (U. S.) 294. But once seized, jurisdiction attaches, and the decree is valid though res removed. The Rio Grande, 23 Wall. (U. S.) 458; Ex parte Devoe Manuf. Co., 108 U. S. 401.

2. The Trenton, 2 Fed. Repr. 657; Imrie v. Castrique, L. R. 4 H. L. 414.

3. Ward v. Chamberlain, 2 Black (U. S.), 430; Cropsey v. Crandall, 2 Blatchf. (U. S.) 341.

4. Adm. Rule 21; The Kentucky, 4 Blatchf. (U. S.) 448.

5. U. S. Rev. Stat. § 688.

6. Though its use in the Federal courts is founded on statute, the writ itself is as old as the common law, and was the instrument by which the court of king's bench continually harassed and humiliated the English courts of admiralty. Vide High's Extraordinary Legal Remedies, and ante, § 1.

7. Ex parte Gordon, 104 U. S. 515;

Ex parte Hagar, 104 U. S. 520; Ex parte Pennsylvania, 109 U. S. 174.

8. Ex parte Easton, 95 U. S. 68. The effect of these decisions is to render this remedy of little value and confer upon the district and circuit judges the final decision of all jurisdictional questions in cases involving less than $5000.

Authorities for Admiralty.—Standard American works are Conkling's Jurisdiction, Law, and Practice in Admiralty, 2d Ed. 2 vols. 1857; and Parson's Shipping and Admiralty, 2 vols. 1869. Books of daily necessity to the practitioner are Benedict's Admiralty, 2d Ed. 1870; Desty's Shipping and Admiralty, 1879, and Henry's Admiralty Jurisdiction and Procedure, 1885.

9. Bouvier's Law Dict.

Adoption was unknown to the common law, but was recognized by the civil law, and exists in many countries on the continent of Europe which derive their jurisprudence from that law. Co. Lit. 7, b. 237, b. 4; Phillimore, § 531; Mackenzie's Roman Law, 120-124; Whart. Conf. of L. § 251. It was introduced from the

In many of the States, adoption has been regulated by statute.<sup>1</sup>

2. Descent—Status.—The rights of descent flow from the legal law of France or of Spain into Louisiana and Texas, but was abolished in Louisiana in 1808; see Fuselier v. Masse, 4 La. 423; Vidal v. Commagère, 13 La. Ann. 516; Teal v. Sevier, 26 Tex. 516. The rights of the parent by adoption are treated substantially as those of a natural parent. Schouler Dom. Rel. § 232.

An adoption is not revocable, unless some sufficient reason is shown therefor. Janes v. Cleghorn, 54 Ga. 9.

1. Whitmore on Adoption.

The word "child" as used in a statute relating to adoption of children means minor child. Re Moore, 14 R. I. 38.

It is immaterial that the name of the child does not appear in the body of the instrument, and that the person adopting signed as guardian. Bancroft v. Bancroft, 53 Vt. 9.

A complaint seeking to have an order of court granting the prayer of a petition for the adoption of a child, and containing the averment "that at the time of said adoption said defendant" (the adoptive child) "was eighteen years of age, and knew that said Preston Brown" (the adopting father) "was a person of unsound mind; and that so knowing, and for the purpose of becoming the heir of said Preston Brown, and securing the property of said Brown, he gave his consent to said adoption, and permitted said adoption to be made," does not show such fraud as will vitiate the order of the court. Brown v. Brown, 101 Ind. 340.

A widowed mother joined in executing a deed of adoption of her child. A day or two afterward, at her request, the adopter signed a paper stating that she could "have her son (the adopted child) at any time she calls for him." Held—(1) that under the statute, by joining in the deed she relinquished her parental rights over the child; (2) that the subsequent paper could not be construed to work a revocation of the deed; it was evidently intended to allow her only the temporary custody and society of the child. Re Clements, 78 Mo. 352.

Under the statute as to the adoption of infants, the consent of the parent is absolutely necessary, where such parent is not hopelessly intemperate or insane, and has not abandoned the child, even though the child be under fourteen. Luppie v. Winans, 37 N. J. Eq. 245.

Where articles for the adoption of a child were made by its mother to defendant, who, however, for several years neglected to have them recorded, and meanwhile the mother married the plaintiff, and executed articles of adoption to him, which were at once recorded; while it is not decided which of the parties is in law the father by adoption of the child, nor what the child's rights of inheritance are, yet it is held, in an action by plaintiff to recover the child from the custody of defendant, that the question must be decided according to the best interests of the child, in view of all the circumstances, and not solely on the ground of legal parentage. Fouts v. Pierce, 64 Iowa, 71; see Luppie v. Winans, 37 N. J. Eq. 245.

Where natural heirs seek to set aside an order for the adoption of a child, their remedy is in equity; they must proceed promptly, and a delay of ten years will be fatal to their suit. Brown v. Brown, 101 Ind. 340.

Under the Mass. Pub. Sts. c. 148, § 4, notice of a petition for the adoption of a child is necessary in all cases where the written consent required by § 2 is not submitted to the court with the petition, even if a case is presented by the petition, which, if proved to exist, would authorize the judge of probate to decree the adoption without consent. Humphrey, appellant, 137 Mass. 84.

It is no objection to the maintenance of a petition by a husband and wife to the Probate Court, under the Mass. Pub. Sts. c. 148, for the adoption of a child, alleged to be of unknown parentage and a foundling, that the petition does not also allege that the child is not one of the class excepted in § 1. Edds, Appellant, 137 Mass. 346.

Where the articles of adoption were signed and acknowledged by the natural parent, but the persons intending to adopt failed to execute the instrument, and the child resided with them for eighteen months, held, that a legal adoption was not accomplished. Long v. Hewitt, 44 Iowa, 363.

An adopted child usually inherits from the adopting parent, and vice versa; but otherwise as to collateral kindred. Schouler Dom. Rel. § 232, n.

Failure to file articles of adoption until after the death of the adopting party renders the adoption incomplete, and the adopted child cannot inherit from decedent. To create rights of inheritance under the statute in regard to adoption, the statutory requirements must be strictly complied with. Shearer v. Wea- status of the parties, and where the status is fixed the law supplies the rules of descent.<sup>1</sup> ver, 56 Iowa, 578; Tyler v. Reynolds, 53 Iowa, 146.

1. Where a child, adopted by a husband and his wife jointly, dies, without children or their descendants, the owner of land inherited from the adopting mother, the surviving husband and adoptive father inherits such land, and it does not descend to the natural mother. Humphries v. Davis, 100 Ind. 274; s. c., 50 Am. Rep. 788; Paul v. Davis, 100 Ind. 422; Hyatt v. Pugsley, 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 373; Valentine v. Wetherill, 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 655; Sewall v. Roberts, 115 Mass. 262; Hole v. Robbins, 53 Wis. 514. Compare Com. v. Powel, 20 Cent. Law Jour. 343; Reinders v. Koppelman, 68 Mo. 482.

Where an adopted child dies intestate, unmarried, and without lawful issue, or their descendants, surviving him or her, seized of real estate or owning personal property, which may have come to such child by gift, devise, or descent from the adopting parent or parents, father or mother, such real estate or personal property shall descend to the adopting father or mother, if living, or, if dead, to the heirs-at-law of such adopting father or mother, to the entire exclusion of the natural heirs of such adopted child from any share or interest therein. Barnhizer v. Ferrell, 47 Ind. 335, so far as it is in conflict with this case, is overruled. Davis v. Krug, 95 Ind. 1.

Where a father adopted two children of his daughter, and afterwards died, leaving no will, the children so adopted inherited from him as his own children, and inherited, also, the share of their deceased mother. Wagner v. Varner, 50 Iowa, 532.

Real estate was devised to A. for life, with power to dispose of it by will, or, if he died intestate, to pass by intestate laws. Held, that his adopted child was entitled to the estate. Johnson's App., 88 Pa. Stat. 346.

The Pennsylvania statute of 1872 was intended to be retrospective, but where the adopting parent died intestate in 1870 it was held that a proceeding under the act of 1872 could not divest the estate which had vested in his children at his death. Ballard v. Ward, 89 Pa. St. 358.

An adopted child cannot (in Pennsylvania) take under a devise to the "children" of the parent by adoption, as it is not a child by nature. Shafer v. Eneu, 54 Pa.

St., 304. Compare Barnes v. Allen, 25; Ind. 222.

An adopted child can take by descent only from the person adopting, and not from lineal or collateral kindred of the adopting parent. Such child cannot by inheritance take from a child of the adopting parent born in lawful wedlock. Keegan v. Geraghty, 101 Ill. 26.

The rights of inheritance acquired by an adopted child under the laws of another State where he was adopted, are subservient to the laws of the State where the property is situated. Keegan v. Geraghty, 101 Ill. 26.

The adoption of an heir-at-law by a husband, without the consent of his wife, and leaving no issue, will not operate to prevent his widow from inheriting as provided by statute; and at her decease her share will pass to her heirs, and not to the heirs or devisees of the adopted person. Stanley v. Chandler, 53 Vt. 619.

The status of any person, with the inherent capacity of succession or inheritance, is to be ascertained by the law of the domicile which creates the status, at least when the status is one which may exist under the laws of the State in which it is called in question, and when there is nothing in those laws to prevent giving full effect to the status and capacity acquired in the State of the domicile. A child adopted, with the consent of its father and the sanction of a judicial decree, in another State, where the parties are domiciled at the time, under a statute by which a child so adopted has the same rights of inheritance as legitimate offspring in the estate of the adopting father, is entitled, after the adopting father and the adopted child have removed their domicile into Massachusetts, to inherit here the real estate of such father as against his collateral heirs; although his wife has given no formal consent to the adoption, as is required under the statutes of adoption in Massachusetts, Ross v. Ross, 129 Mass. 243; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 321.

An adopted child will take as a child under a residuary clause of the adopting father's will, where the specific legacy has lapsed. Burrage v. Briggs, 120 Mass. 103.

Under the New Hampshire statute, 1867, held, that the provision that the decree be made in the county where the petitioner or the child resides, implies

ADOPTION OF CHILDREN—ADULT—ADULTERATION.

3. Services.—There is no difference between an adoptive and a natural child as to the right to recover for services.<sup>1</sup>

ADULT.—The word "adult" signifies a person who has attained the full age of twenty-one years.<sup>2</sup>

A statute to prevent the sale of liquor required that the law should be enforced upon the petition of a majority of the "adult" residents. Held, that adult females, as well as males, may join in the petition.<sup>3</sup>

ADULTERATION. (See POLICE POWER.)—At the common law it is an indictable offence to mix unwholesome ingredients in anything made and supplied for the food of man.<sup>4</sup>

Statutes forbidding the sale of impure or adulterated articles of food or of drugs exist in many of the States. These statutes are within the police power of the legislature, and constitutional.<sup>5</sup> that the statute was intended to be limited to cases in which all the parties have their domicile in the State; and does not apply to the case of an adoption therein of a child domiciled there by persons, then and since domiciled in Massachusetts. Foster v. Weternan, 124 Mass. 592.

1. Lunay v. Vantyne, 40. Vt. 503.

2. Schenault v. State, 10 Tex. App. 410.

The burden of proof of the age is on the State. George v. State, 11 Tex. App. 95.

3. Blackwell v. State, 36 Ark. 178.

4. At Common Law.—1 Russell on Crimes, 169. See Burnby v. Rollitt, 16 M. & W. 644; R. v. Dixon, 3 M. & S. 11; Goodrich v. People, 2 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 622; State v. Smith, 3 Hawk. (N. Car.) 40; State v. Norton, 2 Ired. L. (N. Car.) 40.

The selling unwholesome provisions, 4 Bl. Com. 162, or the giving any person unwholesome victuals, not fit for man to eat, lucri causâ, 2 East (P. C.), 822, is an indictable offence. Where the defendant was indicted for deceitfully providing certain French prisoners with unwholesome bread, to the injury of their health, it was objected, in arrest of judgment, that the indictment could not be sustained, for it did not appear that what was done was in breach of any contract with the public, or of any civil or moral duty; but the judges, on a reference to them, held the conviction right. R. v. Treeves, 2 East (P. C.), 821. The defendant was indicted for supplying the royal military asylum at Chelsea with loaves not fit for the food of man, which he well knew, etc. It appears that many of the loaves were strongly impregnated with alum (prohibited to be used by repealed statute 37 Geo. 3, c. 98, s. 21), and pieces as large as horse-beans were found; the defence was, that it was merely used to assist the operation of the yeast, and had been carefully employed. But Lord Ellenborough said, "Whoever introduces a substance into bread, which may be injurious to the health of those who consume it, is indictable if the substance be found in the bread in that injurious form, although, if equally spread over the mass, it would have done no harm." R. v. Dixon, 4 Camp. 12; 3 M. & S. 11.

It is a nuisance for a common dealer in provisions to sell unwholesome food, or to mix noxious ingredients in the provisions which he sells. R. v. Dixon, 3 M. & S. 11. Or to cause to be publicly exposed for sale, as sound and wholesome meat, meat known not to be sound and wholesome. R. v. Stevenson, 3 F. & F. 106. Or knowingly to send such meat to market. R. v. Jarvis, 3 F. & F. 108; R. v. Crawley, 3 F. & F. 109.

5. By Statute.—People v. Cipperly, 101 N. Y. 634; State v. Groves, 2 Atl. Repr. (R. I.) 384; State v. Smith, 14 R. I. 100; s. c., 51 Am. Rep. 344. Com. v. Evans, 132 Mass. 11; Com. v. Wentworth, 118 Mass. 441; Com. v. Smith, 103 Mass. 444; Shivers v. Newton, 45 N. J. L. 469; Pierce v. State, 63 Md. 592; Butler v. Chambers, 30 N. W. Repr. (Minn.) 308; State v. Addington, 77 Mo. 117; Phillips v. Mead, 75 Ill. 334; Bainbridge v. State, 30 Ohio St. 264; U. S. v. Bayaud, 16 Fed. Repr. 384. Compare People v. Marx, 99 N. Y. 377; s. c., 9 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 491; People v. Arensburg, 7 Eastn. Repr. (N. Y.) 751.

In People v. Marx, 99 N. Y. 377; s. c., 9 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 491 and note, the statute was held void, chiefly because it was construed to be an attempt on the part of the legislature to drive the manufactured article from the market for the benefit of another industry, and to protect those engaged in the manufacture of dairy products against the competition of cheaper substances, capable of being applied to the same uses; in other words, that the object of the statute was to prohibit one industry in order to foster another. See People v. Arensburg, 7 Eastn. Repr. (N. Y.) 751.

Adulteration—Continued.

In sustaining a similar statute, the Supreme Court of Minnesota, speaking of the New York case (supra), said: "This assumes that the object of the legislation was for the benefit of a class, and that there were no reasonable grounds for the exercise of the police power; because, if there were such grounds, it is no objection that a legitimate industry is incidentally benefited, as the practical result of the operation of the statute. We do not think the court would be warranted in setting aside this legislation on such grounds." Butler v. Chambers, 30 N.W. Repr. 308.

See State v. Addington, 77 Mo. 117. In re Brosnahan, 18 Fed. Repr. 62; Palmer v. State, 39 Ohio St. 236; s. c., 48 Am. Rep. 429.

Dangerous Drugs.—A law prohibiting the sale of opium is constitutional. State v. Ah Chew, 16 Nev. 50; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 488.

Adulteration of Milk and Food Products.—The legislature may make it a criminal offence to sell milk-and-water, and in a prosecution for so doing a certificate of analysis by a sworn milk-inspector is admissible as evidence. Commonwealth v. Waite, 11 Allen (Mass.), 264. It is not necessary to convict for selling adulterated milk to show knowledge of the adulteration by the seller, nor to aver that the milk was cow's milk. Nor is it a defence to show that the woman who sold it was acting as her husband's agent. Com. v. Farren, 9 Allen (Mass.), 489; but see Dilley v. People, 4 Brad. (Ill.) 52. The result of a test by a lactometer is admissible in evidence. Com. v. Nichols, 10 Allen (Mass.), 199; see also Com. v. Flannely, 15 Gray (Mass.), 195; Thompson v. Howe, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 287. But tests of milk made more than a year after the violation complained of are inadmissible. Stearns v. Ingraham, 46 T. & C. (N. Y.) 218. But an act prohibiting the sale of adulterated milk does not embrace the offence of bringing such milk into the city. Polinsky v. State, 73 N. Y. 65.

The fourth section of the New Jersey act provides that in all prosecutions under this act, if the milk shall be shown upon analysis by a member of the board of public analysis, or the chemist of the State experiment station, to contain more than 88 per cent of watery fluids, or to contain less than 12 per cent of milk solids, such milk shall be deemed, for the purposes of this act, to be adulterated. Held, that this section is not intended to operate as a rule of evidence by which the act of the analyst is to be conclusive of the guilt of the defendant in selling adulterated milk, but was intended to prohibit the sale of milk under a certain standard of excellence, and this exercise of authority is within the discretion of the legislature in the exertion of the police power inherent in the State. Shivers v. Newton, 45 N. J. L. 469; see State v. Smith, 14 R. I. 100; s. c., 51 Am. Rep. 344.

Defendant kept milk in, and sold it from, a tank marked "Skimmed milk." Held, that evidence that the milk was so sold was a good defence to the charges in the complaint, and that the defendant could not be convicted by proof that the milk was watered. Com. v. Tobias, 141 Mass. 129.

The Ohio statute provides for the punishment, by fine or imprisonment, or both, of persons who knowingly sell, or offer for sale, any substance purporting to be butter or cheese, or having semblance of butter or cheese, which substance is not made wholly from pure cream or pure milk, unless each package of such substance have distinctly and durably painted, stamped, or marked thereon the name of each article used or entering into the composition of such substance. Held, the fact that the article sold was manufactured under letters patent issued by the U. S. constitutes no defence to an information or indictment for violating the provisions of this statute. Palmer v. State, 39 Ohio St. 236; s. c., 48 Am. Rep. 429. In re Brosnahan, 18 Fed. Repr. 62; s. c., 4 Am. Cr. R. 16.

The adulteration of confections may also be prohibited; but an indictment charging defendant with fraudulently adulterating "a certain substance intended for food—to wit, one pound of confectionery"—does not sufficiently describe the substance adulterated, and if reasonably objected to will be quashed. Com. v. Chase, 125 Mass. 202.

A person entered a shop and asked for green tea. He received tea, which upon analysis proved to be faced with gypsum and prussian blue. It appeared that tea imported from China as green tea, and known as such to the trade, is faced as

ADULTERY (when not a Matter of Divorce)—UNLAWFUL CO-HABITATION. See DIVORCE; FORNICATION; INCEST.

1. At Common Law.—Adultery is criminal conversation with a man's wife. The woman must be married; she must be another above, and the tea not faced is imported from Japan and is not generally known as green tea; but this is not generally known to the public. The tea sold as above was faced in China. Held, that the seller was guilty of selling adulterated tea as unadulterated. Roberts v. Egerton, L. R. 92 B. 494.

A publican sold as a bottle of gin a liquid composed of 26 per cent alcohol, 70 per cent water, and 4 per cent sugar. Evidence was adduced that gin was sold by retailers at varying strength, from proof to 20 per cent under proof. This liquid was 44 per cent under proof, but the analyst said he should call it "gin whose alcoholic strength was exceedingly low." The seller was convicted under the Sale of Foods and Drugs act. Held, that the facts justified the finding that this liquid was not of the quality of gin, but that the excess of water was a fraudulent increase of the measure of the article. Pashler v. Stevenitt, 35 L. T. N. S. 862. See Webb v. Knight, 2 L. R. Q. B. 530.

Evidence.—A complaint, under the Massachusetts statute, alleging that the defendant sold one pint of adulterated milk—to wit, milk containing less than thirteen per cent of milk solids—is not supported by proof that he sold the milk as skimmed milk out of a tank marked as required by § 7, although the milk was watered. Com. v. Tobias, 141 Mass. 129.

A person may be convicted of selling adulterated milk without allegation or proof that he knew it to be adulterated. Com. v. Evans, 132 Mass. 11. See Com. v. Farren, 9 Allen (Mass.), 489; Com. v. Waite, 11 Allen (Mass.), 264; Com. v. Nichols, 10 Allen (Mass.), 199; Com. v. Smith, 103 Mass. 444; State v. Smith, 10 R. I. 258; People v. Zeigler, 6 Park Cr. (N. Y.) 355. Or adulterated liquors. Com. v. Boynton, 2 Allen (Mass.), 160. See Barnes v. State, 19 Com. 398. Compare Farrell v. State, 32 Ohio St. 456; s. c., 30 Am. Rep. 614.

A complaint under the Massachusetts statute, alleging a sale of adulterated milk, to wit, milk containing less than thirteen per cent of milk solids, is supported by proof of a sale of milk, which, by the removal of a part of the cream, has been reduced in solids below thirteen per cent. Com. v. Tobias, 141 Mass. 129.

In an indictment charging the defendant with having in his custody and possession, with intent to sell the same, "one pint of adulterated milk, to which milk water had been added," the allegation is descriptive, and is not supported by proof that the milk in question was adulterated by adding water to pure milk. Com. v. Luscomb, 130 Mass. 42.

Practice.—At the trial of a complaint, under the Massachusetts statute, alleging, in the first count, a sale by the defendant, at a time and place named, of adulterated milk, and, in the second count, the having in his possession, at the same time and place, such milk, with intent unlawfully to sell the same, the defendant asked the judge to rule that "if the jury find, on the evidence, that there was a consummated sale, they cannot convict under the second count." The judge declined so to rule; and, after instructing the jury as to what would authorize a conviction on the first count, instructed them that "if they should further find that the defendant kept the same milk with intent to sell it, they would be authorized to return a verdict of guilty on the second count." Held, that the defendant had no ground of exception. Com. v. Tobias, 141 Mass. 129.

A complaint under the Massachusetts statute, alleging in one count that the defendant, at a time and place named, sold a certain quantity, to wit, one pint, of adulterated milk, to wit, milk containing less than thirteen per cent of milk solids; and in another count alleging that the defendant, at the same time and place, had in his possession a certain quantity, to wit, one pint, of adulterated milk, to wit, milk containing less than thirteen per cent of milk solids, with intent then and there unlawfully to sell the same, is sufficient, without further alleging that the milk was analyzed, and found, on analysis, to contain less than thirteen per cent of milk solids. Com. v. Tobias, 141 Mass. 129.

A complaint that the defendant, at a time and place named, had in his custody and possession a certain quantity, to wit, one pint of adulterated milk, to wit, milk then and there containing less than thirteen per cent of milk solids, with intent then and there unlawfully to sell the same, is sufficient. Com. v. Keenan, 139 Mass. 193.

An action to protect butter and cheese manufacturers must be brought in the man's wife; and whoever, married or single, has illicit intercourse with her becomes guilty of adultery.<sup>1</sup>

name of the party injured and defrauded by the sale of the milk diluted with water, and not in the name of the owner of the "cheese factory" unless he has been so defrauded. Tabor v. Herrick, 54 Vt. 63.

The court submitted to the jury the bare question whether the defendant had sold an article known as oleomargarine, an article not made from pure unadulterated milk or cream; and charged that if he had he was guilty under the law. Held error; that the defendant could only be convicted of selling an article manufactured in imitation or semblance of butter, and that it was error to ignore that fact in the instructions to the jury. People v. Arensberg, 7 Eastern Repr. (N. Y.) 751.

Under the Pennsylvania statute which provides that in all actions for the sale of any spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors, the fact that such liquors or admixtures thereof were impure, vitiated, or adulterated shall constitute a good and sufficient defence. An instruction to the jury that if they believed "there was any impurity, vitiation, or adulteration which impaired the quality or value of any of the liquors in suit, to the least extent, the plaintiffs cannot recover for the liquors so impaired." Held, correct. 99 Pa. St. 61.

Action to recover damages for fraudulently adulterating milk with water. Held, that exemplary damages could not be allowed. Lane v. Wilcox, 55 Barb. (N. Y.) 615.

See, as to indictments, Goodrich v. People, 19 N. Y. 374; People v. Fauerbach, 5 Park Cr. 311; Lammond v. Volans, 14 Hun (N. Y.), 263; Com. v. Boynton, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 499; Com. v. O'Donnell, 1 Allen (Mass.), 593; Com. v. McCann, 2 Allen (Mass.), 157; Com. v. Flannelly, 15 Gray (Mass.), 195; Com. v. Raymond, 97 Mass. 567; Hunton v. State, 1 Head (Tenn.), 160; State v. Jacobs, 38 Mo. 379; Phillips v. Mead, 75 Ill. 334; Bainbridge v. State, 30 Ohio St. 264.

1. 3 Blackstone's Com. 139; State v. Wallace, 9 N. H. 515; State v. Taylor, 58 N. H., 331; State v. Lash, 1 Harr. (N. J.) 380; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 397; State v. Avery, 7 Conn. 267; State v. Armstrong, 4 Minn. 335; State v. Pearce, 2 Blackf. Ind. 318; State v. Searle, 56 Vt. 516; Com. v. Bakeman, 131 Mass. 577; s. c., 41 Am. Repr. 248.

Fornication is sexual intercourse between a man, married or single, and an unmarried woman. Adultery is sexual connection between a married woman and an unmarried man, or a married man other than her own husband. Hood v. State, 56 Ind. 263; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 21; State v. Taylor, 58 N. H. 331. Compare Morrisset v. Commonwealth, 6 Gratt. (Va.) 673; Respublica v. Roberts, 2 Dall. (Pa.) 124.

In Massachusetts it is held that the act of sexual intercourse by a married man with an unmarried woman, or by an unmarried man with a married woman, is adultery in the man without regard to the guilt of the woman. Com. v. Bakeman, 131 Mass. 577; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 248. Also in Vermont under the statute. State v. Searle, 56 Vt. 516. In this case the court said: "The question raised is, whether criminal intercourse between a married man and a single or unmarried woman is adultery in the man. The authorities are conflicting upon this point. So far as this difference exists in reported cases, it may have grown out of a difference in statutory provisions; not in statutory definitions of adultery, as those are rarely if ever found; but in provisions that indicate the legislative view, and control the judicial and legal view." See Com. v. Call, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 509; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 284; Com. v. Bradley, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 553. See to same effect Weatherby v. State, 43 Me. 258; Hinton v. State, 6 Ala. 864; White v. State, 74 Ala. 31; State v. Wilson, 22 Iowa, 364; Cook v. State, 11 Ga. 53; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 410; State v. Chandler, 96 Ind. 591; State v. Sanders, 30 Iowa, 582; State v. Donovan, 61 Iowa, 278; State v. Fellows, 50 Wis. 65; State v. Clark, 54 N. H. 456; Tucker v. State, 35 Tex. 113; Territory v. Whitcomb, 1 Montana, 358; Miner v. People, 58 Ill. 59; State v. Hutchinson, 36 Me. 261; Helfrich v. Commonwealth, 33 Pa. St. 68; Hull v. Hull, 2 Strob. Eq. (S. Car.) 174.

Adultery is not an indictable offence at common law. Anderson v. Commonwealth, 5 Rand. (Va.) 627; s. c., 16 Am. Dec. 776; Com. v. Isaacs, 5 Rand. (Va.) 634; State v. Cooper, 16 Vt. 551; State v. Brunson, 2 Bail. (S. Car.) 149. Compare State v. Wallace, 9 N. H. 515; State v. Avery, 7 Conn. 267; Hood v. State, 56 Ind. 263; s. c., 26 Am. Repr. 21.

The offence may be committed though

By statute in some States the common-law rule has been modified so as to extend the commission of the offence to other as well as married women, and in some instances the offence has by statute been merged with that of unlawful cohabitation.<sup>1</sup>

the man was ignorant that the woman was married. Com. v. Elwell, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 190; s. c., 35, Am. Dec. 398.

An act of sexual intercourse between two persons, one married, the other single, will be adultery in the former but not in the latter. Hunter v. U. S., 1 Pinn. (Wis.) 91; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 277; Com. v. Call, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 509; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 284; Morrisett v. Commonwealth, 6 Gratt. (Va.) 673; Respublica v. Roberts, 2 Dall. (Pa.) 124. Compare Com. v. Elwell, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 190; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 398; State v. Wallace, 9 N. H. 515; State v. Pearce, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 318; State v. Wilson, 22 Iowa, 364.

1. Cohabit.—The legal sense of the term in the statute is to live together in the same house as married persons live together, or in the manner of husband and wife. Jones v. Commonwealth, 80 Va. 18. There must be both lewd and lascivious intercourse, and a living together of the parties as husband and wife live together, to constitute the offence of lewd and lascivious association and cohabitation. Jones v. Commonwealth, 80 Va. 18. See Com. v. Isaacs, 5 Rand. (Va.) 635; Searls v. People, 13 Ill. 597; State v. Marvin, 12 Iowa, 499; Wright v. State, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 358; Com. v. Calef, 10 Mass. 153; Scott v. Commonwealth, 77 Va. 346; Carotti v. State, 42 Miss. 334.

In Searls v. People, 13 Ill. 597, the indictment was for living in an open state of fornication, and the court said: "In order to constitute this crime, the parties must dwell together openly and notoriously upon terms as if the conjugal relation existed between them. The object of the statute was to prohibit the public scandal and disgrace of the living together of persons of opposite sexes notoriously in the illicit intimacy which outrages public decency, having a demoralizing influence upon society. They may, indeed, live together in the same family, but if apparently chaste, regularly occupying separate apartments, a single instance of illicit intercourse would not constitute the crime of living together in an open state of fornication." . . . "From the very nature of the case, the offence must generally be proved by circumstances, and the statute provides that it 'shall be sufficiently proved by circumstances which raise the presumption of cohabitation and unlawful intimacy;' but this presumption must be something more than a mere suspicion. It must amount to a reasonable belief or conviction of the judgment, not only of unlawful intimacy, but also of cohabitation." In Missouri, it is held that persons, in order to be guilty of living together in open and notorious adultery, as meant by the statute, must reside together in the face of society, as if the conjugal relation subsisted between them, and their illicit intercourse must be habitual and not occasional. State v. Crowner, 56 Mo. 147. While the opinion disclaims the meaning that the cohabiting and abiding must be for a great length of time, or that perhaps a short time would not do, still it holds that the parties must live together in a notorious and open manner, to the evil example of society. In Mississippi, it is held to consist "in living together in the manner of husband and wife without being lawfully married, in the open assumption of the visible forms of and rights of matrimony without the sanction of the nuptial tie, and without incurring those obligations and responsibilities which attach to the married state." Carroti v. State, 42 Miss. 335.

It need not be shown that the acts of the defendants were open and notorious in a prosecution under the Missouri statute which provides that "every man and woman, one or both of whom are married, and not to each other, who shall lewdly and lasciviously abide and cohabit with each other, shall, upon conviction, be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor." It is sufficient for the State in such case to prove that the defendants lived together as man and wife and indulged in sexual intercourse habitually and in conformity to a regular custom on their part. State v. West, 84 Mo. 440.

In Com. v. Calef, 10 Mass. 153, the prosecution was founded on a statute which provided that "if any man and woman, either or both of them being then married, shall lewdly and lasciviously associate and cohabit together, they shall be punished," etc. In construing this statute the court said: "By cohabiting must be understood a dwelling or living together, not a transient and single unlawful interview."

In Scott v. Commonwealth, 77 Va.

Living in Adultery.—To constitute unlawful cohabitation, the living together must be open and notorious, as if the relation of husband and wife existed, and the illicit intercourse habitual.<sup>1</sup>

344, the evidence of unlawful cohabitation was conclusive, and the conviction was accordingly sustained. "It was proven," said Judge Fauntleroy, in delivering the opinion of the court, "that the defendant, Scott, admitted that the woman Retta Jackson was his wife; that they lived together; that he (Scott) admitted that Jackson's daughter was his child; that he carried her mail to her from the post-office, and that he familiarly associated with her, and was reported to live with her as man and wife."

Sexual intercourse between persons not married, though living in the same house, is not sufficient, alone, to constitute the offence of cohabiting together as husband and wife without being married. Taylor v. State, 36 Ark. 84; s. c., 4 Am. Cr. R. 30.

In order to establish the offence defined by Mississippi statute, it must be shown that the parties, whether dwelling together or not, habitually indulge in sexual intercourse. It is not necessary that the parties shall dwell together or publicly avow the relationship existing between them. It is sufficient to show that relationship which, whether avowed or concealed, if publicly known would characterize the woman as mistress of the man. It is habitual concubinage or lying together which constitutes the cohabitation meant by the statute. Granberry v. State, 61 Miss. 440.

Evidence that defendant and R. lived as man and wife for many years, and that she bore him children, if not admissible as proof of marriage in a trial on a charge of adultery, is admissible as tending to identify the parties named in the certificate. People v. Stockwell Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 1.

To sustain an indictment under the Virginia statute the evidence must establish that the parties, not being married, lewdly and lasciviously associated and cohabited—that is, lived together in the same house as man and wife live together. Jones v. Commonwealth, 80 Va. 18. The indictment may be either joint or separate. Scott v. Commonwealth, 77 Va. 344.

1. Miner v. People, 58 Ill. 59. See State v. Marvin, 12 Iowa, 499; Brevaldo v. State, 21 Fla. 789; Sullivan v. State, 36 Ark. 64; Wright v. State, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 280; State v. Gartrell, 14 Ind. 280; Clouser v. Clapper, 59 Ind. 548; Hall v. State, 53 Ala. 463. People v. Gates, 46

Cal. 53; State v. Crouner, 56 Mo. 147; Richardson v. State, 37 Tex. 346, 34 Tex. 142; Carotti v. State, 42 Miss. 334.

The statutory crime cannot be proved by a single act, or even by a number of acts, of illicit intercourse. Miner v. People, 58 Ill. 59; Granberry v. State, 61 Miss. 440; Richardson v. State, 37 Tex. 346; State v. Crouner, 56 Mo. 147; Clouser v. Clapper, 59 Ind. 548; Carotti v. State, 42 Miss. 334.

Where a cohabitation, using the words in the usual sense, is shown, one or more acts of sexual intercourse clearly proven, or circumstances from which such intercourse would necessarily be inferred, as sleeping together, would uphold a verdict of guilty. But in the absence of evidence of such cohabitation, it is not sufficient to prove occasional acts of sexual intercourse. H. was a pupil of G. and testified that on five or six occasions during a scholastic term of three months she remained at the schoolroom after the other pupils had been dismissed, at which times and place, but at no other, G. had sexual intercourse with her. Held, that this did not constitute the offence defined by the statute. Granberry v. State, 61 Miss. 440.

To constitute the offence of lewd and lascivious cohabitation, within the meaning of the statute it must be shown that the parties lived together openly and notoriously, as though the marriage relation existed between them; occasional acts of incontinence are not sufficient. Pruner v. Commonwealth, 10 Va. L. J. 520.

In State v. Marvin, 12 Iowa, 499, the indictment charged, in the language of the statute, that the defendants did lewdly and lasciviously associate and cohabit together. The evidence showed that they lived together in the same house in the relation of master and servant, and that on two occasions the defendant M. was seen getting out of bed with the female defendant. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, upon which judgment was entered for the State, but on appeal the judgment was reversed. "The defendants," said the appellate court, "were not living together as husband and wife. Secret acts of intercourse would not make them liable. The burden of the offence is the open, lewd, lascivious conduct of the parties living together as man and wife. It is the

It is the act of living together, and not the knowledge or intent, that constitutes the offence.<sup>1</sup> Religious or social usages are no defence,<sup>2</sup> nor an invalid divorce.<sup>3</sup>

Solicitation.—By the common law it is an indictable offence to solicit one to commit adultery.<sup>4</sup>

Consent of Woman not essential.—To constitute the crime of adultery as against the man, the consent of the woman to the carnal intercourse is not necessary.<sup>5</sup> publicity and disgrace, the demoralizing and debasing influence, that the law is designed to prevent."

In Searls v. The People, 13 Ill. 597, which was a prosecution for living together in adultery, the trial court instructed the jury that "in order to constitute this offence, even one act of sexual intercourse need not be proved by positive testimony, but the offence is sufficiently proved by any circumstances which raise the presumption of unlawful intimacy and sexual and adulterous intercourse." In reversing the judgment the Supreme Court said: "In order to constitute this crime the parties must dwell together openly and notoriously upon terms as if the conjugal relation existed between them. In other words, they must cohabit together."

Where the offence is committed one night each week for seven months, it is within the statute. Collins v. State, 14 Ala. 608. See Swancoat v. State, 4 Tex. App. 105; Parks v. State, 4 Tex. App. 134.

Where the parties lived together for several months in the same room, the offence is established. Richardson v. State, 37 Tex. 346.

If it exists but a single day, with the intent to continue the cohabitation, the offence is complete. Hall v. State, 53 Ala. 463.

See, generally, Collins v. State, 14 Ala. 608; Smith v. State, 39 Ala. 554; Hall v. State, 53 Ala. 465; McLelana v. State, 25 Ga. 477; State v. Gartrell, 14 Ind. 280; Gaylor v. McHenry, 15 Ind. 383; Wright v. State, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 358; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 126; Swancoat v. State, 4 Tex. App. 105; Parks v. State, 4 Tex. App. 134; Morrill v. State, 5 Tex. App. 447; Searles v. People, 13 Ill. 597; Miner v. People, 58 Ill. 60; Baker v. U. S., 1 Pinn. (Wis.) 641.

1. The criminal offence of adultery is not excused by the absence of a guilty intent, unless a guilty knowledge is part of the statutory definition; nor is it excused by the subsequent intermarriage of the parties. Fox v. State, 3 Tex. App. 329; s. c., 30 Am. Rep. 144; State v.

Goodenow, 65 Me. 30; Com. v. Elwell, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 190; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 398.

Under statutes the distinction has been taken that where the guilty knowledge is part of the definition of the offence, it must be averred, but not otherwise. Whar. Cr. L. § 297; State v. Stimson, 4 Zab. (N. J.) 478.

2. Cannon v. U. S., 116 U. S. 55; Seagar v. Sligerland, 2 Caines (N. Y.), 219; Hollis v. Wells, 3 Pa. L. J. 169; Holmes v. Johnson, 42 Pa. St. 159. See Berckmans v. Berckmans, 16 N. J. Eq. 122, 17 N. J. Eq. 453; Inskeep v. Inskeep, 5 Iowa, 204.

3. Defendant procured a divorce and married again. The divorce was vacated for fraud and want of jurisdiction. Held, that he was guilty of adultery. State v. Whitcomb, 52 Iowa, 85; State v. Goodenow, 65 Me. 30; Com. v. Elwell, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 190. See Com. v. Putnam, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 136; Putnam v. Putnam, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 433; Com. v. Thompson, 6 Allen (Mass.), 591; State v. Weatherby, 43 Me. 258.

4. Whar. Crim. L. § 2666; State v. Avery, 7 Conn. 267.

It is held not to be indictable in Pennsylvania. Smith v. Commonwealth, 54 Pa. St. 209.

5. The man may be alone convicted, although at the time the act was committed the woman was in such a state of stupefaction as to be incapable of consent. Com. v. Bakeman, 131 Mass. 577; s. c., 141 Am. Rep. 248.

The court instructed the jury as follows: "To constitute the crime of adultery as against the man, the consent of the woman to the carnal intercourse is not indispensable, but the offence may, as against him, exist, though the connection was effected by force and against her will." Held, no error. State v. Donovan, 61 Iowa, 278; s. c., 4 Am. Cr. R. 25; State v. Sanders, 30 Iowa, 582.

An action lies for criminal conversation, although the intercourse was had by violence. Egbert v. Greenwalt, 44 Mich. 245; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 260. See State v. Tarr, 28 Iowa, 397.

Insanity on the part of the woman is Evidence.—A husband or wife may testify against each other.<sup>1</sup> An actual marriage must be proved.<sup>2</sup> Evidence is admissible of improper familiarity and adultery between the parties, both before and after the commission of the offence charged, although it proves other and distinct offences.<sup>3</sup> The pecua valid defence to an indictment for adultery. Matchin v. Matchin, 6 Pa. St. 332. See State v. Donovan, 61 Iowa, 278; s. c., 4 Am. Cr. R. 25; State v. Sanders, 30 Iowa, 582; People v. Barnes, 9 Pac. Repr. (Idaho) 532; State v. Ellis, 74 Mo. 385; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 321; Mercer v. State, 17 Tex. App. 452; Alonzo v. State, 15 Tex. App. 378; Com. v. Goodhue, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 193; People v. Rouse, 2 Mich. 209; Wright v. State, 4 Humph. (Tenn.) 196; Stephen v. State, 11 Ga. 225; Burk v. State, 2 Harr. & J. (Md.) 426. Compare Noble v. State, 22 Ohio St. 541.

1. Roland v. State, 9 Tex. App. 277; s. c., 35 Am. Rep. 743; State v. Bennett, 31 Iowa, 25; State v. Bridgman, 49 Vt. 202; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 124; State v. Marvin, 35 N. H. 28; Parsons v. People, 21 Mich. 509. Compare State v. Welch, 26 Me. 30; Mills v. U. S., 1 Pinn. (Wis.) 73.

Where a wife testifies before the grand jury to her husband's adultery, supposing that she is obliged to do so, but not intending to prefer charges of adultery against him, this is not a complaint by her against her husband. State v. Donovan, 61 Iowa, 278; s. c., 4 Am. Cr. R. 25.

Husband and wife are incompetent to disprove sexual intercourse between themselves in order to raise a presumption that the wife's child is illegitimate. Egbert v. Greenwalt, 44 Mich. 245, s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 260. See BASTARDY.

Under an indictment against two persons for living together in adultery, the husband of the woman is not a competent witness for the man, when both are on trial together under the plea of not guilty. Birge v. State, 78 Ala. 435.

2. Hutchins v. Kimmell, 31 Mich. 126; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 161; People v. Bennett, 39 Mich. 208; see Miner v. People, 58 Ill. 59; Com. v. Norcross, 9 Mass. 492; Com. v. Littlejohn, 15 Mass. 163; People v. Humphrey, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 314; Fenton v. Reed, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 52; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 244; State v. Roswell, 6 Conn. 446; Kibby v. Rucker, 1 A. K. Marsh (Ky.), 391; Wood v. State, 48 Ga. 192; Buchanan v. State, 55 Ala. 154. Compare Forney v. Hallacher, 8 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 159; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 590.

Where the accused was married to a woman under the legal age, her consent to the marriage on arriving at the age of consent, and before the act of adultery, must be proved. People v. Bennett, 39 Mich. 208. The marriage may be proved by general repute. Com. v. Holt, 121 Mass. 61.

The evidence of persons who witnessed the marriage is competent to prove the marriage. State v. Clark, 54 N. H. 456; Com. v. Norcross, 9 Mass. 492; Com. v. Littlejohn, 15 Mass. 163. It may be proved by the admission of one of the parties. State v. Medbury, 8 R. I. 543. See Cameron v. State, 14 Ala. 546; s. c., 48 Am. Dec. 111; Cayford's Case, 7 Greenl. (Me.) 57; Cook v. State, 11 Ga. 53; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 410. Compare Mills v. U. S., 1 Pinn. (Wis.) 73; State v. Timmens, 4 Minn. 325; State v. Rood, 12 Vt. 396.

Proof of Marriage—Marriage Certificate.—A statute providing for the punishment of adultery, and making a recorded certificate of marriage proof of marriage for the purpose of the act, does not exclude other proof of the marriage. Where, in a trial of J. W. S. for adultery, the record of a marriage certificate introduced in evidence shows a marriage of J. S. to Rebecca Gibson, the testimony of a witness that he was present when defendant was married to Rachel Gibson, in the year when, at the place where, and by the person by whom, the record shows the marriage was performed, is admissible as tending to identify the parties named in the certificate. People v. Stokes, 12 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 1.

3. State v. Bridgman, 49 Vt. 202; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 124. See Thayer v. Davis, 38 Vt. 163; State v. Potter, 52 Vt. 33; State v. Marvin, 35 N. H. 28; State v. Wallace, 9 N. H. 515; State v. Williams, 76 Me. 480; State v. Witham, 72 Me. 531; Gardner v. Madeira, 2 Yeates (Pa.) 466; Thayer v. Thayer, 101 Mass. 111; Com. v. Nichols, 114 Mass. 285; s. c., 19 Am. Rep. 346; Com. v. Merriam, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 518; Com. v. Morris, 1 Cush. (Mass.) 391; Com. v. Lahey, 14 Gray (Mass.) 91; State v. Kemp, 87 N. Car. 538; State v. Pippin, 88 N. Car. 646; State v. Butner, 76 N. Car. 118; Cole v. State, 6 Baxt. (Tenn.) 239; Richardson v. State, 37 Tex. 346; Alsabrooks v. State, 52 Ala. 24; Lawson v. State, 20 Ala. 65; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 182; State v. Way, 5 Neb. 283; People v. Jenness, 5

niary circumstances of the parties at the time of the commission of the offence may be proved in an action for criminal

Mich. 305; Searls v. People, 13 Ill. 599; Lovell v. State, 12 Ind. 18. Compare State v. Donovan, 61 Iowa, 278; s. c., 4 Am. Cr. R. 25; State v. Crowley, 13 Ala. 172; State v. Jolly, 3 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 110; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 656; State v. Bates, 10 Conn. 372.

Upon an indictment for living in an open state of adultery on a certain day and on divers other days and times since said date to the day of the finding of the indictment, evidence of acts anterior to such time are admissible in evidence as tending to illustrate or explain similar acts within the period alleged in the indictment, or to corroborate testimony of such latter acts, but not to convict of a substantive offence committed anterior to such period. Where there has been a conviction upon such an indictment, and there is no evidence of a living in an open state of adultery within the limited period, but there is proof of such a living about a year prior to the first day of such period, a new trial should be granted, the introduction of such evidence having been properly excepted to. Brevaldo v. State, 21 Fla. 789.

Acts of adultery are held admissible, whether occurring before or after the act charged, for the purpose of showing an adulterous disposition. Thayer v. Thayer, 101 Mass. 111.

In Gardner v. Maderia, 2 Yeat. (Pa.) 446, an action of crim. con., where the injury was stated to have been committed within certain days, it was held that proof of improper freedoms must be first had within the limited time. It is laid down that though time was no more a material part of the complaint than of a contract, yet that where a trespass is alleged to have been committed within certain days it would be a surprise on the defendant not to confine the proof to the times laid (citing Buller v. Pri. 86), but that, after laying a reasonable ground to infer an improper connection between the parties within the limited period, the court will be more liberal afterwards in receiving other evidence of indecent conduct at different times tending to show the criminal views and acts of the parties. There has been no reasonable ground laid down to infer a living in an open state of adultery from evidence as to the period named in this indictment.

In People v. Jenness, 5 Mich. 322, after arguing in favor of the admissibility of evidence of a prior act of adultery as tending to prove the one relied on, it is said: "If offered as proof of substantive offences on which a conviction might be had in the case, it should of course be excluded; but as it was not offered for this purpose and could not be allowed to have such effect, we can see no objection to its reception."

Under Michigan statute, a prosecution must be instituted within a year after the offence, evidence of acts are inadmissible if they occurred more than a year before the commission of the adultery, unless they are shown to belong to a continuous series of improprieties. People v. Davis, 52 Mich. 569. So acts committed two years before are too remote to be put in evidence. But acts within a short time before and very soon after the act complained of may be shown if establishing a continuous intimacy. People v. Hendrickson, 53 Mich. 525.

In a prosecution for adultery, acts prior and also subsequent to the act charged in the indictment, when indicating a continuousness of illicit intercourse, are admissible in evidence for the purpose of showing the relation and mutual disposition of the parties. State v. Witham, 72 Me. 531.

In fornication and adultery, evidence of acts anterior to the two years preceding the indictment is competent to be considered by the jury in connection with evidence of other acts of a like nature within the two years. State v. Pippin, 88 N. Car. 646; State v. Kemp, 87 N. Car. 538.

Evidence as to acts and instances of intercourse prior to the time limited by statute is admissible in connection with other evidence, as tending to show that the defendant was guilty of acts of intercourse admitted to have occurred within the time covered by the indictment. State v. Potter, 52 Vt. 33.

Evidence having been adduced tending to show an adulterous intercourse between the parties during the period covered by the indictment, proof of acts or conduct prior to that time may be received, without regard to the sufficiency of the other evidence to authorize a conviction. Cross v. State, 78 Ala. 430.

Where, contrary to the rule of law, in a prosecution for adultery, evidence was admitted of an adulterous act subsequent to the one charged in the indictment, the error was cured by the district attorney's withdrawing from the jury the evidence of such subsequent act. State v. Donovan, 61 Iowa, 278; s. c., 4 Am. Cr. R. 25.

conversation.<sup>1</sup> The plaintiff's connection with other women at any time after marriage and before trial may be proved in mitigation of damages.<sup>2</sup> Evidence is competent to show the reputation for chastity of the woman.<sup>3</sup>

The sex of the parties, if present in court, may be inferred by the jury from their dress and general appearance.<sup>4</sup> Evidence of the particeps criminis is admissible.<sup>5</sup> It is competent to prove that the woman was delivered of a child about nine months after offence charged.<sup>6</sup> An averment in an indictment that the action was commenced by the wife of the defendant is not presumptive of its truth; it must be proved.<sup>7</sup> The court has discretionary power to grant a bill of particulars.<sup>8</sup> A prosecution for adultery should be discontinued where the only person competent to make complaint asks leave to withdraw it.<sup>9</sup>

ADVANCEMENTS. See LEGACIES; WILLS.

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| 1. Definition.   | 5. When Value of Advancement is to be computed—Interest.                  |
| 2. Of What an Advancement may Consist.                   | 6. Changes of Gifts to Advancements, and vice versa—Change of Debts, etc. |
| 3. Presumption as to Advancements.                       | 7. Miscellaneous.   |
| 4. English and American Statutes and their Construction. |  |

1. Definition.—An advancement is an irrevocable gift by a parent to a child, in anticipation of such a child's future share of the parent's estate.<sup>10</sup> Advancements are governed by the statutes of distribution.<sup>11</sup>

Proof of Former Conviction.—The record of a former conviction is not admissible as evidence without the indictment on which it was founded, so that the court may see that the offence was committed with the same person; and if the indictment is not produced, the court cannot consider the former conviction for any purpose. Cross v. State, 78 Ala. 430.

1. Peters v. Lake, 66 Ill. 206; s. c., 16 Am. Rep. 593.

Direct proof of adultery, that is, evidence of eye-witnesses, is not required, for such is the nature of the offence, and the secret and clandestine manner in which it is committed, that such proof is in most cases unattainable; yet where it is sought to be inferred from circumstances, they must lead to the conclusion of guilt by fair and necessary inference. Kremelberg v. Kremelberg, 52 Md. 553.

2. Shattuck v. Hammond, 46 Vt. 466; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 631; Smith v. Masten, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 270.

3. Com. v. Gray, 129 Mass. 474; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 378; Blackman v. State, 36 Ala. 295.

4. White v. State, 74 Ala. 31.

5. State v. Colby, 51 Vt. 291; State v. Crowley, 13 Ala. 172.

A man and woman cannot be jointly convicted of a single act of adultery, upon the admission by one of a single act of adultery, committed at one time, and an admission by the other of a different act of adultery, committed at a different time. Com. v. Cobb, 14 Gray (Mass), 57.

6. Com. v. O'Connor, 107 Mass. 219.

7. State v. Henke, 58 Iowa, 457.

Where a wife, in response to a subpoena, testifies before the grand jury to her husband's adultery, supposing that she is obliged to do so, but not intending to prefer charges of adultery against him, this is not a complaint by her against her husband. State v. Donovan, 61 Iowa, 278; s. c., 4 Am. Cr. R. 25.

8. Tilton v. Beecher, 59 N. Y. 176; s. c., 17 Am. Rep. 337; People v. Davis, 52 Mich. 569.

9. People v. Dalrymple, 55 Mich. 519.

10. Yundt's App., 13 Pa. St. 575.

11. The section of the English statute on this subject is derived, as regards goods and chattels, from the ancient custom of London, of the province of York, and of Scotland; and as regards lands descending in coparcenary, from the common law of hotchpot. 2 Bl. Com. 517.

2. Of what an Advancement may consist.—Money expended in the maintenance of a son is not an advancement, nor in binding him apprentice, nor in his education, nor for his travels.<sup>1</sup> Such expenditures are not prima facie an advancement, but the presumption may be rebutted, as when it is shown that a considerable sum is advanced as a premium for instruction, and not merely as a compensation for maintenance.<sup>2</sup> Gifts of inconsiderable sums of purse money and other trivial presents (such as a gold watch or wedding clothes) are not advancements.<sup>3</sup> Presents for the purpose of pleasure or amusement are not advancements, aliter in case of gifts for the purpose of making profit.<sup>4</sup> An advancement may consist of an annuity, and its value is to be computed at the date of the grant.<sup>5</sup> A contingent portion may be an advancement; clearly so, if the contingency has happened; also even while contingent, if it can be valued.<sup>6</sup> The contingency must be so limited as necessarily to arise within a reasonable time.

A life-insurance policy taken out in the name of a child may be an advancement.<sup>7</sup>

The purchase of an office or benefice in England has been held advancement.<sup>8</sup>

Neither a restriction upon alienation, nor the reservation of a life estate, nor the reservation of a right to revoke the gift, indicates an intention that the gift shall be other than an advancement.<sup>9</sup> The provision must be complete in the father's lifetime, and so cannot be made by will. But it does not have to take place in enjoyment in his lifetime.<sup>10</sup>

The doctrine of advancements is said to be derived from the collatio bonorum of the imperial law (Dig. 37.6. 1); hence the equalizing of advancements is sometimes called their collation, especially in Louisiana, where this branch of the law forms the subject of minute regulation. See Rev. Civ. Code of La. of 1875, art. 1227-1288; Destrehan v. Destrehan, 16 Martin (La.), 557.

1. Cooper v. Wray, 3 Strobb. Eq. (S. Car.) 185; Riddle's Est., 19 Pa. St. 431; Miller's App., 40 Pa. St. 57; Bowles v. Winchester, 13 Bush (Ky.), 1; Bruce v. Griscom, 9 Hun (N. Y.), 280; 70 N. Y. 612; Bradsher v. Cannady, 76 N. Car. 445.

2. 2 Roper, Husb. and Wife, 13.

3. 3 P. Wms. 317, note to Pusey v. Desbouverie; Elliott v. Collier, 1 Ves. Sr. 16, 3 Atk. 528; Mitchell, 8 Ala. 414; Fennell v. Henry, 70 Ala. 484; Sanford v. Sandford, 61 Barb. (N. Y.) 293, 5 Lans. 486; Meadows v. Meadows, 11 Ired. (N. Car.) 148; King's Est., 6 Whar. (Pa.) 370.

4. See Ison v. Ison, 5 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 15; Shiver v. Brock, 2 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 137; M'Caw v. Blewit, 2 McCord Ch. (S. Car.) 90.

5. Kircudbright v. Kircudbright, 3 Ves. 51; Boyd v. Boyd, L. R. 4 Eq. Cas. 305.

6. 2 P. Wms. 442, 449; Knight v. Oliver, 12 Gratt. (Va.) 33.

7. Rickenbacker v. Zimmerman, 10 S. Car. 110.

It was held in this case that under the South Carolina statute, requiring the value of advancements to be computed at the death of the intestate, the value of the advancement was to be computed by getting the value of such a policy at the death of the intestate with the expectation of life of the intestate when the policy was taken out, and that the premiums paid were to be added on without interest. The premiums were compared to money spent in improving real estate which has been given as an advancement.

8. Henderson v. Rose, 3 P. Wms. 317, note to Pusey v. Desbouverie; Norton v. Norton, 3 P. Wms. 317, note; Kircudbright v. Kircudbright, 8 Ves. 63.

9. Graves v. Spedden, 46 Md. 527; Hughey v. Eichelberger, 11 S. Car. 36.

10. Edwards v. Freeman, 2 P. Wms. 440; Twisden v. Twisden, 9 Ves. 425, 462; Nettleton v. Nettleton, 17 Conn. 542.

3. Presumptions as to Advancements.—Between a loan, gift, and advancement, where the amount is substantial, the presumption is in favor of an advancement.<sup>1</sup> Especially is this the case when the child is starting out in life,<sup>2</sup> and living apart from the parent after marriage.<sup>3</sup> It has been held that a conveyance of land may be shown by parol to have been extended as an advancement.<sup>4</sup> If a father purchase land in the name of his son, no resulting trust arises, but there is a presumption of an advancement.<sup>5</sup> And so in case of a voluntary conveyance by a parent to a child.<sup>6</sup> There is no need of an express agreement by the child that the gift is an advancement.<sup>7</sup>

So, also, it is finally decided in England that the youngest son receiving lands under the custom of Borough-English does not have to bring them into hotchpot.

1. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 8 Ala. 414; Clements v. Hood, 57 Ala. 459; Butler v. Ins. Co., 14 Ala. 777; Hatch v. Straight, 3 Conn. 31; Brown v. Burke, 22 Ga. 574; Holliday v. Wingfield, 59 Ga. 206; Grattan v. Grattan, 18 Ill. 167; Bay v. Cook, 31 Ill. 336; Selleck v. Selleck, 107 Ill. 389; Stanley v. Brannon, 6 Blackf. (Ind.) 193; Hodgson v. Macy, 8 Ind. 121; Dillman v. Cox, 23 Ind. 440; Hayden v. Burch, 9 Gill (Md.), 79; Parks v. Parks, 19 Md. 323; Graves v. Spedden, 46 Md. 527; Wilson v. Beauchamp, 50 Miss. 24; Gordon v. Barkslew, 6 N. J. Eq. 94; Melvin v. Bullard, 82 N. Car. 33; Hollister v. Attmore, 5 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 373; Tremper v. Barton, 18 Ohio, 418; Creed v. Lancaster Bank, 1 Ohio St. 1; Sampson v. Sampson, 4 S. & R. (Pa.) 333; Dutch's App., 57 Pa. St. 461; Weaver's App., 63 Pa. St. 309; Dudley v. Bosworth, 10 Humph. (Tenn.) 9; Johnson v. Patterson, 13 Lea (Tenn.), 626; Rains v. Hays, 6 Lea (Tenn.), 303; Watkins v. Young, 31 Gratt. (Va.) 84; Astreen v. Flanagan, 3 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 279.

2. Hollister v. Attmore, 5 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 373.

3. Holliday v. Wingfield, 59 Ga. 206.

4. Kingsbury's App., 44 Pa. St. 460; Rockhill v. Spraggs, 9 Ind. 30, 68 Am. Dec. 607.

5. Hummel v. Hummel, 80 Pa. St. 420; Dutch's App., 57 Pa. St. 461; Phillips v. Gregg, 10 Watts (Pa.) 158; James v. James, 43 Ark. 301; Robinson v. Robinson, 45 Ark. 481; Wormley v. Wormley, 98 Ill. 544; Maxwell v. Maxwell, 109 Ill. 588; Dille v. Webb, 61 Ind. 85; Higdon v. Higdon, 57 Miss. 264. If the father pays any considerable portion of the price, there is an advancement pro tanto. Sweet v. Northrup, 12 N. Y. Weekly Dig. 377.

6. Ray v. Loper, 65 Mo. 470; Harper v. Harper, 92 N. Car. 300. But where a consideration is recited in a deed in the usual form, the presumption is against an advancement. Miller's App., 107 Pa. St. 221. But notwithstanding such recital, the presumption is in favor of an advancement when a parent conveys to a child without actually receiving any consideration. Sanford v. Sanford, 61 Barb. 293, 5 Lans. 486. But mere inadequacy of consideration will not make the sale an advancement. Merriman v. Laceyfield, 4 Heisk. 209. A consideration of natural love and affection raises a presumption of an advancement. Lott v. Kaiser, 61 Tex. 665. A conveyance from a parent to his son is not an advancement if made in consideration of services rendered by the son, for which the parent was under moral obligation to pay. Murrel v. Murrel, 2 Strob. Eq. (S. Car.) 148, 49 Am. Dec. 664.

7. Nesmith v. Dinsmore, 17 N. H. 515. Treadwell v. Cordis, 5 Gray (Mass.), 341. Where a debt is paid by the father for the son, it will be presumed to be an advancement. Johnson v. Hoyle, 3 Head (Tenn.), 56. Money paid to a third party for the son's benefit may be an advancement. Johnson v. Evans, 8 Gill (Md.), 155, 50 Am. Dec. 669. Held, in Holliday v. Wingfield, 59 Ga. 206, that under the Code of Georgia it is not necessary that the child accept the provision as an advancement, if intended by the parent as such. The statutes in Massachusetts, Maine, and Vermont require as evidence of an advancement that there shall be a declaration to that effect in the gift or grant of the parent or a charge to that effect by the intestate, or an acknowledgment in writing by the child. See Gen. Stat. Mass. c. 91, § 8. Hartwell v. Rice, 1 Gray (Mass.), 587; Bigelow v. Poole, 10 Gray (Mass.), 104; Barton v. Rice, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 508; Ashley's App. 4 Pick. (Mass.) 24; Osgood v. Breed, 17 Mass. 358; Bullard v. Bullard, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 527; Bulkeley v. Noble, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 340; Porter v. Porter, 51 Me. 376; Brown v. Brown, 16

An agreement that an advance shall bar any further claim by the heir is valid.<sup>1</sup> If a deed of gift declares that the gift is not to be accounted for in the distribution of the estate, it is not an advancement, although expressly declared to be such in the same instrument.<sup>2</sup>

If an account is stated and interest charged, the presumption is in favor of a debt.<sup>3</sup> If a parent receives such evidence of indebtedness as a bond or promissory note, or if he becomes surety for the child, the presumption is in favor of a debt.<sup>4</sup>

A fortiori, a loan to a son-in-law cannot be treated as an advancement to the daughter.<sup>5</sup> But it has been held that an advancement to a son-in-law may be an advancement to the daughter.<sup>6</sup>

Vt. 197; Adams v. Adams, 22 Vt. 50; Weatherhead v. Field, 26 Vt. 665. And in these States it has been held that no subsequent parol declarations will control the original intentions of the party as represented by charges on books or entries upon memoranda, etc. See Hatch v. Straight, 3 Conn. 31; Partridge v. Havens, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 618; Johnson v. Belden, 20 Conn. 322; Osgood v. Breed, 17 Mass. 359; Barton v. Rice, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 508; Brown v. Brown, 16 Vt. 205. For proof of advancement required in Rhode Island, see Law v. Smith, 2 R. I. 244; Sayles v. Baker, 5 R. I. 457; Mowrey v. Smith, 5 R. I. 255. In some States it has been held that the declarations of the donor before and after and at the time of the transaction, and the admissions of the donee, are admissible in evidence to show the intention. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 8 Ala. 414; Autrey v. Autrey, 1 Ala. Sel. Cas. 542; Butler v. Ins. Co., 14 Ala. 777; Merrill v. Rhodes, 37 Ala. 449; Smith v. Smith, 21 Ala. 761; Fennell v. Henry, 70 Ala. 484; Phillips v. Chappel, 16 Ga. 16; Dillman v. Cox, 23 Ind. 440; Woolery v. Woolery, 29 Ind. 249; Middleton v. Middleton, 31 Iowa, 151; Cecil v. Cecil, 20 Md. 153; Graves v. Spedden, 46 Md. 527; King's Est., 6 Whart. (Pa.) 370; Christy's App., 1 Grant (Pa.), 369; Lawson's App., 23 Pa. St. 85; Kingsbury's App., 44 Pa. St. 460; Morris v. Morris, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 814; Watkins v. Young, 31 Gratt. (Va.) 84. But it has also been held that such declarations made to third persons are not of themselves sufficient to establish the fact of advancements. Homiller's Est., 17 W. N. C. (Pa.) 238; Ray v. Loper, 65 Mo. 470; Weatherwax v. Woodin, 20 Hun (N. Y.), 518. And so it has been held that advancements cannot be established by mere evidence in books without proof aliunde. Marsh v. Brown, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 319; Benjamin v. Dimmick, 4 Redf. (N. Y.) 7.

1. Kershaw v. Kershaw, 102 Ill. 307; Galbraith v. McLain, 84 Ill. 379; Nicholson v. Caress, 59 Ind. 39. But see Needles v. Needles, 7 Ohio St. 432, 70 Am. Dec. 85.

2. James v. James, 76 N. Car. 331.

3. Levering v. Rittenhouse, 4 Whar. (Pa.) 130; Harris's App., 2 Grant (Pa.), 304. But this presumption may be rebutted.

4. Grey v. Grey, 22 Ala. 233; Fennell v. Henry, 70 Ala. 484; West v. Bolton, 23 Ga. 531; Batton v. Allen, 5 N. J. Eq. 99; High's App., 21 Pa. St. 283; Roland v. Schrack, 29 Pa. St. 125; Miller's App., 31 Pa. St. 337; Morr's App., 80 Pa. St. 427; Jones's Est., 29 Pitts. L. J. (Pa.) 89; Bruce v. Griscom (9 Hun, 280). 70 N. Y. 612; Vaden v. Hance, 1 Head (Tenn.). 300; House v. Woodard, 5 Coldw. (Tenn.) 196. But this presumption may be rebutted. Cutliff v. Boyd, 72 Ga. 302; Peabody v. Peabody, 59 Ind. 556; Harris v. Harris, 60 Ind. 181; Bragg v. Stanford, 82 Ind. 234; Dilley v. Love, 61 Md. 603. The child may show that the statement was given to the father, not with the view that repayment might be demanded, but as a memorandum. Johnson v. Ghost, 11 Neb. 414. But it has been held that verbal declarations of the parent that money for which he held a bond or note against a child was intended as an advancement are insufficient to establish it. Merkel's App., 89 Pa. St. 340. An existing indebtedness of the parent to the child raises a presumption of an intention to pay the debt rather than to advance the child. Haglar v. McCombs, 66 N. Car. 345.

5. Seagrist's App., 10 Pa. St. 424; Wheelan's App., 70 Pa. St. 410.

6. Dilley v. Love, 60 Md. 603; Stewart v. Pattison, 8 Gill (Md.), 46; Bridgers v. Hutchins, 11 Ired. (N. Car.) 68; Wilson v. Wilson, 18 Ala. 176; Lindsay v. Platt, 9 Fla. 150. It was held in Stayner v. Bower, 42 Ohio St. 314, that where a

And a gift to a son-in-law soon after marriage is presumed to be an advancement.<sup>1</sup>

4. Statutes and their Construction.—The doctrine of advancements is now founded wholly upon statute,<sup>2</sup> and has been decided to apply only to the case of actual intestacy of the parent.<sup>3</sup> The American statutes in this connection generally use the word "intestate."<sup>4</sup>

Independently of the statutes, a will may direct that debts or gifts shall be taken as advancements and may direct what value is to be put on the advancements.<sup>5</sup> But it is not sufficient to prevent a liability to account that the intestate merely believed that he had advanced his distributees equally, if in fact he had not done so.<sup>6</sup> Where a testator directs that advances charged against children shall be deducted from their shares, an advance which is son-in-law receives money and property as advancements for his wife, he holds the same for his wife; and upon the death of the father, when the amount of her distributive share is ascertained, she has a right to compel her husband to account for and pay to her such money and property, and she may demand and collect her share in full of the administrator. And in such case when she elects to sue the administrator and compels him to pay her the distributive share in full, including the amount of such advancements, the administrator by operation of law is subrogated to the rights and remedies of the wife against the husband.

Where land was conveyed to a son-in-law and afterwards sold on execution against him, it was held that the wife may defend in ejectment by showing that it was an advancement, and that such proof is not forbidden by the Pennsylvania Statute of Frauds of 1856. Myers v. Leas, 101 Pa. St. 172.

1. Rogers v. Mayer, 59 Miss. 524. It has been said that a conveyance of land to a son-in-law is not an advancement in the absence of evidence that it was so intended. Rains v. Hays, 6 Lea (Tenn.), 303. See Towles v. Roundtree, 10 Fla. 299; Barber v. Taylor, 9 Dana (Ky.), 84; Baker v. Leathers, 3 Ind. 558.

2. Marshall v. Rench, 3 Del. Ch. 239.

3. Even though there is a surplus undisposed of by will. Walton v. Walton, 14 Ves. 324; Huggins v. Huggins, 71 Ga. 66; Marshall v. Rench, 3 Del. Ch. 239; Turner's App., 48 Mich. 369, 52 Mich. 398; De Caumont v. Bogert, 36 Hun (N. Y.), 382; Clark v. Kingsley, 37 Hun (N. Y.), 246; Brown v. Brown, 2 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 309; Richmond v. Vanhook, 3 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 581; Jenkins v. Mitchell, 4 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 207; Newell's Will, 1 Browne (Pa.), 311; Snelgrove v. Snel- grove, 4 Desaus. (S. Car.) 274; Newman v. Wilbourne, 1 Hill Ch. (S. Car.) 10; Wilson v. Miller, 1 Pat. & H. (Va.) 353; Allen v. Allen, 13 S. Car. 512. Compare Pearce v. Gleaves, 10 Yerg. (Tenn.) 359.

4. In the Revised Statutes of N. Y., in speaking of advancements in relation to the distribution of personal estates, the word "deceased" is substituted for "intestate;" whereas in relation to the descent of real estate, the word "intestate" is retained. Rev. Stat. (1882) 2213, 2305; Hawley v. James, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 450. In Thompson v. Carmichael, 3 Sand. Ch. (N. Y.) 120, held, in reference to realty, that bringing into hotchpot is not required unless there is a total intestacy. The provision of the Kentucky statute on this subject applies where there has been a partial disposition of the estate by will. Bowles v. Winchester, 13 Bush (Ky.), 1. Under the New Jersey statute it has been held that advancements in money can have no effect upon a son's share of real estate descended. Havens v. Thompson, 23 N. J. Eq. 321.

5. Bacon v. Gassett, 13 Allen (Mass.), 334; Hall v. Davis, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 450; Hawley v. James, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 450; Manning v. Manning, 12 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 410; Brewton v. Brewton, 30 Ga. 416; Nolan v. Bolton, 25 Ga. 352; Lawrence v. Lindsay, 7 Hun (N. Y.), 641; Eisner v. Koehler, 1 Demarest (N. Y.), 277. See McClintock's App., 58 N. H. 152. Where a will provided that advancements were to be deducted, and a subsequent codicil revoked the devise to one son and gave his share to the daughter-in-law, wife of said son, it was held that she took it charged with the advancements to the son. Buchler v. Fairlamb, 100 Pa. St. 385.

6. Andrews v. Halliday, 63 Ga. 263.

not so charged is not to be deducted.<sup>1</sup> Evidence is admissible that the charges are false or excessive, or that the sum charged was repaid before the testator's death.<sup>2</sup>

In England where primogeniture exists, the statute provides that no child of the intestate except his heir-at-law who shall have any estate in land by the settlement of the intestate, or who shall be advanced by the intestate in his lifetime by pecuniary portion equal to the distributive shares of the other children, shall participate with them in the surplus; but if the estate so given to such child by way of advancement be no equivalent to their shares, then that such part of the surplus as will make it so shall be allotted to him or her. In the United States advancements do not in general need a separate consideration in the case of real estate.

Under the English statute the doctrine of advancements is held to apply to fathers only.<sup>3</sup> In this country it doubtless applies to mothers also.<sup>4</sup>

Of course the doctrine does not apply to a wife.<sup>5</sup> Nor are children to bring advancements into hotchpot for the benefit of the widow.<sup>6</sup>

The English statute and most of the American statutes use the term child.<sup>7</sup> Where grandchildren take per capita their shares

1. Sayre v. Sayre, 32 N. J. Eq. 61. Where certain sums were charged on the debit side of the books, and other entries were made on the credit side so as to balance the debits, and there was evidence to show that the intention was to cancel the charges, it was held that the entries might have that effect. Lawrence v. Lawrence, 4 Redf. (N. Y.) 278.

2. Hoak v. Hoak, 5 Watts (Pa.), 80; Musselman's Est., 5 Watts (Pa.), 9.

3. Holt v. Frederick, 2 P. Wms. 356, 2 Eq. Cas. Abr. 446. See Bennet v. Bennet, Law Rep. 10 Chan. Div. 474.

4. Murphy v. Nathans, 46 Pa. St. 508; Daves v. Haywood, 1 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 253; Kintz v. Friday, 4 Demarest (N. Y.), 540.

5. Greiner's App., 103 Pa. St. 89.

6. Miller's Est., 2 Brewst. (Pa.) 355; Murray's Est., 2 Pears. (Pa.) 473; Jackson v. Jackson, 28 Miss. 674, 64 Am. Dec. 114; Ward v. Lant, Prec. in Ch. 182; Gibbons v. Count, 4 Ves. 850; Kircudbright v. Kircudbright, 8 Ves. 51; Porter v. Collins, 7 Conn. 1; Logan v. Logan, 13 Ala. 653; Andrews v. Hall, 15 Ala. 85; May v. May, 15 Ala. 177; Beavors v. Winn, 9 Ga. 189; Wright v. Wright, Dudley (Ga.), 251. This is expressly provided by statute in some States; e.g., see Gen. Stat. of Mass., c. 94, § 17. In Davis v. Duke, 1 Taylor (N. Car.), 213, it was held under the North Carolina statute of 1784 that advancements are to be brought into hotchpot for the benefit of the widow. See also Credle v. Credle, Busbee, 225. While in Tennessee the contrary was held under the same statute. Brunson v. Brunson, 1 Meigs, 630.

7. Illegitimate children are covered by the provision. Page v. Page, 8 N. H. 202. The statutes of Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont, and Kentucky have been held to apply equally to grandchildren. See Dilley v. Love, 61 Md. 603. It is declared in New York that every estate or interest given by a parent to a descendant by virtue of a beneficial power, or of a power in trust with a right of selection, shall be deemed an advancement. Beebe v. Estabrook, 79 N. Y. 246; N. Y. Rev. Stat. (1882), 2213, 2305. In Ohio the provision applies when children or their descendants have thus been advanced. Stat. of Ohio (1884), § 4169 et seq. The New Jersey statute uses the word issue. Stat. of N. J. (Revision of 1877) 297. The Code of North Carolina says children. Code (1883), vol. 1, § 1483. In Vermont the provision applies to children or other lineal descendants. Rev. Laws of Vt. (1880) § 2246 et seq. It has sometimes been said that children as well as issue may stand in a collective sense for grandchildren, when the justice or reason of the case requires it. Wyth are not subject to advancements to their parents.<sup>1</sup> Aliter, where they take per stirpes, as they then represent their parents and can take only the parents' shares.<sup>2</sup>

5. When Value of Advancement is to be computed—Interest.—The value is in all cases to be computed at the date when the advancement comes into possession and enjoyment, and interest is not to be charged.<sup>3</sup> When it is not convenient to make distribution at the expiration of a year from the decedent's death, advancements are to be charged with interest from that time.<sup>4</sup> The fact that the advancement subsequently becomes worthless does not relieve the child from accounting for its value at the time it came into enjoyment.<sup>5</sup>

v. Blackman, 1 Ves. Sn. 196; Royle v. Hamilton, 4 Ves. 437; Dickinson v. Lee, 4 Watts (Pa.), 82.

1. Skinner v. Wynne, 2 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 41; Person's App., 74 Pa. St. 121; Brown v. Taylor, 62 Ind. 295.

2. Proud v. Turner, 2 P. Wms. 560; McRae v. McRae, 3 Bradf. Sur. (N. Y.) 199; McLure v. Steele, 14 Rich Eq. (S. Car.) 105; Nelson v. Bush, 9 Dana (Ky.), 194; Hughes' App., 57 Pa. St. 179; Eshleman's App., 74 Pa. St. 42; Storey's App., 83 Pa. St. 89. See Daves v. Haywood, 1 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 253. This is expressly provided by statute in some States; e.g., see Gen. Stat. of Mass. c. 91, § 10. A grandchild is bound by an agreement of his father, the son of the intestate, accepting a provision in full of the share of the estate. Simpson v. Simpson, 114 Ill. 603.

3. Oyster v. Oyster, 1 S. & R. (Pa.) 422; Manning v. Thruston, 59 Md. 218; Moale v. Cutting, 59 Md. 510; Pigg v. Carroll, 89 Ill. 205; Stephenson v. Martin, 11 Bush (Ky.), 485; Ray v. Loper, 65 Mo. 470; 53 Am. Dec. 496; Rickenbacker v. Zimmerman, 10 S. Car. 110; Jackson v. Jackson, 28 Miss. 674, 64 Am. Dec. 114; Kyle v. Conrad, 25 W. Va. 760; Marsh v. Gilbert, 2 Redf. (N. Y.) 465; Puryear v. Cabell, 24 Gratt. (Va.) 260; Keys v. Keys, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 425; Williams v. Stonestreet, 3 Rand. (Va.) 559. See Fickes v. Wiseman, 2 Watts (Pa.), 314. "The apparent inequality created by the length of time which the advancement is held and enjoyed before the other legatees receive their share constitutes no ground for charging the advanced legatee with interest. It is an inequality which always exists where advancements are made at different times by the parent among a family of children." Black v. Whitall, 9 N. J. Eq. 572, 59 Am. Dec. 423; Hosmer v. Sturges, 31 Ohio St. 657. It is fair that the child should have the increase in value, as he runs the risk of any deterioration in value. Kean v. Welsh, 1 Gratt. (Va.) 406; Knight v. Yarborough, 4 Rand. (Va.) 569; Nelson v. Wyans, 21 Mo. 347. Where a father made an advancement of money to his son, took from him a promissory note, and then directed by will that the advancement should be deducted from that child's share, it was held that the principal only, and not the interest, should be deducted. Krebs v. Krebs, 35 Ala. 293; Hutchinson's App., 47 Pa. St. 84; Green v. Howell, 6 W. & S. (Pa.) 203. See Grim's App., 105 Pa. St. 375. The Code of Alabama requires advancements to be estimated at the value, if any, specified in the conveyance; and in other cases at their value when made. See Turner v. Kelly, 67 Ala. 173. The statute of South Carolina requires the value of the advancement to be computed at what it is worth at the death of the intestate, relation being had to its situation at the time of the gift. Rickenbacker v. Zimmerman, 10 S. Car. 110.

4. Ford's Est., 2 W. N. C. (Pa.) 113; Thompson's Est., 8 W. N. C. (Pa.) 16; Sharp's Est., 37 Legal Int. (Pa.) 234; Yundt's App., 13 Pa. St. 575. It has been held in some cases that interest is to be charged on advancements from the death of the intestate. Ex parte Glenn, 20 S. Car. 64; Johnson v. Patterson, 13 Lea (Tenn.), 626; Williams v. Williams, 15 Lea (Tenn.), 438; Kyle v. Conrad, 25 W. Va. 760.

5. So held in the case of slaves emancipated by the war, in Fennell v. Henry, 70 Ala. 484. But slaves in such case are not to be accounted for under the South Carolina statute, which requires that the value of advancements shall be computed at the death of the intestate. Hughey v. Eichelberger, 11 S. Car. 36; Wilson v. Kelly, 21 S. Car. 535. Ex parte Glenn

6. Changes of Gifts to Advancements, and vice versa—Changes of Debts, etc.—As before stated, the donor may change a debt or a gift into an advancement by will.<sup>1</sup> But the donor cannot change an advancement into a debt or trust.<sup>2</sup> The ex parte declarations of the parent of an intention to treat an existing debt as an advancement, not communicated to the child nor agreed to by him, nor accompanied by an act sufficient to obliterate the obligation as a debt, cannot change the debt into a gift by way of advancement.<sup>3</sup> But this rule does not exclude written entries of advancements.<sup>4</sup> The donor may change an advancement into an absolute gift, but an entry to have that effect must be explicit.<sup>5</sup> By mutual agreement the parties may resettle the terms of an advancement, so as to change it into a gift for life or into an absolute gift.<sup>6</sup>

7. Miscellaneous.—The advancement is no part of the intestate's estate,<sup>7</sup> and the donee does not relinquish his title by bringing it into hotchpot. He does not have to refund any part, though it exceeds his share.<sup>8</sup> The donor divests himself of all property in the advancement.<sup>9</sup>

20 S. Car. 64. And it has been held in that State that the use of the slaves cannot be charged as an advancement, since after they have been given their use belongs exclusively to the donee. Wilson v. Kelly, 21 S. Car. 535. Where a life estate in slaves was given, only the reasonable value of the life estate could be treated as an advancement, not the use and profits of their labor. Cawthorn v. Coppedge, 1 Swan (Tenn.), 487.

1. Green v. Howell, 6 W. & S. (Pa.) 203; Whitman's App. 2 Grant (Pa.), 323; Mitchell v. Mitchell, 8 Ala. 414. But this cannot be done by subsequent acts and declarations merely. Lawson's App. 23 Pa. St. 85; Dugan v. Gittings, 3 Gill (Md.), 138; Bradsher v. Cannady, 76 N. Car. 445.

2. Haverstock v. Sarbach, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 390; Miller's App. 31 Pa. St. 337; Sherwood v. Smith, 23 Conn. 516; Arnold v. Barron, 2 Pat. & H. (Va.) 1; Dudley v. Bosworth, 10 Humph. (Tenn.) 9; Thompson's App., 42 Pa. St. 345; Cleaver v. Kirk, 3 Metc. (Ky.) 270.

3. Yundt's App., 13 Pa. St. 575; Porter v. Allen, 3 Pa. St. 390; Haverstock v. Sarbach, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 390; Levering v. Rittenhouse, 4 Whar. (Pa.) 137; Deweese's Est., 3 Bréwst. (Pa.) 314; Oller v. Bonebrake, 65 Pa. St. 338; Harley v. Harley, 57 Md. 340.

4. Hengst's Est., 6 Watts (Pa.), 86. A paper signed by the intestate is sufficient to change a debt into an advancement. Kirby's App., 16 W. N. C. (Pa.) 71.

5. Clark v. Warner, 6 Conn. 356; Lee v. Boak, 11 Gratt. (Va.) 182.

6. Harper v. Parks, 63 Ga. 705; Wallace v. Owen, 71 Ga. 544. But where a father, worth about $12,000, gave to his son personal property worth about $100, and afterwards representing to the latter that such personal property was intended as an advancement, induced the son to sign a note as evidence of such advancement, held, in a suit on the note, that it was executed without valid consideration. Harris v. Harris, 69 Ind. 181.

7. Black v. Whitall, 9 N. J. Eq. 572.

8. Eckler v. Galbraith, 12 Bush (Ky.), 71; Gordon v. Barkelew, 6 N. J. Eq. 94; Phillips v. McLaughlin, 26 Miss. 592; Jackson v. Jackson, 28 Miss. 64; Am. Dec. 114; Chase v. Lockerman, 11 Gill & J. (Md.) 185, 35 Am. Dec. 277. By refusing to bring an advancement into hotchpot the child gives up all further interest in the estate. Grattan v. Grattan, 18 Ill. 167, 65 Am. Dec. 726; Taylor v. Reese, 4 Ala. 121.

A widow, who under her husband's will held lands and slaves, which were to be divided equally between her and her children, but with a power to advance to the children the property, at such times and in such kinds of property as her judgment might dictate, advanced to two of the children some slaves and more than their aliquot share of land, intending to give them a balance still due from the slave property. Held, that the unexpected circumstance of the destruction of the slave property by the war did not entitle the children not advanced to a redistribution of the land, or an account of the slave property which went into the hands of the children advanced. Kelly v. McCallum, 83 N. Car. 563.

9. Crosby v. Covington, 24 Miss. 619.

ADVANCEMENTS—ADVANCES.

Advancements must be voluntary on the part of the donor.<sup>1</sup>

Lapse of time cannot be set up against liability for an advancement.<sup>2</sup>

A power given to a wife to divide property given to her for life among the children does not authorize her to make advancements to some of them and not to others.<sup>3</sup>

ADVANCES.—Moneys paid before, or in advance of, the proper time of payment; furnishing on credit.<sup>4</sup>

Fellows v. Little, 46 N. H. 27; Clark v. Willson, 27 Md. 693; Luqueer's Est., 1 Tuck. (N. Y.) 236. Yancy v. Yancy, 5 Heisk. 353.

An instrument making an advancement cannot be of a testamentary nature, as the title passes at once. Holliday v. White, 33 Tex. 460.

If subsequently to the advancement the father takes possession of the property and uses it, he becomes his son's debtor, and the statute of limitations runs against the claim for the use of the property. Persoll v. Scott, 64 Ga. 767.

1. See Rains v. Hays, 6 Lea (Tenn.), 303.

R. mortgaged certain real estate, the equity of redemption in which was afterwards set off, on an execution against him, to a creditor who conveyed the same to R.'s wife, and she afterwards died intestate. After her death R. remained in possession, and some time after was required to pay, and did pay, the mortgage debt. On a bill for foreclosure of the mortgage brought by R.'s executors against his children, who were also the children and heirs-at-law of R.'s wife, held, that the payment of the mortgage debt was not an advancement to the children. Hart v. Chase, 46 Conn. 207.

2. Hughes' App., 57 Pa. St. 179.

3. Farmer v. Farmer, 93 Ind. 435. But see Wimberly v. Bailey, 58 Tex. 222, and Weir v. Smith, 62 Tex. 1.

But where property was devised to widow for life, and at her death what remained was to be divided equally among the children, and the widow and children agreed that what she gave to each should be charged in the final division, it was held the advancements should be accounted for according to the agreement. Foltz v. Wert, 103 Ind. 404.

Authorities for Advancement.—Kent's Commentaries, vol. 4, *418 et seq.; Williams on Executors, 6th Am. Ed. 1605 et seq.; Comstock on Executors (1832), chapter on Distribution, 327 et seq.; Hood on Executors (1847), chapter on Distribution, 192 et seq.; Lomax on Executors (1841), 212 et seq.; Toller on Executors (1829), 3d Am. Ed. *376 et seq.; McClellan's Executor's Guide (1873), 119 et seq.

4. The term "advances" does not, even in ordinary cases, include money. Its ordinary use indicates moneys paid before, or in advance of, the proper time of payment. If it be deemed equivalent to advancement, and then to imply the advancing the son or daughter in life by promoting his or her pecuniary interest, that meaning may well apply to the large bequests given on marriage, or on the child attaining full age, but not to the moneys expended for his support. Vail v. Vail, 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 69, 73.

The word "advances" when taken in its strict legal sense does not mean gifts—advancements—and does mean a sort of loan; and when taken in its ordinary and usual sense includes both loans and gifts—loans more readily, perhaps, than gifts. Nolan v. Bolton, 25 Ga. 352.

"Advancement" and "advancements" are the terms used in the law dictionaries, and in the New York statutes, to designate money or property given by a father to his children, as a portion of his estate, and to be taken into account in the final partition or distribution thereof. "Advances" is not the appropriate term for money or property thus furnished. The latter phrase, in legal parlance, has a different and far broader signification. It may characterize a loan or a gift, or money advanced, to be repaid conditionally. "Lent and advanced" was the language of the old common count, in assumpsit, for money loaned or advanced, to be repaid. Chase v. Ewing, 51 Barb. (N. Y.) 597, 612.

It was rightly ruled that the word "advances," as used in one clause of the will, was not restricted to "advancements." Barker v. Comins, 110 Mass. 477, 488. Cf. County of Ormsby v. State, 6 Nev. 283.

Advance.—To "advance" is to "supply beforehand;" "to loan before the work is done or the goods made." Powder Co. v. Burkhardt, 7 Otto, 110, 117.

The word "advance" implies an act which, by anticipation puts money or money's worth into the hands of the party, who would otherwise not receive it. Cooper v. Cooper, L. R. 8 Ch. App. 813, 824.

ADVERSE POSSESSION. See also DEDICATION; EJECTMENT; PRESCRIPTION.

1. Definition.
2. Adverse User.
3. Intent.
4. Essentials.
5. Possession must be Hostile herein of—
  6. Executory Contract.
  7. Tenant in Common.
  8. Ouster.
  9. Conveyance by Co-tenant.
  10. Life Estate.
  11. Landlord and Tenant.
  12. Trusts.
  13. Agent.
  14. Mortgagor and Mortgagee.
  15. Pendente Lite Purchaser.
  16. Vendor and Vendee.
  17. Boundaries and Fences.
  18. Husband and Wife.
  19. Permissive Entry.
20. Possession must be Actual herein of—
  21. What Constitutes Possession.
  22. Cultivation.
  23. Inclosures.
  24. Taxes.
25. Possession must be Visible, Notorious, and Exclusive herein of—
  26. Notice.
  27. Possession must be Continuous herein of—
    28. Tacking.
    29. Interruption.
    30. Offer to purchase Superior Title.
    31. Purchase by Adverse Holder.
  32. May not hold adversely to All.
  33. Color of Title herein of—
    34. Good Faith.
    35. Parol Agreement.
    36. Gift.
    37. Under Mistake.
    38. Lost Deed.
    39. Invalid Conveyance or Title.
    40. Interference of Titles.
    41. Conflicting Titles.
    42. Extent of Possession.
    43. Fraud.
  44. Without Color of Title.
  45. Improvements.
  46. Abandonment.
  47. Mines.
  48. Water.
  49. Easement.
  50. Right of Way.
  51. Highways.
  52. Public Lands.
  53. State Lands.
  54. Municipal Corporations.
  55. Effect of Adverse Possession.
  56. Evidence.

1. Definition.—Adverse possession is a possession inconsistent with the right of the true owner; in other words, where a person possesses property in a manner in which he is not entitled to possess it, and without anything to show that he possesses it otherwise than as owner,—that is, with the intention of excluding all persons from it, including the rightful owner,—he is in adverse possession of it. Thus, if A is in possession of a field of B's, he is in adverse possession of it; unless there is something to show that his possession is consistent with a recognition of B's title.<sup>1</sup>

1. Sweet's Law Dict.; Ward v. Carttar, L. R. 1 Eq. 29; Magee v. Magee, 37 Miss. 152; Alexander v. Polk, 39 Miss. 755; Dixon v. Cook, 49 Miss. 226; French v. Pearce, 8 Conn. 441.

What constitutes adverse possession is for the court; the facts which support the claim, for the jury. Kinsell v. Daggett, 11 Me. 309; Schwartz v. Kuhn, 10 Me. 274; Atherton v. Johnson, 1 N. H. 34; Webb v. Richardson, 42 Vt. 465; Hall v. Dewey, 10 Vt. 593; Gayetty v. Bethune, 14 Mass. 49; Cummings v. Wyman, 10

Mass. 464; Poinard v. Smith, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 172; Gross v. Welwood, 90 N. Y. 638; Madison Am. Church v. Oliver St. Church, 73 N. Y. 82; Trim v. Marsh, 54 N. Y. 599; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 623; Jackson v. Joy, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 102; Jackson v. Stephens, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 496; Jackson v. Wheat, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 40; Den v. Sinnickson, 9 N. J. L. 149; Hopkins v. Robinson, 3 Watts (Pa.), 205; Bell v. Hurlley, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 132; Wallace v. Duffield, 2 S. & R. (Pa.) 527; Mushawer v. Patten, 10 S. & R. (Pa.)

2. What is Adverse User.—An adverse user is such a use of the property as the owner himself would make, asking no permission, 334; Overfield v. Christie, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 172; Read v. Goodyear, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 350; Hatch v. Smith, 4 Pa. St. 109; Workman v. Guthrie, 29 Pa. St. 495; Hoopes v. Garver, 15 Pa. St. 517; Baker v. Swan, 32 Md. 355; Bolling v. Petersburg, 3 Rand. (Va.) 536; Rogers v. Madden, 2 Bailey (S. Car.), 321; Harrington v. Wilkins, 2 McC. (S. Car.) 289; Dubois v. Marshall, 3 Dana (Ky.), 336; Bracken v. Martin, 3 Yerg. (Tenn.) 55; Beverly v. Burke, 9 Ga. 440; s. c., 54 Am. Dec. 351; Iler v. Routh, 3 Miss. 276; Grafton v. Grafton, 16 Miss. 77; Magee v. Magee, 37 Miss. 490; Holliday v. Cromwell, 37 Tex. 437; McNair v. Funt, 5 Mo. 300; Macklot v. Dubreuil, 9 Mo. 473; s. c., 43 Am. Dec. 550; Boogher v. Neece, 75 Mo. 384; Washburn v. Cutter, 17 Minn. 361; McPherson v. Featherston, 37 Wis. 632; Shackelford v. Bailey, 35 Ill. 387; Woodward v. Blanchard, 16 Ill. 424; Wriggins v. Holley, 11 Ind. 2; McCluny v. Ross, 5 Wheat. (U. S.) 116. Compare Saterfield v. Randall, 44 Ga. 576.

"When we look to the elements of an adversary possession, in reference to conflicting claims and the statutory prescriptive bar, we find that it consists of an exclusive, actual, continued possession, under a colorable claim of title." Taylor v. Burnside, 1 Gratt. (Va.) 165.

To establish an adverse possession the claim must be unequivocal. Sturges v. Parkhurst, 50 N. Y. Super. Ct. 306.

Instructions which leave it to the jury to determine what constitutes adverse possession or color of title are properly refused. Boogher v. Neece, 75 Mo. 384.

The plaintiff brought a suit to recover possession of certain land, of which he claimed to have been dispossessed by the defendant about three years before. After his ouster the plaintiff executed a deed of the premises to B, but by reason of the adverse possession of the defendant no title passed. The deed was given and received for the sole purpose of enabling B to dispossess the defendant. Soon after this the defendant brought an action of trespass against B for taking and carrying away a quantity of hay, which B justified on the ground that it was hay cut on the land in question, the title to which was in him. The court, however, rendered judgment for the present defendant. The latter, in the present suit, offered in evidence that judgment as an estoppel upon the present plaintiff. Held, that the title to the demanded premises was not in issue in that suit. The court below found, as to the plaintiff's title, that the only use to which the strip of land had been subjected was the occasional trimming and cutting of its trees and brush and the annual cutting and removal of the grass, seaweed, and sedge growing on it, and the landing, repairing, and storing of the fishing and other boats of the plaintiff and of those under whom he claimed title; and that the plaintiff and those under whom he claimed had been in the adverse and uninterrupted use and possession of the premises for the purposes aforesaid, more than fifteen years before the ouster by the defendant. The court having rendered judgment for the plaintiff, it was held, on the defendant's appeal, that this court could not, as matter of law, say that such possession and use were not such as to practically exclude the owner, and therefore could not say that the conclusion of the court below was legally erroneous. Carver v. Staples, 51 Conn. 21.

Adverse possession cannot arise until there is some one to dispute the right claimed. Marble v. Price, 54 Mich. 466.

Title by adverse possession is not affected by a repeal of the statute granting it. Knox v. Cleveland, 13 Wis. 245; see Shriver v. Shriver, 86 N. Y. 575.

Where land is held adversely, the true owner cannot as against the party in possession convey a title by deed delivered off the premises. Sohier v. Coffin, 101 Mass. 179.

Mere denials of the right, complaints, remonstrances, or prohibitions of user, unaccompanied by any act which in law would amount to a disturbance and be actionable as such, will not prevent the acquisition of a right by prescription. Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. McFarlan, 43 N. J. L. 605.

When both parties claim title by possession under color of title, the origin of each being an act of trespass, the one being a trespass on the constructive possession and the other a trespass on the actual possession under the later title, the same rule of law as to the title passing by adverse possession applies to each. Farran v. Heinrich, 86 Mo. 521.

No title can be acquired by adverse possession of land which was dedicated to public use before the possession began. Hoadley v. San Francisco, 50 Cal. 265.

and disregarding all other claims to it so far as they conflict with this use.<sup>1</sup>

3. Intent.—An adverse possession depends upon the intention with which it was taken or held.<sup>2</sup>

The claim of a mere easement, or other right in land less than the entire fee, does not confer any adverse right to the fee simple, and that to have this effect, under the statute of limitations, the claim must be of the entire title, exclusive of the title of any other person. N. O. & S. R. Co. v. Jones, 68 Ala. 48, 55. Dothard v. Denson, 75 Ala. 483.

Under a plea of not guilty in ejectment, evidence to prove an adverse possession is admissible, and a special plea of the statute of limitation should not be allowed. Wade v. Doyle, 17 Fla. 522; Weiskoph v. Dibble, 18 Fla. 24.

The fact that ejectment was brought within the time is no defence to the plea of the statute. The two actions are not for the same cause. Whitfield v. Hill, 5 Jones Eq. 316; Isler v. Dewey, 84 N. Car. 345.

In a proceeding by an administrator for leave to sell land to pay debts, the court, exercising but a mere statutory authority, has no jurisdiction to settle and determine conflicting titles to the land, or to remove clouds upon title. If the paramount owner of the land is made a defendant, it would doubtless be his duty to assert his rights to the same in his answer, not for the purpose of forming an issue to be tried in that proceeding, but for the purpose of giving notice of his rights, and thus prevent an estoppel in pais. Harding v. Le Moyne, 114 Ill. 65.

Breach of Peace.—A person who has, or thinks he has, a title to land which is in the actual possession of another cannot lawfully take possession without the consent of the holder, even though he commit no breach of the peace. Morris v. Robinson, S. C. Ala. Dec. Term, 1885-1886; Turnley v. Hanna, 67 Ala. 101; Mason v. Hawes, 52 Conn. 12; s. c., 52 Amer. Rep. 552.

Adverse possession must be peaceable, without force and violence; but it will not be broken by every trespass or claim by another inconsistent with a recognition of such adverse holding. Duren v. Sinclair, 22 S. Car. 361.

1. Blanchard v. Moulton, 63 Me. 434.

2. Waltmeyer v. Baughman, 63 Md. 200; Beatty v. Mason, 30 Md. 409; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Bartholomew v. Edwards, 1 Houst. (Del.) 217; Davis v. Bowmar, 55 Miss. 671; Magee v. Magee, 37 Miss. 152; Brown v. Cockrell, 30 Ala. 45; Howard v. Reedy, 29 Ga. 154; Carroll v. Gillion, 33 Ga. 539; St. Louis University v. McCune, 28 Mo. 481; Betts v. Brown, 3 Mo. App. 20; Musick v. Barney, 49 Mo. 458; Skinner v. Crawford, 54 Iowa, 119; Jones v. Hockman, 12 Iowa, 108; Grube v. Wells, 34 Iowa, 148; McNamara v. Seaton, 92 Ill. 498; Jackson v. Berner, 48 Ill. 203; Humphries v. Hoffman, 35 Ohio St. 395; Green v. Harman, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 158; Cleveland v. Flogg, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 76; Allen v. Holton, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 458; Church v. Burghart, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 328; Cook v. Babcock, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 210; Brown v. Gay, 3 Me. 126; Putnam School v. Fisher, 38 Me. 324; Worcester v. Lord, 56 Me. 265; Dow v. McKenney, 64 Me. 138; Grant v. Fowler, 39 N. H. 101; Hodges v. Eddy, 41 Vt. 488; Morse v. Churchill, 41 Vt. 649; Jackson v. Thomas, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 293; Jackson v. Wheat, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 44; Russell v. Davis, 38 Conn. 562; McGee v. Morgan, 1 A. K. Marsh (Ky.), 62; Ewing v. Burnet, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 41; Larwell v. Stevens, 2 McCrary (U. S.), 311; Jackson v. Porter, 1 Paine (U. S.), 457. Compare Campau v. Dubois, 39 Mich. 274.

The intention must be manifest. Culver v. Rhodes, 86 N. Y. 348; Marcy v. Marcy, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 360; Hart v. Gregg, 10 Watts (Pa.), 185; Prescott v. Nevers, 4 Mason (U. S.), 330. But it need not be expressed, it may be inferred from manner of occupancy. Conyers v. Kenan, 4 Ga. 308; s. c., 48 Am. Dec. 226.

The possession may be adverse, although deceit may have been used, to deceive the rightful owner. Strange v. Durham, 1 Brev. (S. Car.) 83.

The declarations of the adverse holder that he wished to find the true owner, and to purchase the property of him, will not save the statute. Patterson v. Reigle, 4 Pa. St. 201.

The possession of a mere trespasser, entering and holding without claim of right, is not adverse to the rightful owner, and does not ripen into a title by lapse of time, nor invalidate a conveyance by the owner to another person. Bernstein v. Humes, 78 Ala. 134; Clark v. Courtney, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 320.

Unintentional Encroachment.—Where

4. Essentials.—To constitute a possession such as will bar the title of the legal owner, five elements must coexist. It must be (1) hostile or adverse; (2) actual; (3) visible, notorious, and exclusive; (4) continuous, and (5) under a claim or color of title.<sup>1</sup>

5. Hostile or Adverse.—The element of hostility to the title of the true owner is an indispensable ingredient of adverse possession. The hostile possession must be continuous and notorious. It cannot be made out from inference, as the presumption is in favor of the true owner.<sup>2</sup>

the owner of a city lot undertakes to erect a building upon his own ground, but by inadvertence and ignorance of the true line of his lot places a portion of the wall four inches over the dividing line and upon the adjoining lot, but with no intention then or afterward to claim any portion of such adjoining lot as his own, and the adjoining lot-owner had no knowledge of such encroachment, the possession thus taken will not be adverse. Winn v. Abeles, 35 Kan. 85.

1. Hawk v. Senseman, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 21; Parich v. Spooner, 57 Vt. 583; Cook v. Babcock, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 209; Taylor v. Burnside, 1 Gratt. (Va.) 165; Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 430; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Dietrick v. Noel, 42 Ohio St. 18; s. c., 51 Am. Rep. 788; Flaherty v. McCormick, 113 Ill. 538; Washburn v. Cutter, 17 Minn. 361; Dothard v. Denson, 75 Ala. 541; Davis v. Bowmar, 55 Miss. 671; Ringo v. Woodruff, 43 Ark. 469; Bracken v. Jones, 63 Tex. 184; Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586.

Terms "open," "notorious," "adverse," and "exclusive," when applied to the manner in which land is held, indicate a claim of right. The terms constitute a definition of disseisin, and will be so construed unless explained by other evidence. School Dist. v. Benson, 31 Me. 381; s. c., 52 Am. Dec. 618.

2. Jones v. Porter, 3 P. & W. (Pa.) 132; Hawk v. Senseman, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 21; Rung v. Shoneberger, 2 Watts (Pa.) 23; s. c., 26 Am. Dec. 95; Putnam School v. Fisher, 38 Me. 324; Lund v. Parker, 3 N. H. 49; Grant v. Fowler, 39 N. H. 101; Hodges v. Eddy, 38 Vt. 344; Morse v. Churchill, 41 Vt. 649; Soule v. Barlow, 49 Vt. 329; Newhall v. Wheeler, 7 Mass. 189; Coburn v. Hollis, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 125; Slater v. Rawson, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 439; Cook v. Babcock, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 209; Church v. Burghart, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 328; Russell v. Davis, 38 Conn. 562; Smith v. Burtis, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 218; Jackson v. Wheat, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 40; Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 430; Clark v. McClure,

10 Gratt. (Va.) 305; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Hudson v. Putney, 14 W. Va. 561; Beatty v. Mason, 30 Md. 409; O'Daniel v. Bakers' Union, 4 Houst. (Del.) 488; Snoddy v. Kreutch, 3 Head (Tenn.) 304; McGee v. Morgan, 1 A. K. Marsh (Ky.), 62; Herbert v. Haurick, 16 Ala. 581; Potts v. Coleman, 67 Ala. 221; Carroll v. Gillion, 33 Ga. 539; Gordon v. Sizer, 39 Miss. 805; Magee v. Magee, 37 Miss. 152; Ringo v. Woodruff, 43 Ark. 469; Musick v. Barney, 49 Mo. 458; Wall v. Shindler, 47 Mo. 282; Satterwhite v. Rosser, 61 Tex. 166; Cracken v. Jones, 63 Tex. 184; Wiggins v. Holly, 11 Ind. 2; Jackson v. Berner, 48 Ill. 203; De Long v. Mulcher, 47 Iowa, 445; Grube v. Wells, 34 Iowa, 150; Jones v. Hockman, 12 Iowa, 108; Sparrow v. Hoey, 44 Mich. 63; Yelverton v. Steele, 40 Mich. 538; Washburn v. Cutter, 17 Minn. 361; Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 100; Pepper v. O'Dowd, 39 Wis. 548.

Mere verbal objections on the part of the true owner will not stop the running of the statute. Kimball v. Ladd, 42 Vt. 747.

One holding the legal title to lands, although not actually occupying, will be considered as constructively in possession thereof, unless they are in the actual hostile occupancy of another under a claim of title. Bliss v. Johnson, 94 N. Y. 235.

Adverse possession has in it nothing of stealthiness, nor is it elastic or flexible; there must be publicity, continuity, and good faith in its assertion, leaving no room for doubt by the person against whom it is asserted that his title is disputed, and a hostile title asserted. Potts v. Coleman, 67 Ala. 221. Compare Strange v. Durham, 1 Brev. (S. Car.) 83.

There must be not only an actual occupation, but also a claim of title hostile to that of the true owner. Held, accordingly, that it was error to instruct the jury to the effect that land was adversely possessed where protected by a substantial enclosure, or where it has

Possession will not be adverse if it be held under, or subservient to, a higher title, nor if it be consistent with the interest or estate of the claimant; for instance, where the possession of one is the possession of the other, or where the estate of one in possession and that of the claimant form different parts of one and the same estate. The mere entry and possession of one tenant in common, or joint tenant, or coparcener will not be adverse to the co-tenant, because the possession of one is the possession of the other. To constitute adverse possession in such cases, there must be an ouster, an entry and possession hostile to the title of the owner of the legal title. Nor will the possession of a tenant for years or tenant for life be adverse to the reversioner or heir in remainder. Thus:

6. Executory Contract.—When a purchaser of lands, under an executory contract, is let into possession, not having paid the purchase-money, and not having received a conveyance, he holds in subordination to the title of the vendor; and he cannot defeat a suit in equity by the vendor to charge the lands with the payment of the purchase-money, by interposing the lapse of time as a defence, without showing that his possession was open and notorious, asserted as hostile to the right and title of the vendor, and continued long enough to bar a recovery at law under the statute.<sup>1</sup> been usually cultivated or improved; the definition, omitting the element of hostility, which is an indispensable constituent of adverse possession. Thompson v. Felton, 54 Cal. 547.

It should appear that the possession had been actual, continued, visible, notorious, distinct, and hostile. And where the circuit judge was requested so to instruct the jury, and refused, but instructed them only that the possession must be actual, continued, and visible, held to be error. Sparrow v. Hovey, 44 Mich. 63.

The occupant's declarations during the occupancy are evidence to show that the holding was not adverse. Calhoun v. Cook, 9 Pa. St. 226.

1. Walker v. Crawford, 70 Ala. 567; Potts v. Coleman, 67 Ala. 221; Beard v. Ryan, 78 Ala. 37; Taylor v. Dugger, 66 Ala. 445; Ormond v. Martin, 37 Ala. 598; McQueen v. Ivey, 36 Ala. 308; Dothard v. Denson, 72 Ala. 541; Moring v. Ables, 62 Miss. 263; Benson v. Stewart, 30 Miss. 49; McClanahan v. Barrow, 27 Miss. 664; Gladney v. Barton, 51 Miss. 216; Adair v. Adair, 78 Mo. 630; Adams v. Cowherd, 30 Mo. 458; Strickland v. Summerville, 55 Mo. 165; Estes v. Long, 71 Mo. 605; Pullen v. Canfield, 67 Mo. 50; Doe v. Jefferson, 5 Del. 477; Clark v. McClure, 10 Gratt. (Va.) 305; Nowlin v. Reynolds, 25 Gratt. (Va.) 137; Hudson v. Putney, 14 W. Va. 561; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Williams v. Cash, 27

Ga. 507; Stamper v. Griffin, 12 Ga. 457; Jackson v. Foster, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 490; Knox v. Hook, 12 Mass. 329; Brown v. King, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 173; Catino v. Decker, 38 Conn. 262; Adams v. Fullam, 43 Vt. 592; 47 Vt. 558; Re Public Parks Depart. 73 N. Y. 560; Den v. Kip, 2 Dutch. (N. J.) 351; Harris v. Richey, 56 Pa. St. 395; McCracken v. Roberts, 19 Pa. St. 390; Woods v. Dill, 11 Ohio, 455; Dunlap v. Dougherty, 20 Ill. 397; Rigor v. Frye, 62 Ill. 507; Clouse v. Elliott, 71 Ind. 302; Blackwell v. Ryan, 21 S. Car. 112; Gilleson v. Railroad Co., 7 S. Car. 173; Furlong v. Garrett, 44 Wis. 111; Coldcleugh v. Johnson, 34 Ark. 312; Turner v. Thomas, 13 Bush (Ky.), 518; Higginbotham v. Fishback, 1 A. K. Marsh (Ky.), 506; Gassom v. Donaldson, 18 B. Man. (Ky.), 230; Kilburn v. Ritchie, 2 Cal. 145; Farrish v. Coon, 40 Cal. 33; Osterman v. Baldwin, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 116; Hermans v. Schmaltz, 7 Fed. Repr. 566; s. c., 10 Biss. (U. S.) 323; see Adams v. Fullam, 47 Vt. 558.

Neither can the widow of such vendee after his death. Blackwell v. Ryan, 21 S. Car. 112.

A sold land belonging to his wife to B, giving only a title bond. B entered in possession. The wife died 30 years after such entry. Held, that A's estate by courtesy was barred by the possession of B and his successors. Stokely v. Slayden, 8 Baxt. (Tenn.) 307.

The vendee, though not strictly a ten-

Where, however, the vendee has executed his part of the agree-ant of the vendor, and though the technical relation of landlord and tenant is not created, is estopped from denying the title of the vendor, upon principle and reasoning like that which estops the tenant from disputing the title of the landlord; and the estoppel applies to whoever may acquire possession from the vendee. Potts v. Coleman, 67 Ala. 221; Jackson v. Harder, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 202; Jackson v. Bard, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 230; Jackson v. Walker, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 643; Jackson v. Spear, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 403.

One buys land with borrowed money, taking the title in the name of the lender, and goes into possession under an agreement with the lender that the title is to be conveyed to him whenever he repays the loan, his possession will not become adverse as against the lender until he has made an open and explicit disavowal of the lender's title and assertion of title in himself, and such disavowal and assertion have been brought home to the lender. Estes v. Long, 71 Mo. 605.

The possession of a purchaser of land by title bond, who goes into possession and holds for himself, is not the possession of his vendor, who has color of title, so as to perfect the latter's title, under the 1st section of the act of 1819, in seven years, against an otherwise superior title in another. If the purchaser in such case be for some purposes regarded as the tenant at will of his vendor, yet he is not the tenant in fact, and his possession is not that of his vendor, in the sense of the statute. Ellege v. Cook, 5 Lea (Tenn.), 622.

The possession of the purchaser of land, under an executory contract, is not adverse to his vendor, although he has paid all the purchase-money and used and occupied the land for his own exclusive benefit. The contract, being executory and made in contemplation of a conveyance by deed, recognizes the legal title as outstanding, and his possession will be treated as in subordination thereto and not as adverse. Williams v. Snidow, 4 Leigh (Va.), 14; Gay v. Moffitt, 2 Bibb (Ky.), 506; Nowlin v. Reynolds, 25 Gratt. (Va.) 137.

A case of sale on credit, purchase-money not paid, and no title conveyed to the purchaser. Under an execution against the purchaser, the sheriff levied on and sold the lands to M, who received a sheriff's deed, and went into possession, and held under claim of right, for more than ten years. Held, that M acquired no title by his purchase; but, going into possession under claim of right, he was an adverse holder, and the statute of limitations had perfected a bar in his favor. Miller v. The State, 38 Ala. 600. See, also, Smilie v. Biffle, 2 Penn. St. 52; Steele v. Johnson, 4 Allen (Mass.), 425; Clark v. Gilbert, 39 Conn. 94; Northrop v. Wright, 7 Hill (N. Y.), 476; Beverly v. McBride, 9 Ga. 440; McCall v. Neely, 3 Watts, 69; Woodward v. Blanchard, 16 Ill. 424; Angell on Lim. (6th Ed.) §§ 406 et seq.

Possession by virtue of an executory contract with one who himself claims under a like contract from the patentee is not adverse to that of the patentee until the latter repudiates his contract by selling to other parties, in which case possession under the executory contract will be adverse to that of the second vendee. Pearson v. Boyd, 62 Tex. 541; Roosevelt v. Davis, 49 Tex. 463; Keys v. Mason, 44 Tex. 144.

One who holds under an executory contract cannot make his possession adverse by taking a lease from another party. Pratt v. Canfield, 67 Mo. 50.

A bond for title will give color of title. Elliott v. Mitchell, 47 Tex. 445; Scarborough v. Arrant, 25 Tex. 131; Miller v. Alexander, 8 Tex. 36; Spitler v. Scofield, 43 Iowa, 571.

A tax certificate is evidence of the purchase of the land, after the expiration of the time for redemption, and upon notice to the owner the purchaser is entitled to a deed. This deed may be sufficient for color, even if too defective to convey title. McKeighan v. Hopkins, 14 Neb. 361; Bride v. Watt, 23 Ill. 507.

Twenty years' actual possession of a lot under contract of purchase is a bar to ejectment as to any part of the land within the inclosure. Schneider v. Botsch, 90 Ill. 577; Hubbard v. Stearns, 86 Ill. 35.

Sub-purchaser.—When a purchaser of land, under an executory contract, is let into possession, not having paid the purchase-money nor received a conveyance, his possession becomes adverse when he pays the purchase-money, and not before; but if he sells and conveys to a third person, who pays the stipulated price, and is placed in possession, the possession of such sub-purchaser is adverse to the original vendor, and will ripen into a title under the statute of limitations, although the first purchaser never paid the purchase-money, and never acquired any title. Beard v.

ment by payment of the purchase-money, his possession is from that time adverse to the vendor.<sup>1</sup>

Ryan, 78 Ala. 37; Walker v. Crawford, 70 Ala. 567; State v. Conner, 69 Ala. 212. See James v. Patterson, 62 Ga. 527.

T sold to D a tract of land, and gave bond for title. D, being unable to make his payment, sold to A, who agreed to pay T, and to extend to D for a certain time the right to repurchase. A being involved, the title was conveyed to W, to be held by him during D's right to repurchase. D failed to repurchase, and W then delivered the deed to A, whose heirs held adversely about twenty years, and then brought suit to have the legal title, outstanding in the heirs of W, surrendered and conveyed to them. Held, that the claim of the heirs of A had ripened into a good, legal title by lapse of time, and that they were entitled to relief. Gladney v. Barton, 51 Miss. 216.

The possession of land by the holder of a bond for titles, with some of the purchase-money unpaid, is permissive, and the same does not become adverse to the maker of the bond though the holder has conveyed the premises by deed to an innocent purchaser from himself, yielded possession to such purchaser, and afterwards resumed and held it under a reconveyance by deed from his own vendee. A second vendee by deed from the holder of the bond cannot, in a contest with the maker of the bond, tack to his own possession any part of that of the holder of the bond, the same not being adverse; nor can he tack to his own the possession of the first vendee by deed, because the two adverse possessions having been separated by an intervening permissive possession, the continuity of adverse holding was interrupted. Rutherford v. Hobbs, 63 Ga. 243.

A, having contracted to purchase lands of B, paid part of the purchase-money, but titles were never made. A gave the bond to his son, C, who went into possession. Held, that his possession was adverse, both as to A and B. Hunter v. Parsons, 2 Bailey (S. Car.), 59.

1. Moring v. Ables, 62 Miss. 263; Niles v. Davis, 60 Miss. 750; Brown v. King, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 173; Bryan v. Atwater, 5 Day (Conn.), 181; Catino v. Decker, 38 Conn. 262; Potts v. Coleman, 67 Ala. 221; Tillman v. Spann, 68 Ala. 102; Taylor v. Dugger, 66 Ala. 445. Compare Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238.

A vendor of land received the purchase-money, gave his vendee a bond for title, and died in possession without ever having done an act inconsistent with his vendee's title. His administrators sold the land as part of his estate. Upon a bill filed by the first vendee, more than ten years after the transaction for, specific performance, and to annul the deed made by the administrators, it was ruled that the original vendor held the naked legal title in trust for the vendee; that the purchaser at administrator's sale stood in the same situation, and the statute was no bar. Harris v. King, 16 Ark. 122.

The possession of a purchaser under an executory contract is not adverse to his vendor, although he has paid all the purchase-money and used and occupied the land for his exclusive benefit. His contract, being executory and made in contemplation of a further conveyance of the legal title, recognizes the title in his vendor, and his holding will be regarded as in subordination thereto and not adverse. Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238.

Where sale is made unconditionally and the purchase-money paid, under an agreement that a deed shall be executed, the possession of the vendee becomes at once adverse. Ridgeway v. Holliday, 59 Mo. 444.

In ejectment by N. against M. it appeared that B's original possession had come down regularly to M.; that B. purchased the land from C., taking C.'s bond for title and giving three notes, which C. sold to J. and which B. paid at maturity, taking from J. a deed with the usual warranty of title; that B. took actual possession of the land before wholly paying the notes; that J. was a bona-fide holder for value, not knowing that the true title was in N., under whom C. held by bond for title only, with the purchase-money not fully paid; and that notice of C.'s want of title never reached B. until he had become bound to pay J. Held, that the possession on which M.'s prescriptive title rested had its commencement under circumstances consistent with good faith in the possession. Newton v. Mayo, 62 Ga. 11.

In 1845 N. sold a tract of land to his son C., who was then 17 years old, received the entire purchase-money, executed a deed or title bond thereto, which was lost or mislaid, and never entered of record, and delivered it to C. and put him in possession of the land, who immediately erected a dwelling-house thereon, and put up other buildings. Soon after this sale was made to C., N. conveyed this land and other property to

Where one enters under an executory contract he may set up as a defence the statutory limitation as against persons other than his vendor.<sup>1</sup>

7. Tenants in Common.—The possession of one tenant in common, though exclusive, being consistent with the right of his co-tenant, does not amount to a disseisin of the co-tenant; and an ouster, or some act which the law deems equivalent to an ouster, is necessary to constitute a disseisin of his co-tenant by a tenant in common.

Thus, where one tenant in common occupies the common property notoriously as the sole owner, using it exclusively, improving it, and taking to his own use the rents and profits, or otherwise exercising over it such acts of ownership as manifest unequivocally an intention to ignore and repudiate any right in his co-tenants, such occupation or acts and claim of sole ownership will amount to a disseisin of his co-tenants, and his possession will be regarded as adverse from the time they have knowledge of such acts or occupation and claim of exclusive ownership.<sup>2</sup>

S. to secure certain debts; and in 1869 the trustee sold the land under the trust-deed to R., who brought ejectment against C. to recover the land. On the trial, after R. had introduced the deeds, C. proved the above facts, and then proved that he had been in actual adverse possession since 1845. Held, that C.'s title was complete. Nowlin v. Reynolds, 25 Gratt. (Va.) 137.

Presumption of Payment from Lapse of Time.—A presumption of the payment of the purchase-money from mere lapse of time, in favor of a purchaser in possession under an executory contract, does not arise until after the expiration of twenty years from the commencement of his possession. Taylor v. Dugger, 66 Ala. 444.

1. Elliott v. Mitchell, 47 Tex. 445.

2. Clymer v. Dawkins, 3 How. (U. S.) 674; McClung v. Ross, 5 Wheat. (U. S.) 116; Union, etc., M. Co. v. Taylor, 100 U. S. 37; Caperton v. Gregory, 11 Gratt. (Va.) 505; Terrill v. Murray, 4 Yerg. (Tenn.) 104; Lodge v. Patterson, 3 Watts (Pa.), 74; Long v. Mast, 11 Pa. St. 189; Bennet v. Bullock, 35 Pa. St. 364; Dikeman v. Parrish, 6 Pa. St. 225; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 455; Peck v. Ward, 18 Pa. St. 506; Covey v. Porter, 22 W. Va. 121; Bogges v. Meredith, 16 W. Va. 1; Rust v. Rust, 17 W. Va. 901; Van Bibber v. Frazier, 17 Md. 436; Roberts v. Smith, 21 S. Car. 455; Teal v. Terrell, 58 Tex. 257; Peeler v. Guilkey, 27 Tex. 355; Squires v. Clark, 17 Kans. 84; Warfield v. Lindell, 30 Mo. 272, 38 Mo. 561; Lapeyre v. Paul, 47 Mo. 590; McQuiddy v. Ware, 67 Mo. 74; Campbell v. Laclede

Gas. Co., 84 Mo. 352; Campau v. Campau, 44 Mich. 31; Abercrombie v. Baldwin, 15 Ala. 371; Neely v. Neely, 79 N. Car. 478; Linker v. Benson, 67 N. Car. 150; Foulke v. Bond, 41 N. J. L. 527; Manchester v. Doddridge, 3 Ind. 360; Stevens v. Wait, 112 Ill. 544; Ball v. Palmer, 81 Ill. 370; Winter v. Haines, 84 Ill. 585; Busch v. Huston, 75 Ill. 344; Young v. Heffner, 36 Ohio St. 232; Knowles v. Brown, 28 N. W. Repr. (Iowa), 409; Burns v. Byrne, 45 Iowa, 285; Challefoux v. Ducharme, 8 Wis. 287; Abernathie v. Mining Co., 16 Nev. 260; Bath v. Valdez, 11 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 724; Tully v. Tully, 9 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 841; Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586; Colman v. Clements, 23 Cal. 245; Holley v. Hawley, 39 Vt. 534; Bellis v. Bellis, 122 Mass. 414; Hall v. Stevens, 9 Metc. (Mass.) 418; Catino v. Decker, 38 Conn. 362; Jackson v. Smith, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 406; Kathan v. Rockwell, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 90; Millard v. McMullin, 68 N. Y. 352; Woolsey v. Morss, 19 Hun (N. Y.), 273; Culver v. Rhodes, 86 N. Y. 348.

A grandchild cannot, after the lapse of more than twenty years from the attainment of his majority, bring a suit for partition of land against other grandchildren who have been in undisputed and adverse possession since the death of the common ancestor, for more than that length of time. Johnson v. Filson, 8 N. E. Repr. 111, 318.

Where a conveyance is made by a party in the exclusive possession, under a deed which purports to convey the whole property, and the grantee goes in to the open and notorious possession of the whole, neither grantor nor grantee having notice of a co-tenancy, their possession, if for the statutory period, will create a good title by adverse possession in the grantee. A party who is in possession of land under a deed will not be estopped from asserting title, by adverse possession, by the action of the probate court in decreeing to the heirs of a former owner an undivided one-half of the property. Had he appeared in the probate proceedings, and set up his adverse title, the probate court would have had no authority to hear and determine the question raised. Bath v. Valdez, 11 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 724.

8. Ouster.—Ouster is a question of fact which it is the province of the jury to determine, and the facts and circumstances which go to establish the ouster ought, under proper instructions from the court, to be submitted to the jury.<sup>1</sup>

To effect an ouster of the co-tenant there must be an actual, continued, visible, notorious, distinct, and hostile possession. It must be such that knowledge of its existence is brought home to the co-tenant.<sup>2</sup>

Partition.—The doctrine that partition will not lie when the defendant is in adverse possession of the premises, does not apply when the plaintiff's title is an equitable one only. Dameron v. Jamerson, 71 Mo. 97.

Fraud.—If one of the tenants in common has been guilty of fraud, the statute will not run against the other tenants. Austin v. Barrett, 44 Iowa, 488.

1. Johnson v. Gorham, 38 Conn. 513; Cummings v. Wyman, 10 Mass. 465; Taylor v. Hill, 10 Leigh (Va.) 457; Purcell v. Wilson, 4 Gratt. (Va.) 16; Harmon v. James, 7 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 111; Blackmore v. Gregg, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 182; Carpentier v. Mendenhall, 28 Cal. 484; Clark v. Crego, 47 Barb. (N. Y.) 599; Gill v. Fauntleroy, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 177; Washburn v. Cutter, 17 Minn. 361; Highstone v. Burdette, 54 Mich. 329; Broadstreet v. Huntington, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 402; Ewing v. Burnet, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 41. And the burden of proof rests upon the party alleging it. Newell v. Woodruff, 30 Conn. 492; Van Bibber v. Frazier, 17 Md. 436.

2. Culver v. Rhodes, 87 N. Y. 348; Zeller v. Eckert, 4 How. (U. S.) 295; Barr v. Gratz, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 213; McClung v. Ross, 5 Wheat. (U. S.) 124; Challefoux v. Ducharme, 8 Wis. 287; Long v. Mast, 11 Pa. St. 189; Bennet v. Bullock, 35 Pa. St. 364; Hall v. Stevens, 9 Metc. (Mass.) 418; Warfield v. Lindell, 38 Mo. 581.

After there is an ouster, the excluded party must regain possession before he can bring suit for partition. Florence v. Hopkins, 46 N. Y. 182.

It is sufficient if his acts are of such a nature as by their own import to impart information and give notice to the co-tenants that an adverse possession and an actual exclusive ownership are intended to be asserted against them. Campbell v. Laclede Gas Co., 84 Mo. 352.

What is.—The acts needful to create an ouster must be an actual and exclusive possession of the whole premises, claiming the whole. Florence v. Hopkins, supra, 46 N. Y. 182; Culver v. Rhodes, 87 N. Y. 348.

An exclusive possession, exclusive receipt of rents and profits, and exclusive claim of title. Grim v. Dyar, 3 Duer, 354; a public claim of the entire title, a notorious act, an open claim of exclusive right. Smith v. Burtiss, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 174; Culver v. Rhodes, 87 N. Y. 348.

Evidence must make the intention to hold adversely manifest, and palpably display such intention. Marcy v. Marcy, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 360; Prescott v. Nevers, 4 Mason (U. S.), 330; Hart v. Gregg, 10 Watts (Pa.), 185; Culver v. Rhodes, 87 N. Y. 348.

The evidence to sustain an ouster by a co-tenant must be stronger than that to sustain ordinary adverse possession. Barret v. Coburn, 3 Metc. (Ky.) 513; Forward v. Deetz, 32 Pa. St. 72; Bailey v. Trammell, 27 Tex. 328.

In ejectment between grantees of tenants in common defendant claimed title by adverse possession, and asserted that his entry under a warranty deed was an ouster of the co-tenants. There was evidence to show, however, that he only bargained for an undivided interest, and there was nothing to show that the co-tenants knew of his possession or claim of title. Held, for the jury to determine whether he entered claiming title to the whole, and intending to oust his co-tenants. Highstone v. Burdette, 54 Mich. 329.

If the hostile character of the possession is so openly manifested that his observation as a man reasonably careful of his interests would be sufficient to discover it, he will be deemed to have notice. Thus, where one of two tenants in common conveys to a third person by deed purporting to convey the whole land, and the deed is recorded by the grantee, who enters under it, such entry is hostile in its nature, and the mere fact of possession by a stranger is enough to put him on inquiry, and charge him with notice. So, the making of valuable improvements, paying the taxes upon the land, and receiving the rents and profits without accounting or offering to account, are circumstances indicating an adverse holding, and their effect upon the co-tenant is the same as if notice were directly communicated to him. The means of knowledge being furnished by the open and notorious character of the possession, he is charged with actual notice. Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 100. See Culver v. Rhodes, 86 N. Y. 348; Clark v. Crego, 47 Barb. (N. Y.) 599; Grim v. Dyar, 3 Duer (N. Y.) 354.

9. Conveyance by a Co-tenant.—Where one co-tenant assumes to convey the entire land, and does convey by metes and bounds, his deed will give color of title; and if possession is taken thereunder,

The plaintiff, being one-half owner of a grist-mill, conveyed his interest to the defendants' grantors, who then owned the other half, and in his deed bounded the premises by the north line of the grist-mill building. Afterwards the defendants, without permission of the plaintiff, enlarged the flume across the common land, and in so doing built a thick wall of solid masonry and increased the width of the waterway thereon; and it was found by a referee that this appropriation of the common land by the defendants amounted to an ouster of the plaintiff. Held, that the defendants were not liable to the plaintiff in an action of trespass quare clausum, it appearing that the plaintiff had a subsequent right to take water from the flume. Johnson v. Conant, 3 N. Eng. Repr. (N. H.) 163.

Defendant took a deed from one of several heirs for his undivided interest in a large quantity of land, whereupon he took possession of and improved eighty acres of it, rented it for a number of years, and collected the rents and paid the taxes, and afterwards moved upon it, and occupied it continuously as a homestead, and exercised all ordinary acts of ownership, up to the beginning of this suit—more than twenty years subsequent to the date of his deed; the coheirs of his grantor never in the meantime making any claim to any interest in the eighty acres, though two of them lived near the land. In this action, brought by plaintiff (who had obtained quit-claim deeds from some of the heirs) to quiet the title in him to an undivided interest in the land, defendant testified that he bought and paid for the whole eighty, and that he supposed that he had acquired it by his deed; and his testimony was not disputed, but was strongly corroborated by all the facts, except the deed itself. Held, that defendant had held possession of the land under a claim of sole ownership from the date of his deed; that his alleged co-tenants must be presumed to have had knowledge of his claim, and that he had a good title by adverse possession as against the plaintiff. Laraway v. Larue, 63 Iowa, 407; see Foulke v. Bond, 41 N. J. L. 527. Compare Moore v. Antill, 53 Iowa, 612; Kathan v. Rockwell, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 90.

Payment of taxes and occasional use of the land will not constitute ouster. McQuiddy v. Ware, 67 Mo. 74.

In 1820 R. conveyed to A. an undivided half of the premises. In 1836 W. conveyed the other undivided half to school trustees, who built a school-house, and occupied it until 1873. The district conveyed the premises to B., he being told after the sale, but before the execution of the deed, that the district had title to but one half of the premises. He had also knowledge of A.'s claim. Held, that the possession of the district was not adverse to A. Kathan v. Rockwell, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 90.

A father moved away, leaving his son in possession of the farm, who always asserted his title, saying his father gave it to him. Held, that his possession was adverse to the other heirs of his father. Jackson v. Whitbeck, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 632.

Where one of several heirs bought the interest of one of his co-heirs in a tract of land, and after such purchase paid the taxes, took timber from the land, and also used it as a pasture, held, that the acts were consistent with his interest as a tenant in common therein, and did not constitute ouster of his co-tenants. McQuiddy v. Ware, 67 Mo. 74.

One tenant in common of a tract of land bordering upon the sea inclosed a portion by a bank wall, and placed upon the purchaser claiming title to the whole premises, it will amount to an actual ouster and disseisin of the other tenants, and such a part of it a fish-house, not fastened to the soil, and susceptible of easy removal, and a pump. He afterwards let the fish-house, receiving rent therefor, paid taxes on the house, but not, eo nomine, on the land. The other tenants in common used the fish-house as they found it convenient to do so. The pump was used as a common convenience by the neighborhood; and the land thus inclosed was used as a place of common resort for smoking and conversation, and as a place where all might draw up their boats. Held, that such use and occupation, even if continued for twenty-nine years, would not amount to an ouster of the co-tenants. Ingalls v. Newhall, 139 Mass. 268.

A brother and his married sister being the owners of land in coparcenary, the latter in 1837, by a paper purporting to be a deed signed and acknowledged by her, but without privy examination or joinder therein by her husband, conveyed to the former her interest in said land, he being at the time in the possession thereof and so continuing thereafter until his death, in 1859, when his devisees succeeded him and continued in possession up to 1881, at which time the heirs of the sister brought suit for partition of the land, the sister having remained under coverture until a short time before her death, which occurred in 1879; the brother and his devisees during the whole period from 1837 to 1859 having occupied the land notoriously as sole owners, using it exclusively, taking the entire rents and profits, making costly improvements thereon, and otherwise exercising over it such acts of ownership as manifested an unequivocal intention to repudiate any right or claim of the sister in the land. Held, notwithstanding said deed was void as a conveyance or contract of sale, it was sufficient prima facie to give notice of an intention to hold adversely; and the subsequent possession of the brother and his devisees, under the circumstances, operated as a bar to the right of his sister, although she continued under coverture the whole time; and the plaintiff's bill was properly dismissed. Cooley v. Porter, 22 W. Va. 121.

If the possession of a tenant in common is adverse to his co-tenant, it will not lose its hostile character by the former tendering a quit-claim deed to the latter, and requesting him to sign it, there being no offer to purchase, nor any acknowledgment of the tenancy. Un- ger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 100.

Taking of a deed by one tenant in common from a third person, and spreading it on the record, will have no effect as the equivalent of an ouster, unless accompanied and followed by a hostile claim of which the co-tenant had knowledge, and by acts of possession, not only inconsistent with, but exclusive of, the right of such co-tenant. Holley v. Hawley, 39 Vt. 532. See Culver v. Rhodes, 87 N. Y. 348.

A sole and uninterrupted possession and taking of profits by one tenant in common, with the knowledge of the other, continued for a long series of years, without any perception of profits or demand for them by the co-tenant, if unexplained or controlled by any evidence tending to show a reason for such neglect or omission, will be evidence of an ouster. Lefavor v. Homan, 3 Allen (Mass.), 354; Ewer v. Lovell, 9 Gray (Mass.) 276.

To make a possession of tenant in common adverse as against the other, it is not necessary that notice should be given of the adverse intent; but the intent must be manifested by outward acts of an unequivocal kind. Humbert v. Trinity Church, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 587; Lodge v. Patterson, 3 Watts (Pa.), 74; Owen v. Morton, 24 Cal. 373; Weisinger v. Murphy, 2 Head (Tenn.) 674; Culler v. Motzer, 13 S. & R. (Pa.) 356; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 604; Abernathie v. Consolidated Va. M. Co., 16 Nev. 260; Bradstreet v. Huntington, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 402. Witnessing a will of one co-tenant devising all the land, by another co-tenant, and hearing it read, held an ouster. Miller v. Miller, 60 Pa. St. 16; see Coker v. Ferguson, 70 Ala. 284.

An exclusive appropriation of a part of the land to his own use by the erection of a permanent structure would be evidence of an ouster of his co-tenant. Bennett v. Clemence, 6 Allen (Mass.), 10.

Where one of the tenants took possession of the land, and improved for a long period of time, held that he held adversely. Campeau v. Dubois, 39 Mich. 274; Lapeyre v. Paul, 47 Mo. 586.

The mere possession of the common premises by one co-tenant, and appropriation of the rents thereof, is not sufficient to make out a case of adverse possession against a co-tenant. There must be outward acts of exclusive ownership of an unequivocal character. Todd v.

possession is adverse, and, if continued for a sufficient length of time, will bar the right of the other co-tenants to recover.<sup>1</sup>

Todd, 7 N. E. Repr. (Ill.) 583; Busch v. Huston, 75 Ill. 343; Lapeyre v. Paul, 47 Mo. 586; Whiting v. Dewey, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 428; Parker v. Prop'rs, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 91; Susquehanna, etc., R. Co. v. Quick, 61 Pa. St. 328.

1. Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586; Packard v. Moss, 8 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 818; Abernathie v. Consolidated Va. M. Co., 16 Nev. 260; Long v. Stapp, 49 Mo. 508; Warfield v. Lindell, 30 Mo. 282; s. c., 38 Mo. 578; Lapeyre v. Paul, 47 Mo. 590; Goewey v. Urig, 15 Ill. 242; Hinkley v. Green, 52 Ill. 230; Kinney v. Slatery, 51 Iowa, 353; Nelson v. Davis, 35 Ind. 474. Sands v. Davis, 40 Mich. 14; Campau v. Dubois, 39 Mich. 274; Thomas v. Pickering, 13 Me. 337; Higbee v. Rice, 5 Mass. 352; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 63; Marcy v. Marcy, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 360; Rickard v. Rickard, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 251; Bigelow v. Jones, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 161; Parker v. Prop'rs, etc., 3 Metc. (Mass.) 91; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 121; Kittredge v. Prop'rs, etc., 17 Pick. (Mass.) 246; Hodges v. Eddy, 38 Vt. 327; Forest v. Jackson, 56 N. H. 357; Clark v. Vaughan, 3 Conn. 191; Clapp v. Bromagham, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 530; Bogardus v. Trinity Church, 4 Paige (N. Y.), 178; Jackson v. Smith, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 406; Foulke v. Bond, 41 N. J. L. 527; Culler v. Motzer, 13 S. & R. (Pa.) 356; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 604; Lodge v. Patterson, 3 Watts (Pa.), 74; Mehaffy v. Dobbs, 9 Watts (Pa.), 363; Law v. Patterson, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 184, 191; Frederick v. Gray, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 182; Dikeman v. Parrish, 6 Pa. St. 210; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 455; Caperton v. Gregory, 11 Gratt. (Va.) 508; Black v. Lindsay, Busb. (N. Car.) 467; Covington v. Stewart, 77 N. Car. 148; Thomas v. Garvan, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 223; Cloud v. Webb, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 290; Gray v. Bates, 3 Strobb. (S. Car.) 498; Hart v. Bostwick, 14 Fla. 162; Horne v. Howell, 46 Ga. 9; Cain v. Furlow, 47 Ga. 674; Abercrombie v. Baldwin, 15 Ala. 363; Alexander v. Kennedy, 19 Tex. 488; Gill v. Fauntleroy, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 177; Weisinger v. Murphy, 2 Head (Tenn.), 674; Ashley v. Rector, 20 Ark. 359; Hovenden v. Lord Annesley, 2 Schoales & L. 628; Doe v. Prosser, Cowp. 217; Townsend & Pastor's Case, 4 Leon. 52; Reed v. Taylor, 5 Barn. & Adol. 575.

Proof of a verbal sale of the interest of one of the heirs to an estate to another of the heirs, followed by 20 years' adverse possession in such other heir, held to create a sufficient title in the latter. Hyne v. Osborne, 28 N. W. Mich. 821.

In ejectment between grantees of tenants in common, defendant claimed title by adverse possession, and asserted that his entry under a warranty deed was an ouster of the co-tenants. There was evidence to show, however, that he only bargained for an undivided interest, and there was nothing to show that the co-tenants knew of his possession or claim of title. Held, for the jury to determine whether he entered claiming title to the whole, and intending to oust his co-tenants. Highstone v. Burdette, 54 Mich. 329.

Complainants and those under whom they claimed had had fifty years' open, notorious, and continuous possession of lands, under duly recorded deeds purporting to convey the entire estate therein. Held, that their title was valid, as against one claiming under the former owner of an undivided interest. Watson v. Jeffrey, 39 N. J. Eq. 62. See Lapeyre v. Paul, 47 Mo. 586; Sydnor v. Palmer, 29 Wis. 226.

If there be parol exchange of lands for purposes of mutual tenancy, the presumption is that the possession is not adverse, but permissive; but in such case, if the proof show a hostile claim of title by either of the occupants, possession for ten years under such claim may mature into a good title. Alexander v. Wheeler, 69 Ala. 332.

Where one of several tenants in common conveys land, excepting and reserving the interest of his co-tenants, and the grantee takes possession of the whole under an agreement with the grantor to pay the taxes for and on behalf of the co-tenants, such possession, without a subsequent ouster or disseisin, cannot be regarded as adverse to them, and the purchaser cannot invoke the limitation law to defeat the assertion of their rights. Grand Tower, etc., Co. v. Gill, 111 Ill. 541.

An owner of land conveyed the same to his five children. One of the grantees afterwards reconveyed to the original grantor, but by deed purporting to convey, not the undivided one-fifth interest which he held, but the entire tract. It was considered, however, that the legal effect of the reconveyance was, under the circumstances, the same as if it had purported to convey only the interest which the grantor therein held—an undivided one-fifth part. So the original grantor,

10. Life Estate.—The possession of land by a tenant for life cannot be adverse to the remainder-man; and if he sells and conveys to a third person, by words purporting to pass the absolute property, the possession of the purchaser is not, and cannot be during the continuance of the life estate, adverse to the remainder-man.<sup>1</sup> having thus acquired an undivided one-fifth interest in the land, became a tenant in common with the other four owners to whom he had previously conveyed, and his possession in that relation was not adverse to them. Stevens v. Walt, 112 Ill. 544.

1. Pickett v. Pope, 74 Ala. 122, 65 Ala. 487; Keith v. Keith, 80 Mo. 125; Sutton v. Casseleggi, 77 Mo. 397; Dewey v. McLain, 7 Kan. 126; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 418; Hanson v. Johnson, 62 Md. 25; s. c., 50 Am. Rep. 199; Bedell v. Shaw, 59 N. Y. 49; Sands v. Hughes, 53 N. Y. 294; Devye v. Schaefer, 55 N. Y. 446; Christie v. Gage, 71 N. Y. 189; Pinckney v. Burrage, 31 N. J. L. 21; Poor v. Larrabee, 58 Me. 543; Gernet v. Lynn, 31 Pa. St. 94; Henley v. Wilson, 77 N. Car. 216; McCarry v. King, 30 Humph. (Tenn.) 267; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 165; Turman v. White, 14 B. Mon. (Ky.) 560; Simmons v. McKay, 5 Bush (Ky.) 31; Jones v. Freed, 42 Ark. 357; Nicholson v. Caress, 59 Ind. 39; Carpenter v. Denoon, 29 Ohio St. 379.

Possession under a sheriff's deed purporting to convey the interest which the judgment debtor had on a certain day is not adverse to the debtor's wife; and no length of such possession is a bar to her claim of dower. Cowan v. Lindsay, 30 Wis. 586.

A widow to whom dower is assigned comes in under the heir to whom her possession can never become adverse. Molloy v. Bruden, 86 N. Car. 251; Musham v. Musham, 87 Ill. 80. Nor can the possession of her tenant under a lease she had no authority to make. Melvin v. Waddell, 75 N. Car. 361. Nor the grantee under her deed? Culver v. Rhodes, 86 N. Y. 348. But where a widow remained in occupation of her deceased husband's residence for a long number of years, claiming ownership, it was held that her possession was adverse to the heirs. Hogan v. Kurtz, 94 U. S. 773. But her declaration that the husband had devised the land to her, prevented her possession becoming adverse. Breidegam v. Hoffmaster, 61 Pa. St. 223.

Adverse possession is held as against one's grantor by one who has taken a warranty deed of the premises in reliance on the record title and in ignorance of any life-lease outstanding in the grantor. Case v. Green, 53 Mich. 615.

Where a deed conveyed a life estate, and the grantee remained in possession thirty years or more, the heirs of the grantor setting up no claim to the reversion, held, that the occupancy for so long a period becomes in itself an independent source of title. Osborne v. Anderson, 89 N. Car. 261.

The appellee B. had possession and paid taxes for above 20 years, under a quitclaim deed. His grantor had an estate pour autre vie, and the appellant and another are the reversioners. The will under which the appellee's grantor acquired his title was never recorded, nor, so far as the proof shows, brought to the notice of appellee. Held, under these circumstances, his possession has been adverse to the reversioners, and the bar of the statute is complete. Saford v. Stubbs, 7 N. East. Repr. (Ill.) 653.

Possession does not begin to be adverse as against a person entitled after the determination of a prior estate, during the continuance of that estate. Fleming v. Burnham, 100 N. Y. 1.

Although the remainder-man may have acquired the right to enter, during the continuance of the life estate, his neglect to do so, will not set the statute in motion, as he is not bound to do so until the life estate is determined. Stevens v. Winship, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 318; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 178.

Where a husband conveys in fee land of the wife in which he has courtesy, the statute will not run against the vendee of the wife until the husband's death. Jones v. Freed, 42 Ark. 357.

A husband of a life tenant may, after her death make a deed which will give color of title. Forest v. Jackson, 56 N. H. 357.

During the life of the tenant, the possession of his grantee is not adverse, and a conveyance then made by the remainder-man will be valid. Christie v. Gage, 71 N. Y. 187; Hanson v. Johnson, 62 Md. 25; s. c., 50 Am. Rep. 199.

Where such conveyance has been made, one who enters upon the land may hold adversely against the grantee. Talcott v. Draper, 61 Ill. 56.

Where one of several remainder-men who was living with the tenant for life

The estate of the life tenant may be acquired adversely, and held during the continuance of the life estate.<sup>1</sup>

But after the life estate falls in, the possession will be adverse as to the reversioner.<sup>2</sup>

11. Landlord and Tenant.—When the relation of landlord and tenant has been created, the possession of the tenant is consistent with the title of the landlord, and the mere non-demand and non-payment of rent are not sufficient to bar the landlord's title, whatever effect they may have, if long continued, upon his right to recover the rent; and not only is the tenant precluded from relying on his possession to bar his landlord, but also all persons who come in under or derive possession from the tenant in any manner, however remotely. In such cases, possession is presumed to be in accordance with the title, and this presumption will hold until some notorious and unequivocal act of exclusion shall have occurred.<sup>3</sup> upon the land, accepted a deed of a portion thereof without warranty and for a nominal consideration, and thereafter occupied, claiming to hold the premises conveyed adversely under the deed, but there was no apparent change of possession or occupation, and no notice of a hostile claim given to the co-tenants, held, that the giving and receiving of the deed was not in itself an act hostile to the rights of the co-tenants, but that both the deed and the possession under it were consistent therewith, as the grantor could convey the life estate, so that it gave no notice or intimation of a hostile claim; and that, therefore, there was no adverse possession, such as would defeat an action for partition. Culver v. Rhodes, 86 N. Y. 348.

1. Moore v. Luce, 29 Pa. St. 260.

2. Christie v. Gage, 71 N. Y. 189; Jackson v. Schoonmaker, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 390; Hall v. Vandergrift, 3 Binn. (Pa.) 374; Cheseldine v. Brewer, 4 H. & McH. (Md.) 487; Bradstreet v. Huntington, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 402; Henderson v. Griffin, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 151.

3. Campbell v. Shipley, 41 Md. 81, and cases cited; Whiting v. Edmunds, 94 N. Y. 309; Sands v. Hughes, 53 N. Y. 287; Cattino v. Decker, 38 Conn. 362; Abbey, etc., Assoc. v. Willard, 48 Cal. 614; Vanduyne v. Hepner, 45 Ind. 589; Dothard v. Denson, 72 Ala. 541; Wells v. Sheerer, 78 Ala. 142.

A tenant cannot by buying in a title adverse to his landlord's relieve himself of the obligations of his tenancy; and if he does so and repudiates the tenancy the landlord can dispossess him. Morse v. Byam, 55 Mich. 594.

A tenant cannot by a disclaimer, or by mere words denying his landlord's title and asserting one of his own, work a forfeiture of his tenancy, or set running an adverse possession. The possession of the tenant and of his grantees and assigns is that of the landlord, and not hostile or adverse, and this is so as to a grantee who has taken a deed of the fee in ignorance of the fact that his grantor stood in the relation of tenant, the latter denying any such relation. The possession of the tenant, thus in subordination to the title of the landlord, continues, not only during the term, but is presumed to remain unchanged until twenty years after the termination thereof and notwithstanding any claim of the tenant or his successors to a hostile title. Whiting v. Edmunds, 94 N. Y. 309.

T. being in adverse possession of land, and having the same inclosed, leased it to O. Afterward the land was patented as part of a Mexican grant; and O. (without the knowledge of T.) attorned to M., the grantor of the defendants, and the owner of the land under the patent; M. having no knowledge of O.'s being in possession as tenant for T., and being informed by O., upon inquiry, that he was in possession for himself. Subsequently, and more than five years after the issue of the patent, O. surrendered possession to T., who was shortly afterward ejected by the defendants. In an action to recover the possession by T. (claiming to have acquired the title by an adverse possession for over five years subsequent to the patent), held, the possession of O. was sufficient to put all persons upon inquiry as to the capacity in which he held; but M., having made the inquiry without success, was not affected with notice of his relationship to T.

Therefore, after the attornment of O.

To initiate an adverse holding, the tenant must surrender the to M. (the latter having no notice, either actual or constructive, that the former held otherwise than for himself), the possession of T. through O., his tenant, was not adverse, in a legal sense, to the title of M. and his successors. Thompson v. Felton, 54 Cal. 547.

A was the tenant of B, who claimed title. C, who was the legal owner of the tenancy, finding A upon the land, also leased it to him. Held, that the continued possession of A did not keep alive B's claim. Thompson v. Pioche, 44 Cal. 508. See Turpin v. Saunders, 32 Gratt. (Va.) 27.

A superior title is not diverted as to the part not actually occupied by the lessee. Scott v. Elkins, 83 N. Car. 424. See Schuylkill Co. v. McCreary, 58 Pa. St. 504; Goodwin v. Sawyer, 33 Me. 541; Finley v. Cook, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 9.

When a landlord places a tenant on a tract of land claimed by him, and designates by metes and bounds the subdivision of the tract as the portion which the tenant is to occupy, the possession of the tenant, on a question of limitation, can inure to the landlord's benefit only to the extent of the designated metes and bounds set forth in the lease. If the possession be that of one owning an undivided interest in the whole tract, it inures to the benefit of the tenants in common owning the other undivided interests, so long as the tract remains undivided. Read v. Allen, 63 Tex. 154.

In 1782, J. E. H. leased to J. H. a lot of ground, now fronting about 160 feet on Howard street in Baltimore city, for ninety-nine years, with the usual covenant of perpetual renewal, reserving a yearly rent, equivalent to about $43, of the present currency. In 1828, J. E. H.'s executors, under a power in his will, sold and conveyed the reversion in this lot to a person, who, in 1832, conveyed the same to L. S. L. S., in 1832, accepted a surrender from E. L. of his leasehold interest in a part of the lot, about 122 feet of its frontage; and on the same day, by two leases, leased for ninety-nine years, renewable forever, sixty feet of the same to S. and S., and sixty-two feet and six inches of the same to E. L., reserving in each lease a yearly rent of $300. L. S. never deposed of her reversion in the residue of the lot, consisting of a frontage of about forty-six feet. In 1864, G. M. E. purchased from the then owners of the leasehold interests, their lot, fronting twenty-two feet on Howard street, a part of the residue of the forty-six feet. The deed by which this interest was conveyed to G. M. E. recited that the grantors acquired their title under an assignment from a person named, in 1857, subject to a yearly rent of $88, and they assigned to G. M. E., subject to the same rent; and it was assumed that G. M. E. derived his title from J. H., the original lessee of J. E. H., through mesne assignments and subleases. To a bill filed by G. M. E. to obtain a decree requiring C. F. M., who held the legal title under L. S.'s will, and the cestuis qui trust under that will to convey to G. M. E. the naked fee held by them in the twenty-two feet, or to execute to him a new lease thereof for ninety-nine years, renewable forever, subject to a mere nominal rent, the defendants demurred; the demurrer was sustained and, on G. M. E.'s appeal, it was held that the rent reserved under the lease from J. E. H. to J. H. (the reversion of which L. S. acquired in 1832) was a rent service, and not a rent charge, and that it was apportionable; so that by the surrender of the 122 feet from E. L. to L. S., the original rent reserved in the lease of 1782 was not extinguished, but was apportionable to the residue of the forty-six feet, whereof the reversion was owned by L. S. and by those claiming under her will, and that this proportionate part remained fastened upon the forty-six feet. That even if it were admitted that no part of the original rent had ever, in the memory of any one now living, been paid by any owner of the leasehold interest in the lot of twenty-two feet, and that that lot had always been treated as discharged and relieved from the payment of any portion of the original rent, nevertheless, the law upon these facts alone would raise no presumption of some act of the parties in interest relieving the lot of twenty-two feet from payment of any part of the original rent, or its extinguishment quoad that lot, and it being conceded that the relation of landlord and tenant once existed between the parties, under the lease of 1782, after the conveyances of 1832. Ehrman v. Mayer, 57 Md. 612.

A purchased a house of B, who claimed no title in the land and thenceforth occupied the premises without any payment or claim of rent. Held, that A did not take possession as B's tenant. Furlong v. Garrett, 44 Wis. 111.

The continuance of possession by holding over after the termination of the lease is not adverse. Learned v. Tallmadge, possession to the landlord, or do something equivalent to that, and bring home to him knowledge of the adverse claim.<sup>1</sup>

26 Barb. (N. Y.) 444. Day v. Cochran, 24 Miss. 261.

In an action of ejectment, it appeared that the premises in question were, in 1824, in the possession of a tenant who held under a lease from W., dated in 1823, and running for twenty years. In order to get possession, R. T., who had or claimed a title under a deed from B., employed I. to purchase the lease, which he did with the money of R. T., taking an assignment, however, in his own name. By collusion with I., and without the knowledge of the landlord, R. T. entered into possession, asserting title under the deed from B. The lease, however, was found in his possession, and he made several efforts to buy the W. title. Plaintiff claimed under deeds from the heirs of W. to C., executed in 1858 and 1859. The premises were then in the possession of grantees of G. F. T., who entered under a deed in 1846. It was admitted by defendants that R. T. "and the grantees under him have been in possession . . . and that defendant is now in possession under that (R. T.'s) claim of title." The trial court refused to submit to the jury the question as to the character of R. T.'s entry into possession, and nonsuited plaintiff. Held error; that if R. T., when he entered in 1824, became the tenant of W., his possession and that of his grantees remained the possession of his landlord not only until the end of the term, but presumably for twenty years thereafter, i.e., until 1863, and so there was no adverse possession at the time of the conveyance to C., making his deed void for champerty; and that, therefore, the question as to the character of R. T.'s possession should have been submitted to the jury. Whiting v. Edmunds, 94 N. Y. 309.

Tenant cannot interrupt Continuous Possession.—An admission of title, or payment of rent by a tenant, without knowledge of his landlord, will not break the continuity of the adverse possession. Haynes v. Boardman, 119 Mass. 414. Compare Thompson v. Pioche, 44 Cal. 508.

Sub-tenant.—A sub-tenant cannot hold adversely to the landlord in any manner different from the tenant. Campbell v. Shipley, 41 Md. 81; Tompkins v. Snow, 63 Barb. (N. Y.) 525.

Assessment Lease.—An adverse possession will originate to a sub-tenant under an assessment lease, as the general principles as regards landlord and tenant do not apply. Sands v. Hughes, 53 N. Y. 287.

A tenant may acquire title by purchase at an assessment sale. Hilton v. Bender, 4 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 270.

Tenant by Sufferance.—Where one is in possession of land as a tenant by sufferance, his possession will not be adverse to the landlord. Creigh v. Henson, 10 Gratt. (Va.) 231.

Notice to quit will render the possession of a tenant-at-will adverse. Austin v. Wilson, 46 Iowa, 362.

1. Whiting v. Edmunds, 94 N. Y. 309; Jackson v. Stiles, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 575; Thayer v. Society of U. B., 20 Pa. St. 62; Boyer v. Smith, 3 Watts (Pa.), 449; Towne v. Butterfield, 97 Mass. 105; Reed v. Shepley, 6 Vt. 602; Holley v. Hawley, 39 Vt. 534; Moshier v. Reding, 12 Me. 478; Avery v. Baum, Wright (Ohio), 576; Tilghman v. Little, 13 Ill. 241; Wild v. Serpell, 10 Gratt. (Va.) 400; Lunsford v. Turner, 5 J. J. Marsh (Ky.), 104; Estes v. Long, 71 Mo. 605.

A tenant may deny the title of his landlord after the expiration of his lease. Catlin v. Decker, 38 Conn. 362.

It must be made plain that the real owner has been given a cause of action, and if the possession commenced in subordination to his right, there should be evidence of distinct renunciation of it before he is put in position to lose anything by not bringing suit. If one goes into possession under him, he is entitled to assume that his rights are continuously admitted until the contrary is brought to his knowledge. Willison v. Watkins, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 43; Farrow v. Edmundson, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 606; Sherman v. Transportation Co., 31 Vt. 162; Campeau v. Lafferty, 50 Mich. 114.

Although a party may enter into possession in privity with the true owner, he may, without first surrendering the premises, dis sever such relation, and claim by adverse title. Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 430.

The hostile claim operates a forfeiture of the lease, at the election of the landlord.

Knowledge of such adverse holding must be brought home to the landlord, or notice of collateral facts from which such knowledge will be inferred. Wells v. Sheerer, 78 Ala. 142.

The purchase of a tax title to the land by the tenant renders his possession adverse to the landlord. Weichselbaum v. Curlett, 20 Kan. 709.

12. Trusts.—Where the trust is express, the possession of the trustee is that of the cestui que trust, and adverse possession cannot exist until the trustee has done some open and unequivocal act denying the right of the cestui que trust.<sup>1</sup>

1. Norris's App., 71 Pa. St. 106; Janes v. Throckmorton, 57 Cal. 368; Catlino v. Decker, 38 Conn. 362; Whiteside v. Jackson, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 418; Decouche v. Savetier, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 190; s. c., 8 Am. Dec. 478; Kane v. Bloodgood, 7 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 125; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 417; Weaver v. Leiman, 52 Md. 708; Gordon v. Small, 53 Md. 550; Butler v. Lawson, 72 Mo. 227; Carter v. Feland, 17 Mo. 383; Goodwin v. Goodwin, 69 Mo. 617; McCarthy v. McCarthy, 74 Ala. 516; Williams v. First Pres. Soc., 1 Ohio St. 478; Miller v. Bingham, 1 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 423; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 58; Edwards v. University, 1 D. & B. Eq. (N. Car.) 325; s. c., 30 Am. Dec. 170; Thompson v. Thompson, 1 Jones (N. Car.), 434; Taylor v. Dawson, 3 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 86; Hamilton v. Taylor, 1 Litt. Sel. Cas. (Ky.) 444; Shelby v. Shelby, Cooke (Tenn.), 179; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 686; Marr v. Gilliam, 1 Coldw. (Tenn.) 489; McCammon v. Pettit, 3 Sneed (Tenn.), 242; Milner v. Hyland, 77 Ind. 458; Lewis v. Hawkins, 23 Wall. (U. S.) 119; Seymour v. Treer, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 202; Prevost v. Gratz, 6 Wheat. (U. S.) 481.

As between trustee and cestui que trust, in the case of an express trust, the statute of limitations does not begin to run until the trustee repudiates the trust by clear and unequivocal acts or words, and claims thenceforth to hold the estate as his own, not subject to any trust, and such repudiation and claim are brought to the knowledge of the cestui que trust. Perry on Trusts, §§ 863, 864; Janes v. Throckmorton, 57 Cal. 368; Hearst v. Pujol, 44 Cal. 235; Oliver v. Piatt, 3 How. (U. S.) 333; Elmendorf v. Taylor, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 152; Hill v. Bailey, 8 Mo. App. 85; s. c., 76 Mo. 454; Demarest v. Wynkoop, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 129; Chick v. Rollins, 44 Me. 104; Roberts v. Littlefield, 48 Me. 61.

An express trust, as distinguished from a trust implied by law, is created by the direct and positive act of a party, manifested by some instrument of writing; and when the legal title to property is conveyed to one person, to be held by him for the benefit of another, an express trust is created, without regard to the particular words or form of the conveyance. 1 Perry on Trusts, § 82; McCarthy v. McCarthy, 74 Ala. 546; Cresswell v. Jones, 68 Ala. 420.

Where a trustee purchases property with trust funds, though in his own name, his possession will be deemed the possession of the beneficiaries until he does some unequivocal act denying their right. Butler v. Lawson, 72 Mo. 227.

Where a wife furnishes money to her husband with which to purchase land for her, and he makes the purchase, but takes the title in his own name without the knowledge or consent of his wife, he becomes a trustee for her, and the statute of limitations does not commence to run against her until her husband disavows his trust. Milner v. Hyland, 77 Ind. 458.

R. conveyed land to the defendant, who, at the same time, covenanted in writing that he would sell enough of the land to pay off the incumbrances thereon, and account with S. and M.—children of R.—for one fifth of the moneys remaining on hand from sales of the land, after paying the incumbrances; and also that he would sell all the lands within three years, or at his option convey to S. and M. one fifth of all the lands remaining on hand after paying the said debts and expenses. Afterwards, a mortgage upon a portion of the land having been foreclosed, and the land sold and conveyed by the sheriff, the defendant obtained a conveyance from the purchaser. The interests and rights of S. and M. under the covenant having afterwards become vested, by proper mesne conveyances, in J., were after his death sold by his administrator, under an order of the probate court, as personal property. Held, in an action by the heirs of J., that the defendant took the land in trust for S. and M. to the extent of the rights reserved to them in the covenant; and to that extent they had an equitable interest in the land; that the deed and covenant did not work an equitable conversion of the land into personal property; and that the sale of this interest by the administrator as personal property was therefore void; that the title obtained by the defendant from the purchaser at the foreclosure sale inured to the benefit of his cestuis que trust to the extent of their rights under the covenant; that the action was properly brought by the heirs of J.; and that, in view of the fact that the record failed to show any notice of the cestuis que trust of an adverse holding by the trustee, the defence

But this principle does not apply to cases of constructive trusts, where, by the wrongful act of one party, the other may charge him in equity as his trustee. The rule in respect to this class of trusts is, that if one, knowing he could avail himself of the benefit of such trust, lies by for the statutory period, his claim will thereby be barred. But the statute will not run against one innocently ignorant of his rights, nor against one incompetent to enforce them,<sup>1</sup> of the statute of limitations could not be maintained. Janes v. Throckmorton, 57 Cal. 368.

A deed to a tract of land granted in 1765 to the town of N. declared that the premises were conveyed to the inhabitants of said town "for a parsonage and the use and support of ministers of the gospel." Since 1800 the town had used the premises otherwise, and applied the income and profits therefrom to municipal purposes. Held, that there had been such a distinct repudiation and disavowal of the trust, and such an adverse holding of the premises, without application to have trust executed as to make a complete legal and equitable title in the town. Congregational Soc. v. Pewington, 53 N. H. 595.

At the trial of a writ of entry, dated in 1883, it appeared that the demanded premises were conveyed by A., in 1829, to the ancestor of the demandant; that in 1837 A. conveyed the same premises to the inhabitants of a school district. "their successors and assigns forever," by a deed which contained, after a description of the premises, the words, "said lot of land to be used, occupied, and improved by said inhabitants as a school-house lot, and for no other purpose;" that from 1837 to 1882 the school district had the exclusive use of the premises for school purposes, and had taken exclusive care of it; and that in 1882 the school district conveyed the premises to the tenant, the school-house was removed, and the premises ceased to be used for school purposes. Held, that the demandant's ancestor was disseised in 1837; that the deed to the school district was in form a deed in fee; and that the statute of limitations was a bar to the action. Barker v. Barrows, 138 Mass. 578; s. c., 9 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 208.

An administrator of an estate, having no power or control over the land of his intestate, and not being required to pay the taxes thereon, may rightfully become the purchaser of the same, as against the heirs, at a sale for the taxes thereon, and set up his deed as color of title. Stark v. Brown, 101 Ill. 395.

A trustee cannot retain possession of lands held by him in trust after repudiating his trust, and claim adversely, until his claim ripens into a title under the statute of limitations. Schlessinger v. Mallard, 11 Pac. Rep. (Cal.) 728.

Secret Trust.—Where a party in 1868 took a conveyance of land in his own name for the purpose of defeating a creditor of the grantor, and with a secret trust for the use of the grantor, and afterwards died intestate, action to vacate this deed instituted in 1882, by a subsequent creditor, who had obtained his judgment in 1880, and who alleged and proved his ignorance of the fraud until within six years preceding the commencement of this action, was not barred by the statute of limitations. And the defendants having gone into possession, claiming the land as heirs of their ancestor, they were bound by the secret trust attached to their ancestor's deed, and could not now assert a claim to have held by adverse possession. McSween v. McCown, 23 S. Car. 342.

Where a debtor executed a deed to lands for the purpose of placing the title beyond the reach of his creditors, and of creating a secret trust for his own benefit, he continuing in fact the real owner, and enjoying the use, products, and profits of the estate, and the grantee never having been in possession of, and never having exercised or claimed any dominion or ownership over, the lands conveyed, the grantee is not, under such deed, clothed with any ownership or asserted right which will uphold a claim of adverse possession against a creditor of the grantor seeking to subject the lands conveyed by the deed to the payment of his debt. Jones v. Wilson, 69 Ala. 400. See Elwell v. Hinckley, 138 Mass. 225. Compare Estes v. Long, 71 Mo. 605.

1. 2 Washb. Real Prop. (4th Ed.) 493; Kane v. Bloodgood, 7 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 120; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 417; Phalen v. Clark, 19 Conn. 421; Weaver v. Leiman, 52 Md. 708; Kennedy v. Kennedy, 25 Kan. 151; Peters v. Jones, 35 Iowa, 512; Murdock v. Hughes, 7 S. & M. (Miss.) 219; Clark v. Snodgrass, 66 Ala. 233; Starke v. Starke, 3 Rich. (S. Car.)

like an infant; and the same principle applies in the case of resulting trusts.<sup>1</sup>

The rule that the statute of limitations does not bar a trust estate holds only between cestui que trust and the trustee, not as between cestui que trust and the trustee on the one side, and strangers on the other. Therefore, where the cestui que trust and 438; Boone v. Chiles, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 177, 223; Willison v. Watkins, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 43; Sherwood v. Sutton, 5 Mason (U. S.), 1.

In case of a constructive trust, the statute will commence to run from the period at which the cestui que trust could have indicated his right by action or otherwise.

But the trustee must bring himself clearly within the position of a continued and consistent adverse claimant, and the cestui que trust must have no reasonable excuse for failing to prosecute his claim within the proper time. McKin v. Williams, 48 Tex. 89; Grumbles v. Grumbles, 17 Tex. 472; Hunter v. Hubbard, 26 Tex. 537; Anderson v. Stewart, 15 Tex. 285; Carlisle v. Hart, 27 Tex. 350; Cole v. Noble, 63 Tex. 432.

Where a party conveys land as a security for a loan, and after his death his widow pays the debt and takes a deed for the land to herself, she will hold the title as a trustee for the heirs of her husband. The owner of land conveyed the same to secure a loan of money, and after his death his widow paid the debt and took a conveyance to herself; and inventoried the land as that of her husband, and she and the only heir occupied the same as a homestead, she having a dower and homestead right in the premises. It was held that the widow's possession was not adverse as against the heir, and that laches is not imputable in such a case. Hunter v. Dennis, 112 Ill. 568.

Two persons purchased a tract of land, each to have a certain portion thereof, and one of them took a deed for all, giving back a mortgage to the vendor to secure the price, which mortgage was afterward discharged by the money of both the purchasers, so that a resulting trust was created against the one taking the deed. The other took possession of his part, and made lasting and valuable improvements on the same, and continued in the undisputed possession for more than twenty years, during which time he paid his share of the taxes, and for some years leased his part to his co-purchaser, in whose name the title rested, who paid rent. It was held, on bill filed by the one so occupying his land to compel the other to convey to him, that the statute of limitations was no bar to the equitable relief sought. McNamara et al. v. Garrity, 106 Ill. 384.

There was a sale of land by bond for title in 1853. In 1855 the vendee sold and conveyed to a stranger, who entered and held possession until his death, in 1866, and after his death his widow and children continued to occupy the premises. In 1871, a bill was filed to enforce the vendor's lien for the purchase money due upon the sale in 1853. The defence was seven years' possession under the statute. The court held that the vendee, or a purchaser from him, stood in the relation of a trustee to the vendor for the unpaid purchase money, against whom the statute does not run. Lewis v. Hawkins, 23 Wall. (U. S.) 119; Swartwout v. Burr, 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 499; Champion v. Brown, 6 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 402. See EXECUTORY CONTRACT, ante, p. 229.

In an action to enforce a trust, it appeared from the findings of fact, supported by sufficient evidence, that the defendant from 1866 to 1869, inclusive, took conveyances of real estate in his own name, without the consent of the parties whose money paid the consideration. As the action was not commenced till 1876, and no exceptions shown to take the case out of the statute, the court correctly found, as a conclusion of law, that the plaintiff's cause of action was barred by the statute of limitations. Main v. Payne, 17 Kan. 608; Kennedy v. Kennedy, 25 Kan. 151.

1. Strimpfner v. Roberts, 18 Pa. St. 283; s. c., 57 Am. Dec. 606; Cummings v. Stovall, 6 Lea (Tenn.), 679; Brawner v. Staup, 21 Md. 337.

Where children had a resulting trust in land bought by their father with their mothers' money, held, that the statute did not begin to run until their father's death. Groves v. Groves, 57 Miss. 658.

The widow of a decedent entered into a contract in writing with the heirs, by which, in consideration of the surrender by her of her year's support, exempt property and dower, the heirs agreed to convey to her one third in value of the lands of the estate, and a specific allot-his trustee are both out of possession for the time limited, the party in possession has a good bar against them both.<sup>1</sup>

Adverse Holding by Purchaser from Trustee.—A purchaser of lands at a sale made by a trustee under a deed of trust, taking possession of his purchase, becomes an adverse holder as against persons who claim an equity in the lands under a prior verbal contract with the grantor who executed the deed of trust, although the purchaser had notice thereof.<sup>2</sup>

13. Agent.—When a person enters into the possession of land as the agent of another, his possession, or that of others claiming under him, cannot become adverse to his principal, until there has been an open disclaimer of the title under which he entered, and the assertion of a hostile title, brought home to his principal, or to those claiming under him.<sup>3</sup>

ment of land was afterwards made to her by parol, of which she took possession, and then married, had a child, and died; the heirs in the mean time, pending the coverture, conveyed the land to the husband, who held under the deed, and, after the death of the wife, sold and conveyed the land to a third person for value, who continued in possession for over ten years, when the heirs of the wife filed this bill for a specific execution of the original contract and for a recovery of the land. Held, that the right of action was barred by the statute of limitations. Cummings v. Stovall, 6 Lea (Tenn.), 679.

1. Herndon v. Pratt, 6 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 327; Fleming v. Gilmer, 35 Ala. 62; Bryan v. Weems, 29 Ala. 423; Mason v. Mason, 33 Ga. 345; Worthy v. Johnson, 10 Ga. 358; Smilie v. Biffle, 2 Pa. St. 52; Crook v. Glenn, 30 Md. 55; Long v. Cason, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) 60; Pledger v. Easterling, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) 101; Henson v. Kinard, 3 Strob. Eq. (S. Car.) 371; Watkins v. Specht, 7 Coldw. (Tenn.) 585; Williams v. Otey, 8 Humph. (Tenn.) 563; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 632; Coleman v. Walker, 3 Metc. (Ky.) 65; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 164; Wooldridge v. Planters' Bank, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 297; Meeks v. Vassault, 3 Sawy. (U.S.) 206; Elmendorf v. Taylor, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 152.

In 1852 L. conveyed certain leasehold property to S., and in 1854 applied for the benefit of the insolvent laws, returning in his schedule no property. S. was appointed his trustee, and he obtained his final discharge in due course in 1854. After this, in 1857, S. re-conveyed the property to L. by a deed which was withheld from record until June, 1860. In March, 1860, before this deed was recorded, S. sold and conveyed the property to W., who thereupon entered into possession, and, as is alleged, received the rents and profits thereof, until 1868. In 1861, more than a year after the conveyance to W., L., for the consideration of one dime, conveyed all his estate in the property to his son, the present complainant, who was then an infant, under the age of twenty-one years.

Held, where there is a trustee competent to sue and protect the trust estate, limitations run in favor of a stranger to the trust, notwithstanding the cestui que trust may be an infant. A party intruding upon an infant's estate becomes constructively his guardian or trustee, but against such a trust limitations run; and to avoid the bar, the bill for account must be filed within three years after the infant arrives at age. Weaver v. Leiman, 52 Md. 708. See Wooldridge v. Planters' Bank, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 297; Williams v. Otey, 8 Humph. (Tenn.) 563; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 632; Goss v. Singleton, 2 Head (Tenn.), 67; Parker v. Hall, 2 Head (Tenn.), 641; Pendergast v. Foley, 8 Ga. 1; Worthy v. Johnson, 10 Ga. 358; Long v. Cason, 4 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 60; Molton v. Henderson, 2 Ala. 426.

If a trustee estops himself from suing by a sale of the property, thus uniting with the purchaser in a breach of trust, the wrong is to the beneficiaries, not to him. He cannot sue; and the beneficiaries, if under disability, are not affected by the statute. Parker v. Hall, 2 Head (Tenn.), 641.

2. Clark v. Snodgrass, 66 Ala. 233.

3. Baucum v. George, 65 Ala. 259; Fountain Coal Co. v. Phelps, 95 Ind. 271; Whiting v. Taylor, 8 Dana (Ky.), 403.

The acts of an agent constituting a disseisin will work to the benefit of his principal. Atkinson v. Patterson, 46 Vt. 750.

A, entitled as tenant in tail to an estate,

14. Mortgagor and Mortgagee.—Possession of the mortgagor, or his privies, including his grantees with notice, will not be adverse, nor bar an action by the mortgagee for foreclosure, or for possession of the land, unless there has been an open and explicit disavowal and disclaimer of holding under the mortgagee's title, and assertion of title in the holder brought home to the mortgagee. The mere taking possession by the vendee of the mortgagor, and continued occupancy by him and his vendees for the period of the statutory bar; their open control and improvement of the land, and payment of taxes thereon as their own absolute property, with the intention of holding it against all comers, will not bar the action.<sup>1</sup> held the same as an agent for B for twenty years. Held, that B had acquired title by adverse possession. Williams v. Pott, L. R. 12 Eq. 149.

A deed signed by one as "agent" will not constitute color of title. Simmons v. Lane, 25 Ga. 178.

Fraud.—A, acting as assumed agent for B, made a deed in his own name, with no mention of the principal. Held, that the deed was not color of title. Payne v. Blackshear, 52 Ga. 637.

Attorney and Client.—Where an attorney makes a purchase of land through an agent, from his client, which land is the subject-matter of the attorneyship, and at the time of the conveyance the attorney does not use his influence over his client to his prejudice, and the agent acts bona fide, and the client is paid a full and fair price for the land, and upon the execution of the conveyance delivers possession thereof to the grantee, who thereupon transfers the deed and premises to the attorney, and thereafter the attorney compromises and settles an outstanding title to the land, and in the written compromise signs his own name and the name of his former client thereto, under a power of attorney which he had received from his client prior to his own purchase of the premises, and at said time informs the holder of the outstanding title that his client has parted with all of his title, and that he, the attorney, is the owner thereof, and thereafter the land is in the possession of the attorney, his tenants and grantees for more than fifteen years, during which time the attorney, his tenants, grantees, and heirs have paid the taxes thereon, and made lasting and valuable improvements costing many thousands of dollars, and the client during all the fifteen years makes no claim to the premises, or to any part of the proceeds arising therefrom, and charges no fraud or trust upon his attorney, and thereafter sells and conveys all his right and interest to the premises to a subsequent grantee, and the court below finds substantially that the attorney was acting for himself in obtaining the conveyance, and in making the compromise of the outstanding title, and during all the time subsequent thereto was claiming ownership to the land in his own interest, and as adverse to the original owner, and not as his trustee, held, that these facts are sufficient to sustain the findings; and the statute of limitations fully protects the defendants who have been in possession of the premises by themselves or through their grantors for more than fifteen years prior to the commencement of the suit to recover the same. Yeamans v. James, 27 Kan. 195.

1. Ringo v. Woodruff, 43 Ark. 469; Lewis v. Hawkins, 23 Wall (U. S.) 119; Butler v. Douglass, 1 McCrary (U. S.), 630; Higginson v. Mein, 4 Cranch (U. S.), 414; Hughes v. Edwards, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 490; Whittington v. Flint, 43 Ark. 504; s. c., 51 Am. Rep. 572; Elsberry v. Boykin, 65 Ala. 336; Hodgdon v. Heidman, 66 Iowa, 645; Crawford v. Taylor, 42 Iowa, 260; Green v. Turner, 38 Iowa, 112; Gower v. Winchester, 33 Iowa, 302; Jamison v. Perry, 38 Iowa, 14; Maxwell v. Hartman, 50 Wis. 660; Crook v. Glenn, 30 Md. 55; Koons v. Steele, 19 Pa. St. 203; Parker v. Banks, 79 N. Car. 480; Jones v. Williams, 5 A. & E. 291; Palmer v. Eyre, 17 A. & E. N. S. 366; Pugh v. Heath, L. R. 7 App. Cas. 235; s. c., 35 Eng. Rep. (Moaks' Ed.) 172.

Mortgage.—A mortgage of land in the actual adverse possession of one claiming to hold adversely to the mortgagor, is void as to the claimant; thus, in an action of ejectment between a mortgagee and such claimant, the court instructed the jury that if the defendant's possession was "actual, visible, open, notorious, and hostile, under a claim of ownership," the mortgage was void as to him.

Where the mortgagee obtains possession of the premises, after condition broken, and no payment has been made on account of

Held, correct. Canfield v. Hard, 58 Vt. 217.

When it Becomes Adverse.—To convert the possession into an adverse holding, there must be a renunciation or disclaimer of the mortgagee's right, and such renunciation or disclaimer must be traced to his knowledge. State v. Conner, 69 Ala. 212. See Jamison v. Percy, 38 Iowa, 14; Haskell v. Bailey, 22 Conn. 573.

Twenty years' possession of the premises by a mortgagee under his mortgage, pursuant to the statute, bars the mortgagor's equity of redemption, and the extinguishment of the mortgagor's equity effected by this statute, unlike the extinguishment effected by mere judicial action, is not subject to be waived by an incautious admission of the mortgagee. Chapin v. Wright, 5 Atl. Repr. (N. J.) 574.

To constitute adverse possession against a mortgagee it is not sufficient that the mortgagor or those holding under him, occupy, use, improve, and pay taxes on the premises, as their own absolute property, but the possession must be in open denial of the mortgagee's title, and accompanied with such acts or declarations of the holders as are sufficient to put the mortgagee on notice that they claim and hold in hostility to his rights, and adversely to him. Until then the possession is consistent with his rights and not adverse, and the statute does not begin to run. Ringo v. Woodruff, 43 Ark. 469.

A condition broken will render the possession adverse. Green v. Mizule, 54 Miss. 220.

After Foreclosure Sale.—Where a mortgagor or his grantee remains in possession after the title to an undivided interest therein has passed by a foreclosure sale to a purchaser thereof, his possession is presumed amicable and in subordination to the title of the purchaser until the contrary appears. The parties so jointly owning the land become tenants in common, the possession of one being deemed the possession of both; and the statute of limitations does not begin to run against such purchaser until an ouster or the assertion of some hostile claim by the tenant in possession, denoting an intention to hold adversely to his cotenant. Lowry v. Tillyen, 31 Minn. 500.

The relation which a purchaser, upon a valid foreclosure sale, sustains to a mortgagor or his grantee remaining in possession is, that the possession is in accordance with, and in subordination to, the title of such purchaser, and is under him with his acquiescence, unless the contrary appear, or until an intention to claim the premises adversely is made manifest. Avery v. Judd, 21 Wis. 262; Seeley v. Manning, 37 Wis. 574; Maxwell v. Hartmann, 50 Wis. 660; Cook v. Travis, 20 N. Y. 400; Lowry v. Tillyen, 31 Minn. 500.

Where there has been a foreclosure, and a deed acquired by the mortgagee, though the proceedings were void, yet the deed will give color of title. Mason v. Ayers, 73 Ill. 121.

Twenty years' possession under a mortgage is presumptive evidence of foreclosure. Randall v. Bradley, 65 Me. 43.

Possession by the mortgagee after foreclosure, but no order of sale issued pursuant to an arrangement with the mortgagor by which the mortgagee was to apply the rents to a satisfaction of the mortgage, is not adverse. Frink v. Le Roy, 49 Cal. 317. See Knowlton v. Walker, 13 Wis. 264.

In 1866 L. mortgaged a tract of land to R. In August, 1869, R., without having foreclosed his mortgage, conveyed the land to L.'s wife. L. died in 1874, and in May, 1879, Mrs. L. borrowed money from T., and, to secure the repayment thereof, gave a deed of trust upon this land. In the "fall of 1879" she died. Default was made in the payment of the debt and the land was sold under the deed of trust and bought by T. In February, 1880, T. brought an action of ejectment against the children of Mrs. L., to recover the land, they having received possession from their mother, who had been in possession of the same jointly with her husband up to the time of his death, and had sole possession thereof afterwards during her lifetime. The defendants resisted the suit on the ground that Mrs. L., being only the assignee of R.'s mortgage, T. could not acquire the legal title through her. Held, that as Mrs. L. was in possession of the land more than ten years between the execution of R.'s deed and her death, she acquired a title by limitation, as a mortgagee in possession after condition broken. The joint possession of herself and husband, after the execution of R.'s deed and before L.'s death, must be referred to her who had the paper title, rather than to him who had, in form at principal or interest, he will acquire a title by adverse possession.<sup>1</sup>

15. Pendente Lite Purchaser.—The statute of limitations does not run in favor of a pendente lite purchaser. Such purchaser in possession of land so purchased will not be regarded as holding it adverse to the parties to the suit during the litigation.<sup>2</sup>

16. Vendor and Vendee.—Where the purchaser is in possession under a complete legal title, such as a deed purporting to convey the land, he will be considered as holding adversely to all the world, including his vendor, from whom his title and possession are derived. The entry or the holding in such case imparts no recognition of a subsisting title in another, by whose permission and in subordination to whose continuing title the purchaser entered or holds.<sup>3</sup>

A grantee who has entered under a conveyance from his grantor may lose his title by an adverse possession of such grantor, and the grantor may thus claim to hold adversely to the grantee.<sup>4</sup> least, conveyed it away. Little v. Teague, 60 Miss. 115.

1. Demarest v. Wynkoop, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 129; Slee v. Manhattan Co., 1 Paige (N. Y.), 48; Howland v. Shurtleff, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 26; Phillips v. Sinclair, 20 Me. 269; Robinson v. Fife, 3 Ohio St. 551; Hoffman v. Harrington, 33 Mich. 392; Knowlton v. Walker, 13 Wis. 264; Crawford v. Taylor, 42 Iowa, 260; Montgomery v. Chadwick, 7 Iowa, 114; Hall v. Denckla, 28 Ark. 506; Gunn v. Brantley, 21 Ala. 633; Slicer v. Bank, 16 How. (U. S.) 571.

2. Land is sold at a judicial sale, the sale confirmed and a conveyance made to the purchaser and he takes possession, the litigation continues, and after the purchaser has been in the actual possession of the land under such conveyance for more than ten years, the decrees ordering and confirming the sale are reversed and declared void, and the sale set aside for the want of jurisdiction in the court to order the sale; during all this time the taxes on the land are paid by the purchaser, and the same is not charged for taxes to the owner and he pays no taxes on it. Held, the possession of such purchaser under such void sale is not adverse to the owner. The payment of the taxes by such purchaser inures to the benefit of the owner, and the State can have no claim against the owner for taxes on the land, and his title cannot become forfeited for not also paying taxes on the land. Lynch v. Andrews, 25 W. Va. 751.

3. Society, etc., v. Clarke, 4 Pet. (U. S.) 480; Bradstreet v. Huntington, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 402; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238.

4. Sherman v. Kane, 86 N. Y. 57; Cramer v. Benton, 4 Lans. (N. Y.) 291; Traip v. Traip, 57 Me. 268; Tilton v. Emery, 17 N. H. 536; Stearns v. Hendersass, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 497; s. c. 57 Am. Dec., 65; Burkman v. Jones, 44 Wis. 498; Dorlan v. Magilton, 47 Cal. 485; Garabaldi v. Shattuck, 11 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 778; Smith v. Montes, 11 Tex. 24.

When there is a disclaimer by the grantor of the title of the grantee subsequent to the delivery of the grant, an adverse possession may be acquired and it is not necessary that such possession should be hostile in its inception. Jackson v. Brink, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 483; Milard v. McMullin, 468 N. Y. 345; Sherman v. Kane, 86 N. Y. 57; Butler v. Phelps, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 642; Stiles v. Jackson, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 103; Catline v. Decker, 38 Conn. 262; Hoyt v. Jones, 31 Wis. 389; Burkman v. Jones, 44 Wis. 498; Chalfin v. Malone, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 596.

The mere continued possession of the vendor of lands is not adverse to his vendee. Ronan v. Meyer, 84 Ind. 390; Jeffersonville, etc., R. Co. v. Oyler, 82 Ind. 394; Record v. Kelcham, 76 Ind. 482; Jackson v. Burton, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 341; Marston v. Butler, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 149; Beach v. Catlin, 4 Day (Conn.), 284; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 221; Olwine v. Holman, 23 Pa. St. 279; Higginson v. Mein, 4 Cranch, 415; Harris v. King, 16 Ark. 122. Compare Burkman v. Jones, 44 Wis. 498, Furlong v. Garrett, 44 Wis. 111.

In Burbans v. Van Zandt, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 91, the court said: "By the execution and delivery of a deed of land the entire legal interest in the premises becomes vested in the grantee, and if the grantor continues in possession afterwards, his possession is not that of owner, but of a tenant of the grantee. He will be regarded as holding the premises in subserviency to his grantee, and nothing short of an explicit disclaimer of such relation, and a notorious assertion of right in himself, will be sufficient to change the character of his possession and render it adverse to the grantee. But from the time the grantor explicitly disclaims holding under the grantee, and openly asserts his title to the premises, in hostility to the title claimed under his own previous deed, his possession becomes adverse, even though he knew his title to be bad, and from that moment the statute of limitations will begin to run." See Hoyt v. Jones, 31 Wis. R. 389; Butler v. Phelps, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 642; Stiles v. Jackson, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 103; Cramer v. Benton, 4 Lans. (N. Y.) 291; Chalfin v. Malone, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 596; Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 430.

17. Boundaries and Fences.—If one by mistake inclose the land of another and claim it as his own, his actual possession will work a disseisin;<sup>1</sup> but if, ignorant of the boundary line, he makes a mis-

A grantor with warranty may, subsequent to the delivery of his grant, originate an adverse possession, and is not estopped from asserting the same by the covenant of warranty. Sherman v. Kane, 86 N. Y. 57.

Where possession is originally taken and held under the true owner, a clear, positive, and continued disclaimer and disavowal of that title, and the assertion of an adverse one, must be brought home to the true owner before any foundation can be laid for the operation of the statute of limitations. Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 430.

When a person who has conveyed property by a warranty deed subsequently acquires an interest in the same property by a tax title, and conveys his subsequently-acquired title in a portion of the property to third parties, who reside thereon for more than ten years, their title cannot be attacked. Reilly v. Blasher, 28 N. W. Repr. (Mich.) 151.

The owner of land, while in its occupancy as a homestead, conveyed the same in fee, reserving in the deed, however, his homestead right. It was held, the continued possession of the premises by the grantor, after his conveyance, was not adverse to his grantee, because such possession was consistent with the deed. Stevens v. Wait, 112 Ill. 544.

A cloud upon title cannot be created by the owner of the title and exist by his grant. And rights that may accrue to him from the grantor's continued occupancy after deeding the property are not to be enforced in equity if the bill does not aver such possession as by lapse of time or otherwise would legally extinguish defendant's claim. Bresler v. Pitts, 58 Mich. 347.

1. Grim v. Murphy, 110 Ill. 271; Schneider v. Botsh, 90 Ill. 577; Brown v. Anderson, 90 Ind. 94; Bunce v. Bidwell, 43 Mich. 542; Sherman v. Kane, 86 N. Y. 57; Crary v. Goodman, 22 N. Y. 170; Swettenham v. Leary, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 284; Seymour v. Carli, 31 Minn. 81; Burdick v. Heivly, 23 Iowa, 511; Tracy v. Newton, 55 Iowa, 210; Meyer v. Weigman, 45 Iowa, 579; Hunter v. Chrisman, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 463; Soule v. Barlow, 49 Vt. 329; Burnell v. Malony, 39 Vt. 579; Enfield v. Day, 7 N. H. 457; Abbott v. Abbott, 51 Me. 584; Hitchings v. Morrison, 72 Me. 331; Ricker v. Hibbard, 73 Me. 105; Alexander v. Wheeler, 69 Ala. 332; Cole v. Parker, 70 Mo. 372; Walbrunn v. Ballen, 68 Mo. 164; Hamilton v. West, 63 Mo. 93; Tam v. Kellogg, 49 Mo. 118; Houx v. Batteen, 68 Mo. 84; Chance v. Branch, 58 Tex. 490; Pouthmand v. McLaughlin, 24 N. J. Eq. 181; Mode v. Long, 64 N. Car. 433.

Where defendant showed privity of estate between him and a long line of grantors to lot No. 17 in a ward of a city, and buildings thereon obtruding some feet over on lot 18 adjoining 17, continuity of possession for more than twenty years may be proven by parol between him and his grantors—his predecessors in the actual possession of the building thus extending over part of 18. Actual possession of such strip of 18 for twenty years by the said buildings extending thereon without written title thereto, is good prescriptive title against all the world, except the State and persons not sui juris, unless such possession originated in fraud; and honest mistake of the true line is not fraud. The fact that the buildings stood so long over what may now be claimed to be the true line is a conclusive presumption that the plaintiff's claim is not good, but that the old buildings mark the true line; especially against a purchaser who bought after twenty years' occupancy, and one of whose grantors had knowledge of the buildings years before. Shiels v. Roberts, 64 Ga. 370.

A leased two adjoining lots owned sep-take in laying his fence, making no claim, however, to the land to the fence, but only to the true line as it may be subsequently ascertained, his possession is not adverse.<sup>1</sup> If two adjacent owners agree upon and establish a dividing line between their premises, and actually claim and occupy the land on each side of that line for the statutory period, such possession will be adverse and will confer a title by prescription.<sup>2</sup> arately by B and C. A built a dividing fence, but not on the true division line. He afterwards purchased the lot of B. Held, that he could hold adversely the portion of C's lot enclosed with the fence. Betts v. Brown, 3 Mo. App. 20. See McNamara v. Seaton, 82 Ill. 498.

To constitute an adverse possession as against the true owner, where a party under a mistake as to the boundaries of his deed claims land not embraced therein, there must be an actual possession and improvement of the land which lies outside of his boundaries. Simpson v. Cresswell, 18 Fla. 29.

J., owning a lot of land on the south side of G street, with a frontage of one hundred and twenty-six feet, conveyed a piece thereof with a frontage of sixty feet to the defendant, the latter supposing that by the terms of his deed his lot extended to a certain fence which would give him a frontage of sixty-six feet. Soon after the delivery of his deed, the defendant entered, occupied, and cultivated the lot to the fence for more than twenty consecutive years. Held, that if the defendant claimed title to the fence during his entire occupation, his title ripened into an absolute title by disseisin, although he was mistaken as to the true bound. Hitchins v. Morrison, 72 Me. 331.

1. Huckshorn v. Hartwig, 81 Mo. 648; Walbrunn v. Ballen, 68 Mo. 164; Cole v. Parker, 70 Mo. 372; Acton v. Dooley, 74 Mo. 63; Houx v. Batteen, 68 Mo. 84; Hamilton v. West, 63 Mo. 93; St. Louis University v. McCune, 28 Mo. 481; Tam v. Kellogg, 49 Mo. 118; Shinner v. Crawford, 54 Iowa, 119; Grube v. Wells, 34 Iowa, 148; Grim v. Murphy, 110 Ill. 271; Irvin v. Adler, 44 Cal. 559; Brown v. Cockerill, 33 Ala. 38; Alexander v. Wheeler, 69 Ala. 332; s. c., 78 Ala. 167; Howard v. Reedy, 29 Ga. 152; Reley v. Griffin, 16 Ga. 141; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 726; Hitchings v. Morrison, 72 Me. 331; Abbott v. Abbott, 51 Me. 584; Worcester v. Lord, 56 Me. 265; Dow v. McKenney, 64 Me. 138; Bicker v. Hibbard, 73 Me. 105; Lincoln v. Edgecomb, 31 Me. 345; Comegys v. Carley, 3 Watts (Pa.), 280; Enfield v. Day, 7 N. H. 457; Robinson v. Kinne, 70 N. Y. 147.

Where the owner of a city lot undertakes to erect a building upon his own ground, but, by inadvertence and ignorance of the true line of his lot, places a portion of the wall four inches over the dividing line and upon the adjoining lot, but with no intention then or afterwards to claim any portion of such adjoining lot as his own, and the adjoining lot-owner had no knowledge of such encroachment, the possession thus taken will not be adverse. Winn v. Abeles, 10 Pac. Repr. (Kans.) 443.

There must be an entry. Thus, where there was a stone wall separating the lands of adjoining owners, A and B, the fence being upon the land of A, B held possession of his land up to the wall, and believed the centre of the wall to be the dividing line, but with no knowledge of a similar claim on the part of A, and no other possession of the ground covered by the wall, held, that there was not sufficient adverse possession to vest in B a title to the centre of the wall. Huntington v. Whaley, 29 Conn. 391.

If A and B, adjoining owners, by mistake agree upon a line, with no intent to claim beyond the true line, they will not hold adversely to each other. Houx v. Batteen, 68 Mo. 84; Devyn v. Schaefer, 54 N. Y. 446; Irvine v. Adler, 43 Cal. 550; White v. Hopeman, 43 Mich. 267; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 178.

2. Brown v. Leete, 6 Sawy. (U. S.) 332; Sherman v. Kane, 87 N. Y. 57; Robinson v. Phillips, 1 T. H. (N. Y.) 151; 56 N. Y. 634; Donahue v. Thompson, 60 Wis. 500; Tobey v. Secor, 60 Wis. 310; Bader v. Zeise, 44 Wis. 96; Barlett v. Secor, 56 Wis. 520; Tracy v. Newton, 57 Iowa, 210; Heinrichs v. Terrell, 65 Iowa, 25; Skinner v. Crawford, 54 Iowa, 130; Hiatt v. Kirkpatrick, 48 Iowa, 78; Darst v. Enlow, 3 Westn. Repr. (Ill.) 480; Bitter v. Seathoff, 98 Ill. 266; Cutter v. Callison, 72 Ill. 113; Hubbard v. Stearns, 86 Ill. 35; White v. Hopeman, 43 Mich. 267; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 178; Knowlton v. Smith, 36 Mo. 507; Walbrunn v. Ballen, 68 Mo. 164; Cole v. Parker, 70 Mo. 372; Hamilton v. West, 63 Mo. 93; Houx v. Batteen, 68 Mo. 84; Mayer v. Rafferty, 1 Head (Tenn.), 60; Brown v. Cockerell,

Where a grantor has designated his boundaries by the lines of the surrounding surveys, his grantee may claim to those boundaries.<sup>1</sup>

18. Husband and Wife.—Adverse possession cannot exist as between husband and wife while the marital relation continues.<sup>2</sup>

33 Ala. 38; Irvin v. Adler, 44 Cal. 559; Grimm v. Curley, 43 Cal. 251. Watt v. Ganahl, 34 Ga. 290; Howard v. Reedy, 29 Ga. 152; Shiels v. Roberts, 64 Ga. 370; Burrell v. Burrell, 11 Mass. 296; Boston, etc., R. Co. v. Sparhawk, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 469; Smith v. McKay, 30 Ohio St. 409; Bohove v. Richmond, 25 Ohio St. 115; Yetzer v. Thoman, 17 Ohio St. 130; Adams v. Rockwell, 16 Wend. (N. Y.) 285; McCormick v. Barnum, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 105; Dibble v. Rogers, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 536; Robinson v. Phillips, 1 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 151; Hodges v. Eddy, 38 Vt. 345; Davis v. Judge, 46 Vt. 655; Faught v. Holway, 50 Me. 24.

In Jones v. Smith, 64 N. Y. 180, where it appeared that the adjoining owners for more than fifty years had occupied each on his own side up to an old fence, which fence had been put up and maintained as a division fence for more than twenty years by an agreement, each owner keeping up one-half, it was held that this was sufficient evidence of a practical location, and an acquiescence in the fence as a boundary line, and of a possession of more than twenty years, in pursuance of such location, to require the submission of that question to the jury.

Where the division line between two adjoining estates is indefinite or unascertained, the owners may effectually agree upon the true boundary, and the line thus ascertained will control their deeds. A jury may infer a practical location of a disputed boundary line by agreement, from long acquiescence, less than the period necessary to constitute adverse possession, and from acts and declarations of the parties. Turner v. Baker, 64 Mo. 218; s. c., 27 Am. Rep. 226, and note. See Hayes v. Livingston, 34 Mich. 384; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 533; Baldwin v. Brown, 16 N. Y. 363.

Adjoining owners orally agreed that one of them should keep up a division fence, but should keep it entirely within his own bounds. After twenty years the fence was moved to the boundary and ejectment was brought for the strip of land cut off by its removal. Held, that the action would not lie. As the oral agreement was void and the owner of the strip might have withdrawn from it, the strip was never held adversely to the owner, whose title was recognized in the agreement and always afterward. White v. Hapeman, 43 Mich. 267; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 178; Hagey v. Detweiler, 35 Pa. St. 409.

An error was made in running a division line between two farms. The parties respectively occupied up to the erroneous line for more than twenty years. Afterwards the correct line was run. Held, (1) that if the parties occupied up to the erroneous line, supposing it to be the true boundary, and relying upon it, such line could not be disturbed afterwards, and a mere oral agreement to run a new line could not disturb the title thus fixed. But (2) if the parties did not rely upon the first survey, but expected to settle the line by another when convenient to make it, the mere possession for twenty years, according to the erroneous line, would not give title; (3) the question of the nature of the possession, and of the claims of the respective parties, is one of fact for the jury exclusively. Bunce v. Bidwell, 43 Mich. 542. See Yutzer v. Thoman, 17 Ohio St. 130.

Where owners of adjoining lots open an alley, lying one half on each lot, and build barns and fences thereon, and acquiesce in deeds describing the alley, etc., it constitutes an adverse possession under a claim of right, and by user for twenty years they each acquire an easement in the premises of the other which neither one can lawfully disturb, and an injunction forbidding the obstruction of such alley by one of the adjoining owners against the other will be granted. Nicholls v. Wentworth, 100 N. Y. 455.

Where a line or corner is, in fact, certain, and an erroneous line or corner is, by mistake, made, the acts of the parties in making such mistake, and the fencing by both parties, in accordance with such mistake do not operate in the nature of an estoppel in pais to forfeit the estate. What subsequent acquiescence, after the mistake is discovered, or what gross neglect afterward to assert a right to correct it, amounting to fraud, will conclude the owner, is another question. McAfferty v. Conover, 7 Ohio St. 99; Bobo v. Richmond, 25 Ohio St. 115.

1. Hughes v. Pickering, 14 Pa. St. 297.

2. First Nat. Bank v. Guerra, 61 Cal. 169; Maudlin v. Cox, 7 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 804; Bell v. —, 37 Ala. 536; Veal

19. Permissive Entry.—Where the entry is permissive the statute will not begin to run against the legal owner until an adverse holding is declared and notice of such change is brought to the knowledge of the holder of the legal title.<sup>1</sup>

v. Robinson, 70 Ga. 809; Hendricks v. Rasson, 53 Mich. 575. See Clark v. Gilbert, 39 Conn. 94.

If the land of a wife is sold by her husband, the possession is not adverse while the marriage exists. Stephens v. McCormick, 5 Bush (Ky.), 181.

A husband's marital possession cannot be adverse to the wife's grantee. Van-devoort v. Gould, 36 N. Y. 639.

In 1861, the defendant, C. Guerra, a married woman, filed a declaration of homestead upon a tract of land then inclosed and occupied by herself and husband, but which formed part of a large tract owned by her husband and others as tenants in common; and from that date occupied the land with her husband, claiming it as a homestead, until his death, in 1878, and afterwards by herself until the beginning of this action. After the declaration of homestead, her husband and his co-tenants mortgaged the larger tract to one C., and the mortgage having been foreclosed, C. became the purchaser of the mortgaged premises and received his deed. Subsequently, in January, 1873, the interests of C. in the homestead premises by proper mesne conveyances, became again vested in the husband of G. and another of the original co-tenants, and was by them subsequently mortgaged, and under judgment of foreclosure sold and conveyed to the plaintiffs. In an action to quiet title, to which G. was made a party, the court below found that the homestead premises had been held adversely by her from the date of the filing of the homestead. Held, the declaration of homestead filed by G. was invalid because the premises were then held by tenancy in common. The finding as to adverse possession cannot avail her. It was by virtue of her marital relations with her husband that she filed a declaration and has continued to claim the premises as a homestead. There is no pretence that her husband claimed adversely to any one, and she could not claim adversely to him or those holding under him so long as he remained as the head of the family, which he did until his death. First Nat. Bank v. Guerra, 61 Cal. 109.

Where the husband rents land from the owner, and moves upon it with his family, in subordination to the owner's title, the wife cannot during coverture, claim the premises adversely to the owner so as to set the statute of limitations in motion. Frink v. Alsip, 49 Cal. 103.

1. Allen v. Allen, 58 Wis. 202; Roebke v. Andrews, 26 Wis. 311; Woodward v. McReynolds, 2 Pin. (Wis.) 268; Bartlett v. Secor, 56 Wis. 520; Plimpton v. Converse, 44 Vt. 158; Morrill v. Titcomb, 8 Allen (Mass.), 100; Sherman v. Kane, 86 N. Y. 57; Babcock v. Utter, 1 Keyes (N. Y.), 397; Kathan v. Rockwell, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 90; Chance v. Branch, 58 Tex. 490; Pease v. Lawson, 33 Mo. 35; Davis v. Bowmar, 55 Miss. 671; Rothschild v. Hatch, 54 Miss. 554; Adams v. Guice, 30 Miss. 396; Hays v. Morrison, 30 Ga. 971; Cooper v. McBride, 4 Houst. (Del.) 461; Kincheloe v. Tracewell, 11 Gratt. (Va.) 587; Newlin v. Reynolds, 25 Gratt. (Va.) 137; Thomas v. Jones, 28 Gratt. (Va.) 383; Hudson v. Putney, 14 W. Va. 561; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Dean v. Brown, 23 Md. 11; Alexander v. Wheeler, 69 Ala. 332; Collins v. Johnson, 57 Ala. 304; Davenport v. Lebringer, 52 Iowa, 365; Grube v. Wells, 34 Iowa, 148; Calvin v. McCune, 39 Iowa, 502; Law v. Smith, 4 Ind. 56; Smith v. Stevens, 82 Ill. 554; Perkins v. Nugent, 45 Mich. 156; Harvey v. Tyler, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 328. Compare Heiskell v. Cobb, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 638; Ford v. Holmes, 61 Ga. 419.

When there is a gradual subsidence of the water in a millpond because of the want of repair of the dam, and the owner of a pasture contiguous to the pond turns his cattle in, and they wander from the pasture over the bottom of the old pond, such possession of the land made dry by the water receding as the dam lowered would indicate that it was not adverse, but permissive. Eddy v. St. Mars, 53 Vt. 462; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 695.

Lands of the United States were entered by a father in the name of his son, and in 1849 the patent thereof was issued to the son, who was then five years of age. Before the issuance of the patent the father took possession of the land, and occupied it continuously, improving it and paying the taxes until his death, in 1878. The son lived with his father until some years after he became of age. The father recognized his son's title for years after he took possession of the land, and never asserted a hostile ti-

20. Possession must be Actual.—It must be actual as contrasted with constructive possession. There must be, therefore, in all cases an entry in order that an ouster may be effected and an adverse possession begun. It must be a going upon the land with a palpable title in himself until a few months before his death. These facts being conclusively shown in an action of ejectment brought by the son against one to whom the father, by will dated in 1877 had devised the land, it is held that the court properly directed a verdict for the plaintiff without submitting the question of adverse possession to the jury. Allen v. Allen, 58 Wis. 202.

The equitable owner of a tract of land caused the holder of a certificate of purchase of the same to assign it to the son of the former, in 1851, not for the purpose, however, of passing the title, which fact the son knew before he became of age, which was in 1867; and he also knew that the father claimed to be the owner of the land, and paid all the taxes from 1851 to 1882 (more than thirty years), which claim the son recognized repeatedly, and when he rented part of the land of his father, paid him rents therefor, and received pay for all improvements he put on the same while tenant, and stated to the purchaser from his father that he had no objection to his purchasing of his father. The son, in 1882, filed his bill to set aside the sale made by his father, asserting title in himself. It was held that the laches of the son in asserting his rights, if any, was a bar to the relief sought. Whipple v. Whipple, 109 Ill. 418.

In 1826 P. conveyed to his brother E. a tract of land for a nominal consideration, and a few days thereafter E. conveyed the same tract to J., a son of P., then eight or ten years old, living with his father on the said land, for a like consideration. When J. arrived at the age of eighteen he was put to the trade of a cabinetmaker by his father; and when he arrived at maturity, between 1840 and 1843, married, and afterwards lived separate from his father. P., the father, resided on the land at the time of the conveyance to E., continued to reside on it, claiming it as his, and exercising complete and notorious dominion over it (once in 1843 against the protest of J., who was denied this right and ordered off the land), until the death of P., in 1873. In 1853 P. conveyed to his son J. another tract of land, with which J. said he was satisfied, and that he no longer claimed the first-named tract. J. lived and died on the tract last conveyed to him. On the death of P., in 1873, he devised to his son P., Jr., a son by his second marriage, the first-named tract. In an action of ejectment, brought after the death of P. and J. by the heirs of J. against P., Jr., to recover said first-conveyed tract, held, P., and those claiming under him, having held continual, adversary, and notorious possession of the land under claim of title, with the knowledge and acquiescence of J., for a period beyond the statutory bar, the heirs of J. cannot now recover it from P., Jr., the devisee of P. Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 431.

Two minor children, while their father was at sea, their mother, who had built with her own money a house upon land owned by the father, having died, left the premises, which they had previously occupied with their mother, and went to live with their uncle, who was executor of her will and called himself their guardian. Their father visited them about a year afterwards, and paid money from time to time for their support, and corresponded with them often, but, after his first visit, went to a foreign country and lived there. The uncle, while the children were living with him and their father was away, let the premises at will only, and without specifying his authority. He credited the children with the rent in his private-account book, and charged them with the cost of their support; and also accounted with their father, so far as required. The mother left a will, by which she gave the house to the children; and the uncle insured it for their benefit. They afterwards gave notice to quit to the tenant of the house, and occupied it themselves. Held, on a writ of entry by the father against the children, brought more than twenty years after their mother's death, that there was no evidence that they had acquired a title by adverse possession. Silva v. Wimpenny, 136 Mass. 253.

If A is entitled to a conveyance of land, and, by an agreement between A and B, in order to defraud A's creditors, the land is conveyed to B, a title to the land by adverse possession of more than twenty years may be acquired by A against B, although A is without means to pay his debts during such possession, if B knows that A is holding the land adversely and under a claim of right during his possession. Elwell v. Hinckley 138 Mass. 225.

intention to claim it as his own by the person entering. To bar the legal title an entry on the land is indispensable. And the intrusion on the land must be accompanied by a claim of right and not the assertion of an outstanding title pre-existing to the land. The principle of the prescriptive bar is to treat him, who has had the absolute dominion and enjoyment of the land, for a given number of years, as the true owner, against all proofs to the contrary. It is this absolute dominion and enjoyment which constitute actual possession, and there can be none other. The possession may be held under color of title, or as an intruder without any color of title.<sup>1</sup> (See Definition of ACTUAL, ante, p. 183.)

Where one who is in possession of land is present at its sale by another, and makes no claim to it, such possession continued after the sale will be deemed to be subordinate and friendly to the purchaser, and cannot be changed into an adverse holding so as to permit the running of the bar of the statute of limitations, until a knowledge of its adverse character is brought home to the purchaser, and the burden of showing such change and knowledge is on the party so claiming adverse possession. Wilkinson v. Thompson, 82 Mo. 317.

L. claimed a right of way over H.'s land by virtue of adverse user for over twenty years. H.'s defence was that he had given a license to the grantor of the complainant a long while ago, when he and the grantor had a conversation in which the grantor had said "that he would not want to use the said way much, but only once in a while." Held, that such a statement could not be construed to show a license. A formal asking and granting is necessary. Leonard v. Hart, 2 Atl. Repr. (N. J.) 136.

In 1856 D. purchased a half-section of land, upon which were cabins, outhouses, a dwelling, and one hundred acres of which were cleared. The deed was made to D., and immediately afterward J., the son of D., recently married, entered upon and took possession of the land. He held it until 1869, when D., in consideration of love and affection, deeded to him the home place, containing a section, to which he moved; but he continued to exercise complete control over the half-section from which he had moved. An action of ejectment was brought in 1879 to recover of J. the half-section referred to. The plaintiffs claimed as the residuary devisees of D., who died in 1871; J. claimed under a parol gift made at the time of his entry, and an alleged adverse possession of over twenty years. There was no direct proof as to the terms of his entry, whether under a parol gift or mere license from D. to occupy the land and use and enjoy the rents and profits. Until 1867 it was assessed to, and the taxes were paid by, D.; but at this time he sent a message to J., saying that he was tired of paying taxes on land and have other people get the profits, and desired him to pay on this. After that J. paid the taxes. Both J. and D. spoke at times of the land as J.'s, and in 1862 D. spoke to a witness of having given the land to J. In D.'s family it was spoken of as J.'s land. J. used and occupied it as his own, made the necessary improvements and repairs, and received the rents and profits. D., in listing his own lands, included this, and at times spoke of it as his land. When, in 1869, he made the deed of his home place to J. he was asked if he did not intend to include this land, he replied, "I do not." D. gave to each of his other children a half-section of land. In 1869 J. promised a grandson of D. to get him to deed the grandson this land, and said that D. had intended to do it anyway. Held, upon the facts above stated, that J. entered the land originally under a mere license from D. to use and occupy it and enjoy its rents and profits, and that J. is not shown in any subsequent acts during D.'s lifetime to have asserted any claim to the land hostile to D.'s title. Dean v. Tucker, 58 Miss. 487.

1. Miller v. Shaw, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 129; Altamas v. Campbell, 9 Watts (Pa.), 28; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 494; Bradford v. Guthrie, 4 Brews. (Pa.) 351; Soule v. Barlow, 49 Vt. 329; Jewett v. Hussey, 70 Me. 433; Cook v. Babcock, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 209; Huntington v. Whaley, 29 Conn. 391; Ogden v. Jennings, 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 301; 62 N. Y. 526; Bear Valley Coal Co. v. Dewart, 95 Pa. St. 72; Morrison v. Hammond, 27 Md. 604; Beatty v. Mason, 30 Md. 409; Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 430; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Parker v. Banks, 79 N. Car. 480; Malloy v. Bowden, 86 N. Car. 251; Pegues v. Warley, 14 S. Car. 180;

No particular act or series of acts are necessary to be done on the land, in order that the possession may be actual. Any visible or notorious acts, which clearly evidence the intention to claim ownership and possession, will be sufficient to establish the claim of adverse possession.<sup>1</sup>

Huntington v. Allen, 44 Miss. 654; Denham v. Holeman, 26 Ga. 182; s. c., 71 Am. Dec. 193; Eagle, etc., Co. v. Bank, 55 Ga. 44; Satterwhite v. Rosser, 61 Tex. 166; Bracken v. Jones, 63 Tex. 184; Bowman v. Lee, 48 Mo. 335; Fugate v. Pierce, 49 Mo. 441; Bradley v. West, 60 Mo. 33; Ringo v. Woodruff, 43 Ark. 469; Horbach v. Miller, 4 Neb. 31; Booth v. Small, 25 Iowa, 177; Ambrose v. Raly, 58 Ill. 506; Yelverton v. Steele, 40 Mich. 538; Sparrow v. Hovey, 44 Mich. 63; Peterson v. McCullough, 50 Ind. 35; Washburne v. Cutter, 17 Minn. 361; Pepper v. O'Dowd, 39 Wis. 548; Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 100; Holzapple v. Phillibaum, 4 Wash. (U. S.) 356.

"The books require color of title, by deed or other documental semblance of right in the defendant, only when the defence is founded on a constructive adverse possession. But neither a deed nor any equivalent muniment is necessary; where the possession is indicated by actual occupation, and any other evidence of an adverse claim exists." Per Cowen, J., in Humbert v. Trinity Church, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 604.

A mere squatter on land cannot avail himself of his occupancy unless he has denied, or impugned, the title of the real owner. Sackett v. McDonnell, 8 Biss. (U. S.) 394; Nowlin v. Reynolds, 25 Gratt. (Va.) 137; Rannels v. Rannels, 52 Mo. 108.

A prior possession, to be effective as against a mere squatter or intruder in actual possession, must be an actual, un-abandoned possession. The payment of taxes, surveying and mapping the lands, and executing a mortgage covering them, do not constitute such possession. Simpson v. Creswell, 18 Fla. 29.

A was in possession under color of title. He sold a part of the land, including the improvements, to B. Held, that A's possession was actual as to the part improved and inclosed, and constructive as to the limits defined by his color of title. That the sale to B extended B's possession no further than the limits of his deed, and that A having parted with actual possession, lost thereby his constructive possession of the part unsold. Cunningham v. Fraudtzen, 26 Tex. 34. See Chandler v. Rushing, 38 Tex. 591.

A took color of title for several lots. He occupied one and paid taxes, and exercised ownership over the others. Held, that his possession was confined to the lot actually occupied, and not to the lots unoccupied and unimproved. Wilson v. McEwan, 7 Oregon, 87.

The statute does not run against the owner of unoccupied lands until some one assumes to take adverse possession; and this rule applies as well to an assignee in bankruptcy, who under the Revised Statutes, § 5057, must bring suit within two years as to the original owner. Gray v. Jones, 14 Fed. Repr. 83.

Evidence is admissible, to establish occupation, that the person under whom defendants claim performed work upon the land during his lifetime. Lick v. Diaz, 44 Cal. 479.

Much depends on the situation of the property and the use to which it is applied. Mooney v. Coolidge, 30 Ark. 655; Dorr v. School Dist., 40 Ark. 237. See Bowen v. Guild, 130 Mass. 121.

After actual entry, the claim must be limited to limits made at the time. 'It cannot be enlarged without making a new entry. Pepper v. O'Dowd, 39 Wis. 538.

Secret Trust.—If A is entitled to a conveyance of land, and, by an agreement between A and B, in order to defraud A's creditors, the land is conveyed to B, a title to the land by adverse possession of more than twenty years may be acquired by A against B, although A is without means to pay his debts during such possession, if B knows that A. is holding the land adversely and under a claim of right during his possession. Elwell v. Hinckley, 138 Mass. 225. See Jones v. Wilson, 69 Ala. 400; Williams v. Higgins, 69 Ala. 517. Compare Estes v. Long, 71 Mo. 605.

1. Tiedeman on Real Prop. § 697; Faught v. Holway, 50 Me. 24; Bailey v. Carleton, 12 N. H. 9; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 190; Blood v. Wood, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 528; Bates v. Norcross, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 224. See 17 Pick, 14; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 271; La Frombois v. Jackson, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 589; s. c., 18 Am. Dec. 463; Longworthy v. Myers, 4 Iowa, 18; Ford v. Wilson, 35 Miss. 504; s. c., 72 Am. Dec. 137; Royall v. Lisle, 15 Ga. 545; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 712; Ellicott v. Pearl, 10 Pet. (U.

21. What constitutes Possession.—What is actual possession depends largely upon the nature of the land and uses to which it would naturally be put. The usual and decisive modes and acts of actual possession are occupation, residence, cultivation, inclosure, and improvement suitable to the character of the land.<sup>1</sup>

S.) 412; Ewing v. Burnett, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 41.

"So much depends on the situation and nature of the property, the uses to which it can be applied, or to which the owner or claimant may choose to apply it, that it is difficult to lay down any precise rule adapted to all cases." Ewing v. Burnett, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 41. See Bowen v. Guild, 130 Mass. 123; Mooney v. Coolidge, 30 Ark. 65; Dorr v. School Dist., 40 Ark. 243.

If the land is not susceptible of any permanent improvement, actual occupancy, cultivation or residence may not be necessary in order to constitute adverse possession. Washburne v. Cutter, 17 Minn. 361; Leeper v. Baker, 68 Mo. 407; Royal v. Lisle, 15 Ga. 545; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 712.

The same rule will not apply equally to towns, cultivated lands, and wild lands. Draper v. Shoot, 25 Mo. 197; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 462; Leeper v. Baker, 68 Mo. 407; Brumagin v. Bradshaw, 39 Cal. 631.

1. Martin v. Judd, 81 Ill. 488; Smith v. Jackson, 76 Ill. 254; Clement v. Perry, 34 Iowa, 567; Hunton v. Nichols, 55 Tex. 217; Read v. Allen, 63 Tex. 154; Mooney v. Coolidge, 30 Ark. 655; Door v. School Dist., 40 Ark. 243; Leeper v. Baker, 68 Mo. 407; Draper v. Shoot, 25 Mo. 197; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 462; McMullin v. Erwin, 58 Ga. 427; Bell v. Denson, 56 Ala. 444; Humphries v. Huffman, 33 Ohio St. 403; Taylor v. Burnside, 1 Gratt. (Va.) 165; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Schuykill Co. v. McCreary, 58 Pa. St. 304; Jackson v. Warford, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 62; Erwin v. Olmsted, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 229; Finlay v. Cook, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 9; Bowen v. Guild, 130 Mass. 121; Poignard v. Smith, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 172; Cutter v. Cambridge, 6 Allen (Mass.), 20; Bennett v. Clemence, 6 Allen Mass.), 18; Bates v. Norcross, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 224. See 17 Pick. 14; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 271; Goodwin v. Sawyer, 33 Me. 541; Brumagin v. Bradshaw, 39 Cal. 24; Ewing v. Burnett, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 41.

What constitutes an actual possession must be governed by the facts of each case. Leeper v. Baker, 68 Mo. 405; Turner v. Hall, 60 Mo. 275. See Ford v. Wilson, 35 Miss. 505.

A fence, building, or other improvement is not essential to constitute an adverse possession. Acts of ownership under a claim of right, visible, are sufficient to authorize the court to find such possession. Leeper v. Baker, 68 Mo. 400. See Bell v. Denson, 56 Ala. 448.

In Davis v. Bowmar, 55 Miss. 671, the court said: "It is certain that appellant took possession, under some sort of right in himself, of a wilderness, felled the forest, cleared the jungle, erected fences and buildings, made the place his home, cultivated it, protected it by levees, had it assessed as his own, paid taxes on it, and enjoyed exclusive possession and control of it as his own from 1836 to 1863; and in the uncertainty, if any, from the imperfect knowledge we have, as to how the possession began, appellant is entitled to the benefit of the just presumption that he was holding as owner from having acted so long and from the beginning as owners do, and so inconsistently with the idea of title in any other than himself." Alexander v. Polk, 39 Miss. 737; Hollister v. Young, 42 Vt. 407; Johnson v. Gorham, 38 Conn. 522; French v. Pearce, 8 Conn. 439; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 680; Smith v. Roberts, 62 Ala. 83; Overfield v. Christie, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 173; Paine v. Skinner, 8 Ohio, 159; Allen v. Allen, 58 Wis. 205; Sedg. & W. Trial of Title to Land, § 758; Angell on Lim. §§ 390, 391, 392, and cases cited in the notes.

Occupation of the land is to be regulated by its character. If it is wild land incapable of improvement to fit it for residence, the possession and use must be such as from its nature it is susceptible of. Clancey v. Houdlette, 39 Me. 451; West v. Lanier, 9 Humph. (Tenn.) 762; Bell v. Denson, 56 Ala. 444.

A. was the grantor of a right to maintain a dam which would raise the water in a certain stream four inches above a designated rock. In 1843 he constructed a dam which was maintained at the same height continuously until 1880, when suit was brought to recover damages for backing up the water. The court charged the jury: "In considering the question as to whether the defendant acquired a right by prescription, you will inquire whether at any time since 1843 there has been twenty-one years at a stretch that the owners of the mill swelled the water up higher than what is shown by the four inches above the stone. . . . If you come to consider that part of the case you will inquire, Where is the testimony of the witnesses to show that for twenty-one years, at any time since 1843, there was a use of this water so as to swell it back over the four inches? If you do not find such evidence you will say that under no consideration is the title by prescription established." Held, that this was error. The depth of water in such a basin is necessarily inconstant and variable. If the defendant, or those under whom he claims for a period of twenty-one years before suit brought, under a claim of right, openly, continuously, and uninterruptedly maintained his dam of the same height, whilst the owner of the lands farther up the stream was under no disability to resist the use, the law would presume a grant of the right to maintain it. Gerhman v. Erdman, 105 Pa. St. 371.

The possession need not be personal, it may be by agent or tenant (q. v.), or one under a contract of purchase. (See COLOR OF TITLE; VISIBLE, NOTORIOUS, AND EXCLUSIVE POSSESSION, post.)

The leasehold interest in a lot of ground was conveyed by W. to B. Shortly afterwards W. entered upon the property, and he with his family continued in possession for over twenty years, paying the taxes and ground rent, and allowing members of his family to spend their money in erecting buildings and improving the property. In an action of ejectment brought by persons claiming through W., it was held that these were facts clearly indicating a claim of title to the property by W., and that his possession was maintained under such claim, and not under a contract with or permission from B. That such possession must be regarded as adverse and conclusive against B. and those claiming under him. Waltemeyer v. Baughman, 63 Md. 200.

Where lands were open and unclosed, but it appeared that defendant and those under whom he claimed had for more than ten years claimed and exercised the exclusive right to cut timber and grass therefrom, and had at various times sold the right to cut grass to others, held, that such possession was effectual as actual inclosure of the land. Torey v. Bigelow, 56 Iowa, 381. See Clement v. Perry, 34 Iowa, 564.

Surveying the land and paying the taxes will not constitute actual occupancy. Thompson v. Burhans, 61 N. Y. 70.

A person having color of title to land, during a period exceeding ten years, paid taxes on it and went upon it and cut and carried off firewood and rails. Held, that this was not such visible, notorious, and continuous possession as would give him title under the statute. Pike v. Robertson, 79 Mo. 615.

In Mooney v. Cooledge, 30 Ark. 655 the court said: "It is not the particular use made of the land, or whether built upon and used as a residence, or cleared and cultivated as a farm, but the exclusive use and adverse possession may be proven as well by other acts and declarations, which show a visible, open, and exclusive possession and use of the land." See Kerr v. Hitt, 75 Ill. 51; Clement v. Perry, 34 Iowa, 567.

If there is continuous dominion manifested by continuous acts of ownership, it is sufficient. Coleman v. Billings, 89 Ill. 183. Leeper v. Baker, 68 Mo. 400. Compare Martin v. Judd, 81 Ill. 488; Sloan v. Martin, 33 Tex. 417.

Possession by Agent.—It is not necessary to prove actual occupancy by the defendant himself; it may be by himself, or by tenants holding under him. Elliott v. Dycke, 78 Ala. 150.

Land was in the possession of the widow (as tenant in dower) and the infant heir of one who died seized thereof. A brother of the deceased obtained a quitclaim deed of the land from another brother and a sister, but took no steps to obtain possession thereunder. Afterwards he obtained from the widow a quitclaim deed reciting that he and his brother and sister were the heirs of the deceased (apparently upon the theory of the illegitimacy of the child), and entered and continued in possession under such latter deed. After attaining majority the heir brought ejectment and the defendant answered claiming title by adverse possession under color of the quitclaim deed from his brother and sister. Held, not having entered under such deed, the defendant could not base thereon his claim of title by adverse possession. By the quitclaim deed from the widow the defendant obtained only her dower right, and became a tenant in common with the heir. The recitals in the deed by the mother do not affect the right of the heir. Having by his answer set up title in himself to the entire estate, based wholly upon adverse possession, the defendant cannot, to shield his possession, claim to hold as tenant in common with the plaintiff. Watts v. Owens, 62 Wis. 512.

But neither actual occupation, cultivation, nor residence is necessary to constitute actual adverse possession, when the property is so situated as not to admit of any permanent useful improvement, and the continued claim of the party has been evidenced by public acts of ownership, such as he would exercise over property which he claimed in his own right, and would not exercise over property which he did not claim,<sup>1</sup> unless the statute prescribes the manner of occupancy.

Flowing Land with Water.—At the trial of a writ of entry, brought in 1880, to recover a parcel of flats, there was evidence that the flats were originally flowed by tide water, and were in a cove, across the mouth of which, as early as 1645, a dam had been built to obtain power for running a tide-mill; that, in 1803, a corporation, authorized by its charter to operate a canal, and to hold mill-seats on waters connected with its canal, took a deed of the demanded premises; and entered its canal upon the mill-pond, and had a floating tow-path projecting into the pond, which, in 1829, was removed, and a solid tow-path was built; that, from 1829 to 1851, the pond was used for canal and mill purposes, and was flowed or emptied at convenience; that canal-boats and timber were kept in the pond by the corporation, and no person other than the corporation exercised any control over the pond; that, in 1839, the corporation executed a lease of the mill for fifteen years, with liberty to use soil from the bottom of the pond to repair the dam; that the canal was discontinued in 1851, after which the pond was used for mill purposes and to store timber; that, in 1844, the corporation conveyed the mill and pond, subject to the lease, and subject to the right of the corporation to use the pond for canal purposes and to store timber therein; that material was used at different times from the bottom of the pond to repair the dam; that access from the sea was cut off by the dam, and access from the upland was cut off by the canal and tow-path; and that the mill was abandoned in 1872. Held, that this evidence would warrant a finding that a title to the soil under the pond had been acquired by adverse possession. Eastern R. v. Allen, 135 Mass. 13. Compare Clarke v. Wagner, 74 N. Car. 791.

Husband and Wife.—Possession by the wife, where the husband has been continuously absent from the State will not be sufficient. Morrell v. Ingle, 23 Kan. 32.

Fences.—A fence or inclosure is not an essential element of an adverse possession, and permitting a fence to become dilapidated, or even destroyed, during the interval between periods when necessary to protect the crops does not, of itself, constitute an abandonment, nor interrupt the continuity of the possession. Hughes v. Anderson, S. C. Ala. Dec. Term, 1885-86. The court said: "A fence or inclosure is not an essential element of adverse possession, but is only one of the many acts indicative of possession and claim of ownership. It is often very important, it is true, to mark with precision the limits or boundaries of a possession, especially when the occupant is without color of title, which would answer this purpose. In a section of the country, for example, where fence laws have been abolished, the absence of an inclosure would weigh but little, where a river constitutes a boundary line. The reason is that it would then be no index of an intention to abandon. It has often been decided in this country that the possession of an occupant may be adverse without either inclosure or improvements. Bell v. Benson, 56 Ala. 444; Ellicott v. Pearl, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 441; Leeper v. Baker, 68 Mo. 400; Angell on Lim. ¶ 400; Real Property Trials (Malone), § 277-278. And color of title is sometimes said to be a substitute for a substantial and permanent fence around the premises claimed. Trial of Titles to Land (Sedg. & Wait), § 707; Watson v. Mancill, 76 Ala. 600." See McCreery v. Everding, 44 Cal. 246. Compare Pullen v. Hopkins, 1 Lea (Tenn.), 741.

Burying-ground.—A family burying-ground will constitute actual possession as to the part occupied by the graves. Mooney v. Cooledge, 30 Ark. 655.

1. Ford v. Wilson, 35 Miss. 490; s. c., 72 Am. Dec. 137; Moss v. Scott, 2 Dana (Ky.), 275; Royall v. Lisle, 15 Ga. 545; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 712; Dorr v. School

Occasional Use not sufficient.—The possession must, to be actual, be continuous. An occasional or sporadic use of the land, such as occasionally cutting grass or firewood, or the erection of temporary structures, will not be sufficient to establish an adverse possession.<sup>1</sup>

Dist., 40 Ark. 237; Draper v. Shoot, 25 Mo. 197; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 462; Sleeper v. Baker, 68 Mo. 400; Merchants' Bank v. Clavin, 60 Mo. 559; Coleman v. Billings, 89 Ill. 183; Clement v. Perry, 34 Iowa, 567; Brumagin v. Bradshaw, 39 Cal. 24; Robinson v. Sweet, 3 Me. 315; Ewing v. Burnett, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 41; Ellcott v. Pearl, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 412.

1. Trustees v. Kirk, 68 N. Y. 459; Wheeler v. Winn, 53 Pa. St. 122.

Occasional trespass, even though the trespasser avows an intention to make an adverse claim, will not constitute possession. Ewing v. Alcorn, 40 Pa. St. 492; Washabough v. Entriken, 34 Pa. St. 74; s. c., 36 Pa. St. 513; Miller v. L. I. R. Co., 71 N. Y. 380.

Mere fugitive, disconnected trespasses, such as cutting trees, stripping bark, surveys, etc., however long continued, will not constitute such a possession as will ripen into a title. Rivers v. Thompson, 46 Ala. 633; Cornelius v. Giberson, 1 Dutch. (N. J.) 33; Parker v. Parker, 1 Allen (Mass.), 245; Congdon v. Morgan, 14 S. Car. 587; White v. Reid, 2 N. & McC. (S. Car.) 534; McBeth v. Donnelly, Dud. (S. Car.) 177; Slice v. Derrick, 2 Rich. (S. Car.) 627; Williams v. Wallace, 78 N. Car. 354; Long v. Young, 28 Ga. 130; Rifener v. Bowman, 53 Pa. St. 313; Beaupland v. McKeen, 28 Pa. St. 124; s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 115; Sorber v. Willing, 10 Watts (Pa.), 141; Pasley v. English, 5 Gratt. (Va.) 141; Anderson v. Harvey, 10 Gratt. (Va.) 386; Austin v. Holt, 32 Wis. 478; Washburn v. Cutter, 17 Minn. 361; Miller v. Long Island R. Co., 71 N. Y. 380; Pullen v. Hopkins, 1 Lea (Tenn.), 741. Compare Clement v. Perry, 34 Iowa, 564.

The mere entry from year to year for the purpose of cutting grass is not an act manifesting a purpose of taking possession as owner. Roberts v. Baumgarten, 51 N. Y. Super Ct. 482; Wheeler v. Spinola, 54 N. Y. 377.

Occupying a sugar place, from year to year, only for the purpose of making sugar, which place is separated from the home farm by intervening lands owned by others, is not actual or continuous possession. Wilson v. Blake, 53 Vt. 305.

Merely using a way, open to, and occupied by, the public for the purpose of getting water for cattle and the family, has no tendency to prove that the use is adverse, but permissible. Such occupancy or use, with the public, raises the presumption that it is not adverse; which the defendant must meet and overcome by evidence. O'Neil v. Blodgett, 53 Vt. 213.

Repeated cutting of timber on outlands will not give title by adverse possession. Townsend v. Reeves, 44 N. J. L. 525; nor entirely clearing the land if the timber is allowed to grow again. Parker v. Parker, 1 Allen (Mass.), 245.

Merely tearing down part of a fence and walking across the land does not establish sufficient possession. Greene v. Dwyer, 33 Minn. 403; nor does slightly extending a line fence. Carroll v. Gil- lion, 33 Ga. 539.

The building of a sidewalk on a street adjoining land over which there is such an easement, and maintaining the same, cannot be regarded as an adverse possession of such land. Kuecken v. Voltz, 110 Ill. 264.

One who was accustomed to have a wood pile upon a vacant lot for thirty years, and had buried potatoes upon it for six years, acquired no title to the lot by such a possession. Miller v. Downing, 54 N. Y. 631.

Where all that the defendant had done was to dig sand on and from the land from time to time, and sell the same, his entries thereon for that purpose were but successive acts of trespass against the true owner, if he was not owner himself. Parker v. Wallis, 60 Md. 15; s. c., 45 Am. Rep. 703.

Where a party has color of title to woodland, and uses the land for the purpose of obtaining wood for fuel, or fencing for a farm in the neighborhood, under a claim of ownership, held to constitute possession. Scott v. Delany, 87 Ill. 148. See Clement v. Perry, 34 Iowa, 564.

Going upon wild land, digging, and hunting for a corner and boundary lines, driving cattle on the land, and employing a man to break in the following spring, are not such going into possession as will set the statute of limitations in operation so as to create a title by virtue of adverse possession. Brown v. Rose, 55 Iowa, 734.

The use of the water of a stream during

22. Cultivation is evidence of actual possession. It is not necessary that the degree of cultivation should be other than usual,<sup>1</sup> but it must be continuous, and not merely an occasional or negligent effort.<sup>2</sup>

23. Inclosures.—An actual, visible, and exclusive appropriation of land is constituted by the fencing and continued use of it, without an actual residing on it.<sup>3</sup> The inclosure must be of a substantial nature, not a mere temporary structure. Its character will, however, to some extent, be governed by the nature of the lands inclosed.<sup>4</sup>

a period of abundance is not an adverse use on which a prescription can be founded. Anaheim Water Co. v. Semi-tropic Water Co., 64 Cal. 185.

An annual entry to cut timber, feed cattle, hunt or fish, with cultivation of a truck patch in summer, as incidental to other pursuits, will not constitute possession. Wheeler v. Winn, 53 Pa. St. 122. See Pullen v. Hopkins, 1 Lea (Tenn.), 741.

Cutting a small quantity of timber on two occasions, at an interval of one year between the two, when the land is shown to be good for grazing and farming purposes, and suitable for a homestead, "is not an act so distinct, notorious, and continuous" as will invalidate a conveyance by the owner of the legal title. Childress v. Calloway, 76 Ala. 130.

A co-tenant cannot acquire adverse title by paying taxes, and partial occupation. McQuiddy v. Ware, 67 Mo. 74.

Erection of cow-pen, ranging of cattle, and occasionally felling trees, will not constitute adverse possession. Royall v. Lisle, 15 Ga. 545; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 712.

1. Copeland v. Murphy, 2 Coldw. (Tenn.) 64.

See Beaupland v. McKean, 28 Pa. St. 124; s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 115; Pope v. Hanmer, 8 Hun (N. Y.), 265; aff. 74 N. Y. 240.

If it is not necessary to inclose the land in order to cultivate, the possession will extend to the portion actually cultivated. Barnes v. Sabron, 10 Nev. 217. See Ege v. Medlar, 82 Pa. St. 86.

If the party relies upon cultivation and improvement, he must show both; reaping alone is not cultivation; nor is the keeping-up of a fence already made, mowing the grass, and cutting brush, an improvement within the N. Y. statute. Doolittle v. Tice, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 181.

It is only necessary that the land should be used in the ordinary way. Booth v. Small, 25 Iowa, 177.

2. Going upon wild land, digging, and hunting for a corner and boundary lines, driving cattle on the land, and employing a man to break in the following spring, are not such acts of actual possession as will create a title by adverse possession. Brown v. Rose, 55 Iowa, 734. See Morris v. Callahan, 105 Mass. 129; Wheeler v. Winn, 53 Pa. St. 122; Overton v. Davisson, 1 Gratt. (Va.) 211.

3. Cantagrel v. Von Lupin, 58 Tex. 570; Morrison v. Kelly, 22 Ill. 610. See Coleman v. Billings, 89 Ill. 189; Schneider v. Botsch, 90 Ill. 577; Bristol v. Carroll Co., 95 Ill. 84; Mooney v. Coolidge, 30 Ark. 655; Clark v. Potter, 32 Ohio St. 49.

Swettenham v. Leary, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 284; Pouthmand v. McLaughlin, 24 N. J. Eq. 181. Compare Martin v. Gudd, 81 Ill. 488; Sloan v. Martin, 33 Tex. 418; Humphries v. Huffman, 33 Ohio St. 395.

"The party who enters without color of title, and who relies on adverse possession only as a defence against a legal title, must show a substantial inclosure, an actual occupancy, a pedis possessio, which is definite, positive, and notorious, to countervail such legal title." Humphries v. Huffman, 33 Ohio St. 403. See Jackson v. Shoemaker, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 234; Doe v. Campbell, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 477; Jackson v. Woodruff, 1 Cowen (N. Y.), 276; s. c., 13 Am. Dec. 525; Bristol v. Carroll Co., 95 Ill. 93.

In Clark v. Potter, 32 Ohio St. 49, the court said: "A continued residence on the land is not necessary if it has been inclosed and used in such manner as to give publicity to the possession."

4. Smith v. Hosmer, 7 N. H. 436; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 354; Hale v. Glidden, 10 N. H. 397; Stevens v. Hollister, 18 Vt. 294; s. c., 46 Am. Dec. 154; Kennebec Purchase v. Springer, 4 Mass. 416; s. c., 3 Am. Dec. 227; Coburn v. Hollis, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 125; Slater v. Jepherson, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 129; Bates v. Norcross, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 224. See 17 Pick. 14,

In some of the States the statute requires that the land claimed must be protected by a substantial inclosure,<sup>1</sup> the entire tract

s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 271; Parker v. Parker, 1 Allen (Mass.), 245; Stevens v. Taft, 11 Gray (Mass.), 35; Jackson v. Schoonmaker, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 230; Smith v. Burtis, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 197; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 218; Lane v. Gould, 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 254; O'Hara v. Richardson, 46 Pa. St. 391; Slice v. Derrick, 2 Rich. (S. Car.) 627; Smith v. Mitchel, 1 A. K. Marsh (Ky.), 207; Hutton v. Schumaker, 21 Cal. 453; Borel v. Rollins, 30 Cal. 408.

The inclosure need not be by an artificial fence. Baker v. Van Volkenburg, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 319. See Teed v. Halstead, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 216.

It appeared that fences on the sides of defendant's premises, extending across the strip in question to or near low-water mark, had been maintained by him and his grantors for more than twenty years, those portions across the beach being taken away in winter to prevent their being carried away by the ice and tides; there was no fence along the cliff, the land on that side being open to the sea. Held, that the evidence was sufficient to authorize the submission to the jury of the question as to whether there was a substantial inclosure within the meaning of the statute. Trustees v. Kirk, 84 N. Y. 215; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 505. In this case the court said: "The requirement that the premises shall be protected by a substantial inclosure, if construed to require a continuous, uninterrupted inclosure for twenty years, would in many cases make it impossible to acquire title by adverse possession founded upon that provision. Upon such a construction, if fences were carried away by floods or destroyed by fire, or taken down in the winter for the accommodation of travel, the adverse possession would cease, although they were restored as soon as circumstances permitted. It is well understood that the bottom-lands on some parts of the Mohawk River are annually overflowed, and fences are removed to prevent them from being carried away by the flood. It cannot, we think, be claimed that the temporary removal of fences for this purpose defeats an adverse possession under the provision of the statute in respect to inclosure. In this case the land was left uninclosed on the side toward the sea. The sea was a natural barrier, as much so as a mountain or a river or a ledge of rocks; and the sea, with the lateral fences when maintained, constituted, we think, a substantial inclosure within the meaning of the statute. The removal of the fences during the winter was to protect them from being swept away by the ice and tides. If they had not been removed, but had been left to be carried away each winter by the sea, the defendant could, we think, have replaced them in the spring, and would not have lost his right under the statute. By the voluntary removal of the fences he simply anticipated the action of the elements; and having restored them when the danger was passed, and maintained them during the season when the use of the beach for taking sea-weed was practicable, the purposes of notice, upon which the statute proceeds, were met." See St. Louis v. Gorman, 29 Mo. 593; Brumagin v. Bradshaw, 39 Cal. 24.

A plot of woodland was fenced on two sides, one of the other sides being an unfenced highway, and the fourth indicated only by marked trees. Held, not such occupancy as constituted adverse possession. Pope v. Haumer, 8 Hun (N. Y.), 265; 74 N. Y. 24.

A fence on three sides will not be sufficient. Morrison v. Chapin, 97 Mass. 72. Compare Kerr v. Hitt, 75 Ill. 51.

The fences must be substantial, a mere brush fence, or one made by felled trees lapping upon one another is not sufficient. Hale v. Gliddon, 10 N. H. 397; Jackson v. Schoonmaker, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 229; Coburn v. Hollis, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 125; Parker v. Parker, 1 Allen (Mass.), 245; Slater v. Jepherson, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 129.

The fences must be erected by the party claiming adversely. Doolittle v. Tice, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 181.

The inclosure must be for the purpose of marking the boundaries. Soule v. Barlow, 48 Vt. 132.

The fence of an adjoining owner, if on the boundary line, may be sufficient. Doolittle v. Tice, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 181.

An extensive inclosure, which includes tracts also held adversely, also lands which there is no intention to claim, is not an adverse holding of a specific tract within such general inclosure. Walsh v. Hill, 41 Cal. 571; Smith's L. C. 717 et seq.

1. Pope v. Haumer, 8 Hun (N. Y.), 265; 74 N. Y. 246. Soule v. Barlow, 49 Vt. 329; Walsh v. Hill, 41 Cal. 571; Russell v. Davis, 38 Conn. 562.

In Jackson v. Schoonmaker, 2 Johns.

claimed must be inclosed.<sup>1</sup> Even where the statute does not require the erection of a fence, its construction with intent to claim title is sufficient evidence of disseisin;<sup>2</sup> but the mere fact of building a fence, if there is no intention to claim adversely connected with the erection of the fence, will not constitute evidence of possession or occupation.<sup>3</sup>

24. Taxes.—A stranger will not acquire title merely by payment of taxes on unoccupied land without actual possession; possession is indispensable.<sup>4</sup> (See COLOR OF TITLE, infra.)

25. Possession must be Visible, Notorious, and Exclusive.—These constitute qualities which chiefly distinguish a disseisin from a trespass, and they unite to give rise to two modes in which a disseisin

(N. Y.), 229, it was held that a possession fence, which was made by trees felled and lapping one upon another, did not constitute a sufficient adverse possession to toll the right of entry of the true owner. The court said there must be a real and substantial inclosure, an actual occupancy, a possessio pedis, which is definite, positive, and notorious, to constitute an adverse possession, when that is the only defence, and is to countervail a legal title. The object of the statute defining the acts essential to constitute an adverse possession is, that the real owner may, by unequivocal acts of the disseisor, have notice of the hostile claim and be thereby called upon to assert his legal title. In this case there was no actual inclosure by fences of the land in question. But this is not indispensable in every case. In Jackson v. Halstead, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 216, title to land fronting on the Delaware river was claimed by adverse possession. Fences had been erected, extending to a point about a rod from the river, leaving some of the disputed ground uninclosed. But it was proved that the fence at this place was as near the river as the wash of the floods and the make of the ground would permit. This was held to be a sufficient inclosure. Woodworth, J., said that it would be too strict to require the fence to be placed on the very margin of the river, where it would be liable to be swept away by the rise of water, and not within the reason of the rule defining what shall constitute an adverse possession. The learned judge further said that a river or mountain, or a ledge of rocks, on one side, forming a natural barrier, the other sides being inclosed, would, with claim of title, constitute an adverse possession. (See Becker v. Van Valkenburgh, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 319. See Pope v. Haumer, 74 N. Y. 240.

1. Armstrong v. Risteau, 5 Md. 256;

s. c., 59 Am. Dec. 115. See St. Louis v. Gorman, 29 Mo. 593; Trustees v. Kirk, 84 N. Y. 215; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 505; Dennet v. Crocker, 8 Me. 239; Morrison v. Chapin, 97 Mass. 72.

2. Cantagrel v. Von Lupin, 58 Tex. 570; Hank v. Senseman, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 21; Munshower v. Patton, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 334; s. c., 13 Am. Dec. 678.

The adverse possession must have been actual by fences, inclosures or buildings, where the land is capable of such possession, and where it is not, such fact must be averred in pleading. Such acts as cutting timber, grazing cattle, erecting hog-pens, are illusory and insufficient. Hicks v. Fredericks, 9 Lea (Tenn.), 491; Pullen v. Hopkins, 1 Lea (Tenn.), 741; Cass v. Richardson, 2 Coldw. (Tenn.) 28.

Some cases hold that no inclosure is necessary; but that open, unequivocal acts of ownership are sufficient. Bright v. Stevens, 1 Houst. (Del.) 240; Brooks v. Bruyn, 24 Ill. 392; Langworthy v. Myers, 4 Iowa, 18; Booth v. Small, 25 Iowa, 117.

3. Soule v. Barlow, 49 Vt. 529; Allen v. Holton, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 458; Russell v. Davis, 38 Conn. 362; Carroll v. Gillion, 33 Ga. 539.

4. Bear Valley Coal Co. v. Dewart, 95 Pa. St. 72; Sorber v. Willing, 10 Watts (Pa.), 141; Miller v. Long Island R. Co., 71 N. Y. 380; Hurlbut v. Bradford, 110 Ill. 397; Paine v. Hutchins, 49 Vt. 314; Mallóy v. Bowden, 86 N. Car. 251; Fullen v. Hopkins, 1 Lea (Tenn.), 741.

The person paying the taxes must in some way be interested in or connected with the claim and color of title. A payment by a stranger to the claim and color of title does not answer the requirements of the statute. Hurlbut v. Bradford, 109 Ill. 397.

Payment of taxes is not occupancy. It only shows claim of title. Paine v. Hutchins, 49 Vt. 314.

may be effected. (1) Where the entry is not under a written title or paper, but merely under a claim of right or ownership, the ouster extends no further than the inclosure of the disseisor. (2) But if one enters under a color of title, by deed or other written document, and occupies and improves the land, he acquires, in law, actual possession to the extent of the boundaries contained in the writing, and this though the title conveyed to him is good for nothing. To give that effect to his possession of a part of the land, the possession must be exclusive, for if the true owner is in actual possession of any part of the land the disseisor will be confined to his inclosure or actual possession, and he will not be considered as in possession to the boundaries of his deed or writing. In any case, however, the possession, to effect an ouster of the owner, must in its nature possess such notoriety that the owner may be presumed to have notice of it, and of its extent. It must, in fact, be open, visible, notorious, and exclusive.<sup>1</sup>

1. Atherton v. Johnson, 2 N. H. 34; Stevens v. Hollister, 18 Vt. 294; s. c., 46 Am. Dec. 154; Soule v. Barlow, 49 Vt. 329; Russell v. Maloney, 39 Vt. 583; Proprietors v. Call, 1 Mass. 483; Pray v. Pierce, 7 Mass. 381; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 59; Cook v. Babcock, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 210; Thomas v. Marshfield, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 250; Samuel v. Barrowscale, 104 Mass. 207; French v. Pearce, 8 Conn. 439; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 680; School Dist. v. Lynch, 33 Conn. 330; Clark v. Gilbert, 39 Conn. 97; Tracy v. Norwich, etc., R. Co., 39 Conn. 382; Smith v. Burtis, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 197; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 218; Doe v. Campbell, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 477; Cahill v. Palmer, 45 N. Y. 484; Saxton v. Hunt, 20 N. J. L. 487; Hawk v. Senseman, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 21; Calhoun v. Cook, 9 Pa. St. 226; Stevens v. Leach, 19 Pa. St. 265; Bartholomew v. Edwards, 1 Houst. (Del.) 17; Malloy v. Bowden, 86 N. Car. 251; Crispin v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536; Tamm v. Kellogg, 49 Mo. 118; Kellogg v. Mullen, 39 Mo. 174; Key v. Jennings, 66 Mo. 356; Ekey v. Inge, 87 Mo. 493; Fugate v. Pierce, 49 Mo. 447; Wall v. Shindler, 47 Mo. 282; Bowman v. Lee, 48 Mo. 335; Pike v. Robertson, 79 Mo. 615; Beatty v. Mason, 30 Md. 409; Armstrong v. Risteau, 5 Md. 256; s. c., 59 Am. Dec. 115; Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 430; Turpin v. Saunders, 32 Gratt. (Va.) 27; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Yelverton v. Steele, 40 Mich. 538; Humphries v. Huffman, 33 Ohio St. 395; Peterson v. McCullough, 50 Ind. 35; Horbach v. Miller, 4 Neb. 31; Turney v. Chamberlain, 15 Ill. 271; Booth v. Small, 25 Iowa, 177; De Long v. Mulcher, 47 Iowa, 445; Edgerton v. Bird, 6 Wis. 527; s. c., 70

Am. Dec. 473; Pepper v. O'Dowd, 39 Wis. 538; Furlong v. Garrett, 44 Wis. 111; Washburne v. Cutter, 17 Minn. 361; Carroll v. Gillion, 33 Ga. 539; Denham v. Holeman, 26 Ga. 182; s. c., 71 Am. Dec. 193; Virgin v. Land, 32 Ga. 572; Whittington v. Wright, 9 Ga. 23; Royall v. Lisle, 15 Ga. 545; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 712; Alexander v. Polk, 39 Miss. 737; Wilson v. Williams, 52 Miss. 488; Dixon v. Cook, 47 Miss. 220; Benje v. Creagh, 21 Ala. 151; Brown v. Cockerell, 33 Ala. 47; Ringo v. Woodruff, 43 Ark. 469; Satterwhite v. Rosser, 61 Tex. 166; Gillespie v. Jones, 26 Tex. 343; Ward v. Drouhett, 44 Tex. 370; Bracken v. Jones, 63 Tex. 184; Thompson v. Pioche, 44 Cal. 508; Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586; 49 Am. Rep. 100; Armstrong v. Morrill, 14 Wall. (U. S.) 120.

"So long as the possessor declares that he holds in subordination to the better title, the possession will be regarded as held by consent; nor will a continued possession after such declarations avail to mature a title under the statute of limitations, until the party has changed the character of his possession either by express declarations or by the exercise of acts of ownership inconsistent with a subordinate character." Angell on Lim. § 354.

Two distinct and independent seisions of the same land cannot exist at the same time. Putnam Free School v. Fisher, 34 Me. 172.

The claim of title which must enter into and is the characteristic of an adverse possession, has in it no element of stealthiness, nor is it elastic or flexible. Potts v. Coleman, 67 Ala. 221; Thompson v. Pioche, 44 Cal. 508.

What is an adverse and exclusive possession, and what is an interruption of such possession, depend very much upon the character of the land, and the purposes to which it is adapted and for which it is used. The adverse possession of an outlying lot of small value, remote from the dwellings of people, suitable for pasturing or for the growth of wood, or for some other purpose of husbandry, is to be proved by evidence very different from that which establishes the exclusive occupation of a residence or a shop or storehouse within the limits of a thickly settled business population. The rule of law is the same in both cases; but the evidence necessary to prove the fact is very different. In either case the question is, Has the adverse possession, considering the nature, situation, and uses of the land, been exclusive and continuous?<sup>1</sup>

"The statute was not made to serve the purpose of artifice and trick." Sailor v. Hertzogg, 2 Pa. St. 185; Bracken v. Jones, 63 Tex. 184.

So where a party held homestead property under recorded leases from plaintiff's husband, which leases had not expired, or, if they had expired, had done so within a year, cannot acquire such a right as will set the statute of limitations in motion from a secret deed by said husband, which deed was unrecorded, and of which plaintiff had no notice; an entry under such a deed not being sufficiently open to give the owner notice of the hostile claim and possession. Maudlin v. Cox, 7 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 804.

It is the visible and adverse possession with an intent to possess that constitutes its adverse character, and not the remote motives or purposes of the occupant. Humphries v. Huffman, 33 Ohio St. 395; French v. Pearce, 8 Conn. 430; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 680.

1. Bowen v. Guild, 130 Mass. 121; Humphries v. Huffman, 33 Ohio St. 395; Bell v. Denson, 56 Ala. 449; Brumagim v. Bradshaw, 39 Cal. 24; Mooney v. Cooledge, 30 Ark. 655; Dorr v. School Dist., 40 Ark. 243; Draper v. Shoot, 25 Mo. 197; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 462; Leeper v. Baker, 68 Mo. 407; Clement v. Perry, 34 Iowa, 567; Ewing v. Burnet, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 41.

The jury may take into consideration the nature of the land. Turner v. Hall, 60 Mo. 271.

As regards wild lands it is not enough to pay the taxes, and occasionally look at and show them to others as one's own. Brown v. Rose, 48 Iowa, 231.

Neither actual possession, cultivation, nor residence is necessary to constitute adverse possession where the property is appropriated to the use for which it was designed and the only use of which it is susceptible. Dorr v. School Dist., 40 Ark. 237.

Purchasers made entry upon the land under their deed, marked out their claim by survey and stakes, and upon the portion in litigation built a wharf on which to land lightwood, etc., and erected a boat-shed, and used both wharf and shed. Held, to be such acts of possession under color of title as would ripen into title by possession. Congdon v. Morgan, 14 S. Car. 587.

Surveying a part of the land and paying some taxes do not constitute possession. Thompson v. Burhaus, 61 N. Y. 52. See Beatty v. Mason, 30 Md. 409; Oatman v. Fowler, 45 Ala. 482.

The cutting of timber on uninclosed wild lands, without anything to define the extent of the alleged claim, is not alone such evidence of ownership as to amount to possession adverse to the true owner. It could not, therefore, operate as a disseisin against him, nor aid in any manner in supplementing the time necessary to bar the rights of the holder of the legal title. Childress v. Calloway, 76 Ala. 128; Clements v. Hays, 76 Ala. 280; Burks v. Mitchell, 78 Ala. 61; Parker v. Parker, 1 Allen (Mass.), 245; Hale v. Glidden, 10 N. H. 397.

The open and exclusive use of real property, for the purpose to which it is ordinarily fit or adapted, accompanied with a claim of ownership by the occupant, constitutes adverse possession, and the erection of a fence or other artificial boundary, to indicate the limits of such possession, is not essential thereto. Zeilin v. Rogers, 21 Fed. Repr. 103.

Where a person under color of title enlarged a boarding house, built docks, cut the hay, and paid taxes, held, that these acts were sufficiently open and notorious to constitute with him claim of being exclusive owner, a foundation of adverse title. Foulke v. Bond, 41 N. J. L. 527.

28. Notice.—The adverse character of the possession must be manifested to the owner. The owner must be notified, in some way, that the possession is hostile to his claim, or the statute does not operate on his right.<sup>1</sup>

Where a party erects upon a city lot, to which he claims title, a substantial and permanent brick building, which he claims to own throughout its entire extent, the circumstances attending his act amount to such a claim of title to the land upon which the building is erected, at least to the centre of the walls, as may, by lapse of time, ripen into a title. Crapo v. Cameron, 61 Iowa, 447.

As against the true owner, a plaintiff in ejectment, claiming title founded upon a written instrument and a judgment or decree of a court, to be deemed in adverse possession, must have usually cultivated or improved it, or have protected it by a substantial inclosure, or, if not inclosed, have used it for the supply of fuel, or of fencing timber for the purposes of husbandry, or for the ordinary use of the occupant. Simpson v. Creswell, 18 Fla. 29.

1. Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 100; Miller v. Myles, 46 Cal. 539; Thompson v. Pioche, 44 Cal. 508; Soule v. Barlow, 49 Vt. 329; Wing v. Hall, 47 Vt. 182; Proprietors v. Call, 1 Mass. 483; Pray v. Pierce, 7 Mass. 387; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 59; Cook v. Babcock, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 210; Samuel v. Borrow-scale, 104 Mass. 207; Clark v. Gilbert, 39 Conn. 97; School Dist. v. Lynch, 33 Conn. 334; Trustees v. Kirk, 84 N. Y. 215; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 505; Culver v. Rhodes, 87 N. Y. 354; Foulke v. Bond, 41 N. J. L. 527; Abell v. Harris, 11 G. & J. (Md.) 371; Turpin v. Saunders, 32 Gratt. (Va.) 27; Moore v. Thompson, 69 N. Car. 121; Virgin v. Lard, 32 Ga. 572; Dixon v. Cook, 47 Miss. 220; Wilson v. Williams, 52 Miss. 488; Herbert v. Haurick, 16 Ala. 581; Nat. M. Co. v. Powers, 3 Mont. 344; Wilson v. Henry, 35 Wis. 241; Lynde v. Williams, 68 Mo. 370; Crispin v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536; Scruggs v. Scruggs, 43 Mo. 142; Kay v. Jennings, 66 Mo. 356; Musick v. Barney, 49 Mo. 458; Fulgate v. Pierce, 49 Mo. 447; Ringo v. Woodruff, 43 Ark. 469; Portis v. Hill, 3 Tex. 278; Campau v. Dubois, 39 Mich. 274.

The hostile occupation may be so notorious that the legal owner will be presumed to have notice of it. Wilson v. Williams, 52 Miss. 488; Alexander v. Polk, 39 Miss. 737; Samuel v. Barrowscale, 104 Mass. 207; Virgin v. Land, 32 Ga. 572; Royall v. Lisle, 15 Ga. 545; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 712; Herbert v. Haurick, 16 Ala. 581; Key v. Jennings, 66 Mo. 356; Musick v. Barney, 49 Mo. 458; Scruggs v. Scruggs, 43 Mo. 142; Fulgate v. Pierce, 49 Mo. 441; Moore v. Thompson, 69 N. Car. 120.

The actual possession of land with the exercise of the usual acts of ownership and dominion over it, operate in law as constructive notice to all the world of the claim of title under which the possessor holds. Talbert v. Singleton, 42 Cal. 395.

Whether open occupancy operates notice to the other party that such occupancy is hostile; depends on the nature and circumstances of such occupancy. Plimpton v. Converse, 42 Vt. 712; s. c., 44 Vt. 158; Wing v. Hall, 47 Vt. 182.

Where the party who sets up limitation entered under a recorded deed, which on its face discloses a conflict and assumes to convey title to the land occupied, the true owner, whose land is thus held adversely, is notified of the adverse claim. Bracken v. Jones, 63 Tex. 184.

If the hostile character of the possession is so openly manifested that his observation as a man reasonably careful of his interests would be sufficient to discover it, he will be deemed to have notice. Thus, where one of two tenants in common conveys to a third person by deed purporting to convey the whole land, and the deed is recorded by the grantee, who enters under it, such entry is hostile in its nature, and the mere fact of possession by a stranger is enough to put him on inquiry, and charge him with notice. So, the making of valuable improvements, paying the taxes upon the land, and receiving the rents and profits without accounting or offering to account, are circumstances indicating an adverse holding, and their effect upon the co-tenant is the same as if notice were directly communicated to him. The means of knowledge being furnished by the open and notorious character of the possession, he is chargeable with actual notice. Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586.

When one takes a conveyance of land,

27. Possession must be Continuous.—The possession must, for all in the actual, open, notorious, and hostile possession of another claiming to hold adversely to the grantor, he takes it with notice of all the rights of the possessor that he would have learned if he had duly and fully inquired of the person in possession. It is not enough to inquire of the grantor; the rule is inflexible that such inquiry must be made of the person holding adversely to the grantor. Cannfield v. Hard, 58 Vt. 217; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 100.

The mere fact of signing a deed as an attesting witness does not of itself operate as an admission that the witness does not assert an adverse claim to the land conveyed, since he is not required or presumed to know the contents of the instrument when he attests it; but, if it be shown that he did in fact know the contents, the jury may consider it as such admission. Coker v. Ferguson, 70 Ala. 284. See Miller v. Miller, 60 Pa. St. 16.

Premises adjacent to a railroad were conveyed to plaintiff, "subject to any right of way said railroad may own over the same." The railroad company had previously become entitled to thirty-five feet in width from the centre line of its track as right of way, but there was nothing of record showing the extent of such easement. The railroad was in operation at the time, and a fence had been constructed on one side near the track. Held, that the plaintiff being affected with notice of the acquisition of an easement over the premises by the railroad company, could not acquire title to any portion of the right of way by adverse possession. Slocumb v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 57 Iowa, 675.

Building a shed, quarrying rock, erecting a lime-kiln, cutting wood, etc., are calculated to give notice. Moore v. Thompson, 69 N. Car. 120.

While the true owner is chargeable with knowledge of the boundaries of his land, he cannot be affected with notice that an adjoining proprietor has encroached by his fence a few feet over the line for the purpose of acquiring 640 acres of his land under the statute. Bracken v. Jones, 63 Tex. 184.

The owner of land is chargeable with notice of its locality and boundaries, and the meaning and locality of every settlement made upon it by another without his authority. One holding the superior title cannot set up his ignorance of the claim of right under which his land is occupied by an adverse claimant, in person or by agent, to defeat limitation. Brownson v. Scanlan, 59 Tex. 222.

To make the possession of one tenant in common adverse as against the others, it is not necessary that notice should be given of the adverse intent; but the intent must be manifested by outward acts of an unequivocal kind. Abernathie v. Consolidated M. Co., 16 Nev. 260.

Posting a notice declaring intention to hold the property is insufficient. Lynde v. Williams, 68 Mo. 360.

The use by a railroad company of its roadbed by running trains, etc., is notice. Jeffersonville, etc., R. Co. v. Oyler, 60 Ind. 383.

One in possession under a deed conveying a designated portion of a survey by specific metes and bounds cannot invoke for his protection the statute against the owner of an undivided interest in the same survey, under an older deed from the common vendor, the second purchaser having notice of the former deed. Saunders v. Silvey, 55 Tex. 46.

Possession under a deed duly recorded is constructive notice. Forest v. Jackson, 56 N. H. 357.

It is not sufficient that some former deed in his chain of title has been so recorded. Wimberly v. Bayley, 58 Tex. 222. See Cook v. Dennis, 61 Tex. 246.

Possession of part of one lot embraced in the same deed with other lots will not be extended by construction to the other lots, unless the deed be on record, so as to work a title by prescription; and constructive possession of the unoccupied lots will not begin to run until the date of the record. Tritt v. Roberts, 64 Ga. 156. See Grimes v. Ragland, 28 Ga. 123; Wiley v. Warmoch, 30 Ga. 701; Schultz v. Lindell, 30 Mo. 310; Thompson v. Burhans, 61 N. Y. 52.

Possession under title bond is sufficient to charge a purchaser from the obligor with notice of the obligee's color of title. Spitler v. Scofield, 43 Iowa, 571.

Possession of so much ground (not adversely held by another), upon either side of the track, as was reasonably necessary for the convenient use and maintenance of the railway, in the customary mode, was constructive notice, to a subsequent purchaser, of the actual equitable title of the railway. Day v. N. Y. & C. R. Co., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 359; s. c., 41 Ohio St. 392.

Actual notice of the assertion of a superior title is fatal to the occupant's claim for improvements, and the filing of a bill against him, by the person claim-the time fixed by the statute, be continuously and consistently adverse.<sup>1</sup>

ing such superior title, is the most solemn and authoritative form of notice. Gordon v. Tweedy, 74 Ala. 232.

In Pike v. Robertson, 79 Mo. 615, the court said: "If the owner visit his land the indications of adverse possession and claim should be so patent that he could not be deceived. In this case, if the owner should have visited this land he might have seen wood cut and rails split and hauled off, pretty good indications of trespass; but he would have seen no habitation, no inclosures, no fields—nothing indeed to advise him that an adverse claim was set up—that some one was disputing his title." Musick v. Barney, 49 Mo. 458.

A claimed sixty acres of wild land under color of title. He placed the land in care of a neighbor, who cultivated the part cleared, about three-quarters of an acre, and cut timber from the rest of the land. Held, that such a possession as gave notice of A's claim of title to one who took a mortgage from the holder of the legal title. Wickes v. Lake, 25 Wis. 71.

In a wall forming one side of a house belonging to A was a stone with an inscription stating the wall to be the property of B, and that the ground eighteen feet south from the stone was given to the public for a street. B had asserted no claim of title for at least thirty years. Held, that the fee of the street remained in B, and that A had not gained a title to the wall by adverse possession. The inscription on the stone was sufficient to prevent such adverse possession arising. Phillipson v. Gibson, L. R. 6 Ch. 428.

1. See p. 258; n. 1. Bracken v. Jones, 63 Tex. 184; Satterwhite v. Rosser, 61 Tex. 166; Bank v. Hedges, 38 Tex. 614; Horbach v. Miller, 4 Neb. 31; Messer v. Reginnitter, 32 Iowa, 312; Sparrow v. Hovey, 44 Mich. 63; Yelverton v. Steele, 40 Mich. 538; Cent. Pac. R. Co. v. Shackelford, 63 Cal. 261; Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 100; San Francisco v. Fulde, 37 Cal. 353; Steeple v. Downing, 60 Ind. 478; Thompson v. McLaughlin, 66 Ill. 407; Harrison v. Cachelin, 35 Mo. 77; Wall v. Shindler, 47 Mo. 282; Lynde v. Williams, 68 Mo. 365; Bowman v. Lee, 48 Mo. 335; Fugate v. Pierce, 49 Mo. 441; Bradley v. West, 60 Mo. 33; Sharp v. Johnson, 22 Ark. 79; Ringo v. Woodruff, 43 Ark. 469; Williams v. Wallace, 78 N. Car. 354; Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. Car. 251;

Andrews v. Mulford, 1 Hayw. (N. Car.) 320; Park v. Cochran, 1 Hayw. (N. Car.) 180; Taylor v. Burnside, 1 Gratt. (Va.) 165; Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 430; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Ringgold v. Malott, 1 H. & J. (Md.) 316; Hall v. Gittings, 2 H. & J. (Md.) 112; Bell v. Denson, 56 Ala. 444; Beard v. Ryan, 78 Ala. 37; Riggs v. Fuller, 54 Ala. 141; Laramore v. Minish, 43 Ga. 282; Joiner v. Borders, 32 Ga. 239; Morrison v. Hayes, 19 Ga. 294; Tegarden v. Carpenter, 36 Miss. 404; Nixon v. Porter, 38 Miss. 401; Wickliffe v. Ensor, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 253; Morse v. Williams, 62 Me. 445; Soule v. Barlow, 49 Vt. 329; Melvin v. Proprietors, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 5; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 384; Smith v. Chapin, 31 Conn. 531; Jackson v. Schoonmaker, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 230; Bliss v. Johnson, 94 N. Y. 235; Wheeler v. Spinola, 54 N. Y. 377; Johnston v. Irwin, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 291; Moore v. Collishaw, 10 Pa. St. 224; Rogers v. Benlow, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 303; Hoey v. Furman, 1 Pa. St. 296; Groft v. Weakland, 34 Pa. St. 308; Christy v. Alford, 17 How. (U. S.) 601; Armstrong v. Morrell, 14 Wall. (U. S.) 120; Read v. Allen, 63 Tex. 154; McMullin v. Erwin, 58 Ga. 427.

The absence of the defendant, or the absence of any vendor under whom he claims, from the State, has no effect to prevent the running of the statute in his favor. It is the possession of the land by himself or tenants, not his personal presence, which avails him. Hunter v. Nichols, 55 Tex. 217.

An abandonment of the premises, although the intent to shortly return may exist, will stop the running of the statute. Susquehanna, etc., R. Co. v. Quick, 68 Pa. St. 189. See INTERRUPTION OF POSSESSION, post, p. 271.

The possession cannot be changed from one part of a tract to another without breaking the continuity. Grieff v. Schwendeman, 27 Mo. 412.

When the possession is once established, it will be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to have continued. Marston v. Rowe, 43 Ala. 271.

Where acts of ownership consisted in the payment of taxes on the land and the employment of agents in respect to it, in the absence of actual possession on the part of the alleged owner, held, error to permit the jury to consider such acts in passing upon the question of continuous possession required to perfect a colorable title under a deed. Here the

Though the possession be continuous, if it is held for a portion of the time in recognized subordination to the true owner, and for another time in repudiation of his claim to the land, the two jury should have been instructed that no such continuous possession was shown by the plaintiff. Ruffin v. Overby, 88 N. Car. 369.

A vendor of land by removing from the State cannot stop the running of the statute of limitations in favor of his vendee. Zoll v. Carnahan, 83 Mo. 35. But some authorities hold that the limitation does not apply to a proceeding in rem, but only to actions in personam. Anderson v. Baxter, 4 Oregon, 105; Eubanks v. Leveridge, 4 Sawy. (U. S.) 274. Compare Whalley v. Eldridge, 24 Minn. 358; Emory v. Keighan, 93 Ill. 543.

Computation of Time.—Only the time which elapsed before the commencement of the suit can be considered. Beard v. Ryan, 78 Ala. 37.

In computing time to ascertain whether an action is barred by limitations, the day on which the right of action accrued must be included, and the day of issuing the summons excluded. Shinn v. Tucker, 33 Ark. 421. See Gray v. Givens, 26 Mo. 291; Ely v. Wynne, 22 Gratt. 224.

The time must be definitely stated, evidence that it began "in the summer" of the year that the statute began to run and ended on some indefinite day in the year when the statutory period terminated, is not sufficient. Grosholtz v. Newman, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 481.

When the title of a party in possession of lands has become fixed and absolute by reason of the statute of limitations, it is not affected by a subsequent statute extending the time of limitation. Shriver v. Shriver, 86 N. Y. 575.

The ten years' possession need not be the ten years next before the date of the action of ejectment. Allen v. Mansfield, 82 Mo. 688; Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 100.

A tax deed will run from date of sale. Shawler v. Johnson, 52 Iowa, 473. See Clark v. Thompson, 37 Iowa, 536; Hintrager v. Hennessy, 46 Iowa, 600; Barratt v. Love, 48 Iowa, 103.

A widow has no estate in the land until her dower is assigned, but a mere right of occupancy. Her possession is not hostile to the heir's title, and she has nothing that she can convey to a stranger to the title, and is not to be estimated in computing time. Padgett v. Norman, 44 Ark. 490. See Carnall v. Wilson, 21 Ark. 62; s. c., 76 Am. Dec. 351; Burks v. Osborn, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.)

579; Halsey v. Dodd, 1 Halst. (N. J.) 367; Weaver v. Crenshaw, 6 Ala. 873; 18 lb. 810.

In the case of a mortgage the time will begin to run from the time of condition broken. Green v. Mizule, 54 Miss. 220.

Where an execution and sale were completed by the incoming sheriff, the time will begin to run from the date of the deed. Walls v. Smith, 19 Ga. 8.

A person enters upon land under a deed describing the land and claiming it under such deed, and which land, at the date of his deed and entry thereon, does not appear to have been granted by the commonwealth, but subsequently thereto the said land is granted to another person. Held, that from the time the grant issued to such other person the statute of limitations commenced to run in favor of the person who had thus entered upon the land; and if he continues in the actual possession, after the date of said grant, long enough to bar an entry under said statute, he will acquire a valid title to said land. Adams v. Alkire, 20 W. Va. 480.

In a suit for the recovery of land, after the issuance of the patent, the statute cannot be held to have commenced running prior to the date of the patent. Manley v. Howlett, 55 Cal. 94; O'Connor v. Fogle, 63 Cal. 9.

Title in the United States.—A party entered into possession of a tract of land under color of title, and so remained in possession thereof for more than ten years after the title to the tract had been conveyed to a railroad company by the United States. Held, that to enable him to invoke the protection of the statute of limitations, it was wholly immaterial whether his title originated before or after the title passed from the United States. Tremaine v. Weatherby, 58 Iowa, 615.

Possession for the period named in a State statute is no bar until the legal title passes out of the United States. Gibson v. Choteau, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 92; Dunn v. Miller, 75 Mo. 260.

Upon a plea of the statute of limitations, the only evidence given of possession during the first year of the statutory period was that the defendant's grantor went once upon the land, set up two stakes at what he was told were corners, tried to ascertain the boundaries, and af-periods of time cannot be united to constitute the period of limitation; and if under color of title, then an actual possession and occupation of a part of the parcel claimed, and a constructive posterward paid the taxes for the year. Held, that this did not amount to possession, and the plea was not sustained. Bradstreet v. Kinsella, 76 Mo. 63.

If A recover possession of land by execution on a judgment in ejectment against B, semble that the judgment does not relate to the time of action brought, so as to give A, during the intervening time, an adverse possession as against C, an independent claimant. Turner v. Baker, 64 Mo. 218.

If a levy was made on land within four years of its sale by the defendant in fa., but the sale did not take place until after the expiration of the four years, the proof accounting reasonably for the delay, then the possession can only be counted in favor of the purchaser up to date of levy. Cox v. Prater, 67 Ga. 588.

Where the grantee sued and recovered the purchase money by reason of an alleged want of title in the grantor, held, an abandonment of all rights claimed or acquired by the grantee and a claim of title must commence from the date of receipt of such purchase money. Davenport v. Sebring, 52 Iowa, 364.

Where land was sold in 1854 upon an execution against the husband alone, the right of the wife to enter into possession of the land did not vest until the death of her husband, and an action may be brought within twenty years from that time. Wright v. Tichenor, 104 Ind. 185.

In 1854 certain land belonging to C. was levied upon and sold to satisfy a judgment against him alone. In 1856 his wife executed a deed, in which he did not join, to one claiming under the sheriff's sale. In 1864 C. died, his wife surviving. Action by the latter, in 1884, against a remote grantee to recover one third of the land. Held, that while her deed was void, it was sufficient to convey color of title. Also, that the plaintiff's cause of action to avoid the deed which gave color of title accrued when her grantee took possession under the deed in 1856, as there was then an adverse possession of all the land. Also, that the defendant and his grantors having been in possession more than twenty years under color of title conferred by the plaintiff's deed, the action is barred by the statute of limitations, the plaintiff's disability of coverture not postponing the time when the statute began to run. Wright v. Klegla, 104 Ind. 223.

A held under contract of purchase of B. A abandoned the land, but subsequently, under a lease from C, without having rescinded his contract with B, the land meanwhile remaining unoccupied. Held, that A's re-entry related back and continued his original possession. Pratt v. Canneld, 67 Mo. 50.

In 1783 a lease was granted for ninety-nine years, and there was enjoyment under the lease until 1876, when an action was brought for possession, on the ground that the lease was void under 13 Eliz. c. 10. Demurrer that the claim was barred by the statute of limitations. Held, that the lease was voidable, not void; and that, consequently, the statute did not begin to run till the action was brought. Governors of Magdalen Hospital v. Knotts, 5 Ch. D. 175.

Where a co-tenant, pending an action for partition, conveys his undivided interest to one who is not and does not become a party to the partition proceedings, the statute of limitations does not commence to run against the right of such grantee to possession after the determination of such partition suit until he has made a demand to be let into possession of the land allotted to his grantor, and such demand has been refused. Martin v. Walker, 9 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 185.

To establish adverse possession of land under claim of title founded upon a written instrument, the vendee in possession under a parol contract for the sale of the land may avail himself of the former possession and title deeds of his vendor. Meade v. Gilfoyle, 64 Wis. 18.

Where the trespass is permanent in its character and the damage is complete on the occurrence of the original act of trespass, the statute begins to run from that time. Even in case of a continuing nuisance or trespass, where every such continuance is regarded as affording a new cause of action, the action must be brought before the defendant has acquired a prescriptive right to commit the trespass or to maintain the nuisance by the lapse of such a period as bars plaintiff's entry upon the land. James v. City of Kansas, 83 Mo. 567.

The point of time, from which the bar of the statute, prohibiting the institution of an action for the recovery of lands sold for the non-payment of taxes after the expiration of five years from the date session of the residue, must continue uninterruptedly for the whole period prescribed.<sup>1</sup> (See also ACTUAL POSSESSION, infra.)

28. Tacking.—In the case of successive holders of land, after a disseisin committed by one of them, the seisin thereby acquired by him will not enure to the benefit of the others who come into possession after him, unless there is a privity of estate between them and him, by purchase or descent. But if there is privity of estate between them, then their connected possessions can be tacked together to make a continuity of disseisin.<sup>2</sup> To create of sale, is to be computed, is the date of the execution of the deed by the judge of probate, that being the final, consummating act of sale. Pugh v. Youngblood, 69 Ala. 296.

A resumption of the adverse holding, after an interruption by the true owner, will run from the date of the resumption. Steeple v. Downing, 60 Ind. 478.

Where a deed giving color of title misdescribes the land and a new deed is substituted, the statute will run from date of last deed. Weaver v. Wilson, 48 Ill. 125.

1. Tyler on Eject. 911.

2. Bryan v. East St. Louis, 12 Ill. App. 390; Kilbourne v. Lockman, 8 Iowa, 380; Brant v. Ogden, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 156; Jackson v. Thomas, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 293; Ward v. Bartholomew, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 410; Wade v. Lindsey, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 407; Melvin v. Proprietors, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 5; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 384; Overfield v. Christie, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 173; McCoy v. Trustees, 5 S. & R. (Pa.) 254; Mercer v. Watson, 1 Watts (Pa.), 330; Parker v. Southwick, 6 Watts (Pa.), 377; Hunt v. Devling, 8 Watts (Pa.), 403; Moore v. Small, 9 Pa. St. 194; Scheetz v. Fitzwater, 5 Pa. St. 126; Schraik v. Zubler, 34 Pa. St. 38; Winslow v. Newell, 19 Vt. 164; Day v. Wilder, 47 Vt. 584; Satterwhite v. Rosser, 61 Tex. 166; Brownson v. Scanlan, 59 Tex. 222; Wheeler v. Moody, 9 Tex. 372; Shaw v. Nicholay, 30 Mo. 99; St. Louis v. Gorman, 29 Mo. 593; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 586; Chouquette v. Barada, 23 Mo. 331; Furlong v. Garrett, 44 Wis. 111; McNeeley v. Langdan, 22 Ohio St. 32; McEntire v. Brown, 28 Ind. 347; Doe v. Brown, 4 Ind. 143; Adams v. Tiernan, 5 Dana (Ky.), 394; Hanson v. Johnson, 62 Md. 25; s. c., 50 Am. Rep. 199; Chilton v. Wilson, 9 Humph. (Tenn.) 399; Hays v. Morrison, 30 Ga. 971; Benson v. Stewart, 30 Miss. 49; Riggs v. Fuller, 54 Ala. 141; San Francisco v. Fulde, 37 Cal. 349; Shuffleton v. Nelson, 2 Sawy. (U. S.) 540; Lea v. Polk County, 21 How. (U. S.) 403; Dosewell v. De La Lanza, 20 How. (U. S.) 29.

Tacking.—One who relies on title by prescription and seeks to tack to his own the possession of prior holders to make out the prescription, must show that their possession was bona-fide. Hammond v. Crosby, 68 Ga. 767; Baker v. Hale, 6 Baxt. (Tenn.) 46.

The possession of lands by a vendor is subordinate, and not adverse, to the rights of his vendee, and the statute of limitations does not run during its continuance, so that the time thereof can be added to the time during which a subsequent purchaser from the vendor may hold, so as to make a sufficient period to bar the rights of the first purchaser. Jeffersonville, etc., R. Co. v. Oyler, 82 Ind. 394.

Action was brought against A for the possession of land held adversely by him for less than ten years, but before trial he died. The plaintiffs in such action, having matured title by possession made their entry upon the land, and, subsequently, were ousted by the heirs-at-law of A. Held, that such heirs could not claim that their possession thus acquired was a continuation of A's possession cast upon them by descent. Congdon v. Morgan, 14 S. Car. 587.

Defendant in ejectment cannot tack the possession of a grantor, whose possession originated in fraud of the true owner, to his own possession in order to complete the term of years necessary to give him title by prescription, though he himself be an innocent purchaser from such fraudulent grantor. Farrow v. Bullock, 63 Ga. 360.

When a vendor conveys by deed lands particularly designated, or described by numbers, metes and bounds, the purchaser acquires title, or color of title, only to the lands within the designated numbers and boundaries; and if he claims adverse possession, under color of title, of adjoining lands outside of those numbers and boundaries, because his vendor was in possession thereof at the time his conveyance was executed, he must show that the possession thereof was delivered to him, as a part of the such privity, there must have existed, as between the different disseisors, in regard to the estate of which a title by disseisin is lands sold and conveyed; otherwise, he cannot tack his vendor's prior possession to his own subsequent possession, for the purpose of making out a title under the statute of limitations. Humes v. Bernstein, 72 Ala. 546.

It is indispensable to maintain the plea of limitation that the deed under which he who sets up that defence claims should have been duly registered; the registration of some deed or deeds in the chain of title will not meet the requirements of the statute. While this is true, one who entered under a deed to himself, duly recorded, may tack his own possession to that of his vendor, who also entered and held under a deed duly registered. Cook v. Dennis, 61 Tex. 246. See Wimberly v. Bailey, 58 Tex. 222.

A long acquiescence of adverse parties in the possession of land by another will warrant the court in assuming the existence and loss of record-links in making up his title, the lapse of time varying with the conditions under which the records were kept and the casualties to which they were exposed. Yount v. Miller, 91 N. Car. 331.

Where the purchaser of a lot, upon receiving a deed therefor, erects a building thereon and enters into possession, and afterwards sells and conveys the premises, a number of transfers being thereafter made, and the building at times being vacant, but no interruption by an adverse claim to the title of the occupant, held, that the possession was continuous, and after the expiration of ten years the occupant possessed the fee. Stettinische v. Lamb, 26 N. W. Repr. (Neb.) 374.

A feme covert died in December, 1854, leaving a will, which was admitted to probate, but was not executed in due form to pass real estate, because the consent of her husband in writing was not annexed thereto, and also because it was not executed sixty days before her death. By said will she devised a farm to her husband for life, with remainder in fee to her nephew. Under it her husband, on the 1st of January, 1855, entered into possession of the property, claiming title as tenant for life, and so continued in possession until the 5th of February, 1868, when he united with the nephew in a sale and conveyance to J., who thereupon entered upon said property, and continued in possession up to the 11th of April, 1882, when the heirs-at-law of the testatrix brought ejectment against him. Held.

that the claim of title and possession of the husband, as tenant for life under the will, being hostile to the title of the heirs-at-law, was as against them adverse and exclusive. That the purchaser from the husband and nephew having immediately taken and held possession under the conveyance to him, his possession was added or tacked to the possession of the husband, making a continuous adverse possession of more than twenty years, which was a flat bar to the right of the plaintiffs as heirs-at-law. Hanson v. Johnson, 62 Md. 25; s. c., 50 Am. Rep. 199.

Possession under color of title may be transferred, and the possession of subsequent holders united, as to the land actually occupied, but not as to other land of which the first holder had color of title, but of which there was no conveyance to subsequent holders. Cooper v. Ord, 60 Mo. 420.

Where the purchasers were joint tenants and one died, and under order of court the property was sold and purchased by the survivor, who paid his bid in full but took no deed, held, that the survivor did not hold under a different legal title or by a disconnected right, and that the time of his possession might be added to the time of the joint possession. Congdon v. Morgan, 14 S. Car. 587.

Even a link in a chain of title subsequent to patent which is not void, but voidable, will constitute a link in the chain of "title" within the meaning of the statute; and this even though such voidable deed had its origin in a transaction between the grantor and grantee, which was fraudulent as to an estate represented by the grantor. League v. Rogan, 59 Tex. 427; Pearson v. Burdett, 26 Tex. 172.

A party cannot connect his possession previous to obtaining a deed with his subsequent possession under a deed. Barnes v. Vickers, 59 Tenn. 370.

If the actual owner leases to a tenant, in ignorance of a prior lease to the same tenant from one who claims title, the continued possession of the tenant will not keep alive the first landlord's adverse claim. Thompson v. Pioche, 44 Cal. 508.

Where a tract of land is held under color of title, a part constructively and a part actually, a grantee of the part actually held does not succeed to the claim to the part constructively held. Chandler v. Rushing, 38 Tex. 591.

The possession of a deviser, devisee claimed, some such relation as that of ancestor and heir, grantor and grantee, or deviser and devisee.<sup>1</sup>

29. Interruption.—Upon every discontinuance of the possession of the wrong-doer, the possession of the rightful owner is, by operation of law, restored, and nothing short of an actual adverse and continuous possession for the statutory period can destroy his right or vest title in the wrong-doer.<sup>2</sup> for life, and remainder-man, is of sufficient privity to be tacked to make out a continuous possession. Haynes v. Boardman, 119 Mass. 414.

One cannot avail himself of the previous possession of another under whom he does not claim in order to establish a title of land by adverse possession. Bailey v. March, 3 N. H. 275; Edmunds v. Griffin, 41 N. H. 530; Locke v. Whitney, 5 Eastn. Repr. (N. H.) 340; Simpson v. Downing, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 316; Jackson v. Woodruff, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 286; Sawyer v. Kendall, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 241; Leonard v. Leonard, 7 Allen (Mass.), 277.

The possession of mere trespassers cannot be tacked. Baker v. Hale, 6 Baxt. (Tenn.) 46; Moffitt v. McDonald, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 457. Compare Hughes v. Pickering, 14 Pa. St. 297.

In South Carolina it is held, that where possession originally was wrongful, until it ripened into a right by lapse of time, or by descent cast, there was no estate, no right of property, which could be conveyed by deed. Consequently the purchaser from a party thus in possession of lands of another acquired nothing by his deed. They were, as to the real owners, mere trespassers, who could not tack their successive trespasses together so as to defeat the right of him who had the title. Mazyck v. Wight, 2 Brev. (S. Car.) *151; King v. Smith, Rice (S. Car.) 11; Pegues v. Warley, 14 S. Car. 180. Compare Moore v. Small, 9 Pa. St. 194.

The privity between successive possessors may be shown by parol evidence. Weber v. Anderson, 73 Ill. 439.

What does not constitute Tacking.—An invalid sheriff's deed will not constitute privity between the person whose property is sold and the purchaser. Hesters v. Coats, 22 Ga. 46.

The possession of successive purchasers of a tract of land covered by the lien of a judgment, who derived title from the judgment debtor, cannot be united so as to make up the statutory period necessary to give title by adverse possession. Pegues v. Warley, 14 S. Car. 180.

Where the grantor vacated the premises, and they were vacant for a short time before the grantee took possession, held, that the possession of the grantor and grantee could not be tacked. Tegarden v. Carpenter, 36 Miss. 504.

A bought land upon which was a judgment lien. Subsequent to his entry the land was sold under the judgment. Held, that he could not tack the time he was in possession previous to the sheriff's sale to the time he continued in possession after the sale. Marsh v. Griffin, 53 Ga. 320.

A widow cannot tack her possession to that of her deceased husband. Sawyer v. Kendall, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 241.

The possession of a tenant for life is not privy to that of a remainder-man. Austin v. Rutland R. Co., 45 Vt. 215. Compare Haynes v. Boardman, 119 Mass. 414.

A, being in actual possession of a part of a tract and in constructive possession of the remainder, under color of title sold the part actually occupied to B. Held, that B did not succeed to it. Chandler v. Rushing, 38 Tex. 591.

Corporations.—Possession by a corporation cannot be tacked to a previous possession by the individuals forming the corporation, organized as a voluntary society for the same purposes, so as to make a title by adverse possession. Reformed Church v. Schoolcraft, 65 N. Y. 134.

1. Sawyer v. Kendall, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 241; Fugate v. Pierce, 49 Mo. 441; Crispen v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536; Cahill v. Palmer, 45 N. Y. 478.

2. Doe v. Thompson, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 371; Thompson v. Burhans, 79 N. Y. 99; Bliss v. Johnson, 94 N. Y. 235; Sherman v. Kane, 86 N. Y. 56; Casey v. Inloes, 1 Gill (Md.), 430; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 658; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Steeple v. Downing, 60 Ind. 478; McIntire v. Brown, 28 Ind. 347; Crispin v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536; Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. Car. 251; Holdfast v. Shepard, 6 Ired. (N. Car.) 364; Hill v. Saunders, 6 Rich. (S. Car.) 62; Joiner v. Borders, 32 Ga. 239; Virgin v. Land, 32 Ga. 572; Armstrong v. Merrill, 14 Wall. (U. S.) 120.

In Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238, the

30. Offer to purchase Superior Title.—An offer on the part of de-

court said: "It is not sufficient for the wrong-doer to show an act of adverse possession at a point more than ten years prior to the bringing of the action against him. He must show that such adverse possession has been continued, consecutive and unbroken, for the statutory period. It is something done by him, not merely that which is left undone by the owner, that is to be considered. There can be no constructive adverse possession against the owner, when there is no actual possession which he could treat as a trespass and bring an action for; unless the adverse claimant is so in possession of the land that he may at any time be sued as trespasser, the statute will not run in his favor; and although he may have taken actual possession, if he does not continue there so that he may be sued at any time as a trespasser during the prescriptive bar, he cannot rely on the statute of limitations. The moment the premises became vacant, that moment the owner, by reason of his legal title, will be regarded in the constructive possession, and the adverse possession of the wrong-doer at an end. It is, therefore, absolutely necessary that the adverse occupancy shall be continuous, open, visible, and exclusive in order to effect a bar of the title of the true owner."

A subsequent entry, even by the same wrong-doer and under the same claim of title, constitutes a new disseisin, from the date of which the statute takes a fresh start. Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. Car. 251; Olwine v. Holman, 23 Pa. St. 274; Jackson v. Leonard, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 653; Melvin v. Proprietors, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 5; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 384; Allen v. Holton, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 465.

The interruption need be but for a single day. Olwine v. Holman, 23 Pa. St. 279.

Possession under color of title must be continuous; a gap, though occurring during the period the statute was suspended, is sufficient to destroy its continuity. Malloy v. Bruden, 86 N. Car. 251.

Where title to land has been acquired by adverse possession, it is not forfeited by an interruption of the actual occupation thereafter. Sherman v. Kane, 86 N. Y. 57; Spofford v. Bennett, 55 Tex. 293.

Possession once established by material acts of visible, notorious ownership must be presumed to continue until open, notorious, and adverse possession be proven to be taken by another. Clements v. Lampkin, 34 Ark. 598.

Where thirty years' actual possession of land is relied upon to presume a grant from the State, it is not necessary to show that there was any connection between the successive occupants during the period. Nor will a three-year breach in the continuity of possession repel such presumption. Cowles v. Hall, 90 N. Car. 330.

It is a question for the jury to determine whether in fact the adverse possession has been continuous or has been interrupted. Stevens v. Taft, 11 Gray Mass.), 33; Bowen v. Guild, 130 Mass. 131; O'Hara v. Richardson, 46 Pa. St. 385; De Haven v. Landell, 31 Pa. St. 120; Groft v. Weakland, 34 Pa. St. 304; Jackson v. Wood, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 242; Van Gorden v. Jackson, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 440; Jackson v. Joy, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 102; Beverly v. Burke, 9 Ga. 440; s. c., 54 Am. Dec. 351.

What is Interruption.—Mere intrusion of a trespasser does not constitute an interruption. Bell v. Denson, 56 Ala. 444. See Doe v. Eslava, 11 Ala. 1028; Raynor v. Lee, 20 Mich. 384. Compare Whalley v. Small, 29 Iowa, 288.

An order of the military power compelling to leave the statute will break the continuity of possession, although an intent to return as soon as safe exists. Halliday v. Cromwell, 37 Tex. 437.

In contemplation of law the enforcement of a writ of possession in an action of ejectment puts an end to the adverse possession of defendant as of the day of the institution of the suit. Dunn v. Miller, 75 Mo. 260.

An agreement to arbitrate will interrupt the running of the statute. Perkins v. Blood, 36 Vt. 273.

Forfeiture to the State as a sale for taxes, interrupts the continuity. Armstrong v. Morrill, 14 Wall. (U. S.) 120.

Beginning the erection of a house, leaving it partly built, and returning some months afterwards to finish and occupy it, will break the continuity of possession. Bryne v. Lowry, 19 Ga. 27.

Permitting the inclosing fences to decay, and become insufficient to protect the land, will interrupt the possession. Borel v. Rollins, 30 Cal. 408.

A, the tenant of B, attorned to C, who claimed to be the legal owner. Held, that the possession of B was broken. Russell v. Ewing, 38 Ala. 44; see Thompson v. Pioche, 44 Cal. 508. Compare Haynes v. Boardman, 119 Mass. 414.

Where one holding land permissively under bonds for titles conveyed it absolutely (the vendee taking possession), fendant to purchase the property which he is holding adversely

What constitutes Interruption—Continued. and subsequently rebought from his vendee and resold to another vendee, the adverse possession was broken, and the possession of the first and last vendees could not be tacked so as to make a good prescriptive title. Hines v. Rutherford, 67 Ga. 606; Rutherford v. Hobbs, 63 Ga. 243. See Ellege v. Cooke, 5 Lea. (Tenn.), 622.

An order of the court requiring the conveyance of the land interrupts the occupation. Gower v. Quinlan, 40 Mich. 572.

Defendant died, and plaintiffs took possession, who were ousted by defendants' heirs. Held, that there was not a continuous possession cast by descent. Congdon v. Morgan, 14 S. Car. 587.

Within three years after the recording of a tax deed the grantee therein quitclaimed to the original owner, but the quitclaim deed was not recorded. Subsequently he conveyed the land to a third person, who had no notice of the quitclaim deed and who duly recorded his conveyance. The lands remained unoccupied for more than three years after the tax deed was recorded. Held, that the quitclaim deed to the original owner was an abandonment and surrender by the tax-title claimant of the constructive adverse possession which arose in his favor upon the recording of his tax deed, and that the statute of limitations ceased thereupon to run in his favor, but ran thereafter in favor of the original owner, and at the expiration of the three years from the recording of the tax deed barred all right of action in favor of those claiming title thereunder. Warren v. Putnam, 63 Wis. 410.

Where one has in good faith entered upon and continued in possession of land under a paper title which he took believing it to be good, the maintenance of such possession during a portion of the three years next after the recording of a tax-deed of the land interrupts the running of the three-year limitation in favor of the tax-title claimant, and defeats the tax title to the extent of such actual possession and of the constructive possession following upon it. Stephenson v. Wilson, 50 Wis. 95.

Where a portion of a tract is held by constructive possession, and the other portion by actual possession, the conveyance of the part actually held will stop the running of the statute as to the part constructively held. Chandler v. Rushing, 38 Tex. 591.

What is not Interruption.—But a purchase of the land at a tax sale, by the adverse claimant, will not impair his right to rely upon the statute. Hayes v. Martin, 45 Cal. 559.

Tearing down the fence between one's self and next neighbor after asserting a right to premises inclosed by it is a mere trespass; it does not break his adverse possession of the premises inclosed. Donovan v. Bissell, 53 Mich. 462.

The temporary interruption of actual residence on the land, caused by the unlawful and violent acts of strangers in tearing down the house and rendering the premises untenable for the time being, will not stop the running of the statute. Clark v. Potter, 32 Ohio St. 49. See Whalley v. Small, 29 Iowa, 288. Bell v. Denson, 56 Ala. 444; Ladd v. Dubrocca, 61 Ala. 25.

If the possession was disturbed by the act of war by an army quartering thereon, such interference would not arrest the running of the statute, if it be shown that defendants resumed their actual possession as soon thereafter as they reasonably could do. McColgan v. Langford, 6 Lea (Tenn.), 108. Compare Halliday v. Cromwell, 37 Tex. 437.

Adverse possession is not broken by deeding the land away if the grantor continues in possession and takes back a mortgage for purchase money which he afterwards forecloses and under which he himself becomes foreclosure purchaser. And it is immaterial that the foreclosure proceedings are defective, if the possession is retained. Whitford v. Crooks, 54 Mich. 261.

One J. held the legal title to the whole of a highway; S., to whose title plaintiff succeeded, took title in 1837, to a farm adjoining the highway under a deed which by its terms bounded the lands on the north by the centre of the highway; immediately thereafter S. built a fence extending one rod into the highway, along the entire north line of his farm, and he and his successor in title continued to occupy the inclosed strip under claim of title until 1846, when, upon a survey establishing J.'s title to the whole highway, the fence was removed back to the south line thereof, and thereafter no part of it was inclosed. From 1867, when plaintiff purchased and took possession, down to 1875, he occupied a strip of land one rod wide adjoining his farm, by ploughing, cultivating, and mowing it each year. Held, that conceding both of these peri-from the plaintiff within the statutory time is a clear recogni-

What is not Interruption—Continued.

ods of occupation were hostile in inception and continuous in character and sufficient to initiate a claim to an adverse possession, they did not bar the right of the true owner, as there was not a continuous adverse possession for twenty years. Bliss v. Johnson, 94 N. Y. 235.

Where the premises are at times vacant, but no intention to abandon possession exists, the possession will not be interrupted. Steitnische v. Lamb, 26 N. W. Repr. (Neb.) 374; Hughes v. Pickering, 14 Pa. St. 297; Hudgins v. Crow, 32 Ga. 367; Fugate v. Pierce, 49 Mo. 441; Crispin v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536; De la Vega v. Butler, 47 Tex. 529; Harper v. Tapley, 35 Miss. 506.

A short and reasonable time, occasioned by the change of occupation, will not break the possession. De la Vega v. Butler, 47 Tex. 529.

If one member of the family remains there will be no interruption. Cunningham v. Brumbach, 23 Ark. 336. Nor will a short absence on business. Cunningham v. Patton, 6 Pa. St. 355; Sailor v. Hertzog, 10 Pa. St. 296.

The adverse possession of a beach by a town is not affected by the passage of inhabitants of the town over the beach to gather sea-weed or procure sand, or by their using the beach as a place of temporary deposit for the sea-weed. New Shoreham v. Ball, 14 R. I. 566.

A forcible entry upon the actual adverse possession of another, followed by an unlawful detainer, does not interrupt the adverse possession, if an action for the forcible entry and detainer is commenced within a reasonable time and prosecuted to a successful termination. Ferguson v. Bartholomew, 67 Mo. 212; Carey v. Edmonds, 71 Mo. 523. See San José v. Trimble, 41 Cal. 536; Ferguson v. Bartholomew, 67 Mo. 212.

Where one having an unperfected title enters and collects rent, held, not to be an interruption of claimant's possession. Donahue v. O'Conor, 45 N. Y. Supr. Ct. 278.

Non-user, caused by the burning of the fences, will not break the continuity. Ford v. Wilson, 35 Miss. 490.

Occasional acts of trespass by others, even though claiming under color of title, and an action of trespass during the period, would not necessarily prevent the ripening of possession into title. Duren v. Sinclair, 22 S. Car. 361.

By Entry of Legal Owner.—Adverse possession is interrupted by the true owner's entry upon the land and claim of title. Campbell v. Wallace, 12 N. H. 362; Wendell v. Moulton, 26 N. H. 41; Gage v. Gage, 30 N. H. 420; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 219; Locke v. Whitney, 5 East. Repr. (N. H.) 340; Burrows v. Gallup, 32 Conn. 493; Brickett v. Spofford, 14 Gray (Mass.), 514; Thompson v. Pioche, 44 Cal. 508.

Joint possession by the legal owner, and claimant by possession, at any time within the statutory period will stop the running of the statute. Larwell v. Stevens, 2 McCrary (U. S.), 311.

Mere verbal objections by the true owner do not constitute an interruption. Kimball v. Ladd, 42 Vt. 747.

An entry on land by a person disseised, merely for the purpose of seeing if there is any evidence of an adverse occupation, is not, as matter of law, conclusive evidence of an interruption of the disseisor's adverse possession. Bowen v. Guild, 130 Mass. 121. See Pope v. Henry, 24 Vt. 560; Burrows v. Gallup, 32 Conn. 493; Hollinshead v. Nauman, 45 Pa. St. 140; Crech v. Jones, 5 Sneed (Tenn.), 631.

On the entry of the true owner upon any part of his land the constructive possession of an adverse claimant, in actual possession of some portion of it, ceases as to uninclosed land. Evitts v. Roth, 61 Tex. 81; Henderson v. Griffin, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 151.

Entry by the true owner to show the land to a purchaser, and the subsequent execution of a deed, will interrupt the possession. Brickett v. Spofford, 14 Gray (Mass.), 514. See Oakes v. Marcy, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 195; Warner v. Bull, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 1.

During the three years immediately following the record of a tax deed (which was void for irregularity in the tax proceedings), the original owner entered upon the land for the purpose of removing the pine timber; and he cut roads, built sledways, and cut and hauled the pine from the land, during two successive lumbering seasons of three or four months each, but did not erect any shanty or other structure thereon. Such occupancy was open and continuous during the two seasons; it terminated when the pine timber was all removed; and the land, though fit for agricultural purposes, continued during the whole period to be wild and unimproved. Held, that the occupancy was sufficient to interrupt the running of the three-year limitation in favor of the tax-title claimant. Haseltine v. Mosher, 51 Wis. 443.

tion of plaintiff's title, and will interrupt the running of the statute.<sup>1</sup>

31. Purchase by Adverse Holder.—One in possession of land, and claiming to own it, may buy in outstanding claims of title without abandoning or impairing his own title, or even acknowledging the validity of the title so bought.<sup>2</sup>

Entry of Legal Owner—Continued.

Adverse holding is not interrupted or suspended by an action of ejectment brought by the owner and afterwards dismissed. Langford v. Poppe, 56 Cal. 73; Workman v. Guthrie, 29 Pa. St. 495; Ferguson v. Bartholomew, 67 Mo. 212; Kennedy v. Reynolds, 27 Ala. 364. Contra, if the action is successful, Groft v. Weakland, 34 Pa. St. 304.

It appeared that R., a former owner of defendant's land, brought an action for trespass against one who had gathered sea-weed upon the beach. R. discontinued the action under an agreement with the town, and agreed not to sue again. Held, that this did not entitle plaintiffs to a charge to the jury that R. thereby relinquished his adverse possession; that it was at most evidence bearing upon that question for the consideration of the jury. Trustees v. Kirk, 84 N. Y. 215; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 505.

Where the claimant yields possession, upon threat of legal proceedings, by the true owner, the possession is broken. Shaffer v. Lowry, 25 Pa. St. 252.

During the three years immediately following the record of a tax deed (which was void for irregularity in the tax proceedings), the original owner entered upon the land for the purpose of removing the pine timber; and he cut roads, built sledways, and cut and hauled the pine from the land, during two successive lumbering seasons of three or four months each, but did not erect any shanty or other structure thereon. Such occupancy was open and continuous during the two seasons; it terminated when the pine timber was all removed; and the land, though fit for agricultural purposes, continued during the whole period to be wild and unimproved. Held, that the occupancy was sufficient to interrupt the running of the three-year limitation in favor of the tax-title claimant. Haseltine v. Mosher, 51 Wis. 443.

Where the land in question was timber land, uninclosed, and used for no other purpose than to supply wood, rails, and other timber, and the defendant, who had the patent title, so used it up to the time when the tax title vested in plaintiff, and continued so to use it thereafter for a time exceeding the period prescribed by the statute of limitations, held, that the tax title was barred, notwithstanding the exercise by plaintiff during that time of certain acts of ownership which, however, did not amount to an ouster of defendant. Brett v. Farr, 66 Iowa, 684; Ellsworth v. Low, 62 Iowa, 178, and Griffith v. Carter, 64 Iowa, 193.

The acceptance of a lease by the adverse claimant from the true owner will stop the running of the statute during the term of such lease. Abbey H. Assoc. v. Willard, 48 Cal. 614.

1. Lovell v. Frost, 44 Cal. 474; Cent. Pac. R. Co. v. Mead, 63 Cal. 113; Pac. Ins. Co. v. Stroup, 63 Cal. 150; Jackson v. Britton, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 507; Jackson v. Cuerden, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 353; Jackson v. Croy, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 427. Compare Tobey v. Secor, 60 Wis. 310; Walbrunn v. Ballen, 68 Mo. 164; Chapin v. Hunt, 40 Mich. 595.

Adverse possession of real estate loses its adverse character when the holder thereof, for a sufficient consideration, agrees with the true owner that suit to recover such possession shall not be brought during the lifetime of each of them. Dietrick v. Noel, 42 Ohio St. 18; s. c., 51 Am. Rep. 788.

If the possession of a tenant in common is adverse to his co-tenant, it will not lose its hostile character by the former tendering a quitclaim deed to the latter, and requesting him to sign it, there being no offer to purchase, nor any acknowledgment of the tenancy. Unger v. Mooney, 63 Cal. 586; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 100.

2. Jackson v. Given, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 137; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 328; Jackson v. Smith, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 406; Northrop v. Wright, 7 Hill (N. Y.), 476; Parker v. Proprietors, etc., 3 Metc. (Mass.) 91; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 121; Owens v. Myers, 20 Pa. St. 134; s. c., 57 Am. Dec. 693; Bannon v. Brandon, 34 Pa. St. 263; Brandon v. Bannon, 38 Pa. St. 63; Lodge v. Patterson, 3 Watts (Pa.), 74; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 385; Coperton v. Gregory, 11 Gratt. (Va.) 505; Ridgeway v. Holliday, 59 Mo. 444; Cannon v. Stockton, 36 Cal. 535; Hayes v. Martin, 45 Cal. 559; Chapin v. Hunt, 40 Mich. 595; Blight v. Rochester, 7 Wheat. (U. S.) 535.

But an offer to purchase from the true owner is a recognition of his title, and

32. May not hold adversely to All.—He may acknowledge that he does not hold adversely as regards a certain person, and his admission will not estop him to hold adversely as to others.<sup>1</sup>

33. Color of Title is that which in appearance is title, but which in reality is no title.<sup>2</sup> Where a person is said to have color of title, the phrase implies that some act has been done or some event has occurred by which some title, good or bad, has been conveyed to him. One who thus enters holds to the boundaries described in the deed, writing, or agreement upon which his claim is based.<sup>3</sup> will break the possession. Lovell v. Frost, 44 Cal. 474, and cases cited ante.

1. Portis v. Hill, 14 Tex. 69; s. c., 65 Am. Dec. 99.

2. Wright v. Mattison, 18 How. (U. S.) 50.

3. Mylar v. Hughes, 60 Mo. 105; Ware v. Johnson, 55 Mo. 500; Chapman v. Templeton, 53 Mo. 463; Thompson v. Cragg, 24 Tex. 582; Brooks v. Bruyn, 35 Ill. 394; Coleman v. Billings, 89 Ill. 183; McEvoy v. Lloyd, 31 Wis. 143; Edgerton v. Bird, 6 Wis. 527; s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 473; Packard v. Moss, 8 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 818; Kile v. Tubbs, 23 Cal. 431; Bernal v. Gleim, 33 Cal. 676; Gordan v. Tweedy, 74 Ala. 232; Beverly v. Burke, 9 Ga. 440; s. c., 54 Am. Dec. 351; Field v. Boynton, 33 Ga. 239; Janio v. Patterson, 62 Ga. 527; Veal v. Robinson, 70 Ga. 809; Welborn v. Anderson, 37 Miss. 155; Chiles v. Conley, 9 Dana (Ky.), 385; Alston v. Collins, 2 Speers (S. Car.) 450; Eibert v. Reid, 1 N. & McC. (S. Car.) 374; Bank v. Smyers, 2 Strob. (S. Car.) 24; Johnson v. McMillan, 1 Strob. (S. Car.) 143; Golson v. Hook, 4 Strob. (S. Car.) 23; Senior v. South, 10 Ired. (S. Car.) 237; Bynum v. Thompson, 3 Ired. (N. Car.) 578; Cline v. Catron, 22 Gratt. (Va.) 378; Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 430; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Stevens v. Hollister, 18 Vt. 294; s. c., 46 Am. Dec. 154; Ralph v. Bagley, 11 Vt. 521; Hubbard v. Austin, 11 Vt. 129; Waldron v. Tuttle, 4 N. H. 371; Sparhawk v. Bullard, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 95; Poignard v. Smith, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 272; Jackson v. Oltz, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 440; Simpson v. Downing, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 316; Jackson v. Frost, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 346; Jackson v. Vermilyea, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 677; La Frombois v. Jackson, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 589; s. c., 18 Am. Dec. 463; Craig v. Goodman, 22 N. Y. 170; Munro v. Merchant, 28 N. Y. 9; Saxton v. Hunt, 20 N. J. L. 487; Waggoner v. Hastings, 5 Pa. St. 300; Nearhoff v. Addleman, 31 Pa. St. 279; Allen v. Grove, 18 Pa. St. 377; Hollingshead v. Naumon, 45 Pa. St.

140; Ege v. Medlar, 82 Pa. St. 86; Cheney v. Ringold, 2 H. & J. (Md.) 87; Baker v. Swan, 32 Md. 355.

"Color of title is anything in writing purporting to convey title to the land, which defines the extent of the claim, it being immaterial how defective or imperfect the writing may be, so that it is a sign, semblance, or color of title." Veal v. Robinson, 70 Ga. 809.

To constitute color of title one must have a paper title. A claim of title may exist wholly by parol. Hamilton v. Wright, 30 Iowa, 486; Provost v. Johnson, 9 Mart. (La.) 123.

Any instrument having a grantor and grantee, and containing a description of the lands intended to be conveyed, and apt words for their conveyance, gives color of title to the lands described. Such an instrument purports to be a conveyance of the title; and because it does not, for some reason, have that effect, it passes only color or semblance of a title. It makes no difference whether the instrument fails to pass an absolute title, because the grantor had none to convey, or had no authority in law or in fact to convey one, or whether such want of authority appears on the face of the instrument or aliunde. The instrument fails to pass an absolute title for the reason that the grantor was not possessed of some one or more of these requisites, and therefore it gives the semblance or color only of what its effect would be if they were not wanting. Brooks v. Bruyn, 35 Ill. 394.

A deed purporting to be executed by virtue of a power of attorney from the owner of the land, which power is not proved, affords sufficient color of title on which to found an adverse possession, if there has been a good constructive occupation under it. Munro v. Merchant, 28 N. Y. 9.

A sale under execution will not give color of title unless a deed is executed. Baird v. Evans, 58 Ga. 350.

Whenever an instrument by apt words

34. Good Faith.—The claim must be made in good faith, but by this it must not be understood that the inquiry as to good faith in claiming title involves an inquiry into one's belief in the strength of transfer, in form passes what purports to be the title, it gives color of title. Hall v. Law, 102 U. S. 461. The description is sufficient if the land can be identified. Henley v. Wilson, 81 N. Car. 405. See Lynde v. Williams, 68 Mo. 360; Jackson v. Frost, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 546; Coleman v. Billings, 89 Ill. 183.

What constitutes color of title is a question of law for the court. The question of occupancy under it is one of fact for the jury. Packard v. Moss, 8 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 818.

The character of the possession of one who claims to have held land adversely under color of title is to be referred to and determined by the conveyance under which he entered; and one who entered and obtained possession under one deed cannot be heard to say that he entered under another and paramount title unless he has done something tantamount to a re-entry. Watts v. Owens, 62 Wis. 512.

What constitutes Color of Title.—A bequest of land under a will. Henley v. Wilson, 81 N. Car. 405. See Green v. Mizelle, 54 Miss. 220. Although the will is that only of a life tenant. Evans v. Satterfield, 1 Murph. (N. Car.) 413. See Teabout v. Daniels, 38 Iowa, 158. Compare Callender v. Sherman, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) 711. A paper purporting to be a will, and proved many years before. McConnell v. McConnell, 64 N. Car. 342.

A testator by will dated 1824 devised all his estates and all other his estates of which he might be possessed at the time of his death to his wife for life, with remainder over. He purchased a freehold estate after the date of his will. After his death his widow entered into possession of all of the estates of which he died possessed, believing she was entitled so to do under the will; and she continued in possession more than twenty years. Held, that she had acquired title by adverse possession. Paine v. Jones, L. R. 18 Eq. 320.

Title by descent. King v. Rowan, 10 Heisk. (Tenn.) 675.

A deed from one in possession of land, under color of title, though the deed is not recorded. Bellows v. Jewell, 60 N. H. 420. See infra.

Where a defendant in an execution denies the validity of the sale of land thereunder and subsequently enters on and holds the premises adversely, the patent and deeds under which he held before the sale are sufficient to give color of title in aid of such adverse possession. Gaines v. Saunders, 87 Mo. 557.

A prescriptive title, by virtue of adverse possession under color of title for seven years will prevail against the lien of a judgment against the vendor of such claimant rendered before the prescription began, but with no levy on the property until after the prescriptive title had ripened. Johnson v. Neal, 67 Ga. 528.

An invalid or void bond for title. Bell v. Coats, 56 Miss. 776. See Stamper v. Griffin, 20 Ga. 312; Griffin v. Stamper, 17 Ga. 108.

An ancient deed accompanied with possession is evidence of color of title without proof of its execution. Davis v. Higgins, 91 N. Car. 382. See Nowlin v. Reynolds, 25 Gratt. (Va.) 137.

A mortgagee's deed. Stevens v. Brooks, 24 Wis. 326. Also a quitclaim deed which conveys no interest. McCarney v. Higdon, 50 Ga. 629; Minot v. Brooks, 16 N. H. 374.

A deed without a seal. Barger v. Hobbs, 67 Ill. 592. See Pillow v. Roberts, 13 How. (U. S.) 472.

An administrator's sale, under power, if a deed is executed. Livingston v. Pendergast, 34 N. H. 544. Or if made without due authority of law, if all the parties to it supposed it was authorized. Crispen v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536.

Or a guardian's deed, although the decree of sale is void. Molton v. Henderson, 62 Ala. 426.

The heirs of a party who held under claim of title. Teabout v. Daniels, 38 Iowa, 158.

A deed by the husband of a life tenant given after her death. Forest v. Jackson, 56 N. H. 357.

A void decree of court. Huls v. Buntin, 47 Ill. 396; Whiteside v. Singleton, Meigs (Tenn.), 207. Compare Melia v. Simmons, 45 Wis. 334.

A void patent for land. Logan v. Jelks, 34 Ark. 547. Or certificate. Hannibal, etc., v. Clark, 68 Mo. 371.

A deed made by an assumed agent in his own name. Payne v. Blackshear, 52 Ga. 637.

A deed conveying a life estate is color of title, and, when accompanied by adverse possession for the required time, will ripen into a good title to the life estate so granted. Staton v. Mullis, 92 N. Car. 623.

of his title, or that he had any title. It is good faith in claiming possession and title, i.e., a real intention to claim the possession as his own, distinct from, and hostile to, the title of the true owner.

A deed given under a special act of the legislature, which act is held unconstitutional and void. Fagan v. Rosier, 68 Ill. 84.

A claim based upon condemnation of land, although the proceedings are declared void. Mississippi, etc., R. Co. v. Devaney, 42 Miss. 555.

A record of sale kept by a sheriff. Field v. Boynton, 33 Ga. 239.

If a husband, seized as tenant by courtesy, give a deed in fee, and the grantee enter and continue in possession, claiming to own the whole estate absolutely, such possession will be regarded as adverse to the wife, and those claiming under her, from the period of the husband's death. Constantine v. Van Winkle, 6 Hill (N. Y.), 177. See Mellus v. Snowman, 21 Me. 201; Bruce v. Wood, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 542; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 380; Miller v. Schackleford, 3 Dana (Ky.), 289; Meraman v. Caldwell, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 32.

What does not constitute Color of Title.

—The record of a survey does not of itself constitute color of title. Atkinson v. Patterson, 46 Vt. 750.

An executory contract does not constitute color of title. Rigor v. Frye, 62 Ill. 507. See EXECUTORY CONTRACT, ante, p. 229.

The assignment of homestead does not pass title. Keener v. Goodson, 89 N. Car. 275; Littlejohn v. Egerton, 77 N. Car. 379; Gheen v. Summey, 80 N. Car. 187; Grant v. Edwards, 86 N. Car. 468.

A void judgment of the court. Melia v. Simmons, 45 Wis. 334. Compare Huls v. Buntin, 47 Ill. 396; Whiteside v. Singleton, Meigs (Tenn.), 207.

A tax certificate. McKeighan v. Hopkins, 14 Neb. 361; Bride v. Watt, 23 Ill. 507.

An invalid tax lease. Bensel v. Gray, 6 J. & S. (N. Y.) 447.

A deed signed by one as "agent." Simmons v. Lane, 25 Ga. 178.

A sale of the life estate, as against the reversioner. Dewey v. McLain, 7 Kan. 1262; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 418; Jackson v. Schoonmaker, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 390; Hall v. Vandergrift, 3 Binn. (Pa.) 374. See LIFE ESTATE, infra.

An instrument in which the grantor admits title in another, will not give color of title. Simmons v. Lane, 25 Ga. 178.

A deed which does not contain the description of the land. Humphries v. Hoffman, 33 Ohio St. 395.

Although a pre-emption claim might be, in the language of the act, such "evidence or right to land, recognized by the laws of this government," as would maintain trespass to try title, yet, until perfected, it is neither such title nor color of title as can support limitation. Burford v. Bostwick, 58 Tex. 63; Clark v. Smith, 59 Tex. 275.

One who has color of title of land, subject to a judgment lien, holds adversely to the judgment creditor. Sanders v. McAfee, 42 Ga. 250.

Proceedings in administering, settling, and assigning the estate of a person who, though represented to have deceased, was and still is alive, are absolutely void for all purposes; and an entry and continuous occupation under claim of title, exclusive of any other right, founded upon the judgment of the county court in such a case, would not bar an action to recover the land. Melia v. Simmons, 45 Wis. 334.

A deed by one to land which is in the adverse possession of another is void as against such adverse claimant. When by written agreement between opposing counsel, it is admitted that "the defendant was in the actual possession of the land sued for, claiming the same adversely to the plaintiff and all others," this court cannot infer that the defendant was a trespasser. B. makes a deed to land to D., while N. is in adverse possession thereof. Held, that the deed is only void as to N., and as against him the title still remains in B., who may sue for and recover the land; that such recovery will inure to the benefit of D., as the deed from B. to D. is valid as between them. Nelson v. Brush, S. C. Fla., June 17, 1886.

A and B, as administrators of C, entered into a written agreement to partition lands held in common. B had not obtained an order of court. Held, that A had color of title. Shiels v. Lamar, 58 Ga. 590.

Where the parties to a deed undertook by verbal contract to rescind the deed, and the grantor thereafter remained in the actual possession of a part of the land, claiming title under the rescission, held, that he was in under color of title, and that his possession extended to the

If that was not his real intention, there is an absence of an indispensable element of adverse possession. Fraud is not to be presumed; its existence must be proved.<sup>1</sup> whole tract described in the deed. Hughes v. Israel, 73 Mo. 538.

35. Under Parol Agreement.—A parol agreement may constitute a sufficient color of title.<sup>2</sup>

When Possession is Tortious.—Where possession under a color of title has been adjudicated to be a trespass, subsequent possession will be tortious. Presley v. Holmes, 33 Tex. 476.

1. Dothard v. Denson, 72 Ala. 541; Stubblefield v. Borders, 92 Ill. 279; Smith v. Ferguson, 91 Ill. 304; Russell v. Mandell, 73 Ill. 136; Hardin v. Gouverneur, 69 Ill. 140; Brooks v. Bruyn, 35 Ill. 394; Read v. Howe, 49 Iowa, 65; Brown v. King, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 173; Crispen v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536; McMullin v. Erwin, 58 Ga. 427; Newton v. Mayo, 62 Ga. 11; Magee v. Magee, 37 Miss. 138; Robertson v. Wood, 15 Tex. 1; s. c., 65 Am. Dec. 140; Walbrunn v. Ballen, 68 Mo. 164; Texas Land Co. v. Williams, 51 Tex. 51.

A bona-fide occupant or possessor has been defined to be "one who not only honestly supposes himself to be vested with the true title, but is ignorant that the title is contested by any other person claiming a superior right to it." Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. (U. S.) 1; Cole v. Johnson, 53 Miss. 94; Gordon v. Tweedy, 74 Ala. 233.

Active or constructive notice of irregularities does not necessarily impute bad faith to the party chargeable with notice. Davis v. Hall, 92 Ill. 85. Compare Bowman v. Wettig, 39 Ill. 416; Stubblefield v. Borders, 92 Ill. 279.

The words "good faith" in the statute must receive a practical common-sense construction. Winters v. Haines, 84 Ill. 585.

It does not imply or involve a belief on the part of the possessor in the strength or validity of his title. Dothard v. Benson, 72 Ala. 541.

Failure to record a deed which constitutes the color of title is not a presumption of bad faith. Rawson v. Fox, 55 Ill. 200.

Payment of taxes, while color of title remains in party acquiring it in bad faith avails nothing. Hardin v. Crate, 78 Ill. 533.

The assessment to a party and payment by him of taxes are evidence on the question of the good faith of another in entering upon land under color of title, in the light of other circumstances tending to show a disclaimer of title by the latter. Gaines v. Saunders, 87 Mo. 557.

The fact that a deed did not recite a consideration is not necessarily inconsistent with "intrinsic fairness and honesty," and it may constitute a link in a chain of title from and under the sovereignty of the soil. Such a bond may constitute such "color of title" as would sustain the defence, by one in possession of the land, under the statute. Downs v. Porter, 54 Tex. 59.

If the grantee knew that the grantor was a mere squatter, his conveyance will afford him no color of title. McCarney v. Higdon, 50 Ga. 629. Or if he knew that the grantor had no title to convey, or if he obtained the deed by fraud. Saxton v. Hunt, 20 N. J. L. 487. Compare Cornelius v. Giberson, 25 N. J. L. 1.

What is good faith in a party claiming under color of title is a question for the jury. Wright v. Mattison, 18 How. (U. S.) 50. See, generally, Hardin v. Crate, 78 Ill. 533; Smith v. Ferguson, 91 Ill. 304; Russell v. Mandell, 73 Ill. 136; McConnell v. Street, 17 Ill. 253; McCagg v. Heacock, 34 Ill. 476; Hodgden v. Henrichsen, 85 Ill. 259; Hardin v. Gouverneur, 69 Ill. 140; Paris v. Lewis, 85 Ill. 597; Rawson v. Fox, 55 Ill. 200; Milliken v. Martin, 66 Ill. 13; Gaines v. Saunders, 87 Mo. 557; Crispen v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536; Hanna v. Renfro, 32 Miss. 125; Wales v. Smith, 19 Ga. 8; Green v. Kellum, 23 Pa. St. 254; s. c., 62 Am. Dec. 332; Lea v. Polk Co., 21 How. (U. S.) 50.

2. In Niles v. Davis, 60 Miss. 750, the court said: "Though the complainant has no written deed or contract to support her claim to the property, she is in under a parol agreement, which is good as color of title." See Magee v. Magee, 37 Miss. 138; Gladney v. Barton, 51 Miss. 216; Davis v. Bowmar, 55 Miss. 671; Rannels v. Rannels, 52 Mo. 108; Green v. Kellum, 23 Pa. St. 254; s. c., 62 Am. Dec. 332; McClellan v. Kellogg, 17 Ill. 498, and cases cited; Baker v. Hale, 6 Baxt. (Tenn.) 46; Teabot v. Daniels, 38 Iowa, 158; McCall v. Neely, 3 Watts (Pa.), 69. Compare Osterman v. Baldwin, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 116; Hamilton v. Wright, 30 Iowa, 480; Cook v. Long, 27 Ga. 280.

36. Gift.—Possession of land by a donee, under a mere parol gift, accompanied with a claim of right, is an adverse holding as against the donor, which, if continued without interruption, is protected by the statute of limitations, and matures into a good title. That such a parol gift conveys no title, and only operates as a mere tenancy at will, capable of revocation or disaffirmance by the donor at any time before the bar is complete, is immaterial; it is evidence of the beginning of an adverse possession by the donee, which can only be repelled by showing a subsequent recognition of the donor's superior title.<sup>1</sup>

In Rannels v. Rannels, 52 Mo. 108, the court held that where a man made a verbal gift of a defined tract of land to his sister, had it surveyed for her, and put her in the possession under this survey and the descriptions in his own deed, she was in possession of the whole tract under color of title. In Bell v. Longworth, 6 Ind. 273, the court, while denying the right of a mere intruder to extend his possession beyond the limits of his inclosure, use this language: "But when a party is in possession, pursuant to a state of facts which of themselves show the character and extent of his entry and claim, the case is entirely different; and such facts, whatever they may be in a given case, perform sufficiently the office of color of title. They evidence the character of the entry and the extent of the claim, and no color of title does more." See Van Cleave v. Milliken, 13 Ind. 105.

Where the parties to a deed undertook by verbal contract to rescind the deed, and the grantor thereafter remained in the actual possession of a part of the land, claiming title under the rescission, held, that he was in under color of title, and that his possession extended to the whole tract described in the deed. Hughes v. Israel, 73 Mo. 538.

A parol vendee of land may, as against the vendor, acquire by adverse possession, a title coextensive with the boundaries of the land, though the vendee's actual possession extend to only a part of the tract. And after such possession has ripened into a perfect title, the vendee may assert and maintain his title by a bill to enjoin a sale under an execution issued upon a judgment against the vendor, even though the judgment may have been rendered and become a lien before such title became perfect. Niles v. Davis, 60 Miss. 750.

Proof of a verbal sale of the interest of one of the heirs to an estate to another of the heirs, followed by twenty years' adverse possession in such other heir, held to create a sufficient title in the latter. Hyne v. Osborn, 28 N. W. Repr. (Mich.) 81.

Where both parties to an oral agreement to exchange lands have taken possession thereunder, the possession of each is adverse to the title of the other. Bartlett v. Secor, 56 Wis. 520. Compare Adams v. Fullam, 47 Vt. 558.

In the absence of a written instrument to define the limits of the adverse claim, there must be some visible acts, signs, or indications which are apparent to all, showing the extent of the boundaries of the land claimed to amount to color of title. Cooper v. Ord, 60 Mo. 420.

If two adjacent or coterminous proprietors agree upon and establish a dividing line between their premises, and actually claim and occupy the land on each side of that line continuously for twenty years, such possession will be adverse and confer a title by prescription. Bader v. Zeise, 44 Wis. 96; Tobey v. Secor, 60 Wis. 310; Donohue v. Thompson, 60 Wis. 500.

1. Vandiveer v. Stickney, 75 Ala. 225; Potts v. Coleman, 67 Ala. 221; Collins v. Johnson, 57 Ala. 304; Graham v. Craig, 81* Pa. St. 465; Sumner v. Stevens, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 337; Ashley v. Ashley, 4 Gray (Mass.), 197; Clark v. Gilbert, 39 Conn. 94; Bartlett v. Secor, 56 Wis. 520. See Hawkins v. Hudson, 45 Ala. 482. Compare Rannels v. Rannels, 52 Mo. 112, as to a gift affording color of title.

A deed of gift made by a parent to his children and their heirs, for the consideration of natural love and affection, contained a warranty of title, but a reservation in the following language: "Hereby expressly reserving to myself the right to manage and control said land and premises, and have, enjoy, and dispose of the occupancy, rents, and profits of said lands and premises for and during my natural life." Held, that the deed conveyed to the heirs an estate in remainder, to take effect on the death of the grantor, in whom the deed preserved a life estate.

37. Under Mistake.—Land which is held in good faith under a mistake as to descriptions or informality in the execution of the

The possession of such land by the grantees during the life of the father must be regarded as in harmony with the deed, and will be presumed to be the possession of the grantor, and no limitation will run in their favor. Bombarger v. Morrow, 61 Tex. 417.

In order to clothe children with a possessory right to land, under the statute of limitations, into the possession of which they had been put by their parent, it must be shown that there was an actual gift, and a continuous adverse holding for the required period without break or recognition of the parent's title, and there can be no adverse holding under a father's will which only takes effect at his death. Jordan v. Maney, 10 Lea (Tenn.), 135.

Several parties signed an agreement to form a joint-stock company to build a public hall, and a parol gift of land having been made to them for the purpose, they took possession thereof, and commenced building. Afterward, a corporation was formed, in pursuance of the agreement, to which the possession was transferred. In an action of ejectment by the corporation, in which it appeared that there had been a continuous adverse possession by the parties signing the written agreement and the corporation, for more than five years before the ouster held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover. Bakersfield, etc., Assoc. v. Chester, 55 Cal. 98.

The defendant showed that he had entered into possession in 1854 under an alleged parol gift from C, who was his father, who was then unembarrassed and had remained in uninterrupted possession for more than twenty-one years from his father's death. The court directed a verdict for plaintiff on the ground that the evidence of defendant was insufficient to take the case out of the statute of frauds. Held, that this was error; that even though the evidence of the parol gift was insufficient to establish a good title, the evidence of adverse possession should have carried the case to the jury. Campbell v. Broden, 96 Pa. St. 388.

A daughter, under a parol gift of her father, entered into possession of a tract of land in 1856, and continued to occupy the same ever since. Prior to the death of her husband, in 1862 or 1863, the taxes were paid in his name, and after that in her own name, during all which time her nephew, the only other heir, treated the land as belonging to her, and never claimed any interest therein, and when going into bankruptcy did not schedule any interest in the same. Held, that not only the nephew was estopped from claiming any interest in the land, but that a purchaser of his assignee was equally concluded, and barred of any right of entry. Stewart v. Duffy, 116 Ill. 47.

A mortgage of the land by the donor to a stranger, during adverse possession by the donee, is void, although the donee may know that his title is defective, and the mortgagee has no actual notice of the adverse holding.

The fact that the mortgagor was, in such case, in the temporary occupancy of a portion of the land, at the time of the execution of the mortgage, is immaterial, if he entered after the commencement of the donee's adverse possession, and holds as a mere tenant of the latter, fully recognizing his title as landlord and owner. Vandiveer v. Stickney, 75 Ala. 225.

A father moved away, leaving a son in possession, who always asserted his title, saying his father gave him the farm. Held, that his possession was adverse to the other heirs of the father. Jackson v. Whitbeck, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 632.

When a son enters into the possession of lands, under a parol gift from his father, he is a mere tenant at will; and his possession, however long continued, does not become adverse, until asserted so openly and notoriously as to raise the presumption of notice to his father; and if, after the death of his father, he joins with the other administrators in obtaining an order for the sale of the lands, and becomes himself the purchaser at the sale, this is a distinct recognition of the father's title, and his subsequent possession is held in subordination to it as purchaser. Boykin v. Smith, 65 Ala. 204.

Advancement by Parol.—When a father puts his son in possession of land, intending it as a gift or advancement, the intention resting only in parol, a mere tenancy at will is created; and such possession cannot become adverse, except by a dissolution of the tenancy, and an open, clear, positive, continuous disavowal of the title of the father, and the assertion of a hostile title which is brought to his knowledge. Potts v. Coleman, 67 Ala. 221.

deed will be held adversely, and a title will be acquired by limitation.<sup>1</sup> (See also BOUNDARIES, infra.)

1. French v. Pearce, 8 Conn. 430; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 680; Walbrun v. Batten, 68 Mo. 164. Compare Dow v. McKenney, 64 Me. 138.

"The rule may be said to be, according to the decided cases, that if a person enters upon land under color of title, and takes possession of lands not embraced therein, with the intention of possessing the whole, he is treated as being in possession of the whole; but if he enters upon a certain part, with the intention of possessing such part only, his possession is confined to that part." Wood on Lim. § 263; citing Bodley v. Coghill, 3 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 615; Mode v. Loud, 64 N. Car. 433; Schneider v. Batsch, 90 Ill. 577; Smith v. Morrow, 5 Litt. (Ky.) 210; McKinney v. Kenney, 1 A. K. Marsh (Ky.), 460.

Where one enters upon land not covered by his title through mistake, he only acquires possession of what he actually occupies. Napier v. Simpson, 1 Tenn. 453.

Where one by mistake takes possession of a lot adjoining the one that he received a deed for, held, that such possession ripened into a title, though it appeared that there was a mistake, either in the deed or in taking of possession. Ricker v. Hubbard, 73 Me. 105.

A is the owner of the west half of a certain section of land, and B is the owner of the east half of the same section. B has been in possession of a part of the west half for more than ten years (the period necessary to establish a title by adverse possession), claiming title thereto in the belief that it was in the east half, and not intending to claim any part of the west half, but recognizing A's title to all of that half. Held, that the possession of a part of the west half by B has been adverse, and vests him with the title to that part as against A, though he has claimed it in the mistaken belief that it was in the east half, and embraced within the calls of his deed thereto. Metcalfe v. McCutchen, 60 Miss. 145. Compare Grube v. Welles, 34 Iowa, 148; Napier v. Simpson, 1 Tenn. 453.

A mistake in the description in a deed does not prevent the grantee from acquiring title to the land intended to be conveyed. Bean v. Bachelder, 74 Me. 202.

J., owning a lot of land on the south side of Green Street, in P., with a frontage of one hundred and twenty-six feet, conveyed a piece thereof with a frontage of sixty feet to the defendant, the latter supposing that by the terms of his deed his lot extended to a certain fence which would give him a frontage of sixty-six feet. Soon after the delivery of his deed, the defendant entered, occupied, and cultivated the lot to the fence for more than twenty consecutive years. Held, that if the defendant claimed title to the fence during his entire occupation, his title ripened into an absolute title by disseisin, although he was mistaken as to the true bound. Hitchings v. Morrison, 72 Me. 331.

Where there is a defective or erroneous description of land sold at sheriff's sale, and possession is taken and held for ten years thereunder, the title of the purchaser will be protected by the statute of limitations. Souder v. Jeffreys, 8 N. East. Repr. 288.

A conveyance of land in which A. (then about fifteen years old) was named as grantee was taken by his father, C, who paid for the land, had the deed recorded, and thereafter retained possession of the instrument until his death, twenty-four years later. The son did not know of the existence of a deed in which he was named as grantee until after his father's death. Upon evidence tending strongly to show that the father claimed that there was a mistake in the deed, in that he should have been named as grantee instead of his son; that he attempted to correct the mistake after the deed was recorded; that he took possession of the land, paid the taxes, exercised many acts of ownership, claimed the land as his property, contracted to sell it, and finally conveyed it in his own name after having had possession more than twenty years, held to have been a question for the jury whether the original conveyance was intended by the parties thereto to run to the son, and, if so, whether it was delivered to and accepted by the father for the benefit of the son. Such evidence was sufficient to overcome the presumption from the record that the deed was duly delivered to the grantee named. Cross v. Barnett, 65 Wis. 431.

Where the owner of a city lot undertakes to erect a building upon his own ground, but by inadvertence and ignorance of the true line of his lot, places a portion of the wall four inches over the dividing line and upon the adjoining lot, but with no intention then or afterward to claim any portion of such adjoining

38. Lost Deed.—A deed executed and delivered, but subsequently lost, gives color of title; and actual possession of part of a lot, claiming possession of the whole under such lost deed, is equal to actual possession of the entire lot without color of title to any part of it.<sup>1</sup>

Deed not recorded.—An unrecorded deed will constitute color of title.<sup>2</sup>

lot as his own, and the adjoining lot-owner had no knowledge of such encroachment, the possession thus taken will not be adverse. Winn v. Abeles, 35 Kan. 85.

Where one enters under color of title, but by mistake locates upon land not included in the boundaries described in his deed, he will not have the benefit of constructive possession. Napier v. Simpson, 1 Tenn. 453. But will acquire seisin only by actual occupation. Holton v. Whitney, 30 Vt. 410; St. Louis University v. McCune, 28 Mo. 481.

Where the occupation is by mistake or ignorance it will not be adverse. Thomas v. Babb, 45 Mo. 384.

A, holding a conveyance from B, by mistake entered upon another tract belonging to B. Held, that A's possession is in subordination to B, and not adverse. Farish v. Coon, 40 Cal. 33.

Where a deed by mistake misdescribes the land, and the vendor afterwards corrects by executing a new deed, color of title will run from date of last deed. Weaver v. Wilson, 48 Ill. 125.

Mere occupation by inadvertence or mistake without any intention to claim title may not be a disseisin, as where a fence is erroneously erected not on the dividing line. Abbott v. Abbott, 51 Me. 575. See BOUNDARIES AND FENCES, ante, p. 248.

In St. Louis University v. McCune, 28 Mo. 481, an alleged encroachment beyond the boundary line was under consideration, and the court held that if the party erected an improvement accidentally upon the land of another through mistake or ignorance of the correct line dividing the tracts, and without intending to claim beyond the true line, the occupation thus taken and the possession which followed did not work a disseisin.

In Hitchings v. Morrison, 72 Me. 331, a case where a party claimed title to a strip upon an adjoining lot upon the basis of adverse possession, it was held that if the occupation was not accompanied by a claim of title in fact, but was merely inadvertence or mistake as to the extent of his line, without intention to claim title to the extent of his occupation, but only to the bounds described in his deed, then it was not adverse and would not give title.

In Howard v. Reedy, 29 Ga. 152; s. c., 74 Am. Dec. 58, it was held that a possession originating in and continuing under a mistake or misapprehension as to the true lines dividing two lots of land, will not ripen into statutory title. See Ricker v. Hibbard, 73 Me. 105; Brown v. Cockerall, 33 Ala. 38; Enfield v. Day, 7 N. H. 459; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 360; Riley v. Griffin, 16 Ga. 141; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 726; Brown v. Gray, 3 Greenl. (Me.) 126; Walbrunn v. Ballen, 68 Mo. 164.

If the disseisor really believes that the land belongs to him, the fact that he is mistaken in his claim will not prevent his holding being adverse. Faught v. Holway, 50 Me. 24; Russell v. Maloney, 39 Vt. 583; Johnson v. Gorham, 38 Conn. 521; Robinson v. Phillips, 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 418; 56 N. Y. 634. See BOUNDARIES AND FENCES, ante, p. 248.

1. Harbison v. School Dist., 4 Westn. Repr. (Mo.) 705.

2. Bellows v. Jewell, 60 N. H. 420; Minot v. Brooks, 16 N. H. 374; Chastain v. Phillips, 11 Ired. (N. Car.) 225; Hardin v. Barrett, 6 Jones (N. Car.) 159; Krow v. Hinson, 8 Jones (N. Car.) 347; Davis v. Higgins, 91 N. Car. 382; Rawson v. Fox, 65 Ill. 200; Dickinson v. Bruden, 30 Ill. 279; Lea v. Polk Co. Copper Co., 21 How. (U. S.) 493.

Where possession has been had under a valid but unrecorded paper title for upwards of 20 years, it will be established thereby as against a title derived from a subsequent conveyance recorded first, and the latter will be removed as a cloud upon the former. Jaques v. Lester, 8 N. Eastn. Repr. 795.

The statute does not begin to run in favor of the holder of a tax deed by merely recording it. Baldwin v. Merriam, 16 Neb. 199.

The recording of a tax deed of the land, even if other lands were included in the same deed, would be sufficient claim of title to warrant the bringing of ejectment against the grantee named in such tax deed, unless he notified the person holding the original title of his dis-

Tax Deed.—A tax deed which purports to convey the title of real estate to the grantee constitutes color of title, although it may be void.<sup>1</sup>

Payment of Taxes.—Payment of taxes is not evidence of adverse possession;<sup>2</sup> but in Illinois and California it is a necessary to perfect title.<sup>3</sup>

claimers of any interest in the land before suit brought, and took the necessary steps to disaffirm the apparent claim of title that a recorded deed asserts. Hoyt v. Southard, 58 Mich. 432.

1. Stubblefield v. Borders, 92 Ill. 284; Coleman v. Billings, 89 Ill. 190; Hardin v. Crate, 60 Ill. 215; Woodward v. Blanchard, 16 Ill. 433; Edgerton v. Bird, 6 Wis. 527; s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 473; Gettling v. Lane, 17 Neb. 77, 80; Haywood v. Thomas, 17 Neb. 237; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Allfree, 64 Iowa, 500; Colvin v. McCune, 39 Iowa, 502; Hamilton v. Wright, 30 Iowa, 490; Pugh v. Youngblood, 69 Ala. 296; Dillingham v. Brown, 38 Ala. 311; Hanna v. Renfro, 32 Miss. 128; Hall v. Law, 102 U. S. 461. Compare Waterson v. Devoe, 18 Kan. 223; Hall v. Dodge, 18 Kan. 277.

Defendant took possession of the land in question under a tax deed, void because the land belonged to the United States, and was not subject to taxation. Plaintiff afterwards procured title from the United States. But defendant continued in uninterrupted possession, under his tax deed, for more than ten years after plaintiff procured his title. Held, that, although defendant's color of title began while the government yet owned the land, yet, as possession thereunder was continued for more than ten years after plaintiff acquired his title, plaintiff's right of action to recover the land was barred by the statute of limitations, though the statute would not have run against the government had the title remained in it. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Allfree, 64 Iowa, 500.

It appeared that the tax deed under which defendant claimed was void on its face, and that the land had never been actually occupied by any one. Held, that the statute was no bar. Shoat v. Walker, 6 Kan. 65.

When the purchaser of lands sold for taxes has continued in the open and continuous possession thereof, claiming title, for the period of five years from the execution of the deed of the judge of probate, the statute cuts off all inquiry as to the regularity of the sale, and operates a bar to an action brought for the recovery of the land, whatever may be the recitals of the deed, or however erroneous they may be, or whatever may have been the irregularities attending the sale. Pugh v. Youngblood, 69 Ala. 296.

The use and occupation of the land by the true owner for any portion of the statutory period will bar the title of the holder of a tax deed. Wilson v. Henry, 35 Wis. 241.

A tax deed made under a sale of swamp land, which was exempt from taxation, as belonging to a county, as well as the deed from such purchaser, constitutes color of title under the limitation act of 1839. County of Platt v. Goodell, 97 Ill. 84.

A survey of six hundred acres of unimproved land was patented to A, B, C, and D, in the proportion of 200, 100, 100, and 200 acres, respectively, to be held by them as tenants in common. Subsequently B's share was sold at a tax sale, described as 100 acres, part of said survey, taxed in the name of B, but without any further description. Held, that such tax sale was void for want of description; that one who holds such a tax title cannot survey off to himself the quantity called for in his certificate out of the large tract, and, by an entry thereon, and actual possession and improvement of part only, claim to hold, by constructive possession, to the boundaries of his survey. Humphreys v. Huffman, 33 Ohio St. 395.

2. Sioux City, etc., Land Co. v. Wilson, 50 Iowa, 422; Raymond v. Morrison, 59 Iowa, 371.

A claim under a tax title is necessarily hostile to the owner of the original title. Sparrow v. Hovey, 44 Mich. 63.

3. Dryden v. Newman, 4 N. E. Repr. 768; Cooter v. Dearborn, 4 N. E. Repr. (Ill.) 388; Holbrook v. Gouveneur, 3 N. East'n Repr. (Ill.) 220; McNoble v. Justiniano, 11 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 742; Ross v. Evans, 4 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 443.

Where the record shows that both parties in an action of ejectment have paid the taxes on the land in suit for seven years prior to the suit, without showing which paid first, a defence is not made out under the limitation law of 1839. The burden of proof is upon the defendant setting up the statute, to show that he paid such taxes before the plaintiff. The party paying first in any year is the one who has paid the taxes of that year. Bolden v. Sherman, 101 Ill. 483.

39. Invalid Conveyance or Title.—Whatever may be the source of the invalidity of a deed, if it purports to convey land, and in form passes what purports to be the title, it gives color of title.<sup>1</sup>

The plaintiff claimed under a patent from the State. More than five years elapsed between the issuing of the patent and the commencement of the action. The defendant pleaded the statute of limitations, and relied upon an adverse possession commencing before the patent issued. It appeared from the evidence that the plaintiff had paid the taxes upon the land. The court instructed the jury as to the proof required to make out an adverse possession, and that in addition to the fact of possession and its adverse character, it was necessary for the defendant to show that the taxes had been paid by him. The jury rendered a verdict in favor of defendant. Held, (1) that the statute could not commence to run until the issuing of the patent; (2) that the possession of the defendant, even if sufficient in other respects, was not adverse because of his failure to pay the taxes, the statute requiring it. O'Connor v. Fogle, 63 Cal. 9.

Where the last payment of taxes on unoccupied land is made some four months less than seven years from the first payment, but possession is not taken under color of title until after the statutory period has elapsed, held, a bar to ejectment by owner of the paramount title. Hurlbut v. Bradford, 110 Ill. 397.

Where a defendant in ejectment shows the payment of all taxes on the land, under color of title, for seven consecutive years while the land was vacant and unoccupied and he is found or shown to be in possession when the action was brought it will be presumed that his possession was under his color of title, especially when that fact was not disputed on the trial. Holbrook v. Gouveneur, 114 Ill. 623.

Where a party having color of title shows the payment of all taxes on the premises for seven successive years, by the production of his tax receipts, showing the date of each payment and the amount thereof, this makes out a prima-facie defence under the Limitation law of 1839, which must prevail unless the plaintiff shows that the taxes for some one of the seven years were paid before the defendant made his payment. The testimony of the plaintiff, that he, by himself or agent, paid the taxes upon the same land for each of the same years, but not giving the amount or date of any of his payments, will not rebut the defendant's prima-facie case and defeat the operation of the statute. In an action of ejectment for a strip of land, the defence being the payment of taxes for seven years under color of title, the defendant admitted that the plaintiff had paid the taxes for the same seven years, and undertook to overcome the force and effect of the admission by proving that he had also paid taxes for the same years, but failed to show whose payments for the several years were first made. Held, that the evidence was not sufficient to overcome the admission. Such admission was held to impliedly concede that the plaintiff's payments were first made, otherwise there could be no taxes for him to pay. Bolden v. Sherman, 110 Ill. 418.

The holder of claim and color of title to vacant and unoccupied land, paid the taxes thereon in November, 1839, and soon after died. The receipts for the taxes of 1840, 1842, and 1843 were in his name, instead of being in the name of the heir or heirs. Held, that these payments could not be presumed to have been made by the heirs, or in his name by some unknown person for them, and without other evidence could not be treated as payments by the owner of the color of title. Hurlbut v. Bradford, 110 Ill. 397.

A defendant in ejectment received a warranty deed for the land in 1859, and paid all taxes thereon for the years 1859 to 1878 inclusive, and the proof showed it was timber land and was never inclosed, but that he used it every year since the date of his deed as occasion required in procuring therefrom rails, firewood, posts, etc. Held, whether the land was in possession, or vacant and unoccupied, the bar of the statute was complete. Walcott v. Gibbs, 97 Ill. 118.

Ejectment will lie where defendants' claim of title consists in his having recorded a tax-deed which he has obtained on the premises, unless before suit brought he has notified the holder of the original title that he disclaims any interest and takes steps to disaffirm the apparent claim asserted by such record. Hoyt v. Southard, 58 Mich. 432.

1. Moulton v. Henderson, 62 Ala. 426;

It is not necessary that the claim of title should be good,

McCarny v. Higdon, 50 Ga. 629; Payne v. Blackshear, 52 Ga. 637; Moody v. Fleming, 4 Ga. 115; s. c., 48 Am. Dec. 210; Whiteside v. Singleton, Meigs (Tenn.) 207; Farrow v. Edmundson, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 605; s. c., 41 Am. Dec. 250; Adams v. Alkire, 20 W. Va. 480; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Shanks v. Lancaster, 5 Gratt. (Va.) 110; s. c., 50 Am. Dec. 108; Nowlin v. Reynolds, 25 Gratt. (Va.) 137; Hamilton v. Boggess, 63 Mo. 233; Cofer v. Brooks, 20 Ark. 542; Elliott v. Pearce, 20 Ark. 508; Dorr v. School Dist., 40 Ark. 237; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Allfree, 64 Iowa, 500; Close v. Samm, 27 Iowa, 503; Vancleave v. Wilkinson, 13 Ind. 105; Kruse v. Wilson, 79 Ill. 233; Russell v. Mandell, 73 Ill. 136; Mason v. Ayres, 73 Ill. 121; Fagan v. Rosier, 68 Ill. 84; Rigor v. Frye, 62 Ill. 507; Hinkley v. Green, 52 Ill. 223; Brooks v. Bruyn, 35 Ill. 394; Edgerton v. Bird, 6 Wis. 527; s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 473; La Frombois v. Jackson, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 589; s. c., 18 Am. Dec. 463; Munro v. Merchant, 28 N. Y. 9; Thompson v. Burhans, 79 N. Y. 93; Cornelius v. Giberson, 21 N. J. L. 1; Forest v. Jackson, 56 N. H. 357; Livingston v. Pendergast, 34 N. H. 544; Minot v. Brooks, 16 N. H. 374; Hall v. Law, 102 U. S. 461; Ewing v. Burnett, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 41; Roberts v. Pillow, 1 Humph. (U. S.) 624. Compare Hall v. Mooring, 27 La. Ann. 596; Simmons v. Lane, 25 Ga. 178; Field v. Boynton, 33 Ga. 239; Marsh v. Wier, 21 Tex. 97; Hines v. Robinson, 57 Me. 324; Moore v. Brown, 11 How. (U. S.) 424.

When a person enters upon unoccupied land, under a defective title, and holds adversely, if the true owner be at the same time in actual possession of part of the land, claiming title to the whole, he has the constructive possession of all the land not in the actual possession of the intruder. Hunnicutt v. Peyton, 102 U. S. 333; Bellis v. Bellis, 122 Mass. 414; Bradley v. West, 60 Mo. 33; Shultz v. Lindell, 30 Mo. 310; Ballard v. Perry, 28 Tex. 347; Davis v. Perley, 30 Cal. 630; Jakway v. Barrett, 38 Vt. 316.

A conveyance, though invalid, may operate as color of title, but it does not draw with it constructive possession, and does not, of itself, tend to prove adverse possession. Childress v. Calloway, 76 Ala. 130.

A tax deed void upon its face, or illegally issued, constitutes color of title. Colvin v. McCune, 39 Iowa, 502; McMillan

v. Wehle, 55 Wis. 685; Lindsay v. Fry, 25 Wis. 460; Elliott v. Pearce, 20 Ark. 508; Cofer v. Brooks, 20 Ark. 542; Pugh v. Youngblood, 69 Ala. 296; Rivers v. Thompson, 43 Ala. 633; Dillingham v. Brown, 38 Ala. 311; Haywood v. Thomas, 17 Neb. 237; Pillow v. Roberts, 13 How. (U. S.) 472; Cowley v. Monson, 5 Fed. Repr. 779.

Also a deed without a seal. Barger v. Hobbs, 67 Ill. 592.

A void mortgage foreclosure will give color of title. Mason v. Ayers, 73 Ill. 121; Hinkley v. Greene, 52 Ill. 223.

An invalid or informal sheriff's deed will give color of title. Beverly v. Burke, 9 Ga. 440; s. c., 54 Am. Dec. 351; Burkhalter v. Edwards, 16 Ga. 593; Hester v. Coats, 22 Ga. 56; Simmons v. Lane, 25 Ga. 178; Northrop v. Wright, 7 Hill (N. Y.) 476; North v. Hammer, 34 Wis. 425; Bailey v. Doolittle, 24 Ill. 577; Fritz v. Joiner, 54 Ill. 101; Riggs v. Dooley, 7 B. Mon. (Ky.) 236; Brien v. Sargent, 13 La. Ann. 108.

A void patent may be used to give color of title and fix the limits of possession. Logan v. Jelks, 34 Ark. 547; Sanford v. Cloud, 17 Fla. 557. See Charles v. Saffold, 13 Tex. 94; Wofford v. McKinna, 23 Tex. 36; s. c., 76 Am. Dec. 56.

A deed from one having no title to the land is color of title. Kennebec Purchase v. Laboree, 2 Me. 275; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 79. Contra, if the grantee knew that the grantor had no title to convey. Saxton v. Hunt, 20 N. J. L. 487.

A sale which is afterwards avoided by individual or judicial proceedings gives color of title. Hamilton v. Wright, 30 Iowa, 480. Compare Presley v. Holmes, 33 Tex. 476.

A deed under decree of a court of competent jurisdiction, though the decree is void, gives color of title. Huls v. Buntin, 47 Ill. 396.

A deed made by a clerk or master in equity, after he goes out of office, on a sale made by him while in office, is color of title, though not otherwise operative. Williams v. Council, 4 Jones (N. Car.), 206.

So is an agreement of partition by an administrator, although he acted without an order of court. McMullin v. Erwin, 58 Ga. 427.

An invalid sale under a trust deed gives color of title. Gebhard v. Sattler, 40 Iowa, 152.

The deed of an infant is color of title. Murry v. Shanklin, 4 D. & B. L. (N. Car.) 286.

or even believed to be good: it is enough if there be a real

In 1854 certain land belonging to C. was levied upon and sold to satisfy a judgment against him alone. In 1856, his wife executed a deed, in which he did not join, to one claiming under the sheriff's sale. In 1864 C. died, his wife surviving. Action by the latter, in 1884, against a remote grantee to recover one third of the land. Held, that while her deed was void, it was sufficient to convey color of title; that the plaintiff's cause of action to avoid the deed which gave color of title accrued when her grantee took possession under the deed in 1856, as there was then an adverse possession of all the land; also, that the defendant and his grantors having been in possession more than twenty years under color of title conferred by the plaintiff's deed, the action is barred by the statute of limitations, the plaintiff's disability of coverture not postponing the time when the statute began to run. Wright v. Kleyla, 104 Ind. 223. See Hunter v. O'Neal, 4 Baxt. (Tenn.) 494.

A conveyance of land which is at the time in the possession of a prior grantee, holding under an instrument which, though invalid as a conveyance, is color of title, is inoperative and void as against such adverse holder. Watson v. Mancill, 73 Ala. 600.

To avoid a deed to land executed by a party out of possession, on account of the adverse possession of a third party, it is not required that the possession of the latter should have been under a bona-fide claim of right to the premises, or under the honest belief that his title was good; it is sufficient if he claimed in independent right, adversely. Bernstein v. Humes, 75 Ala. 241.

A deed executed by husband and wife, purporting to convey the homestead, but without the necessary certificate of acknowledgment showing the wife's voluntary assent and signature, is totally inoperative and ineffectual as a conveyance of title; but, possession being delivered and held under it, it may constitute color of title, and be admissible to show the extent of the grantee's possession. Watson v. Mancill, 76 Ala. 600.

A deed of conveyance of land in fee executed by a married woman alone, without any privity examination, is an assurance of title purporting to convey an estate in fee which will perfect the title of an adverse holder of land. The disseisin occasioned by the possession of the grantee of such a deed would be a disseisin of the joint estate of husband and wife, and their joint right of action would be barred in seven years, and the title of the husband not only barred, but extinguished, and the heirs of the wife, if she died before the husband, would have only three years after her death and the extinguishment of the husband's right within which to bring suit for the recovery of the land. Hanks v. Folsom, 11 Lea (Tenn.), 555.

A feme covert died 1854, leaving a will, which was admitted to probate, but was not executed in due form to pass real estate, because the consent of her husband in writing was not annexed thereto, and also because it was not executed sixty days before her death. By said will she devised a farm to her husband for life, with remainder in fee to her nephew. Under it her husband entered into possession of the property, claiming title as tenant for life, and so continued in possession until 1868, when he united with the nephew in a sale and conveyance to J., who thereupon entered upon said property, and continued in possession up to 1882, when the heirs-at-law of the testatrix brought ejectment against him. Held, that the claim of title and possession of the husband as tenant for life under the will, being hostile to the title of the heirs-at-law, was as against them adverse and exclusive. That the purchaser from the husband and nephew having immediately taken and held possession under the conveyance to him, his possession was added or tacked to the possession of the husband, making a continuous adverse possession of more than twenty years, which by the statute of limitations was a flat bar to the right of the plaintiffs as heirs-at-law. Hanson v. Johnson, 62 Md. 25; s. c., 50 Am. Rep. 199. Compare Silva v. Wimpenny, 136 Mass. 253.

Where a deed had but one subscribing witness, the statute requiring two, held, that title might be gained by adverse possession. Lyles v. Kirkpatrick, 9 S. Car. 265.

The title to the lands was in a trustee for a lunatic. One claiming to be guardian of the lunatic, but acting under a void appointment, obtained an order of the probate court for the sale of the lands, and sold and conveyed them. The purchaser, and those claiming under him, had had possession of the lands under claim of right and of ownership, for a length of time sufficient to bar the right bona-fide purpose to assert and rely on it, as hostile to the true owner.<sup>1</sup>

40. Interference of Title.—Where there is an interference between titles, if one of the adverse claimants is in possession of land within the boundaries of his deed or grant, but not on any part of the interlap, the statute does not begin to run against him. But the moment he occupies the land included in the other's grant, and holds possession, either by himself or another, the statute commences to run.<sup>2</sup> of entry under the statute. The whole proceedings under which the sale and conveyance were made were void, because the order appointing the guardian was invalid and void. It was held, the statute of limitations ran in favor of the derivative purchaser, although the possession of the irregularly appointed guardian was but the possession of the lunatic, in whose right he assumed control and made the sale. Moulton v. Henderson, 62 Ala. 426.

Executor's sale. When, at a sale of lands made by an executor under orders of the probate court, a conveyance is made to the purchaser, without a report or confirmation of the sale, without a report that the purchase money had been paid, and without an order of the court to make titles, such a conveyance will be ignored, and the purchaser does not hold adversely, so that his possession will ripen into a title by the expiration of ten years. Casey v. Morgan, 67 Ala. 441.

An absolute nullity, as a void deed, judgment, etc., will not constitute color of title. Bernal v. Gleim, 33 Cal. 676. See Simmons v. Lane, 25 Ga. 178; Marsh v. Weir, 21 Tex. 97; Moore v. Brown, 11 How. (U. S.) 424. Compare Pillow v. Roberts, 13 How. (U. S.) 472, and cases cited supra.

1. Baucum v. George, 65 Ala. 259; Dothard v. Denson, 72 Ala. 541; Humes v. Bernstein, 72 Ala. 546; State v. Conner, 69 Ala. 212; Griffin v. Stamper, 17 Ga. 108; Campau v. Lafferty, 50 Mich. 114; Smith v. Ferguson, 91 Ill. 304; Caperton v. Gregory, 11 Gratt. (Va.) 505; Jackson v. Brink, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 483; Jackson v. Ellis, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 118; Jackson v. Long, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 170; Hilton v. Bender, 4 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 270; Leonard v. Leonard, 10 Mass. 281; Covey v. Porter, 22 W. Va. 121; Dalton v. Bank, 54 Mo. 105; Crispen v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536; Gregg v. Sayre, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 244; Jackson v. Huntington, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 402; Cowly v. Mason, 5 Fed. Repr. 779; s. c., 10 Biss. (U. S.) 182. Compare Marsh v. Weir, 21 Tex. 97; La Frombois v. Jackson, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 589; s. c., 18

Am. Dec. 463; Dufour v. Campana, 11 Martin (La.), 715; Frique v. Hopkins, 4 Martin N. S. (La.), 715; Bonne v. Powers, 3 Martin N. S. (La.) 462; Powell v. Harman, 2 Pet. (U. S.) 241.

However wrongful or fraudulent the possession, or defective the title, an entry under claim of exclusive title, founding such claim upon color of title, and accompanied by the continued statutory possession, constitutes an effective adverse possession.

Humbert v. Trinity Church, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 587; Northrop v. Wright, 7 Hill (N. Y.), 476; Bogardus v. Trinity Church, 4 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 633; Burhans v. Van Zandt, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 91; Moody v. Moody, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 189; Griffin v. Stamper, 17 Ga. 108; Robbins v. Sackett, 23 Kan. 301.

A fraudulent grant of State land may be color of title and become a good title if the fraudulent grantee hold actual adverse possession for seven years against a senior grantee who has a right of entry and a right of action to recover possession, and is under no disability mentioned in the statutes. Oliver v. Pullam, 24 Fed. Repr. 127.

2. Coal Creek M. Co. v. Heck, 15 Lea (Tenn.), 515. See Alden v. Grove, 18 Pa. St. 377; Beaupland v. McKeen, 28 Pa. St. 124; s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 115; Hole v. Rittenhouse, 37 Pa. St. 116; Cline v. Catron, 22 Gratt. (Va.) 378; Child v. Kingsbury, 46 Vt. 47; Bunton v. Cardwell, 53 Tex. 408; Peyton v. Barton, 53 Tex. 298.

One in actual possession of land under an older grant, which conflicts with a junior grant, has constructive possession of all the land in conflict, except such as is in the actual possession of one claiming under the junior title. Frisby v. Withers, 61 Tex. 134; Evitts v. Roth, 61 Tex. 81; Crispin v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536; Hunnicutt v. Peyton, 102 U. S. 369; Brimmer v. Proprietors, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 135; Winter v. Stevens, 9 Allen (Mass.), 529; Bellis v. Bellis, 122 Mass. 417; Crispen v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536; Hodges v. Eddy, 38 Vt. 344; Hammond

A possession under a junior grant conflicting in part with a superior grant, but not on the lap or conflict, will not bar the right of the owner of such superior grant by limitation, but possession under the junior grant, to put the statute of limitations in motion, must be on the conflict, although the owner of the superior grant be not in possession of any part of his grant.<sup>1</sup>

41. Conflicting Titles.—Where two persons are in possession, each claiming under color of title, the seisin will be deemed to be in the one having the better or legal title.<sup>2</sup>

v. Ridgely, 5 H. & J. (Md.) 245; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 522; Burns v. Swift, 2 S. & R. (Pa.) 439; Hall v. Powel, 4 S. & R. (Pa.) 456; s. c., 8 Am. Dec. 722.

A. and P. were respectively in the actual possession of portions of a quarter-section, lying to the north of the river M., which ran across the southern part of the section, parallel to its southern boundary, the two together occupying the whole of the quarter-section north of the river, and the portion to the south not being actually occupied by any one. A State patent, including the quarter-section, was issued to A. in 1862, and a United States pre-emption patent for the quarter-section, conveying the title thereto, was issued to P. in 1863, and the parties continued in the actual possession of the tracts respectively occupied by them, claiming under their patents. Held, that A. by his patent acquired constructive possession of the land lying south of the river, and continued to have such possession after the issue of the patent to P. Langford v. Poppe, 56 Cal. 73.

Actual possession of granted land under a younger grant, by clearing, inclosing and cultivating a part of the land, especially if notice of the fact be brought home to the claimant under the older grant, will start the running of the statute of limitations, in favor of the possession, to the boundaries of the younger grant, and actual possession kept continuously for seven years, although on other parts of the granted land, would perfect the title. Coal Creek Co. v. Ross, 12 Lea (Tenn.), 1.

1. White v. Burnley, 20 How. (U. S.) 231; Ewing v. Burnet, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 41; Clark's Lessee v. Courtney, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 319; McEwen v. Den's Lessee, 24 How. (U. S.) 242; Trimble v. Smith, 4 Bibb (Ky.), 257; Fox v. Hinton, 4 Bibb (Ky.), 559; Smith v. Mitchell, 1 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 251; 3 A. K. Marsh. 1022; 1 Marsh. (Ky.) 1097; Price v. Evans, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 388; Talbot v. McGavock, 1 Yerg. (Tenn.) 268; Hole v. Rittenhouse, 25 Pa. St. 491; Portis v. Hill, 3 Tex. 278; Wheeler v. Moody, 9 Tex. 377; Whitehead v. Foley, 28 Tex. 268; Staford v. King, 30 Tex. 277; Gillespie v. Jones, 26 Tex. 346.

Where there is only a partial conflict or interference of surveys, the statute will not run in favor of an adverse occupant under a junior title, if his possession does not extend to that part of the land in dispute which is within the conflict. Angell on Lim. § 402; Trimble v. Smith, 4 Bibb (Ky.), 257; Fox v. Hinton, 4 Bibb (Ky.), 559; Smith v. Mitchell, 1 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 207; Pogue v. McKee, 3 Marsh. (Ky.) 127; Smith v. Frame, 3 Marsh. (Ky.) 231; Price v. Evans, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 388; White v. Burnley, 20 How. (U. S.) 235; Hole v. Rittenhouse, 25 Pa. St. 491 (overruling Waggoner v. Hastings, 5 Barr (Pa.), 300; Beaupland v. McKeen, 28 Pa. St. 124; s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 115; Talbot v. McGavock, 1 Yerg. (Tenn.) 262; Peyton v. Barton, 53 Tex. 298.

Though actual possession under a junior title of part of a tract of land which interferes with an older grant gives possession of the whole to the holder of the junior title, yet a subsequent entry of the true owner upon any part of his land is an ouster of the intruder from the part of which he has constructive possession. Altemus v. Long, 4 Pa. St. 254; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 688; Hunnicut v. Peyton, 102 U. S. 333; Evitts v. Roth, 61 Tex. 81.

In case of a lappage, and each bargainee is on his own land, outside the interference, the title will be in him who has the elder title; but if the junior bargainee has had actual adverse possession for the statutory time with color, he acquires a good title to the part so occupied. Brady v. Maness, 91 N. Car. 135.

2. Cushman v. Blanchard, 2 Me. 266; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 76; Bellis v. Bellis, 122 Mass. 414; Winter v. Stevens, 9 Allen (Mass.), 526; Langdon v. Potter, 3 Mass. 219; Crispin v. Hannovan, 50 Mo. 536; Semple v. Cook, 50 Cal. 26.

42. Extent of Possession.—He who enters under a claim or color of title may hold to the boundaries described in the instrument under which he claims.<sup>1</sup> But if the boundaries described in the

1. Whitehead v. Foley, 28 Tex. 285; Cantagrel v. Von Lupin, 58 Tex. 570; Evitts v. Roth, 61 Tex. 81; De Graw v. Taylor, 37 Mo. 310; Lynde v. Williams, 68 Mo. 360; Long v. Higginbotham, 56 Mo. 240; Schultz v. Lindell, 39 Mo. 310; Davis v. Perley, 30 Cal. 630; Tremaine v. Weatherby, 58 Iowa, 615; Teabout v. Daniels, 38 Iowa, 158; Calvin v. McCune, 39 Iowa, 502; Barger v. Hobbs, 67 Ill. 592; Goewey v. Urig, 18 Ill. 238; Fairman v. Beal, 14 Ill. 244; McEvoy v. Loyd, 13 Wis. 142; Pepper v. O'Dowd, 39 Wis. 538; Furlong v. Garrett, 44 Wis. 111; Bell v. Longworth, 6 Ind. 273; Humphries v. Huffman, 33 Ohio St. 395; Smith v. McKay, 30 Ohio St. 409; Gardner v. Gooch, 48 Me. 487; Bailey v. Carleton, 12 N. H. 9; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 190; Jakway v. Barrett, 38 Vt. 316; Swift v. Gage, 26 Vt. 224; Thompson v. Burhans, 61 N. Y. 52; Munro v. Merchant, 28 N. Y. 9; Wright v. Sadler, 20 N. Y., 320; Ege v. Medar, 82 Pa. St. 86; Culler v. Motzer, 13 S. & R. (Pa.) 356; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 604; Parker v. Wallis, 60 Md. 15; s. c., 45 Am. Rep. 703; Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 431; Adams v. Alkire, 20 W. Va. 480; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Johnson v. Parker, 79 N. Car. 475; Stanton v. Mullis, 92 N. Car. 624; Congdon v. Morgan, 14 S. Car. 587; Grimes v. Ragland, 28 Ga. 123; Veal v. Robinson, 70 Ga. 809; McCarney v. Higdon, 50 Ga. 629; Wiley v. Warmoch, 30 Ga. 83; Childers v. Calloway, 76 Ala. 130; Hymes v. Burnstein, 72 Ala. 546; Burks v. Mitchell, 78 Ala. 61; Wilson v. Williams, 52 Miss. 487; Peck v. Houston, 5 Lea (Tenn.), 227; Hunnicut v. Peyton, 102 U. S. 333; Pike v. Evans, 94 U. S. 6; Ellicott v. Pearl, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 412; Clymer v. Dawkins, 3 How. (U. S.) 674.

If the true owner is in actual or constructive possession, one claiming under color of title can acquire seisin only to the portion actually occupied by him. Barr v. Gratz, 4 Wheat. 213; Hunnicut v. Peyton, 102 U. S. 333; Livingston v. Peru Iron Co., 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 511; Brimmer v. Proprietors, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 131; Bradley v. West, 60 Mo. 33.

Adverse possession of a plot of land used as a family burial ground will extend only to portion occupied by graves. Mooney v. Cooledge, 30 Ark. 640.

A grantee, whose lands are by his deed bounded by a definite line, cannot be said to claim under that instrument lands outside that line. Pope v. Hanmer, 74 N. Y. 240; Grube v. Wells, 34 Iowa, 148. But he may acquire title to such lands by actual occupancy. Slaughter v. Fowler, 44 Cal. 195.

A plat and survey in connection with other evidence may be used in fixing the origin, date, and limits of the possession. Dorr v. School District, 40 Ark. 237. See St. Louis v. Gorman, 29 Mo. 593; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 486.

Color of title may arise under a void or worthless deed. Yet the deed may be used to explain and define the possession. Pillow v. Roberts, 13 How. (U. S.) 472; Hamilton v. Boggess, 63 Mo. 233; Dorr v. School District, 40 Ark. 237.

Clearing a part, with intent to make other improvements, will give constructive possession of the whole tract. Scott v. Delany, 87 Ill. 146.

Occupying certain 40-acre tracts of a section for logging purposes held not to be constructive possession of the remaining tracts. Coleman v. Eldred, 44 Wis. 210.

Where the possession is greater in extent than the claim, it is the latter which determines the amount of land gained by adverse possession. Wood v. Willard, 37 Vt. 377; Grube v. Wells, 34 Iowa, 148.

A grant to a railroad company to use a part of a street is not such a color of title as will enable them to hold the entire street adversely. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Reich, 101 Ill. 157.

A railroad company entitled by contract to strip of land of certain width built track and took possession. Held, that this amounted to adverse possession of as much land on either side of track as was necessary and proper for use of road. Day v. N. Y., etc., R. Co., 20; Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 359; s. c., 41 Ohio St. 392.

Plaintiff's deed contained a description in substance as follows: A certain piece of meadow or land covered by water lying in F. pond (a natural pond), beginning at a certain marked cedar-tree, running thence south 83½ degrees west, 4 chains through lands of one J., to a stake; thence north 2 chains and 13 links, to a stake; thence north 51½ degrees east, to a tree. Held, that the deed could not be the basis of a constructive adverse possession as against J. or his grantees, of land between the first-deed are ambiguous or incorrect, the party claiming under it cannot acquire title by constructive possession, but is limited to the land actually occupied.<sup>1</sup>

The rule that a party who, under a defective title, has entered into actual possession of a part of the land, claiming the whole, may have constructive possession of the whole, applies only when the part not actually possessed has some necessary connection with the other portion, as by use with it or subservient to it.<sup>2</sup>

mentioned line and low-water mark of the pond, as the deed only purported to convey land in the water, and so did not include, in the general description, land above low-water mark; and as the description of said line was an admission that J. owned on both sides thereof, and so it was no boundary line. Wheeler v. Spinola, 54 N. Y. 377.

The extent of the possession is limited to the limits claimed at the time of entry. Additional land cannot be included in the claim, unless a new entry and claim is made which will include such other lands. Neither can adverse possession be sustained to a part of the land in the actual possession of another adverse claimant, if such included part is subsequently abandoned by the holder. In order to include it acts amounting to a new entry as regards that part must be made. Pepper v. O'Dowd, 39 Wis. 548.

A void deed purported to convey three fourths of a township containing in all about 19,000 acres. The grantee named in the deed entered upon and improved about 400 acres in the southeast corner of the township, and afterwards brought ejectment for 4000 acres lying along the northern boundary of the township. Held, that he had no possession which would support his action, even against a mere trespasser. Thompson v. Burhans, 61 N. Y. 52.

Where one takes possession of a government subdivision of land under a claim of title to the whole of it, and puts a portion of it in cultivation, and no other person is in possession of any part thereof, such possession must be regarded as applying to the whole tract claimed by him, especially when the actual possession extends to each government subdivision embraced in the entire tract. Tremaine v. Weatherby, 58 Iowa, 615.

1. Angell on Lim. § 408; Jackson v. Woodruff, 1 Cowen (N. Y.), 276; s. c., 13 Am. Dec. 525.

Where the boundaries are given on a town map, a person claiming under color of title must claim under such map, in order to avail himself of it. St. Louis v. Gorman, 29 Mo. 593; s. c., 77 Am. Dec.

586. See Dorr v. School Dist., 40 Ark. 237.

A deed describing land as "lot No. 6, on the westerly side of Peabody River, to run 160 rods each side of the road where it now runs," gives no color of title to land east of Peabody River, though less than 160 rods from the road. Bellows v. Jewell, 60 N. H. 420.

2. Thompson v. Burhans, 79 N. Y. 93; see Thompson v. Burhans, 61 N. Y. 52; Miller v. L. I. R. Co., N. Y. 380; Beauplan v. McKeen, 28 Pa. St. 124, s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 115; Scott v. Delany, 87 Ill. 146; Wilson v. Ewen, 7 Oregon, 87; Leeper v. Baker, 68 Mo. 400; Compare Ballance v. Flood, 52 Ill. 49.

Although a party may derive his title to different tracts of land from different sources, yet if the tracts adjoin each other, and are all in one inclosure, and there is no one but the owner residing thereon, such residence is an "actual residence" upon all the tracts. Wharton v. Bunting, 73 Ill. 16.

In Tremaine v. Weatherby, 58 Iowa, 615, the court said: "It is not practicable nor possible for a party to be in actual possession of every part of a tract of land which is cut up by streams or sloughs, by bluffs or the like. He cannot have the whole of such a tract in the grasp of his hands or under his feet. If the owner of eighty acres of land breaks and cultivates sixty acres and up to a slough, leaving twenty acres unbroken and unused, it would be unfair to say that his possession of the twenty acres was not actual and adverse, because it is cut off from the other land by a stream, a bluff, a thicket, or a slough."

In ejectment by L. against B., to recover forty acres of swamp land, L. showed a better documentary title; but B. claimed under a deed conveying, besides this tract, six hundred and fifty-one acres, whereof six hundred acres had been inclosed by B. and his grantors for more than ten years. There was evidence that the forty acres were too wet for cultivation, and any fence thereon would be in danger of being washed away by high water; that B. had paid taxes on it for

43. Fraud.—A grantee will not be deprived of the legal advantages of his entry under color of title, unless it be for actual fraud on his part; he will not be prejudiced by the fraud of the grantor in making the title unless he was a participant in the fraud, and if his deed purports on its face to convey a good title, and he has accepted it in good faith, he will be entitled to the benefits to be derived from an entry under color of title. Mere neglect to inquire into the state of the title is not sufficient evidence of fraud; nor does the rule that what is sufficient to put a party on inquiry operate as notice, apply to such a case. There must be clear and satisfactory proof of knowledge that the title supposed to be acquired was invalid, accompanied by proof of an intent to defraud the real owner.<sup>1</sup>

44. Without Color of Title.—Where there is no color or claim of title, and naked possession alone is relied on as constituting title to land, there must be an actual occupancy of the land, and the possession cannot be extended by construction beyond that actual occupancy.<sup>2</sup> The doctrine seems to be that when a more than ten years, and had used it as incident to the six hundred and fifty-one acres to obtain wood, and had included it in a survey of six hundred and ninety-one acres, and recorded the deed; that L. lived eight miles from the land, and had notified B. at the beginning of his occupancy that he owned the forty acres. Held, that although B.'s occupation of the six hundred and fifty-one acres did not, of itself, draw to itself adverse possession of the forty acres, a judgment in favor of B. should be affirmed. Leeper v. Baker, 68 Mo. 400.

1. Foulke v. Bond, 41 N. J. L. 527; Moody v. Moody, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 189; Crispen v. Hannavan, 50 Mo. 536; Dalton v. Bank of St. Louis, 54 Mo. 105; Hamilton v. Boggess, 63 Mo. 233; Russell v. Mandell, 73 Ill. 136; McClellan v. Kellogg, 17 Ill. 498; Jackson v. Berner, 48 Ill. 203; Hall v. Gay, 68 Ga. 442; Hammond v. Crosby, 68 Ga. 767; Nash v. Fletcher, 44 Miss. 609; Welborn v. Anderson, 37 Miss. 155.

Possession of grantor whose possession originated in fraud cannot be added to complete term necessary to give defendant title by prescription, though he be an innocent purchaser from such fraudulent grantor. Farrow v. Bullock, 63 Ga. 360.

Where one received a voluntary deed from her mother, who was in possession of land, took adverse possession thereunder, without any notice of the fact that the grantor had acknowledged herself to be the tenant of another, and sold the property to a third party, and the two held adversely for seven years before suit, the prescriptive title was good, although the first grantor may, in fact, have been a tenant by sufferance, of which the subsequent takers had no notice. McDougald v. Reedy, 71 Ga. 750.

Where a debtor executed a deed to lands for the purpose of placing the title beyond the reach of his creditors, and of creating a secret trust for his own benefit, he continuing in fact the real owner, and enjoying the use, products, and profits of the estate, and the grantee never having been in possession of, and never having exercised or claimed any dominion or ownership over, the lands conveyed, the grantee is not, under such deed, clothed with any ownership or asserted right, which will uphold a claim of adverse possession against a creditor of the grantor, seeking to subject the lands conveyed by the deed to the payment of his debt. Jones v. Wilson, 69 Ala. 400; Williams v. Higgins, 69 Ala. 517.

Adverse possession for ten years by a grantee in a voluntary conveyance of land, executed while the grantor was surety on a guardian's bond, is, under the statute of limitations, a good defence to a bill filed by an administrator of the deceased ward, to have the conveyance set aside as fraudulent, and the land subjected to the payment of the guardian's liability to his ward. It is immaterial that the right of the complainant to proceed against the surety of the guardian arose within ten years prior to the commencement of the suit. Snedecor v. Watkins, 71 Ala. 48.

2. Bracken v. Jones, 63 Tex. 184; Can-tagrel v. Van Lupin, 58 Tex. 570; Kim- usurper enters upon land, he acquires possession, inch by inch, of the part which he occupies; and that the mere naked possession, without color of title, is adverse only to the extent of the actual inclosure, which must be definite and notorious. No definite rule as to what constitutes sufficient possessory acts under claim of title can be given, as the matter must necessarily depend largely ball v. Stormer, 65 Cal. 116; Kimball v. Lohmas, 31 Cal. 154; Marble v. Price, 54 Mich. 466; Peterson v. McCullough, 50 Ind. 35; Bristol v. Carroll County, 98 Ill. 84; Schneider v. Botsch, 90 Ill. 577; Coleman v. Billings, 89 Ill. 183; Weber v. Anderson, 73 Ill. 439; Booth v. Small, 25 Iowa, 177; Hamilton v. Wright, 30 Iowa, 480; Huntington v. Allen, 44 Miss. 654; Alexander v. Polk, 39 Miss. 737; Bryan v. Atwater, 5 Day (Conn.), 181; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 136; Tracy v. Norwich, etc., R. Co., 39 Conn. 382; French v. Pearce, 8 Conn. 439; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 680; Jewett v. Hussey, 70 Me. 433; Abbott v. Abbott, 51 Me. 584; Lincoln v. Edgecomb, 51 Me. 345; Hitchings v. Morrison, 72 Me. 334; Otis v. Moulton, 20 Me. 203; Hodges v. Eddy, 38 Vt. 327; Stevens v. Hollister, 18 Vt. 294; Paine v. Hutchens, 49 Vt. 314; Spaulding v. Warren, 25 Vt. 316; Burrell v. Burrell, 11 Mass. 297; Melvin v. Proprietors, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 5; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 384; Proprietors v. Springer, 4 Mass. 416; s. c., 3 Am. Dec. 227; Robinson v. Phillips, 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 429; s. c., 56 N. Y. 634; Crary v. Goodman, 22 N. Y. 170; Baldwin v. Brown, 16 N. Y. 359; Ege v. Medlar, 82 Pa. St. 86; Meade v. Leffingwell, 83 Pa. St. 187; Jones v. Porter, 3 Pa. St. 134; Brown v. McKinney, 9 Whart. (Pa.) 567; Boynton v. Hodgdon, 59 N. H. 247; Wells v. Jackson Mfg. Co., 48 N. H. 491; Enfield v. Day, 7 N. H. 457; Hale v. Glidden, 10 N. H. 401; Smith v. Hosmer, 7 N. H. 436; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 354; McKinny v. Kenny, 1 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 343; Smith v. Morrow, 5 Litt. (Ky.) 210; Hunter v. Chrisman, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 465; Clarke v. Wagner, 74 N. Car. 791; Scott v. Elkins, 83 N. Car. 424; Parker v. Banks, 79 N. Car. 480; Moore v. Thompson, 69 N. Car. 120; Seymour v. Carli, 31 Minn. 81; Washburn v. Cutter, 17 Minn. 335; Humphries v. Huffman, 30 Ohio St. 395; Dothard v. Denson, 75 Ala. 482; Bell v. Denson, 56 Ala. 444; Hawkins v. Hudson, 45 Ala. 482; Burks v. Mitchell, 78 Ala. 61; Hall v. Gay, 68 Ga. 442; Hammond v. Crosby, 68 Ga. 767; Anderson v. Dodd, 65 Ga. 402; Whittington v. Wright, 9 Ga. 23; Creekmur v. Creekmur, 75 Va. 431; Kincheloe v.

Tracewell, 11 Gratt. (Va.) 587; Peterson v. McCullough, 50 Ind. 35; Core v. Faupel, 24 W. Va. 238; Haywood v. Thomas, 17 Neb. 237; Wilson v. McEwan, 7 Oregon, 87; Ferguson v. Peden, 33 Ark. 150; Brown v. Leete, 6 Sawy. (U. S.) 332. Compare Wilson v. McEwan, 7 Oregon, 87.

Without color of title there can be no constructive possession. Wells v. Jackson Mfg. Co., 42 N. H. 491.

The extent of the actual inclosure must be definite and notorious. Bristol v. Carroll County, 95 Ill. 84; Humphries v. Huffman, 33 Ohio St. 395.

Where a party has inclosed a larger extent of land than his deed describes, he may claim to the extent of his inclosure. Swettenham v. Leary, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 284.

Under the Illinois act of 1839, actual possession and payment of taxes for seven years successively, but without color of title, afford no defence to an action by the true owner. Stoltz v. Doering, 112 Ill. 234.

A naked assertion of title to the bed of a lake, almost wholly covered by water, is not sufficient to put the statute in operation. State v. Portsmouth Sav. Bank, 106 Ind. 435. See Clarke v. Wagner, 74 N. Car. 791.

One who maintains a mill-dam which causes the waters of an unnavigable stream to set back and overflow the lands of another to a certain height or extent uninterruptedly for ten years, acquires a prescriptive right to flow the lands to that extent. Fluctuation in the height of the water, caused either by extraordinary rainfalls or freshets, or by extreme or unusual drouths, or by excessive draughts upon the water for the use of the mill, occasionally, will not affect or impair the prescriptive right to flow to the usual height acquired during ordinary seasons by uninterrupted use for ten years. Johnson v. Boorman, 63 Wis. 268.

Possession under Verbal Contract.— Possession of land taken under a verbal sale or exchange, and held under claim of ownership, is adverse, and may ripen into a title under the statute of limitations. Alexander v. Wheeler, 78 Ala. 167. See PAROL AGREEMENT, ante, p. 279.

upon the nature and character of the property, and must be determined from the circumstances of each case, and is for the jury.<sup>1</sup> (See ACTUAL POSSESSION, ante, p. 183.)

45. Improvements.—According to the strict rule of the common law, no allowance was made for such improvements, however valuable or beneficial, they being regarded as having been made at the peril of the possessor of the freehold. The right to set off such improvements in reduction or recoupment of rents recoverable by the complainant is purely an equitable one, borrowed originally from the civil law by courts of chancery. The rule prevails only in favor of a bona-fide occupant or possessor of land. He must be one who is not only in possession, but who asserts adverse ownership under color or claim of title. A mere naked intruder, or trespasser, does not come within the letter or spirit of the rule. It is equally clear, on both principle and authority, that one who has knowledge of an adverse claim is not entitled to the right to set off improvements made after acquiring such knowledge.<sup>2</sup>

1. Wood's Lim., § 267.

2. The New Orleans & Selma R. v. Jones, 68 Ala. 49; s. c., 70 Ala. 227; Gordon v. Tweedy, 74 Ala. 233. See Barker v. Owen, 93 N. Car. 203.

In Gordon v. Tweedy, 74 Ala. 233, the court said: "Actual notice of such adverse claim, according to the better rule, is generally held to be fatal to the occupant's claim for improvements, although mere constructive notice, such as the law implies from the record of a deed, is deemed insufficient. This principle seems to be generally adopted everywhere, so far as I have been able to discover, except in the State of Texas, where a different rule prevails, and actual notice is not regarded as a conclusive test of good faith. In Jackson v. Loomis, 4 Cow. 168; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 347, the distinction under consideration seems not to have been discussed or clearly taken. The authorities, generally, however, are not wanting in harmony. 2 Story's Eq. Jur. (Redf. Ed.) §§ 799, 799a, 799b; Trial of Titles to Land (Sedgw. & Wait), §§ 694, 705; Sedgwick on Dam. p. 140 (12). note; Blackwell on Tax Titles, marg. p. 590-592; Burroughs on Tax. 345-6. The rule, which we here announce, was followed by this court in Horton v. Sledge, 29 Ala. 478, which was a suit in equity for a partition of lands, and an account of rents and profits, brought by one tenant in common against another. The defendant was allowed only for such permanent and valuable improvements as were made 'before he was apprised that his title was disputed.' The filing of the bill is considered by all the authorities as tantamount to actual notice. In fact, it is the most solemn and authoritative of all forms of notice."

A landowner cannot be improved out of his estate. Improvements placed upon his land belong to him, and can be used by the maker, at the utmost, only as a set-off against rents and profits—never for the purpose of acquiring title. Pulaski Co. v. State, 42 Ark. 118.

If the legal owner admits a right to the improvements, he acknowledges that the possession was adverse. Moore v. Moore, 61 Me. 417.

No length of possession will give title to one who only claims to own the improvements upon the land. Davenport v. Sebring, 52 Iowa, 364.

In New Hampshire, to sustain a claim for betterments, the tenant must show that he had actual and peaceable possession of the premises, claiming in good faith and supposing that he had a legal title for more than six years prior to the commencement of the suit; so where the defendant was in the actual and peaceable possession of the premises, claiming in good faith, and supposing that he had a good legal title for six years before the action was commenced, and his claim for betterments cannot be allowed. Bellows v. Cole, 20 N. H. 492; Wendell v. Moulton, 26 N. H. 41, 65; Tripe v. Marcy, 39 N. H. 439; Lock v. Whitney, 5 Eastn. Repr. (N. H.) 340.

Where the right to be improvements is acknowledged, it is an admission that the possession has been adverse. Moore v. Moore, 61 Me. 417.

46. Abandonment.—Land may be abandoned at any time before a valid title by disseisin is acquired; but after the title has ripened into a perfect one the mere act of leaving the land will not destroy the title.<sup>1</sup>

Under the Ohio statute, where a person, in the quiet possession of land under an agreement for its purchase made with the equitable owner, is evicted by the trustee holding the legal title, he is not entitled, under said act, to compensation for lasting and valuable improvements made upon the premises. Preston v. Brown, 35 Ohio St. 18.

In Wharton v. Moore, 84 N. Car. 479, the court said: "The right to betterments is a doctrine that has gradually grown up in the practice of the courts of equity, and while it has been adopted in many of the states, it is not recognized in others. But it may now be considered as an established principle of equity, that whenever a plaintiff seeks the aid of a court of equity to enforce his title against an innocent person who has made improvements on land without notice of a superior title, believing himself to be the absolute owner, aid will be given to him only upon the terms that he shall make due compensation to such innocent person to the extent of the enhanced value of the premises, by reason of the meliorations or improvements, upon the principle that he who seeks equity must do equity."

If a tax title shows upon its face that it is void, it cannot be the foundation for a claim for the value of improvements made in good faith. Hatchett v. Conner, 30 Tex. 104; House v. Stone, 64 Tex. 677.

There must be possession under color of title in good faith before a defendant is entitled to acquittal for responsibility for rents accruing during his adverse occupancy. N. O. & S. R. Co. v. Immigration Assoc., 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 425; s. c., 68 Ala. 48; s. c., 70 Ala. 227.

When Action lies for Rents received.—A person who receives the rents of lands while in possession under claim of title adverse to the plaintiff is not liable to the plaintiff in an action for money had and received, although a suit in equity was at the time pending to hold him liable as trustee of the lands for the benefit of the plaintiff. Lockhard v. Barton, 78 Ala. 189.

1. 3 Wash. Real. Pr. (4th Ed.) c. 2. Compare Vickery v. Benson, 26 Ga. 582.

In Bear Valley Coal Co. v. Dewart, 95 Pa. St. 72, the court said: "An abandoned title is not transferred to an adverse claimant or person who first seizes the land, but it falls back to the State, and by its extinction sometimes makes a younger and conflicting title good. The doctrine of abandonment does not apply to a perfect title, but only to imperfect titles. In favor of a junior warrant or settlement right after long lapse of time, an imperfect title by warrant and survey may be presumed to be abandoned. But such presumption cannot be made of a perfect title; that is never reinvested in the State on such principle. After the land has been located and patented, it will not fall back because it is a derelict nor for the owner's neglect to pay the taxes. Hoffman v. Bell, 61 Pa. St. 444.

A stranger will not acquire title by payment of taxes on unoccupied land. Actual possession is necessary to acquire title under the statute of limitations. The presumption arising from the owner's neglect to exercise every act of ownership, often called abandonment, of his waiver of irregularities in sales of land for taxes or on judicial process, is a very different thing from the statutory title by adverse and continuous possession. In case of conflicting titles, the older and better will not be lost by reason of the statute of limitations, nor presumption of waiver upon the mere payment of taxes by the holder of the younger title."

The mere fact that the owner of real estate "has not had possession of it, claiming title to it," for more than twenty years, in the absence of any adversary claim or possession, does not work a forfeiture of his title. Bernstein v. Humes, 78 Ala. 134.

Title obtained by disseisin can only be transferred by deed. It cannot be lost by parol abandonment or relinquishment. School Dist. v. Benson, 31 Me. 381; s. c., 52 Am. Dec. 618.

Where the possession of the premises is abandoned by either party, the question as to whether they are left animo revertendi is one for the consideration of the jury; but whether such a question arises in the case is for the court to determine. McCall v. Pryor, 17 Ala. 533; Wilson v. Glenn, 78 Ala. 383.

An abandonment after the statutory period will rescind the title adversely acquired. Vickery v. Benson, 26 Ga. 582; Russell v. Slaton, 25 Ga. 493. Compare Schall v. Williams Valley R. Co., 35

47. Mines.—Adverse possession may be acquired of a mine or mining claim; also of a quarry.<sup>1</sup> (See also MINES AND MINING.)

48. Water.—An adverse possession and user of water for the statutory period, continuously and uninterruptedly, with the knowledge of and to the injury of the true owner, will bar his right

Pa. St. 191; Jacks v. Chaffin, 34 Ark. 534.

1. Union, etc., Co. v. Taylor, 100 U. S. 37; Harris v. Equator, etc., Co., 8 Fed. Repr. 863; Moore v. Thompson, 69 N. Car. 120; Hess v. Winder, 30 Cal. 349.

Adverse possession of the surface of land for the statutory period does not carry with it the possession of minerals below it, where the title to the latter has been severed from that of the surface by deed; and the owner seeking to establish title to a mine must prove possession of the mine as such, independently of his possession of the surface. Caldwell v. Copeland, 37 Pa. St. 427; s. c., 78 Am. Dec. 436. See Caldwell v. Fulton, 31 Pa. St. 475; s. c., 72 Am. Dec. 760, and note; Armstrong v. Caldwell, 53 Pa. St. 287; Penna., etc., Co. v. Neel, 54 Pa. St. 17; Knight v. Indiana Co., 47 Ind. 110.

Two adjacent mining-lot owners laid claim to a vein or lode extending through their two lots, one filing a complaint and the other a cross-complaint, setting up their respective rights to the vein in controversy. Held, that a court of equity may take cognizance of a cross-action brought to try the adverse claim to the right of possession of a mineral lode, to quiet the title thereto, and enjoin the removal of ore therefrom, when, for these purposes, it becomes necessary to identify the boundaries of the vein and the apex of the lode, and, in view of the issue involved and the relief sought, a judgment at law would not meet the exigencies of the case. Bullion, etc., M. Co. v. Eureka M. Co., 14 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 152.

Possession of the surface of any mining claim is possession of all veins and lodes, the top or apex of which is inside the surface lines, although, as they go downward, such veins or lodes extend outside the vertical line of the surface location. No adverse possession can become operative by a party going outside the boundaries, and striking the vein of the first location on its dip, without the knowledge of the owners of the first location. The statute would only begin to run from the time that it became known to the prior locator that the new location was being worked on the same vein. Pardee v. Murray, 4 Montana, 234; s. c., 2 Pac. Repr. 16. See Iron, etc., Co. v.

Cheesman, 13 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 552.

Where one has entered upon land under a claim of title founded upon a written instrument as a conveyance, his occupation of the land by mining operations, prosecuted as continuously as the nature of the business and the custom of the country permit, constitutes an adverse possession. Stephenson v. Wilson, 50 Wis. 95; 37 Wis. 482; Wilson v. Henry, 40 Wis. 594.

Where a claimant of a placer-claim makes his application for his patent thereon, knowing nothing of the presence of a quartz lode therein, and afterwards a lode is discovered therein, he is entitled to the possession thereof as against one who thereafter locates the lode. Montana Copper Co. v. Dahl, 9 Pac. Repr. (Mont.) 894.

A claimed a quarry on land adjacent to his own. He leased the quarry, and continued to procure stone, and permitted others to do so upon payment. Held, an adverse possession. Colvin v. McCune, 39 Iowa, 502.

Coal in place is land. The grant of a right to mine coal in the land of the lessor and remove it therefrom, although the instrument may be called a lease, is a grant of an interest in the land itself, and not a mere license to take the coal. App. of Hope, 3 East. Repr. (Pa.) 728.

Mere digging for coal in the winter, and abandoning the property the rest of the year, will not constitute adverse possession. Jackson v. Stoetzel, 87 Pa. St. 302.

In Milligan v. Savery, 9 Pac. Repr. 894, it was held by the Montana Supreme Court that titles to mining claims, before the government has parted with its title therein, are merely possessory, and in a suit on an adverse claim the question is on the right to possession. An action under § 2326 of U. S. Rev. St. to determine the right to the possession of a mining claim ought to be instituted according to the forms and practice within the jurisdiction where the suit is begun. In Montana, if the plaintiff is in possession he should bring an action to quiet title; if he is not in possession his action is in the nature of ejectment. Possession, or right of possession and ouster, should be averred.

thereto. But a mere claim of a right to the use and enjoyment of water, however long continued, will not ripen into adverse title thereto. It is the actual appropriation, followed by open, notorious, continuous, and exclusive possession for the time limited by statute, under claim of title, that gives the right. So, too, on the other hand, if the defendants used and held the water adversely for the statutory period next before suit was brought, the mere disputing their right to such possession by the plaintiffs would not prevent the bar of the statute. The peaceable possession must be disturbed—the continuity of such possession broken—within the statutory period, in order to defeat the plea, if otherwise supported by proof.<sup>1</sup> (See also RIPARIAN RIGHTS; WATERS AND WATERCOURSES.)

49. Easement.—The claim of a mere easement, or other right in land less than the entire fee, does not confer any adverse right to the fee; but, to have that effect, under the statute, the claim must be of the entire title, exclusive of the title of any other person.<sup>2</sup> (See also EASEMENTS.)

50. Right of Way.—To acquire a right of way by prescription there must be an adverse use of the way for the statutory period, and this use must be continuous and as of right. If the use is interrupted by the owner of the land, by obstructions placed upon it, in the exercise of his right to prevent the use of the way, the continuity of the use is broken. Whether the interruption is acquiesced in by the claimant of the right of way, in such manner that the subsequent use must be regarded as permissive, is a question for the jury upon the facts.<sup>3</sup> (See also EASEMENTS.)

51. Highways.—A party can gain no title to a portion of a public highway by occupying it from time to time, or even continuously, for twenty years. When once established, a highway does not cease to be such until discontinued by the proper authorities, and any encroachment upon it by private parties becomes a nuisance which the town authorities may summarily remove.<sup>4</sup>

1. Cox v. Clough, 11 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 732; Angell on Watercourses (7th Ed.), §§ 208–219. This portion of the law of adverse possession will be fully treated under titles RIPARIAN RIGHTS and WATERS AND WATERCOURSES.

2. Dothard v. Denson, 75 Ala. 482. This branch of the law of adverse possession will be fully treated under the title EASEMENT.

3. Webster v. Lowell, 6 East. Repr. (Mass.) 615.

4. Driggs v. Phillips, 7 Eastn. Repr. (N. Y.) 410; McClelland v. Miller, 28 Ohio St. 488; Brooks v. Riding, 46 Ind. 15; Visalia v. Jacob, 65 Cal. 434; Hoadley v. San Francisco, 50 Cal. 265; People v. Pope, 53 Cal. 437. Compare Fort Smith v. McKibbin, 41 Ark. 45; s. c., 48 Am. Rep. 19; Webber v. Chapman, 42 N. H. 326; Gal- veston v. Menard, 23 Tex. 351; Lane v. Kennedy, 13 Ohio St. 42. See MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS, infra, p. 300.

As the commissioners of highways cannot be grantors of land in any case whatever, their deed for a highway is void, and cannot be relied on as color of title under the Limitation law. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Reich, 101 Ill. 157.

A highway laid out by the original proprietors of a town ceased to be used by the public in 1812, but had never been legally discontinued. At that time the selectmen of the town undertook to convey to S. by deed the interests of the town in it. S. fenced the land, and he and his grantees held exclusive and adverse possession for over sixty years. Held, 1. That the fact that the land was legally highway (if it was still so to be regarded)

52. Public Lands—United States.—Adverse possession cannot be held as against the United States; and mere possession of the land, though open, exclusive, and uninterrupted, for twenty years creates no impediment to a recovery by the government, and none to a recovery by one who within that period receives its conveyance.<sup>1</sup> did not prevent the adverse possession running against the private right of an adjoining owner. 2. That the deed of the selectmen was admissible, although passing no title, as giving character to the possession under it. Cady v. Fitzsimmons, 50 Conn. 209.

During the period between 1846 and 1867, T., plaintiff's predecessor in title, once a year cut the grass from a small plat of ground in the highway; a row of trees was also planted by him in the highway in 1864, which were within a few years thereafter taken up or destroyed, and he sometimes piled lumber in the highway against his fence. He did not occupy the highway in any other manner. Held, that the evidence failed to establish a claim by adverse possession. Bliss v. Johnson, 94 N. Y. 235.

The setting-out of trees or the building of a sidewalk in a highway by the owner of adjoining lands is not such an occupation as can be made the foundation of a claim to title by adverse possession as against the true owner. Bliss v. Johnson, 94 N. Y. 235.

Fencing in a portion of the highway by an adjoining landowner will not constitute adverse possession. Brooks v. Riding, 46 Ind. 15.

Where a railroad crossing, in connection with the street which it crosses has been used by the public as a highway for more than twenty years, the street during that period having been kept in repair by the town, and the crossing during the same period having been planked and kept in repair by the railroad corporation, it is a question for the jury, upon all the evidence, whether such use was adverse and under a claim of right, or merely permissive. Fitchburg R. Co. v. Page, 131 Mass. 391; s. c., 7 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 86.

The use of a street by a railroad company in the usual way is not such a use as will sustain a claim of adverse possession. Indianapolis, etc., R. Co. v. Ross, 47 Ind. 25.

To establish a by-road for twenty years' uninterrupted adverse enjoyment, there must be a certain well-defined line of travel in the same place over the entire route for all that time. South Br.

R. Co. v. Parker, 6 Eastn. Repr. (N. J.) 596.

An adverse use, under an issue of private right of way by prescription, the right of way being over and along a highway, commences from the abandonment of the highway. Black v. O'Hara, 5 Atl. Repr. (Conn.) 598.

One who buys lots which his deed describes according to a recorded plat is estopped from disputing the dedication and acceptance of an alley which appears thereon as bounding his lots and passing between them; and the mere occupancy by him of the space designed for the alley, without claim or color of title, does not establish an adverse possession until the interests of some one else are affected by it, nor will it entitle him to maintain trespass against a neighboring lot-owner for driving through the alley and tearing down obstructions placed there to prevent his using it. Marble v. Price, 54 Mich. 466.

1. Oaksmith v. Johnson, 92 U. S. 343. See Farley v. Smith, 39 Ala. 38; Gardner v. Miller, 47 Cal. 570; Union, etc., Co. v. Ferris, 2 Sawy. (U. S.) 176.

There can be no adverse possession as against the United States, or its grantee, unless there be a new entry after the grant; the individual making the original entry, after the grant by the United States, remains an intruder. Cook v. Foster, 2 Gilm. 652; Hughes v. Stevers, 95 Ill. 391; Thompson v. Prince, 67 Ill. 281.

The statute cannot avail a pre-emption claimant whose pre-emption claim is of land already held by a private individual under patent, or location and survey, which would entitle him to a patent. Clark v. Smith, 59 Tex. 275; Sutton v. Carabajal, 26 Tex. 500; Buford v. Bostwick, 58 Tex. 63.

A person claiming under a patent from the United States, or any one succeeding to his rights, may be barred of his right of entry or action by an adverse possession held continuously for ten years. Coker v. Ferguson, 70 Ala. 284; Union, etc., Co. v. Ferris, 2 Sawy. (U. S.) 176.

The title of a claimant of a common field lot, confirmed by the first section of the act of Congress of June 13, 1812,

53. State Lands.—Unless the State is especially included in the operation of a statute of limitation, such statute will not apply to the State. This is equally true of statutes of limitation barring the right of entry to lands after a certain period of adverse possession.<sup>1</sup> was completely vested in him by said act at its date; and title by adverse possession under the statute of limitations might begin to ripen against him from and after such date, without regard to the date of survey of his lot, the approval thereof, or of its return to the office of the recorder of land titles. Peting v. De Lore, 71 Mo. 13.

The receipt issued by the receiver of the land-office upon payment of the purchase price of land to the government, containing a description of the land, constitutes such a conveyance of the premises as contemplates a proper foundation for adverse possession. Cawley v. Johnson, 21 Fed. Repr. 492.

Land-office certificates operate as a severance of the land from the public domain, and the statute will commence to run from the date of issue if accompanied by actual possession. Gay v. Ellis, 33 La. Ann. 249.

Limitation cannot be held to have commenced running prior to the date of the patent. Manly v. Howlett, 55 Cal. 94; Matthews v. Ferrea, 45 Cal. 51; Ross v. Evans, 4 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 443; Treadway v. Wilder, 12 Nev. 108.

Where the plaintiff claims title under a patent issued to him within three years before the commencement of the action, and there is no evidence of any prior claim or act of ownership by any person claiming under the United States, the defendant cannot defeat a recovery by setting up his adverse possession, or his purchase at tax sale, prior to the date of plaintiff's patent. Bonner v. Phillips, 77 Ala. 427.

Where a person obtained a patent from the United States, while another was in possession under an entry made prior to that time, it appeared the patentee stated, after the grant from the government, that the person in possession had bought the land, and that he, the patentee, had made him a deed, and that, subsequently, the occupant gave it back to him to secure a store account, and that the occupant had paid him for the land. The witness by whom this statement was proven also testified that he had known the occupant for twenty-five years on the land; that he claimed the premises, cleared and built on it, and cut timber on it, and that the statements by the patentee were made more than twenty years before the trial. It was held that, under this state of facts, it might be regarded the possession of the occupant was adverse to the patentee, as showing what would be tantamount to a new entry after the grant from the United States; that the occupant was holding adverse to all the world, in his own right, as owner by purchase of the title from the patentee. Hughes v. Stevers, 95 Ill. 391.

1. State v. School Dist., 9 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 587; s. c., 34 Kan. 237; Des Moines v. Harker, 34 Iowa, 84; Gardner v. Miller, 47 Cal. 508; Cary v. Whitney, 48 Me. 516; Alton v. Illinois, etc., Co., 12 Ill. 38; Smead v. Williams, 6 Ga. 158; Walls v. McGee, 4 Harr. (Del.) 108. See Brinsfield v. Carter, 2 Ga. 143; Wright v. Swan, 6 Port. (Ala.) 84; Doe v. Townsley's Heirs, 16 Ala. 239; Troutman v. May, 33 Pa. St. 455; Wallace's Lessee v. Miner, 6 Ohio, 366; Harlock v. Jackson, 3 Brev. (S. Car.) 254; State v. Arledge, 2 Bailey (S. Car.), 401; Lindsey v. Miller, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 666; Wilson v. Hudson, 8 Yerg. (Tenn.) 398; Levasser v. Washburn, 11 Gratt. (Va.) 572; Kirschner v. Western, etc., R. Co., 67 Ga. 760; Glaze v. Western, etc., R. Co., 67 Ga. 761.

In the absence of proof to the contrary, the use and occupation of the State's land by a county will be presumed to be by sufferance and without any intention of the county to appropriate it to itself; and mere permissive possession, however long, can never ripen into a title. Pulaski Co. v. State, 42 Ark. 118.

A patent issued by the proper officers of the State upon a valid land certificate, though issued to one claiming under a forged transfer of the certificate, conveys title within the meaning of the statute of limitations of three years. One having a pre-existing right attempted to be conveyed by the forged transfer is not concluded by the issuance of the patent, nor is the State; but as to all other persons the patent is conclusive in favor of the patentee. League v. Rogan, 59 Tex. 427.

Where the parties and their privies have been in possession of the land for a very long period the law will presume

54. Municipal Corporations.—We present herewith the authorities upon this interesting but much vexed question arranged according to States. The question, briefly stated, is this: Can title be acquired by adverse possession through the period fixed by statutes of limitation to property held by a municipal corporation? <sup>1</sup> (See also MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.)

a grant from the State. Davis v. McArthur, 78 N. Car. 357; Tray v. Norwich, etc., R. Co., 39 Conn. 392; Mayor of Hull v. Horner, 1 Cowp. 102. See U. S. v. Williams, 5 McL. (U. S.) 183; Swearingen v. U. S., 11 G. & J. (Md.) 373.

A bona-fide entry upon part of the land, under a certificate of entry, will start the running of the statute as to the whole tract. Hannibal, etc., R. Co. v. Clark, 68 Mo. 371.

The statute does not commence to run against a title founded upon a certificate of purchase from the State of swamp and overflowed lands until the same have been certified to the State by the United States government. Packard v. Moss, 8 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 818.

The issuance of a patent, being authorized upon a certificate found to be genuine and legal by the travelling board, but not recommended for patent because not obtained in strict accordance with law, such certificate was thereby validated; and possession of land for the period prescribed by law under a location of such certificate and survey is sufficient to support the defence of the statute of limitations. Spofford v. Bennett, 55 Tex. 293.

Massachusetts—Mississippi.—As to the rule in these States, see Nichols v. Boston, 98 Mass. 39; Green v. Irving, 54 Miss. 450.

Grant.—Where plaintiff in ejectment relies upon the presumption of a grant from the State arising from an adverse possession of thirty years, and introduces deeds which contain no metes and bounds or description by which the land can be located, and offers no evidence of known and visible boundaries, held, that he cannot recover. Price v. Jackson, 91 N. Car. 11.

A party who relies on thirty years' adverse possession to presume a grant is not bound to show that he and those under whom he claims held the possession and claimed the land up to visible boundaries under the law as it existed when this action was brought. Yount v. Miller, 91 N. Car. 331.

Where an easement is granted, to be exercised within certain limits, and the grantor openly exercises a privilege in excess of the limit continuously and without interruption for twenty-one years under claim of right, the law may presume a second grant superadded to the first, covering the larger right. Gerhman v. Erdman, 105 Pa. St. 371.

In ejectment, the plaintiffs claimed under a grant obtained in 1831, the defendants under an entry made in 1836 and grant thereon issued in 1848, and continuous adverse possession of portions of the land within the entry and grant. There was evidence tending to show that the person making the entry in 1836 had, at the time, under inclosure portions of the lands under entries made previous to 1831, the boundaries of which, if ever surveyed, were abandoned after the entry of 1836, which included them all, and could not, in a single instance, be identified at the trial. The inclosures of the defendants had been largely extended since 1831, and since the entry in 1836 and the grant in 1848. Held, that the title of the defendants had been perfected by the statute to the extent of the boundaries of their grant and survey. Peck v. Houston, 5 Lea (Tenn.), 491.

1. States holding that such Title can be acquired.—Vermont.—Knight v. Heaton, 22 Vt. 480.

Massachusetts.—See City of Wheeling v. Campbell, 12 W. Va. 66.

New York.—Varick v. Cor. of New York, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 53. See also Sherman v. Kane, 86 N. Y. 57.

Connecticut.—Litchfield v. Wilmot, 2 Root (Conn.), 288; Beardslee v. French, 7 Conn. 125.

Maryland.—See City of Wheeling v. Campbell, 12 W. Va. 66.

Virginia.—City of Richmond v. Poe, 24 Gratt. 149; Manchester Cotton Mills v. Town of Manchester, 25 Gratt. 825. See, also, Levasser v. Washburn, 11 Gratt. 572.

North Carolina.—Armstrong v. Dalton, 4 Dev. 368.

South Carolina.—Bowen v. Learn, 6 Rich. 298; State v. Pettis, 7 Rich. 390.

Mississippi.—Clemants v. Anderson, 46 Miss. 581. But see City of Vicksburg v. Marshall, 59 Miss. 563.

Texas.—City of Galveston v. Menard, 23 Tex. 349.

55. Effect.—Adverse possession not only entitles the adverse possessor, like every other possessor, to be protected in his possession

Missouri.—County of St. Charles v. Powell, 22 Mo. 525; School Directors v. Georges 50 Mo. 194.

Kentucky.—Rowan's Exrs. v. Town of Portland, 8 B. Mon. 232; Dudley v. Trustees of Frankfort, 12 B. Mon. 610; Alvin v. Town of Henderson, 16 B. Mon. 131.

Ohio.—City of Cincinnati v. Evans, 5 Ohio St. 594; Lake v. Kennedy, 13 Ohio St. 42; Cincinnati v. First Presbyterian Church, 8 Ohio, 298.

Illinois.—City of Peoria v. Johnson, 56 Ill. 45; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. v. City of Joliet, 79 Ill. 40.

Iowa.—City of Pella v. Scholte, 24 Iowa, 128; Burlington v. Railroad Co., 41 Iowa, 134.

States holding that such Title cannot be acquired.—Pennsylvania.—Commonwealth v. McDonald, 16. S. & R. 401; Rung v. Shoenberger, 2 Watts, 23; City of Philadelphia v. Phila. & Reading R., 58 Pa. St. 263; Comm. v. Alburger, 1 Whart. 469; Barter v. Comm., 3 P. & W. 253; Penny Pat. Landing Case, 16 Pa. St. 79; Evans v. Erie County, 66 Pa. St. 222.

New Jersey.—Cross v. Mayor, 18 N. J. Eq. 311; Jersey City v. State, 30 N. J. L. 521; Mayor, etc., v. Morris Canal & Banking Co., 1 Beas. 561.

Rhode Island.—Simmons v. Cornell, 1 R. I. 519.

Louisiana.—Mayer v. Magnon, 4 Mart. 1; S. P. Mayor, etc., v. Maggiori, 4 La. Ann. 73; Ingram v. Police Jury, 20 La. Ann. 226. See, also, Delabigarre v. Second Municipality, 3 La. Ann. 230; Shreveport v. Walpole, 22 La. Ann. 526.

Indiana.—Sims v. City of Frankfort, 79 Ind. 446.

See, generally, Lane v. Kennedy, 13 Ohio St. 42; New Orleans v. United States, 10 Pet. 662; De Vaux v. Detroit, Harring, Ch. (Mich.) 98; Brooks v. Riding, 46 Ind. 15; Abernethy v. Dennis, 49 Mo. 468; Baker v. Johnson, 33 Iowa, 151; Newport v. Taylor, 16 B. Mon. (Ky.) 699; Paine v. Commissioner, etc., Wright's (Ohio) Rep. 417; Kelly's Lessee v. Greenfield, 2 Har. & McHen. (Md.) 132; North Hempstead v. Hempstead, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 137; St. Charles v. Powell, 22 Mo. 525; Armstrong v. Dalton, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 568; County v. Brinthal, 29 Pa. St. 38; St. Louis v. Newman, 45 Mo. 138; Smith v. State, 23 N. J. L. 712; Manko v. Chambersburg, 25 N. J. Eq. 168; Burbank v. Fay, 65 N. Y. 57, 1., P. & C. R. v. Ross, 47 Ind.

25; Sims v. Chattanooga, 1 Lea (Tenn.), 694; Shreveport v. Walpole, 22 La. Ann. 526; Henshaw v. Hunting, 1 Gray (Mass.), 203; Fox v. Hart, 11 Ohio, 414; McFarlane v. Kerr, 10 Bosw. (N. Y.) 249; Kellogg v. Thompson, 66 N. Y. 88; State v. Pettis, 7 Rich. (S. Car.) Law, 390; Memphis v. Lenore, 6 Coldw. (Tenn.) 412; Bowen v. Team, 6 Rich. 298; Brooks v. Riding, 46 Ind. 19; Mitchell v. Rome, 49 Ga. 19.

In City of Wheeling v. Campbell, 12 W. Va. 36, the learned judge, after a very complete review of the authorities, and showing the disproportion between them, continues: "We see no reason why municipal corporations should not be held to the same degree of diligence in guarding their streets and squares from encroachments as natural persons are in protecting their property from the adverse claims of others. We do see great reason why no time should bar the sovereign power, because the officers of the sovereign, whether king or state, have such various and onerous duties to perform that the rights of the sovereign may be neglected; and all the people of the kingdom or state are interested in having the rights of the sovereign preserved intact, and not subject to be impaired or lost by the neglect of officers; but the same reason does not apply to a municipal corporation. A city or town is a compact community, with its city or town council, its committee on streets and alleys, and its street commissioners, whose special duty it is to see that the streets and alleys and squares are kept in proper order and free from obstructions and encroachments. And if with all this machinery and power confined to so narrow a compass, and the interest of the corporation to exercise it, the city authorities permit an individual to encroach upon the streets, alleys, or squares of the city, and hold, enjoy, and occupy the same, claiming them as his own under his title, without interruption or disturbance in that right, for the period prescribed in the statute of limitations, the city not only does, but we think according to reason as well as authority, ought to, lose all right thereto."

Two of the latest cases upon the question will be examined with interest. In City of Vicksburg v. Marshall, 59 Miss. 563, it is held that streets in a city are held by the corporation in trust for the public; and adverse possession by an abutting lot-owner cannot bar the city's against all who cannot show a better title, but also, if the adverse possessor remains in possession for the statutory time, produces right to open them for public use. This case, to all appearances, is a reversal of the decision in Clemants v. Anderson, 46 Miss. 581; but that case does not seem to have been referred to by the court, which affirms the opinion expressed in Dillon's Mun. Corp. sec. 675. Another case, Sims v. City of Frankfort, 79 Ind. 446, is to the same effect, and the opinion is able and interesting.

Adverse possession of an alley in a city for the statutory period will give title to the occupant and bar the city. Fort Smith v. McKibbins, 41 Ark. 45; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 453; Wheeling v. Campbell, 12 W. Va. 36; Pella v. Scholte, 24 Iowa, 283; Dudley v. Trustees, 12 B. Mon. (Ky.) 610.

Title to lands cannot be acquired by adverse possession after the same have been dedicated as a public street. Visalia v. Jacob, 6 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 115; s. c., 65 Cal. 434.

Occupancy of a street or alley of a town or city, by fencing the same up, is not adverse when such occupancy is by the permission of the town or city authorities. Such permission creates between the town or city and the possessor the relation of landlord and tenant. Such a holding cannot afterwards become adverse so as to sustain a plea of limitation until the possessor does some open, hostile act, clearly indicating his adverse claim; and this rule applies to the heir who continues the occupancy which was received from the ancestor. Carter v. La Grange, 60 Tex. 636. See Cheek v. Aurora, 4 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 512; s. c., 92 Ind. 107.

In County of Piatt v. Goodall, 97 Ill. 84, the court said: "Upon a careful consideration of the authorities, the better opinion would seem to be that municipal corporations, in all matters involving mere private rights, as contradistinguished from public rights, strictly so called, are subject to limitation laws to the same extent as private individuals. On the other hand, in all matters involving strictly public rights, they are not subject to the limitation laws as such. But, in the latter class of cases, courts occasionally, under special circumstances which would make it highly inequitable or oppressive to enforce such public rights, interpose by holding the municipality estopped from doing so."

In the year 1801, the city of New York sold to W. lot 194 of its "common lands," so called, the deed describing it as then being in the possession of W. There was a line clearly marking K.'s possession on the south. In 1804, the city leased lot No. 193, adjoining lot 194, on the south; there was then a wall line clearly marking W.'s possession on the south. The tenants of the city occupied lot 193 from the time of said leasing continuously up to 1852, having possession and cultivating up to the said line, W. and his successors in interest occupying north of the line. The city also paid assessments on the land up to said line. In proceedings to open a street across the lots the city treated lot No. 194 as only extending south to said line, paying S., plaintiff's ancestor and the successor to the title of W., the amount awarded, which he received without dissent or claim of title south of the line. Upon the city maps said line was recognized as the boundary between the lots. From 1852 up to 1866 the lands south of said line remained vacant; in the year last mentioned they were sold by the city to defendant, K. In an action of ejectment brought to recover a parcel of land lying south of said line, held, that if the same was covered by the description in the deed to W., the city reacquired title by adverse possession; that its possession could not be presumed to have been in subordination to W.'s title; and that the title so acquired was not lost by the failure to occupy after 1852. In 1851, the city executed to S. a release of ground-rent on lot 194. Held, that this did not affect its title, as it was evidently intended to only embrace lot No. 194, as then possessed by S. Sherman v. Kane, 86 N. Y. 57.

In Alton v. Ill. Trans. Co., 12 Ill. 38, the court said: "Whatever title to public grounds may be vested in the city, she has not the unqualified control and disposition of them. They were dedicated to the public for particular purposes, and only for such purposes can they be rightfully used. For those purposes the city may improve and control them, and adopt all needful rules and regulations for their management and use; but she cannot alien or otherwise dispose of them for her own exclusive benefit; nor are they subject to the payment of her debts. At most she but holds them in trust for the benefit of the public. The right to the use of the property is not limited exclusively to the citizens of A., but the citizens of the State generally have an equal right with them in the appropriate enjoyment of the dedication.”

the effect either of barring the right of the true owner, and thus converting the possessor into the owner, or of depriving the true owner of his right of action to recover his property.<sup>1</sup>

56. Evidence.—Adverse possession is a fact which must be proved, and the burden is always cast upon him who interposes and relies upon it as a defence. But an actual occupancy of land by a defendant, or by those under whom he derives title or possession, accompanied by acts of ownership inconsistent with the fact of ownership in another, is presumptively adverse possession,<sup>2</sup>

1. Clancey v. Houdlette, 39 Me. 451; Hodges v. Eddy, 41 Vt. 485; Austin v. Bailey, 37 Vt. 224; Peele v. Chevees, 8 Allen (Mass.), 89; Jackson v. Dieffendorf, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 269; Reed v. Farr, 35 N. Y. 113; Reformed Church v. Schoolcraft, 65 N. Y. 134; Schrivver v. Schriver, 86 N. Y. 575; Schall v. Williams Valley R. Co., 35 Pa. St. 191; Moore v. Luce, 39 Pa. St. 260; Munshower v. Patton, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 334; s. c., 13 Am. Dec. 678; Watson v. Gregg, 10 Watts (Pa.), 289; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 176; Doe v. Roe, 13 Fla. 602; Dixon v. Cook, 47 Miss. 220; Walker v. Ray, 111 Ill. 315; Bunce v. Bidwell, 43 Mich. 542; Dupont v. Starring, 42 Mich. 492; Smith v. Hamilton, 20 Mich. 433; Ridgway v. Ludlow, 58 Ind. 248; Bowan v. Preston, 48 Ind. 367; De Long v. Mulcher, 47 Iowa, 445; Williams v. Thomas, 65 Iowa, 183; Ridway v. Halliday, 59 Mo. 444; Barry v. Otto, 56 Mo. 177; Shepley v. Cowan, 52 Mo. 559; Bank v. Evans, 51 Mo. 335; Blair v. Smith, 16 Mo. 273; Horbach v. Miller, 4 Neb. 31; Simson v. Eckstein, 22 Cal. 580; Crockett v. Lashbrook, 5 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 530; s. c., 17 Am. Dec. 98; Brent v. Chapman, 5 Cranch. (U. S.) 358; Leffingwell v. Warren, 2 Black (U. S.), 599; Croxall v. Shererd, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 289; Bicknell v. Comstock, 113 U. S. 149; Dickerson v. Colgrove, 100 U. S. 578.

A verbal statement, by one whose title by adverse possession is complete, to the owner of the paper title, that the former “recollected that there was a claim taken up for the property,” and if the latter “believed that he was entitled to it, to go ahead and take it, and he would make no objections,” is ineffectual to divest the title by possession. Byers v. Shephlar, 5 Cent. Repr. (Pa.) 293.

2. Hood v. Hood, 2 Grant (Pa.), 229; Bradford v. Guthrie, 4 Brews. (Pa.) 351; Jackson v. Woodruff, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 276; s. c., 13 Am. Dec. 525; Russell v. Davis, 38 Conn. 562; Johnston v. Gorham, 38

Conn. 513; Rowland v. Updike, 4 Dutch. (N. J.) 101; Parker v. Banks, 79 N. Car. 480; Alexander v. Polk, 39 Miss. 737; Lynde v. Williams, 68 Mo. 360; Jackson v. Berner, 48 Ill. 203; Sharp v. Daugney, 33 Cal. 505.

Every possession of land by one other than the claimant is deemed to be adverse until proof to the contrary is made. Ruffin v. Overby, 88 N. Car. 369. See Wilson v. Spring, 38 Ark. 181; Currie v. Gale, 9 Allen (Mass.), 522.

The fact that the plaintiff's grantor abandoned or relinquished the possession of the premises in controversy to the defendant absolutely, for any cause or consideration, and that the latter thereupon took and held such possession to the exclusion of such grantor and his assigns, may be shown by parol in support of the defence of the statute. The fact that a parcel of land does not appear on the assessment roll of the county in a given year as the property of the defendant, in an action for the recovery of the same, does not tend to contradict the testimony of such defendant to the effect that he paid the taxes thereon, as owner, in such year; nor is it competent evidence in such action, for or against either party, of the ownership of such land. Zeilin v. Rogers, 21 Fed. Repr. 103.

Proof of a recorded deed is not sufficient without proof of possession taken and held under it. Lipscomb v. McClellan, 72 Ala. 151.

Evidence that a party was in possession of land for the statutory period of limitations, which he had mortgaged and afterwards scheduled in bankruptcy, subject to the mortgage, but not showing how or by what acts he maintained his possession, nor the nature of the property, how improved, or whether improved at all, is not evidence of adverse possession. Brookfield v. Stephens, 40 Ark. 366.

Where the title relied on by the plaintiff is that given by the statute of limitations for adverse possession during the statutory time, a deed in fee of the land from the plaintiff to the defendant, given more than ten years before the bringing liable to be rebutted by countervailing proof to the contrary.

of the action, is competent evidence, in connection with a parol lease taken by the plaintiff from the defendant, to show that the possession was not adverse. Roggencamp v. Converse, 15 Neb. 105.

The onus is on one who seeks protection as an adverse possessor to show a hostile possession; but the court pronounces as matter of law the facts which enter into and constitute such a possession. Potts v. Coleman, 67 Ala. 221.

The payment of taxes on a tract of land is not evidence of adverse possession. Raymond v. Morrison, 59 Iowa, 371; Chapman v. Templeton, 53 Mo. 463; McDermott v. Huffman, 70 Pa. St. 131.

Where the defendant in ejectment relies upon mere possession, his evidence must distinctly show the limits of his possession. Hughes v. Israel, 73 Mo. 538.

In ejectment where the plaintiff claims title by adverse possession, it is proper to permit him to show that the land was generally called and spoken of as his in the neighborhood, as this tends to prove the notoriety of his claim of title. Sparrow v. Honey, 44 Mich. 63.

A judgment roll is admissible as evidence of the defendant's adverse possession. Unger v. Roper, 53 Cal. 39.

Declarations that a party does not hold adversely are admissible. Hall v. Sillo-way, 1 Allen (Mass.), 21; McNamee v. Moreland, 26 Iowa, 96; Leger v. Doyle, 11 Rich. (S. Car.) 109; Breidegam v. Hoffmaster, 61 Pa. St. 223; Curlee v. Smith, 91 N. Car. 172; Clements v. Wheeler, 62 Ga. 53.

Declarations of a party in possession are not admissible to prove adverse possession, except when part of the res gesta, or made against his own interest. Saugatuck Cong. Soc. v. East Saugatuck School Dist., 2 Atl. Repr. (Conn.) 751.

The adverse character of the possession is ordinarily, if not always, shown by the facts of the case, and does not receive its character from the declarations of the party in possession, except when such declarations may be regarded as res gesta; consequently, as the mere declarations of a party cannot be admitted in his own favor, it follows that the absence of such declarations cannot be shown by the adverse party against him. Seymour v. Ohio River School Dist., 4 Atl. Repr. (Conn.) 244.

Proof of a verbal sale of the interest of one of the heirs to an estate to another of the heirs, followed by 20 years' adverse possession in such other heir, held to create a sufficient title in the latter. Hyne v. Osborn, 28 N. W. Repr. (Mich.) 821.

Evidence is admissible to show that a person, since dead, was in occupation. Lick v. Diaz, 44 Cal. 479.

It is not necessary to show by direct and pointed evidence that the co-tenant has such knowledge of the adverse claim. It is sufficient if it is not shown otherwise, and the circumstances are such that it may reasonably be presumed that the co-tenant has such knowledge. Knowles v. Brown, 28 N. W. Repr. (Iowa), 409.

The record of proceedings in an action of trespass is evidence of a claim of title. Hollister v. Young, 42 Vt. 403.

Where, in ejectment, the defendant sets up title in his landlord acquired by adverse possession, the evidence of a disclaimer by the landlord in a prior ejectment suit for the same premises against the then possessor is admissible in such action. Dillon v. Center, 10 Pac. Repr. (Cal.) 176.

In ejectment, plaintiff claimed title from a deceased ancestor; widow of ancestor remained in possession, and, on petition asserting that her husband left no heirs, obtained an act of legislature granting her the rights of the State in the land; widow married again, and after her death her husband remained in possession for over twenty years. Held, proper for the jury to determine whether the widow's and her surviving husband's possession was adverse to any heir-at-law. Colgan v. Pellans, 48 N. J. L. 27.

The owner of the servient tenement may show that the right claimed is one that could not be granted away, or that the owner of the servient tenement was legally incapable of making, or the owner of the dominant tenement incapable of receiving, such a grant. He may explain the user or enjoyment by showing that it was under permission asked and granted, or that it was secret and without means of knowledge on his part, or that the user was such as to be neither physically capable of prevention nor actionable. But if there be neither legal incompetency nor physical incapacity, and the user be open and notorious, and be such as to be actionable or capable of prevention, the servient owner can only defeat the acquisition of the right on the ground that the user was contentious, or the continuity of the enjoyment was interrupted during the period of prescription. Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. McFarlan, 43 N. J. L. 695.

The proof to sustain an adverse possession must not be inferential, but clear and positive.<sup>1</sup>

Where the parties in ejectment, being co-tenants, rely upon an ouster, and the defendant claims title by adverse possession, the plaintiff has the burden of showing that he was ousted within the period of the statute of limitations, and the defendant of showing that he had ousted the adverse claimant so long before that the period of limitation had run since. Highstone v. Burdette, 54 Mich. 329.

Ouster is a question of fact which it is the province of the jury to determine, and the facts and circumstances which go to establish the ouster ought, under proper instructions from the court, to be submitted to the jury. Cummings v. Wyman, 10 Mass. 465; Taylor v. Hill, 10 Leigh (Va.), 457; Purcell v. Wilson, 4 Gratt. (Va.) 16; Harmon v. James, 7 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 111; Blackmore v. Gregg, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 182; Washburne v. Cutter, 17 Minn. 361; Carpentier v. Mendenhall, 28 Cal. 484; Clark v. Crego, 47 Barb. (N. Y.) 599; Highstone v. Burdette, 54 Mich. 329. And the burden of proof rests upon the party alleging it. Newell v. Woodruff, 30 Conn. 492; Van Bibber v. Ferdinand, 17 Md. 436; Highstone v. Burdette, 54 Mich. 329.

Whether an agreement has been made and acted upon by two owners of adjoining lands, that a division fence should be the dividing line between their respective premises, is a question of fact for the jury, to be decided by the preponderance of the evidence, the same as in any other disputed question of fact. Bitter v. Saathoff, 98 Ill. 266.

That defendant and his predecessors in title had gathered seaweed from the premises, while not alone evidence of adverse possession, was such evidence, taken in connection with the fact that they claimed to prevent other freeholders of the town from gathering, and that they did so under claim of exclusive right as owners, which claim was known to plaintiffs. Trustees v. Kirk, 84 N. Y. 215; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 505.

To defeat the paramount title by the payment of taxes under color of title, the proof of the payments by the holder of the color of title, or some one interested in the same or on his behalf, must be clear and convincing. Such titles should not be overcome by loose and uncertain testimony, or upon mere conjecture or violent presumptions. Hulbut v. Bradford, 110 Ill. 397.

Where one has the right to the use of land, his occupation will be presumed to be in accordance with this right. Howe v. Stevens, 61 Me. 592.

The mere act of inclosing the land is not evidence of an adverse claim. Russell v. Davis, 38 Conn. 562. Nor the record of a survey. Oatman v. Fowler, 43 Vt. 462.

In an action to determine an adverse claim to vacant or unoccupied real estate, the plaintiff must allege in his complaint, and, if denied, show upon the trial, some title to, or interest in, the land; otherwise he has no standing in court to enable him to recover against a person making an adverse claim to the property. Herrick v. Churchill, 29 N. W. Repr. (Minn.) 129.

When a witness swears to his possession, with repeated acts of ownership extending over many years, such evidence is allowed to go unchallenged to jury; it is not improper for the judge to assume a legal possession to have then been testified to, and to so present the case in his charge to the jury. Stanton v. Mullis, 92 N. Car. 623.

Where it appeared that the defendant in ejectment had conveyed the land in controversy to his son under whom the plaintiff claimed, and the defendant gave evidence tending to show that his son had shortly afterward returned it to him; and that he had ever since held it in open and notorious adverse possession, held, that it was error to exclude evidence offered by the plaintiff to show that at the time of the conveyance to the son the defendant was insolvent, and that he made the deed in order to defraud his creditors, and that his debts had never been paid. Hughes v. Israel, 73 Mo. 538.

1. Weaver v. Wilson, 48 Ill. 125; Jackson v. Berner, 48 Ill. 203.

Authorities for Adverse Possession.—Washburne's Real Prop. (4th Ed.); Tiedeman's Real Prop. §§ 693, 704; Tyler on Eject.; Wood on Lim. chap. 20; Sedgwick & Wait on Trial of Title to Land (2d Ed.), chap. 28; 2 Smith's Lead. Cas. (8th Am. Ed.) pp. 706, 727; Angell on Limitations.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

ADVERTISEMENTS.—Advertisements are “notices published either by handbills or in a newspaper,”<sup>1</sup> and the law relating to them forms a branch—the least satisfactory one—of the subject of NOTICE.

It may be well to state generally, first, that advertisements should be sufficiently full and precise in their terms, as to time, persons, place, and description, to identify the subject-matter notice of which is intended to be given; and, second, that an advertisement cut from a newspaper is not a handbill,<sup>2</sup> nor is a mere advertising sheet a newspaper, for the purposes of advertisement required by law.<sup>3</sup>

When not required by statute, ordinance, rule of court, or other formal regulation, advertisements do not, per se, amount to actual notice of their contents, but are resorted to, and accepted, as the most available, and, under the circumstances, the best, substitute therefor, in cases where actual notice is either a legal or physical impossibility. Hence, in the absence, and independently, of a positive direction to advertise, the general rule of law is: Whenever actual notice is necessary, but is legally or physically impossible (as by reason of a want of knowledge or jurisdiction of the parties to be notified, or of their whereabouts) publication of the notice must be made in a newspaper, if any there be, published at, or as near as possible to, the place where the persons to be affected thereby are supposed to be, or were when last heard of. Such advertisement would, in law, generally be construed to have the same effect as actual notice; of course, if it could be shown that the party to whom it was addressed did, as a matter of fact, see and read the advertisement, or was informed of its contents, the notice would be actual in fact as well as in theory. For the occasions when such advertisements are necessary, the reader is referred to the general subject of NOTICE, under which head they properly belong.

Where an advertisement is directed to be inserted in a particular paper, the course pointed out must be pursued; and all other local requirements must likewise be complied with. If not otherwise expressly provided, the paper is to be one printed in the English language.<sup>4</sup>

1. Bouvier's Law Dict.

Public Sales.—The statutory directions to advertise public judicial sales of land for a certain period of time are only directory. Ware v. Bradford, 2 Ala. 676. And failure to comply therewith will not invalidate the sale. Maddox v. Sullivan, 2 Rich. Eq. 4; Howard v. North, 5 Texas, 290. Though it will make the sheriff liable to any one injured in consequence thereof. Brooks v. Rooney, 11 Georgia, 423. An adjournment of the sale need not be published in the newspapers: public proclamation thereof at the place where the sale was to have been held is sufficient. Allen v. Cole, 1 Stockt. 286. The officer making the sale must, if he entrusts the duty of advertising to others, be able to state from his own knowledge that the property was advertised. Price v. Simpson, 8 Ky. L. Rep. 327. The description need only be sufficient to identify the property to be sold. Allen v. Cole, 1 Stockt. 286. What constitutes such a description is a question for the jury. Collier v. Vason, 12 Ga. 440.

2. Clark v. Chambers, 1 Pittsb. 222.

3. Tyler v. Bowen, 1 Pittsb. 225.

4. Road in Upper Hanover, 44 Pa. St. 277.

ADVICE—AFFECTED—AFFIDAVITS.

Moreover, it is generally understood that secular newspapers, if there be any, are intended; in fact, this is, in some few instances, positively directed in the enactment.

When an advertisement is commanded to be inserted in more than one newspaper, publication should not (where there is any alternative) be made in two papers published in the same office, or by the same man or company; indeed, this is specifically prohibited in sections of some of the States.

ADVICE.—Advice implies the giving of counsel.

AFFECTED.—To produce or effect a change about something.<sup>2</sup>

AFFIDAVITS. See also APPEAL; ATTACHMENT; COSTS; EQUITY; EVIDENCE; PRACTICE; SERVICE.

1. Definition.

2. Who may make.

3. Who may take.

4. Requisites.

5. Language.

6. Use.

7. Amendment.

8. Stale Affidavits.

1. Definition.—An affidavit is a formal<sup>3</sup> written<sup>4</sup> (or printed) voluntary<sup>5</sup> ex parte<sup>6</sup> statement, sworn (or affirmed) to before an officer authorized to take it, to be used in legal proceedings.

2. Who may make.—The uses of an affidavit necessitate other rules as to the affiant's testimony than those governing the case of witnesses. All affidavits may be, and those to the merits must

1. In Norcum v. D'Ench & Ringling, 17 Mo. 99, power was given by the testator to his widow to sell and dispose of his property with the advice and consent of the executor. Held, the refusal of the executor to give his consent did not prevent a valid sale; advice meant general advice, and not consent to each act; and therefore a court of equity would on application authorize the sale.

2. In Statute.—A judgment entered upon a warrant of attorney given by a beneficed clergyman to secure payment of an annuity need not be registered, under 8 G. 2, c. 6; for though it may be enforced by sequestration, yet the benefice is not affected by the judgment. Cottle v. Warrington, 5 B. & Ad. 453. But a suit for the specific execution of a contract for the sale of land is a suit concerning real estate whereby the same may be affected, under the Missouri code. Ens-worth v. Holly et al., 33 Mo. 370.

3. For the formal requisites of an affidavit, see below, 4. A bare oath (or affirmation) need not contain these formal requisites, but as every affidavit includes the oath (or affirmation) a defective affidavit may be valid as an oath (or affirmation), to show what facts were testified to. Burns v. Doyle, 28 Wis. 460.

4. There is no such thing as an unwritten affidavit. Windley v. Bradway, 77 N. Car. 333.

5. The law presumes that the performance of every act required by law is voluntary, but no affidavit is valid unless obtained by legal means and for a legal purpose. Where affidavits can only be compelled for legal use as evidence, they cannot be compelled merely for information. Dudley v. McCord, 65 Ia. 671. In Robb v. McDonald, 29 Ia. 330, and State v. Seaton, 61 Ia. 563, it was held, by a divided court, that a justice's decision as to his jurisdiction to require an affidavit was final, and that a party refusing to make an affidavit was in contempt, except in gross cases of abuse of authority. An affidavit is also voluntary in the sense of not being made under cross-examination. See next note.

6. The term "deposition" is often used as a generic expression, to comprehend all written evidence verified by oath, affidavits included, but there is a clear distinction between the two, in that in taking depositions the opposite party can always cross-examine, while affidavits are ex parte. "A deposition is evidence given under interrogatories, oral or written, and usually written down by an official person; while an affidavit is the mere voluntary act of the party making the oath, and may be, and generally is, taken without the cognizance of the one against whom it is to be used." Stimpson v. Brooks, 3 Blatch. (U. S.) 456. By the Kansas Code notice to the adverse party is the distinctive criterion. Atchison v. Bartholow, 4 Kan. 124.

be, made by parties<sup>1</sup> to the cause in which the affidavits are used.

A person convicted of an infamous crime,<sup>2</sup> a very young child, or a person governed by insane delusions<sup>3</sup> as to the matter in hand, is incompetent to make an affidavit.

Agent.—An agent<sup>4</sup> may sometimes make an affidavit for his principal. So, too, a third person who is not an agent.<sup>5</sup>

1. "Questions which do not involve the matter in controversy, but matter which is auxiliary to the trial, which facilitate the preparation for it, often depend on the oath of the party. An affidavit to the materiality of a witness, for the purpose of obtaining a continuance, or a commission to take his deposition, or an affidavit of his inability to attend, is usually made by the party and received without objection. So affidavits in support of a motion for new trial are often received." Marshall, C. J., in Taylor v. Biggs, 1 Pet. 591. In that case a party's affidavit that a document had been lost or destroyed was received to make secondary evidence of the contents admissible. So a party's affidavit was received in support of a motion for judgment as in case of nonsuit. Ames v. Merriman, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 498. An affidavit may be made by a party in interest, even if not a party to the record. Fraley v. Steinmetz, 22 Pa. St. 437; Sleeper v. Dougherty, 2 Whart. (Pa.) 177; Hunter v. Reilly, 36 Pa. St. 509; Miller v. Hooker, 2 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 124.

Corporations.—The chief officer of a corporation should make its affidavits. Ex parte Sergeant, 17 Vt. 425.

The affidavit of a wife, prosecuting or defending as a feme sole in a suit for divorce, will be received. Kirby v. Kirby, 1 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 261. So that of a negro, in former times, was received in support of a habeas corpus. Norris v. Newton, 5 McL. 92. An affidavit cannot be attacked by a counter-affidavit that the affiant is an atheist. He must have an opportunity for explanation or reply. Leonard v. Manard, 1 Hall (N. Y.), 200.

2. A convicted felon does not become competent to make an affidavit by serving out his term. People v. Robertson, 26 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 90. It makes no matter that the affidavit was made before conviction. The incompetency relates back to the time of the indictment. Webster v. Mann, 56 Tex. 119.

3. The affidavit of a person in a lunatic asylum must state in the jurat the circumstances under which, and the place where, it was made, so that the affiant's mental condition can be inquired into before the affidavit is received. Spittle v. Walton, L. R. 11 Eq. 420; 40 L. J. Ch. 368.

4. The affidavits necessary at various stages of legal procedure, in support of motions, petitions, appeals, attachments, etc., are often made by the party's attorney or solicitor. In the U. S. courts, bills in equity are usually verified by oath, and this may be done by an agent or solicitor, if he has signed the bill. Such agent should make oath (except, perhaps, in the case of a corporation plaintiff), to the reason for his doing so instead of his principal. Blake Crusher Co. v. Ward, 1 Am. Law Times R. 423.

A proctor in admiralty can make an affidavit for the party. The Harriet Olc. Adm. 222.

When counsel, who is not solicitor, makes an affidavit, he must show why it is not made by the party or his solicitor. People v. Spaulding, 2 Paige (N. Y.), 326.

In Michigan the agent or attorney need not swear that he is such agent or attorney, if the fact be stated in the affidavit by way of recital. Wetherwax v. Paine, 2 Mich. 555. In Arkansas the affidavit need not state that the affiant made it for the plaintiff, as the court will not presume that he was unauthorized. Mandel v. Peet, 18 Ark. 236. The contrary was held in Miller v. R. W. Co., 58 Wis. 310; Wiley v. Aultman, 53 Wis. 560; Wallace v. Byrne, 17 La. Ann. 8; and Willis v. Lyman, 22 Tex. 268. In the latter case the petition was signed by "Fly & Fly, attorneys for plaintiffs," and the affidavit made by B. F. Fly, without stating that he was their attorney. It was said, "The court cannot know that the person who makes the affidavit is one of the persons who signed the petition, nor will the court look to the records in the original suit to find information which ought to be contained in the affidavit itself." In Missouri, where an affidavit was sworn to by the same person who had signed the petition as attorney for plaintiff, it was held good. Gilkeson v. Knight, 71 Mo. 403. When a party's attorney-at-law makes an affidavit, he need not state that he is attorney in fact. Austin v. Latham, 19 La. 88. But the affidavit of an attorney's clerk is invalid, without some good reason. Jackson v. Woodworth, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 136; Chase v. Edwards, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 283.

5. When the party is disabled by illness, the affidavit of a third person will be received. James v. Young, 1 Dall. (Pa.) 248.

3. Who may take.—An affidavit must be sworn to before a competent<sup>1</sup> person, i.e., before a particular officer, or one of a particular class, where a statute or rule of court requires it; otherwise, before any one<sup>2</sup> authorized to administer an oath.

In most States,<sup>3</sup> a party cannot make an affidavit before his

In Pennsylvania an affidavit of defence made by counsel, or any one other than the defendant himself, must state that it was made for him, and also show sufficient cause for his not making it himself. Marshall v. Witte, 1 Phila. 117; Gross v. Painter, 1 Weekly Notes of Cases (Phila.), 154; City v. Devine, 1 Weekly Notes of Cases (Phila.), 358; Russell v. Foran, 1 Weekly Notes of Cases (Phila.), 470.

The affidavits of two attorneys, each swearing to different facts, will be received if, taken together, they cover all the facts required to be sworn to. Lewis v. Stewart, 62 Tex. 352.

An affidavit by an attorney or agent, stating the facts positively, need not state his means of knowledge. Anderson v. Wehe, 58 Wis. 615.

In Iowa the professional statement of counsel is equivalent to an affidavit. Rice v. Griffith, 9 Iowa, 539.

1. An affidavit made before an officer incompetent to take it will be disregarded. Haight v. Proprietors, 4 Wash. C. C. 601, 606. In Regina v. Bloxham, 6 A. & E. N. S. 528, the words "before me" had been omitted from the jurat, so that the affidavit did not show that it had been sworn to before a competent officer. This was a fatal defect. See also Wood v. Jefferson Co. Bank, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 194; Dunn v. Ketchum, 38 Cal. 93; Love v. McAlister, 42 Ark. 183.

Affidavits for use in the U. S. courts must be sworn to before a commissioner, or, in bankruptcy, a register. Affidavits taken before notaries are valid only in equity, or in proof of debts in bankruptcy, or as depositions de bene esse. In re McKibben, 12 Bank. Reg. 97; 2 Cent. L. J. 277.

An affidavit in a proceeding in a federal court, taken before a State master in chancery, and not by a person empowered by act of Congress to administer oaths, will be disregarded. Haight v. Proprietors, 4 Wash. C. C. 601, 606. But a State officer may be made competent by appointment of a federal court, under authority of an act of Congress. Gray v. Tunstall, Hemp. 558. Or by the regulation of the head of a federal department. U. S. v. Bailey, 9 Pet. (U. S.) 238. Or by the custom of a department.

U. S. v. Winchester, 2 McL. (U. S.) 135.

Where a statute authorizes certain officers out of the State to take affidavits, an affidavit made before one not named in the statute is invalid. People v. Tioga, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 516; Stanton v. Ellis, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 319; Benedict v. Hall, 76 N. Car. 113; Love v. McAlister, 42 Ark. 183.

Where a justice of the peace is authorized to take affidavits only in certain cases, he is incompetent outside the limits of his authority. Christman v. Floyd, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 340. In Scotland, however, a justice can take affidavits in any matter. It is a ministerial, not judicial, act. Kerr v. Marquis of Ailsa, 1 Macq. 736.

Where a court has power to appoint persons to take affidavits, it may appoint classes as well as individuals. Gray v. Tunstall, Hemp. (U. S.) 558. An officer of the court, as such, has no power to take an affidavit, except in its presence and by its direction. Roberts v. Railway Co., 1 Brew. (Pa.) 538; but, under those circumstances, it may be done by one who has no general authority. U. S. v. Nihols, 4 McL. (U. S.) 23.

If an affidavit must be taken before a special officer of the court, (e.g., a commissioner of the court of chancery), it will be worthless if the officer signs the jurat as acting in another capacity. Frost v. Hayward, 10 M. & W. 673.

The commission of a public commissioner need not be proved to validate an affidavit taken by him. Rex v. Howard, 1 Moo. & Rob. 187.

The affidavit required by the Illinois statute, on an information, may be taken by a justice as well as a county judge. Carrow v. People, 113 Ill. 550.

2. A notary of another State. Tucker v. Ladd, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 47. When authenticated in substantial compliance with the statute. Bank v. Cowen, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 461; but contra, Benedict v. Hall, 76 N. Car. 113. A commissioner for one State residing in another State, even in the case of an application for a receiver. Young v. Rollins, 78 N. Car. 485.

3. In England it has been held that a court will discharge, with costs, a rule obtained on an affidavit before the party's attorney. Hopkinson v. Buckley, 8 own attorney, even if such attorney be authorized to take them ex officio; but this rule does not obtain everywhere.<sup>1</sup>

Notaries have no power by the common law to take affidavits ex officio, but it is universally granted by statute.<sup>2</sup>

4. Requisites.—A false affidavit makes the affiant liable to a prosecution for perjury; and therefore no affidavit is valid unless it be such as to support an indictment, if false, i.e., unless it is certain both as to form and substance.

A. The formal requisites are: (a) Title, (b) Venue, (c) Signature, (d) Jurat, (e) Authentication.

(a) Title.—An affidavit must generally be entitled in the suit in which it is used.<sup>3</sup>

There are some cases, however, in which an affidavit cannot be legally entitled, e.g., an affidavit purporting to be made in a suit when no such suit is pending.<sup>4</sup>

Taunt. 74; Tidd's Prac. *494. So in the United States, the rule is that an affidavit cannot be taken before an attorney in the cause. Taylor v. Hatch, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 340; Toorle v. Smith, 34 Kan. 27. The other party should at once move to set the proceedings aside for irregularity, as it is too late to do so after judgment. Gilmore v. Hempstead, 4 How. (N. Y.) 152. The attorney must be such when he took the affidavit. Vary v. Godfrey, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 587. It is insufficient to show merely that he is such when the objection is taken. Kidde v. Davis, 5 Dowling's Pr. Cas. 568. This may, however, be shown by general statements of the party himself. Haddock v. Williams, 7 Dowling's Pr. Cas. 327. Or by the description in the declaration. Prynne v. Roe, 8 Dowling's Pr. Cas. 340.

The rule does not apply to proceedings to admeasure dower. Griffin v. Borst, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 195. Nor to an affidavit to hold to bail. Adams v. Mills, 3 How. (N. Y.) 219.

Where a party's attorney and counsel are different persons, an affidavit may be made before the counsel. Willard v. Judd, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 531. It may be made before the attorney's partner if he be not also attorney of record. Hallen back v. Whitaker, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 2; Duke of Northumberland v. Todd, L. R. 7 Ch. Div. 777; Turner v. Bates, L. R. 10 Q. B. 292. Where a solicitor was a party, but his firm not solicitors of record, an affidavit taken by a clerk of the firm was allowed. Foster v. Harvey, 4 De G. J. & S. 59.

A party's attorney is incompetent even to take an affidavit of service of notice by one not the party himself. Hammond v. Freeman, 9 Ark. 62.

1. The rule as to a party's attorney is not held to in California (Reavis v. Cowell 56 Cal. 588), Minnesota (Young v. Young, 18 Minn. 90), or Wisconsin (Daws v. Glasgow, 1 Burn. 8; s.c. 1 Pin. 171).

2. Proffat on Notaries, § 20.

3. Baxter v. Seaman, 1 How. (N. Y.) 51;

In Humphrey v. Caude, 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 509, it was held that an affidavit wrongly entitled was invalid though the cause was correctly set out in the body of the instrument. Usually, however, the absence of title or a mistake in the title will not invalidate the affidavit, if it can be clearly identified as having been filed in the case. Anonymous, 4 Hill (N. Y.), 597; Harris v. Lester, 80 Ill. 307.

Minor defects in the title, which would not prevent an indictment for perjury, do not vitiate the affidavit; e.g., the omission of the Christian name of one of several parties. Maury v. Van Arnum, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 370.

The title need not have been written upon the affidavit when it was made, if it be shown that it was made for the purposes of the suit in which it was filed, and for no other purpose. This may be shown by the affidavit of counsel. Shook v. Rankin, 2 Law and Eq. R. 236.

4. In such a case the affidavit is treated as a nullity. The affidavit accompanying a writ of replevin is an instance of this. Milliken v. Seelye, 3 Den. (N. Y.) 54; Stacy v. Farnham, 2 How. (N. Y.) 26. The reason is that there being no such cause in existence at the time, the affiant could not be convicted of perjury, if the affidavit were false. The title is not surplusage, as it would, in many cases, render the body of the affidavit meaningless. Blake Crusher Co. v. Ward, 1 Am. L. Times R. 423. On appeal from one court to another, the affidavit and other proceedings must be en-

(b) Venue.—The venue, being prima-facie evidence of the county in which the affidavit was made, is an essential part of the affidavit.<sup>1</sup>

(c) Signature.—Where the affiant's signature is required by statute or rule of court, the affidavit is a nullity without it;<sup>2</sup> otherwise not,<sup>3</sup> as the swearing, not the signing, will support an indictment for perjury.

(d) Jurat.—As an affidavit must appear on its face to have been taken in compliance with all legal requisites<sup>4</sup> and before the proper officer,<sup>5</sup> the jurat must be signed by him.<sup>6</sup>

This rule has sometimes been relaxed on clear proof that the affidavit was in fact sworn to, and all other legal requirements complied with.<sup>7</sup> titled in the appeal cause, but where the court is the same, as on appeal from a Vice-Chancellor to a Chancellor, there is no change of title. Hawley v. Donnelly, 8 Paige (N. Y.), 415.

1. Without a venue, an affidavit is a nullity, even though sworn to before an officer whose residence is mentioned in the jurat. Cook v. Staats, 18 Barb. (N. Y.) 407; Lane v. Morse, 6 How. (N. Y.) 394; Thompson v. Burhans, 61 N. Y. 52; People v. De Camp, 5 N. Y. Weekly Dig. 462. The venue should show that it was taken within the officer's jurisdiction. Ladow v. Groom, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 429. When the venue is stated, the officer need not state his place of residence or official district. It will be presumed that he resided and acted within the venue or within his proper official district. Parker v. Baker, 8 Paige (N. Y.), 428; Mosher v. Heydrick, 30 How. (N. Y.) 161; In re Sheephead, etc., R. Co., 5 N. Y. Weekly Dig. 488.

It has been held that while a venue is proper and desirable, its absence is not fatal, since, in case of a prosecution for perjury, evidence of the place and the officer's authority might be adduced dehors the jurat. Reavis v. Cowell, 56 Cal. 558; Young v. Young, 18 Minn. 90; Barnard v. Darling, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 218; Parker v. Baker, 8 Paige (N. Y.), 428; Prof-fat on Notaries, § 52. The omission of the letters "ss." from the venue is immaterial. Smith v. Richardson, 1 Utah, 194.

2. Hargardine v. Van Horn, 72 Mo. 370; Hathaway v. Scott, 11 Paige (N. Y.), 173; Nave v. Ritter, 41 Ind. 301.

Where a statute gives a form for an affidavit with a blank space for the signature, it will apparently be required. Cohen v. Mance, 28 Ga. 27.

3. Jackson v. Vogel, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 540; Haff v. Spicer, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 190; Melins v. Shaffer, 3 Denio (N. Y.), 60;

Hitsman v. Garrard, 1 Harr. (N. J.) 124; Shelton v. Berry, 19 Tex. 154; Watts v. Womack, 44 Ala. 605; Noble v. U. S., Dev. (Ct. Cl.) 83; Alford v. McCarmac, 90 N. Car. 151; Gill v. Ward, 23 Ark. 16; Redus v. Wofford, 4 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 579; Bates v. Robinson, 8 Iowa, 318.

4. A certificate that the affiant was duly sworn creates a prima-facie presumption that he was so sworn as to make the oath binding on his conscience. Fryatt v. Lindo, 3 Edw. (N. Y.) 239. Where several persons take the oath, the officer need not certify that they were severally sworn. Randall v. Baker, 30 N. H. 335.

5. The jurat must contain the words "before me" or their equivalent. Regina v. Bloxham, 6 Q. B. 528; Smart v. Howe, 3 Mich. 590.

6. State v. Green, 15 N. J. Law, 88; Ladow v. Groom, 1 Denio (N. Y.), 429; Davis v. Rich, 2 How. (N. Y.) 86; Morris v. State, 2 Tex. App. 502. A paper drawn and filed as an affidavit cannot be treated as such if not signed by the proper officer. Bank v. Hinchcliffe, 4 Ark. 444; Cantwell v. State, 27 Ind. 505; McDermaid v. Russell, 41 Ill. 490. An omission of the officer's title of office is immaterial. People v. Van Rensselaer, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 543; Hunter v. Leconte, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 728. Where an oath not required to be in writing is written, the omission of the officer's attestation does not invalidate it. Pottsville v. Curry, 32 Pa. St. 443.

7. Kruse v. Wilson, 79 Ill. 233; Cook v. Jenkins, 30 Ia. 452. In the former case it was said: "If an oath was administered, and by the proper officer, as it assuredly was, the law was satisfied, and the mere omission of the clerk to put his name to an act, which was done through him as the instrument, should not prejudice an innocent party who has done all he was required to do. The clerk's omission to write his name, where it should have been written, was not the fault or neglect of the affiant. He signed and swore to the affidavit."

(e) Authentication.—In most States the jurat must be authenticated by the officer's seal.<sup>1</sup>

B. Affidavits must be certain in substance, i.e., something definite must be sworn to.<sup>2</sup>

1. Tunis v. Withrow, 10 Iowa 305; Chase v. Street, 10 Iowa 593. It has been held in Illinois that a notary's jurat, signed but not sealed, is valid within the county of his residence. Stout v. Slaterry, 12 Ill. 162. An affidavit sworn to before a court clerk, for use only in that court, does not need the court's seal. Mountjoy v. State, 78 Ind. 172. In Everson v. Selby, 32 Ind. 344, an authentication by the clerk of the Supreme Court of New York, an affidavit having been taken by a judge, was held defective because it did not certify that the court was a court of record. So Coward v. Dillinger, 56 Md. 59. An affidavit made before a commissioner of one State, resident in another State, is sufficiently authenticated by his signature and seal. Young v. Rollins, 85 N. Car. 485.

2. The test to determine the sufficiency of an affidavit is the possibility of charging perjury on its falsity. An affidavit which does not comply with the statute is bad, whether it follows literally the words of the statute or not. Thus, where the law authorized the issue of an attachment upon affidavit "that the defendant has assigned, disposed of, or concealed, or is about to assign, dispose of, or conceal, any of his property with intent to defraud his creditors," and the affidavit was in the precise words of the law, it was considered bad. Miller v. Munson, 34 Wis. 579; Drake on Attachment, § 107 a. The Texas revised statutes require that the affidavit on an attachment shall state that the attachment is not sued out for the purpose of injuring or harassing the defendant. An affidavit stated, "This attachment is not sued out for the purpose of injuring and harassing the said defendant," and a motion to quash for non-compliance with the statute was sustained. Moody v. Levy, 58 Tex. 532. In Blum v. Davis, 56 Tex. 426, the rule was followed that where the disjunctive or is used ("that the defendants were about to convert their property or a part thereof") not to connect two distinct facts of different natures, but to characterize and include two or more phases of the same fact, attended with the same results, it was proper for the affidavit to pursue the language of the statute, notwithstanding the disjunctiveness of the sentence. This was followed in Irvin v. Howard, 37 Ga. 23. See Drake on Attachment, § 102. An affidavit must be consistent in itself. In Dunnenbaum v. Schram, 59 Tex. 281, the affidavit stated that the defendants "had disposed of their property, etc.," and that they "were about to dispose of" it. West, A. J., said: "The affidavit in this case states that two distinct, separate, and inconsistent facts exist. The existence at the same time of both facts is sworn to. The statute requires in every case a direct, positive assertion, under oath, of the existence of the specific ground or fact on account of the existence of which the writ of attachment is demanded. There must be no ambiguity or uncertainty contained in the affidavit itself on the subject," and the affidavit was held bad. Where, however, the statute treats the disposing of the property and the being about to dispose of it as one entire cause for the attachment, an affidavit stating both is good. Klenk v. Schwalm, 19 Wis. 111; Parsons v. Stockbridge, 42 Ind. 121.

In Pearce v. Hawkins, 62 Tex. 435, an affidavit for attachment alleging "that defendants aforesaid have secreted their property for the purpose of defrauding their creditors, and that they (defendants) have disposed of their property with intent to defraud their creditors," was held defective, because it charged two inconsistent grounds for attachment.

In Hopkins v. Nichols, 22 Tex. 206; Garner v. Burleson, 26 Tex. 348; Culbertson v. Cabeen, 29 Tex. 247, and Carpenter v. Pridgen, 40 Tex. 32, it has been held that an affidavit for a writ of attachment, in which more than one of the distinct statutory grounds of attachment was embraced, and set out in the alternative, was not sufficient.

If two separate grounds can rationally coexist, an affidavit stating both is good. Kennan v. Evans, 36 Ga. 90.

An affidavit must comply with the statute requiring it. A statute allowing service of a summons by publication when the defendant cannot "after due diligence be found within the State," is not complied with by an affidavit of the defendant's non-residence. Carleton v. Carleton, 85 N. Y. 313.

An averment in an affidavit for an attachment, that "the defendant is indebted

The facts stated in an affidavit must not vary from those stated

ed to the plaintiff in a sum stated," and that the latter "is justly entitled to recover said sum," is not a compliance with the requirement of the Code of Civil Procedure (§ 636) that plaintiff must show by affidavit that he "is entitled to recover a sum stated therein, over and above all counter-claims known to him;" and when the requirement is only met by the averments stated, the affidavit is insufficient to give the judge jurisdiction to grant the warrant. Ruppert v. Haug, 87 N. Y. 141.

An affidavit for the possession of personal property which alleges that the property is wrongfully detained, instead of "unlawfully," as required by the statute, and does not charge that the detention is by the defendant, seems to be bad. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Payne, 103 Ind. 183.

An affidavit that "this appeal is in good faith" is a substantial compliance with the statute requiring an affidavit "that the appeal is made in good faith." Filer, etc., Co. v. Sohns, 63 Wis. 118.

Where the affidavit, made to entitle the holder of a tax certificate of purchase to a deed, shows that the property was "taxed or specially assessed in the names of Robert Hervey and Robert Henry," and the allegation of service is that "he served said notice on said Robert Hervey and Robert Henry, by handing the same to and leaving the same with Robert Hervey personally," it fails to show a sufficient service as to Robert Henry, and will not authorize the making of a tax deed, and, if made, it may be set aside as a cloud on the title, upon payment of the amount paid at the tax sale and for subsequent taxes, with six per cent interest. Gage v. Hervey, 111 Ill. 305. "The constitution requires the service of notice of a tax sale and when the time of redemption will expire, upon the occupant of the land, to be a personal service, and the statute requires the affidavit of service to state particularly the facts relied on as a compliance with the constitution. A failure to state the mode of service, and the facts relied on as showing a service, is a fatal defect, and renders a tax deed made under it invalid." Davis v. Gassnell, 113 Ill. 121; Price v. England, 109 Ill. 395.

An affidavit must state specific facts. In an action of covenant on an agreement under seal, an affidavit of defence making general allegations of undue influence in procuring the agreement is insufficient. The acts resulting in undue influence should be set out. Mathews v. Sharp, 99 Pa. St. 560.

An affidavit for an attachment must state the amount of the defendant's indebtedness to the plaintiff; and if the cause of action be of such a character that the plaintiff cannot know the amount, no attachment founded upon it can be lawfully executed. Hence, an affidavit stating that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff in an amount specified "as near as this plaintiff is able to determine" is insufficient. Hawes v. Clement, 64 Wis. 152.

An affidavit in attachment stating that "the claim in this action is for money due on three promissory notes, copies of which are filed with the complaint, executed by the defendants to the plaintiff, that the claim is just, and that he believes the plaintiff ought to recover," etc., sufficiently describes the nature of the plaintiff's claim. Fremont Co. v. Fulton, 103 Ind. 393.

An affidavit for the taxation of costs should itemize them with exactness, especially if those to be charged with them are not interested alike. Genesee Bank v. Ottawa Circuit Judge, 54 Mich. 305. An affidavit by the plaintiffs' attorney, stating generally that "plaintiffs cannot safely go to trial, for want of material testimony," giving neither the name nor the residence of any witness, and failing to show the substance of the testimony sought, or any diligence used, or excuse for want of diligence, is wholly inadequate to obtain a continuance. Ilett v. Collins, 102 Ill. 402. See also Moon v. Helfer, 25 Kan. 139; Kew Valley Bank v. Chester, 55 Cal. 49.

An affidavit for publication in a chancery cause which merely states that the affiant cannot find the defendant in the State by reason of his absence from the State, or of his concealment within it, is not sufficient. The affidavit should state the facts of inquiry and investigation, so that the court can see that the conclusion that the party cannot be found for the reason stated is a reasonable one upon such facts. Thompson v. Shiawassee Circuit Judge, 54 Mich. 237.

An affidavit in support of an application for a special legal process, e.g., attachment, must state facts sufficient to warrant the court in granting the application. Consequently, an affidavit which states that the debtor did an act or acts which of themselves are not necessarily fraudulent, with an intent to defraud his creditors, without more is not sufficient.

in the petition.<sup>1</sup> An affidavit, however, will not be technically construed, but will be held sufficient if in good faith it seemed intended to meet the plaintiff's case.<sup>2</sup>

Affidavits must not contain scandalous matter,<sup>3</sup> and must be free from interlineations and erasures.<sup>4</sup>

5. Language.—The fact that the affidavit has been translated,<sup>5</sup> or is in a language not understood by the affiant,<sup>6</sup> is immaterial, if it appears to have been properly made.

6. Use.—In practice, affidavits are often required at the inception of proceedings, where a stringent remedy (e.g., attachment) is sought; at intermediate stages in a suit, when it is sought to modify the status of the litigation by an exercise of the court's discretionary power; on all motions to open defaults or grant delay in proceedings, and other applications by the defendant to the favor of the court; to show a prima-facie defence to a certain class of demands, thereby entitling the defendant to a trial of the cause, and for other ends.<sup>7</sup>

They are not, in general, competent as evidence<sup>8</sup> upon a material question at issue, except against the affiant, as evidence of an admission by him.

7. Amendment.—All minor defects in affidavits may be amended;<sup>9</sup> and even some more fundamental ones.<sup>10</sup>

Delaplain v. Armstrong, 21 W. Va. 211. It must show that the plaintiff's claim is just. This may be by a direct statement to that effect, or by a showing of facts. Wilkins v. Tourtellot, 28 Kan. 825.

An affidavit for attachment before a justice of the peace containing as a statement of the plaintiff's cause of action "that the said claim in said action is for damages in not delivering goods purchased," does not show that the case is for a debt or demand arising upon contract, judgment, or decree, and does not authorize the issuance of an attachment against a foreign corporation or a non-resident of the State. Rouss v. Wright, 14 Neb. 457.

All matters stated on information and belief must be distinctly shown to be so stated. Fleming v. Wells, 65 Cal. 336.

1. Evans v. Tucker, 59 Tex. 249.

2. Haight v. Arnold, 48 Mich. 512.

3. Opdyke v. Marble, 18 Abb. (N. Y.) 375; Lewis v. Woolrych, 3 Dowl. Pr. Cas. 692; Cassen v. Bond, 2 Younge & J. 531; Balls v. Smythe, 2 M. & G. 350.

4. Didier v. Warner, 2 Edm. (N. Y.) 41; Williams v. Clough, 1 A. & E. 376; Chambers v. Barnard, 9 Dowl. Pr. Cas. 557.

5. An affidavit in German, sworn before a German court, is valid if translated, and the translation verified. In re Eady, 6 Dowl. Pr. Cas. 615.

6. The oath may be administered in a foreign language, if it is translated by an interpreter to the affiant. In re Eady, 6 Dowl. Pr. Cas. 615. Where the jurat certified "that the affidavit was interpreted by F. C., professor of languages (he having first sworn that he understood the French and English languages), to the deponent, who was afterwards sworn to the truth thereof," it was held sufficient, though it did not appear that the affiant understood the language into which the affidavit was interpreted, nor that the interpreter was sworn truly to interpret. Bosc v. Solliers, 6 Dow. & Ry. 514; 4 B. & C. 358; Marzetti v. Du Jouffroy, 1 Dowl. Pr. Cas. 41.

7. E.g., the affidavit, accompanying an appeal or writ of error, that it is not intended for delay.

8. Richardson v. Golder, 3 Wash. C. C. 109; Patterson v. Maryland Ins. Co., 3 Har. & J. (Md.) 71; Layton v. Cooper, 2 N. J. Law, 47; Armstrong v. Boylan, 4 N. J. Law, 84; Lewis v. Bacon, 3 Hen. & M. (Va.) 89.

An affidavit made ante litem motam may be received as hearsay to prove pedigree. Hurst v. Jones, 1 Wall, Jr. (U. S.) App. iii.

9. E.g., title improperly inserted. Stacy v. Farnham, 2 How. (N. Y.) 26. The affiant's signature may be added. Watts v. Womack, 44 Ala. 605; Agric. Assoc. v. Madison, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 407. Contra, Cohen v. Manco, 28 Ga., 27.

10. An affidavit so drawn as to appear

AFFINITY—AFFIRMANCE—AFFRAY.

8. Stale Affidavits.—Affidavits in support of special applications, if not used within a certain time, usually one year, become "stale." <sup>1</sup>

AFFINITY.—The relation contracted by marriage between a husband and his wife's kindred, and between a wife and her husband's kindred, in contradistinction from consanguinity or relation by blood. <sup>2</sup>

AFFIRMANCE.—A decision upholding the validity of a judgment. <sup>3</sup>

AFFRAY. See also RIOT; ROUT.

Definition.—An affray is the fighting together of two or more persons, either by mutual consent or otherwise, in some public place, to the terror of the people. <sup>4</sup> to have been made upon hearsay may be amended. Cutler v. Rathbone, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 204. Under the Missouri attachment act (Rev. Code, 1855) the affidavit may be amended. Henderson v. Drace, 30 Mo. 358; Hardin v. Lee, 51 Mo. 241. So in Illinois. Moore v. Mauck, 79 Ill. 391; Kruse v. Wilson, 79 Ill. 233. When the absence of an affidavit has not been objected to in time, it may sometimes be filed nunc pro tunc. Jones v. Slate Co., 16 How. (N. Y.) 129. The jurat may sometimes be added nunc pro tunc, on proof that the affidavit was actually sworn to at the proper time. Williams v. Stevenson, 103 Ind. 243.

1. Ramsden v. Maugham, 4 Dowling Pr. Cas. 403; Burt v. Owen, 1 Dowling Pr. Cas. 691. But this staleness may depend on circumstances. Clarke v. Stillwell, 8 A. & E. 645. See Tidd's Prac. *190, and the special forms of action in which affidavits are used.

2. Carman v. Newell, 1 Denio (N. Y.), 26; Spear v. Robinson, 29 Me. 545: "By the marriage one party thereto holds by affinity the same relation to the kindred of the other that the latter holds by consanguinity; and no rule is known to us under which the relation by affinity is lost on a dissolution of the marriage more than that by blood is lost by the death of those through whom it is derived." Waterhouse v. Martin, Peck (Tenn.), 389: "The connection between the husband and his wife's parents, and the wife and her husband's parents."

In Foot v. Morgan, 1 Hill, 654, it was held that a justice of the peace whose wife is the sister of A's wife cannot take jurisdiction of a cause in which A is the plaintiff; because such relation between the plaintiff and juror is a cause of challenge for the juror, or, if the sheriff is thus related to the plaintiff, a cause of challenge to the array on the ground of affinity.

Paddock v. Wells, 2 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 333: "Affinity properly means the tie which arises from marriage betwixt the husband and the blood-relatives of the wife and between the wife and the blood-relatives of the husband. But there is no affinity between the blood-relatives of the husband and the blood-relatives of the wife." See also Solinger v. Earle, 45 N. Y. S. Ct. 80.

Higbe v. Leonard, 1 Denio (N. Y.), 186: "A husband is related by affinity to all the consanguinei of his wife and, vice versa, the wife to the husband's consanguinei; for, the husband and wife being considered one flesh, those who are related to the one by blood are related to the other by affinity." "But the consanguinei of the husband are not all related to the consanguinei of the wife." "If this rule be correct, and I think it is, although the justice was related by affinity to the two sisters of Higbe, the plaintiff, there was no such relation between him and Higbe."

In Cann v. Ingham, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 478, there was a deficiency of jurors, and the sheriff summoned one A, whose father had married the widow of the defendant's brother. A's father died before the trial, and his widow was also the widow of the defendant's brother. Held, there was no ground of challenge to A on his alleged affinity.

3. Drummond v. Husson, 14 N. Y. 60: "A dismissal of the appeal for want of prosecution is clearly not an affirmance of the judgment. This court has decided nothing whatever in respect to the validity of the judgment."

4. 2 Bishop's Cr. L. § 1; Bouvier's Law Dict., 2 Black. Com. 145.

The fighting of two or more persons in some public place to the terror of others; and there must be a stroke given and offered, otherwise it is no affray, howsoever quarrelsome or threatening the words may be; and the fighting must also be in public, for if it be in private, it is no affray, but an assault. Brown's Law Dict.

Affray—Continued.

If a number of persons being met together at a fair or market, or on any other lawful occasion, happen on a sudden quarrel to fall together by the ears, it seems agreed that they will not be guilty of a riot, but only of a sudden affray, of which none are guilty but those actually engaged in it; and this on the ground of the design of their meeting being innocent and lawful, and the subsequent breach of the peace happening unexpectedly without any previous intention. 1 Russell on Crimes (9th Am. Ed.), 406.

Thus, if a number of persons meet together at a fair or market, or upon any other lawful or innocent occasion, and happen on a sudden quarrel to engage in fighting, they are not guilty of a riot, but of an affray only (of which none are guilty but those who actually engage in it); because the design of their meeting was innocent and lawful, and the breach of the peace happened without any previous intention. Hawk. P. C. b. 1, c. 65, s. 3.

The common-law definition of an affray does not involve an agreement to fight, and one might become engaged in such affray without culpable fault. Supreme Council, etc., v. Garrigus, 104 Ind. 133.

An affray and an assault are distinct offences. Champer v. State, 14 Ohio St. 437.

The principals and seconds in a prize-fight were indicted in one count for a riot, and in another for an affray. The evidence was that the two first prisoners had fought together amidst a great crowd of persons, and that the others were present aiding and abetting; that the place where they fought was at a considerable distance from any highway, and when the officers made their appearance the fight was at an end. The prisoners, on being required to do so, quietly yielded. Alderson, B., said: "It seems to me that there is no case against these men. As to the affray, it must occur in some public place, and this is, to all intents and purposes, a private one. As to the riot, there must be some sort of resistance made to lawful authority to constitute it, some attempt to oppose the constables who are there to preserve the peace.

The case is nothing more than this: Two persons choose to fight, and others look on, and the moment the officers present themselves, all parties quietly depart. The defendants may be indicted for an assault, but nothing more." R. v. Hunt, 1 Cox C. C. 177; and see R. v. Brown, Car. & M. 314.

Person indicted for an affray may be convicted of an assault and battery, the latter offence being necessarily included in the former. McClellan v. State, 53 Ala. 640; Thompson v. State, 70 Ala. 26.

A person who has been convicted of an affray cannot subsequently be tried for assault and battery where the charge covers in the same acts. Fritz v. State, 40 Ind. 18.

Where several are indicted for an affray, any may be acquitted, and the other or others convicted. Cash v. State, 2 Overt. (Tenn.) 108. Compare Hawkins v. State, 13 Ga. 322; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 517. See State v. Benthal, 5 Humph. (Tenn.) 519.

To support a prosecution for an affray, the prosecutor must prove (1) the affray, or fighting, etc.; (2) that it was in a public place; (3) that it was to the terror of the king's subjects; (4) that two or more persons were engaged in it. Roscoe's Cr. Ev. (10th Ed.) 277.

Prevention of Affrays.—"It seems to be agreed that any one who sees others fighting may lawfully part them, and also stay them till the heat be over, and then deliver them to the constable, who may carry them before a justice of the peace in order to their finding sureties for the peace; and it is said that any private person may stop those whom he shall see coming to join either party. Any person present may arrest the affrayer at the moment of the affray, and detain him till his passion has cooled and his desire to break the peace has ceased, and then deliver him to a peace officer; and so any person may arrest an affrayer after the actual violence is over, but whilst he shows a disposition to renew it by persisting in remaining on the spot where he has committed it. Both cases fall within the same principle, which is, that, for the sake of the preservation of the peace, any individual who sees it broken may restrain the liberty of him whom he sees breaking it, so long as his conduct shows that the public peace is likely to be endangered by his acts. In truth, whilst those are assembled together who have committed acts of violence, and the danger of their renewal continues, the affray itself may be said to continue:

What is an Affray.—No quarrelsome or threatening words what-and during the affray, the constable may, not merely on his own view, but on the information and complaint of another, arrest the offenders, and of course the person so complaining is justified in giving the charge to the constable. The plaintiff went into the defendant's shop, and offered to purchase an article at a price marked on a ticket; the plaintiff disputed with the shopman about the price, and was desired to leave the shop, which he refused to do, and declared he would strike any man who laid hands on him; a shopman then struck him on the face; the plaintiff returned the blow, and a contest commenced, the noise of which brought down the defendant from the room above; when he came down the plaintiff was scuffling with the shopman; the defendant sent for a policeman, and on his arrival the plaintiff was requested by the defendant to go from the shop quietly, but he refused; he was standing still in the shop, insisting on his right to remain there, and a mob gathering round the door, when the defendant gave him in charge to the policeman, who took him to the police station. It was held that the defendant had a right, the danger continuing, to deliver the plaintiff into the hands of the policeman, and that the circumstance that the plaintiff was not guilty of the first illegal violence made no difference; for at the time the defendant interfered he was ignorant of that fact: he saw the plaintiff and others in a mutual contest, and that mutual contest the law gave him power to terminate for the sake of securing the peace of his house and neighborhood, and the persons of all those concerned from violence. Timothy v. Simpson, 1 C. M. & R. 757. And it seems to be clear that if either party be dangerously wounded in such an affray, and a stander-by, endeavoring to arrest the other, be not able to take him without hurting or even wounding him, yet he is in no way liable to be punished, inasmuch as he is bound, under pain of fine and imprisonment, to arrest such an offender, and either detain him till it appear whether the party will live or die, or carry him before a justice of peace.

"It seems agreed that a constable is not only empowered, as all private persons are, to part an affray which happens in his presence, but is also bound, at his peril, to use his best endeavors for this purpose; and not only to do his utmost himself, but also to demand the assistance of others, which, if they refuse to give him, they are punishable with fine and imprisonment. In order to support an indictment against a person for refusing to aid and assist a constable in the execution of his duty in quelling a riot, it is necessary to prove: first, that the constable actually saw a breach of the peace committed by two or more persons; secondly, that there was a reasonable necessity for the constable calling upon other persons for their assistance and support; and, lastly, that the defendant was duly called upon to render his assistance, and that without any physical impossibility or lawful excuse, he refused to give it; and whether the aid of the defendant, if given, would have proved sufficient or useful, is not the question or criterion. And it is laid down in the books, that if any affray be in a house, the constable may break open the doors to preserve the peace; and if affrayers fly to a house, and he follow with fresh suit, he may break open the doors to take them. And so far is the constable intrusted with a power over all actual affrays that though he himself is a sufferer by them, and therefore liable to be objected against, as likely to be partial in his own cause, yet he may suppress them; and therefore if an assault be made upon him, he may not only defend himself, but also imprison the offender in the same manner as if he were in no way a party. It is said, also, that if a constable see persons either actually engaged in an affray, as by striking, or offering to strike, or drawing their weapons, etc., or upon the very point of entering upon an affray, as where one shall threaten to kill, wound, or beat another, he may either carry the offender before a justice of the peace, to the end that such justice may compel him to find sureties for the peace, etc., or he may imprison him of his own authority for a reasonable time till the heat be over, and also afterwards detain him till he find such surety by obligation. But it seems that he has no power to imprison such an offender in any other manner, or for any other purpose; for he cannot justify the committing an affrayer to jail till he shall be punished for his offence; and it is said that he ought not to lay hands on those who barely contend with hot words, without any threats of personal hurt; and that all which he can do in such a case is to command them, under pain of imprisonment, to avoid fighting.

"It has been much doubted whether a private individual, who has seen an affray soever can amount to an affray.<sup>1</sup> Appearing in a public place armed with dangerous and unusual weapons constitutes an affray at common law.<sup>2</sup> It must be in a public place;<sup>3</sup> the fighting must be by mutual consent,<sup>4</sup> and between two or more persons, or by two or more persons against another person.<sup>5</sup> committed, may give in charge to a constable who has not; and whether such constable may, therefore, take into his custody the affrayers, or either of them, in order to be carried before a justice, after the affray has entirely ceased, after the offenders have quitted the place where it was committed, and there was no danger of renewal, but it seems now to be settled that a constable has no power to arrest a man for an affray done out of his own view without a warrant from a justice of peace (Cook v. Nethercote, 6 C. & P. 741; Fox v. Gaunt, 3 B. & Ad. 798; R. v. Curvan, R. & M. C. C. R. 132; R. v. Bright, 4 C. & P. 387; R. v. Light, D. & B. C. C. 332; R. v. Walker, Dears. C. C. 358), unless a felony be done, or likely to be done; for it is the proper business of a constable to preserve the peace, not to punish the breach of it; and where a breach of the peace has been committed, and is over, the constable must proceed in the same way as any other person; namely, by obtaining a warrant from a magistrate. Cook v. Nethercote, 6 C. & P. 741. It is said that he may carry those before a justice of peace who were arrested by such as were present at an affray, and delivered by them into his hands. Where the plaintiff was imprisoned by a constable in a cell on a false charge of assault, and the defendant, another constable, on hearing the charge from a third constable, without inquiry into the facts, took the plaintiff before the magistrates, it was held that the defendant, in order to justify himself, was bound to show that the charge was well founded, and, having failed to do so, was liable to an action of trespass." Griffin v. Coleman, 4 H. & N. 265; 1 Russell on Cr. (9th Am. Ed.) 408.

1. O'Neil v. State, 16 Ala. 65; Hawkins v. State, 13 Ga. 322; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 517.

If one person, by such abusive language as is calculated and intended to bring on a fight, induces the other to strike him, he is guilty of an affray, though he may be unable to return the blow. State v. Perry, 5 Jones L. (N. Car.) 9; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 768. See State v. Robbins, 78 N. Car. 431; State v. Davis, 80 N. Car. 351; s. c., 30 Am.

Rep. 86; State v. Sumner, 5 Strobl. (S. Car.) 53. Compare Harrison v. Mosely, 31 Tex. 608.

2. 1 Russell on Crimes (9th Am. Ed.) 407. Compare Simpson v. State, 5 Yerg. (Tenn.) 356.

3. The indictment need not describe the public place; that is a matter of proof. Shelton v. State, 30 Tex. 431. See State v. Baker, 83 N. Car. 649. Compare State v. Heflin, 8 Humph. (Tenn.) 84.

Where two of the prisoners had fought together amidst a great crowd of persons, and the others were present aiding and assisting, at a place a considerable distance from any highway, and the fight ceased on the appearance of some peace officers, it was held that this was not an affray; for an affray must occur in some public place, and this was, to all intents and purposes, a private one. R. v. Hunt, 1 Cox Cr. Cas. 177.

Evidence is admissible to show that the affray commenced in a private house, where it further shows that the combatants passed out of the house and continued the fight without cessation in a public street. State v. Billings, 72 Mo. 662. See Wilson v. State, 3 Heisk. (Tenn.) 278.

A field surrounded by a forest, and situated one mile from any highway or other public place, does not lose its private character by the casual presence of three persons, so as to make two of them, who fight together willingly, guilty of an affray. Taylor v. State, 22 Ala. 15. See R. v. Hunt, 1 Cox C. C. 177; R. v. Brown, C. & M. 314.

An inclosed place, ninety feet from the street, and visible from it, is a public place. Carwile v. State, 35 Ala. 392.

A highway is not necessarily a public place. State v. Weekly, 29 Ind. 206.

4. Klum v. State, 1 Blackf. (Ind.) 377; Duncan v. Commonwealth, 6 Dana (Ky.), 295; State v. Downing, 74 N. Car. 184. Compare Cash v. State, 2 Overt. (Tenn.) 198.

On trial of an affray, a party cannot be heard to say that he did not intend to bring about a breach of the peace. State v. King, 86 N. Car. 603.

5. Thompson v. State, 70 Ala. 26.

AFFRAY—AFORE—AFORESAID.

Accessories.—All persons who assist, or, being present, aid and encourage parties engaged in an affray, are guilty as principals.<sup>1</sup>

AFORE.—Priority in point of time.<sup>2</sup>

AFORESAID.—Means generally next before.<sup>3</sup>

1. Sikes v. Johnson, 16 Mass. 389; Avery v. Bulkly, 1 Root (Conn.), 275; State v. Lanier, 71 N. Car. 288; Hawkins v. State, 13 Ga. 322; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 517; Gillon v. Wilson, 3 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 216; Curlin v. State, 4 Yerg. (Tenn.) 143.

Successful defence of one will operate as acquittal of both defendants where the two are indicted for an affray. Hawkins v. State, 13 Ga. 322; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 517; Cruce v. State, 59 Ga. 83.

2. The statute 3 H. 7 c. 10 enables a defendant in error "to recover his costs and damages for his delay" if a writ of error be sued out "afore execution had." Held, that the writ is sued out "afore execution had" if an execution has issued before the writ, but has been rendered ineffectual by proceedings taken adversely to the plaintiff below. Newlands v. Holmes, 4 S. B. 859.

3. "Aforesaid means generally next before; yet a different signification will be given to it if required by the context and the facts of the case." Simpson v. Roberts et ux., 35 Ga. 181.

In Statute.—The United States statutes provide "Every association may take, receive, reserve, and charge on any loan or discount made, or upon any note, bill of exchange, or other evidences of debt, interest at the rate allowed by the State or Territory where the bank is located. . . . And when no rate is fixed by the laws of the State or Territory, the bank may take, receive, reserve or charge a rate not exceeding seven per centum, and such interest may be taken in advance, reckoning the days for which the note, bill, or other evidence of debt has to run. And the knowingly taking, receiving, reserving, or charging a rate of interest greater than aforesaid shall be held and adjudged a forfeiture," etc. The question before the court was whether "aforesaid" applied only to the immediately preceding clause, "when no rate is fixed by the laws of the State or Territory," or to the whole section. It was held, there was no rule of grammatical construction which limits its reference to the paragraph immediately preceding. Central Nat. Bank v. Pratt, 115 Mass. 544; contra, First National Bank v. Lamb et al., 50 N. Y. 95. The words "as aforesaid" do not necessarily apply to the preceding section alone, but they may refer to others also. Reg. v. Eastern Railway Co., 2 Q. B. 347.

As Aforesaid.—Sec. 3 of 12 and 13 Vict. c. 92 enacts that any person who shall keep or use or act in the management of any place for fighting or baiting animals shall be liable to a penalty; and by way of proviso, in order to obviate the difficulty of proving who such person was, defines that every person who receives money for the admission to any place kept or used for any of the purposes aforesaid "shall be deemed to be a keeper thereof," and then adds that every person who shall encourage, aid, or assist at the fighting or baiting of any bull, etc., "or other animal aforesaid," shall be also liable to a penalty. Looking into the frame of the section, and considering also that it is a penal enactment, I think that the words "as aforesaid" mean, "in any place kept or used for any purposes aforesaid." Morley v. Greenhalgh, 3 B. & S. (Eng. C. L.) 379, affirming Clark v. Hague, 2 El. & El. 281.

Brought up as Aforesaid.—These words do not apply where no one is brought up and where the registrar in bankruptcy goes to the bankrupt. Bramwell v. Eylington, 5. Best & Smith, 56.

Convicted as Aforesaid.—These words do not refer alone to the section or clause immediately preceding. Rex v. Bellamy, 1 B. & C. 505.

In Deed: "County Aforesaid."—By a parish indenture which purported to be made between the church-warden, etc., of D. parish in the county of N. of the one part, and A B of C., in the county of L., of the other part, it was witnessed that the said church-warden, etc., of D. parish, with the consent of two of his majesty's justices of the peace for the said county, dwelling in or near said parish, had bound, etc. The justices in their written consent on the margin of the indenture described themselves as justices "of the county aforesaid." Held, that the words "county aforesaid" had the same meaning as the words "said county," and that it sufficiently appeared by reference to the latter words that the consenting justices were justices of the county of N. Rex v. Countesthorpe, 2 Barn. & Ad. 487.

Aforesaid—Continued.

In Indictment: "County Aforesaid."—"Here the county of Hickory is named, and also the county of Polk—two counties mentioned in the body of the indictment—and the offence is stated to have been committed 'at the county aforesaid' without showing certainly which county; this is not sufficient." State v. McCracken, 20 Mo. 411.

In Regina v. Hunt et al. 10 Q. B. 926, the first count of the indictment charged a conspiracy to defraud the prosecutor of his money by bringing an unfounded action on promises against him, which came on to be tried at the assizes for "the county of Surrey." The second count charged another conspiracy "at the parish aforesaid in the county aforesaid;" and the objection was, that as the county last named was Surrey, it appeared that the Middlesex jury could have had no jurisdiction to try the indictment. The court pointed out that the only "parish aforesaid" was alleged to be in the county of Middlesex.

In Reg. v. Albert, 5 Q. B. 41, Denman, C. J., said: "The objection as now presented to us brings the question to this: whether the parish of St. Stephen, Coleman Street, sufficiently appears by the indictment to be in the city of London. The act 22 Car. 2, c. 11, shows that it is within the city; and where an indictment mentions a parish in a county and afterwards an act is alleged to have been done in the 'county aforesaid,' that averment as to place is sufficient."

In Plea: "County Aforesaid."—One Fenn of Wills County was attached to answer one Sutton, and whereupon the said Sutton complains that the said Fenn in the "county aforesaid" was indebted to the said Sutton. The court: "There is no difficulty in this case. The margin given is the whole. All references to counties are supposed to be the county named in the margin. The other county of Wills is in the recital of the writ and makes no part of the count or declaration." Sutton v. Fenn, 2 W. Bl. 847.

From Any of the Places Aforesaid.—"Aforesaid" naturally refers to the places named immediately before. Peake v. Screech, 7 Q. B. 610.

From the Day and Year Aforesaid.—Held, that "from" was to be taken as including the day on which the contract containing the above clause was entered into. Wilkinson v. Gaston, 9 Q. B. 137.

Her Part Aforesaid.—Testator devised as follows: "I give and bequeath to my daughter, Mary Gill, all the houses, out-houses, garden and other property which I now hold under the trustees of the poor of the township of Almondbury, for the term of 999 years; and I also give one half part of my books to my daughter, Mary Gill, aforesaid, the other half to my widow, Sarah Gill, to be equally divided by T. S. If my daughter Mary should happen to die unmarried, it is my will then that her part aforesaid shall be equally divided," etc. Abbott, C. J.: "I think the expression 'her part aforesaid' applies to the whole, which by the former part of the will had been given to the daughter." Doc. dem. Gibson v. Gill, 2 Barn. & Cress. 680.

Purposes Aforesaid.—The words "purposes aforesaid," in sec. 32 of the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, refers to the purposes mentioned in the former part of the same section only. Fenwick v. East London R. Co., L. R. 20 Eq. Cas. 544.

So as Aforesaid.—In Reg. v. Craddock, Temp. & M. 365, Williams, J., was of the opinion that the words: "so as aforesaid" meant "as I said before;" but Pollock, C. B., doubted whether they were intended to refer to the matter immediately preceding.

Time Aforesaid.—A sheriff's deed recited that the grantor, having taken on execution the equity of redemption which J. S. had at 9 A.M. on January, 1865, "being the time when the same was attached by mesne process," in certain land, having given specified notices, and "having for sufficient cause duly adjourned the sale once not exceeding seven days," sold the said equity on December 23, 1865. The grant in the deed was of all the right to redeem which J. S. had at the "time aforesaid." Held, that the "time aforesaid" referred to the time of attachment and not to the day of sale. Sanborn v. Chamberlin et al., 101 Mass. 409.

When and so soon as she shall Marry as Aforesaid.—Under a will a rent charge was devised to L. for life, subject to a restriction as to her marriage (mentioned in one of the preceding items of the will); the testator then said, "When and so soon as she shall marry as aforesaid, then upon trusts," etc. Held, the clause "when and so soon as she shall marry as aforesaid" did not make the marriage of L. according to the terms of the previous devise to her a condition precedent to the vesting of the estates. Beamont v. Squire, 17 Q. B. 906.

Voyage or Voyages Aforesaid.—The United States chartered a vessel to go to N. and return. It was further stipu-

AFORETHOUGHT—AFOUL—AFTER.

AFORETHOUGHT.—Premeditated, or thought of before.<sup>1</sup>

AFOUL.—In an action for slander, the use of this word, without a special averment, was held not to warrant the innuendo that the plaintiff was guilty of buggery.<sup>2</sup>

AFTER.—This word is used in reference to time to denote a sequence; it also refers to order in point of right or enjoyment; subject to.<sup>3</sup>

lated that the charter should continue so long as the vessel was required by the United States. The United States also agreed to employ the vessel "for the voyage or voyages aforesaid." It was held that the contract only embraced the employment of the vessel when on such voyage or voyages, and did not extend to demurrage. Mitchell v. United States, 96 U. S. 162.

1. "'Premeditated' and 'aforethought' are synonymous, and 'premeditated malice' and 'malice aforethought,' are in sense and meaning the same." Edwards v. State, 25 Ark. 446.

Malice aforethought.—The legal meaning of 'malice aforethought' in cases of homicide is not confined to homicide committed in cold blood, with settled design and premeditation, but extends to all cases of homicide, however sudden the occasion, when the act is done with such cruel circumstances as are ordinary symptoms of a wicked, depraved, and malignant spirit. United States v. Cornell, 2 Mason, 91.

"Murder is the voluntary killing of any person of malice prepense or aforethought, either express or implied by law; the sense of which word, malice, is not only confined to a particular ill-will to the deceased, but is intended to denote, as Mr. Justice Foster expresses it, an action flowing from a wicked and corrupt motive, a thing done malo animo." Commonwealth v. Webster, 5 Cush (Mass.) 306.

So "malice aforethought" is not so properly spite or malevolence to the deceased in particular, as any evil design in general; the dictate of a wicked, depraved, and malignant heart." State v. Ricke, 49 N. H. 404; Commonwealth v. Drum, 58 Pa. 9; Jones v. The State, 29 Ga. 594.

2. The statement that the plaintiff had been caught "afoul" of a cow does not warrant the innuendo that he was guilty of the crime of bestiality. The most usual signification of the word foul, as an adjective, is unclean, filthy, dirty. The phrase "to fall foul" is not an uncommon one. The definition of it, given in Webster's dictionary, is, to rush on with haste, rough force, and unreasonable violence; to run against, as, the ship fell foul of her consort. Dr. Johnson gives the following example: "In his sallies, their men might fall foul of each other." If the defendant had been in the practice, by the words laid, to impute the crime of bestiality, or if he had used them on this occasion in that sense, and they were so understood by the hearers, there should have been a special averment to that effect. Harper v. Delp, 3 Ind. 225, 231.

3. The word "after," like "from," "succeeding," "subsequent," and similar words, where it is not expressly declared to be exclusive or inclusive, is susceptible of different significations, and is used in different senses, and with an exclusive or inclusive meaning according to the subject to which it is applied; and as it would deprive it of some of its proper significations to affix one invariable meaning to it in all cases, it would, of course, in many of them, pervert it from the sense of the writer or speaker. Its true meaning, therefore, in any particular case must be collected from its context and subject-matter, which are the only means by which the intention is ascertained. Sands v. Lyon, 18 Conn. 18, 27.

Where a statute enacted that warrants of attorney to confess judgment should be filed "within twenty-one days after the execution," it was held that the twenty-one days for filing are to be reckoned exclusively of the day of execution. Williams v. Burgess et al., 12 Ad. & Ell. 635.

The language of the statute is that writs of a fi. fa. may be issued, etc., "after the expiration of thirty days from the entry of such judgment." According to the rule of construing statutes adopted by this court the computation of the thirty days excludes the day of entering the judgment; in other words, as to the first and last days, one is to be counted exclusively and the other inclusively. Commercial Bank of Oswego v. Ives, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 355. Cf. Butts v. Edwards, 2 Denio

After—Continued.

(N. Y.), 164; Judd v. Fulton, 10 Barb. (N. Y.), 117; Page v. Weymouth, 47 Me. 238.

Where a clause in a will was, "It is my will that, after settling my estate, my wife have the interest of the remainder of my personal estate," the court said: "After settling my estate" seems equivalent to "subject to the settlement." The word "after" does not always or necessarily refer to time, but to order in point of right or enjoyment. Lamb v. Lamb, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 371, 378.

The fourth clause of the will says, "I give to my sons each one ninth part of my estate, real and personal, after providing for the bequest to my wife." The word "after" used in such a connection is often and properly construed to mean "subject to" "after taking out, deducting, or appropriating." Hooper, Ex. v. Hooper et al., 9 Cush. (Mass.) 122, 128. Cf. Gibson v. Walker, 20 N. Y. 476, 484.

The term "after" does not always designate the time at which one thing is done in reference to something else, but it expresses the relative priority and subordination of one claim to another in matter of right. So we think it does here: the residue is to be formed subject to the payment of debts and charges, although they may be actually paid afterwards. Treadwell v. Cordis, 5 Gray (Mass.). 341, 353.

After Conviction.—Where the constitution grants the power to pardon "after conviction," the pardon is not invalid because the prisoner appealed and thereby vacated the sentence or judgment. Conviction is ordinarily used to denote the verdict of the jury. State v. Alexander, 76 N. C. 231. Cf. Blair's Case, 25 Gratt. 850.

In Arkansas it has been held that the power to pardon "after conviction," vested in the governor by the constitution of 1864, is not prohibitory of the exercise of that power by the legislature before conviction. State v. Nichols, 26 Ark. 74.

After Judgment.—Under a motion by persons who had given bond, under the eighth section of stat. 1 and 2 Vict. c. 110 (for abolition of arrest on mesne process), to be allowed to render their principal after verdict against him and before judgment (said section reading as follows: "If a creditor of a trader shall file an affidavit in the court of bankruptcy that his debt is justly due, . . . and if such trader shall not within twenty-one days . . . enter into a bond . . . to pay . . . or to render himself . . . according to the practice of such court . . . 'after judgment' shall have been recovered," etc.), the court held "some doubt existed as to the words 'after judgment' in the eighth section; namely, whether they apply to the whole preceding matter or not; as to which we think that, at all events, they do not apply to a render, 'according to the practice of such court;' and as bail would by that practice have been at liberty to render a defendant after verdict and before judgment, we think that the obligors in this bond must be at liberty to do the same." Owston v. Coates, 10 Ad. & Ell. 193.

An order discharging a defendant from imprisonment, under "the act for the relief of persons imprisoned on civil process," though entered by the judge of another court, who is authorized by law to take jurisdiction of such proceedings, is a "special order made after final judgment," within the meaning of the three hundred and thirty-sixth section of the Practice Act, and an appeal therefrom taken more than sixty days after the entry of the order is too late. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Anthony, 35 Cal. 696.

After Verdict.—The statute 6 G. 4. c. 50, enacts that the party who shall apply for a special jury shall pay the costs occasioned thereby, unless the judge before whom the cause is tried shall immediately after the verdict certify that the cause was proper to be tried by a special jury. Held, that a defendant who had applied for a special jury was not entitled to the costs of that jury, where the judge who tried the cause nonsuited the plaintiff on his opening, even though the judge had certified as above. Wood v. Grimwood, 10 B. & C. 689, 700.

After the Fact Committed.—Under the 53 Geo. 3. c. 127, s. 12, which requires that an action for anything done in pursuance of the act shall be commenced within three calendar months after the fact committed, an action of trespass for seizing, taking and carrying away, and distraining and selling the plaintiff's goods under a warrant of distress for arrears of a church rate, may be brought within three calendar months after the sale. For, said the court: "The fact committed under color or in pursuance of the statute is not merely the seizure, but the sale also. The seizure of the goods is made not absolutely, but with a view to their detention only until the amount should be paid, and their subsequent sale if it should not; and the seizure, when a sale has taken place, is but a part of the entire act complained of, and which forms the real grievance to the plaintiff. And this circumstance distinguishes the present case from those in which the seizure was for a forfeiture, and was in its nature absolute, and must be considered as intended to deprive the plaintiff of his property immediately." Collins v. Rose, 5 M. & W. 164, 202.

After—Continued.

After the Payment.—The words in a will, "after my debts and funeral charges are paid, I devise and bequeath as follows," amount to a charge upon the real estate for the payment of debts. Fenwick v. Chapman, 9 Peters, 461.

The words, "after payment of my debts," mean that he will not give anything until his debts are paid. He could not help paying his debts out of his personal estate; he could not give a pecuniary legacy, but after his debts paid. Therefore, if I do not make that construction, part of the will is perfectly nugatory. I agree that if testator does manifest in any part of his will that his debts shall be paid, they are to be paid before any disposition of what he has power to dispose of. "After payment of his debts" means that until his debts are paid he gives nothing; that everything he has shall be subject to his debts. To give those words any effect, they must charge the real estate. I am very clearly of opinion that wherever a testator says he wills that his debts shall be paid, that will ride over every disposition, either as against his heir-at-law or devisee; and the words, "after my debts are paid," mean the same thing. Arden, M. R. Shallcross v. Finden, 3 Vesey, Jr., 738.

Where a testator directed his trustees to pay the annual sum of £100 to his mother for life, and from and "after the payment" of the said annual sum of £100, and subject thereto, he declared that they should stand possessed of his estate upon trusts, the income of the whole estate proving insufficient to pay the annuity, it was held that the terms of the gift over made the annuity a charge upon the corpus, out of which it must be paid annually. Birch v. Sherratt, L. R. 2 Ch. App. 644.

After Work.—Under a fire-insurance policy which required an examination of the mill "thirty minutes after work," it was held that the assured were bound, by their representation that the mill was examined thirty minutes after work, to make such examination thirty minutes after the extra work, as well as after regular work; and also that the question what is a cessation of work at the factory from which the thirty minutes are to be computed is a question for the jury, under all the circumstances of each particular case. Houghton v. Manufacturers' Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 8 Metc. (Mass.) 114.

After Date.—It is entirely clear, from Pugh v. The Duke of Leeds, Cowper, 714, that the words "from" or "after the date," or "the day of the date," include the day when they are used in a conveyance to create an estate; but it is just as clear, from other cases about to be noticed, that they exclude it when they are used in an instrument to perpetuate the evidence of a debt. Indeed, it seems from what is said in Preston on Conveyancing, p. 387, that the distinction sprung out of that decision, previous to which the general rule was to exclude the day in both cases. It is now a settled rule that as the law rejects fractions of a day, it views it for most purposes as an indivisible point, and consequently that "the date," or "the day of the date," being coextensive with the entire day, excludes it when it occurs in a bill, note, or bond. Taylor v. Jacoby, 2 Pa. St. 495.

The words in the Stamp Act, 55 Geo. 3, c. 184, schedule pt. 1 (title "Bill of Exchange"), which imposes a certain duty on bills "exceeding two months after date," mean the time expressed on the face of the bill, not the time when it actually issued. Williams v. Jarrett, 5 B. & Ad. 32.

The words "after date of appointment," and "from such date," which occur in sec. 1556 of the Revised Stat. U. S., fixing the annual pay of passed assistant surgeons of the navy, refer not to the original entry of the officer into the service as an assistant surgeon, but to the notification by the Secretary of the Navy that he has passed his examination for promotion to the grade of surgeon, and will thereafter, until such promotion, be considered a passed assistant surgeon. U. S. v. Moore, 5 Otto (U. S.) 760.

"For the space of one month after the return day" and "within one month from the return day" are equivalent expressions. Gore v. Hedges, 7 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 521.

Ten days after peace is made between the United States and the Confederate States, used in a bond to specify the time at which the money is payable, means "ten days after peace," and does not render the ratification of a treaty of peace between the powers mentioned a condition precedent to the payment. Chapman v. Wacater, 64 N. C. 532.

On the question under the Georgia statute giving four days within which appeals may be entered as to whether Sunday is

AFTERNOON—AFTERWARD.

AFTERNOON.—Subsequent to or following noon or midday: generally used of the earlier part of that time, as distinguished from evening.<sup>1</sup> See also TIME.

AFTERWARD — AFTERWARDS.—Subsequent in order of time.<sup>2</sup> to be counted as one of the "four days after," etc., the court said: "Our judgment, therefore, is that four clear days, as they are called in the old books, or working days, as they might perhaps be more appropriately designated, are allowed for entering appeals; and that whether Sunday be the first or last or an intervening day, it is not to be counted. Neal v. Crew, 12 Ga. 93, 100.

After the Passing or Passage.—An act in contemplation of law comes into effect from the commencement of the day on which it received the royal assent; and inasmuch as the law takes no notice of the fractions of a day where the right of a single woman who is delivered of a bastard child to apply for an order of affiliation depends on the birth of her child "after the passing of the act," it is sufficient if the child is born on the day the act receives the royal assent. Tomlinson v. Bullock, L. R. 4 Q. B. Div. 230.

From the impracticability of deciding at what particular moment of time the President gives his seal to a bill, we have never heard of such an inquiry being made, and the least which courts have ever said on such occasions is that where an act is to take place from the day of its passing, it must embrace the whole of that day. U. S. v. Williams, 1 Paine (U. S.), 261. The statute was to take effect from its passage; and it is a general rule that where the computation is to be made 'from an act done,' the day on which the act is done is to be included. Arnold v. U. S., 9 Cranch (U. S.), 104, 120.

1. Under an act of Parliament prohibiting the keeping open a place for the sale of liquor during "the usual hours of afternoon divine service" in the parish church, where the evening service was read in the church at 6 P.M., but there was an afternoon service at 2 P.M. in the parish workhouse, and the innkeeper had his place open for the reception of customers at half-past 6 o'clock P.M., the court held: "The question is, what was the usual hour of afternoon divine service? The word 'afternoon' has two senses. It may mean the whole time from noon to midnight, or it may mean the earlier part of that time as distinguished from the evening. I think that in this act it is used in the latter sense, and that the intention of the legislature was to prohibit the opening of public houses during the usual hour of divine service in the afternoon, if there was one in the church. In Newport Pagnell divine service was in the workhouse." Earle, J.: "The legislature has not said that it shall be penal to keep open an inn during evening service, but during afternoon divine service. Was, then, this evening service, performed at six o'clock, afternoon service? No; it certainly was evening service. In the parish of Newport Pagnell since 1836 there is no afternoon service in the church; it is in the workhouse; and the hours at which the evening service is performed in the church are no more the usual hours of afternoon divine service than they would be if the afternoon divine service, instead of being performed in the workhouse, was performed in the church." Campbell, C. J. Queen v. Knapp, 2 Ellis & Blackburn, 447.

2. "There Afterwards" also may have its use in the sentence, without supposing that another time was intended to be expressed by it. It most probably was intended to show that the beating with a rope, though a part of the same outrage as the beating with a plank, was subsequent to it in order of time. Benson v. Swift, 2 Mass. 50.

Under the statutory conditions of the province of Canada to a fire-insurance policy which require the assured to give notice of his loss and to deliver "as soon afterwards as practicable" a particular account, it has been held that the words "as soon afterwards as practicable" mean within a reasonable time. Parsons v. Queen Ins. Co., 43 Upper Canada Q. B. 271, 280; cf. Cammell v. Beaver Mut. Ins. Co., 39 U. C. R. 1.

Where an act of Parliament prohibited the recovery of any costs on a verdict of less than 40s. unless the judge certified "immediately afterwards" on the back of the record, it was held that "immediately afterwards" means within a reasonable time, and that a delay of ten days, during which no application was made to the judge, although there was nothing to prevent it, was not a compliance with the statute, and that a certificate made after such lapse of time was too late, and it was set aside. Forsdike et ux. v. Stone, L. R. 3 C. P. 607.

AGAINST.—In opposition to ; in contradiction to.<sup>1</sup>

1. Where an indictment charged that the defendant, "in and upon one," A. B., "did feloniously, purposely, and with premeditated malice make an assault, and then and there, at and against the said" A. B., "did feloniously, purposely, and with premeditated malice shoot a certain pistol, then and there loaded with gunpowder and leaden ball, which he," the defendant, "then and there had and held in his hand, with intent," etc., the court held that the indictment sufficiently charged an assault and battery, saying: "The particular meaning of the word 'against' depends, to a very considerable extent, on the connection in and the purposes for which it is used. To push or run against a person implies, in common parlance, a coming in contact or collision with the person so pushed or run against. To say that a stone was hurled at and against a person would very naturally make the impression that such person was hit by the stone. It is said that where one person wilfully pushes a drunken man against another person, from which an injury ensues, it constitutes an assault and battery. See Russell on Crimes, 1021. Although the words used in this indictment are not the most appropriate that might have been selected for the purpose, we are of the opinion that an assault and battery is sufficiently charged against the appellee." State v. Prather, 54 Ind. 63.

Where a complaint was made in this form, "F., on oath, complains against P., at M., on the first of February in the year 1844 did sell to C. one glass of spirituous liquors," etc., it was held, that the word "against" might be rejected as surplusage, and that the complaint without that word was sufficient. Com. v. Peniman, 8 Metc. (Mass.) 519.

Against Her Will.—In statutes defining the crime of rape, this expression means "without her consent," and the crime is committed if the woman's consent has not been obtained, even though no violence has been used. "The earlier and more weighty authorities," says Gray, J., in a case where a woman had been ravished while insensible, "show that the words 'against her will,' in the standard definitions, mean exactly the same thing as 'without her consent,' and that the distinction between these phrases, as applied to this crime, which has been suggested in some modern books, is unfounded. We are therefore unanimously of the opinion that the crime which the evidence in this case tended to prove, of a man's having carnal intercourse with a woman without her consent, while she was, as he knew, wholly insensible, so as to be incapable of consenting, and with such force as was necessary to accomplish the purpose, was rape." Com. v. Burke, 105 Mass. 376.

So the inducing a woman, by misrepresentation, fraud, and falsehood, to go to the house where she was defiled, although no force was used to take her there, is within the provision of the New York statute (2 R. S. 664, § 25) declaring the punishment for the offense of taking a "woman unlawfully, against her will, with the intent to compel her by force, menace, or duress to be defiled." Beyer v. People, 86 N. Y. 369.

Against the Form of the Statute.—Technical words which must be used in framing an indictment for a breach of the statute complained of.

If one statute subjects an act to a pecuniary penalty, and a subsequent statute makes it a felony, an indictment for the felony concluding "against the form of the statute" (in the singular number only) is right. Rex v. Pim, English Crown Cases, Russ. & Ry. 424.

Where, in trover by the assignees of a bankrupt, the defendant pleaded that before the bankruptcy he advanced the bankrupt a sum of money upon the deposit of the goods in respect of which the action was brought, and the assignees filed a replication that it was corruptly and "against the form of the statute," and agreed between the defendant and the bankrupt that the latter should pay the defendant for the loan of the money £10 per cent, it was held, on a special demurrer, that the averment of the contract being against the form of the statute was not a sufficient allegation that it was illegal; and that the replication should have alleged what particular statute it was in contravention of. Jurquand v. Mose-don, 7 M. & W. 504.

In an action upon the case for infringement of copyright, although the court refused to allow a count founded on a common-law right to be joined with counts under a statute upon the same cause of action, it was held, that, notwithstanding the words "against the form of the statute" in counts framed upon the statute, a plaintiff might give in evidence, under those counts, an infringement of his common-law right. Boozey v. Jolkien, 5 C. B. 476.

Against the Peace of the State.—An indictment in Wisconsin which does not

AGE. (See also INFANCY.)

It signifies in the law those periods in the lives of persons of both sexes which enable them to do certain acts which, before they had arrived at those periods, they were prohibited from doing. As, for example, a male at the age of twelve years may take the oath of allegiance; at fourteen, which is his age of discretion, he may consent to marriage or choose his guardian; and at twenty-one he may alien his lands, goods, and chattels. A female at nine years of age is dowable; at twelve may consent to marriage; at fourteen is at years of discretion, and may choose a guardian; and at twenty-one may alien her lands, etc. But the full age of either male or female is twenty-one, until which time they are considered as infants.<sup>1</sup> conclude "against the peace and dignity of the State" (as required by sec. 17, art. 7 of the constitution) is bad; and the words "against the peace of the State of Wisconsin" are not sufficient.

Against Law.—Where it appears that the jury, in rendering their verdict, must either have disregarded the law as given in the instructions of the court, or else have found a fact wholly contrary to the evidence, the verdict is "against law." Sweeney v. C. P. R. Co., 57 Cal. 15.

Whatever else may be meant by the expression "decision against law," we think that there is no doubt that it includes a case where the decision is based upon findings which do not determine all of the material issues of fact raised by the pleadings. Knight v. Roche, 56 Cal. 18.

When a court draws erroneous conclusions of law from its finding of facts, it is a "decision against law," for which a new trial should be granted under subdivision 6 of § 657 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Simmons v. Hamilton, 56 Cal. 493.

A verdict of a jury in obedience to the instructions of the court upon a point of law is a verdict "against law" within the meaning of subdivision 6, sec. 193, of the Practice Act, and for that reason should be set aside without further consideration.

To this Crockett, J., dissented on the ground that when it is apparent that the instruction disregarded by the jury was erroneous, and the verdict is in other respects proper, and no injury has been done the party or can result from the error complained of, the verdict should not be set aside as "against law." Emerson v. County of Santa Clara, 40 Cal. 545.

In the Extradition Act of 1870 (33 and 34 Vict. c. 52), which enumerated as extradition crimes "crimes by bankrupts against bankruptcy law," no mention was made of accessories; and in 1873 it was held that this could not be extended to complicity by a person not himself a bankrupt in a fraudulent bankruptcy. In re Counhaye, L. R. 8 Q. B. 410.

Subsequently the act of 1873 authorized that indictable offences under the laws for the time being in force in relation to bankruptcy might be made the subject of extradition treaties. By such a treaty, among other crimes for which extradition was to be granted were "crimes against bankruptcy law;" and in 1878 a warrant for the apprehension of a fugitive criminal by virtue of such a treaty which described the offence as "the commission of crimes against bankruptcy law" within the jurisdiction of the foreign power demanding the extradition was held good. Ex parte Terraz, L. R. 4 Exchequer D. 63.

The words "any crime or offence against the laws of China," in the provision of the Hong Kong ordinance No. 2 of 1850, must be limited to those ordinary crimes and offences which are punished by the laws of all nations, and which are not peculiar to the laws of China. Attorney-General v. Kwok-A-Sing, L. R. 5 Privy Council Ap. 179.

1. Brown's Law Dict. (Sprague's Ed.); Bouvier's Law Dict.; Co. Litt. 78.

A female under ten years of age is incapable at common law of giving her consent to an act of carnal knowledge. Moore v. State, 17 Ohio St. 521; Com. v. Roosnell, 8 N. East. Repr. (Mass.) 747. This principle has been clearly maintained with reference to kidnapping children and removing young slaves. Com. v. Nickerson, 5 Allen (Mass.), 518; Com. v. Taylor, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 72; Com. v. Aves, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 193; Com. v. Roosnell, 8 N. East. Repr. (Mass.) 747; State v. Rollins, 8 N. H. 550; State

Computation of Age.—The age of twenty-one years is complete on the first moment of the last day next before the twenty-first anniversary of the birth.<sup>1</sup>

In Criminal Law.—No act done by any person under seven years of age is a crime. Nor is an act done by any person over seven and under fourteen years of age a crime, unless it be shown affirmatively that such person had sufficient capacity to know that the act was wrong.<sup>2</sup> In some States, the age under which a v. Farrar, 41 N. H. 53; also in cases of indecent assaults. People v. McDonald, 9 Mich. 150; Hays v. People, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 351; Singer v. People, 13 Hun (N. Y.), 418; State v. Dancy, 83 N. Car. 608; State v. Johnston, 76 N. Car. 209. See Givens v. Com. 29 Grat. (Va.) 830; The Queen v. Dee, L. R. 14 Ir. 468.

It is at the age of puberty, and not at the age of majority, that a female ceases to be a "child" and becomes a "woman," within the meaning of a statute defining the crime of rape. Blackburn v. State, 22 Ohio St. 102.

Evidence.—The age must be proved by sworn testimony. Neither the court nor the jury can judge from the appearance of the child. Stephenson v. State, 28 Ind. 272. Compare State v. Arnold, 13 Ired. (N. Car.) 184.

The N. Y. Penal Code, § 19, provides: Whenever in any legal proceeding it becomes necessary to determine the age of a child, the child may be produced for personal inspection, to enable the magistrate, court, or jury to determine the age thereby; and the court or magistrate may direct an examination by one or more physicians, whose opinion shall also be competent evidence upon the question of age.

A statement in a will of the date of a person's birth is prima-facie evidence of his age. Vulliamy v. Huskisson, 3 Y. & C. 80.

But evidence of reputation is inadmissible to prove a person's age. Colclough v. Smyth, 15 Ir. Ch. 347; 10 L. T. N. S. 918.

Family discussion as to birthday, and acts done on the reputed day, are evidence for the jury as to the age of an infant prosecutrix on whom a rape is charged to have been committed. R. v. Hayes, 2 Cox C. C. 226.

A prisoner was charged with carnally abusing a child under ten, on February 5, 1832. To prove the child under ten years, an examined copy of the register of her baptism on February 9, 1822, was put in, and her father stated that he left his house about a week before the 9th of February, 1822, his wife not being then confined; and that on his return on that day he found this child, and was told by his wife's mother that it had been born on the day before. Held, that this was not sufficient evidence of the child's being under ten years. R. v. Wedge, 5 C. & P. 298.

A mother stated that a child was ten years old last March, but on cross-examination her evidence as to the knowledge of her children's ages seemed by no means clear. The evidence, though objected to as too unsatisfactory to leave to the jury on a charge of carnally knowing and abusing a girl under the age of twelve, was submitted to the jury, who found that the girl was under twelve, and convicted the prisoner of the charge. Held, that the conviction must be affirmed. R. v. Nicholls, 10 Cox C. C. 476.

1. 1 Black. Com. 464; State v. Clark, 3 Harr. (Del.) 557; Hamlin v. Stevenson, 4 Dana (Ky.), 597; Wells v. Wells, 6 Ind. 447.

A person attains his twenty-fifth year when he becomes twenty-four. Grant v. Grant, 4 Y. & C. 256.

2. State v. Fowler, 52 Iowa, 103; State v. Aaron, 1 South. (N. J.) 231; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 592; Willet v. Commonwealth, 13 Bush (Ky.), 230; Com. v. Mead, 10 Allen (Mass.), 398; State v. Doherty, 2 Overt. (Tenn.) 80; Godfrey v. State, 31 Ala. 323; State v. Learnard, 41 Vt. 585; Walker's Case, 5 C. H. R. (N. Y.) 137.

Mr. Russell says (Russ. on Crimes, 9th Am. Ed.): "With regard to capital crimes, the law is minute and circumspect; distinguishing with great nicety the several degrees of age and discretion; though the capacity of doing ill or contracting guilt is not so much measured by years and days as by the strength of the delinquent's understanding and judgment. 4 Black. Com. 23. But within the age of seven years an infant cannot be punished for any capital offence, whatever circumstances of a mischievous discretion may appear; for, ex presumptione juris, such an infant cannot have discretion; and against this presumption no averment shall be admitted."

person is incapable of committing a crime has by statute been extended to an age beyond seven years.

1 Hale 27, 28; 1 Hawk. c. 1, s. 1, note (1); 4 Black. Com. 23. A pardon was granted to an infant within the age of seven years, who was indicted for homicide, the jury having found that he did the act before he was seven years old. 1 Hale, 27 (edit. 1800), note c.

On a charge of homicide against an infant a little more than eleven years old, the legal presumption being that he was incapable of committing any crime, it devolves on the prosecution to make strong and clear proof of capacity before a conviction can be had, and without such proof a judgment of conviction will be reversed. Angelo v. People, 96 Ill. 209; s. c., 36 Am. Rep. 132. See Com. v. French, Thatcher's Cr. Cas. (Mass.) 163; Com. v. Elliott, 4 Boston L. R. 329.

It is not necessary that such proof be made by direct and positive testimony. Wusnig v. State, 33 Tex. 651. But on confessions alone, an infant under twelve years of age cannot be convicted of murder. State v. Aaron, 1 South. (N. J.) 231; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 592. See McCoon v. Smith, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 147; State v. Bostick, 4 Harr. (Del.) 563. Compare State v. Guild, 5 Halst. (N. J.) 163.

Where the defence is, that the prisoner is under the age of presumed capacity, the burden of proof is on the prisoner. State v. Arnold, 13 Ired. (N. Car.) 184.

A person under thirteen years of age, unless discretion is proved, is not guilty of larceny. Gardiner v. State, 33 Tex. 692. See People v. Davis, 1 Wheel. C. C. (N. Y.) 230; nor of assault and battery. State v. Going, 9 Humph. (Tenn.) 175. Compare Sikes v. Johnson, 16 Mass. 389; Bullock v. Babcock, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 391.

An infant between the ages of seven and fourteen is presumed to be incapable of committing crime, and the onus is on the State to prove his criminal capacity. State v. Adams, 76 Mo. 355; State v. Tice, 1 S. W. Repr. (Mo.) 269.

An infant of fourteen years is presumed incapable of committing rape, but this presumption may be rebutted by proof of puberty. Williams v. State, 14 Ohio, 222. See Hiltabiddle v. State, 35 Ohio St. 52. Compare Com. v. Green, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 380; State v. Sam, 1 Win. (N. Car.) 300; State v. Pugh, 7 Jones (N. Car.), 61; People v. Randolph, 2 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 174.

A boy over fourteen years of age will be presumed capable of committing rape. State v. Handy, 4 Harr. (Del.) 566. But contra, if under fourteen years of age.

Winst. (N. Car.) 300. See People v. Randolph, 2 Park Cr. (N. Y.) 174.

A boy under fourteen years of age, who assists another person in an attempt to commit a rape, may be punished the same as the principal, in the first degree, if it appear, under all the circumstances of the case, that he had a "mischievous discretion." The fact that a boy eleven years and eleven months old, of "average capacity" for his age, put his hand over the mouth of a female whilst his elder brother attempted to commit a rape upon her, is not sufficient of itself for his conviction as principal in the second degree of the felony of which his elder brother had been convicted. Law v. Commonwealth, 75 Va. 885; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 750.

A boy of fourteen years of age was indicted for selling liquor. He did so in the presence and by direction of his mother. Held, that the child's legal capacity to commit crime must be established as a distinct fact. Com. v. Mead, 10 Allen (Mass.), 398. See People v. Richmond, 29 Cal. 414; State v. Larnard, 41 Vt. 585.

The capacity of an infant under fourteen years of age to commit the crime of malicious trespass is a question to be determined from the facts of the case; independent evidence of such capacity is not essential. State v. Toney, 15 S. Car. 409.

A boy about twelve years of age was convicted of perjury. The trial judge gave no instruction as to the effect of his age on the crime. Held error. Willet v. Commonwealth, 13 Bush (Ky.), 230.

In an action for rape or carnal knowledge of a child under twelve, against a boy under fourteen, the failure of the trial court to direct the jury to consider the question whether or not the boy had at the time discretion and mind enough to know the wrongful character of the act is ground for a new trial. Heilman v. Commonwealth, 1. S. West n. Repr. (Ky.) 731.

On the trial of a boy of fourteen years of age for breaking in a store, an instruction which tells the jury that if appellant broke into the store, as alleged, but did so at the request of another, and, in consequence of youth or mental infirmity, he did not understand the character of the act he was committing, they should find for defendant, should have been given. McClure v. Commonwealth, 81 Ky. 448.

The evidence of malice, which is to supply age, must be clear and strong

An infant is liable criminally for obtaining goods by false pre-beyond all doubt and contradiction. Law v. Commonwealth, 75 Va. 885; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 750.

An infant under the age of seven years cannot be guilty of felony; and therefore a defendant cannot justify taking such an infant into custody and taking him before a magistrate upon the ground that he had been caught stealing a piece of wood. Marsh v. Loader, 14 C. B. (N. S.) 535.

On the attainment of fourteen years of age, the criminal actions of infants are subject to the same modes of construction as those of the rest of society; for the law presumes them at those years to be doli capaces, and able to discern between good and evil, and therefore subjects them to capital punishments as much as if they were of full age. Dr. & Stu. c. 26; Co. Lit. 79, 171, 274; Dalt. 476, 505; 1 Hale, 25; Bac. Abr. Inf. A. & H. But during the interval between fourteen years and seven, an infant shall be prima facie deemed to be doli incapax, and presumed to be unacquainted with guilt; yet this presumption will diminish with the advance of the offender's years, and will depend upon the particular facts and circumstances of his case. The evidence of malice, however, which is to supply age, should be strong and clear beyond all doubt and contradiction; but if it appear to the court and jury that the offender was doli capax, and could discern between good and evil, he may be convicted and suffer death. 1 Hale, 25, 27; 4 Black. Com. 23. Thus, it is said that an infant of eight years old may be guilty of murder, and shall be hanged for it. Dalt. Just. c. 147. And where an infant between eight and nine years old was indicted, and found guilty of burning two barns, and it appeared, upon examination, that he had malice, revenge, craft, and cunning, he had judgment to be hanged, and was executed accordingly. Dean's case, 1 Hale, 25 note (u).

An infant of the age of nine years, having killed an infant of the like age, confessed the felony; and, upon examination, it was found that he hid the blood and the body. The justices held that he ought to be hanged; but they respited the execution that he might have a pardon. 1 Hale, 27; F. Corone, 57; B. Corone, 133. Another infant, of the age of ten years, who had killed his companion and hid himself, was, however, actually hanged; upon the ground that it appeared by his hiding that he could discern between good and evil; and malitia supplet aetatem. Spigurnal's Case, 1 Hale, 26; Fitz. Rep. Corone, 118. And a girl of thirteen was burnt for killing her mistress. Alice de Waldborough's Case, 1 Hale, 26. Whenever a person under the age of fourteen is charged with committing a felony, the proper course is to leave the case to the jury to say whether, at the time of committing the offence, such person had guilty knowledge that he was doing wrong. R. v. Owen, 4 C. & P. 236; R. v. Smith, 1 Cox C. C. 260; R. v. Vanplew, 3 F. & F. 520.

In the case of rape, the law presumes that an infant under the age of fourteen years is unable to commit the crime, and therefore he cannot be guilty of it. R. v. Groombridge, 7 C. & P. 582. So, also, for the like reason, such an infant cannot be guilty of an assault with intent to commit a rape. R. v. Eldershaw, 3 C. & P. 396; R. v. Phillips, 8 C. & P. 736. Or of carnally knowing a girl under ten years of age. R. v. Jordan, 9 C. & P. 118. And this presumption cannot be rebutted, and evidence is not admissible to prove that the infant is in fact competent to commit any such offence. R. v. Phillips, and R. v. Jordan, supra. But this presumption is upon the ground of impotency rather than the want of discretion; for he may be a principal in the second degree, as aiding and assisting in this offence as well as in other felonies, if it appear by sufficient circumstances that he had a mischievous discretion. 1 Hale, 630.

In 1748, W. York, a boy of ten years of age, was convicted for the murder of a girl of about five years of age; but Willes, C. J., out of regard to the tender years of the prisoner, respited execution till he could take the opinion of the rest of the judges, whether it was proper to execute him or not.

The boy and girl were parish children, under the care of a parishoner; and on the day of the murder he and his wife went out to their work, and left the children in bed together. When they returned the girl was missing, and the boy being asked what was become of her, answered that he had helped her up and put on her clothes, and she had gone he knew not whither. Upon this, strict search was made for the child. During this search, the man observed that a heap of dung near the house had been newly turned up; and, upon removing the upper part of the heap, he found the body of the child about a foot's depth under the surface, cut and mangled in a most barbarous and horrid manner. Upon this discovery, the boy, who was the only person tences.<sup>1</sup> An infant of tender years upon whose lands a nuisance is erected cannot be made criminally answerable for it.<sup>2</sup> (See also INFANCY.)

capable of committing the fact, that was left home with the child, was charged with the fact, which he stiffly denied. When the coroner's jury met, the boy was again charged, but persisted still to deny the fact. At length, being closely interrogated, he fell to crying, and said he would tell the whole truth. He then said that the child had been used to foul herself in bed; that she did so that morning (which was not true, for the bed was searched and found to be clean), that thereupon he took her out of the bed and carried her to the dung-heap, and with a large knife which he found about the house, cut her in the manner the body appeared to be mangled, and buried her in the dung-heap; placing the dung and straw that was bloody under the body, and covering it up with what was clean; and having so done, he got water and washed himself as clean as he could. The boy was the next morning carried before a neighboring justice of the peace, before whom he repeated his confession, with all the circumstances he had related to the coroner and his jury. The justice of the peace very prudently deferred proceeding to a commitment until the boy should have an opportunity of recollecting himself. Accordingly he warned him of the danger he was in if he should be thought guilty of the fact he stood charged with, and admonished him not to wrong himself; and then ordered him into a room where none of the crowd that attended should have access to him. When the boy had been some hours in this room, where victuals and drink were provided for him, he was brought a second time before the justice, and then he repeated his former confession, upon which he was committed to jail. On the trial, evidence was given of the declarations before mentioned to have been made before the coroner and his jury, and before the justice of the peace; and of many declarations to the same purpose which the boy made to other people after he came to jail, and even down to the day of his trial; for he constantly told the same story in substance, commonly adding that the devil put him upon committing the fact. Upon this evidence, with some other circumstances tending to corroborate the confessions, he was convicted. The judges having taken time to consider this report, unanimously agreed: 1. That the declarations stated in the report were evidence proper to be left to the jury. 2. That supposing the boy to have been guilty of this fact, there were so many circumstances stated in the report which were undoubtedly tokens of what Lord Hale calls a mischievous discretion that he was certainly a proper subject for capital punishment, and ought to suffer; for it would be of very dangerous consequence to have it thought that children may commit such atrocious crimes with impunity. That there are many crimes of the most heinous nature, such as (in the present case) the murder of young children, poisoning parents or masters, burning houses, etc., which children are very capable of committing; and which they may in some circumstances be under strong temptations to commit; and therefore, though the taking away the life of a boy of ten years old might savor of cruelty, yet, as the example of that boy's punishment might be a means of deterring other children from the like offences, and as the sparing the boy, merely on account of his age, would probably have a quite contrary tendency, in justice to the public, the law ought to take its course; unless there remained any doubt touching his guilt. In this general principle all the judges concurred; but two or three of them, out of great tenderness and caution, advised the chief judge to send another reprieve for the prisoner; suggesting that it might possibly appear, on further inquiry, that the boy had taken this matter upon himself at the instigation of some person or other, who hoped by this artifice to screen the real offender from justice. Accordingly the chief justice granted one or two more reprieves; and desired the justice of the peace who took the boy's examination, and also some other persons, in whose prudence he could confide, to make the strictest inquiry they could into the affair, and report to him. At length he, receiving no further light, determined to send no more reprieves, and to leave the prisoner to the justice of the law at the expiration of the last; but, before the expiration of that reprieve, execution was respite till further order by warrant from one of the secretaries of state; and at the summer assizes, 1757, the prisoner had the benefit of His Majesty's pardon, upon condition of his entering immediately into the sea service. York's case, Fost. 70 et seq.

1. People v. Kendall, 25 Wend. (N. Y.) 399.

2. People v. Townsend, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 479.

AGENCY.

AGENCY. (See also ATTORNEYS; AUCTIONEERS; BROKERS; COLLECTION AGENCIES; COMMERCIAL AGENTS or DRUMMERS; COMMISSION MERCHANTS or FACTORS; CORPORATIONS; MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS; POWER OF ATTORNEY; SHIPMASTERS.)

DEFINITION, 333.

WHO MAY BE PRINCIPAL, 333.

Legally Incompetent: Infants, Married Women, Aliens, 333.

Naturally Incompetent: Lunatics, Idiots, Drunkards, 334.

Corporations, 334.

Joint Principals, 334.

WHO MAY BE AGENTS, 334.

Adverse Interests Disqualify, 335.

Joint Agents, 335.

APPOINTMENT, 336.

Form of, 336

When under Seal, 337.

By Corporations, 338.

When by Parol, 339.

By Implication, 340.

Implied by Scope of Employment, 341.

Implied by Former Employment, 342.

By Direct Instructions, 343.

Must be Distinct, 344.

Parties Bound by Implication, 345.

Limited by Usage, 347.

CLASSES OF AGENTS, 347.

GENERAL AND SPECIAL AGENTS, 348.

Universal Agents, 349.

How Principal Bound by Acts of General Agent, 350.

How by Acts of Special Agent, 351.

Instances:

Power to Sell—to Collect, 355.

Power to Collect, 357.

Power to Sell—to Warrant, 358.

Agent to Sell may Rescind Sale, 359.

Power to Sell—Miscellaneous Restrictions, 359.

Miscellaneous Powers — Restrictions, 362.

Power to Sell or Issue Negotiable Paper, 362.

Power to Conduct Business, 363.

Power to Employ, 364.

Power to Provide Surgical Aid, 364.

Power to Manage Property, 365.

Power to Control Real Estate, 366.

Power to Use Principal's Credit, 366.

Power to Loan and Borrow, 366.

Power to Mortgage, 366.

Power to Settle, 367.

Power to Perform Contracts, 367.

DUTIES OF AGENTS, 368.

To Perform Duties Undertaken, 368.

To Act in Name of Principal, 368.

DUTIES OF AGENTS—Continued.

To Act in Person, 368.

Power of Substitution, 369.

To Obey Instructions, 369.

To Conform to Usage, 371.

To Use Ordinary Skill, 371.

To Make full Disclosure of Adverse Interest, 372.

Same Rule as to Officers of Corporations, 373.

Fiduciary Relations, 375.

Purchasing Agent may not Buy his own Property, 375.

Selling Agent cannot Buy himself, 375.

But may Buy direct from Principal, 376.

Agent to Buy may not Buy for himself, 378.

All Profits belong to Principal, 379.

Cannot Act for both Parties, 380.

Except by Consent, 381.

After Termination of Agency, 382.

Must Render Full Accounts, 382.

And Keep Regular Accounts, 383.

Demand Necessary, 383.

Interest on Accounts, 384.

To Keep Goods of Principal Separate from his Own, 384.

SIGNATURES OF AGENTS, 385.

Instruments under Seal, 385.

Signed and Sealed in Name of Principal, 386.

Intention appearing on Face of Instrument, 387.

Intention not appearing, 387.

Bills and Notes, 388.

Name of Principal appearing on Face of Instrument, 389.

Corporate Seal on Instrument, 390.

Agents in the Habit of Signing Negotiable Paper, 390.

Ambiguous Instruments, 391.

Credit of Parties whose Names appear, 391.

Simple Contracts, 392.

Agent must Sign his Name also, 393.

SUB-AGENTS, 394.

How are Agents Liable for Acts of Sub-agents, 394.

Public Agents not Liable for Acts of Sub-agents, 395.

Must Account to Immediate Principal, 395.

Look to him for Compensation, 395.

AGENCY.

DUTIES OF PRINCIPAL TO AGENT,
Compensation of Agent, 396. [396.
Salary or Commission, 396.
Del Credere Commission, 396.
May be Fixed by Jury, 397.
After Termination of Agency, 397.
For Illegal Services, 397.
When not Entitled to, 397.
How when Agency Prematurely Ended, 399.

Agent must be Indemnified for Expenses, 399.

LIABILITIES OF AGENT TO THIRD PARTIES, 401.

Not Personally Liable when Acting in Name of Principal, 401.

Liable when Acting in his own Name, 402.

Liable when he Pledges his own Credit, 403.

Public Officers not Personally Liable, 404.

Agents for Foreign Principals, 404.

How for Mispaid Money, 405.

Liable when Contract only effective in Agent's Name, 406.

Not Liable for Negligence, 406.

Liable for Misfeasance, 407.

Liable when in full Control of Work done, 407.

Liable for Fraud and Malice, 407.

When in Control of Work Liable for Torts of Employees, 408.

RIGHTS OF AGENTS AGAINST THIRD PARTIES, 408.

Can Sue when Acting in Principal's Name, 408.

Not when Acting in his own Name, 409.

How when it is Doubtful who Contracted, 409.

Can Sue when he has an Interest, 410.

LIABILITIES TO THIRD PARTIES, 410.

Liable for all Acts of Agent, 410.

The Existence of Agency must be Proved, 415.

Principal Liable when Agent Exceeds Authority, 415.

And when he Contracts in his own Name, 415.

Not Liable when Exclusive Credit given to Agent, 416.

Liable for Fraud and Deceit of Agent, 417.

When Committed in Course of Employment, 418.

Liable for Negligence of Agent, 419.

NOTICE TO AGENT IS NOTICE TO PRINCIPAL, 419.

NOTICE TO AGENT IS NOTICE TO PRINCIPAL—Continued.

Also in Case of Corporations, 421.

To whom Notice must be Given for a Corporation, 422.

When Notice must have been Received by Agent, 422.

Not if Agent Colludes with Third Party, 423.

RIGHTS OF PRINCIPALS AGAINST THIRD PARTIES, 423.

May Sue on Contracts of Agents, 423.

His Right is Modified by Representations of Agent, 425.

Subject to Equities where Agent has Contracted in his own Name, 425.

May Recover Money Mispaid by Agent, 427.

May Follow his Property, 427.

May Sue for Torts, 428.

RIGHTS OF AGENT AGAINST PRINCIPAL, 428.

Right to Lien, 428.

Does not Impair Right to Sue, 429.

RATIFICATION, 429.

Has same Effect as Original Authority, 429.

Only Voidable Acts can be Ratified, 430.

Act must be done in Name of Principal, 431.

Principal must be in Existence when Act done, 432.

Must have Knowledge of all Facts, 432.

Must be Capable of Ratifying, 433.

Disavowal does not Prevent Subsequent Ratification, 434.

Acts of Public Officers can be Ratified, 434.

Ratification of Torts, 434.

Ratification cannot be Retracted, 434.

Cannot be in Part of Transaction, 434.

Ratification after Termination of Agency, 435.

Form of Ratification, 435.

Must Refer to Precise Act, 436.

May be Implied, 437.

Clear Intention must be Shown, 438.

May be Implied from Form of Action, 439.

Acts not Promptly Disavowed are Ratified, 439.

Principal must have full Knowledge of Facts, 441.

Acts must have been Done under Appointment, 442.

Slight Evidence of Ratification sometimes Sufficient, 442.

TERMINATION OF AGENCY, 443.

By Agreement, 443.

By Act of Principal, 444.

Appointment under Seal Revoked by Parol, 444.

Revocation may be Implied, 444.

By Act of Agent, 445.

Any Naked Power Revoked, 445.

But not when Coupled with an Interest, 445.

Interest must be in Subject-matter, 446.

Not when Conferred for a Consideration, 446.

By Death of Principal, 446.

TERMINATION OF AGENCY — Continued.

When does Revocation by Death take Effect, 447.

Revokes Power of Sub-agent, 447.

By Insanity of Principal, 447.

By Insanity of Agent, 448.

By Bankruptcy, 448.

By Marriage, 448.

By Dissolution of Partnership, 448.

Not by War, 448.

Revocation of Power of Agent Revokes Power of Sub-agent, 448.

Acts of Agent after Revocation, but before Notice Received, 448.

1. Definition.—An agent is a person duly authorized to act on behalf of another, or one whose unauthorized act has been duly ratified.<sup>1</sup>

2. Who may be Principal.—It may be laid down generally that any person sui juris, unless prohibited by law to which he is subject, may be a principal;<sup>2</sup> but persons who are neither naturally nor legally sui juris are, as a rule, incompetent to act as principals and to appoint agents.<sup>3</sup>

Infants—Married Women—Aliens, are legally not sui juris and are incompetent to appoint agents except as authorized by statute.<sup>4</sup>

1. Evans on Agency (Ewell's Ed.) 1; Sweet's Law Dict.

2. Evans on Agency (Ewell's Ed.), 11; Story on Agency, § 5.

In general, it may be stated, as a rule of the common law, that whenever a person has a power, as owner or in his own right, to do a thing he may do it by an agent. Story on Agency, § 6.

A principal cannot confer on an agent power to do that in his behalf which he himself could not do if he were personally present and acting for himself. Ferguson v. Morris, 67 Ala. 389.

3. Story on Agency, § 6; Evans on Agency (Ewell's Ed.), 12.

4. Story on Agency, § 6.

A married woman is, as a rule, incapable of appointing agents, except when empowered by statute to dispose of her separate property. She can, however, appoint her husband her agent. Walker v. Carrington, 74 Ill. 446; Vail v. Meyer, 71 Ind. 159; Griffin v. Ransdell, 71 Ind. 440; McLaren v. Hall, 26 Iowa, 297; Jones v. Smith, 121 Mass. 15; Coolidge v. Smith, 129 Mass. 554; Paine v. Farr, 118 Mass. 74; Lavassar v. Washburne, 50 Wis. 200; Wright v. Hood, 49 Wis. 235; Ready v. Bragg, 1 Head (Tenn.), 511; Martin v. Rector, 4 N. East. Repr. (N. Y.) 183; Wood v. Wood, 83 N. Y. 575; Bodine v. Killeen, 53 N. Y. 93; Rowe v. Smith, 45 N. Y. 230; Draper v.

Stouvenel, 35 N. Y. 507; Knapp v. Smith, 27 N. Y. 277; Freiberg v. Brangan, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 344; Penn v. Whiteheads, 12 Gratt. (Va.) 74; Manhattan L. I. Co. v. Smith, 5 N. East. Repr. (Ohio) 417.

A married woman, owning an equitable separate estate, may authorize her husband to manage it as her general agent; and the fact of such agency being clearly shown, the same incidents attach as in the case of any other general agency, and she is bound by his acts as any other principal would be bound. Louisville Coffin Co. v. Stokes, 78 Ala. 372.

A husband may be the agent of his wife. The declarations of a party, made at the time that she handed a deed to her husband to deliver as her agent to the grantee, are admissible in evidence as a part of the res gesta. Harper v. Dail, 92 N. Car. 394. See also HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Whether the appointment of an agent by an infant is an act absolutely void or one voidable is an unsettled question. The weight of authority inclines to the former proposition, as will be seen by the following cases: Fetrow v. Wiseman, 40 Ind. 148; Trueblood v. Trueblood, 8 Ind. 195; s. c., 65 Am. Dec. 756; Waples v. Hastings, 3 Harr. (Del.) 403; Carnahan v. Alderdice, 4 Harr. (Del.) 99; Bennett v. Davis, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 393; Fonda Disabilities.—Persons naturally incompetent to appoint agents are lunatics, idiots, drunkards, etc. They are wholly incapable.<sup>1</sup>

Corporations, being mere artificial creations, cannot act except through the instrumentality of an agent or attorney. They therefore must be principals.<sup>2</sup>

Joint Principals.—Two or more parties who have an undivided interest in the same matter may be joint principals. They must, however, concur in the appointment of an agent. One cannot act for the other except in the case of partnership matters.<sup>3</sup>

3. Who may be Agents.—Agents are not required to possess the same qualifications as principals, and it may be laid down as a general rule that all persons of sane mind are capable of becoming agents. Few persons, if any, are excluded from exercising a naked authority to which they are delegated. Hence infants, femes covertes, persons attainted, outlawed, or excommunicated, and aliens may be agents.<sup>4</sup>

v. Van Horne, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 631; s. c., 30 Am Dec. 77; Knox v. Flack, 22 Pa. St. 337; Armitage v. Widoe, 36 Mich. 124; Lawrence v. McArter, 10 Ohio, 37; Pyle v. Craven, 4 Litt. (Ky.) 17; Semple v. Morrison, 7 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 298; Dexter v. Hall, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 9. See Vasse v. Smith, 1 Am. Lead. Cas. 243, note.

An infant cannot have an attorney in fact; a power of attorney executed by him being absolutely void. Glass v. Glass, 76 Ala. 368.

Judge Story, in his work on Agency, § 6, holds that the appointment is voidable. He says: "An infant may authorize another person to do any act which is for his benefit." See Whitney v. Dutch, 14 Mass. 457; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 229; Tucker v. Moreland, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 58; Hastings v. Dollarhide, 24 Cal. 195; Hardy v. Waters, 38 Me. 450; Robinson v. Weeks, 56 Me. 102; Patterson v. Lippincott, 47 N. J. L. 457.

But he cannot where it is to his prejudice. Lawrence v. McArter, 10 Ohio, 37; Pyle v. Cravens, 4 Litt. (Ky.) 18; Bennett v. Davis, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 393; Waples v. Hastings, 3 Harr. (Del.) 403; Knox v. Flack, 10 Harr. (Pa.) 337.

For an elaborate discussion of this subject, see Ewell's Lead. Cas. on Infancy, 35, 44 et seq. See also INFANCY.

1. Story on Ag. § 6.

When one of the parties to a contract is of unsound mind, and the fact is unknown to the other contracting party, no advantage having been taken of the lunatic, this unsoundness of mind will not vacate a contract, especially where the contract is not merely executory but executed in whole or in part, and the parties cannot be restored to their original position. Evans on Ag. (Ewell's Ed.) 13. See Ewell's Lead. Cas. on Insanity, 184 et seq.

Where a principal, after appointing an agent, became of unsound mind, and the power of the agent, being coupled with an interest or given for a consideration, was irrevocable, the insane person will still be a principal. Matthieson Ref. Co. v. McMahon, 38 N. J. L. 536. See INSANE PERSONS.

The contract of a man so drunk as not to know what he is doing is voidable, but may be ratified when he becomes sober. Hamilton v. Grainger, 5 H. & N. 40; Matthews v. Baxter, L. R. 8 Ex. 132.

2. Story on Agency, § 16. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Reeher, 24 Kan. 228; Home L. Ins. Co. v. Pierce, 75 Ill. 426; McWilliams v. Detroit Central Mills Co., 31 Mich. 275.

The liability of a corporation for the acts of one who, with its assent, has controlled and sold its paper for his own benefit, is no less than that of an individual would be. Genesee Sav. Bank v. Mich. Barge Co., 52 Mich. 164. See also CORPORATIONS.

3. Story on Ag., §§ 39, 40.

4. Evans on Ag. (Ewell's Ed.) 13; Story on Ag. § 7; Lyon v. Kent, 45 Ala. 656.

An infant can be an agent. Brown v. Hartford Ins. Co., 117 Mass. 479. Or a wife for her husband. Lang v. Waters, 47 Ala. 624; Krebs v. O'Grady, 23 Ala. 726; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 312; Hopkins v. Mollinieux, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 465; Fenner v. Lewis, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 38; Edgerton v. Thomas, 9 N. Y. 40; Gaiusha v. Hitchcock, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 193; Marselis v.

Adverse Interest.—The only disqualification which seems to exist to prevent a person from becoming an agent is the fact that he has interests adverse to those created by the agency; or that he has already an agency which is incompatible with the new agency.<sup>1</sup> (See also DUTIES OF AGENT TO PRINCIPAL, infra.)

Joint Agents.—Two or more parties may be appointed as agents for the same matter; their authority will be joint, and they must act together, unless it is apparent from the appointment that they may act severally or by majority.<sup>2</sup>

Seaman, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 319; Goodwin v. Kelly, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 194; Rosenthal v. Mayhugh, 33 Ohio St. 155; White v. Oeland, 12 Rich. L. (S. Car.) 308; Nelson v. Garey, 114 Mass. 418; Meader v. Page, 39 Vt. 306; Sawyer v. Cutting, 23 Vt. 486; Felker v. Emerson, 16 Vt. 653; s. c., 42 Am. Dec. 532; Pickering v. Pickering, 6 N. H. 120; Kellogg v. Robinson, 32 Conn. 335; Stall v. Meek, 70 Pa. St. 181; McKinley v. McGregor, 3 Whart. (Pa.) 369; Butts v. Newton, 29 Wis. 632; Cantrell v. Colwell, 3 Head (Tenn.), 471; Stewart's Marr. and Div. § 174. Or for a third person in dealings with her husband. Pickering v. Pickering, 6 N. H. 124; McKinley v. McGregor, 3 Whart. (Pa.) 369; Felker v. Emerson, 16 Vt. 653.

A married woman is capable of being appointed and acting as the agent of a third person, without the consent of her husband; she may execute a power without his co-operation, and her acts as such agent impose no legal liability on him; and the knowledge or consent of the husband does not confer, by operation of law, any authority on him to do any act, in the scope of the wife's agency, so as to bind her principal. Pullam v. State, 78 Ala. 31.

A husband may act as his wife's agent, and such agency may be conferred before he acts, or his acts may be subsequently ratified. Sims v. Smith, 99 Ind. 469; Martin v. Rector, 101 N. Y. 77; Buckley v. Wells, 33 N. Y. 518; Knapp v. Smith, 27 N. Y. 277; Manhattan L. Ins. Co. v. Smith, 5 N. E. Repr. (Ohio) 417; Ready v. Bragg, 1 Head (Tenn.), 511; McLaren v. Hall, 26 Iowa, 297; Penn v. Whiteheads, 12 Gratt. (Va.) 74. See Rolling v. Bordenave, 15 La. Ann. 647; Lawrence v. Finch, 17 N. J. Eq. 234.

A father may be agent for his son, and the son for the father. Reeves v. Kelly, 30 Mich. 132; Chase v. Snow, 52 Vt. 525; Com. v. Holmes, 119 Mass. 195.

An alien enemy may be an agent in order to collect the money and preserve the property of his absent principal, and so far has power to bind his principal. Wharton on Agency, § 16.

1. Tewksburg v. Spruance, 75 Ill. 187; Taussig v. Hart, 58 N. Y. 425; Bunker v. Mile, 30 Me. 431; Walker v. Palmer, 24 Ala. 358.

2. Salisbury v. Brisbane, 61 N. Y. 617; Hawley v. Keeler, 53 N. Y. 114; Sinclair v. Jackson, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 543; Green v. Miller, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 39; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 184; Franklin v. Osgood, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 527; (per Thompson, J.); Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Wilcox, 57 Ill. 180; Union Bank v. Beirne, 1 Gratt. (Va.) 226; Johnston v. Bingham, 9 W. & S. (Pa.) 56; Rollins v. Phelps, 5 Min. 463; Copeland v. Mercantile Ins. Co., 6 Pick. (Mass.) 198; Sutton Parish v. Cole, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 232; Kupfer v. Augusta, 12 Mass. 189; Heard v. March, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 580; Jewett v. Alton, 7 N. H. 253; Low v. Perkins, 10 Vt. 532; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 137; Cedar Rapids, etc., Co. v. Stewart, 25 Iowa, 115; Peter v. Beverly, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 532, 564.

In private agencies, a joint power of attorney to two or more persons cannot be executed by one of them alone; but in its execution all must act jointly. Nor can one of the agents delegate to another authority to act for him in the execution of such power. Loeb v. Drakeford, 75 Ala. 464.

This principle refers only to agents acting in private matters; when appointed by law or to transact public business a majority may act. Soens v. Racine, 10 Wis. 271; Worcester v. Railr. Comm'rs, 113 Mass. 161; Towne v. Jaquith, 6 Mass. 46; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 84; Woolsey v. Tompkins, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 324; Green v. Miller, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 39; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 184; Ex parte Rogers, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 526; Ex parte Willcocks, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 402; s. c., 17 Am. Dec. 525; In re Turnpike, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 481; Comm'rs v. Lecky, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 166; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 418; Caldwell v. Harrison, 11 Ala. 755; Keyser v. School Distr., 35 N. H. 477; Jewett v. Alton, 7 N. H.

4. Appointment.—There must be an appointment to constitute one an agent. It is a rule of law that no one can become an agent except by the will of the principal.<sup>1</sup>

Form of Appointment.—The appointment may be under seal, in writing, or verbal, or may be implied from the fact that a person 253; Charles v. Hoboken, 3 Dutch. (N. J.) 203; Martin v. Lemon, 26 Conn. 192; Junkins v. School Distr., 39 Me. 220. Compare Ballard v. Davis, 31 Miss. 525; Pulaski Co. v. Lincoln, 4 Eng. (Ark.) 320.

Where corporations appoint a number of their own members a committee, a majority of such committee may act and bind the corporation. Damon v. Granby, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 345.

An agency, coupled with an interest, will survive when one of the joint agents dies, and the survivors will have power to act. Peter v. Beverly, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 532; Franklin v. Osgood, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 527; Sinclair v. Jackson, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 543.

1. Evans on Agency (Ewell's Ed.), 22; Stringham v. St. Nicholas Ins. Co., 4 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 315; McGoldrick v. Willis, 52 N. Y. 612; Rochester Bank v. Bentley, 27 Minn. 87; Gifford v. Landrine, 37 N. J. Eq. 127; Bericch v. Marye, 9 Nev. 312; Rust v. Eaton, 24 Fed. Repr. 830.

In the absence of evidence of express appointment, of ratification, or of an estoppel, there is no sufficient evidence of agency. Alexander v. Rollins, 84 Mo. 657; s. c., 14 Mo. App. 109.

Agency is a fact to which a witness, having knowledge of its existence, may testify; but it cannot be proved by general reputation. Railroad & Banking Co. v. Smith, 76 Ala. 572.

Where one person assumes to act as the agent of another, but without authority to do so, he makes himself personally liable as a principal in the transaction. Terwilliger v. Murphy, 104 Ind. 32; Simmons v. More, 100 N. Y. 140. And to the alleged principal in case he sustains damages. Philpot v. Taylor, 75 Ill. 309.

A, B, and C were holders of a joint mortgage. The assignee of the mortgagor, under an order of court, exposed the mortgaged premises at sheriff's sale, where they were bought in by A in pursuance of a parol arrangement with B and C, that he should buy for their joint benefit. C being applied to by A to advance his share of the purchase-money, declined to do so. Two years afterwards A and B sold the property at an advance, whereupon C claimed a share of the profits. Held, that complainant's conduct had been such as to preclude his right to the relief sought. Yeager's Appeal, 100 Pa. St. 88.

By the terms of the contract under which the defendant T. was to acquire a one-eighth interest in the brig C., then building by one P., the title would not pass to T. until the delivery of the brig, completed according to such contract. Before such delivery, libellant, on the order of P. who was afterwards managing owner, and who informed libellant that T. was a part owner, furnished an outfit for the vessel, which was charged to the brig and owners, and was delivered to the ship before the title passed to T. The purchase was made without the knowledge of defendant T., who afterwards paid to P. the price of his one-eighth share. T. was afterwards informed of the purchase, but not that it was made in part on his credit. The evidence left it doubtful whether the price agreed on between P. and T. for the one-eighth interest was intended to cover the outfit. Held, that, under the circumstances, P. had no authority to bind T. in the purchase of the outfit; that if T. was liable for the outfit it was solely to P., and subject to the state of their private accounts; that for supplies furnished subsequently T. was liable, and a reference as to these was ordered. De Wolf v. Tupper, 24 Fed. Repr. 289.

The will of the principal need not be expressed by direction or request. Permission to do a thing will be sufficient. Fay v. Richmond, 43 Vt. 25; Williams v. Williams, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 95.

Whether there is sufficient evidence of agency is a question for the jury. Mechanics' Bank v. Nat. Bank, 36 Md. 5; Lamb v. Irwin, 69 Pa. St. 436; Whitman v. Bolling, 47 Ga. 125; Nichols v. Hail, 4 Neb. 210. Compare Gulick v. Grover, 33 N. J. L. 463.

Where the principal in a suit brought to enforce a contract, entered into in his name by a supposed agent, denies the authority of the agent, the burden of proof to establish the agent's authority is on the party who seeks to enforce the contract. McCarty v. Strauss, 21 La. Ann. 592.

is placed in a situation in which, according to ordinary usage, he would be understood to represent and act for another.<sup>1</sup>

When under Seal.—It is a maxim of the common law that an authority to execute a deed or instrument under seal must be conferred by an instrument of equal dignity and solemnity; that is, by one under seal.<sup>2</sup>

Where a sealed instrument is delivered with blanks in an essential part; as the name of the obligee, the blank to be filled in by an agent, he must have authority under seal.<sup>3</sup>

1. Evans on Agency (Ewell's Ed.) 23.
2. Worrall v. Munn, 5 N. Y. 229; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 330; Blood v. Goodrich, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 68, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 525; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 151; Wells v. Evans, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 251; Hanford v. McNair, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 54; Wheeler v. Nevins, 34 Me. 54; Baker v. Freeman, 35 Me. 485; Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 203; Emerson v. Providence Hat Mfg. Co., 12 Mass. 237; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 66; Damon v. Granby, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 345; Banorge v. Hovey, 5 Mass. 11; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 17; McNaughton v. Partridge, 11 Ohio, 223; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 731; Rowe v. Ware, 30 Ga. 278; Deumright v. Philpot, 16 Ga. 424; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 738; Scheutze v. Bailey, 40 Mo. 69; Harshaw v. McKesson, 65 N. Car. 688; King v. Brooks, 9 Ired. L. (N. Car.) 218; Maus v. Worthing, 3 Scam. (Ill.) 26; Adams v. Power, 52 Miss. 828; Gordon v. Bulkeley, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 331; Cooper v. Rankin, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 613; Rhode v. Louthain, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 413; McMurtry v. Frank, 4 T. B. Monr. (Ky.) 39; Mitchell v. Sproull, 5 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 264; Smith v. Perry, 29 N. J. L. 74; Wagoner v. Watts, 44 N. J. L. 127; Long v. Hartwell, 34 N. J. L. 116; Cain v. Heard, 1 Coldw. (Tenn.) 163; Preston v. Hull, 23 Gratt. (Va.) 600; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 153. Compare Phillips v. Hornsby, 70 Ala. 414; Brown v. Eaton, 21 Minn. 409; Dickerman v. Ashton, 21 Minn. 558; Peine v. Weber, 47 Ill. 41.

Where a power of attorney given for the sale of land is insufficient in itself an oral direction to sell will not help it. Allis v. Goldsmith, 22 Minn. 123.

A deed may be signed by one person for another if the deed is signed in his presence by his direction upon an oral request. McMurtry v. Brown, 6 Neb. 368; Gardner v. Gardner, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 483; s. c., 52 Am. Dec. 740; Meyer v. King, 29 La. Ann. 567.

3. Burns v. Lynde, 6 Allen (Mass.), 305; Basford v. Pearson, 9 Allen (Mass.), 387; Cross v. State Bank, 5 Ark. 525; Preston v. Hull, 23 Gratt. (Va.) 600; s. c.,

14 Am. Rep. 153; Harrison v. Tiernans, 4 Rand. (Va.) 177; Williams v. Crutcher, 5 How. (Miss.) 71; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 422; Lamar v. Simpson, 1 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 71; s. c., 42 Am. Dec. 345; Boyd v. Boyd, 2 Nott. & M. (S. Car.) 125; Permynter v. McDaniel, 1 Hill (S. Car.) 267; 26 Am. Dec. 179; Pollard v. Gibbs, 55 Ga. 46; Ingram v. Little, 14 Ga. 173; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 549; Drumright v. Philpot, 16 Ga. 424; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 738; Gilbert v. Anthony, 1 Yerg. (Tenn.) 69; 24 Am. Dec. 439; Byers v. McClanahan, 6 Gill. & J. (Md.) 250; Ayres v. Harness, 1 Ohio, 368; s. c., 13 Am. Dec. 629; McKee v. Hicks, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) 379; Davenport v. Sleight, 2 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 381; s. c., 31 Am. Dec. 420.

Verbal authority has, however, also been held sufficient to authorize an agent to fill up blanks in a deed. White v. Duggan, 140 Mass. 18; Woolley v. Constant, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 54; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 246; Exp. Kerwin, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 118; Stahl v. Berger, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 170; s. c., 13 Am. Dec. 666; Sigfried v. Levan, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 308; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 427; Wiley v. Moore, 17 S. & R. (Pa.) 438; s. c., 17 Am. Dec. 696; Ogle v. Graham, 2 Pa. 132; Burnside v. Wayman, 49 Mo. 356; Field v. Stagg, 52 Mo. 534; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 435; Boardman v. Gore, 1 Stew. (Ala.) 517; s. c., 18 Am. Dec. 73; Vliet v. Camp, 13 Wis. 198.

Even authority implied from circumstances. Van Etta v. Evenson, 28 Wis. 33; s. c., 9 Am. Rep. 486.

A mortgagee of land executed and acknowledged an assignment in blank of the mortgage, and orally authorized his son to find a purchaser, write in the latter's name as grantee, and deliver the assignment. The son did so, the assignee not knowing that the son was acting as agent in any respect except to deliver the assignment. Held, that the assignment was valid. Phelps v. Sullivan, 140 Mass. 36.

Plaintiff sold to defendant, by deed, a lot of gravel according to specifications and profiles made by a surveyor. Blanks

Partnership.—In the case of partners, one partner can bind the other in the course of partnership business by an instrument under seal, without special authority under seal. The verbal or implied consent of the other partner must, however, be proved, or his ratification, if the instrument is signed without his knowledge.<sup>1</sup>

In Equity.—A deed signed and executed by an agent without authority under seal, although not sufficient to make a conveyance, will give an equitable title, which will bar a suit in equity to have the sale set aside.<sup>2</sup>

Contract for Sale of Real Estate.—Although an agent who has no power under seal can make no conveyance of real estate, he may make a valid contract for the sale under a written appointment.<sup>3</sup>

Corporations.—It has been formerly held that a corporation could delegate no power except under its common seal;<sup>4</sup> but this doctrine has been greatly modified, and it is now gen-

were left in the deed for the quantity of gravel and the sum to be paid; and the parties orally agreed that the surveyor should fill them up after ascertaining the quantity. Held, that he might do so after the delivery of the deed, and in the plaintiff's absence. Vose v. Dolan, 108 Mass. 155; s. c., 11 Am. Rep. 331. See ALTERATION OF WRITTEN INSTRUMENTS.

1. Cady v. Shepherd, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 400; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 379; Marsh v. Gold, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 285; Holbrook v. Chamberlain, 116 Mass. 161; Russell v. Annable, 109 Mass. 72; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 665; McIntyre v. Park, 11 Gray (Mass.), 102; s. c., 71 Am. Dec. 690; Van Deusen v. Blum, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 229; s. c., 29 Am. Dec. 582; Mackay v. Bloodgood, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 285; Skinner v. Dayton, 19 Johns. 513; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 286; Randall v. Van Vechten, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 60; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 193; Bank of Columbia v. Patterson, 7 Cranch (U. S.) 299; Bond v. Aitkin, 6 W. & S. (Pa.) 165; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 550; Drumright v. Philpot, 16 Ga. 424; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 738. Compare Worrall v. Munn, 5 N. Y. 229; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 330. See also PARTNERSHIP.

2. Watson v. Sherman, 84 Ill. 263; Ingram v. Little, 14 Ga. 173; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 549; Jones v. Marks, 47 Cal. 242.

Where a seal is not vital to the contract, and the agent has power to execute it without a seal, it operates as a simple contract although executed under seal. Wagoner v. Watts, 44 N. J. L. 126; Long v. Hartwell, 34 N. J. L. 116; Drumright v. Philpot, 16 Ga. 424; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 738; Lawrence v. Taylor, 5

Hill (N. Y.), 113; Skinner v. Dayton, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 513; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 286; Evans v. Wells, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 324; Everit v. Strong, 5 Hill (N. Y.), 163; Cady v. Shepherd, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 400.

3. Watson v. Sherman, 84 Ill. 263; Peabody v. Hoard, 46 Ill. 242; Baum v. Dubois, 43 Pa. St. 260; Lawrence v. Taylor, 5 Hill (N. Y.), 107; Worrall v. Munn, 5 N. Y. 229; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 330; Newton v. Bronson, 13 N. Y. 587; s. c., 67 Am. Dec. 89; Lyon v. Pollock, 99 U. S. 668.

A letter from a principal to his agent directing a sale of his real estate is sufficient authority to the agent to sell such property according to the terms of the writing; but if the authority is denied, and the letter is lost, its contents must be clearly proved to sustain a contract made by the agent. Stadleman v. Fitzgerald, 14 Neb. 290. And in some States it is not even required that this authority should be given in writing. Dickerman v. Ashton, 21 Minn. 538; Brown v. Eaton, 21 Minn. 409; McWharter v. McMahan, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 386; Lawrence v. Taylor, 5 Hill (N. Y.), 107; Worrall v. Munn, 5 N. Y. 229; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 330; Moody v. Smith, 70 N. Y. 598; Mortimer v. Cornwell, 1 Hoff. Ch. (N. Y.) 351; Riley v. Minor, 29 Mo. 439; Rottman v. Wasson, 5 Kans. 552; Long v. Hartwell, 34 N. J. L. 116. Compare Wallace v. McCullough, 1 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 426; Rockford, etc., R. Co. v. Shunick, 65 Ill. 223; Bissell v. Terry, 69 Ill. 184.

4. Com. Dig. Franchise, F. 12, 13.

erally held that a corporation may appoint agents either by a written vote of its directors or by implication, unless the charter makes a different appointment obligatory.<sup>1</sup> (See also CORPORATIONS.)

By Parol.—Although formerly it was held that the authority to act as attorney or agent must be by deed,<sup>2</sup> it was laid down by Justice Story that the rule was the other way: that an agent or attorney may ordinarily be appointed by parol in the broad sense of that term at the common law; that is, by a verbal declaration in writing not under seal, or by acts and implications.<sup>3</sup>

1. Osborn v. Bank of U. S., 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 738; Bank of U. S. v. Dandridge, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 64; Clark v. Corp. of Washington, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 40; Bank of Metropolis v. Guttschlick, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 19; Fleckner v. Bank of U. S., 8 Wheat. (U. S.) 338; Bank of Columbia v. Patterson, 7 Cranch. (U. S.) 299; Essex Turnpike Corp. v. Collins, 8 Mass. 292; Bristol Savings Bank v. Keavy, 128 Mass. 298; Hutchins v. Byrnes, 9 Gray (Mass.), 367; Pusey v. N. J. W. L. R. Co., 14 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 434; Middleton v. R. Co., 43 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 481; Danforth v. Schoharie, etc., Co., 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 227; Peterson v. Mayor of N. Y., 17 N. Y. 449; Darst v. Gale, 83 Ill. 136; Rockford, etc., R. Co. v. Wilcox, 66 Ill. 417; Gowen Marble Co. v. Tarrant, 73 Ill. 608; Adams Expr. Co. v. Schlessinger, 75 Pa. St. 246; Kelsey v. Nat. Bank, 69 Pa. St. 426; Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Reecher, 24 Kan. 228; Flint v. Clinton Co., 12 N. H. 430; Goodwin v. Union Screw Co., 34 N. H. 378; Kiley v. Forsee, 57 Mo. 390; Southgate v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 61 Mo. 89; Union Mining Co. v. Rocky Mt. Nat. Bank, 2 Colo. 248; Smiley v. Mayor of Chattanooga, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 604; Steel v. Solid Silver, etc., Mining Co., 13 Nev. 486; Stanwood v. Laughlin, 73 Me. 112; Lime R. Bank v. Macomber, 29 Me. 564; Warren v. Ocean Ins. Co., 16 Me. 439; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 674; Swazy v. Union Mfg. Co., 42 Conn. 556; Vicksburg, etc., R. Co. v. Ragsdale, 54 Miss. 200; Le-grand v. Hampden S. College, 5 Munf. (Va.) 324; The Banks v. Poitiaux, 3 Rand. (Va.) 143; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 706; Union Bank v. Ridgeley, 1 Harr. & G. (Md.) 413; Elysville M. Co. v. Okisko Co., 1 Md. Ch. 392; Ross v. City of Madison, 1 Carter (Ind.), 281; Garvey v. Colcock, 1 Nott & McC. (S. Car.) 231; Buncombe Turnpike Co. v. McCarter, 1 Dev. & B. (S. Car.) 306; Petrie v. Wright, 6 S. & M. (Miss.) 647; Baptist Church v. Mulford, 3 Halst. (N. J.) 182; Merrick v. Burlington Co., 11 Iowa, 75; Waller v. Bank of Ky., 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 201; Lee v. Flemingsburg, 7 Dana (Ky.) 28; Muir v. Canal Co., 8 Dana (Ky.) 161; Poultney v. Wells, 1 Aiken (Vt.), 180; Sheldon v. Fairfax, 21 Vt. 102; San Antonio v. Lewis, 9 Tex. 69.

The authority of a corporation or its officers to issue its promissory note need not be expressly given by its by-laws, or by formal resolution of the board of directors. Such authority can be inferred from the acquiescence of the corporation in, or the recognition by it of, the acts of its accredited officers in the regular course of its authorized business. First Nat. Bank v. North Miss. Coal, etc., Co., 86 Mo. 125.

The authority to appoint an agent need not be specifically mentioned in the charter. Kitchen v. Cape Girardeau R. Co., 59 Mo. 514; Old Colony R. Co. v. Evans, 6 Gray (Mass.), 25; s. c., 66 Am. Dec. 394.

The appointment of an agent by or for a corporation, as by a natural person, may be implied from a confirmation of his acts, or an acceptance of his services without objection; and after such confirmation, or acceptance, the corporation cannot evade payment for his services by denying the validity of his appointment. Ala. Gr. So. R. Co. v. Hill, 76 Ala. 303; Reynolds v. Collins, 78 Ala. 94.

A contract between two corporations will not be void for lack of seals; but a court of equity will, if necessary, compel the parties to affix their seals. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Miami Co., 12 Kans. 482. See CORPORATIONS.

2. Bac. Abr., Authority A.

3. Story on Ag. § 47. Doty v. Wilder, 15 Ill. 407; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 756; Equitable, etc., Co. v. Baltimore, etc., Co., 2 Cent. Repr. (Md.) 863; Brooks v. Jameson, 55 Mo. 505; Rice v. Groffmann, 56 Mo. 434; Cook v. State Bank, 52 N. Y. 96; s. c., 11 Am. Rep. 667; Pickett v. Pearsons, 17 Vt. 470; Farmers', etc., Bank v. Butchers', etc., Bank, 16 N. Y. 125.

By Implication.—So it can in general be said that the manner in which a party treats one who apparently acts as his agent, and holds him up before third parties, will be a sufficient implication of agency.<sup>1</sup>

An agent for the payment of taxes may be appointed by parol. Paris v. Lewis, 85 Ill. 597.

1. South, etc., Ala. R. Co. v. Henlein, 52 Ala. 606; Shaffer v. Sawyer, 123 Mass. 204; Hull v. Jones, 69 Mo. 587; Singer Mfg. Co. v. Holdfodt, 86 Ill. 455; Columbia, etc., Bridge Co. v. Geisse, 38 N. J. L. 39; Haughton v. Maurer, 55 Mich. 323; Lovell v. Williams, 125 Mass. 439; Rice v. Groffmann, 56 Mo. 434; Brooks v. Jameson, 55 Mo. 505; Engh v. Greendaum, 4 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 426.

Agency is generally a mere question of fact. Roberts v. Pepple, 55 Mich. 367.

The question of agency is one of fact to be determined from the evidence in a case. Therefore, where a correspondent of the C. Banking Co., who had advertised money to loan, in filling out an application for a loan stated therein that the applicant employed him and the C. Banking Co. to negotiate a loan for him, held, that the applicant was not estopped from showing that the correspondent was the agent of the C. Banking Co. New Engl., etc., Sec. Co. v. Addison, 15 Neb. 335.

Agency, as a question of fact, may be proved by the acts, declarations, or conduct of the principal and agent, although the agent was appointed by power of attorney. Columbia D. B. Co. v. Geisse, 38 N. J. L. 39.

Agency will be implied where one party accepts the benefits resulting from the transactions of another party ostensibly acting as his agent. Milligan v. Davis, 49 Iowa, 126; Veazie v. Williams, 8 How. (U. S.) 134; Foster v. Swasey, 2 W. & M. (U. S.) 217; Hatch v. Taylor, 10 N. H. 538; Fouch v. Wilson, 59 Ind. 93.

A mortgagor conveys a stock of goods on hand, and any other goods he may buy to replenish the stock, with power of sale if the debt is not paid by a certain time. Held, that by accepting the deed the mortgagee assented to its provisions—to the mortgagor's continuing the business, with the right to sell and replenish the stock, and constituting him an agent for that purpose. Bynum v. Miller, 89 N. Car. 393.

Where a son acts for his father in procuring a mortgage, undertakes the whole negotiation, decides upon the security, satisfies himself as to the title, attends to the execution of the papers, receives the money from his father and pays it over to the mortgagor,—in short, does everything an agent could do, and his father accepts the benefits of the transaction, the son may properly be regarded as his father's agent, in spite of his testimony to the contrary, especially if he admits being his agent just before and just after these acts; it is idle, under such circumstances, for him to claim to have been agent for the person giving the mortgage. Matteson v. Blackmer, 46 Mich. 393.

A contract between a hotel company and the manager of the hotel was treated by the parties as a lease, and provided that the manager should take the hotel from July, 1883, to April, 1884, and pay the company twenty per cent of the gross results of the whole business, after deducting $200 per month for his services. Held, that the company would be liable, notwithstanding the character of the contract, if the company, in its relations with one furnishing supplies for the hotel, treated him as its agent for their procurement; otherwise the company was not liable. Freiberg v. B. H. & S. I. Co., 63 Tex. 449; Beecher v. Venn, 35 Mich. 466.

Plaintiff sold one Y. a tract of land, the title to which was in doubt. By an instrument under seal, to which defendant was no party and in which he was not named, plaintiff agreed to use diligence in perfecting the title and to have it vested in Y., and thereupon Y. was to pay one half of the purchase-money, the other half being paid in cash. In making the purchase Y. was acting as agent of defendant, and he immediately assigned the contract to defendant, who took possession. Defendant had furnished the money for the cash payment. Plaintiff subsequently aided in perfecting the title, and the same was finally vested in defendant. Held, that though plaintiff could not maintain an action against defendant on the contract, because it was under seal and defendant was no party to it and was not named in it, yet he could sue on the implied obligation growing out of all the facts stated. Moore v. Granby M. & S. Co., 80 Mo. 86.

As a general rule, the fact of agency cannot be established by proof of the acts of the professed agent, in the absence of evidence tending to show the principal's knowledge of such acts, or assent to them; yet, where the acts are of such character, and so continuous, as to justify a reasonable inference that the principal had knowledge of them, and would not have permitted them if unauthorized, the acts themselves are competent evidence of the agency. Reynolds v. Collins, 78 Ala. 94; Proctor v. Tows, 115 Ill. 138.

Scope of Employment.—The appointment may be inferred from the scope of the alleged agent's employment.<sup>1</sup>

If A purchases B's stock in trade at sheriff's sale and B continues business as agent without disclosing his principal, it was held that it may be presumed that B was A's agent. Hansell v. Levy, 5 Del. 407.

Where a person acts openly and publicly as the agent of a corporation, and in such capacity employed a party to perform certain work, and the work when completed was appropriated and used by the corporation, and the work was done with the knowledge of its agents, held, that the agency and authority of such person so permitted to act must be presumed. Rockford, etc., R. Co. v. Wilcox, 66 Ill. 417; Singer, etc., Co. v. Holdfodt, 86 Ill. 455; s. c., 29 Am. Rep. 43; Franklin v. Globe, etc., Ins. Co., 52 Mo. 461; Ketchum v. Verdell, 42 Ga. 534; Bank v. Dandridge, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 64.

A single act of an assumed agent, and a single recognition of his authority by the principal, may be sufficient to prove the agency. Wilcox v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 24 Minn. 269.

But authority to do a certain act cannot be implied from the fact that another act of an entirely different character done by the agent in the name of the principal was assented to. Humphrey v. Havens, 12 Minn. 298.

The allowance of a commission to one who solicits orders for sales effected through such orders does not make him an agent with authority to make an absolute sale. Clough v. Whitcomb, 105 Mass. 482.

Where the agent has the possession of a promissory note after due, it may be inferred that he has authority to receive payment of it, but the burden is on the debtor who makes payment to the agent, relying upon such inference, to show that the promissory note was in his possession when the payment was made. Stiger v. Bent, 111 Ill. 328; Williams v. Walker, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 325; Haines v. Pohlmann, 25 N. J. Eq. 179; Smith v. Kidd, 68 N. Y. 130; Adams v. Humphreys, 54 Ga. 496; Doubleday v. Kress, 60 Barb.

N. Y. 181; Jones on Mortgages, 2d ed., sec. 964.

The fact that the note was neither surrendered nor offered to be surrendered, under the circumstances, is conclusive evidence that he did not then have it. Lucas v. Harris, 20 Ill. 165; Mayo v. Moore, 28 Ill. 428; Keohane v. Smith, 97 Ill. 156; Stiger v. Bent, 111 Ill. 328; Draper v. Rice, 56 Iowa, 114; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 88; Guilford v. Stacer, 53 Ga. 618.

Debtor paying one not possessing the note or evidence of the debt assumes the risk of the authority of the payee to collect the money. Wooding v. Bradley, 76 Va. 614.

1. Adams Mining Co. v. Senter, 26 Mich. 73; Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Reisner, 18 Kans. 458; Elsner v. State, 30 Tex. 524; Leake v. Sutherland, 25 Ark. 219; Gallup v. Lederer, 3 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 710; Whelan v. Reilly, 61 Mo. 565; Noble v. Nugent, 89 Ill. 522; Thurber v. Anderson, 88 Ill. 167; Starring v. Mason, 4 Neb. 367.

Where the travelling salesman of a corporation has power to make a contract in its name, take payments thereon, receive a bond for its fulfilment, and settle with the other party to the contract, his agency is sufficiently established to charge the corporation with notice of what was said and done in respect to liability on the bond at the time of the settlement. Columbus Sewer Pipe Co. v. Ganser, 58 Mich. 386.

Where an agent of a banking firm is authorized to certify the checks of drawers with sufficient funds, the fact that he transgresses his authority and certifies checks where the drawer has no funds will not relieve the bank from responsibility to an innocent holder. In a suit by a bona-fide holder of a certified check against the bank, the authority of an assistant teller of the bank to certify checks as "good" may be shown by evidence of a course of dealing as between himself, his principals, and the bank customers. Semble, that such authority could not be shown by evidence of a general custom of banks to authorize such agents to pledge the credit of the bank by certifying checks. Hill v. Nat. Trust Co., 108 Pa. St. 1.

A debtor applied to an agent of his creditor for an extension of the time of payment or a renewal of the loan, the creditor being a non-resident corporation, and the agent a resident of the State, acting generally for the creditor as to loans in this State. At the first interview the agent stated to the debtor that he would communicate with the home office in regard to the proposition made, and afterward such agent, in another interview, said he was ready to enter into the arrangement that was thereupon made. Held, that from these facts the debtor might properly infer that the agent received the principal's sanction for entering into the arrangement he made, and that the debtor was justified in his reliance upon the agent's authority to make it. Union Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Slee, 110 Ill. 35.

Former Employment.—Agency cannot be implied from a former employment in the same capacity without further proof.<sup>1</sup>

Where a person employs the cashier of a bank to purchase certain railroad-aid bonds for him, the cashier is his agent in the purchase of the bonds; but when the bonds are deposited as a special deposit he ceases to be agent of the purchaser and becomes agent of the bank; and, if he afterwards embezzles the funds of the bank, and, to hide his embezzlement, takes the bonds from the special deposit and places them among and reports them as assets of the bank, the depositor may recover their value from the bank. First National Bank of Monmouth v. Dunbar, 6 Western Repr. (Ill.) 530.

Where a party contracted to pay a certain price for cars to carry four hundred head of cattle, and delivered a part and signed a contract restricting the liability of the company, it will be presumed that other persons, who delivered the remainder of the cattle, acted as his agents, and had authority to sign similar contracts. Illinois, etc., R. Co. v. Morrison, 19 Ill. 136.

To establish a retail store in a place from twenty to thirty miles away from the owner's residence, place a clerk or agent in the sole charge of it, the owner only visiting such store or the town where it is situated once a month, and sometimes only once in two or three months, is to hold out such clerk or agent as not only authorized to sell goods at retail, but also to keep the stock replenished by purchases according to the usual course of business. White v. Leighton, 15 Neb. 424; Gilbraith v. Lineberger, 69 N. Car. 145; Darst v. Slevins, 2 Disney (Ohio), 473.

A traveller, when he goes to a hotel at night and finds a clerk in charge of the office, assigning rooms, etc., has the right to assume that such clerk represents the proprietor and has authority to take charge of money which may be handed him by a guest for safe-keeping. Curtis v. Murphy, 63 Wis. 4.

Where a defendant intimated to the plaintiff that a certain man was his agent, and such person was known by the plaintiff to have, at or about the time of plaintiff's negotiations with him, transacted similar business with other parties for the defendant, the plaintiff will be justified in inferring that such man is an agent, and any contract entered into within the scope of his supposed agency will be binding on the defendant. Thompson v. Clay, 27 N. W. Repr. (Mich.) 699.

Where an agent who usually passed upon the validity of drafts drawn against his principals, and was conversant with the business of his principals, represented that a certain draft was for a legitimate expense of the firm, and was genuine, the principals are bound by his statements, although the draft prove a forgery. Western Min. Co. v. Toole, 11 Pac. Repr. (Ariz.) 119.

On the issue whether the defendant had, by a salesman, made a certain contract with the plaintiff, there was evidence that the salesman had authority to make such a contract, and that the plaintiff wrote to the defendant stating that such a contract was made, to which the only reply received was a letter written by the salesman on the letter-paper of the defendant, to which the defendant's name was signed by the salesman, admitting the contract to be as the plaintiff contended it was. Held, that the jury might properly infer that the salesman had authority to write the letter. Thomas v. Wells, 140 Mass. 517.

An agent who has been in the habit of indorsing his principal's name on notes will be presumed to have the power. Weaver v. Ogletree, 39 Ga. 586. See Friedlander v. Cornell, 45 Tex. 585.

Plaintiff owned sight drafts drawn on defendant P., who had authority to receive payment for them, indorsed them for deposit in the Broadway National Bank, and gave them to the office boy to deposit. The boy took the drafts to the defendant and received the money for them, which he handed to P., who appropriated it. Held, that the payment was valid. Johnson v. Donnell, 90 N. Y. 1. See Doubleday v. Kress, 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 181; Guilford v. Stacer, 53 Ga. 618; Stiger v. Bent, 111 Ill. 328.

1. Cobb v. Hall, 49 Iowa, 366; Fisher v. Schiller lodge, 50 Iowa, 459; Greene v. Hinkley, 52 Iowa, 633; Alabama Gr. S. R. Co. v. Roebuck, 76 Ala. 277; Ishell v. Brinkman, 70 Ind. 118; Campbell v. Murray, 62 Ga. 86; People v. North Ameri- ca Bank, 75 N. Y. 547; Kent v. Tyson, 20 N. H. 121; Reed v. Baggott, 5 Ill. App. 257; Danahar v. Garlock, 33 Mich. 295. See Gano v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 49 Wis. 57.

Direct Instructions.—An agency may be constituted by direct instructions.<sup>1</sup>

Plaintiff authorized K. & B., insurance brokers, to procure insurance on certain property for a sum specified; they procured a policy from defendant, which was delivered to plaintiff; it contained a clause giving the company the right to terminate the insurance "on giving notice to that effect." Defendant directed its agents to cancel the policy; they notified K. & B. of this fact, and arranged with them to issue a policy in another company to take the place of defendant's policy. K. & B. agreed to procure said policy from defendant, and thereupon defendant's agent wrote a policy in another company. Plaintiff had no knowledge or information as to this arrangement until after a loss, and had the original policy in his possession. Held, that the notice to K. & B. was not notice to plaintiff, and the transaction did not operate as a cancellation of defendant's policy. A clause in the policy declared that any person other than the assured procuring the policy should be deemed an agent of the assured, not of the company, "in any transaction relating to this insurance." Held, that this did not constitute K. & B. continuing agents, or make the notice to them binding upon plaintiff. Hermann v. Niagara Ins. Co., 100 N. Y. 411.

A wife having authorized her husband to collect moneys due her at different times, and in one or two instances to use the money to pay his own debts, does not thereby constitute him her general agent so as to enable him to bind her in a special manner by acts beyond the authority given him. Brooke v. Barnes, 1 Mackey (D. C.), 5.

1. W. S. W. procured several fire-insurance policies, which were issued to him, losses, if any, to be paid to W. Bros., a firm composed of W. S. W., J. W., and A. W.; N. was his agent to procure the policies. After insurance a company issuing one of the policies notified N. that it desired to cancel the policy, and sent him a policy for same amount and similar provisions on another company to be substituted. N. saw A. W., who assented to the substituted policy. Loss occurred before he saw W. S. W., and before the policy was delivered. Afterwards substituted policy was delivered and original policy surrendered. Held, the substituted company was liable, as the assent by one of the beneficiaries and partners was sufficient. And held further, that N., as to the substitution, was the agent of the company, and it was estopped to deny its liability. Whiteman Bros. v. Insurance Company, 14 Lea (Tenn.), 327.

The defendant having a claim against S. & S., and knowing them to be insolvent, authorized them to buy wool, expressly agreeing to furnish the money to pay for it, the wool to be consigned to defendant, who was to sell the same, and after deducting expenses, commissions, and cost, credit S. & S. with the balance. Accordingly, S. & S. bought wool from the plaintiffs and their assignors, who supposed that they were dealing with S. & S. alone. The defendant received and sold the wool, and without paying for the same, credited S. & S. on their indebtedness with the net proceeds, but without deducting the cost. Held, that the facts constituted an agency in S. & S. sufficient to charge the defendant. Thomas v. Moody, 57 Cal. 215.

Where the owner of a slave called with her on an auctioneer and requested him to sell her, and was told to call in the morning, there being no more sales that night; and the slave called in the morning alone, stating that she came to be sold, and he sold her; held, that he was authorized to do so, although the owner had in fact no intention to sell, but merely to frighten her. Morgan v. Dargagh, 39 Tex. 171.

The owner of real estate situated in Kansas City, in this State, wrote from Chicago, Ill., where he resided, to his agent at Kansas City, in terms as follows: "Your letter received last night; I will leave the sale of the lots pretty much with you; if the party, or any one, is willing to pay sixty dollars per foot, one third cash and balance one and two years, interest seven per cent per annum, and pay commission of sale, I think I am willing to have you make out a deed and I will perfect it; I think you have the deeds to those lots, have you not? If you think better to try spring market, hold till then; the party buying may want the abstract in full, which I believe I have at Rockford, and will sell much less than cost. The above price is only for the present. . . . It is understood that if I pay the taxes now due, that hereafter I am relieved from any taxes." Held, that the letter authorized the agent to make a contract for the present sale of the lots. Smith v. Allen, 86 Mo. 178.

Facts must be Distinct.—The facts from which an agency may be implied must, however, be sufficiently distinct to leave no doubt about the intention of the party appointing.<sup>1</sup>

1. Fisher v. Moyer, 4 Atl. Repr. (Pa.) 64; Hood v. Adams, 128 Mass. 207.

At the trial of an action upon a guaranty of the soundness of goods sold, it appeared that the written guaranty upon which the plaintiff relied had been altered after it was signed by the defendant. The plaintiff contended that it was altered by the defendant in his office; and the defendant denied that it was altered by him or by his authority. The plaintiff introduced a witness, who testified that A. brought the defendant's bill into a store where the plaintiff then was; that a roll of bills was given to A.; and that A. and the plaintiff went out of the store together. The plaintiff then offered to show by this witness that the plaintiff found fault with the terms of the guaranty; and that A. said that "he was authorized by the defendant to say, if it was not right, to return it to him, and that he would make it satisfactory." The judge excluded the evidence offered, upon the ground that there was no evidence that A. had any authority from the defendant to receive or make such statements. Held, that the plaintiff had no ground of exception. Bowker v. De-long, 141 Mass. 315.

A travelling salesman had in his possession a horse belonging to his principals, and used it in their business. His principals wrote him that they should charge him with the horse unless he paid for it, or returned it to them, and accounted for his sales. He did not pay for it, or return, or account, but sold the horse, showing the purchaser the letter. Held, that the letter was not a proposition of sale, and the purchasers got no title. Calhoun v. Thompson, 56 Ala. 166; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 754.

A book-keeper has no authority as such to make his employer liable for the debts of a third person. Ruppe v. Edwards, 52 Mich. 411.

The fact that a house was built upon land of a married woman, and that, while it was in course of construction, she made suggestions in regard to certain alterations, and once paid the contractors on account, does not operate to make her a principal in the matter, where it appears that the house was being built for a son by the husband, and that he selected the site, employed the contractors, and paid for the house out of his own money; and that, in doing so, he was acting under his authority as husband, and that the money paid by the wife was gotten from his store, and paid in his absence. Conway v. Crook, 7 Atl. Repr. (Md.) 402.

In an action for money lent, the following facts appeared: The pastor of a Roman Catholic church borrowed money of the plaintiff, for the use of the church, upon a written contract of repayment, in the form of a deposit-book in the name of the church. The church had no corporate existence, and was incapable of making a contract. The money borrowed was mingled with the revenues of the church; and from the fund thus constituted the ordinary expenses of the church and sums due other similar depositors were paid, and payments were made for real estate. The defendant was the bishop of the diocese in which this church was situated, and held the legal title to all the real estate of the church. It was his duty not to permit priests to contract debts in the name or for the sake of a church without written permission. He knew that the pastor of the church in question was doing a banking business, and did not stop it, though he had the power to do so. He also knew of the manner in which the money received from depositors was mingled with the other funds of the church. Shortly before the death of a pastor of the church, the defendant received from him a large sum of money to meet the claims of depositors; and this sum was turned over to the successor of said pastor for the benefit of depositors. The defendant also raised money upon mortgages of the church property and upon his own unsecured notes for the same purpose; and subsequently transferred the real estate of the church to an ecclesiastical corporation, which afterwards became insolvent. The defendant testified, and his testimony was the only evidence in the case on the question of what the canon law was, that, under the canon law, the bishop has full power in the management of church affairs; that the diocese is the parish, and the bishop the universal parish priest; that all power possessed by priests is delegated from the bishop; that the clergyman in charge of a church has charge of all its temporalities; that it belongs to such pastor to make all contracts relating to the temporal affairs of the church, and he is not the agent or servant of the bishop in such matters; that the only control of the bishop over the pastor is by ecclesiastical discipline. Held, a verdict for the plaintiff could not, upon this evidence, be sustained, as the pastor could not be considered to be the agent of the bishop. Leahey v. Williams, 141 Mass. 345.

Parties Bound by Implication.—Where facts exist sufficient to

Leaving a subscription-list with a party does not constitute an agent with power to collect the money. Antram v. Thorndell, 74 Pa. St. 442.

Where one was requested by the owner of a piece of property to ascertain the amount of taxes due on it, he was not held to be the agent of the owner so as to be guilty of fraud when afterward he bought the land for less than its actual value. Collar v. Ford, 45 Iowa, 331.

The fact that the maker of a note, at the mutual desire and request of the proposed payee and surety, takes it to obtain the signature of an additional surety, does not constitute him the agent of such payee. Hunter v. Fitzmaurice, 102 Ind. 449.

Where the only evidence to show an agency was that some money belonging to the alleged principal had been paid to the party sought to be proved an agent, and the alleged agent had done sundry acts of kindness for the alleged principal, held, no evidence to create an agency. Fortescue v. Makeley, 92 N. Car. 56.

A written instrument, signed only by a railroad company, by which, in consideration of a promise by the owner of lands to convey to it a right of way through his lands, the company binds itself to establish a station or depot at or near a named road-crossing, and to appoint him agent for said station, to continue him as such so long as he faithfully discharged the duties of the agency, and to pay him a salary as agent of $30 per month, should the business of the station justify the same, does not, of itself, constitute him an agent of the railroad company at said station on the completion of the road. Evans v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 78 Ala. 341.

A delivery by a wife to her husband of a check payable to the order of a third person does not necessarily constitute the husband the agent of the wife to receive the amount of the check. A husband having a check in his possession, which had been delivered to him by his wife, and which was signed by her and was payable to the order of a third person, said to this person that the wife had given it to him (the husband), and he wanted it cashed. The third person gave the husband the amount of the check, and collected the money from the bank. Held, in an action by the wife against the third person, for money had and received, that the statement of the husband was not evidence against the wife, either that the check was a gift to the husband, or that he was authorized to receive the proceeds of it. Hunt v. Poole, 139 Mass. 224.

The relation of landlord and tenant does not imply an agency. The tenant is not per se the agent of the landlord. White v. Montgomery, 58 Ga. 204.

Neither is the debtor the agent of the creditor in procuring security according to the creditor's directions. Campbell v. Murray, 62 Ga. 86.

The relation of agency does not exist between joint-debtors arising from community of interest; their community of interest is confined to the payment of the debt. Walter v. Kraft, 23 S. Car. 578.

Nor does it per se exist between father and son. Ritch v. Smith, 82 N. Y. 627; McNamara v. McNamara, 62 Ga. 200.

Defendant, a corporation, had a general agent who induced a number of citizens of S. to form an association which was known as a local board, the object of which was to procure applications to defendant for life insurance and loans of money. Each member of the board was insured in the company, and it was one of its rules that it would loan money only to persons who were insured with it. The board had a secretary who transacted all its business. D. was vice-president of the plaintiff corporation. He was also secretary of said local board. During the time he acted as such secretary he assisted in conducting plaintiff's business, and received a salary from it. The compensation as secretary was such fees as were charged for insurance and loans of money, and these sums were paid over to plaintiff. The president of the plaintiff company was also a member of the local board. In Nov. 1876 one T. made application for a policy of insurance and a loan of $300, which he proposed to secure by a mortgage on the land in question. D. received this application and forwarded it to defendant, and with it he sent an abstract of the title of the land, which was given by plaintiff, it being part of its business to furnish abstracts of title. T.'s application was accepted. This mort-imply the relation of principal and agent, the parties are bound by them.<sup>1</sup>

gage was foreclosed in 1877, and the premises were sold, defendant being the purchaser, and in Dec. 1878 it obtained a sheriff's deed therefor. Indorsed on the abstract of title given by plaintiff at the time the loan was made was the certificate of the county treasurer to the effect that there were no taxes due and unpaid upon the land at the time the certificate was signed, which was Nov. 20, 1876. The taxes for that year, however, had not been paid. In Oct. 1877 the land was sold therefor, and plaintiff was the purchaser, and in Nov. 1880 it obtained a tax deed of the land. Held, that while plaintiff's cashier was, in his personal capacity, and not as cashier, defendant's agent, plaintiff was not such agent, there being no proof of an express contract of agency on its part, nor of any circumstance from which such contract could be presumed or implied. Storm Lake Bank v. Mo. Valley L. Ins. Co., 66 Iowa, 617.

The owner of a mortgaged farm traded it for another, the purchaser assuming the mortgage. It was understood, however, that if the amount due upon it should vary either way from $3300 the difference should be paid by one party to the other. The vendor advanced fifty dollars to cover a possible excess which the purchaser might have to pay. The parties had a meeting with the mortgagee's agent, and the amount due was roughly estimated at $3302.42. The agent afterwards found that this reckoning was wrong, and that the amount should have been $3357.38. The difference, if any, between the excess and the fifty dollars was to be returned to the vendor, and he sued the purchaser for all but $2.42, on the ground that the estimate fixed the excess to be paid. Held, that in the absence of any showing by plaintiff that the difference between the two sums had been remitted by the mortgagee, or that her agent had authority to remit it, or that there was any consideration for so doing, the action would not lie. Baird v. Randall, 58 Mich. 175.

The word "sell" in a power of attorney to "sell or lease any and all real estate" was held to give ample power to execute a deed of conveyance. Hemstreet v. Burdick, 90 Ill. 444.

The execution of a simple power of attorney, without words of conveyance, but authorizing a conveyance to be made upon certain conditions and for certain purposes, vests no interest in the benefiary. Sharp v. Brenneman, 41 Iowa, 251. See Bossean v. O'Brien, 4 Biss. (U. S.) 395; Treat v. Celis, 41 Cal. 202.

The mortgagee of a stock of goods signed at the foot of the mortgage a memorandum, whereby he appointed the mortgagor his agent to sell and dispose of and replace the stock. Held not to make the mortgagor an agent of the mortgagee for the purchase and sale of goods, but to be merely a waiver of the right to take possession. Barrett v. Franklin, 14 R. I. 241.

In an action upon an account for merchandise sold, where it is sought to connect the defendant with the purchaser of the goods by showing by circumstantial evidence that the latter acted as defendant's partner and general agent and clerk, and that he ordered other goods and signed defendant's name to notes, and managed mills and threshing-machines for defendant, it is error to admit in evidence, to show that defendant bought the goods or ordered them to be bought for him, notes given by defendant to other parties, and notes made by other parties to strangers, and an interplea by defendant, claiming a threshing-machine and its earnings, in a suit between the purchaser of the goods and a third party. Field v. Stubblefield, 85 Mo. 199.

A denial by an alleged principal of the existence of any agency operates to destroy any previous implication. Circumstances establishing the former implication serve then only to explain the import of his answer. Norton v. Richmond, 93 Ill. 367.

1. Where a contract was made between two parties, whereby the first party was to purchase corn with money to be furnished by the second party, the corn to be the property of the second party, and the cribs containing the same to be marked with his name; and the corn was to be sold by the second party, who was to retain out of the proceeds the amount of the original purchase-money, with interest at eight per cent, and one cent per bushel upon the corn so handled, all of which the first party was to guarantee to the second party, and to have the residue of the proceeds as compensation for his services, held that under the contract the first party became the agent of the second party, and that the money advanced to him under the contract was not in the nature of a loan. Van Sandt v. Dows, 63 Iowa, 594.

Usual Course of Business.—An implied authority is limited by the usual course of dealing as respects the particular agency, or agencies of that character in general.<sup>1</sup>

5. Classes of Agents.—According to the nature and extent of the authority delegated to them, and the end sought to be accomplished by their appointment, agents are divided into several classes, and their duties and liabilities vary with the extent of the authority conferred and the objects for which they are appointed. According to the character of their employment and the object of their appointment they are called brokers—viz., stock brokers, exchange and money brokers, real-estate and insurance brokers, ship brokers, merchandise brokers, etc.;<sup>2</sup> auctioneers;<sup>3</sup> commission agents or factors;<sup>4</sup> commercial travellers or drummers;<sup>5</sup>

S. was appointed by B. his agent for the sale of harvesters. S. was to pay part in cash and part in notes at the delivery of the machines to him. The cash paid by S. was to be deducted from the cash received for sales, and his notes to be taken up in exchange for notes given by customers to the order of B. Held, that the relation of principal and agent existed between B. and S., and that the transactions were not conditional sales, and that S. was entitled to credit on his notes for the value of machines recovered from a party to whom S. had fraudulently sold them. Bayliss v. Davis, 47 Iowa, 340.

1. Jones v. Warner, 11 Conn. 48; U. S. Life Ins. Co. v. Advance Co., 80 Ill. 549.

2. A broker is one who is engaged for others in negotiating contracts relative to property with the custody of which he has no concern. One who negotiates sales of grain or produce of others, without having its possession, is a produce or grain broker; and one who negotiates for the sale of lands of others is a real-estate broker. Braun v. Chicago, 5 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 298; s. c., 110 Ill. 186; Sibbald v. Bethlehem Iron Co., 83 N. Y. 378; Barnard v. Monnot, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 90; Wylie v. Mar. Nat. Bank, 61 N. Y. 415; Keys v. Johnson, 68 Pa. St. 42; U. S. v. Simons, 1 Abb. (U. S.) 470. See BROKERS.

3. An auctioneer is to a certain extent a broker. He may, however, not buy, but only sell, and that not at private sale but only at a public auction. He is the agent of both the buyer and the seller. Story on Agency, § 27; Crandall v. State, 28 Ohio St. 479; Fretwell v. Troy, 18 Kans. 271; Goshen v. Kern, 63 Ind. 468; s. c., 30 Am. Rep. 234. See AUCTIONEERS.

4. The name commission agent is synonymous with factor and means one who receives goods, chattels, or merchandise for sale, exchange, or other disposition, and who is to receive a compensation for his services. Perkins v. State, 50 Ala. 154. He may sell in his own name. Slack v. Tucker, 23 Wall. (U. S.) 321. Or maintain an action for any damage done to them while in his possession. Robinson v. Webb, 11 Bush (Ky.), 464. See COMMISSION AGENTS; FACTORS.

5. Where an agent simply exhibits samples of goods kept for sale by his principal, and takes orders from purchasers for such goods, which goods are afterward to be delivered by the principal to the purchasers, and payment for the goods is to be made by the purchasers to the principal on such delivery, such agent is generally called a "drummer" or commercial traveller. City of Kansas v. Collins, 34 Kans. 434.

Such agent is neither a pedler nor a merchant, so as to make him subject to the payment of taxes under a city ordinance; nor will a single sale and delivery of goods by such agent, or by any other person, out of the samples exhibited, or out of any lot of goods, constitute such agent or other person a pedler or a merchant. Kansas v. Collins, 34 Kans. 436; Exp. Taylor, 58 Miss. 478; Com. v. Jones, 7 Bush (Ky.), 502; Com. v. Farnum, 114 Mass. 267; Alcott v. State, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 6; Colson v. State, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 590; Merriam v. Langdon, 10 Conn. 460; State v. Belcher, 1 McM. (S. Car.) 40; Com. v. Ober, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 493; Wynne v. Wright, 1 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) L. 19; Page v. State, 6 Mo. 205; Cincinnati v. Bryson, 15 Ohio, 625; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 593; Mays v. Cincinnati, 1 Ohio St. 268; Fisher v. Patterson, 13 Pa. St. 338; Com. v. Willis, 14 Serg. & R. (Ga.) 398; State v. Hodgdon, 41 Vt. 139; Whitfield v. Longest, 6 Ired. (N. Car.) L. 268; State v. City Council, 10 Rich. (S. Car.)

clerks; <sup>1</sup> mercantile agencies; <sup>2</sup> ship-masters; <sup>3</sup> ship-husbands; <sup>4</sup> attorneys at law and in fact; <sup>5</sup> public agents or officers.<sup>6</sup>

6. General and Special Agents.—An authority is as to its extent either general or special. General authority is an authority to act in a certain character, and unless it is restricted to a smaller limit, and the restriction is known or ought to be known to third parties, 240; State v. Pinckney, 10 Rich. (S. Car.) 474; City Council v. Ahrens, 4 Strobbh. (S. Car.) 241; Keller v. State, 11 Md. 525; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 226; Woolman v. State, 2 Swan (Tenn.), 353; Higgins v. Rinker, 47 Tex. 402; Chicago v. Bartee, 100 Ill. 57; Davis v. City of Macon, 64 Ga. 128. See COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS.

1. Clerks are persons employed by a merchant, manufacturer, or other person to transact certain parts of the employer's business, while the principal superintends the whole. He always acts in the name of the principal, and is authorized to transact generally all such business as is intrusted to him, and to bind his employer while he keeps within the bounds of his express or implied authority. Bouvier Inst. § 1287; Portland v. Lewis, 2 S. & R. (Pa.) 197; Eagle Bank v. Smith, 5 Conn. 71; s. c., 13 Am. Dec. 37.

2. Their business is to collect information as to the circumstances, standing, and pecuniary ability of merchants and dealers throughout the country, and keep accounts thereof, so that the subscribers to the agency when applied to by a customer to sell goods to him on credit may, by resorting to the agency or to the lists which it publishes, ascertain the standing and responsibility of the customer to whom it is proposed to extend credit. A person furnishing information to such an agency in relation to his own circumstances, means, and pecuniary responsibility can have no other motive in so doing than to enable the agency to communicate such information to persons who may be interested in obtaining it, for their guidance in giving credit to the party; and if a merchant furnishes to such an agency a wilfully false statement of his circumstances or pecuniary ability, with intent to obtain a standing and credit to which he knows that he is not justly entitled, and thus to defraud whoever may resort to the agency and, in reliance upon the false information there lodged, extend a credit to him, there is no reason why his liability to any party defrauded by those means should not be the same as if he had made the false representation directly to the party injured. Eaton v. Avery, 83 N. Y. 31; Genesee Sav. Bank v.

Barge Co., 52 Mich. 164. See MERCANTILE AGENCIES.

3. The master of a ship is the person who has command of her. The power delegated to this agent depends upon the express authority given him. This authority extends generally to all the acts which are necessary to carry out the purpose of a voyage or to employ the ship profitably. But he cannot perform acts which from their nature cannot be necessary for this purpose—as, to sell the ship. Bouvier Inst. § 1290; Johnson v. Wingate, 29 Me. 404. See SHIPPING.

4. The duties of a ship's husband are to see to the proper outfit of the vessel, that she is properly repaired, prepared for the voyage, and furnished with provisions and sea stores; to provide a proper master, mate, and crew; to see that she has a proper register and documents on board, and is duly cleared from the custom-house; to engage and settle for freight and adjust averages, to enter into charter-parties for the employment of the ship; and to settle and pay and keep a regular account of all contracts, payments, and receipts in the course of such employment. In relation to all these matters he is the general agent of the owners. Turner v. Burrows, 8 Wend. 144, 151. See SHIPPING.

5. Attorneys at law are ordinarily intrusted with the management of suits and controversies in courts of law and other judicial tribunals; attorneys in fact are so-called in contradistinction to attorneys at law, and may include all other agents employed in any business, or to do any act or acts in pais for another. But it is sometimes used to designate persons who act under a special agency or a special letter of attorney, so that they are appointed in factum for the deed or act required to be done. Story on Agency, §§ 24, 25. See ATTORNEYS.

6. A public office is a right to exercise a public function or employment and take the fees and emoluments belonging to it; and an officer is one who is invested with an office. Olmstead v. Mayor of N. Y., 42 N. Y. Super. Ct. 289; Sauner v. State, 2 Tex. App. 458; Woodworth v. State, 26 Ohio St. 196. See MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.

carries with it all the ordinary powers incident to that character. It is a delegation to do all acts connected with a particular trade, business, or employment.

A special agent is one whose authority is confined to a particular or individual instance; but in another sense it may be said that every express agency is special, because it specifies what is to be done.<sup>1</sup>

Universal Agents.—General agents are to be carefully distinguished from universal agents; that is, from agents who may be appointed to do all the acts which the principal can personally do, and which he may legally delegate the power to another to do. Such an agency may potentially exist, but it must be of the very rarest occurrence. It is very certain that the law will not from any general expressions, though broad, infer the existence

1. Story on Agency, § 58; Evans on Ag., Ewell's Ed., 134, 135; Bouvier Law Inst. 1298, 1299; Beals v. Allen, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 363; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 221; Martin v. Farnsworth, 49 N. Y. 555; Ladd v. Franklin, 37 Conn. 53; Willard v. Buckingham, 36 Conn. 395; Gulick v. Grover, 33 N. J. L. 463; Dart v. Hercules, 57 Ill. 446; Baxter v. Lamont, 60 Ill. 237; U. S. Life Ins. Co. v. Advance Co., 80 Ill. 549; Fatman v. Leet, 41 Ind. 133; Cruzan v. Smith, 41 Ind. 288; Palmer v. Cheney, 35 Iowa, 281; Crescent City Bank v. Hernandez, 25 La. Ann. 43; Lattomus v. Farmers' M. F. Ins. Co., 3 Houst. (Del.) 404; Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Reisner, 18 Kans. 458; Butler v. Maples, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 766; Golding v. Merchant, 43 Ala. 705. Compare Dickinson Co. v. Miss. Valley Ins. Co., 41 Iowa, 286; Leblanc v. Perron, 21 La. Ann. 26.

A special agency properly exists when there is a delegation of authority to do a single act. Story on Ag. § 17.

A special agent is one authorized to do one or two special things. 1 Pars. on Contr. 41.

A special agent is appointed only for a particular purpose, and is invested with limited powers. Chitty on Contr. 285.

The authority of an agent being limited to a particular business does not make it special; it may be as general in regard to that as if the range of it were unlimited. Anderson v. Coonley, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 279; Jeffrey v. Bigelow, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 513; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 478; Crain v. First Nat. Bank, 114 Ill. 516; Rountree v. Davidson, 59 Wis. 522; Bell v. Offutt, 10 Bush (Ky.), 632.

Brokers, factors, bank cashiers and tellers, shipmasters, etc., are, on account of the character of their occupation, considered as general agents in the line of their business. The extent of their authority is regulated by usages and customs, and cannot be restricted by instructions from their principals, unless such instructions are known to the third parties dealing or contracting with them. Nat. Furnace Co. v. Keystone Mfg. Co., 110 Ill. 427; Cameron v. Durkheim, 55 N. Y. 425; Cooke v. State Nat. Bank, 52 N. Y. 96; Commercial Bank v. Kortright, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 348; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 317; Arnold v. Halenbake, 5 Wend. (N. Y.) 33; Dows v. Greene, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 72; Commercial Bank v. Norton, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 501; McEwen v. Montgomery, etc., Ins. Co., 5 Hill, 101; Jacques v. Todd, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 83; Minor v. Mech. Bank, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 46, 70; Fleckner v. U. S., 8 Wheat. (U. S.) 338; Merchants' Bank v. State Bank, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 604; Arthur v. Schooner Cassius, 2 Story (U. S.), 81; Cochecho Nat. Bank v. Haskell, 51 N. H. 116; Hatch v. Taylor, 10 N. H. 528; Planters' Bank v. Cameron, 3 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 609; Wilkins v. Commercial Bank, 6 How. (Miss.) 217; Lansdale v. Shackelford, Walk. (Miss.) 149; Wilcox v. Routh, 9 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 476; Eagle Bank v. Smith, 5 Conn. 71; s. c., 13 Am. Dec. 37; Walsh v. Pierce, 12 Vt. 130; Davis v. Waterman, 10 Vt. 526; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 216; Gibbs v. Linsley, 13 Vt. 208; Cross v. Haskins, 13 Vt. 536; Stothard v. Aull, 7 Mo. 318; St. John v. Redmond, 9 Port. (Ala.) 428; Fisher v. Campbell, 9 Port. (Ala.) 210; Williams v. Mitchell, 17 Mass. 98; Lobdell v. Baker, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 193; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 358; Odiorne v. Maxcy, 13 Mass. 181; Rapp v. Palmer, 3 Watts (Pa.), 178; Lansatt v. Lippincott, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 386; Lyell v. Sanbourn, 2 Mich. 109; Longworth v. Conwell, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 469; Frankfort Bank v. Johnson, 24 Me. 490.

of any such unusual agency; but will rather construct them as restrained to the principal business of the party, in respect to which it is presumed his intention to delegate the authority was principally directed.<sup>1</sup>

How Principal Bound under General Authority.—An agent acting under a general authority binds his principal by any act done within the scope of his employment, even if done against instructions. Secret instructions cannot affect third parties dealing with the agent.<sup>2</sup>

1. Story on Agency, § 21.

2. Hatch v. Taylor, 10 N. H. 538; Towle v. Leavitt, 23 N. H. 360; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 195; State v. Foster, 23 N. H. 348; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 191; Commercial Bank v. Kortright, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 348; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 317; Johnson v. Jones, 4 Barb. (N. Y.) 369; Dows v. Greene, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 72; Angell v. Hartford Ins. Co., 59 N. Y. 171; Barber v. Britton, 26 Vt. 112; Walsh v. Pierce, 12 Vt. 130; Lobdell v. Baker, 1 Metc. Mass. 193; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 358; Williams v. Mitchell, 17 Mass. 98; Wilkins v. Commercial Bank, 6 How. (Miss.) 217; Planters' Bank v. Cameron, 3 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 609; St. John v. Redmond, 9 Port. (Ala.) 428; Talmage v. Bierhouse, 103 Ind. 270; Robbins v. Magee, 76 Ind. 381; Stothard v. Aull, 7 Mo. 318; Minter v. Pac. R. Co., 41 Mo. 503; Eagle Bank v. Smith, 5 Conn. 71; s. c., 13 Am. Dec. 37; Swazey v. Un. Man. Co., 42 Conn. 556; Woodbury Sav. Bank v. Charter Oak Ins. Co., 31 Conn. 529; Lyell v. Sanbourn, 2 Mich. 109; Bell v. Offutt, 10 Bush (Ky.) 632; Palmer v. Cheney, 35 Iowa, 281; Nussbaum v. Heilbron, 63 Ga. 312; Thompson v. Douglass, 64 Ga. 57; City Bank of Macon v. Kent, 57 Ga. 283; Carmichael v. Buck, 10 Rich. (S. Car.) 332; s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 226; Sterling Bridge Co. v. Baker, 75 Ill. 139; Etna Ins. Co. v. Maguire, 51 Ill. 342; Hartford Ins. Co. v. Farrish, 73 Ill. 166; Rockford Ins. Co. v. Nelson, 65 Ill. 415; Union M. L. Ins. Co. v. White, 106 Ill. 67; Houghton v. First Nat. Bank, 26 Wis. 663; Planters' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Lyons, 38 Tex. 253; Continental Ins. Co. v. Kasey, 25 Gratt. (Va.) 268; Georgia, etc., Ins. Co. v. Kinier, 28 Gratt. (Va.) 88; Walker v. Skipwith, Meigs (Tenn.) 502; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 161; Kinealy v. Burd, 9 Mo. App. 359; Chouteaux v. Leech, 18 Pa. St. 224; s. c., 57 Am. Dec. 602; Bryant v. Moore, 26 Me. 84; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 96; Allen v. Ogden, 1 Wash. (U. S.) 174; U. S. v. Howard, 7 Biss. (U. S.) 56.

One to whom money is intrusted to be loaned for the benefit of the principal, without any restrictions, except that he is to get ten per cent, is a general agent; and if he takes usury, the presumption is that the principal authorized it. Stevens v. Meers, 11 Ill. App. 198.

The authority of a general agent is measured by the usual scope and character of the business he is empowered to transact; and for any act done by him which is natural and customary in the management of such business, the principal cannot avoid liability because of any secret instructions or limitations imposed on the agent. If a married woman, owning an equitable separate estate, invests her money in a particular business, which she authorizes her husband to conduct and manage as her general agent, she cannot avoid liability for debts contracted by him in the purchase of merchandise within the scope of the business, in the natural and usual mode of conducting such business, by alleging secret authority and instructions to buy for cash only. Louisville Coffin Co. v. Stokes, 78 Ala. 372; Nat. Furnace Co. v. Keystone Mfg. Co., 110 Ill. 427.

An agent had authority to sell only for cash. He did sell on credit, and the goods were sent marked C. O. D. The carrier delivered the goods without receiving the cash, on the written order of the agent. Held, that the carrier, who knew of the authority of the agent to sell, was not affected by the limitation of which he had no notice, and that the mark C. O. D. did not put him on inquiry as a matter of law. Daylight Burner Co. v. Odlin, 51 N. H. 56; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 45.

A corporation entered into a written contract with an agent, by the terms of which he guaranteed that his sales should not be less than a certain sum for the term of his employment, and that all sales should be made to good and responsible parties, and at not less than market prices. Held, in an action against the corporation for the breach of a written contract, made by its agent in its name, to sell goods to the plaintiff, that the authority of the agent was not limited by the provisions in the contract between

Agent's Own Declarations.—The authority of a supposed agent cannot be established by his own declarations; but if the agency is otherwise proved, such declarations are admissible.<sup>1</sup>

Ambiguous Authority.—If the instructions are given in such uncertain terms as to be susceptible of two different meanings, and the agent bona fide adopts one of them and acts upon it, it is not competent for the principal to repudiate the act as authorized because he meant the instructions or orders to be read in another sense of which they are equally capable.<sup>2</sup>

How Principal Bound by Special Agent.—The principal of a special agent is only bound by acts of the agent which are strictly him and the corporation, and such provisions could not affect third persons; and that evidence that the agent, in making the sale to the plaintiff, violated such provisions was inadmissible. Byrne v. Ma. Packing Co., 137 Mass. 313.

Where a third party has notice of such instructions, the principal will, of course, not be bound. Stainer v. Tysen, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 279; Barnard v. Wheeler, 24 Me. 412; Bryant v. Moore, 26 Me. 84; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 96; Longworth v. Conwell, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 469; Leathers v. Springfield, 65 Mo. 507.

1. Winch v. Baldwin, 28 N. W. Repr. (Iowa) 62; Wood Mowing, etc., Co. v. Crow, 30 N. W. Repr. (Iowa) 609; Hardy v. Cheney, 42 Vt. 417; Lafayette, etc., R. Co. v. Ehman, 30 Ind. 83; French v. Wade, 35 Kan. 391; Bacon v. Johnson, 56 Mich. 182; McDonough v. Heyman, 38 Mich. 334; Grover & B. S. M. Co. v. Polhemus, 34 Mich. 247; Haughton v. Maurer, 55 Mich. 323; Seymour v. Matteson, 42 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 496; Rhodes v. Lowry, 54 Ala. 4; Baldwin v. Ashby, 54 Ala. 82.

Evidence of an agent's acts should not ordinarily be admitted before his authority is shown, though it is discretionary with the court to permit it where authority is to be shown by circumstances. But it cannot be done in the case of sub-agents. Turner v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 55 Mich. 236.

The testimony of a young man in the employ of defendant, to the effect that "he was authorized by defendant to say if it was not all right to return it to defendant and he would make it satisfactory," where the court understood the statement was offered as declarations or admissions binding upon defendant, was properly rejected where there was no evidence that the young man had any authority to receive or make such statements. Bowker v. Delong, 141 Mass. 315.

Neither can the authority of an agent be extended by his own unauthorized statements; nor can the extent be proved by such statements. Lycoming Ins. Co. v. Jackson, 83 Ill. 302; Lycoming Ins. Co. v. Ward, 90 Ill. 545; Maxcy v. Heckethorn, 44 Ill. 437; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Fox, 41 Ill. 106; Brigham v. Peters, 1 Gray (Mass.), 139; Stollenmerck v. Thacher, 115 Mass. 224; Lohner v. Ins. Co., 121 Mass. 439; Carter v. Burnham, 31 Ark. 212; Howe Mach. Co. v. Clark, 15 Kans. 492; Dawson v. Landreaux, 29 La Ann. 363; Peck v. Ritchey, 66 Mo. 114; Reynolds v. Continental Ins. Co., 36 Mich. 131; Grover & Baker S. Mach. Co. v. Polhemus, 34 Mich. 247; Hartford Ins. Co. v. Reynolds, 36 Mich. 502; Stringham v. St. Nicholas Ins. Co., 4 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 315; Mapp v. Phillips, 32 Ga. 72; Galbreath v. Cole, 61 Ala. 139. Compare Farmers, etc., Bank v. Butchers, etc., Bank, 16 N. Y. 125; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 678.

2. Winne v. Niagara Ins. Co., 91 N. Y. 185; Johnson v. Jones, 4 Barb. (N. Y.) 369; Longmire v. Herndon, 72 N. Car. 629; Bessent v. Harris, 63 N. Car. 542; Long v. Pool, 68 N. Car. 479; Mattocks v. Young, 66 Me. 459; Minnesota, etc., Co. v. Montague, 65 Iowa, 67; Foster v. Rockwell, 104 Mass. 167; Mann v. Laws, 117 Mass. 293; Mech. Bank v. Merch. Bank, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 13; Very v. Levy, 13 How. (U. S.) 345; Marsh v. Whitmore, 21 Wal. (U. S.) 178; Nat. Bank v. Merch. Nat. Bank, 91 U. S. 92; LeRoy v. Beard, 8 How. (U. S.) 451; Loraine v. Cartwright, 3 Wash. (U. S.) 151; DeTastett v. Crousellatt, 2 Wash. (U. S.) 132; Ireland v. Livingstone, L. R. 2 Q. B. 99, L. R. 5 Q. B. 516, 5 H. L. 395. See Brown v. McGran, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 480.

An agent is not responsible for an error in judgment where he does the best he can. Long v. Poole, 68 N. Car. 479.

in accordance with his authority, and a third party is bound at his peril to ascertain the limit of the authority.<sup>1</sup>

1. Farmers', etc., Bank v. Butchers', etc., Bank, 16 N. Y. 125; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 678; Clarke Nat. Bank v. Bank of Albion, 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 592; People v. Bostwick, 43 Barb. (N. Y.) 9; Eaton v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 57 N. Y. 282; Craighead v. Peterson, 72 N. Y. 279; Delafield v. Illinois, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 193; s. c., 2 Hill (N. Y.) 159; Andrews v. Kneeland, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 354; Stainer v. Tysen, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 279; Munn v. Commission Co., 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 44; s. c., 8 Am. Dec. 219; Hovey v. Brown, 59 N. H. 114; Towle v. Leavitt, 23 N. H. 360; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 195; Hatch v. Taylor, 10 N. H. 538; Jeffrey v. Hursh, 49 Mich. 39; Weaver v. Bechtel, 53 Mich. 516; Brown v. Johnson, 12 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 398; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 118; Fox v. Fisk, 6 How. (Miss.) 345; Carter v. Taylor, 6 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 367; Roberts v. Rumley, 58 Iowa, 301; Lobdell v. Baker, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 193; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 358; Snow v. Perry, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 539; Wood v. Goodridge, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 123; s. c., 52 Am. Dec. 771; Bliss v. Clark, 16 Gray (Mass.), 60; Jackson v. Badger, 26 N. Western Repr. (Minn.) 908; Thomas v. Joslyn, 30 Minn. 388; Siebold v. Davis, 25 N. Western Repr. (Iowa), 778; Hampton v. Moorhead, 62 Iowa, 91; Veeder v. McMurray, 23 N. Western Repr. (Iowa), 285; Rountree v. Davidson, 18 N. Western Repr. (Wis.) 518; Campbell v. Campbell, 57 Wis. 288; Fisher v. Campbell, 9 Port. (Ala.) 210; Powell v. Henry, 27 Ala. 612; Baring v. Pierce, 5 Watts & S. (Pa.) 548; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 534; Johnson v. Wingate, 29 Me. 404; Thompson v. Stewart, 3 Conn. 171; s. c., 8 Am. Dec. 168; Equitable Life Ass. Soc. v. Poe, 53 Md. 28; Bryden v. Taylor, 2 Harr. & J. (Md.) 396; s. c., 3 Am. Dec. 554; Blane v. Proudfit, 3 Call. (Va.) 207; s. c., 2 Am. Dec. 546; Gordon v. Buchanan, 5 Yerg. (Tenn.) 71; Huntington v. Wilder, 6 Vt. 334; Brown v. Frantum, 6 La. 39; Bank of Hamburg v. Johnson, 3 Rich. (S. Car.) 42; Tomlinson v. Collet, 3 Blackf. (Ind.) 436; Walker v. Skipwith, Meig. (Tenn.) 502; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 161; Schimmelpennich v. Bayard, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 264; Parsons v. Armor, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 413; United States v. Williams, 1 Ware (U. S.), 175; Waters v. Brogden, 1 You. & Jerv. 457; Blackwell v. Ketcham, 53 Ind. 184; Taft v. Baker, 100 Mass. 68.

One buying an overdue note from an agent is thereby put on inquiry about the extent of the agent's authority. Earp v. Richardson, 81 N. Car. 5.

Receipting in a firm-name but in the form used by agents puts the person making payment on inquiry as to the authority to take the payment. Chase v. Buhl Iron Works, 55 Mich. 139.

A principal is not bound by the act of a special agent when done in disregard of his instructions, unless perhaps where the principal's own negligence has enabled the agent to perpetrate a fraud thereby. Saginaw, etc., R. Co. v. Chappell, 56 Mich. 190; Hall v. Parker, 37 Mich. 590; Brown v. Judge of Probate, 42 Mich. 501; Atlas Mining Co. v. Johnston, 23 Mich. 36; Trudo v. Anderson, 10 Mich. 357; Hutchings v. Ladd, 16 Mich. 493; Matter of Drops, 3 Pa. L. J. 87; Atlas Mining Co. v. Johnston, 23 Mich. 36.

The agent of a county to contract for repairs on county buildings has no power to bind the county to pay more in county warrants than the cash value of the labor and materials in United States currency; and parties contracting with such agent must take notice of the limits of his authority. Barton v. Swebston, 44 Ark. 437.

The depositary of an escrow is a special and not a general agent, and the person dealing with him is bound to know the extent of his powers. The delivery of an escrow by the depositary to the grantee named therein, without a compliance with the conditions, is not a delivery with the assent of the grantor, and conveys no title. The authority of the depositary of an escrow is limited strictly to the conditions of the deposit, a compliance with which alone justifies its delivery. Land Co. v. Peck, 112 Ill. 408.

A principal executed a sealed note, expressed to be for "value received in mule," with the name of the payee left blank, and delivered it to her husband, as her agent, to purchase a mule from a certain drover whose name was forgotten. The husband used the note in the purchase of a horse of greater value from another person. Held, that as to the other parties to the note there was no delivery, and the husband was alone liable to the holder, even if no notice, other than that expressed in the note, was brought home to the holder that the note was intended for another person. Mills v. Williams, 16 S. Car. 593; Gourdin v. Read, 8 Rich. (S. Car.) 230.

Where an agent with only authority to contract for the sale of musical instruments, sold a piano, taking a note pay-

As Held out to the World.—In case of special agency the principal will be bound to the extent of the authority he has held out to the world as given to the agent. This will be the test of the principal's responsibility, both in general and special agencies.<sup>1</sup>

Knowledge of Extrinsic Facts.—Where the principal has clothed his agent with power to do an act upon the existence of some extrinsic fact necessarily and peculiarly within the knowledge of the agent, and of the existence of which the act of executing the power is itself a representation, a third person dealing with such agent in entire good faith, pursuant to the apparent power, may able to his principal therefor, and without authority sold and indorsed it, and the maker paid it to the indorsee, after he had been notified by the payee not to do so, it was held that the payee could recover of the maker, and the maker could also recover the money he had paid the indorsee. McClure v. Ewartson, 14 Lea (Tenn.), 495.

The defendants sent their agent for the plaintiff (a physician), and clothed him with authority to employ plaintiff to visit a boy, and though the agent was told to inform the plaintiff that the defendants would pay him for the first visit, yet this the agent for some cause neglected to do, and employed the plaintiff generally to attend the boy so long as he might need medical aid. The law is well settled that if an injury is to result to one man from the omission or neglect of an agent of another, the principal must be held liable. In this cause the defendants, through the neglect of their agent, caused the services to be rendered upon their credit, and the case is within the above principle. Bennett, J., in Barber v. Brittan, 26 Vt. 112.

A special agent may use the proper means to effect the object of the agency unless specially restricted in the choice of the means. Andrews v. Kneeland, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 354; Anderson v. Coonley, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 279; Sandford v. Handy, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 260; Peck v. Harriott, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 146; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 415; Benjamin v. Benjamin, 15 Conn. 347; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 384; Vanada v. Hopkins, 1 J. J. Marsh (Ky.), 285; s. c., 19 Am. Dec. 92; Shackman v. Little, 87 Ind. 181; Star Line v. Van Vliet, 43 Mich. 364; Earnest v. Stoller, 2 McCrary (U. S.), 380; State v. Gates, 67 Mo. 139; Taylor v. Hudgins, 42 Tex. 244; Farrar v. Duncan, 29 La. Ann. 126.

1. Story on Agency, § 133; Jeffrey v. Bigelow, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 518; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 478; Anderson v. Cooley, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 279; North River Bank

v. Aymar, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 263; Delafield v. Illinois, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 192; Eilenberger v. Protective F. Ins. Co., 89 Pa. St. 464; Baring v. Pierce, 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 548; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 534; Briggs v. Large, 30 Pa. St. 291; City Bank of Macon v. Kent, 57 Ga. 283; Drumright v. Philpot, 16 Ga. 424; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 738; Putnam v. French, 53 Vt. 402; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 682; Cutler v. Boyd, 124 Mass. 181; Dresser Mfg. Co. v. Waterston, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 9; Snow v. Perry, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 539; Towle v. Leavitt, 23 N. H. 360; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 195; Hatch v. Taylor, 10 N. H. 538; McCoy v. McKowen, 26 Miss. 487; s. c., 59 Am. Dec. 264; Brown v. Johnson, 12 Sm. & M. (Miss.) 398; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 118; Fox v. Fisk, 6 How. (Miss.) 345; Johnson v. Wingate, 29 Me. 404; Keener v. Harrod, 2 Md. 63; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 706; Powell v. Henry, 27 Ala. 612; Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Foster, 104 Ind. 293; Lawson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 64 Wis. 447; Lewis v. Farrell, 51 Conn. 216; Union, etc., Ins. Co. v. Masten, 3 Fed. Repr. 881; Schimmelpennich v. Bayard, 1 Pet. U. S. 264.

When one holds another out to the world as his agent, in determining the liability of the principal the question is, not what authority was intended to be given to the agent, but what authority was a third person dealing with him justified from the acts of the principal in believing was given to him. Griggs v. Selden, 58 Vt. 561; Walsh v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 73 N. Y. 5.

Where a firm doing business in one place take charge, under a chattel mortgage, of the business of an insolvent debtor in another place and leave him to carry it on in their name, it is not negligence for others to sell to the agent on the responsibility of the firm without inquiring into the agent's authority; the firm must take the risks of the arrangement, which is of a questionable nature. Banner Tobacco Co. v. Jenison, 48 Mich. 459.

rely upon the representation, and the principal is estopped from denying its truth to his prejudice.<sup>1</sup>

Secret Instructions.—There is a distinction to be observed between the authority of a special agent, which the person dealing with him not only has a right but is bound to know, and the private instructions given him respecting the mode and manner of executing his agency, intended to be kept secret and not communicated to those with whom he may deal, concerning which it would of course be useless to inquire. Such private instructions are not to be regarded as limitations upon his authority; and notwithstanding he may disregard them, his act, if otherwise within the scope of his agency, will be valid and binding on his employer.<sup>2</sup>

Determined by Usage.—If there be an invariable, certain, and general usage or custom of any particular trade or place, the law will imply on the part of one who employs another to contract for him upon a matter to which such usage or custom has reference a promise for the benefit of the other party, in conformity with such usage or custom; provided, that is, there be no express stipulation between them which is inconsistent with such usage. To be binding, however, such usage must be uniform and universal; but when such invariable usage is proved, it is to be considered as the basis of contract between the parties; and their respective rights and liabilities are held to be precisely the same as if, without any usage, they had entered into a special agreement to the like effect.<sup>3</sup>

1. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30, 73; Gould v. Sterling, 23 N. Y. 439-456.

If the act is within the apparent scope of the agent's authority the principal is bound. Continental Bank v. National Bank, 50 N. Y. 575; Cook v. State Nat. Bank, 52 N. Y. 96; Banks v. Everest, 35 Kan. 687; Fougne v. Burgess, 71 Mo. 389.

2. 1 Chitty on Contracts, p. 286; Barber v. Britton, 26 Vt. 112; Tradesmen's Bank v. Astor, 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 87; Hill v. Miller, 76 N. Y. 32; Munn v. Commission Co., 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 44; s. c., 8 Am. Dec. 219; Beals v. Allen, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 363; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 221; Rossiter v. Rossiter, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 494; s. c., 24 Am. Dec. 62; Commercial Bank v. Norton, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 501; Lightbody v. North Am. Ins. Co., 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 18; Exchange Bank v. Monteath, 26 N. Y. 505; Cosgrove v. Ogden, 49 N. Y. 255; Winne v. Niagara Ins. Co., 91 N. Y. 185; Willard v. Buckingham, 36 Conn. 395; Hatch v. Taylor, 10 N. H. 528; Adams Exp. Co. v. Schlesinger, 75 Pa. St. 246; Reany v. Culbertson, 21 Pa. St. 507; Kinealy v. Burd, 9 Mo. App. 359; Minter v. Pac. R. Co., 41

Mo. 503; Morton v. Scull, 23 Ark. 289; Home Life Ins. Co. v. Pierce, 75 Ill. 426; Anderson v. State, 22 Ohio St. 305; Palmer v. Cheney, 35 Iowa, 281; Furnas v. Frankman, 6 Neb. 429; Cruzan v. Smith, 41 Ind. 288; Abbott v. Rose, 62 Me. 194; Golding v. Merchant, 43 Ala. 705; Bell v. Offutt, 10 Bush (Ky.), 632; Butler v. Maples, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 766; Calais, etc., Co. v. Van Pelt, 2 Block (U. S.), 372; Union Ins. Co. v. Wilkinson, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 222.

Plaintiff agreed to sell to defendant 12,000 hop-poles. Two papers were prepared, one written by plaintiff and signed by defendant's agent, the other a printed form filled up and signed by plaintiff. The agreement was stated substantially alike in each, with this exception: the former contained this clause, "No objection to any kind of cedar;" while the latter required "said poles to be of yellow cedar, first growth." Held, that as the agent had verbal authority to buy hop-poles, the blanks might be regarded in the nature of private instructions by which the public dealing with the agent would not be bound. Hill v. Miller, 76 N. Y. 32.

3. 1 Chitty's Cont. (Perkins' Ed.) 83.

Power to Sell—to Collect.—The power to sell does not necessarily imply a power to collect, unless the agent is intrusted with the delivery of the goods, or unless there are other circumstances from which such power can be implied.<sup>1</sup>

See Randall v. Kehler, 60 Me. 37; Winsor v. Dillaway, 4 Metc. (Mass.) 221; Mixer v. Coburn, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 559; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 230; Upton v. Suffolk Mills, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 586; s. c., 59 Am. Dec. 163; Day v. Holmes, 103 Mass. 306; Schnitzer v. Oriental Print Works, 114 Mass. 123; Daylight-Burner Gas Co. v. Odlin, 51 N. H. 56; Crosby v. Fitch, 12 Conn. 410; s. c., 31 Am. Dec. 745; Willard v. Buckingham, 36 Conn. 395; McKinstry v. Pearsall, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 319; Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 79; Shelton v. Merchants' D. Co., 59 N. Y. 258; Sumner v. Stewart, 69 Pa. St. 321; Rosenstock v. Tormey, 32 Md. 169; Kraft v. Fanchir, 44 Md. 204; Frank v. Jenkins, 22 Ohio St. 597; Amer. Cent. Ins. Co. v. McLanathan, 11 Kan. 533; Phillips v. Moir, 69 Ill. 156; Corbett v. Underwood, 83 Ill. 324; Strong v. Stewart, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 137; Raitt v. Mitchell, 4 Camp. 146; Sutton v. Tatham, 10 Adolph. & El. 27; Bayliffe v. Butterworth, 1 Exch. 425; Jones v. Bowden, 4 Taunt. 847. See Farmers, etc., Bank v. Sprague, 52 N. Y. 605; Boardman v. Gaillard, 60 N. Y. 617.

The general rule is, as to all contracts, that the agent is authorized to do whatever is usual to carry out the object of his agency, and it is a question for the jury to determine what is usual. Benj. on Sales (Bennet's Ed.), § 624; Skinner v. Gunn, 9 Port. (Ala.) 305; Gaines v. McKinley, 1 Ala. 446; Sandford v. Handy, 23 Wend. 260; Williamson v. Canaday, 3 Ired. (N. Car.) L. 349; Woodford v. McClenahan, 4 Gilm. (Ill.) 815; Peters v. Farnsworth, 15 Vt. 155; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 671; Lane v. Dudley, 2 Murph. (N. Car.) 119; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 523; Ala. Gr. So. R. v. Hill, 76 Ala. 303.

In an action for the breach of a written contract, made by an agent of the defendant in another State, for the sale of goods to the plaintiff, evidence of a custom among dealers in such goods in this commonwealth to accept or reject contracts made by their selling agents is inadmissible, in the absence of evidence that such a custom was known in the place where the contract was made, or that any notice of it was given to the plaintiff. Byrne v. Ma. Packing Co., 137 Mass. 313.

But the usage must not be repugnant to the terms of the contract, nor inconsistent with a rule of the common law on the subject. Boardman v. Spooner, 13

Allen (Mass.), 353; Dickinson v. Gay, 7 Allen (Mass.), 29; Dodd v. Farlow, 11 Allen (Mass.), 426; Haskins v. Warren, 115 Mass. 514.

If the power of the agent is created by a written instrument, and that known to the party with whom the contract is made, it cannot be enlarged by evidence of usage. DeLafield v. Illinois, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 192. Compare Le Roy v. Beard, 8 How. (U. S.) 451.

A formal instrument, delegating powers, is ordinarily subject to a strict interpretation, and the authority is not extended beyond that given in terms, or which is necessary to carry into effect that which is expressly given. Craighead v. Peterson, 72 N. Y. 279; Bissell v. Terry, 69 Ill. 184; Neal v. Patten, 40 Ga. 363.

Where the extent of the power of an agent may be known by public records, as in the case of public officers, any restriction on his powers so created will be binding. Woodward v. Campbell, 39 Ark. 580; Sprague v. Cornish, 59 N. H. 142; Lewis v. Commissioners, 12 Kans. 186; N. Y., etc., Steamship Co. v. Harrison, 16 Fed. Repr. 688.

1. Authority to sell land on credit does not imply authority to receive payment for it. Mann v. Robinson, 19 W. Va. 49; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 771.

Unless a principal has held his selling agent out to the buyer as having authority to collect, a payment to the agent is not good. Clark v. Smith, 88 Ill. 298.

If there is an expressed or implied notice to the purchaser, a payment to the agent will not be binding on the principal, as in the case of brokers. Higgins v. Moore, 34 N. Y. 417; Wright v. Cabot, 89 N. Y. 570; Crosby v. Hill, 39 Ohio St. 200; Graham v. Duckwall, 8 Bush (Ky.), 12. Or salesman on commission, who has not possession of the goods. Seiple v. Irwin, 30 Pa. St. 513. Or where a printed notice on bill-head gives notice that salesmen are not authorized to collect. Law v. Stokes, 32 N. J. L. 249; McKindly v. Dunham, 55 Wis. 515; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 740. Or travelling salesmen who sell goods by sample or solicit orders to be sent to their principals for approval, and to be filled by them if accepted. Korneman v. Monaghan, 24 Mich. 36; Butler v. Dorman, 68 Mo. 298; s. c., 30 Am. Rep. 795; McKindly v. Dunham, 55 Wis. 515; s. c.,

Agent in Possession of Goods.—Where the goods sold are in the hands of the agent and delivered by him, a power to receive payment is generally implied.<sup>1</sup>

Power to Sell and to Collect.—Where an agent is authorized to sell and to collect he must follow his instructions, and if so instructed must receive his payment in cash. No other mode of payment will be implied.<sup>2</sup>

42 Am. Rep. 740; Clark v. Smith, 88 Ill. 298; Abrahams v. Weiller, 87 Ill. 179; Higgins v. Moore, 34 N. Y. 417; Greenleaf v. Egan, 30 Minn. 316; Janney v. Boyd, 30 Minn. 319; Chambers v. Short, 79 Mo. 204; Kohn v. Washer, 64 Tex. 131; Greenhood v. Keator, 9 Ill. App. 183. Consequently where an agent having authority to sell, but having neither the possession nor the indicia of the property, sells in his own name without disclosing his principal, the purchaser may not set off a debt due him from the agent in an action by the principal for the contract price. Bernshouse v. Abbott, 45 N. J. L. 531; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 789.

An agent selling goods only by sample, and forbidden to receive payment, sold goods on a credit of four months. Six days thereafter he drew in his own name for part of the price, which was paid. The money not being paid to the principal, held, that the payment did not protect the purchaser. Butler v. Dorman, 68 Mo. 298; s. c., 30 Am. Rep. 795.

Under a contract of agency for the sale of pianos, it was required that all orders should be sent to the principal to be filled by him. The agent had possession of a piano under a special contract of bailment, which he sold. Held, the purchaser, having knowledge of agency, was chargeable with notice of its terms, and acquired no title as against the principal. Cummins v. Beaumont, 68 Ala. 204.

The employment of a canvassing agent for the sale of books by subscription confers no authority to receive payment for books sold but not delivered by him, nor ever in his possession. Chambers v. Short, 79 Mo. 204.

An agent to sell imports has power to receive payment unless the buyer had notice to the contrary. Collins v. Newton, 7 Baxt. (Tenn.) 269.

1. In Seiple v. Irwin, 30 Pa. St. 513, the court said: "It is undeniable that an agent to whom merchandise has been intrusted with authority to sell and deliver it, is authorized to receive the price."

An agent sold a new safe and took an old one in part payment, which was accepted by the principal and the new one sent. Held, that the agent had implied power to receive payment for the safe. Harris v. Simmerman, 81 Ill. 413.

Authority given to an agent to make a contract for the sale of lands will authorize him also to receive so much of the purchase-money as is to be paid in hand on the sale, as an incident to the power to sell. Alexander v. Jones, 64 Iowa, 207; Peck v. Harriott, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 146; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 415; Yerbey v. Grigsby, 9 Leigh. (Va.) 387; Johnson v. McGruder, 15 Mo. 365; Hackney v. Jones, 3 Humph. (Tenn.) 612; Higgins v. Moore, 6 Bosw. (N. Y.) 344; Goodale v. Wheeler, 11 N. H. 424; Hoskins v. Johnson, 5 Sneed (Tenn.), 469.

2. Falls v. Gaither, 9 Port. (Ala.) 605; Broughton v. Silloway, 114 Mass. 71; s. c., 19 Am. Rep. 312; Burks v. Hubbard, 69 Ala. 379.

Authority under seal to sell and convey land for cash empowers the agent to receive in cash the purchase-money when the sale is made. Mann v. Robinson, 19 West Va. 49; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 771; Peck v. Harriott, 9 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 146; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 415. But not to take merchandise in payment. Lumpkin v. Wilson, 5 Heisk. (Tenn.) 555; Taylor v. Starkey, 59 N. H. 142; Rhine v. Blake, 59 Tex. 240. Nor other land. Reese v. Medlock, 27 Tex. 120. Nor to mortgage the property. Switzer v. Wilvers, 24 Kan. 384; s. c., 36 Am. Rep. 259; Wood v. Goodridge, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 117; s. c., 52 Am. Dec. 771; Jeffrey v. Hursh, 49 Mich. 31; Morris v. Watson, 15 Minn. 212.

An agent with power to sell and receive payment for his principal cannot, in general, compound with his principal's debtor, and receive payment by cancelling his own debt, unless the power be conferred, or results from the general usage of the business or the habits of dealing between the parties. Belton Compress Co. v. Belton Brick Mfg. Co., 64 Tex. 337.

But where A gave B a power of attorney to sell and convey land, B conveyed the land to C, and under an arrangement contemporaneously made, whereby D was to make a loan to C to enable him to pay for the land, took notes and a mortgage from C payable to himself (B), and immediately indorsed the notes and assigned the mortgage in his individual capacity to D, and received the money, held, it was a sale for cash, and not a barter, nor sale on time. Plummer v. Buck, 16 Neb. 322.

Power to Collect.—So must an agent to collect follow his instructions strictly.<sup>1</sup>

1. He is not authorized to release. McHany v. Schenck, 88 Ill. 357; Melvin v. Lamar Ins. Co., 80 Ill. 446; Herring v. Farrell, 74 N. Car. 588. Nor to receive merchandise or other property or other evidences of debt in payment. Padfield v. Green, 85 Ill. 529; Reynolds v. Ferree, 86 Ill. 570; Rhine v. Blake, 59 Tex. 240; Rodgers v. Bass, 46 Tex. 505; Aultman v. Lee, 43 Iowa, 404; Drain v. Doggett, 41 Iowa, 682; Taylor v. Robinson, 14 Cal. 396; Earnhardt v. Robertson, 10 Ind. 8; Kirk v. Hiatt, 2 Ind. 322; Wiley v. Mahood, 10 W. Va. 206; McCulloch v. McKee, 16 Pa. St. 289; Woodbury v. Larned, 5 Minn. 339.

But while it is a well-established rule that an agent having a money demand for collection is authorized to receive nothing but money in payment, unless specially authorized by his principal so to do, yet, where the agent is a bank of deposit, it may receive its own certificates of deposit as money; and its principal will be bound by such payment, and the debtor discharged thereby, even though the bank soon afterwards becomes insolvent and never remits to its principal. Whether the result would be different in case the debtor knew at the time that the bank was insolvent is not decided. But especially is the principal bound by such payment where the agent bank, as in this case, was also a bank of exchange, and the principal had directed it to remit by draft on New York; for in such case it must be presumed that the principal expected that the draft of its agent would be sent; and its failure to send the draft was the failure of its own agent, and the debtor should not suffer for its default. British, etc., Co. v. Tibballs, 63 Iowa, 468.

An agent to collect a debt payable in a particular sort of currency has no power to receive payment in any other kind of currency; and if loss ensues he will be liable, even where the currency he receives is the only currency circulating at the time and place of collection. Mangum v. Ball, 43 Miss. 288.

An agent having authority to collect a debt will not be presumed to have the right to take, as payment of such debt, the note of the debtor payable to himself; and the principal, having repudiated the unauthorized act, may sue on the original debt. One cannot bind his principal by any arrangement short of an actual collection of the money. Robinson v. Anderson, 106 Ind. 152; McCormick v. Wood, etc., Co., 72 Ind. 518; O'Conner v. Arnold, 53 Ind. 203. He may not receive notes in payment of a bond. Mathews v. Hamilton, 23 Ill. 470. Nor indorse the principal's name on checks received in payment. Millard v. Republic Bank, 3 McA. (D. C.) 54; Robinson v. Chemical Bank, 86 N. Y. 404; Graham v. U. S. Sav. Inst., 46 Mo. 186; McClure v. Evartson, 14 Lea (Tenn.), 495.

A power to collect a mortgage does not authorize an extension of time of payment. Ritch v. Smith, 82 N. Y. 627; Hutchins v. Munger, 41 N. Y. 155. See Gerrish v. Maher, 70 Ill. 470; Chappel v. Raymond, 20 La. Ann. 277. Nor does power to receive a note in payment of an account imply power to dispose of it. Hays v. Lynn, 7 Watts (Pa.), 524.

Authority to settle for inland exchange does not authorize the acceptance of the bill of exchange of an insolvent drawer. Goldsborough v. Turner, 67 N. Car. 403. See Osborne v. Rider, 62 Wis. 235.

An agent to collect a note has no power to sell it. Smith v. Johnson, 71 Mo. 382. See Hannon v. Houston, 18 Kans. 561.

Full power to act for the principal in settling an account will, however, authorize the agent to receive personal property in settlement. Oliver v. Sterling, 20 Ohio St. 391. But not to purchase more of the debtor's property than is necessary to cancel the debt, when by so doing he creates a debt against the principal. Pollock v. Cohen, 32 Ohio St. 514.

An attorney having in charge certain notes for collection and settlement cannot, without his client's consent, include in the settlement other notes not in his hands. Melcher v. Exchange Bank, 85 Mo. 362.

Authority to receive the whole of a debt implies power to receive part. Whelan v. Reilley, 61 Mo. 565.

Authority delegated by a creditor to an agent to collect and settle a debt leaves the medium of payment largely at the agent's discretion, but it does not extend to a settlement which the debtor knows will inure entirely to the benefit of the agent. So where the debtor contracted with an agent who was authorized

Power to Sell—to Warrant.—A general agent appointed to sell merchandise has, according to usage, power to warrant the quality of the article sold;<sup>1</sup> but a person not the general agent of the

to collect a debt that he would deliver timber at the agent's mill, for the agent's individual use, which was to be applied in payment of the debt, held, that the delivery of the timber under this contract does not discharge the debt due the principal. Williams v. Johnston, 92 N. Car. 532.

A power to cancel a mortgage and the notes secured thereby and to take new notes and a new mortgage does not authorize the cancellation without taking the renewals. Foster v. Paine, 56 Iowa, 622.

An attorney authorized to receive the interest on a bond and mortgage has no implied authority to receive the principal. Brewster v. Carnes, 8 Eastn. Repr. (N. J.) 433.

Power to receive certain chattels is no proof of authority to dispense with their delivery. Boyett v. Braswell, 72 N. Car. 260.

A power to collect debts with authority to make, seal, and execute all releases and conveyances made necessary in consequence of the payment of such debts does not give authority to sell real estate. Berry v. Harnage, 39 Tex. 638.

A general power to collect implies power to sue. McMinn v. Richtmyer, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 236; Brush v. Miller, 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 481; Scott v. Elmendorf, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 317; Hirschfield v. Landman, 2 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 208; Neille v. U. S., 7 Ct. of Cl. 535; Joyce v. Duplessis, 15 La Ann. 242; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 185; Moore v. Hall, 48 Mich. 143; And to attach. De Poret v. Gusman, 30 La Ann. pt. 2, 930.

A collecting agent may sue in his own name on a note indorsed in blank. Boyd v. Corbitt, 37 Mich. 52; Hazewell v. Coursen, 45 N. Y. Super. Ct. 22. But he cannot do so if the note is not indorsed. Padfield v. Green, 85 Ill. 529.

Where the investment of money is the object of a power of attorney, and the attorney is authorized thereby to use the principal's signature and seal, when necessary or proper, in the transaction of the business of the principal, the agent has authority to reassign a bond, assigned as collateral security for a loan of the moneys of his principal, upon payment of the loan. Feldman v. Beier, 75 N. Y. 293.

1. McCormick v. Kelly, 28 Minn. 135; Deering v. Thom, 29 Minn. 120; Upton v. Suffolk Co. Mills, 11 Cush. (Mass.)

586; s. c., 59 Am. Dec. 163; Randall v. Kehlor, 60 Me. 37; s. c., 11 Am. Rep. 169; Bryant v. Moore, 26 Me. 84; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 96; Nelson v. Cowing, 6 Hill (N. Y.), 336; Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 82; Tice v. Gallup, 2 Hun (N. Y.), 446; Murray v. Brooks, 41 Iowa, 45; Boothby v. Scales, 27 Wis. 626; Deming v. Chase, 48 Vt. 382; Fay v. Richmond, 43 Vt. 25; Huguley v. Norris, 65 Ga. 666; Dayton v. Hooglund, 39 Ohio St. 671; Palmer v. Hatch, 46 Mo. 585; Victor, etc., Co. v. Rheinschild, 25 Kan. 534; Schuchardt v. Allens, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 359; Croom v. Shaw, 1 Fla. 211; Applegate v. Moffitt, 60 Ind. 104; Hunter v. Jameson, 6 Ired. (N. Car.) 252; Ezell v. Franklin, 2 Sneed (Tenn.), 236; Bradford v. Bush, 10 Ala. 386; Dingle v. Hare, 7 C. B. N. S. 145.

An agent upon whom general authority to sell is conferred will be presumed to have authority to warrant unless the contrary appears. It will be presumed, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, that a warranty is not an unusual incident to a sale by an agent for a dealer in a commodity, where the thing sold is not present and subject to the inspection of the purchaser. Talmage v. Bierhaue, 103 Ind. 270.

Where one having general authority to solicit orders for plaster busts, but no authority to guarantee satisfaction, took an order with the understanding that the party ordering would not be obliged to accept it if not satisfied, and the bust was refused as unsatisfactory, held, that the general authority of the agent would seem to be sufficient to enter into such a contract; still, if the authority was not sufficient, the result would be that there was no special contract; and as the defendant had not accepted the bust, there was no sale. Zaliski v. Clark, 44 Conn. 218.

An agent has no implied authority to warrant where the property is of a description not usually sold with warranty. Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 79.

A general selling agent has no authority to warrant that flour will keep sweet during a voyage from Massachusetts to California. Upton v. Suffolk Co. Mills, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 586; s. c., 59 Am. Dec. 163.

A general agent has no implied authority to warrant iron safes to be burglar-proof in the absence of express authority, unless there existed at the time of the principal, who has the naked power to sell a chattel, has no such authority.<sup>1</sup>

Power to Sell.—An agent empowered to sell may rescind a sale or make a different one.<sup>2</sup>

Authority to sell at once at a certain price does not imply a sale a custom in the sale of safes to so warrant them. Herring v. Skaggs, 73 Ala.) 446.

An agent intrusted with harvesters to sell may give a reasonable opportunity to try it, and make a contract to take effect as a sale if it prove satisfactory. Deering v. Thom, 29 Minn. 120; McCormick v. Kelly, 28 Minn. 135; Murray v. Brooks, 41 Iowa, 45; Boothby v. Scales, 27 Wis. 626; The Monte Allegre, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 616.

An agent intrusted with personal property to sell may make a conditional sale on trial, or a contract to take effect as a sale, in case the article on trial work satisfactorily. Oster v. Mickle, 28 N. Westn. Repr. (Minn.), 710.

One selling by sample has authority to warrant the goods shall be like sample. Murray v. Smith, 4 Daly (N. Y.), 277; Andrews v. Kneeland, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 354; Schuchardt v. Allens, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 359; Dayton v. Hooglund, 39 Ohio St. 671. But not to warrant against seizure for violation of revenue laws. Palmer v. Hatch, 46 Mo. 585. Nor that the principal will not sell to others goods of the same kind at a less price. Anderson v. Bruner, 112 Mass. 14.

Authority to sell threshing-machines on trial, to be returned if not satisfactory, empowers the agent to waive such return. Pitsinowski v. Beardsley, 37 Iowa, 9.

A power to sell negotiable paper implies the power to certify that it is regular. Ahern v. Goodspeed, 72 N. Y. 108; Ferguson v. Hamilton, 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 427.

A broker has no implied power to warrant bank stock sold by him. Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 79. He cannot warrant that it will be paid at maturity. Graul v. Strutzel, 53 Iowa, 712.

An agent with authority to sell land may warrant against the lawful claims of all persons claiming under the principal. Ward v. Bartholomew, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 409; Blackman v. Charlestown, 42 N. H. 125. But he may not warrant the quality and quantity of the land. Nat. Iron Co. v. Bruner, 4 C. E. Green (N. J.) 331.

1. Perrine v. Cooley, 42 N. J. L. 623; s. c., 32 Am. Rep. 210; Scott v. McGrath, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 53; Decker v. Fredericks, 47 N. J. L. 469; Brady v. Todd, 9 C. B. N. S. 592.

A vendor of a horse, sold by his agent authorized merely to sell for a fixed sum, is not responsible for a breach of a warranty made by such agent, and the innocent vendor is not liable in an action for deceit brought for the fraudulent representation of his agent. Although the principal may have knowledge of defects in the horse, he is not bound to disclose them, and is an innocent vendor unless he authorized the agent to make misrepresentations or use some artifice to conceal defects. Decker v. Fredericks, 47 N. J. L. 469.

In a few cases it has, however, been held that a special agent for the sale of a horse has power to warrant, unless he is expressly forbidden. Deming v. Chase, 48 Vt. 382; Milburn v. Belloni, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 607; Tice v. Gallup, 2 Hun (N. Y.), 446; Gaines v. McKinley, 1 Ala. 446; Skinner v. Gunn, 9 Port. (Ala.) 305; Bradford v. Bush, 10 Ala. 390; Cocke v. Campbell, 13 Ala. 286.

If a person who constitutes another his agent for the sale of any article of merchandise furnishes him with the kind of warranty he is to give, a purchaser who has knowledge that such a warranty was furnished the agent cannot accept a parol warranty from the agent different in its terms and require the principal to comply with such oral warranty. Wood Mowing, etc., Co. v. Crow, 30 N. Westn. Repr. (Iowa), 609.

An auctioneer cannot warrant the quality of the goods sold. He has only power to sell, not to warrant. The Monte Allegre, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 616, 647; Blood v. French, 9 Gray (Mass.), 197.

An agent authorized to sell a claim due by judgment on execution does not authorize a guaranty of the validity of the claims proposed for sale. Lipscomb v. Kitrell, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 256.

2. Sott v. Wells, 6 Watts & S. (Pa.) 357; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 568; Anderson v. Coonley, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 279; Victor, etc., Co. v. Rheinschild, 25 Kans. 534.

And the principal will be liable to refund the money paid. Bloomer v. Denman, 12 Ill. 240.

But not after the sale is executed. Adrian v. Lane, 13 Shand (S. Car.) 183; Saladin v. Mitchell, 45 Ill. 79; Luke v. Grigg, 30 N. Western Repr. (Dak.) 170.

power to sell for the same price at a subsequent time,<sup>1</sup> nor to sell at a price different from the one given;<sup>2</sup> nor does a power to sell upon a certain day authorize a sale upon any other day.<sup>3</sup>

Power to sell does not authorize an agent to sell on credit;<sup>4</sup> nor to barter;<sup>5</sup> nor to sell in payment of agent's debt;<sup>6</sup> nor to pay commissions;<sup>7</sup> nor a power to sell on credit, to give unreasonable credit.<sup>8</sup>

A power to sell claims and effects does not give power to sell lands;<sup>9</sup> nor a power to "close a bargain" to sign a bill of sale;<sup>10</sup> nor does authority to obtain an offer imply a power to sell.<sup>11</sup>

Nor does authority of a purchasing clerk to make a single sale imply a power to make an unauthorized sale long afterward.<sup>12</sup>

Power to Sell Land.—Authority to sell land authorizes the agent to execute all instruments necessary to complete the sale;<sup>13</sup> but he has no right under such power to grant a license to the purchaser, previous to a conveyance, to enter and cut timber, although such license be given with a bona-fide intent to effect a sale;<sup>14</sup> nor to sell at auction,<sup>15</sup> nor to mortgage.<sup>16</sup>

Authority to "bargain, sell, grant, release, and convey," which does not specify some particular property, authorizes the agent to sell whatever real estate the principal may own;<sup>17</sup> and a power of

1. Matthews v. Sowle, 12 Neb. 398.

2. Holbrook v. McCarthy, 61 Cal. 216.

3. Bliss v. Clark, 16 Gray (Mass.), 60; Reed v. Baggott, 5 Ill. App. 257.

So where an agent empowered to sell land at a given price sells it three years later, when the value was much increased and was still increasing, for the same price, without informing his principal of the changed circumstances, this was considered such a fraud that a court of equity would refuse to enforce the sale. Proudfoot v. Wightman, 78 Ill. 553.

4. Burks v. Hubbard, 69 Ala. 379; School Dist. v. Etna Ins. Co., 62 Me. 330; Scooby v. Wood, 59 Tenn. 66; Frank v. Ingalls, 41 Ohio St. 560.

5. Taylor v. Starkey, 59 N. H. 142; Brown v. Smith, 67 N. Car. 245.

6. Powell v. Henry, 27 Ala. 612; Wheeler, etc., Co. v. Givan, 65 Mo. 89; Buckwalter v. Craig, 55 Mo. 71; Greenwood v. Burns, 50 Mo. 52; Flanagan v. Alexander, 50 Mo. 51; Victor, etc., Co. v. Heller, 44 Wis. 265; Stewart v. Woodward, 50 Vt. 78; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 388.

7. Atlee v. Fink, 75 Mo. 100; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 385.

8. Brown v. Central Land Co., 42 Cal. 257.

9. DeCordova v. Knowles, 37 Tex. 19.

10. Duffy v. Hobson, 40 Cal. 240; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 617.

11. Levi v. Booth, 58 Md. 305; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 382; Dempsey v. West, 69 Ill. 613.

12. Cupples v. Whelan, 61 Mo. 583.

13. Valentine v. Piper, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 85; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 715; Yale v. Eames, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 488; People v. Boring, 8 Cal. 407; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 331; Fogarty v. Sawyer, 17 Cal. 589; Plummer v. Buck, 16 Neb. 322; Hemstreet v. Burdick, 90 Ill. 444.

Where such agent has the power to sell, he has the authority to sign an agreement in his principal's name and to bind him thereby. Smith v. Allen, 86 Mo. 178; Haydock v. Stow, 40 N. Y. 363.

14. Hubbard v. Elmer, 7. Wend. (N. Y.) 446; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 590.

15. Towle v. Leavitt, 23 N. H. 360; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 195.

16. A power of attorney to sell will not support a mortgage; and if the deed is really intended as security they are conveyed without authority and the grantee cannot maintain ejectment for them. Jeffery v. Hursh, 58 Mich. 247.

17. Marr v. Given, 23 Me. 55; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 600; Roper v. McFadden, 48 Cal. 346; Berkey v. Judd, 22 Minn. 287.

But a power of attorney "to buy and sell real estate and to receive and execute all necessary contracts and conveyances" was held not to authorize the attorney to sell and convey lands to which the principal acquired title before the execution of the power. Greve v. Coffin, 14 Minn. 340.

attorney which authorizes an agent to sell land "on such terms in all respects as he shall deem most advantageous" empowers him to make full covenants of warranty.<sup>1</sup>

A power to sell and convey does not imply authority to dedicate or give any part of the principal's property to the public;<sup>2</sup> but a power to "sell, convey, plat, and subdivide, in such manner as to make the property marketable, and to acknowledge and record such plat," implies a power to dedicate such part of the property as may be necessary to the public for streets.<sup>3</sup>

Railroad Agents.—A station agent authorized to receive and forward freight may contract to supply cars;<sup>4</sup> but he has no implied power to contract to furnish cars at other stations than his own,<sup>5</sup> and authority to solicit passengers does not imply power to solicit or receive freight.<sup>6</sup>

An agent authorized to sell tickets, and stamp and deliver the same upon receiving pay therefor, cannot bind his company by stamping and delivering such tickets, without the knowledge or consent of its proper officers, to a third person, to be sold by him, and to be paid for when sold.<sup>7</sup>

Nor does a telegraph operator sustain such relation to the company as to constitute him its representative in reference to passing upon the subject-matter of a claim, its allowance or payment.<sup>8</sup>

Representations by the agent of a railroad corporation, soliciting subscriptions for stock from persons living along the contemplated route of the road, as to its intended location, and the time within which it will be completed to a particular place, are but the mere expression of an opinion, and neither constitute a fraud nor are available as a defence to an action on a subscription for stock made on the faith of them, unless known by the agent to be false, and made by him with intent to deceive.<sup>9</sup>

An engineer in the employ of a railroad company has no power to bind the company by his contracts unless he is specially authorized.<sup>10</sup>

Power to Ship.—One employed to ship goods may make a reasonable contract limiting carriers' liabilities;<sup>11</sup> and employment to

1. Le Roy v. Beard, 8 How. (U. S.) 451.

2. Wirt v. McEnery, 21 Fed. Rep. 233; Gosselin v. Chicago, 103 Ill. 623.

3. Wirt v. McEnery, 21 Fed. Rep. 233. Power to lay out land, in order to dispose of it, implies authority to dedicate highways. State v. Atherton, 16 N. H. 203.

Authority to purchase a town site and lay it out empowers the agent to dedicate land for streets. Bartean v. West, 23 Wis. 416.

An authority to locate and survey land confers no power to sell. Moore v. Lockett, 2 Bibb. (Ky.) 67; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 683.

4. Harrison v. Missouri Pac. R. Co.,

7 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 382; s. c., 74 Mo. 364.

5. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Stults, 15 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 97; s. c., 31 Kans. 752.

6. Taylor v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 74 Ill. 86.

7. Frank v. Ingalls, 41 Ohio St. 560.

8. Young v. Tel. Co., 65 N. Y. 163; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Rains, 63 Tex. 27.

9. Montgomery S. R. Co. v. Matthews, 77 Ala. 357.

10. Gardner v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 70 Me. 181.

11. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Jonte, 13 Ill. App. 424; Shelton v. Merch. Des. Co., 59 N. Y. 258; Nelson v. Hudson deliver freight implies power to make terms in regard to its delivery;<sup>1</sup> power to purchase implies power to direct as to shipment and delivery;<sup>2</sup> but authority to procure a cargo in a foreign port does not empower the agent to modify or cancel the charter-party.<sup>3</sup>

Miscellaneous.—Authority to hire a towboat and "make the best bargain you can" does not imply power to assume the perils of the service or risks of the voyage, or to insure against the negligence of any one employed in the navigation or handling of the boat.<sup>4</sup> Authority to search for goods delivered to a railroad but either missent or lost does not imply a power to settle with the company for damages.<sup>5</sup> Authority to advertise does not give power to do an unreasonable amount of advertising;<sup>6</sup> and power to close up a business does not authorize a re-investment of the funds.<sup>7</sup> Authority to erect a monument in a burial-lot implies the power of the agent to give a contractor the right to enter the lot to build the monument, and to remove it if not satisfactory or not paid for.<sup>8</sup> Health officers authorized to remove small-pox patients to a pest-house have implied power to employ nurses.<sup>9</sup> Authority to open a new channel for a stream implies a power to construct a dam.<sup>10</sup>

Negotiable Paper.—Authority to sell negotiable paper includes power to indorse it;<sup>11</sup> but an agent authorized to receive a note in payment, made to order of principal, has no authority to receive payment for it, if he has delivered the note to the principal.<sup>12</sup> A power to draw checks, sign or indorse notes, which are to be used at a certain bank will not empower an agent to sign notes in the principal's name to be used in other transactions.<sup>13</sup>

River R. Co., 48 N. Y. 498; Redfield v. Carriers, § 52.

1. Michigan, etc., R. Co. v. Day, 20 Ill. 375; s. c., 71 Am. Dec. 278.

2. Owen v. Brockschmidt, 54 Mo. 285. See Shelton v. Merchants, etc., Co., 59 N. Y. 258.

3. Ye Seng Co. v. Corbitt, 7 Sawy. (U. S.) 368; s. c., 9 Fed. Rep. 423.

4. Martin v. Farnsworth, 49 N. Y. 555.

5. Congar v. Galena, etc., R. Co., 17 Wis. 477.

6. Holloway v. Stephens, 2 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 561.

7. Stoddart's Case, 4 Ct. of Cl. 511.

8. Fletcher v. Evans, 140 Mass. 241.

9. Labrie v. Manchester, 59 N. H. 120; s. c., 47 Am. Rep. 179.

10. Barns v. Hannibal, 71 Mo. 449.

11. Merchants' Bank v. Central Bank, 1 Ga. 418; s. c., 44 Am. Dec. 665.

A party intrusted with another person's note, and authorized to negotiate it and use it for his own benefit, in the absence of any express direction by the latter may make such a contract with a bank concerning it as he sees fit; and his subsequent declarations as to the disposition of the note are admissible in evidence in a suit by the bank against the maker of it. Bank of Newbury v. Sinclair, 60 N. H. 100.

12. Draper v. Rice, 56 Iowa, 114; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 88; Guilford v. Stacer, 53 Ga. 618.

13. Citizens' Sav. Bank v. Hart, 32 La. Ann. 22; Camden Safe Dep., etc., Co. v. Abbott, 44 N. J. L. 257.

A power to indorse and discount for one purpose cannot be extended to another. Callender v. Golsan, 27 La. Ann. 311.

Nor a power to draw checks to overdraw the principal's bank account. Breed v. Bank, 4 Colo. 481.

Nor to borrow money. Morahurst v. Boies, 24 Iowa, 99.

Nor a power to sign notes to sign notes for the agent's benefit. North River Bank v. Aymar, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 262; Stainer v. Tysen, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 279; Stainback v. Read, 11 Gratt. (Va.) 281; s. c., 62 Am. Dec. 648.

To Conduct Business.—An agent with power to conduct a business has authority to do everything necessary or proper and usual in the ordinary course of the business.<sup>1</sup>

An agent, the principal being absent, having full charge, management, and control of the business of the principal, must necessarily possess and exercise the same power and authority in the business that his principal could if present. A general agency, until revoked, is coextensive in scope and duration with the business. Where a principal is absent, his general agent, having sole authority to manage his business, will necessarily have authority

Nor for the benefit of third parties. Gulick v. Grover, 33 N. J. L. 463; Wallace v. Branch Bank, 1 Ala. 565. An absolute power to settle claims does not give authority to set off a private debt of the agent. McCormick v. Keith, 8 Neb. 142; Burks v. Hubbard, 69 Ala. 379.

Nor to submit to arbitration. Mich. R. Co. v. Gongar, 55 Ill. 503. See ARBITRATION AND AWARD.

Plaintiff, who was executrix and sole legatee under the will of M., executed certain powers of attorney to F., authorizing him in her name as executrix and legatee, as well as individually, "to sign, indorse, and make and deliver checks and drafts, promissory notes, receipts and drafts, and all other vouchers and papers necessary and proper in and about settling the affairs pertaining to the estate, . . . and to settle . . . and receive payment of all claims, debts, demands due or to become due to said estate." Also, to satisfy and discharge all mortgages made to the testator, "and to demand, receive, and receipt for any and all moneys payable" on any such mortgages. At the time of the death of M., defendant held a bond and mortgage assigned to it by him as collateral for a loan. In pursuance of a written request, signed in plaintiff's name by F., as her attorney, defendant, on payment of the amount due it, assigned the bond and mortgage to F. and E., a firm in which F. was a partner. F. subsequently received payment of the bond, and his firm satisfied the mortgage. In an action to compel a reassignment of the bond and mortgage, or damages, in case a reassignment could not be had, held, that F., as far as plaintiff was concerned, had full authority under the power of attorney to receive payments on the bond, and conceding the assignment to the firm was unauthorized, he continued to have such right with power to cancel the bond and to satisfy the mortgage when paid in full; and as he did thus receive payment, no injury was done the plaintiff, and defendant was not liable; but held, that F., under the powers of attorney, had power to direct the assignment to be made to his firm, and defendant was justified in obeying his instructions. Myers v. Mut. L. Ins. Co., 99 N. Y. 1.

A power to sign and acknowledge bonds includes power to sign the bonds of a county officer in the name of the principal. Jernegan v. Gray, 14 Lea (Tenn.), 536.

1. Banner Tobacco Co. v. Jenison, 48 Mich. 459; Cummings v. Sargent, 9 Metc. (Mass.) 172; Taylor v. Labeaume, 14 Mo. 572, 17 Mo. 338; Baltimore, etc., Co. v. Brown, 54 Pa. St. 77; Bailey v. Rawley, 1 Swan (Tenn.), 295; Shepherd v. Milwaukee Gas Co., 11 Wis. 234; Bridenbecker v. Lowell, 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 9; Minor v. Mechanics' Bank, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 46; Sentell v. Kennedy, 29 La. Ann. 679; German Ins. Co. v. Grunert, 112 Ill. 68.

To give notes for purchases necessary to carry on the business. Odiorne v. Maxcy, 13 Mass. 178; White v. Westport Mfg. Co., 1 Pick. (Mass.) 215; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 168; Bailey v. Rawley, 1 Swan (Tenn.), 295. To contract for the board of the workmen. Burley v. Kitchell, 20 N. J. L. 305. But not to pledge or mortgage machinery or buildings. Dispatch Line v. Bellamy M. Co., 12 N. H. 205; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 203. But see Perkins v. Boothby, 71 Me. 91, where it was held that an agent appointed by a company to have charge of a store, sell the goods, and from time to time make such purchases of goods as might be necessary in his judgment, subject to the general oversight of the directors, has no authority to give notes of the company in order to procure loans of money; and when notes in suit were thus given the plaintiff cannot recover.

If necessary for the conduct of the business he can employ a sub-agent. Planters', etc., Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 85 N. Car. 534.

He has an insurable interest where he to bring suits to collect debts, and insurance in case of loss by fire, such power being essential to an efficient discharge of his duties.<sup>1</sup>

Power to Employ.—Authority to employ an agent or servant includes, in the absence of restrictive words, authority to make a complete contract, definite as to the amount of wages, as to all other terms.<sup>2</sup>

To Employ Surgical Aid.—The business manager of a manufacis liable to account for the property. Kline v. Queen Ins. Co., 7 Hun (N. Y.), 267.

He can settle claims morally, though not legally, binding upon his principal. Bergenthal v. Fiebrantz, 48 Wis. 435.

A intrusted B with the management of his foundry. B was accustomed to buy materials, employ workmen, sell goods, collect accounts, and receipt for moneys and pay them out. During A's absence B contracted to cast a lot of jack-screws for C. Before they were cast and delivered B borrowed from one D a sum of money for use in the foundry, and after the delivery of the jack-screws assigned the account against C therefor as security to D, who collected the same from C. Held, a valid payment by C. Hoskins v. Swain, 61 Cal. 338.

1. German Fire Ins. Co. v. Grunert, 112 Ill. 68.

Authority as general superintendent of a railroad implies power to contract for fencing. New Albany R. Co. v. Haskell, 11 Ind. 301.

The general agent and manager of a mining company is presumably empowered to sell its personal property. Scudder v. Anderson, 54 Mich. 122.

But where an agent was authorized to manage a hotel, and without the knowledge of the principal entered into an arrangement with a livery-stable keeper that the latter should furnish carriages for the guests of the house, and that the house would be responsible for the safe-keeping and return of the carriages, held, that the principal was not bound. Brockway v. Mullin, 4 N. J. L. 448; s. c., 50 Am. Rep. 442.

But authority to manage and superintend a farm does not imply power to allow a creditor to cut, remove, and sell on execution grass growing on the land. Benjamin v. Benjamin, 15 Conn. 347; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 384.

Nor does authority to purchase mules, implements, and supplies for the farm imply a power to purchase goods for farm hands. Carter v. Burnham, 31 Ark. 212.

Nor does authority to employ workmen for the construction of a mill and pay them imply a power to purchase lumber or enter into contracts respecting it. Rankin v. New England, etc., Co., 4 Nev. 78.

A clerk managing his principal's business during his absence has no power to bind his principal for the debt of a third party. Ruppe v. Edwards, 52 Mich. 411; New York Iron Mine v. Negaunee Bank, 39 Mich. 644; Clayton v. Martin, 31 Ark. 217; Meyer v. Baldwin, 52 Miss. 263; Doan v. Duncan, 18 Ill. 96.

An authority given by an administrator of an estate to manage her own affairs does not extend to the affairs of the estate. Succession of Pipes, 26 La Ann. 203.

A manager of a plantation has no power to agree for the exchange of cotton. Ball v. Bender, 22 La Ann. 493.

Power to represent all the interests of the principal's business does not imply power to engage in a new and different business. Campbell v. Hastings, 29 Ark. 512.

Nor to sell the principal's land. Watson v. Hopkins, 27 Tex. 637; Smith v. Stephenson, 45 Iowa, 645.

Nor to indorse notes. Sewanee Mining Co. v. McCall, 3 Head (Tenn.), 619.

Nor to make notes. Rossiter v. Rossiter, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 494; s. c., 24 Am. Dec. 62; Holtsinger v. Nat., etc., Bank, 1 Sweeney (N. Y.), 64.

Nor to give accommodation notes. Gulick v. Grover, 33 N. J. L. 463; Bank v. Johnson, 3 Rich (S. Cal.) 42.

2. Ala. Gr. So. R. Co. v. Hill, 76 Ala. 303.

As to the length of the engagement, Williams v. Getty, 31 Pa. St. 461; s. c., 72 Am. Dec. 757. Compare Pasco v. Smith, 49 Conn. 576. But does not include the power to allow an employee to engage in other business antagonistic to the interests of the principal. Adams Exp. Co. v. Trego, 35 Md. 47.

It seems that an agent, to give notice of the intention of one party to a contract to end it, cannot withdraw the notice so as to continue the contract, after it has ceased to be operative. Patrick v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 93 N. Car. 422.

turing corporation has implied power to employ surgical aid for an injured employee.<sup>1</sup>

Power to Manage Property.—Authority by parol to rent and care for real property will not empower an agent to bring suit in his own name to recover possession of the property from claimant under a tax deed;<sup>2</sup> nor one who is empowered to manage property and make the necessary repairs to rebuild after a fire or make

1. Swazey v. Union Mfg. Co., 42 Conn. 556.

So has the general manager of a railroad company. Walker v. Great Western R. Co., L. R. 2 Exch. 228, 36 L. J. Exch. 123.

Also a sub-inspector of railway police. Langan v. Great Western R. Co., 30 L. T. N. S. 173.

A local agent has no power to bind the company by such a contract. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Rodrigues, 47 Ill. 188; Tucker v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 54 Mo. 177. Nor has a station-master any such power. Cox v. Midland Counties R. Co., 3 Exch. 268. Nor a conductor. Tucker v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 54 Mo. 177. Nor a physician. Mayberry v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 29; s. c., 75 Mo. 492.

A general superintendent has such power. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Beecher, 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 343; s. c., 228. But not if he has merely power as to the running of the road and pays the employees, but has no control over the treasury. Stephenson v. New York, etc., R. Co., 2 Duer (N. Y.), 341.

A division superintendent or a yard-master has no such power unless it is expressly conferred on him. Brown v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 67 Mo. 132; Marquette v. Taft, 28 Mich. 289; Union Pac. R. Co. v. Beatty, 10 Pac. R. (Kans.) 845.

A telegram from the general superintendent authorizing a station-master to employ the best doctor for an injured employee, and to do all he could to save his foot and make him comfortable, is sufficient to bind the company for board and nursing. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Beecher, 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 343; s. c., 24 Kan. 228.

Where a local agent entered into a contract such as above, and wrote to the superintendent stating what he had done, and the letter did not countermand the order, but on the contrary, on receipt of the bill, admitted the validity of the contract and contested the claim solely on the ground of its alleged excessive nature, the company was held liable. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Rodrigues, 47 Ill. 188.

Where a brakeman is injured in the discharge of his duty at a point distant from the chief offices of the company, and is in need of immediate surgical attendance, the conductor has implied power to employ a surgeon, if there is no superior agent of the company present. Terre Haute, etc., R. Co. v. McMurray, 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 371; s. c., 98 Ind. 358; 49 Am. Rep. 752.

It is the duty of agents in charge of a train to take care of one injured by a collision. Northern, etc., R. Co. v. State, 29 Md. 420.

A railway road-master, having charge of the repairs of the roadway, has no implied authority to contract for the nursing of a person injured on the line of the road, there being no emergency calling for immediate action, and there being a superior agent within reach; but the corporation will be bound by the ratification of such contract by the general manager. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. McVay, 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 382; s. c., 98 Ind. 391, 49 Am. Rep. 770.

As to ratification of acts of the employees in above cases, see Indianapolis, etc., R. Co. v. Morris, 67 Ill. 295; Cairo, etc., R. Co. v. Mahoney, 82 Ill. 73; Pacific, etc., R. Co. v. Thomas, 19 Kans. 256; Southgate v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 61 Mo. 89; Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. McVay, 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 382; s. c. 98 Ind. 391, 49 Am. Rep. 770.

Authority to care for an injured employee implies a power to arrange for his board and care. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Reecher, 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 343; s. c., 24 Kans. 228.

But authority to purchase medicines on credit does not imply power to contract for board and nursing. Mayberry v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 11 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 29; s. c., 75 Mo. 492.

Nor does authority to employ surgical aid for a passenger authorize it for an injured employee. Shriver v. Stephens, 12 Pa. St. 258.

A managing agent has no power to employ an attorney to bring suit for personal injuries to employees of the principal. Cochran v. Newton, 5 Den. (N. Y.), 482. See RAILROADS.

2. McHenry v. Painter, 58 Iowa, 365.

unnecessary alterations;<sup>1</sup> nor does authority to use property for the agent's benefit imply a power to rent it.<sup>2</sup>

A power to manage property gives no authority to sell it;<sup>3</sup> nor a power to insure property, to insure it in a mutual company which would make the principal an insurer of others.<sup>4</sup>

To Control Real Estate.—A power to exercise control and supervision over all lands that may belong to the principal extends to after-acquired lands;<sup>5</sup> and a full power to act for a principal in regard to his real estate will authorize the bringing of a suit to restrain trespass and to execute an injunction bond in the principal's name,<sup>6</sup> and to settle a mortgage debt by taking the mortgage property in full satisfaction.<sup>7</sup>

Credit.—Power to purchase implies power to purchase on credit, if the agent is not supplied with funds.<sup>8</sup>

An agent furnished with funds and instructed to build a house has no implied power to build on credit.<sup>9</sup> A travelling agent has implied authority to hire teams to transport himself and samples on his principal's credit, even though he is supplied with funds to pay for such hire.<sup>10</sup>

To Loan and Borrow.—A general power to loan money authorizes an extension in time of payment,<sup>11</sup> and a general power to borrow money includes authority to give the lender the ordinary securities for the sum borrowed.<sup>12</sup>

To Mortgage.—A power to mortgage does not authorize the agent to mortgage the property for his own benefit,<sup>13</sup> nor that of third

1. Beckman v. Wilson, 61 Cal. 335.

2. Ward v. Thrustin, 40 Ohio St. 347.

3. Smith v. Stephenson, 45 Iowa, 645; Holbrook v. Oberne, 56 Iowa, 324; McNamee v. Kelf, 52 Miss. 426.

Nor to employ counsel in a case concerning property belonging to another person. Perry v. Jones, 18 Kans. 552.

Nor to confess a general judgment for his principal where an attachment is issued against the property, the owner being a non-resident. Howell v. Gordon, 40 Ga. 302.

Neither does authority to locate and survey land give authority to sell. Moore v. Lockett, 2 Bibb. (Ky.) 67; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 683.

Nor a power to collect rent to employ an engineer. Crozier v. Reins, 4 Ill. App. 564.

4. White v. Madison, 26 N. Y. 117.

5. Berkey v. Judd, 22 Minn. 287.

6. State v. Banks, 48 Md. 513.

7. Renwick v. Wheeler, 4 McCrary (U. S.), 119.

8. Sprague v. Gillett, 9 Metc. (Mass.)

91. See Ruffin v. Mebane, 6 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 507.

But when he is supplied with funds he cannot do so unless it is the usage of the trade. Komorowski v. Krumdick, 56 Wis. 23; Jaques v. Todd, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 83; Fraser v. McPherson, 3 Desaur (S. Car.), 393.

The fact that the agent is supplied with money to pay for purchases does not imply that he is not authorized to buy on credit. Adams v. Boies, 24 Iowa, 96; Paine v. Tillinghast, 52 Conn. 532.

A purchasing agent may make representations as to the solvency of his principal. Hunter v. Hudson River Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 493.

9. Proctor v. Tows, 3 N. East. R. Ill. 569.

10. Bentley v. Doggett, 51 Wis. 224; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 827. See Huntley v. Mathias, 90 N. Car. 101; s. c., 47 Am. Rep. 516. Compare Sampson v. Singer Manuf. Co., 5 S. Car. 465; Howe Machine Co. v. Ashley, 60 Ala. 496.

11. Hurd v. Marple, 2 Ill. App. 402.

But not to receive usury. Gokey v. Knapp, 44 Iowa, 32. Compare Stevens v. Meers, 11 Ill. App. 138.

12. Hatch v. Coddington, 5 Otto (U. S.), 48.

13. Nippel v. Hammond, 4 Colo. 211; Wolfley v. Rising, 8 Kan. 297.

parties;<sup>1</sup> nor to give a note in the principal's name;<sup>2</sup> nor to insert a provision for payment of attorney's fee.<sup>3</sup> Nor does a power to mortgage farm stock to a certain amount authorize a second mortgage.<sup>4</sup>

An authority to foreclose a mortgage is not implied by the power to take a mortgage to secure a deferred payment.<sup>5</sup>

To Settle.—Authority to "cite and appear" empowers an agent to prosecute and defend suits which may be brought by or against his principal;<sup>6</sup> an absolute power to settle a suit implies authority to raise money by note, where the money is to be used in procuring a settlement.<sup>7</sup>

To Examine Accounts.—Authority to investigate the affairs and accounts of a corporation implies power to employ expert assistance.<sup>8</sup>

To Perform Contracts.—But authority to perform and carry out a contract does not imply a power to change it;<sup>9</sup> nor does authority to sue and execute releases imply a power to release without payment;<sup>10</sup> nor to assign the claim to a third person.<sup>11</sup>

A power to manage an estate and prosecute suits does not authorize an agent to assign a cause of action for trespass;<sup>12</sup> neither does authority to issue policies for life insurance and to receive

1. Greenwood v. Spring, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 375.

2. Mylius v. Copes, 23 Kan. 617.

3. Pacific, etc., Co. v. Dayton, etc., R. Co., 7 Sawy. (U. S.) 61; s. c., 5 Fed. Repr. 582.

4. Skaggs v. Murchison, 63 Tex. 348.

B. and E. executed to F. a power of attorney to borrow money for the use of the firm, "and to sign and indorse all notes representing the sum or sums thus borrowed or to be borrowed, and to secure the payment and reimbursement thereof by granting a special mortgage on the whole or a part of the real estate, lands, and tenements belonging to our said firm or standing in its name." F. then procured S. to give notes as accommodation makers, payable to the order of B. & Co., who negotiated the same with several banks. In order to procure the renewal of such accommodation paper, F. for himself, and as the attorney in fact of B. and E., gave to S. B. & Co. their promissory notes for the amount of such renewals, and executed a mortgage on certain real estate to secure the payment of the notes to S. Held, that under the power of attorney, F. was authorized to borrow money, and the mortgage given to secure S. to be good in equity. Burnet v. Boyd, 60 Miss. 627.

5. Aultman v. Jones, 1 Woolw. (U. S.) 99.

But where the owner authorized an agent to procure additional security for a real-estate mortgage, leaving it to his judgment to make the best arrangement he could for that purpose, held, that the agent was authorized to make an agreement for a reasonable extension of time of payment. Also held, that the owner by taking, holding, and foreclosing a chattel mortgage given in consideration of the agreement to extend the time of payment must be deemed to have ratified the same, even if the agent had not authority to make it. Kane v. Cortesy, 100 N. Y. 132.

6. Miller v. Marmiche, 24 La. Ann. 30.

And to make a suit effective by attachment. De Poret v. Gusman, 30 La. Ann. pt. ii. 930.

But not to advise with counsel relative to the principal's interests; it only authorizes the employment of counsel so far as may be necessary to prepare such instruments as may be necessary under the power of attorney. Harrett v. Garvey, 35 N. Y. Super. Ct. 327.

7. Tanner v. Hastings, 2 Ill. App. 283.

8. Star Line v. Van Vliet, 43 Mich. 364.

9. Gerrish v. Maher, 70 Ill. 470; Godman v. Meixsel, 53 Ind. 11.

10. De Mets v. Dagron, 53 N. Y. 635.

11. Garrigue v. Loescher, 3 Bosw. (N. Y.) 578.

12. Geiger v. Bolles, 1 Th. & C. (N. Y.)

premiums imply a power to waive conditions in the policy as to payment of premiums.<sup>1</sup>

- Duties of Agents.—To Perform the Duties Undertaken.—When an agent has undertaken to execute a commission for a valuable consideration, he binds himself to perform it, and will be liable for its performance in the absence of a fresh contract releasing him, unless the agreement is either illegal, immoral, or absolutely impossible.<sup>2</sup>

To Act in the Name of his Principal.—In so far as he undertakes to act as agent, he undertakes to represent the principal only.<sup>3</sup>

To Act in Person.—An agent who has a bare power or authority must execute it himself and cannot delegate his authority to another.<sup>4</sup>

1. Mersereaux v. Phoenix M. L. Ins. Co., 66 N. Y. 274.

2. Evans on Agency (Ewell's Ed.), 212; Le Guen v. Gouverneur, 1 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 437; s. c., 1 Am. Dec. 121; Bell v. Palmer, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 128; La Farge v. Kneeland, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 456; Allen v. Suydam, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 321; 32 Am. Dec. 555; Ralston v. Barclay, 6 Martin (La.), 653; s. c., 12 Am. Dec. 483; Berthond v. Gordon, 6 La. 583; Williamsburgh, etc., Ins. Co. v. Frothingham, 122 Mass. 391; Morris v. Summerl; 2 Wash. (U. S.) 203; De Tastett v. Cronsillatt, 2 Wash. (U. S.) 132.

3. Evans on Ag. (Ewell's Ed.) 212, 213; Sullivan v. Ross, 39 Mich. 511.

4. Emerson v. Providence Hat Mfg. Co., 12 Mass. 37; Haven v. Winnissimmet Co., 11 Allen (Mass.), 377; Tippets v. Walker, 4 Mass. 506; Brewster v. Hobart, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 302; Stoughton v. Baker, 4 Mass. 522; s. c., 3 Am. Dec. 236; Connor v. Parker, 114 Mass. 331; Lewis v. Ingersoll, 3 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 55; Commercial Bank v. Norton, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 501; Hawley v. James, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 318; Lyon v. Jerome, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 485; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 271; Lynn v. Burgoyne, 13 B. Mon. (Ky.) 400; Bocock v. Pavey, 8 Ohio St. 270; Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Trenholm, 12 Heisk. (Tenn.) 520; Warner v. Martin, 11 How. (U. S.) 209, 223; Ex-p. Winsor, 3 Story (U. S.), 411; Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205; Gillis v. Bailey, 1 Fost. (N. H.) 149; Andover v. Grafton, 7 N. H. 304; Mayer v. McLure, 36 Miss. 389; s. c., 72 Am. Dec. 190; Bissell v. Roden, 34 Mo. 63; McClure v. Miss. Valley Ins. Co., 4 Mo. App. 148; Crozier v. Reins, 4 Ill. App. 564; Mason v. Waite, 4 Scam. (Ill.) 127; Locke's Appeal, 72 Pa. St. 491; McCormick v. Bush, 38 Tex. 314; Smith v. Sublett, 28 Tex. 163; Entz v.

Mills, 1 McM. (S. Car.) 453; Wilson v. York, etc., R. Co., 11 Gill. & J. (Md.) 58, 74; Hunt v. Douglass, 22 Vt. 128; Loomis v. Simpson, 13 Iowa, 532; Furnas v. Frankman, 6 Nebr. 429.

Except where a known usage of trade justifies, or necessity requires, the employment of sub-agents, an agent whose powers and duties involve personal trust and confidence and the exercise of judgment and discretion cannot, without authority from his principal, delegate to another the confidence and discretion reposed in him. Having, by his own judgment and discretion, determined what should be done, he may authorize another to perform the ministerial acts necessary to carry into effect the purposes of his employment, but he cannot turn his principal's business over to the judgment and discretion of another, and bind his principal by the acts and conduct of the latter. Titus & Scudder v. Cairo & F. R. Co., 46 N. J. L. 393.

An agent to sell cannot bind his principal by an agreement to pay another commissions for making sales. Atlee v. Fink, 75 Mo. 100; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 385.

The governing board of a municipal corporation cannot delegate its authority to an inferior board or other officers or agents. Richardson v. Heydenfeldt, 46 Cal. 68; Thompson v. Schermerhorn, 6 N. Y. 92; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 385; Ruggles v. Collier, 43 Mo. 353; Sheehan v. Gleeson, 46 Mo. 100; Foss v. Chicago, 56 Ill. 354; East St. Louis v. Wehrung, 50 Ill. 28; State v. Jersey City, 26 N. J. L. 444; State v. Paterson, 34 N. J. L. 163; White v. Mayor, 2 Swan (Tenn.), 364.

A broker cannot delegate his authority. Henderson v. Barnwell, 1 Y. & Jerv. 387; Locke's Appeal, 72 Pa. St. 491.

Nor a factor. Loomis v. Simpson, 13 Iowa, 532; Warner v. Martin, 11 How. (U. S.) 209

Power of Substitution.—The principal may, however, give the agent the power of substitution, either expressly with the appointment, or by ratification or acquiescence when the agent has delegated his power without authority.<sup>1</sup>

To Obey Instructions, and Observe the Terms of the Authority.—An agent is bound to follow faithfully the instructions of his principal, and to act within the scope of his authority.<sup>2</sup> This rule is, however, subject to the following exceptions:

Neither can an attorney-at-law. In re Bleakly, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 311; Hitchcock v. McGehee, 7 Port. (Ala.) 556; Johnson v. Cunningham, 1 Ala. 249; Ratcliff v. Baird, 14 Tex. 43; Rolland v. Rowland, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 22.

Nor an auctioneer. Stone v. State, 12 Mo. 400.

Merely ministerial acts may, however, be delegated by the agent. Williams v. Woods, 16 Md. 220; Bodine v. Ins. Co., 51 N. Y. 117; Commercial Bank v. Norton, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 501; Com. v. Harneden, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 482; Poree v. Bonneval, 6 La. Ann. 386; Norwich University v. Denny, 47 Vt. 13; Grady v. Am. Cent. Ins. Co., 60 Mo. 116; Newell v. Smith, 49 Vt. 255; Star Line v. Van Vliet, 43 Mich. 364.

A tax list made up by one who is not a member of the taxing body, but who acts under its direction and as its agent, is not thereby made invalid. Covington v. Rockingham, 93 N. Car. 134.

1. Gray v. Murray, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 167, 178; Van Schoick v. Niagara F. Ins. Co., 68 N. Y. 434; Smith v. Lipscomb, 13 Tex. 532; Johnson v. Cunningham, 1 Ala. 249; King v. Pope, 28 Ala. 601; Doe v. Robinson, 3 Bing. (N. C.) 677; Mason v. Joseph, 1 Smith, 406.

The power of substitution is impliedly given to an agent when the object of the agency is of such a character that it cannot be attained without a substitution; as where a draft payable at a distant place was left with a bank for collection. Planters, etc., Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 75 N. Car. 534; Dorchester, etc., Bank v. New Engl. Bank, 1 Cush. (Mass.) 177; Appleton Bank v. McGilvray, 4 Gray (Mass.), 522; s. c., 64 Am. Dec. 92; Warren Bank v. Suffolk Bank, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 582; Fabens v. Mercantile Bank, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 330; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 59; Lawrence v. Stonington Bank, 6 Conn. 521; Johnson v. Cunningham, 1 Ala. 249; Laussatt v. Lippincott, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 386; Franklin v. Ezell, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 497; Strong v. Stewart, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 147; Gillis v. Bailey, 21 N. H. 149; Jackson v. Union Bank, 6 Harr. & J. (Md.) 146; Bellimire v. Bank of U. S., 4 Whart. (Pa.) 105; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 46; Warner v. Martin, 11 How. (U. S.) 209; Bank of Washington v. Triplett, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 25.

Or where by well-known custom of trade it is so understood by the parties. Bodine v. Exch. Fire Ins. Co., 51 N. Y. 117; Bilsborrow v. James, 25 Hun (N. Y.), 18; Commercial Bank v. Norton, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 501; Gray v. Murray, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 167, 178; Van Schoick v. Niagara F. Ins. Co., 68 N. Y. 434; Grady v. Am. Cen. Ins. Co., 60 Mo. 116; Norwich University v. Denny, 47 Vt. 13; Peterson v. Christensen, 26 Minn. 581; Williams v. Woods, 16 Md. 220; Rosenstock v. Tormey, 32 Md. 169; Chase v. Ostrom, 50 Wis. 640; Saveland v. Green, 40 Wis. 431, 442; Darling v. Stanwood, 14 Allen (Mass.), 504; Buckland v. Conway, 16 Mass. 396; Warren Bank v. Suffolk Bank, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 582; Ledoux v. Goza, 4 La. Ann. 160; Jackson Ins. Co. v. Partee, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 296; Strong v. Stewart, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 137; Harralson v. Stein, 50 Ala. 347.

Where an agent is authorized to sell land, exercising his discretion as to price and terms, he may properly employ a sub-agent. Renwick v. Bancroft, 56 Iowa, 527.

Or where the interests of the principal may be better served by a substitution. Briggs v. Georgia, 10 Vt. 68; Fenno v. English, 22 Ark. 170; Saveland v. Green, 40 Wis. 431.

Where the principal ratifies the acts of a sub-agent, as by accepting the benefits of his transactions, he thereby ratifies the appointment of the sub-agent. Willinks v. Hollingworth, 6 Wheat. (U. S.) 259; Strickland v. Hudson, 55 Miss. 255. See SUB-AGENTS, post.

2. Adams v. Robinson, 65 Ala. 586; Rundle v. Moore, 3 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 36; Loeb v. Hellman, 45 N. Y. Super Ct. 336; Blot v. Boiceau, 1 Sandf. Sup. Ct. (N. Y.) 111; Johnson v. N. Y. Cent. R. Co., 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 196; Williams v. Littlefield, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 362; Scott v. Rogers, 31 N. Y. 676; Laverty v. Snethen, 68 N. Y. 522; Wilts v. Morrell, 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 511; Le Guen v.

Where the authority or instructions require the agent to do an illegal or immoral act.<sup>1</sup>

Where a deviation from the strict performance of his authority

Gouverneur, 1 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 437 n.; Allen v. Suydam, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 321; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 555; Bennett v. Austin, 81 N. Y. 308; Leverick v. Meigs, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 645; Chavanne v. Frizola, 25 La. Ann. 77; Nesbit v. Burry, 25 Pa. 208; Persch v. Quiggle, 57 Pa. St. 247; Dodge v. Tileston, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 328; Rommel v. Wingate, 103 Mass. 327; Wilson Sewing M. Co. v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 71 Mo. 203; Butts v. Phelps, 79 Mo. 302; Fowler v. Colt, 25 N. J. Eq. 202; Loehnberg v. Atherton, 6 N. East. R. (Mass.) 768; Godman v. Meixsel, 53 Ind. 11; Osborne v. Rider, 62 Wis. 235; Williams v. Higgins, 30 Md. 404; Lee v. Clements, 48 Ga. 128; Sawyer v. Mayhew, 51 Me. 398; Ferguson v. Porter, 3 Fla. 27; Robinson Mach. Works v. Vorse, 52 Iowa, 207; Clark v. Roberts, 26 Mich. 506; Bank of Owensboro v. Western Bank, 13 Bush (Ky.), 526; Nicolai v. Lyon, 8 Oregon, 56; Thornton v. Boyden, 31 Ill. 200; Brown v. McGrau, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 480; Walker v. Smith, 4 Dall. (U. S.), 389. Compare Milbank v. Dennistoun, 21 N. Y. 386.

Where an agent was instructed to send an amount of money by express and he instead bought a check and sent it by mail, and before the check could be collected the drawer failed, the agent was held liable. Walker v. Walker, 5 Heisk. (Tenn.) 425.

W., being authorized to sell certain land of defendant, subject to a certain lease, made a written contract of sale to plaintiff, by which he assumed to bind his principal to convey the land "in fee-simple, and with a perfect title free from all incumbrances." Held, that the contract is unauthorized, and not enforceable. Thomas v. Joslin, 30 Minn. 388.

A principal directed an agent to send him $300 in bills of $50 or $100 each. He sent it in bills of smaller amount, and the money was lost. The court held that the agent did not follow his instruction and was liable to the principal for the loss. Wilson v. Wilson, 26 Pa. St. 394; Butts v. Phelps, 79 Mo. 302.

An agent was employed to sell for a specific sum. His agreement to sell for a sum less than that nominated in his authority, and to pay taxes, was therefore of no binding force upon his principal. Holbrook v. McCarthy, 61 Cal. 216.

The mere fact that the agent in disobeying instructions intended to promote the principal's interests will not exonerate him. Rechtscherd v. Accommodation Bank, 47 Mo. 181; Courcier v. Ritter, 4 Wash. C. C. (U. S.) 549; Coker v. Ropes, 125 Mass. 577.

Where an agent acts against his instructions, and the principal afterward either expressly or impliedly ratifies the act, the principal will be bound. Bray v. Gunn, 53 Ga. 144; Joslin v. Cowee, 52 N. Y. 90. See RATIFICATION, post.

1. Elmore v. Brooks, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 45; Brown v. Howard, 14 Johns. (N. Y.), 119; Davis v. Barger, 57 Ind. 54; Greenwood v. Curtis, 6 Mass., 58; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 145; Brookover v. Hurst, 1 Metc. (Ky.) 665; Smith v. Godfrey, 8 Fost. (N. H.) 382; s. c., 61 Am. Dec. 617; Bibb v. Bibb, 17 B. Monr. (Ky.) 292; Marksbury v. Taylor, 10 Bush (Ky.), 519.

Where an agent was appointed to influence members of a legislature as a lobbyist, the contract was held to be illegal and void. Trist v. Child, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 441; Clippinger v. Hepbaugh, 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 315; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 519; Harris v. Roof, 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 489; Rose v. Truax, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 361; Marshall v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 16 How. (U. S.) 314.

While the courts will not enforce an illegal contract between the parties, yet if an agent of one of the parties has, in the prosecution of the illegal enterprise for his principal, received money or other property belonging to his principal, he is bound to turn it over to him, and cannot shield himself from liability therefor upon the ground of the illegality of the original transaction. Norton v. Blinn, 39 Ohio St. 145; Church v. Stegner, 21 Ohio St. 488; Baldwin v. Potter, 46 Vt. 402; Evans v. Trenton, 4 Zab. (N. J.) 764; Brooks v. Martin, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 70; Tenant v. Elliott, 1 B. & P. 2; Pointer v. Smith, 7 Heisk. (Tenn.) 137; Murray v. Vanderbilt, 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 140; Daniels v. Barney, 22 Ind. 207; Wood's Mas. and Ser. § 202.

The burden of proof of the illegality of an order of a principal is upon the agent. He must show that he has a legal reason to refuse to execute the order. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Bay Field, 37 Mich. 205. See also LIABILITY OF PRINCIPAL FOR TORTS OF AGENTS.

is due to necessity or to unforeseen emergencies which are themselves not due to the agent's default.<sup>1</sup>

Where the terms of the authority have been substantially performed, a circumstantial variance will be held to be immaterial.<sup>2</sup>

In the Absence of Instructions, to Conform to Usage or Recognized Mode of Dealing.—Where an agent is commissioned to do any act, nothing being said as to the mode of performance, he will have an implied power to perform his duties in accordance with any recognized usage or mode of dealing.<sup>3</sup>

To Use Reasonable Skill and Ordinary Diligence.—The agent is understood to contract for reasonable skill and ordinary diligence, and he is consequently liable to his employer for injuries occasioned by the want of reasonable skill, and also for ordinary negligence. By reasonable skill we are to understand such as is, and no more than is, ordinarily possessed and employed by persons of common capacity engaged in the same trade, business, or employment; by ordinary diligence, that degree of diligence which persons of common prudence are accustomed to use about their own business and affairs.<sup>4</sup>

1. Judson v. Sturges, 5 Day (Conn.), 556; Drummond v. Wood, 2 Cai. (N. Y.) 310; Liotard v. Graves, 3 Cai. (N. Y.) 226; Lawler v. Keaquick, 1 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 174; Forrestier v. Bordman, 1 Story (U. S.) 43; Dusar v. Perit, 4 Binn. (Pa.) 361; Greenleaf v. Moody, 13 Allen (Mass.), 363; Bernard v. Maury, 20 Gratt. (Va.) 434; Harter v. Blanchard, 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 617; Wood v. Cooper, 2 Over. (Tenn.) 441. See also SHIPMASTERS.

Emergencies may arise in which a factor or agent may from the necessities of the case be justified in assuming extraordinary power and his acts fairly done under such circumstances bind the principal. Acts done in the bona fide efforts to save perishing property come within the rule. Jervis v. Hoyt, 2 Hun. (N. Y.) 637; Greenleaf v. Moody, 13 Allen (Mass.) 363; Goodwillie v. McCarthy, 45 Ill. 186.

And especially is this the case when not only the principal's interests are endangered, but also the interests of the agent. Brown v. M'Grau, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 480; Parker v. Brancker, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 40; Stall v. Meek, 70 Pa. St. 181; Milbank v. Dennistoun, 21 N. Y. 386; Frothingham v. Everton, 12 N. H. 239.

2. Parkhill v. Imlay, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 431.

3. Lovejoy v. Middlesex R. Co., 128 Mass. 480; Grant v. Ludlow, 8 Ohio St. 54; Bailey v. Bensley, 87 Ill. 566; Walker v. Walker, 5 Heisk. (Tenn.) 425; Wanless v. McCandless, 38 Iowa, 20; De Lazardi v. Hewitt, 7 B. Mon. (Ky.) 697; Byrne v. Schwing, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 199;

Lausatt v. Lippincott, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 392; Le Roy v. Beard, 8 How. (U. S.) 451; Delafield v. State of Ill., 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 192; Smedes v. Utica Bank, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 372; White v. Fuller, 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 267; Miranda v. City Bank, 6 La. 740.

A factor without special instruction to sell for cash only may sell on credit for a period established by the usage of trade in his line of business. Van Alen v. Vanderpool, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 69; Robertson v. Livingston, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 473; Burrill v. Phillips, 1 Gall. (U. S.) 360; Forrestier v. Bordman, 1 Story (U. S.), 43; Greely v. Bartlett, 1 Greenl. (Me.) 172; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 54.

Or take a negotiable note in payment. Goodenow v. Tyler, 7 Mass. 36; Tarlton v. M'Whorter, 5 Stew. & Port. (Ala.) 284; Kidd v. King, 5 Ala. 84; Rogers v. White, 6 Greenl. (Me.) 193; Dwight v. Whitney, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 179.

4. Story on Agency, § 183; Whitney v. Martine, 88 N. Y. 535; First Nat. Bank of Meadville v. Fourth Nat. Bank of N. Y., 77 N. Y. 320; Heineman v. Heard, 50 N. Y. 27; Gleason v. Clark, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 57; Leverick v. Meigs, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 645; Lawler v. Keaquick, 1 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 174; Bigelow v. Walker, 24 Vt. 149; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 156; Wilmot v. Howard, 39 Vt. 447; Gheen v. Johnson, 90 Pa. St. 38; Fowler v. Sergeant, 1 Grant Cas. (Pa.) 355; Deshler v. Beers, 32 Ill. 368; Gettins v. Scudder, 71 Ill. 86; Fay v. Strawn, 32 Ill. 295; Gilson v. Collins, 66 Ill. 136; Matthews v. Fuller, 123 Mass. 446; Savage v. Birkhead, 20

To Make a Full Disclosure where he has an Adverse Interest.—An agent will not be allowed to place himself in a position in which his duty and interest conflict, or be permitted to make a secret profit out of his agency.<sup>1</sup>

Pick. (Mass.) 167; Varnum v. Martin, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 440; Harriman v. Stowe, 57 Mo. 93; Williams v. Higgins, 30 Md. 404; Myles v. Myles, 6 Bush (Ky.), 237; Evans v. Watrous, 2 Port. (Ala.) 205; Webster v. Whitworth, 49 Ala. 201; New Orleans R. Co. v. Albritton, 38 Miss. 242; s. c., 75 Am. Dec. 98; Long v. Morrison, 14 Ind. 595; Babcock v. Orison, 25 Ind. 75; Wood v. Clapp, 4 Sneed (Tenn.), 65; Patten v. Wiggan, 51 Me. 594; Howard v. Grover, 28 Me. 97; s. c., 48 Am. Dec. 478; Leighton v. Sargent, 7 Fost. (N. H.) 460; s. c., 59 Am. Dec. 388; Marsh v. Whitmore, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 178; Holliday v. Kennard, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 254; Trinidad Nat. Bank v. Demean Nat. Bank, 4 Dill. (U. S.) 290; Milwaukee Bank v. City Bank, 103 U. S. 668.

He must give his principal timely notice of every fact coming to his knowledge necessary for the latter's security. Moore v. Thompson, 9 Phil. (Pa.) 164. Compare Pierce v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 36 Wis. 283.

Where the agent of a commissioner for the sale of county property delivered the commissioner's deed to the purchaser without receiving the purchase-money, he thereby assumes the payment of it himself. Jacks v. State, 44 Ark. 61.

An agent who, by neglect and want of diligence, fails to collect money of his principal loaned by him is liable for the loss. Rochester v. Levering, 104 Ind. 562. See Dickson v. Screven, 23 S. Car. 212.

And it does not matter whether the services of the agent are rendered gratuitously or for a consideration. Thorne v. Deas, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 84; Benden v. Manning, 2 N. H. 289; Gill v. Middleton, 105 Mass. 477; Bank of New Hanover v. Kenan, 76 N. Car. 340; Williams v. Higgins, 30 Md. 404.

But he will not be liable if the exercise of reasonable care on the part of the principal could have prevented the loss. Sioux City, etc., R. Co. v. Walker, 49 Iowa, 273.

The agent is not liable for such accidental losses as may occur in the course of his employment, and which could not be prevented by the exercise of reasonable skill and ordinary diligence. Lake, etc., Co. v. McVean, 32 Minn. 301; Page v. Wells, 37 Mich. 415; Fick v. Runnels, 48

Mich. 302; James v. Borgois, 4 Baxt. (Tenn.) 345; Bannon v. Warfield, 42 Md. 22; Weakley v. Pearce, 5 Heisk. (Tenn.) 401; Hale v. Wall, 22 Gratt. (Va.) 424.

A trustee is bound to make safe investments, such as will yield a reasonable income, and a return of the principal when desired; and he ought not, as a general rule, to invest in second mortgages; but he will not be held personally liable simply because he has done so, in the absence of proof that loss has ensued or will probably ensue. Porter v. Woodruff, 36 N. J. Eq. 174. See Whitney v. Martine, 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 72.

A. was employed as bookkeeper of a firm composed of B. and C., upon the dissolution of which B. bought the interest of C. therein, and continued A. in his employ for a short time. A. was authorized by C. to settle with B. in his behalf. After the dissolution, A. and B. looked over the partnership accounts together, and B. had the books for examination for the purpose of ascertaining how the accounts stood, and what amount was due to each partner. A statement of the partnership accounts was made by A., showing a certain sum due to C., which B. paid to A. as C.'s agent. This statement was in fact erroneous, and the sum paid by B. was in excess of the sum due C. on the settlement. A. said to B., at the time of the settlement, that, if it was not right, it should be made right. There was no intentional fraud or misrepresentation on A.'s part, and he had no personal interest in the settlement, and only acted as agent of the partners. Held, on a bill in equity by B. against A. and C., that A. was not liable to B. in any form of action. Richardson v. Taylor, 136 Mass. 143.

An agent is not responsible for damages caused by his mistake in a doubtful matter of law. Mechanics' Bank v. Merch. Bank, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 13; Howe v. Dewing, 2 Gray (Mass.), 476; Hicks v. Minturn, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 550; Watson v. Rickard, 25 Kans. 662; Rice v. Melendy, 41 Iowa, 395.

In case of the death of the agent, his estate will be liable to his principal for losses occasioned by his negligence or lack of skill. Robinson Mach. Works v. Vorse, 52 Iowa, 207.

1. White v. Ward, 26 Ark. 445; Schoellkopf v. Leonard, 6 Pac. Repr.

Officers of Corporations.—The same rule holds good for officers of a corporation, although representing a majority of the stock;

(Colo.) 209; Watson v. Union, etc., Co., 15 Ill. App. 509; Bowman v. Officer, 53 Iowa, 640; Persch v. Quiggle, 57 Pa. St. 247; Pratt v. Patterson, 3 Cent. Repr. (Pa.) 120; Everhardt v. Searle, 71 Pa. St. 256; Audenreid v. Walker, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 183; Krutz v. Fisher, 8 Kans. 90, 9 Kans. 501; Neilson v. Bouman, 29 Gratt. (Va.) 732; Bell v. Bell, 3 W. Va. 183; Cook v. Berlin Woolen Mills Co., 43 Wis. 433; McMahon v. McGraw, 26 Wis. 614; Meyer v. Hanchett, 39 Wis. 419; s. c., 43 Wis. 246; Draughen v. Quillen, 23 La Ann. 237; Greenfield Sav. Bank v. Simons, 133 Mass. 415; Farnsworth v. Hemmer, 1 Allen (Mass.), 494; s. c., 79 Am. Dec. 756; Walker v. Osgood, 98 Mass. 348; Rice v. Wood, 113 Mass. 133; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 459; Holcomb v. Weaver, 136 Mass. 265; Dodd v. Wakeman, 26 N. J. Eq. 484; Condit v. Blackwell, 22 N. J. Eq. 481; Young v. Hughes, 32 N. J. Eq. 372; Porter v. Woodruff, 36 N. J. Eq. 174; Van Epps v. Van Epps, 9 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 237; Marvin v. Buchanan, 62 Barb. (N. Y.) 468; Moore v. Moore, 5 N. Y. 256; N. Y., etc., Ins. Co. v. Nat., etc., Ins. Co., 14 N. Y. 85; McMillan v. Arthur, 98 N. Y. 167; Bennett v. Austin, 81 N. Y. 308; Dutton v. Willner, 52 N. Y. 312; Wilson v. Wilson, 4 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 621; Greenwood v. Spring, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 375; Dunlop v. Richards, 2 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 181; Pugsley v. Murray, 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 245; Lafferty v. Jelly, 22 Ind. 471; Ackenburgh v. McCool, 36 Ind. 473; Love v. Hoss, 62 Ind. 255; Peckham Iron Co. v. Harper, 41 Ohio St. 100; Bell v. McConnell, 137 Ohio St. 396; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 528; Capener v. Hogan, 40 Ohio St. 203; Sunderland v. Kilbourn, 3 Mack. (D. C.) 506; Hinckley v. Arey, 27 Me. 362; Raisin v. Clark, 41 Md. 158; s. c., 20 Am. Rep. 66; Bollman v. Loomis, 41 Conn. 581; Lynch v. Fallon, 11 R. I. 311; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 458; Atlee v. Fink, 75 Mo. 100; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 385; Adams Mining Co. v. Senter, 26 Mich. 73; Colwell v. Keystone Co., 36 Mich. 51; Sumner v. Charlotte, etc., R. Co., 78 N. Car. 289; Lloyd v. Colston, 5 Bush (Ky.), 587; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Kindred, 3 McCrary (U. S.), 627; s. c., 14 Fed. Repr. 77; Ferguson v. Dent, 24 Fed. Repr. 412; Oscanyon v. Arms Co., 103 U. S. 261.

Plaintiff, station agent of a railroad company, sues the company in damages for breach of an alleged contract in failing to furnish a train for an excursion. Upon correspondence had, the company supposed the train was intended for a third party and agreed to supply it on certain terms, but afterwards refused on discovering that plaintiff was attempting to procure it for his own benefit. Held, that plaintiff could not from his fiduciary relation towards the company enter into a binding contract with it for such purpose, unless it agreed thereto after being fully advised of all the circumstances. Pegram v. R. Co., 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 470; s. c., 84 N. Car. 696; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 639.

The most open, ingenuous, and disinterested dealing is required of a confidential agent, and there must be an unambiguous relinquishment of his agency before he can acquire a personal interest in the subject of it. Bartholomew v. Leech, 7 Watts (Pa.), 472.

In the employment of an agent the principal bargains for the disinterested skill, diligence, and zeal of the agent for his own exclusive benefit. There rests upon one becoming agent the duty of fidelity to his employer's interest, and of acting for the furtherance and advancement of the business in which he engages, and not in its injury. Where a confidential agent of one having a lease of a theatre, who, from his position, was well acquainted with the profits of his principal in the use of the building, and who knew, some months before the old lease expired, that the latter was desirous of renewing his lease, offered privately to lease the theatre of the owner, proposing to give a larger rental than was reserved in the old lease, and denied to his principal that he was competing with him for the lease, but in fact did procure a lease to be made to himself, it was held, that the benefit of such lease a court of equity would hold to inure to his principal, and that the agent would be held to hold the same as a trustee for his principal. Davis v. Hamlin, 108 Ill. 39; s. c., 48 Am. Rep. 541; Gower v. Andrew, 59 Cal. 119; s. c., 43 Am. Rep. 242.

A authorized B to manage her lands, and, while he was thus acting, wrote asking him what he would give for the property. He offered her $6000, and she accepted the offer and conveyed the property to him. Before he made the offer C had talked of purchasing a part of the land for $6000, and, before B sent the money to A, had offered to pay him that amount, and $250 for his trouble in the matter. C told B that if he did not accept the offer he would give $3000 for they may not deal with themselves to the detriment of the other stockholders for whom they are acting.<sup>1</sup>

the whole property. B never informed A of the offer. Held, that A could rescind the sale to B. Savage v. Savage, 12 Oregon, 459. See Mason v. Bauman, 62 Ill. 76; Bain v. Brown, 56 N. Y. 285.

If an agent discovers a defect in a title of his principal to land, he cannot misuse the discovery to acquire a title for himself; and if he does he will be held as a trustee holding for his principal. Ringo v. Binns, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 269; Fisher v. Krutz, 9 Kans. 501; Galbraith v. Elder, 8 Watts (Pa.), 281; Cleavinger v. Reimar, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 486; Cumberland Coal Co. v. Sherman, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 553; Rogers v. Lockett, 28 Ark. 290.

Plaintiff, a timber broker in New York, having learned that a company required a large number of piles and were about to advertise for bids from timber merchants to supply them, visited the several dealers therein in New York and Brooklyn, among them the defendants, obtained prices, and, under the inducement that he would act for them respectively in procuring a sale, obtained a promise from each that if he secured a sale for such dealer he should receive an agreed commission. Plaintiff did not inform the dealers of the name of the intended purchaser, or that a contract could be obtained only by competitive bidding, or that he had effected a similar understanding with other dealers. The company issued proposals, and sent to said dealers, including defendants, invitations to compete for the contract. Plaintiff, defendants, and other dealers submitted bids for the contract, which was awarded to defendants. In an action to recover the agreed commission wherein the above facts appeared, held, that plaintiff was properly nonsuited; that there was no consideration for the agreement; also that there was a suppression of material facts on the part of plaintiff in making the contract; and that it was against good morals, as plaintiff owed duties to different principals, which were conflict-and incapable of faithful performance by the same person; also held, that the proof failed to show any service rendered by plaintiff to defendant in effecting the sale. Murray v. Beard, 102 N. Y. 505.

Where an agent of a railroad company is charged with the duty of selecting a route or line of railway, he cannot in disregard of the interests of the company select a particular route for a commission received from third parties. Holliday v. Davis, 5 Oregon, 40.

A person who is acting as agent for a woman, being intrusted by her with moneys to lend out, and with the general management of her business; and who, being financially embarrassed and on the eve of bankruptcy, without informing her of his pecuniary condition, procures from her a new power of attorney, which she signs without reading it, and without knowledge of its purpose, nature and extent, authorizing him to foreclose a mortgage which he had taken to secure her money loaned, "or to extend the time of payment, or to negotiate or leave the same as collateral security, to enable him to raise money for the purpose of putting the same in his business, or any other purpose he may see proper to use said money so raised,"—is guilty of an abuse of the confidence reposed in him; the general terms employed in the power of attorney, so far from conferring any advantage on him, or protecting his subsequent acts as agent, rather cast suspicion on them; and if those acts are prejudicial to his principal, a court of equity will not hesitate to grant relief against them. Whelan v. McCreary, 64 Ala. 319.

1. Meeker v. Winthrop Iron Co., 17 Fed. Rep. 48; Cook v. Berlin Woolen Mill Co., 43 Wis. 433; Robinson v. Smith, 3 Paige, 222; s. c., 24 Am. Dec. 212; Percy v. Millaudon, 3 La. 568; Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312. Parker v. Nickerson, 112 Mass. 195; Gardner v. Butler, 30 N. J. Eq. 702; Brewster v. Stratman, 4 Mo. App. 41. See also Bent v. Priest, 10 Mo. App. 543; Parker v. Nickerson, 112 Mass. 195; Chamberlain v. Pacific Wool Growing Co., 54 Cal. 103. Compare Beatty v. Northwestern Transportation Co., 6 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 315, and note, where all the authorities are collected, and also s. c.; reversed on appeal, 10 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 263.

Officers of corporations cannot act for themselves and for the corporation they represent. So an officer of a bank empowered to certify checks cannot certify his own checks. Claffin v. Farmers' Bank, 25 N. Y. 293; Titus v. Great Western Turnpike, 5 Lans. (N. Y.) 250; N. Y. Cent. Ins. Co. v. Nat. Prot. Ins. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 468; People v. Overysse, 11 Mich. 222; Lloyd v. Colston, 5 Bush (Ky.) 587; Mullen v. Keetzleb, 7 Bush. (Ky.) 253.

But the president of a company, knowing that the stock of his company is worth more than market price, may buy such

Fiduciary Relations.—Whenever one person is placed in such relation to another by the act or consent of that other, or the act of a third person, or of the law, that he becomes interested for him, or interested with him, in any subject of property or business, he is prohibited from acquiring rights in that subject antagonistic to the person with whose interests he has become associated.<sup>1</sup>

Purchasing Agent may not Buy his own Property.—A person acting as purchasing agent for another cannot buy his own property for his principal.<sup>2</sup> stock of a stockholder who has no such knowledge at market price, without disclosing the facts. There is no such fiduciary relation between them as to make the sale void in the absence of fraud. Commissioners of Tippecanoe v. Reynolds, 44 Ind. 509.

Selling Agent cannot Buy himself.—An agent with power to sell cannot himself become the purchaser of his principal's property.

1. Devall v. Burbridge, 4 Watts & S. (Pa.) 305; Hill v. Frazier, 22 Pa. St. 320; Bennett v. Van Syckel, 4 Duer (N. Y.), 462; Case v. Carroll, 35 N. Y. 385; Smeltzer v. Lombard, 57 Iowa, 294; Fairman v. Bavin, 29 Ill. 75; Gilman, etc., R. Co. v. Kelly, 77 Ill. 426; Davis v. Hamlin, 108 Ill. 39; s. c., 48 Am. Rep. 541; Eldridge v. Walker, 60 Ill. 230; Freeman v. Hartman, 45 Ill. 57; Gillenwaters v. Miller, 49 Miss. 150; Greenfield Sav. Bank v. Simons, 133 Mass. 415; Grumley v. Webb, 44 Mo. 444; Cadwallader v. West, 48 Mo. 483; Peckham Iron Co. v. Harper, 41 Ohio St. 100; Porter v. Woodruff, 36 N. J. Eq. 174; Haynie v. Johnston, 71 Ind. 394; Dieringer v. Meyer, 42 Wis. 311; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 415; Wilber v. Hough, 49 Cal. 290.

An executor, assignee, or guardian cannot purchase at private sale the property of his cestui que trust; but in the absence of fraud a purchase by him at an auction sale will be valid. Chorpening's Appeal, 32 Pa. St. 315; Fisher's Appeal, 34 Pa. St. 29.

And where there are two trustees, one cannot sell and the other buy such property. Davone v. Fanning, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 261; Gaines v. Allen, 58 Mo. 537; Wade v. Harper, 3 Yerg. 353.

Where persons have formed an association, or are dealing in contemplation of one, then they stand in a confidential relation to each other and to all who may subsequently become members, and they cannot purchase any property and sell it to the company at an advance without a full disclosure of all the facts. If they do so, the company may compel them to account for the profit. Densmore Oil Co.

v. Densmore, 64 Pa. St. 43; Short v. Stevenson, 63 Pa. St. 95; and see Wilson v. Wilson, 4 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 621; Colt v. Clapp, 127 Mass. 476; Uhler v. Semple, 5 C. E. Green, 288. See also FIDUCIARY RELATIONS.

2. Story's Eq. Jur. §§ 315, 316; Story on Agency, § 9; Conkey v. Bond, 36 N. Y. 427; Taussig v. Hart, 58 N. Y. 425; Tewksbury v. Spruance, 75 Ill. 187; Ely v. Hanford, 65 Ill. 267; Beal v. McKiernan, 6 La. (O. S.) 407; Keighler v. Savage Mfg. Co., 12 Md. 383; s. c., 71 Am. Dec. 600; Bischoffsheim v. Baltzer, 20 Fed. Repr. 890.

A factor who has been intrusted to insure cannot be himself the insurer. If he insures himself he can recover no premiums, but will be liable in case of loss for not obeying instructions. Keane v. Branden, 12 La. Ann. 20.

3. Eldredge v. Walker, 60 Ill. 230; Kerfoot v. Hyman, 52 Ill. 512; Copeland v. Mercantile Ins. Co., 6 Pick. (Mass.) 198; Remick v. Butterfield, 31 N. H. 70; Martin v. Moulton, 8 N. H. 504; Bank v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 16 Wis. 609; Cook v. Berlin Woolen Mills Co., 43 Wis. 433; Stewart v. Mather, 32 Wis. 344; Taussig v. Hart, 49 N. Y. 301, 58 N. Y. 425; Bain v. Brown, 56 N. Y. 285; Cumberland Coal Co. v. Sherman, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 553; Ruckman v. Bergholz, 37 N. J. L. 437; Tynes v. Grimstead, 1 Tenn. Ch. 508; Parker v. Vose, 45 Me. 54; White v. Ward, 26 Ark. 445; Clute v. Barron, 2 Mich. 192; Ames v. Port Huron, etc., Co., 11 Mich. 146; Scott v. Mann, 36 Tex. 257; Ingle v. Hartmann, 37 Iowa, 274; Keighler v. Savage Mfg. Co., 12 Md. 383; s. c., 71 Am. Dec. 600; Marsh v. Whitmore, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 178; Jeffries v. Wiester, 2 Sawy. (U. S.) 135.

An agent having charge of lands cannot by a purchase of a tax-sale certificate from the county for those lands make himself the owner of the land as against

May Buy Direct from Principal.—An agent may, however, buy directly from a principal who acts with full knowledge, and his principal. Fisher v. Krutz, 9 Kans. 501; Murdoch v. Milner, 84 Mo. 96; Bartholomew v. Leech, 7 Watts (Pa.), 172. See also Oldhams v. Jones, 5 B. Mon. (Ky.) 458; Schedda v. Sawyer, 4 McLean (U. S.), 181; Morris v. Joseph, 1 W. Va. 256; Grumley v. Webb, 44 Mo. 444.

The rule also applies to public officers. People v. Township Board, 11 Mich. 222.

An agent having control of real estate, renting it out, collecting the rents, paying taxes and insurance, and having power to sell, cannot himself become the purchaser of the property at a sale under a mortgage, and hold it against his principal; especially where, by private agreement with the mortgagee, he induces the latter not to bid against him. Adams v. Sayre, 70 Ala. 318.

An agent employed to take care of and manage his principal's property cannot acquire any title thereto by purchase at sheriff's sale, as against his principal, while such relation exists. Fountain Coal Co. v. Phelps, 95 Ind. 271; Fisher v. Krutz, 9 Kans. 501; Bowman v. Officer, 53 Iowa, 640; Rogers v. Lockett, 28 Ark. 290.

The clerk of an agent to sell lands, who is employed or concerned in the affairs of the seller relating to the property, is alike with the agent prohibited from purchasing; and if he does so, the seller may compel him to reconvey the lands or account for their proceeds. Gardner v. Ogden, 22 N. Y. 327; s. c., 78 Am. Dec. 192; Lingke v. Wilkinson, 57 N. Y. 445; Cheeseman v. Sturges, 9 Bosw. (N. Y.) 246; Levy v. Brush, 8 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 418; Newcomb v. Brooks, 16 W. Va. 32.

An executor charged with the sale of lands to pay a debt may not purchase such lands for himself on execution sale against the testator. Marshall v. Carson, 38 N. J. Eq. 250; s. c., 48 Am. Rep. 319. See Lytle v. Beveridge, 58 N. Y. 592; Fulton v. Whitney, 66 N. Y. 548; Parkhurst v. Alexander, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 394; Davone v. Fanning, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 252; Moore v. Moore, 5 N. Y. 256; Gardner v. Ogden, 22 N. Y. 327; s. c., 78 Am. Dec. 192; People v. Open Board of S. B. B. Co., 92 N. Y. 98; Ives v. Ashley, 97 Mass. 198; Greene v. Haskell, 5 R. I. 447; Kruse v. Stefens, 47 Ill. 112; Walker v. Palmer, 24 Ala. 358; Shannon v. Marmaduke, 14 Tex. 247; Staats v. Bergen, 17 N. J. Eq. 297, 554; Piatt v. Longworth, 27 Ohio

St. 159; Massie v. Watts, 6 Cranch. (U. S.) 148; Baker v. Whiting, 3 Sumner (U. S.), 475; Bradley v. Tarwell, 1 Holmes (U. S.), 433; Michoud v. Girod, 4 How. (U. S.) 503; Marsh v. Whitmore, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 178.

A purchase by the selling agent, although made at auction, for full value and by perfectly fair means, will be set aside upon application of the principal if made promptly. Scott v. Freeland, 15 Miss. 409; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 310; Brothers v. Brothers, 7 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 150; Patton v. Thompson, 2 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 285; Mason v. Martin, 4 Md. 124; Martin v. Martin, 12 Ind. 266; Newcomb v. Brooks, 16 W. Va. 32.

Even where he is empowered to sell at a stipulated price. Ruckman v. Bergholz, 37 N. J. L. 437; Porter v. Woodruff, 36 N. J. Eq. 174; Peckham Iron Co. v. Harper, 41 Ohio St. 100.

And where he sells to himself for the minimum price fixed by the principal he will be liable for the difference between market value and value paid by him. Greenfield Sav. Bank v. Simons, 133 Mass. 415.

The principal, seeking to set aside the agent's purchase at the mortgage sale, will be required, at least, to refund the purchase-money paid, with interest, moneys expended in repairs and permanent improvements, taxes, and other lawful charges, with interest thereon; while the agent will be required to account for rents and profits, or, if in possession, for use and occupation, as of the value of the property when he took possession, not estimating the increased value by reason of his improvements. The agent having become the purchaser at a mortgage sale, and claiming to hold possession in his own right, he is not entitled, as against his principal seeking to set aside the sale and to redeem, to compensation for his management of the property during such possession, nor for attorney's fees and costs incurred in ejecting a defaulting tenant. Adams v. Sayre, 76 Ala. 509.

An agent cannot in general be allowed to purchase an interest in property where he has a duty to perform which is inconsistent with the character of a purchaser. Grumley v. Webb, 44 Mo. 444.

Where the owner of certain real estate gives authority to an agent to sell the same, and such agent, without the knowledge or consent of his principal, enters into a contract with a person who is a

where there is no concealment or deception on the part of the agent.<sup>1</sup> partner of the agent in the purchase and sale of such property to sell the property to such person, held, that such contract of purchase and sale will not be specifically enforced as against the owner of the land. Fry v. Platt, 32 Kans. 62; Francis v. Kerker, 85 Ill. 190. See Reimers v. Richter, 2 Rob. (N. Y.) 11.

Where an agent to sell enters into a contract with one desiring to buy, that he will introduce him to the vendor and promote the sale if he will subsequently sell him part of the property at an agreed price, such contract is invalid and cannot be enforced. Smith v. Townsend, 109 Mass. 500; Hughes v. Washington, 72 Ill. 84.

When an agent having control of his principal's property, with power to rent or sell, becomes the purchaser at a sale under a mortgage, his purchase is not void, but, like a purchase by a mortgagee at his own sale, is voidable merely at the option of his principal, seasonably expressed; and when the principal seeks to set it aside, he will be required to do equity. Adams v. Sayre, 76 Ala. 509; Eastern Bank v. Taylor, 41 Ala. 93; Bassett v. Brown, 105 Mass. 551; Wadsworth v. Gay, 118 Mass. 44; Uhlich v. Muhlke, 61 Ill. 499; Leach v. Fowler, 22 Ark. 143; Greenwood v. Spring, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 375; Marsh v. Whitmore, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 178.

The agent of a bank selling property which had been pledged to the bank for a loan may purchase such property if he pays a sufficient sum to discharge the lien; and he will not be held responsible to the bank for any profit he may make out of the sale. Smith v. Lansing, 22 N. Y. 520; Cumberland Co. v. Sherman, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 553.

1. Uhlich v. Muhlke, 61 Ill. 499; Buell v. Buckingham, 16 Iowa, 284; Ingle v. Hartman, 37 Iowa, 274; Michoud v. Girod, 4 How. (U. S.) 503; Jeffries v. Wiester, 2 Sawy. (U. S.) 135; Keighler v. Savage Mfg. Co., 12 Md. 383; s. c., 71 Am. Dec. 600; Fisher's Appeal, 34 Pa. St. 29. See Jenkins v. Einstein, 3 Biss. (U. S.) 128.

The agent is required not only to state to the principal that he has an interest in the purchase, but must disclose all facts concerning it; and under such circumstances the burden of proof for perfect fairness is upon the agent, and in the absence of such proof courts of equity will treat the case as one of constructive fraud. Brock v. Barnes, 40 Barb. (N.

Y.) 521; Brown v. Post, 1 Hun (N. Y.), 304; Nesbitt v. Lockman, 34 N. Y. 167; Holdridge v. Gillespie, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 30; Reed v. Warner, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 650; Lawrence v. Maxwell, 6 Lans. (N. Y.) 469; Taussig v. Hart, 49 N. Y. 301; Conditt v. Blackwell, 22 N. J. Eq. 481; Cook v. Berlin Woolen Mill Co., 43 Wis. 433; Collins v. Case, 23 Wis. 230; Stewart v. Mather, 32 Wis. 344; Ingle v. Hartman, 37 Iowa, 274; Persch v. Quiggle, 57 Pa. St. 247; Beeson v. Beeson, 9 Pa. St. 279; Bartholomew v. Leach, 7 Watts (Pa.), 472; Uhlich v. Muhlke, 61 Ill. 499; Rubidoux v. Parks, 48 Cal. 215; Mott v. Harrington, 12 Vt. 199; Smith v. Townsend, 109 Mass. 500; Mills v. Mills, 26 Conn. 213; Armstrong v. Elliott, 29 Mich. 485; Lafferty v. Jelly, 22 Ind. 471; Ackenburgh v. McCool, 36 Ind. 473; Leake v. Sutherland, 25 Ark. 219; White v. Ward, 26 Ark. 445; Grumley v. Webb, 44 Mo. 444; Gaines v. Allen, 58 Mo. 537; Provost v. Gratz, 6 Wheat. (U. S.) 481; Baker v. Whiting, 3 Sumner (U. S.), 475; Comstock v. Ames, 1 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 411; Dunne v. English, L. R. 18 Eq. 524.

Where one, while occupying the relation of general confidential business agent of another, is requested by the latter to find a purchaser at a fixed price for certain land, but being unable to do so proposes to buy the property himself at that price, at the same time communicating to his principal all the facts within his knowledge about the land and its value, misrepresenting or concealing nothing, and a sale is accordingly made to him, the price paid being at the time a fair one, such sale is valid. Rochester v. Levering, 104 Ind. 562.

And where he buys himself with knowledge of the principal, and it appeared that the price paid was grossly inadequate, it was held that a court of equity will conclusively presume undue influence and imposition, and will set aside the sale. Ferguson v. Dent, 24 Fed. R. 412.

A principal cannot acquiesce in the purchase of his property by his agent until he knows that such purchase has been made, and the onus of showing it is upon the agent. Fountain Coal Co. v. Phelps, 95 Ind. 271.

But if A and B own a mine and authorize C to sell it for them, or bring them a purchaser at a fixed price, with the understanding that C is to have all he can get above that price, C may make the best bargain he can with any one; he

Agent to Buy may not Buy for himself.—An agent with power to buy may not purchase for himself. A purchase by an agent in his own name, in matters within the purposes of his agency, creates a constructive trust for the principal. Such a trust is not within the statute of frauds, but may be proven by parol.<sup>1</sup> may purchase it himself, and is under no obligation to disclose to A and B anything that he may have discovered concerning the mine after such arrangement is made. Synnott v. Shaughnessey, 7 Pac. Repr. (Idaho) 82.

A gift from a principal to an agent is subject to the same principle. The agent will be held to prove that his principal acted with full knowledge of facts and due deliberation, and under the advice of others than that of the grantee. Uhlich v. Muhlike, 61 Ill. 499; Neilson v. Bowman, 29 Gratt. (Va.) 732; Rubidoux v. Parks, 48 Cal. 215.

1. McMurry v. Mobley, 39 Ark. 309; Wellford v. Chancellor, 5 Gratt. (Va.) 39; Reed v. Warner, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 650; Church v. Sterling, 16 Conn. 388; Matthews v. Light, 32 Me. 305; Firestone v. Firestone, 49 Ala. 128; Switzer v. Skiles, 8 Ill. 529; s. c., 44 Am. Dec. 723; Von Hurter v. Spengeman, 17 N. J. Eq. 185; Wolford v. Herrington, 74 Pa. St. 311; Eshleman v. Lewis, 49 Pa. St. 410; Rose v. Hayden, 35 Kans. 106; Fisher v. Krutz, 9 Kans. 501; Ringo v. Binns, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 269; Barziza v. Story, 39 Tex. 354.

Where an agent, under the instructions of his principal, purchases property in his own name, the principal is entitled to all the profit arising from the transaction. Nat. Bank v. Seward, 106 Ind. 264.

Where one acting as agent of the owner purchases a tax certificate for land sold at tax sale, and afterward receives the tax deed in his own name, he will be held a trustee for the owner and compelled to account for net rents and profits received, and the deed will be cancelled on payment of his outlay. Collins v. Rainey, 42 Ark. 531; Continental L. Ins. Co. v. Perry, 65 Iowa, 709; Woodman v. Davis, 32 Kans. 344.

A party charged with the payment of the taxes on land, as agent, cannot acquire a tax title to his principal's land, either by purchasing the land himself at tax sale, or by the assignment to him of a certificate of purchase obtained by another; nor can he, by assigning his certificates, confer upon his assignee any greater rights than he himself has. Ellsworth v. Cordrey, 63 Iowa, 675; Bowman v. Officer, 53 Iowa, 640; Franks v. Morris, 9 W. Va. 664; Barton v. Moss, 32

Ill. 50; Matthews v. Light, 32 Me. 305; Huzzard v. Trego, 35 Pa. St. 9; Bartholomew v. Leech, 7 Watts (Pa.), 472; Curtis v. Cissna, 7 Biss. (U. S.) 260.

When an attorney at law buys in a title outstanding or adverse to land as to which he has been consulted or employed, he buys for his client, if the client elect to take it. Smith v. Brotherline, 62 Pa. St. 461.

Authority to an agent to purchase a certain mare for his principal at limited price will not justify the agent in sending a third person to buy it, and then buying it of him at an advance, though within the prescribed limit. Armstrong v. Elliott, 29 Mich. 485.

But he must be actually employed to buy. Ascertaining the amount of taxes due upon a certain piece of land by request of the owner does not make one an agent so as to charge him with fraud in buying the same for himself for less than half value. Collar v. Ford, 45 Iowa, 331.

A, for a sum of money to be paid him by B, agreed to assist in finding a person who would advance money to enable B to buy land which he had formerly owned, but which had passed into the hands of the mortgagee by the foreclosure of a mortgage thereon. B, relying upon A's agreement, abstained to some extent, though not entirely, from trying to get the money elsewhere. A also dissuaded him from seeking such other assistance, with the secret intent to get the land himself; and bought the land on his own behalf with his own money, and took a conveyance of it to himself. Held, that these facts did not disclose enough to make A a trustee for B, on the grounds either of agency or of fraud. Collins v. Sullivan, 135 Mass. 461.

Where a man employs an agent by parol to buy land, and the agent buys it for himself and denies the trust, and no part of the purchase-money is paid by the principal, and there is no written agreement, he cannot compel the agent to convey the land to him. Kendall v. Mann, 11 Allen (Mass.), 15; Davis v. Wetherell, 11 Allen (Mass.), 19; Barnard v. Jewett, 97 Mass. 87; Fickett v. Durham, 109 Mass. 419; Parsons v. Phelan, 134 Mass. 109; Collins v. Sullivan, 135 Mass. 461. Compare McMurry v. Mobley, 39 Ark. 309.

All Profits belong to Principal.—All the profits an agent may make out of the subject-matter of the agency belong to the principal. So where he invests property of the principal in his own name.<sup>1</sup>

An agent to buy or sell may make no profits out of the purchases or sales.<sup>2</sup>

1. Nat. Bank v. Seward, 106 Ind. 264; Lafferty v. Jelly, 22 Ind. 471; Ack-enburgh v. McCool, 36 Ind. 473; Love v. Hoss, 62 Ind. 255; Dutton v. Willner, 52 N. Y. 312; Wilson v. Wilson, 4 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 621; Bain v. Brown, 56 N. Y. 285; Porter v. Woodruff, 36 N. J. Eq. 174; Dodd v. Wakeman, 26 N. J. Eq., 484; Oliver v. Piatt, 3 How. (U. S.) 333; Jeffries v. Wiester, 2 Sawy. (U. S.) 135; Stoner v. Weiser, 24 Iowa, 434; Smith v. Stephenson, 45 Iowa, 645; Bell v. Bell, 3 W. Va. 183; Moore v. Mandlebaum, 8 Mich. 433; Segar v. Edwards, 11 Leigh. (Va.) 213; Kerfoot v. Hyman, 52 Ill. 512; Barton v. Moss, 32 Ill. 50; Mason v. Bauman, 62 Ill. 76; Byrd v. Hughes, 84 Ill. 174; Ely v. Hanford, 65 Ill. 267; Judevine v. Hardwick, 49 Vt. 180; Campbell v. Penna. Life Ins. Co., 2 Whart. (Pa.) 53; Bartholomew v. Leach, 7 Watts (Pa.), 472; Norris' Appeal, 71 Pa. St. 106; Coursin's Appeal, 79 Pa. St. 220; Leake v. Sutherland, 25 Ark. 219; Rhea v. Puryear, 26 Ark. 344; White v. Ward, 26 Ark. 445; Greenfield Savings Bank v. Simons, 133 Mass. 415; Whelan v. McCreary, 64 Ala. 319; Clark v. Anderson, 10 Bush (Ky.), 99; Krutz v. Fisher, 8 Kans. 90; Moinett v. Day, 57 Tenn. 431; Kent v. Priest, 86 Mo. 476; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Kindred, 14 Fed. Repr. 77.

An agent cannot exact from his principal any advantage growing out of a contract made by the agent in his principal's name, unless the principal has expressly authorized or ratified it, with knowledge that such advantage would accrue. Vreeland v. Van Blarcom, 35 N. J. Eq. 530.

Even though the agent may have contributed his own funds and responsibility in producing the result, and the principal had run no risk. Dutton v. Willner, 52 N. Y. 312.

Where an agent, who in the course of his dealings with his principal had frequently made advances to him, took up some outstanding notes of his principal, it was held that he was not entitled to the benefit of a mortgage securing these and other notes, because these notes must be considered as having been paid at maturity by the maker. Turnbull v. Thomas, 1 Hugh (U. S.), 172.

Where an agent, in violation of his trust, uses the money of his principal in the purchase of property, the law implies a trust in favor of the principal, and equity will subject such property to the latter's claim as against either a volunteer or a fraudulent grantee. Riehl v. Evansville F. Assoc., 104 Ind. 70.

Where a trustee speculates with trust funds, the profits will belong to the cestui que trust. Norris' Appeal, 71 Pa. St. 106; Bond v. Lockwood, 33 Ill. 212; Bank of America v. Pollock, 4 Edw. Ch. N. Y. 215; Pugh v. Pugh, 9 Ind. 132; Newton v. Porter, 69 N. Y. 133; s. c., 25 Am. R. 152; Bent v. Priest, 86 Mo. 476; Taylor v. Plumer, 3 M. & S. 562. See also TRUSTEES.

2. Ely v. Hanford, 65 Ill. 267; Cotton v. Holliday, 59 Ill. 176; Mason v. Bauman, 62 Ill. 76; Collins v. Case, 23 Wis. 230.

As by selling for a higher price than he accounts for to the principal. Schoellkopf v. Leonard, 6 Pac. Repr. (Colo.) 209.

Where a broker sold stock for his principal and remitted a smaller amount than he had actually received for it, although the principal, under the impression that the smaller amount was the highest market price, had consented to sell for that amount, it was held that he could recover from the broker the price actually received by him. Cutter v. Demmon, 111 Mass. 474.

An owner of real estate appointed an agent to sell it at not less than a certain price, agreeing that if during a certain period the agent would furnish a buyer at such price, he should be paid by said owner a certain per cent commission on the amount for which the property should be sold. The agent sold for a better price. In a suit by the principal against the agent to recover a portion of the price retained by the agent in addition to such commission, held, that if said agent, acting under such appointment, received a more advantageous offer than he was so authorized to accept, it was his duty to communicate the offer so received to his principal, and not to purposely conceal it from him; and that if, so acting as agent, he effected a better trade than he was so authorized to make, said owner was entitled to the benefit of the trade, and was bound to the agent only for his commission, and not for any surplus of the price received above the amount which the agent was so authorized to accept. Blanchard v. Jones, 101 Ind. 542; Kerfoot v. Hyman, 52 Ill. 512; Merryman v. David, 31 Ill. 404; Bain v. Brown, 56 N. Y. 285.

Cannot Act for Both Parties.—An agent cannot make a valid contract where in the same transaction he acts as agent for both parties.<sup>1</sup>

Where an agent who has purchased property for his principal, as authorized, defrauds the latter by representing that he paid a greater price than he in fact did pay, this does not entitle the principal to surrender the property to the agent and recover of him the whole purchase-price; he can simply recover the damages sustained by reason of the fraud. So also where an agent, in violation of his duty, knowingly pays a greater price than the property could have been purchased for, he is liable only for the enhanced price so paid, or, in case he received from the vendor a compensation for effecting the sale, for the amount so received. McMillan v. Arthur, 98 N. Y. 167.

But where a principal employs an agent to buy certain property, promising to give him a specified price for it, no matter what the agent pays for it, the agent is entitled to the profits when he buys for less. Anderson v. Weiser, 24 Iowa, 428.

1. New York Cent. Ins. Co. v. Nat. Prot. Ins. Co. 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 468; Watkins v. Cousall, 1 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 65; Price v. Keyes, 62 N. Y. 378; Pugsley v. Murray, 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 245; Levy v. Loeb, 85 N. Y. 365; Bennett v. Kidder, 5 Daly (N. Y.), 512; Raisin v. Clark, 41 Md. 158; s. c. 20 Am. Rep. 66; Hinckley v. Arey, 27 Me. 362; Meyer v. Hanchett, 39 Wis. 419; s. c., 43 Wis. 246; Walworth v. Farmers' Co., 16 Wis. 629; Ballston Spa Bank v. Marine Bank, 16 Wis. 120; Everhart v. Searle, 71 Pa. St. 256; Lloyd v. Colston, 5 Bush (Ky.), 587; Farnsworth v. Heimert, 1 Allen (Mass.), 494; s. c., 79 Am. Dec. 756; Walker v. Osgood, 98 Mass. 348; Rice v. Wood, 113 Mass. 133; Lynch v. Fallon, 11 R. I. 311; Summer v. Charlotte, etc., R. Co., 78 N. Car. 289; Mercantile Ins. Co. v. Hope Ins. Co., 8 Mo. App. 408.

He cannot act for himself and for his principal in the same transaction, as by signing as agent a receipt for money due his principal individually. Neuendorff v. World, etc., L. I. Co., 69 N. Y. 389.

Such a contract will not be absolutely void, but voidable. Greenwood v. Spring, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 375.

And it will not be a defence for the agent in an action by one of the parties that he also was agent for the other party. Cotton v. Holliday, 59 Ill. 176.

An agreement between the agent of one party and another party, desiring to enter into a contract with the first party, to pay the agent a commission if he induces his principal to enter into the contract is void, although the agent acted fairly toward his principal. Bollman v. Loomis, 41 Conn. 581; Atlee v. Fink, 75 Mo. 100; Byrd v. Hughes, 84 Ill. 174; Holcomb v. Weaver, 136 Mass. 265.

Purchasers obtaining a contract for the sale of land through a real-estate broker who with their knowledge and in collusion with them has concealed material facts from his principal, or exerted his skill in the negotiation against his principal, cannot in equity enforce the contract; and such contract will be set aside. Young v. Hughes, 32 N. J. Eq. 372.

And in cases of doubt the courts will always assume that only one principal is responsible for the acts of the agent. So where an express company receives goods directed to the express care of its agent at a specified place, it will be assumed that the shipper intended to make such agent his own agent for receiving the goods; and the express company is discharged from responsibility in delivering the goods to such agent. Fitzsimmons v. Southern Expr. Co., 40 Ga. 330; s. c., 2 Am. Rep. 577.

A priest had some money to loan. A owned some property mortgaged for $2700. Wishing to borrow some more, he applied to a banker, who negotiated a loan from the priest of $3500, with which the existing mortgages should be paid off, and which should be secured by a first mortgage. All the mortgages were paid off except one for $556 when the banker failed. Held, that the loss fell on A, the banker being A's agent, not the priest's. Engleman v. Reuse, 28 N. Western Repr. (Mich.) 149.

When the act of the agent is merely to bring the parties together and he takes no part in the negotiations, he may accept a commission of both. Rupp v. Sampson, 16 Gray (Mass.), 398; Siegel v. Gould, 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 177; Mullen v. Keetzleb, 7

Consent of Both Parties.—But where each of the principals consents or has notice that the agent acts in a dual capacity, the disability will be waived.<sup>1</sup>

Bush (Ky.), 253; Collins v. Fowler, 8 Mo. App. 588; Orton v. Scofield, 61 Wis. 382; Barry v. Schmidt, 57 Wis. 172; Meyer v. Hanchett, 39 Wis. 419; s. c., 43 Wis. 246.

The maxim that "no man shall serve two masters" does not prevent the same person from acting as agent, for certain purposes, of two or more parties to the same transaction when their interests do not conflict, and where loyalty to the one is not a breach of duty to the other. Nolte v. Hulbert, 37 Ohio St. 445.

An agent merely for the care and custody of property may act as agent for an insurance company in issuing a policy of insurance on the property. The two capacities are not necessarily inconsistent. Northrop v. German F. Ins. Co., 48 Wis. 420; s. c., 33 Am. Rep. 815.

Where a contract between a coal company and a railroad company provided that the latter should transfer the coal of the former and deliver it on board boats according to orders given by the coal company to persons for whom the coal was intended, but which orders were directed to the agent of the railroad, held, that such agent was not the agent of the coal company so as to bind the latter by his acts and declarations in the delivery of the coal. Kelly v. Lehigh Valley Coal Co., 8 Daly (N. Y.), 291.

Where parties sign an application for a loan, agreeing to pay all expenses, the person employed to negotiate the loan is the agent of the borrower, and notice to him of defects in the title is not notice to the lender. Thomas v. Desney, 57 Iowa, 58.

Where a note is made payable at a bank and the money deposited to pay it this does not make the bank the agent of the payee so as to make the bank liable to pay when the maker for any reason refuses to allow the officers to pay it over. Pease v. Warren, 29 Mich. 9.

But where the debtor has deposited a sum of money in a bank in payment of notes held by the bank for collection and the bank misappropriated the money, the bank was held to be the creditor's agent, and not the debtor's. Worley v. Moore, 77 Ind. 567.

1. Pugsley v. Murray, 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 245; Rowe v. Stevens, 53 N. Y. 621; Joslin v. Cowee, 52 N. Y. 90; Bell v. McConnell, 37 Ohio St. 396; Capiner

v. Hogan, 40 Ohio St. 203; Rolling Stock Co. v. Railroad, 34 Ohio St. 450; Alexander v. Northwestern, etc., University, 57 Ind. 466; Barry v. Schmidt, 57 Wis. 172; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 35; Meyer v. Hanchett, 39 Wis. 419; s. c., 43 Am. Rep. 246; Stewart v. Mather, 32 Wis. 344; Colwell v. Keystone Iron Co., 36 Mich. 51; Adams M. Co. v. Senter, 26 Mich. 73; Helmer v. Krollick, 36 Mich. 371; Fitzsimmons v. Southern Ex. Co., 40 Ga. 330; White v. Ward, 26 Ark. 445; Smith v. Townsend, 109 Mass. 500;

A person who voluntarily employs the agent of another knowing the fact of such existing agency is estopped from pleading the rule that the same person cannot be the agent of two principals having conflicting interests. Fitzsimmons v. Southern Ex. Co., 40 Ga. 330; s. c., 2 Am. Rep. 577.

If a principal, in authorizing an agent to make a purchase, also authorizes him to contract with the seller for a commission sufficient to pay him for his services, and the seller, knowing his relation to the purchaser, contracts to pay him a commission, he cannot afterwards avoid paying it on the ground that the contract was void, as being in violation of the good faith which an agent owes his principal. Leekins v. The Nordyke, etc., M. Co., 66 Iowa, 471.

When a professional land agent acts as agent for both the seller and the buyer, and that is known to them, the law exacts the most perfect good faith, honesty, and fairness on his part, and will not adjudge the specific performance of a contract thus made unless it has been entered into with perfect fairness and without misapprehension or misrepresentation. Morgan v. Hardy, 16 Neb. 427.

Where the general business agent of another is also the agent of an insurance company, and in the latter capacity writes insurance upon the property of his principal, but with such knowledge on the part of the company as would make the policies valid, or at most merely voidable, he is entitled to be reimbursed for the premiums paid by him. Rochester v. Levering, 104 Ind. 562.

An auctioneer is considered the agent of both parties, so as to bind either the buyer or seller by his memorandum. Johnson v. Buck, 35 N. J. L. 338; Morton v. Dean, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 385; Pike v. Balch, 38 Me. 302; s. c., 61 Am. Dec.

After Termination of Agency.—The rule that an agent cannot buy his principal's property does not apply where the agent acquires an interest in the property, after the termination of his agency, by subsequent contract with the purchaser at his sale. But when an agent is found, recently after his sale, to have acquired a beneficial interest in the property under the purchaser, a strong presumption of indirection and attempted evasion arises, which he is required to remove by good and convincing evidence.<sup>1</sup>

To Render Full Accounts of Receipts and Disbursements.—An agent is bound to account to his principal for money received by him in the course of his agency for goods sold by his principal on orders obtained by him as such agent on commission, although such sales as between the principal and purchaser be illegal and void.<sup>2</sup>

248; O'Donnell v. Leeman, 43 Me. 158; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 54; McComb v. Wright, 4 Johns Ch. (N. Y.) 659; Pugh v. Chisseldine, 11 Ohio, 109; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 414.

And he may lawfully enter a bid for the property he is selling in behalf of a third party. Scott v. Mann, 36 Tex. 157. See also AUCTIONS AND AUCTIONEERS.

A broker for the purpose of signing the memoranda of the sale is the agent of both parties to the contract which he makes; but in other respects he is only the agent of the party originally employing him. Schlesinger v. Texas, etc., R. Co., 87 Mo. 146.

Where a travelling agent sells a bill of goods to a customer and ordered the goods from his principal by letter he was held not to be the agent of the customer so as to comply with the requirements of the statute of frauds. Strong v. Dodds, 47 Vt. 348.

1. McGar v. Adams, 65 Ala. 106; Fountain Coal Co. v. Phelps, 95 Ind. 271; Bucher v. Bucher, 86 Ill. 377; Walker v. Carrington, 74 Ill. 446; Walker v. Derby, 5 Biss. (U. S.) 134; First Bank v. Bissell, 2 McCrary (U. S.), 73.

A mere formal surrender of the agency is not sufficient to give the agent a right to purchase. Fountain Coal Co. v. Phelps, 95 Ind. 271.

In Bartholomew v. Leech, 7 Watts, 472, it is said: "The most open, ingenuous, and disinterested dealing is required of a confidential agent while he consents to act as such; and there must be an unambiguous relinquishment of his agency before he can acquire a personal interest in the subject of it. To leave a doubt of his position in this respect is to turn himself into a trustee. It is unnecessary to recur to authority for a principle so familiar or so accordant with common honesty." Bowman v. Officer, 53 Iowa, 640.

The owner employed an agent to sell a tract of land, agreeing that if he would find a purchaser at a fixed price to pay him $500. The agent found a purchaser. Held, that as soon as the agent procured the purchaser his agency ceased, and his taking a retainer from the purchaser to see that the papers were properly prepared and executed presented no ground for defeating a recovery of the price agreed to be paid to him. Short v. Millard, 68 Ill. 292.

2. Baldwin v. Potter, 46 Vt. 402; Greentree v. Rosenstock, 61 N. Y. 583; Coit v. Stewart, 50 N. Y. 17; Whelan v. Lynch, 60 N. Y. 469; Terwilliger v. Beals, 6 Lans. (N. Y.) 403; Jackson v. Baker, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 183, note a; Coleman v. Pearce, 26 Minn. 123; Taul v. Edmondson, 37 Tex. 556; Monitor Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. Young, 111 Mass. 537; Heddens v. Younglove, 46 Ind. 212; Eaton v. Welton, 32 N. H. 352; Hemenway v. Hemenway, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 389; McVeigh v. Bank, 26 Gratt. (Va.) 188.

Where one receives money as the agent of another, the burden is on him, in an action to account therefor, to show that he repaid it to his principal, or otherwise disposed of it by the latter's direction. Young v. Powell, 87 Mo. 128.

Neither an agent nor a partner has any implied power to apply partnership moneys on private debts; and one who deals with an agent cannot, without the principal's authority or acquiescence, apply money due to the principal upon a private account with the agent. Chase v. Buhl Iron Works, 55 Mich. 139; Greenwood v. Burns, 50 Mo. 52.

A power to act for another, however general its terms or wide its scope, can-

Must Keep Regular Accounts.—And it is his duty to keep regular accounts of all his transactions, with suitable vouchers.<sup>1</sup>

Demand.—As a rule, a demand by the principal is necessary before he can bring suit against the agent for an accounting.<sup>2</sup> not be enlarged into a power to pervert funds coming into the agent's hands, without clear approval or ratification by the principal. Williams v. Whiting, 92 N. Car. 683.

Where a person is employed as an agent in the conduct of the financial part of the business of his principal, the relation is a fiduciary one in its character; and if the agent appropriates the property of his principal to his own use, or makes any profit to himself by virtue of his position, he must account therefor as for a trust. Upon bill in chancery by a principal against his agent to compel an accounting by the latter in respect of the business of his employment, and a surrender of property in his hands, it appeared there was an agreement whereby the defendant was to act as manager of the office part of the complainant's business (milling), except the running of the mill; to purchase grain, ship the product, make sale thereof, and do the banking and financial business,—all in defendant's name, but in fact taking no interest therein; to account therefor to the complainant, and upon a discontinuance of the employment to turn over and surrender to the principal all the money and other property, of every kind and nature, in his possession or under his control, belonging to the principal. It was held, this arrangement created a trust in the money and property of the principal or employer, of which the defendant became possessed under and by virtue of his employment. Weaver v. Fisher, 110 Ill. 146.

L. leased a number of machines, using (though not compelled to do so) a form of lease furnished by the plaintiff which provided that the machines should remain the property of the plaintiff until fully paid for by the lessee, and that all payments thereon should be made at the plaintiff's office in Milwaukee. After so leasing each machine, L. gave his notes therefor as provided by the contract. Upon ceasing to do business under the contract he delivered all leases then held by him to the plaintiff. Subsequently the plaintiff returned a part of such leases to him, requesting him to make collections thereon, which he was unable to do. Afterwards he offered to redeliver said leases to the plaintiff upon cancellation of his notes, but the plaintiff refused such offer. Held, that L. remained liable under the contract and on his notes for the leased machines, except so far as the plaintiff accepted any of the leases in discharge of the notes, and except that all collections made by the plaintiff on the leases would be available to L. by way of recoupment on the notes. Wheeler & W. Mfg. Co. v. Laus, 62 Wis. 635.

A principal furnished his agent with a certificate of membership of a board of trade to enable him to conduct the principal's business advantageously. The agent on the dissolution of the agency refused to transfer the certificate to his principal. Held, that equity would compel him to assign the certificate in blank and deliver the same to the principal. Weaver v. Fisher, 110 Ill. 146. See Western R. Co. v. Bayne, 75 N. Y. 1.

1. Zetelle v. Myers, 19 Gratt. (Va.) 62; Kerfoot v. Hyman, 52 Ill. 512; Chinn v. Chinn, 22 La. Ann. 599; Riley v. State, 32 Tex. 763; Peterson v. Poignard, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 309; Keighler v. Savage Mfg. Co., 12 Md. 383; s.c., 71 Am. Dec. 600; 1 Story on Eq. Jur. 468.

He is generally accountable only to his principal directly. 1 Pars. on Contr. 89; Evans on Agency (Ewell's Ed.), 248; Lake Erie R. Co. v. Eckler, 13 Ind. 67.

But in case of the death of the principal, to the administrator. Simmons v. Simmons, 33 Gratt. (Va.) 451.

And in case of joint principals the demand for an accounting must be made by them jointly; no one of them has a right to compel the agent to render a separate account to himself. Louisiana Trustees, etc., v. Dupuy, 31 La. Ann. 305.

2. Bedell v. Janney, 4 Gilm. (Ill.) 193; Armstrong v. Smith, 3 Blackf. (Ind.) 251; Hamilton v. Elkins, 46 Ind. 212; Heddens v. Younglove, 46 Ind. 212; Jett v. Hempstead, 25 Ark. 462; Whitehead v. Wells, 29 Ark. 462; Haas v. Damon, 9 Iowa, 589; Alexander v. Jones, 64 Iowa, 207; Cooley v. Betts, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 203; Taylor v. Bates, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 376; Sally v. Capps, 1 Ala. (N. S.) 121; Potter v. Sturges, 1 Dev. (N. Car.) 79; Waring v. Richardson, 11 Ired. L. (N. Car.) 77; Hutchins v. Gilman, 9 N. H. 359; Hall v. Pecks, 10 Vt. 474; Cockrill v. Kirkpatrick, 9 Mo. 697. Compare Leake v. Sutherland, 25 Ark. 219.

Interest.—Where the relation between agent and principal is of such a character that the agent will be bound to pay over the principal's money without previous demand, as where after the receipt of the money he fails to inform his principal, or where he uses it for his own profit, he will be liable for interest.<sup>1</sup>

To keep the Goods and Money of the Principal separate from his Own.—In all cases it is the duty of an agent to keep the property of his principal separate from his own and not to mix it with the latter; and if he does not keep it separate from his own and afterwards is unable to distinguish between the one and the other, the whole will be adjudged to belong to the principal.<sup>2</sup>

Where an agency is denied or repudiated, no demand upon the agent is necessary before suit brought. King v. Foscue, 91 N. Car. 116; Waddell v. Swann, 91 N. Car. 108; Tillotson v. McCrillis, 11 Vt. 477.

Or where the agent refuses or neglects to return an account. Haas v. Damon, 9 Iowa, 589; Clark v. Moody, 17 Mass. 145; Hill v. Hunt, 9 Gray (Mass.), 66; Wait v. Gibbs, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 146; Harvey v. Turner, 4 Rawle (Pa.), 223; Brown v. Arrott, 1 Miles (Pa.), 139; Witherup v. Hill, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 11; Chapman v. Shaw, 5 Greenl. (Me.) 59; Cooley v. Betts, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 203.

Nor is a demand necessary upon a foreign agent. Eaton v. Welton, 32 N. H. 352.

If a demand is required by the appointment, the demand must be conformed to the terms of the appointment.

Where, by the terms of a written contract, one P. constituted T. his agent to loan money and take securities for the payment of the same, and expressly provided that the authority could be revoked, at the request of P. in writing, held, that a demand for the securities in writing, signed by a party claiming to be an attorney of P. without an order in writing, or proof of his authority, was not sufficient to authorize P. to maintain an action for the face value of the securities. Tingley v. Parshall, 11 Neb. 443.

1. Dodge v. Perkins, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 368; Clark v. Moody, 17 Mass. 145; Anderson v. State, 2 Kelly (Ga.), 370; Bedell v. Janney, 4 Gilm. (Ill.) 193; Tuers v. Tuers, 100 N. Y. 196; Williams v. Storrs, 6 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 353; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 340; Reid v. Renselaer Glass Factory, 3 Cow. (N. Y.) 387; 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 527; Comegys v. State, 10 Gill. & J. (Md.) 175; Leake v. Sutherland, 25 Ark. 219; Clemens v. Caldwell, 7 B. Mon. (Ky.) 171.

Where, in order to meet the calls, in uncertain amounts, of his principal upon him, it is necessary that an agent—who, as it is received, mixes his principal's money with his own and uses it in his business—shall keep money available, he is not chargeable with the highest obtainable rate of interest on the sums remaining in his hands, but legal interest only. Rochester v. Levering, 104 Ind. 562.

Exemplary damages may be allowed where an agent by false and fraudulent representations to his principal obtains possession of his principal's goods and converts them to his own use. Peckham Iron Co. v. Harper, 41 Ohio St. 100.

The agent is entitled to a set-off for his commissions as well as for advances made or expenses incurred by him in the course of his agency. 2 Chitty on Contr. 917.

An agent or attorney who by virtue of a special authority has received money cannot, when sued by his principal, set off a debt due to himself in a matter not arising out of his agency. Tagg v. Bowman, 108 Pa. St. 273.

2. Story on Agency, § 205; Pinckney v. Dunn, 2 S. Car. 314; Cartmell v. Allard, 7 Bush (Ky.), 482; Norris v. Hero, 22 La. Ann. 605; Webster v. Pierce, 35 Ill. 158; School Dist. v. First Nat. Bank, 102 Mass. 174; Greene v. Haskell, 5 R. I. 447; Mass. Life Ins. Co. v. Carpenter, 2 Sweeney (N. Y.), 734; Hart v. Ten Eyck, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 62; De Peyster v. Clarkson, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 77; Van Alen v. Am. Bank, 52 N. Y. 1; Manning v. Manning, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 527; Nat. Bank v. Ins. Co., 104 U. S. 54; Farmers', etc., Bank v. King, 57 Pa. St. 202; Dyott's Est., 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 565; Graver's Est., 50 Pa. St. 189; Williams v. White, 70 Me. 138; Bartlett v. Hamilton, 46 Me. 435; Kerr v. Laird, 27 Miss. 544; Atkinson v. Ward, 2 South W. Repr. (Ark.) 77.

It will belong to the principal until the agent puts the subject-matter under such circumstances that it may be distinguished as satisfactorily as it might have been before the unauthorized mixture on his part. Story Eq. Jur. § 463.

8. Signatures by Agents.—Instruments under Seal.—No particular form of words is necessary for an agent to bind his principal, if he expresses in the instrument the capacity in which he acts. Where this intent appears, the signature may be "A" as agent for "B." <sup>1</sup>

A bank in Chicago received from a New York bank notes for collection. The Chicago bank collected the amount in currency, which was then depreciated ten per cent, and used it in its business. When called upon to remit, said currency had depreciated fifty per cent. Held, that the New York bank was entitled to the value of the currency as collected, and that the Chicago bank had to bear the loss. Marine Bank v. Fulton Bank, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 252.

And where an agent deposits the principal's money in his own name and together with his own funds, he will be liable for a loss caused by a subsequent failure of the bank. Com. v. M'Alister, 28 Pa. St. 480; Shuford v. Ramsour, 63 N. Car. 622; Cartmell v. Allard, 7 Bush (Ky.), 482; Norris v. Hero, 22 La. Ann. 605.

Where a factor kept the funds arising from his business, as such, separate from his individual funds, by depositing in bank to a separate "brokerage account" the drafts received for goods sold, the fact that these drafts included his commissions on such sales is not a mingling of his own with the trust fund. Richardson v. St. Louis Nat. Bank, 10 Mo. App. 246.

1. Dean v. Roesler, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 420; Randall v. Van Vechten, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 60; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 193; Many v. Beekman Iron Co., 9 Paige (N. Y.), 188; Dubois v. Canal Co., 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 334; Stone v. Wood, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 453; s. c., 17 Am. Dec. 529; Townsend v. Corning, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 435; Haight v. Sahler, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 218; Briggs v. Partridge, 64 N. Y. 358; s. c., 21 Am. Rep. 617; Chouteau v. Suydam, 21 N. Y. 179; Bogart v. De Bussy, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 94; Taft v. Brewster, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 54; Magill v. Hinsdale, 6 Conn. 464; s. c., 16 Am. Dec. 70; Johnson v. Smith, 21 Conn. 627; Reed v. Latham, 40 Conn. 452; Hovey v. Magill, 2 Conn. 680; Butterfield v. Beall, 3 Ind. 203; Wilburn v. Larkin, 3 Blackf. (Ind.) 55; Hancock v. Yunker, 83 Ill. 208; Mears v. Morrison, 1 Breese (Ill.), 172; Echols v. Cheney, 28 Cal. 157; Morrison v. Bowman, 29 Cal. 337; Grubbs v. Wiley, 17 Miss. 29;

Einstein v. Holt, 52 Mo. 340; Martin v. Almond, 25 Mo. 313; Stinchfield v. Little, 1 Greenl. (Me.) 231; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 65; Dyer v. Burnham, 25 Me. 9; Elwell v. Shaw, 16 Mass. 42; Brinley v. Mann, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 337; s. c., 48 Am. Dec. 669; Mussey v. Scott, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 216; s. c., 54 Am. Dec. 719; Fullam v. West Brookfield, 9 Allen (Mass.), 1; Stackpole v. Arnold, 11 Mass. 27; Bradlee v. Boston Glass Mfy., 16 Pick. (Mass.) 347; Taber v. Cannon, 8 Metc. (Mass.) 456; Bedford Ins. Co. v. Covell, 8 Metc. (Mass.) 442; Brown v. Parker, 7 Allen (Mass.), 337; Hale v. Woods, 10 N. H. 470; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 176; Savage v. Rix, 9 N. H. 263; Morse v. Green, 13 N. H. 32; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 471; Hopkins v. Mehaffy, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 126; Hefferman v. Addams, 7 Watts (Pa.), 116; Deviney v. Reynolds, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 328; Bradstreet v. Baker, 14 R. I. 546; Providence v. Miller, 11 R. I. 272; Webster v. Brown, 2 Rich. L. N. S. (S. Car.) 428; Daniels v. Burnham, 2 La. 243; Materne v. Lion, 35 La. Ann. 988; Key v. Parnham, 6 Har. & J. (Md.) 418; Hunter v. Miller, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 612. Compare Franklin Ave., etc., Sav. Inst. v. Board of Education, 75 Mo. 408; Washington Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. St. Mary's Seminary, 52 Mo. 480.

The granting clause of a deed, the record of which was offered in evidence, was as follows: "Know all men by these presents, that the W. K. Land Company, by S. H., president, and T. S. C., secretary, has granted," etc. The attestation clause and signatures were as follows: "In witness whereof, we hereunto subscribe our names and affix our seals." (Signed) "S. H., president" (scroll); "T. S. C., secretary" (scroll); "W. K. Land Company" (scroll). The certificate of acknowledgment stated that S. H., president, and T. S. C., secretary, "acknowledged that they executed and delivered the same as their voluntary act and deed." Held, that the deed was the deed of the corporation. The form of signature did not make it the individual deed of S. H. and T. S. C.; and one of the seals appearing on the record would be presumed to be the seal of the corporation. Kansas City v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 77 Mo. 180.

Signed and Sealed in Name of Principal.—A deed will bind the principal if signed and sealed in his name and on his behalf. The seal must be the seal of the principal, not the seal of the agent, to make the principal liable, whether the principal be a corporation or an individual. Where the agent signs his own name and uses his own seal the principal will not be bound.<sup>1</sup>

1. Townsend v. Hubbard, 4 Hill (N. Y.), 351; Stanton v. Camp, 4 Barb. (N. Y.) 274; Minard v. Mead, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 68; Kiersted v. Orange & A. R. Co., 69 N. Y. 343; s. c., 25 Am. Rep. 199; Townsend v. Corning, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 435; Stone v. Wood, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 453; Briggs v. Partridge, 64 N. Y. 358; Damon v. Granby, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 345; Tippets v. Walker, 4 Mass. 595; Brinley v. Mann, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 337; s. c., 48 Am. Dec. 669; Fowler v. Shearer, 7 Mass. 14; Elwell v. Shaw, 16 Mass. 42; Mussey v. Scott, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 216; s. c., 54 Am. Dec. 719; Bartlett v. Tucker, 104 Mass. 336; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 240; Fullam v. West Brookfield, 9 Allen (Mass.), 1; Stinchfield v. Little, 1 Greenl. (Me.) 231; Savings Bank v. Davis, 8 Conn. 191; Reed v. Latham, 40 Conn. 452; Shanks v. Lancaster, 5 Gratt. (Va.) 110; s. c., 1 Am. Dec. 108; Martin v. Flowers, 8 Leigh. (Va.) 158; McDonald v. Bear River Co., 13 Cal. 220; Meagher v. Thompson, 49 Cal. 189; Echols v. Cheney, 28 Cal. 157; Morrison v. Bowman, 29 Cal. 337; Carter v. Chandron, 21 Ala. 72; Skinner v. Gunn, 9 Port. (Ala.) 305; Providence v. Miller, 11 R. I. 272; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 453; Martin v. Almond, 25 Mo. 313; Einstein v. Holt, 52 Mo. 340; McClure v. Herring, 70 Mo. 18; s. c., 35 Am. Rep. 404; Hale v. Woods, 10 N. H. 470; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 176; Northwestern Distr. Co. v. Brant, 69 Ill. 658; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 631; Hancock v. Yunker, 83 Ill. 208; Sheldon v. Dunlap, 1 Harr. (N. J.) 245; Grubbs v. Wiley, 17 Miss. 29; Webster v. Brown, 2 Rich. N. S. (S. Car.) 428; Clark v. Courtney, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 319, 340; Bank of Columbia v. Patterson, 7 Cranch. (U. S.) 299, 308; Barger v. Miller, 4 Wash. (U. S.) 280; Phil., etc., R. Co. v. Howard, 13 How. (U. S.) 307, 337. Compare State v. Spartansburgh, etc., R. Co., 8 Rich. N. S. (S. Car.) 129; Beardsley v. Duntley, 69 N. Y. 577.

A contract by a corporation signed by the president as president and sealed with a simple scroll because there was no corporate seal, held, neither the contract of the president individually nor of the corporation. McCaulley v. Jenney, 5 Del. 32.

Where an agent acts for several principals it is not necessary that a separate seal should be attached by each. One seal will be sufficient if it appears to be the seal of all. Townsend v. Hubbard, 4 Hill (N. Y.), 351; Harper v. Hampton, 1 Harr. & J. (Md.) 709.

A verbal ratification by the principal of a deed executed under the hand and seal of the agent will not make it valid. Smith v. Dickinson, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 261; s. c., 44 Am. Dec. 306; Tappan v. Redfield, 1 Halst. Ch. N. J. 399; Rhode v. Louthain, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 413.

But where a person whose name has been subscribed to a deed in his absence appears before a magistrate and duly acknowledges the execution of the deed, he thereby adopts the signature as his own. Bartlett v. Drake, 100 Mass. 174; s. c., 1 Am. Rep. 101.

But see Randall v. Van Vechten, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 60; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 193; Whitford v. Laidler, 94 N. Y. 145; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 131, where it was held that while the principal was sufficiently described in the body of the instrument and it was executed not under his hand and seal, but under the seal of the agent, covenant would not lie against him, but that an action of assumpsit could be maintained. And Robbins v. Butler, 24 Ill. 387, where it was held that the signature of a deed by an attorney in his own name confers an equitable although not a legal title. Yerby v. Grisby, 9 Leigh. (Va.) 387; McNaughten v. Partridge, 11 Ohio, 223; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 731; Van Reinsdyk v. Kane, 1 Gall. (U. S.) 630; Devinney v. Reynolds, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 828.

Public agents acting in their official capacity may sign their own names and bind their principals. Ward v. Bartholomew, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 409; Freeman v. Otis, 9 Mass. 272; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 66; Thompson v. Carr, 5 N. H. 510; Magill v. Hinsdale, 6 Conn. 464; Stinchfield v. Little, 1 Greenl. (Me.) 231; Providence v. Miller, 11 R. I. 272; Walker v. Swartwout, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 444; Hodgson v. Dexter, 1 Cranch. (U. S.) 345; Sheets v. Seldon, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 177. Compare Simonds v. Heard, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 120; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 41; Hall v. Cockrell, 28 Ala. 507.

Intention Appearing on Face of Instrument.—In some States it has been held that where it appears from the instrument that the agent acted for the principal, the signature of the agent's name alone, without any expression of his agency, will not make it his instrument, but bind the principal.<sup>1</sup>

Intention Not Appearing.—If it does not appear from the instrument that it is intended to be the act of the principal, the agent will be personally liable, and the addition to his name of his title of office, or his representative character, will not shield him from liability.<sup>2</sup>

1. McDonough v. Templeman, 1 Harr. & J. (Md.) 156; s. c., 2 Am. Dec. 510; Key v. Parnham, 6 Harr. & J. (Md.) 418; Warner v. Mower, 11 Vt. 385; Hopkins v. Mehaffy, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 126; Abrams v. Musgrove, 12 Pa. St. 295; Purinton v. Security, etc., Co., 72 Me. 22; Nobleboro v. Clark, 68 Me. 87; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 22; Daughtrey v. Knolle, 44 Tex. 450.

Where a deed stated that it was made by a corporation, and no agency mentioned, it was held that the signature by the president of the corporation, as president, did not make it his deed. Hopkins v. Mehaffy, 11 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 126; Gottfried v. Miller, 104 U. S. 521.

2. Tippets v. Walker, 4 Mass. 595; Elwell v. Shaw, 16 Mass. 42; s. c., 8 Am. Dec. 126; Fullam v. West Brookfield, 9 Allen (Mass.), 1; Dusenbury v. Ellis, 3 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 70; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 144; Taft v. Brewster, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 334; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 280; Briggs v. Partridge, 64 N. Y. 357; s. c., 21 Am. Rep. 617; White v. Skinner, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 307; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 381; Randall v. Van Vechten, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 60; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 193; Meech v. Smith, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 315; Stone v. Wood, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 453; s. c., 17 Am. Dec. 529; Palmer v. Stephens, 1 Denio (N. Y.), 471; Whitford v. Laidler, 94 N. Y. 145; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 131; Kiersted v. Orange, etc., R. Co., 69 N. Y. 343; Buffalo, etc., Inst. v. Bitter, 87 N. Y. 250; Bay v. Cook, 22 N. J. L. 343; Dayton v. Warne, 43 N. J. L. 659; Borcheling v. Katz, 37 N. J. Eq. 150; Kansas City v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 77 Mo. 180; Shewalter v. Pirner, 55 Mo. 218; Denning v. Bullitt, 1 Blackf. (Ind.) 241; Stinchfield v. Little, 1 Greenl. (Me.) 231; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 65; Mahoney v. McLean, 26 Minn. 415; Menard v. Crowe, 20 Minn. 448; Scott v. McAlpin, N. Car. Term, 155; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 703; Locke v. Alexander, 2 Hawkes (N. Car.), 155; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 750; Quigley v. De Hass, 82 Pa. St. 267; Taylor v. Agricul- tural, etc., Assoc., 68 Ala. 229; Providence v. Miller, 11 R. I. 272; Hancock v. Yunker, 83 Ill. 208; Grau v. McVicker, 8 Biss. (U. S.) 13; Lutz v. Linthicum, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 155; Duvall v. Craig, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 45.

But such instrument may be enforced in equity. Taylor v. Agricultural, etc., Assoc., 68 Ala. 229.

An action upon a covenant in a deed on the part of the grantee by which he assumes an incumbence, cannot be maintained against a third person upon proof outside of the instrument that the grantee was, in fact, acting as agent and dealing for such a third person. Tuthill v. Wilson, 90 N. Y. 423.

A bond which read, "I promise to pay," etc., omitting the obligor's name, and executed by the agent as follows: "Witness my hand and seal, H. S. Lucas [Seal], for Chas. Callender, president of the Chester Mica and Porcelain Co.," imposed a personal liability on the agent. Bryson v. Lucas, 84 N. Car. 680; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 634.

A bond made as follows: "Know all men by these presents, that we, A, B, C, D, trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Jacksonville, their successors and assigns," etc., and signed and sealed by the trustees, as individuals, is a personal bond of the individuals named. Dayton v. Warne, 43 N. J. L. 659.

The owner of a building executed a lease of it, under seal, for a term of years, to T., who was the general agent and treasurer of a corporation, which was not named or referred to in the lease, and which had authorized T. "to hire and pay for all necessary stores and warehouses." T. took the lease with the intention that the building should be occupied by the corporation, and his agency and purpose were known to the lessor. The corporation did not do business in the name of T. and use that name as describing itself in the lease. The corporation occupied the demised premises, and paid rent therefor on bills ren-

Bills and Notes.—The same general rule applies also to the signatures of agents to negotiable instruments. The fact that the agent signs as such should appear upon the face of the instrument. If the name of the principal does not appear, the mere signing as "agent," "trustee," or "president" is regarded as simply descriptive of the person so signing; and he will be held personally liable.<sup>1</sup> dered to it by the lessor. T. underlet a portion of the building, for which the sub-tenants paid rent to the corporation. T. had almost the entire management of the affairs of the corporation, and mingled his own accounts and cash with those of the corporation. T. became bankrupt, and his assignees in bankruptcy elected not to assume the lease. Held, that the lessor could not maintain a bill in equity to charge the corporation on the covenants of the lease; that the rent due from the sub-lessees at the time of T.'s bankruptcy belonged to his assignees; and that the lessor was entitled to a decree for the rent accruing subsequently to T.'s bankruptcy. Haley v. Boston B. Co., 140 Mass. 73.

A lease under seal, executed by an agent as lessee in his individual name, and which does not purport to be executed on behalf of the principal, is not binding on the latter, although the fact of the agency is recited therein, and although it appears by extrinsic evidence that the lessee acted as agent; the instrument can only be enforced against the party who appears upon the face of it to be the covenantor. Kiersted v. Orange, etc., R. Co., 69 N. Y. 343. Compare Tidd v. Rines, 26 Minn. 201.

1. Edwards on Bills and Notes, 83; Byles on Bills, 6th Am. Ed., 60; Story on Prom. Notes, § 68; Story on Agency, §§ 155, 275; Watson on Agency, 290; Pentz v. Stanton, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 271; s. c., 25 Am. Dec. 558; Bank of Rochester v. Monteath, 1 Denio (N. Y.), 402; s. c., 43 Am. Dec. 681; Joynson v. Richard, 12 Jones & S. (N. Y.) 20; Hills v. Bannister, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 31; Schmittler v. Simon, 101 N. Y. 554; Mann v. Chandler, 9 Mass. 335; Davis v. England, 6 N. East. Repr. (Mass.) 731; Stackpole v. Arnold, 11 Mass. 27; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 150; Firke v. Eldridge, 12 Gray (Mass.), 404; Bank of British N. A. v. Hooper, 5 Gray (Mass.), 567; Williams v. Robbins, 16 Gray (Mass.), 77; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 396; Seaver v. Coburn, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 324; Morell v. Codding, 4 Allen (Mass.), 403; Sturdivant v. Hull, 59 Me. 172; s. c., 8 Am. Rep. 409; Tucker Mfg. Co. v. Fairbanks, 98 Mass. 101; Towne v.

Rice, 122 Mass. 67; Hays v. Crutcher, 54 Ind. 261; Williams v. Lafayette Bank, 83 Ind. 237; Winship v. Smith, 61 Me. 118; Rendell v. Harriman, 75 Me. 497; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 421; Castle v. Belfast F. Co., 72 Me. 167; Walker v. Christian, 21 Gratt. (Va.) 291; Early v. Wilkinson, 9 Gratt. (Va.) 68; Shaver v. Ocean M. Co., 21 Cal. 45; Blanchard v. Kaull, 44 Cal. 440; Chamberlain v. Pac. Wool G. Co., 54 Cal. 106; Scott v. Baker, 3 W. Va. 285; Rand v. Hale, 3 W. Va. 495; Devendorf v. W. Va., etc., Co., 17 W. Va. 135; Collins v. Buckeye Ins. Co., 17 Ohio St. 215; Bank v. Cook, 38 Ohio St. 442; Am. Ins. Co. v. Stratton, 59 Iowa 696; Harkins v. Edwards, 1 Iowa, 426; Tilden v. Barnard, 43 Mich. 376; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 197; Cahokia School Trustees, etc., v. Rautenberg, 88 Ill. 220; Chadsee v. McCreery, 27 Ill. 253; Bickford v. Bank, 42 Ill. 238; Burlingame v. Brewster, 79 Ill. 515; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 177; Powers v. Briggs, 79 Ill. 493; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 175; Hypes v. Griffin, 89 Ill. 134; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 71; New Market Sav. Bank v. Gillet, 100 Ill. 254; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 39; Scanlan v. Keith, 102 Ill. 640; Woodbury v. Blair, 18 Iowa, 572; Am. Ins. Co. v. Stratton, 13 N. Western Repr. (Iowa) 763; Roberts v. Austin, 5 Whart. (Pa.) 313; Arnold v. Sprague, 34 Vt. 402; Rittenhouse v. Ammerman, 64 Mo. 197; Savage v. Rix, 9 N. H. 263; Dow v. Moore, 47 N. H. 419; Fowler v. Atkinson, 6 Minn. 578; Fitch v. Lawton, 6 How. (Miss.) 371; Burbank v. Posey, 7 Bush (Ky.), 373; Gregory v. Leigh, 33 Tex. 813; Graham v. Campbell, 56 Ga. 258; Rawlins v. Robson, 70 Ga. 595; Faw v. Neals, 55 Ga. 711; Tannatt v. Nat. Bank, 1 Colo. 279; Drake v. Flewellen, 33 Ala. 106; Anderson v. Pearce, 36 Ark. 293; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 39; Guthrie v. Imbrie, 10 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 333; s. c., 12 Oreg. 182; Lockwood v. Coley, 22 Fed. Rep. 192; Downman v. Jones, 4 Q. B. 235; Dutton v. Maroh, L. R. 6 Q. B. 361. Compare Metcalf v. Williams, 104 U. S. 93; Parsons on Bills and Notes, 168.

"Marietta, Ga., January 21st, 1869. Received of Mrs. Julia B. Meals, by the hands of Mrs. Mary W. Phillips, nine hundred dollars, which said sum of money I obligate myself to use in running capital of the Marietta mill, and keep the same in money, stock, material or paper, not subject to the debts of the mill. I further obligate myself to pay Mrs. Meals twelve per cent interest on the same, payable monthly. I further obligate myself and promise to pay her as much as five hundred dollars of the principal sum on or before the first day of May next, if called upon, the remainder due and payable twelve months after date, at which time and date I promise to pay Mrs. Meals, or bearer, whatever of said principal sum and interest which may be due and unpaid." (Signed) "E. Faw, Agent for the Marietta Paper Mill Company." Held, to be the personal undertaking of Faw. Faw v. Meals, 65 Ga. 711.

Name of Principal appearing on Face of Instrument.—Where the name of the principal appears on the face of the instrument, an indorsement by an authorized agent with the descriptive words "Treasurer," "President," "Agent," etc., will be a sufficient indorsement to bind the principal.<sup>1</sup>

The drawee of a bill of exchange, drawn by the "K. & O. Coal Co.," was described in the bill as "John A. R., Agt.," and it was accepted by him as "John A. R., Agent K. & O. C. Co." Held, that the acceptance so made was the personal obligation of John A. R., and that in a suit upon the acceptance by an indorsee against him parol evidence was not admissible, in the absence of fraud, accident, or mistake, to show that the defendant so accepted the bill intending to bind the drawer as his principal, and that this fact was known to the plaintiff at the time it became the owner and holder of it. Robinson v. Kanawha Valley Bank, 8 N. East. Repr. (Ohio) 583.

A promissory note saying "We promise to pay" and signed "D. B. L., Treas'r Hallowell Gas Light Co.," is the note of the individual. McClure v. Livermore, 7 East. Repr. (Me.) 258.

In Scott v. Baker, 3 W. Va. 285, a note in the following form was held to be the individual note of the parties signing it:

$345.25. December 19, 1866.

Sixty days after date, we promise to pay to the order of J. W. Baker, three hundred and forty-two  $\frac{1}{100}$  dollars, at Second National Bank of Parkersburg; value received.

WILLIAM SCOTT,
President Blannerhasset Oil Co.
W. H. HOMER, Treasurer.

A note in the form "I promise to pay," etc., and signed "John T. Hull, Treas., St. Paul's Parish," held to be the note of Hull. Sturdivant v. Hull, 59 Me. 172; s. c., 8 Am. Rep. 409; Tilden v. Barnard, 43 Mich. 376; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 197.

A draft concluding "and charge the same to account of proprietors Pembroke Iron Works, Your humble servant, Joseph Barrell," without otherwise naming a principal or disclosing the signer's agency, was held to bind him only. Bank of British N. A. v. Hooper, 5 Gray (Mass.), 567.

A note drawn "We, the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Lebanon," etc., and signed by them as individuals, held to be the note of the signers as individuals. Hypes v. Griffin, 89 Ill. 134; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 71. See also Pack v. White, 78 Ky. 243; Hayes v. Brubaker, 65 Ind. 27.

A similar note was signed by the trustees, with the addition of word "trustees" after their names collectively. Held, that they were individually liable. Powers v. Briggs, 79 Ill. 493; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 175. See also Burlingame v. Brewster, 79 Ill. 515; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 177; Mears v. Graham, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 144; McClure v. Bennett, 1 Blackf. (Ind.) 189; s. c., 12 Am. Dec. 223; Hills v. Bannister, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 31; McClellan v. Robe, 93 Ind. 298; Williams v. Lafayette Bank, 83 Ind. 237. Compare New Market Sav. Bank v. Gillett, 100 Ill. 254; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 39.

1. Russell v. Folsom, 72 Me. 436; Chase v. Hathorn, 61 Me. 505; Dunn v. Weston, 71 Me. 275; Farmers & Mechs. Bank v. Colby, 64 Cal. 352; Nicholas v. Oliver, 36 N. H. 219; Folger v. Chase, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 63; McIntyre v. Preston, 5 Gilm. (Ill.) 48; s. c., 48 Am. Dec. 321; Milligan v. Lyle, 24 La. Ann. 144; New Market Savings Bank v. Gillet, 100 Ill. 254; Gerber v. Stuart, 1 Montana, 172; Wallis v. Johnson, 75 Ind. 368.

In Slawson v. Loring, 5 Allen (Mass.), 340, a draft having the words "Office of Portage Lake Manufacturing Company, Hancock, Michigan," printed at the top and signed "J. R. Jackson, Agent," was held to disclose the principal, and the agent was not liable.

A bank check with the words "Ætna Mills" printed on the margin, and signed

Corporate Seal.—Although a corporate seal impressed upon a promissory note is no part of the note itself, yet if it contain the name of the corporation in full it may be taken, with other facts, to explain the intent of the makers of the note who, in signing, have affixed to their names the words "President" and "Sec. G. M. Co.," respectively.<sup>1</sup>

Agents in the Habit of Signing Negotiable Paper—But adding the title "Agent" to the signature of the drawer of a bill, is notice that the party does not mean to be personally liable, and where the principal is known he alone is liable. This is especially the case where the agent has been in the constant habit of signing negotiable paper for his principal in this manner, and this fact is known to the parties holding the paper.<sup>2</sup>

"J. D. Farnsworth, Treasurer," Held to be the check of the Aetna Mills. Carpenter v. Farnsworth, 106 Mass. 561; s. c., 8 Am. Rep. 360.

In Tripp v. Swanzy Paper Co., 13 Pick. (Mass.) 291, a draft not naming the principal otherwise than by concluding, "and charge the same to the Swanzy Paper Co. Yours respectfully, Joseph Hooper, Agent," was held to be the draft of the company.

In Fuller v. Hooper, 3 Gray (Mass.), 334, a draft with the words "Pompton Iron Works" printed in the margin and concluding, "which place to the account of Pompton Iron Works. W. Burtt, Agent," was held to bind the proprietor of the Pompton Iron Works. See also Slawson v. Loring, 5 Allen (Mass.), 340; Hitchcock v. Buchanan, 15 Otto (U. S.), 416.

In Simpson v. Garland, 72 Me. 40; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 297, it was held that a note drawn as follows, "We, the subscribers for the Carmel Cheese Mfg. Co.," etc., and signed by the subscribers, who were directors of the company, without any official description, was held to be the note of the company.

Note phrased "We, as trustees," and signed by the trustees as individuals, was held not to be the personal note of the trustees. Sanborn v. Neal, 4 Minn. 126; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 502. See also Blanchard v. Kaull, 44 Cal. 440. Compare Ross v. Brown, 74 Me. 352.

A note drawn "I promise, for the use of N. E. P. Union Store," etc., and signed "A., Treasurer," did not bind the agent. Dow v. Moore, 47 N. H. 419.

A note drawn "I promise to pay," etc., and signed "Pro. C. D., A. B.," is the note of the principal. Long v. Coburn, 11 Mass. 97; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 160.

A note signed "J. A. Robson, Agent for his Wife," is the note of the wife. Rawlins v. Robson, 70 Ga. 595.

A note reading "The Howard County Agricultural Association, who execute this note by her directors, do promise," etc; signed by "A., Secretary," and others followed by the words "Directors Howard County Agricultural Association," was held to be the note of the association. Armstrong v. Kirkpatrick, 79 Ind. 527.

The word "as" prefixed to the descriptive part of the signature has been held to charge the principal. Price v. Taylor, 5 Hurl. & N. 540.

1. Guthrie v. Imbrie, 10 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 333; s. c., 12 Oregon, 182; Means v. Swormstedt, 32 Ind. 87; Scanlan v. Keith, 102 Ill. 640. But see opinion of Waldo, C. J., in Guthrie v. Imbrie, infra, and Dutton v. Marsh, L. R. 6 Q. B. 361.

2. Metcalf v. Williams, 104 U. S. 93; Conro v. Port Henry Iron Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 27; Mott v. Hicks, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 513; s. c., 13 Am. Dec. 550; Mech. Bank v. Bank of Columbia, 5 Wheat. (U. S.) 326; Blanchard v. Kaull, 44 Cal. 440; Lander v. Castro, 43 Cal. 497; Hall v. Crandall, 29 Cal. 568; Bean v. Pioneer Min. Co., 66 Cal. 451; Haile v. Peirce, 32 Md. 327; Houghton v. First Nat. Bank, 26 Wis. 663; Lacy v. Dubuque Lumber Co., 43 Iowa, 510. Compare Towne v. Rice, 122 Mass. 67.

No party can be charged as principal upon a negotiable note or bill of exchange unless his name is thereon disclosed. An exception to this rule arises where officers or clerks in banking-houses, or other persons who are permitted to act as such, receive money or securities over the bank counter, and issue therefor drafts, bills, or negotiable certificates of deposit. In all such cases the banking-house is ultimately liable, although such draft, bill, or certificate may be signed by such officer, clerk, or person without

Ambiguous Instruments.—Where the instrument is ambiguous or the principal has by usage authorized the signature, parol evidence is admissible to prove that the party signing has done so for and as the authorized agent of the principal.<sup>1</sup>

Credit of Parties whose Names appear.—In general it may be said that persons dealing with negotiable instruments are presumed to take them on the credit of the parties whose names appear upon them; and a person not a party cannot be charged upon parol proof that the ostensible party signed or indorsed as his agent.<sup>2</sup> disclosing the name of the banking-house. Webster v. Wray, 27 N. Western Repr. (Neb.) 644.

A note made to the order of "A. B., cashier," and indorsed by him in like manner, is not his individual indorsement. Babcock v. Beman, 11 N. Y. 200; Bank of Genesee v. Patchin Bank, 19 N. Y. 312; Bank of N. Y. v. Bank of Ohio, 29 N. Y. 619.

So an indorsement of a note to the cashier of a moneyed corporation, by adding the word "cashier" to his name in the indorsement, is a transfer to the corporation when that was the design of the transaction. Watervliet Bank v. White, 1 Denio (N. Y.), 608.

A., being the authorized agent of a manufacturing company, gave B. a note, in the body of which were these words: "I promise to pay," etc., the signature being "A., agent for the M. M. Company." It appeared that A. had been in the constant habit of signing notes in this manner with the knowledge of the company. Held, that he was not personally liable. Hovey v. Magill, 2 Conn. 680.

If the name of the principal precedes or follows the name of agent signing, as "John Smith by John Brown, agent," or "John Brown for John Smith," then the principal will be liable, and not the agent. Simpson v. Garland, 72 Me. 40; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 297; Sturdivant v. Hull, 59 Me. 172; s. c., 8 Am. Rep. 704; Atkins v. Brown, 59 Me. 90; Sheridan v. Carpenter, 61 Me. 83; Winship v. Smith, 61 Me. 118; Ballou v. Talbot, 16 Mass. 461; Tucker Manuf. Co. v. Fairbanks, 98 Mass. 101; Morrell v. Coddington, 4 Allen (Mass.), 403; Draper v. Mass. Steam H. Co., 5 Allen (Mass.), 338; Rice v. Grove, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 158; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 724; Emerson v. Providence, etc., Co., 12 Mass. 237; Rawlins v. Robson, 70 Ga. 595.

A note reading "We promise," etc., and signed Burlington & Southwestern Ry. Co., V. R. Moore, A. Tr.; held, that it was the note of the railroad. Turner v. Potter, 56 Iowa, 251.

A note signed "Belfast Foundry Co., W. W. Castle, President," is the note of the company. Castle v. Belfast F. Co. 72 Me. 167.

But where a note was drawn "We, jointly and severally," and signed "for the Boston Glass Manufactory, A. B. & C.," it was held that the joint and several promise and the omission of any designation of official character made it an individual note of the signers. Bradlee v. Boston Glass Man'f'y, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 347.

1. 1 Daniel's Neg. Instr. § 418; Weeks v. Fox, 3 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 355; Bank of Rochester v. Monteath, 1 Denio (N. Y.), 402; s. c., 43 Am. Dec. 681; Brockway v. Allen, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 40; Rogers v. Coit, 6 Hill (N. Y.), 322; Beers v. Phoenix Glass Co., 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 358; Hood v. Hallenbeck, 7 Hun (N. Y.), 367; Stearns v. Allen, 25 Hun (N. Y.), 558; Whitford v. Laidler, 94 N. Y. 145; Kean v. Davis, 1 Zab. (N. J.) 683; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 182; Hovey v. Magill, 2 Conn. 680; Medway Mfy. v. Adams, 10 Mass. 360; Fuller v. Hooper, 3 Gray (Mass.), 334; Bradlee v. Boston Glass Mfy., 16 Pick. (Mass.) 347; Bryant v. Eastman, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 111; Markley v. Quay, 14 Phila. (Pa.) 164; Hardy v. Pilcher, 57 Miss. 18; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 432; Devendorf v. West Va., etc., Co., 17 W. Va. 135; Richmond, etc., R. Co. v. Snead, 19 Gratt. (Va.) 354; Walker v. Christian, 21 Gratt. (Va.) 291; Haile v. Peirce, 32 Md. 327; Rendell v. Harri-man, 75 Me. 497; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 421; Hager v. Rice, 4 Colo. 90; McClelland v. Reynolds, 49 Mo. 312; Klostermann v. Loos, 58 Mo. 290; Pratt v. Beaupre, 13 Minn. 187; Scanlan v. Keith, 102 Ill. 640; Lazarus v. Shearer, 2 Ala. 718; Bean v. Pioneer Min. Co., 66 Cal. 451; Metcalf v. Williams, 104 U. S. 93; Mechanics' Bank v. Bank of Columbia, 5 Wheat. (U. S.) 326; Baldwin v. Bank of Newbury, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 234. See Morris v. Faurot, 21 Ohio St. 155; s. c., 8 Am. Rep. 45.

2. Am. Lead. Cas. (5th Ed.) 763, 764;

Simple Contracts.—Where a simple contract, other than a bill or note, is made by an agent in his own name, whether he describes himself to be an agent or not, whether the principal be known or unknown, he, the agent, will be liable to be sued, and entitled to sue thereon; and his principal also will be liable to be sued and be entitled to sue thereon in all cases; and parol evidence is admissible, although the contract is in writing, to show that the person named in the contract was an agent, and that he was acting for his principal.<sup>1</sup>

Barker v. Mechanics' Ins. Co., 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 94; s. c., 20 Am. Dec. 664; Pentz v. Stanton, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 271; s. c., 25 Am. Dec. 558; Snelling v. Howard, 51 N. Y. 373; Bank of Utica v. Magher, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 341; De Witt v. Walton 9 N. Y. 570; Briggs v. Partridge, 64 N. Y. 358; s. c., 21 Am. Rep. 617; Finan v. Babcock, 58 Mich. 301; Tannatt v. Rocky Mountain Nat. Bank, 1 Colo. 278; Kean v. Davis, 1 Zab. (N. J.) 583; s. c., 47 Am. Dec. 182; Arnold v. Sprague, 34 Vt. 402; Barlow v. Congr. Soc. 8 Allen (Mass.), 460; Brown v. Parker, 7 Allen (Mass.), 337; Stackpole v. Arnold, 11 Mass. 27; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 150; Eastern R. Co. v. Benedict, 5 Gray (Mass.), 561; Bank of Brit. N. Amer. v. Hooper, 5 Gray (Mass.), 567; Bass v. O'Brien, 12 Gray (Mass.), 481; Slawson v. Loring, 5 Allen (Mass.), 340; Davis v. England, 141 Mass. 587; Devendorf v. West Va., etc., Co., 17 W. Va. 135; Anderton v. Shoup, 17 Ohio St. 125; Bank v. Cook, 38 Ohio St. 442; Sturdivant v. Hull, 59 Me. 172; s. c., 8 Am. Rep. 409; Rendell v. Harriman, 75 Me. 497; Hypes v. Griffen, 89 Ill. 134; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 71; Powers v. Briggs, 79 Ill. 493; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 175; Baker v. Chamblis, 4 G. Gr. (Iowa) 429; Wing v. Gluck, 56 Iowa, 473; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 142, note; Mechanics' Bank v. Bank, 5 Wheat. (U. S.) 326.

A promissory note signed "W. H. England, President and Treasurer Chelsea Iron Foundry Company," is England's individual note and not the note of the company. Oral testimony is inadmissible to show that at the time the note was given it was understood and agreed by the parties that it was to be the note of the company. Davis v. England, 141 Mass. 587.

A note reciting "We promise to pay," etc., was signed by four individuals, adding "President and Directors of the Prospect and Stockton Cheese Co." Held, that evidence that it was the obligation of the company was inadmissible. Rendell v. Harriman, 75 Me. 497; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 421. See also BILLS AND

NOTES. For "Bought and sold notes," see BROKERS. For Charter-parties, see SHIPPING.

1. Story on Contr., § 160; Nash v. Towne, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 689; New Jersey, etc., Co. v. Merchants' Bank, 6 How. (U. S.) 344; Ford v. Williams, 21 How. (U. S.) 287; Oelrichs v. Ford, 23 How. (U. S.) 63; Mechanics' Bank v. Bank of Columbia, 5 Wheat. (U. S.) 326; Clarke v. Van Reimsdyk, 9 Cranch. (U. S.) 153; Post v. Pearson, 108 U. S. 418; Taylor v. Guest, 45 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 277; Nicoll v. Burke, 78 N. Y. 581; Shaefer v. Henkel, 7 Abb. N. C. (N. Y.) 1; Tucker v. Woolsey, 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 142; s. c., 6 Lans. N. Y. 482; Green v. Skeel, 2 Hun (N. Y.), 485; Beebee v. Roberts, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 413; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 132; Taintor v. Prendergast, 3 Hill. (N. Y.) 72; Coleman v. Nat. Bank, 53 N. Y. 388; Dykens v. Townsend, 24 N. Y. 57; Nicoll v. Burke, 45 N. Y. Super. Ct. 75; Davis v. England, 141 Mass. 587; Byington v. Simpson, 134 Mass. 169; s. c., 45 Am. Rep. 314; Nat. Ins. Co. v. Allen, 116 Mass. 398; Commercial Bank v. French, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 486; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 280; James v. Bixby, 11 Mass. 34; Exchange Bank v. Rice, 107 Mass. 37; s. c., 9 Am. Rep. 1; Hunter v. Giddings, 97 Mass. 41; Lerned v. Johns, 9 Allen (Mass.), 419; Eastern R. Co. v. Benedict, 5 Gray (Mass.), 561; Huntington v. Knox, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 371; Slawson v. Loring, 5 Allen (Mass.), 340; Brown v. Parker, 7 Allen (Mass.), 337; Taunton, etc., Turnpike v. Whiting, 10 Mass. 327; Steamship Bulgarian Co. v. Merchants' Desp. Co., 135 Mass. 421; Potter v. Yale College, 8 Conn. 52; Jones v. Ins. Co., 14 Conn. 501; York Co. Bank v. Stein, 24 Md. 447; King v. Handy, 2 Ill. App. 212; Fowle v. Kerchner, 87 N. Car. 49; Dupont v. Mount Pleasant F. Co., 9 Rich. (S. Car.) 255; Deering v. Thom, 29 Minn. 120; Chandler v. Coe, 54 N. H. 561; Violet v. Powell, 10 B. Monr. (Ky.) 347; Borchertling v. Katz, 37 N. J. Eq. 150; Edwards v. Golding, 20 Vt. 30; Rutland, etc., R. Co. v. Cole, 24 Vt. 33; Vermont, etc., R.

Must Sign His Name Also.—It has been held that an agent signing for his principal cannot merely sign the principal's name, but that he must add some words indicating that the signature was not executed by the principal personally, but by his agent.<sup>1</sup> But it does not seem that the weight of authority deems such an addition absolutely necessary.<sup>2</sup>

Co. v. Claves, 21 Vt. 30; Texas L. & C. Co. v. Carroll, 63 Tex. 48; Ferris v. Thaw, 72 Mo. 446; Garland v. Reynolds, 20 Me. 45; Trustees, etc., v. Parks, 1 Fairf. (Me.) 441; State v. Boies, 2 Fairf. (Me.) 474; Hopkins v. Lacouture, 4 Miller (La.) 64; Hyde v. Wolf, 4 La. 234; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 484; Butler v. Kaulback, 8 Kans. 668; Wolfley v. Rising, 12 Kans. 535; Railroad Co. v. Thacher, 13 Kans. 564; Hays v. Lynn, 7 Watts (Pa.), 524; Merrick's Est., 5 Watts & S. (Pa.) 9; McDonald v. Bear River Co., 13 Cal. 220; Brewster v. Baxter, 2 Wash. Ter. 135. Compare Rowell v. Olson, 32 Minn. 288.

Such evidence does not deny that the contract binds those whom on its face it purports to bind, but shows that it also binds another. Nash v. Towne, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 689; Bryan v. Brazil, 52 Iowa, 350.

The unnecessary addition of seals may be treated as surplusage, and disregarded. Cook v. Gray, 133 Mass. 106. See also Blanchard v. Blackstone, 102 Mass. 343; Schmertz v. Shreeve, 62 Pa. St. 457; Purviance v. Sutherland, 2 Ohio St. 478; Human v. Cuniffe, 32 Mo. 316; Stowell v. Eldrid, 39 Wis. 614; Evans v. Wells, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 324; Dubois v. Delaware, etc., Canal Co., 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 285; Dickerman v. Ashton, 21 Minn. 538.

In an action against a third person on a simple non-negotiable contract, it being alleged in the petition that one of the parties to the contract acted as the agent of the defendant in making said contract, although he did not sign the same as agent, or name the defendant as his principal, evidence will be received to show that such nominal party to the contract was authorized to make the same for the defendant; that he in fact did make the same for him; and upon such proof the defendant will be held. Webster v. Wray, 27 N. W. Repr. (Neb.) 644.

The following note was the basis of a suit: "Corpus Christi, Texas, June 8, 1883. The Texas Land and Cattle Company, Limited: Pay to the order of Carroll & Her, eighteen hundred and five 06-100 dollars in current funds. On account of building and repairs. Payment in full. Charge $1805.06 to Rancho. Thos. Beynon, Superintendent. To Underwood, Clark & Co., 15 West Mo. Ave., Kansas City, Mo. No. 15086." Held—(1) The term "current funds" destroys the negotiability of the paper (citing Lindsay v. McClellan, 18 Wis. 508; Had-dock v. Woods, 46 Iowa, 435). (2) The instrument being given in full of an account for building and repairs for the company, performed by the drawees, and it being the mode adopted for payment of similar liabilities, created an obligation binding on the company. Texas, etc., Co. v. Carroll, 63 Tex. 48.

The trustees of an association entered into a contract "as trustees of the B. Company" and signed "as trustees." Held, that it was the contract of the company. Cook v. Gray, 133 Mass. 106; Goodenough v. Thayer, 132 Mass. 152.

A written contract, not under seal, purporting to be made by A, was signed "A, agent." A was in fact contracting for his wife, and the plaintiff knew it. Held, that the plaintiff might recover against the wife. Byington v. Simpson, 134 Mass. 169; s. c., 45 Am. Rep. 314.

A contract saying, "If the Marsh harvester don't work to his satisfaction, he, W. Thom, can return the machine to me, and I will return his notes for the same. A. M. Schnell, agent," held, to bind the principal. Deering v. Thom, 29 Minn. 120.

An insurer's written assent to an assignment of the policy is properly signed by D. & Son, "Agents," who are authorized sub-agents for that purpose, although their sub-agency does not appear in the writing. Chauncey v. German Am. Ins. Co., 60 N. H. 428.

Where a contract was signed by the defendants as township trustees, but in the body of the instrument the obligation purported to be a personal one, and the contract was such as the township could not legally make, held, that the signers were bound in their individual capacity, and not as trustees. Revolving Scraper Co. v. Tuttle, 61 Iowa, 423; s. c., 47 Am. Rep. 816.

1. Wood v. Goodridge, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 117; Butterfield v. Beall, 3 Ind. 203.

2. Forsyth v. Day, 41 Me. 382; Hun-

9. Sub-Agents.—Agent: How Liable for Acts of Sub-Agents.—When an agent has authority to employ sub-agents,<sup>1</sup> he will not be liable for the negligence or misconduct of his sub-agent; he will be liable, however, for negligence or fraud in the appointment.<sup>2</sup> ter v. Giddings, 97 Mass. 41; Devinney v. Reynolds, 1 Watts & S. (Pa.) 328. And see Squire v. Norris, 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 282; Webster v. Brown, 2 S. Car. 428.

Where the agent signs in the presence of and upon request of the principal it will be sufficient if he simply signs the principal's name. Gardner v. Gardner, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 483; Wood v. Goodridge, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 117; Burns v. Lynde, 6 Allen (Mass.), 305; Frost v. Deering, 21 Me. 156; Mackay v. Bloodgood, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 285; Kime v. Brooks, 9 Ired. (N. Car.) 219. And see Weaver v. Carnall, 35 Ark. 198; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 22.

1. See page 364.

2. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Blair, 4 Baxt. (Tenn.) 407; Johnson v. Memphis, 9 Lea (Tenn.), 125; Campbell v. Reeves, 3 Head. (Tenn.) 226; California Bank v. Western U. Tel. Co., 52 Cal. 280; Porter v. Peckham, 44 Cal. 204; Lavery v. Snethen, 68 N. Y. 522; Foster v. Preston, 8 Cowen (N. Y.), 198; Smedes v. Utica Bank, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 372; Watson v. Muirhead, 57 Pa. St. 161; Pownall v. Bair, 78 Pa. St. 403; Whitlock v. Hicks, 74 Ill. 460; McCants v. Wells, 4 S. Car. 381; Williamsburg Fire Ins. Co. v. Frothingham, 122 Mass. 391; Darling v. Stanwood, 14 Allen (Mass.), 504; Buckland v. Conway, 16 Mass. 396; Warren Bank v. Suffolk Bank, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 582; Fabens v. Mercantile Bank, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 330; Dorchester, etc., Bank v. New Engl. Bank, 1 Cush. (Mass.) 177; University of Mich. v. Rose, 45 Mich. 284; Bath v. Caton, 37 Mich. 199; Com. Bank of New Orleans v. Martin, 1 La. Ann. 344; Taber v. Perrott, 2 Gall (U. S.), 565; Kent v. Dawson Bank, 13 Blatch. (U. S.) 237. Compare Bromley v. Coxwell, 2 Bos. & Pull. 428.

Where a sub-agent is employed by an agent to receive money for the principal, the principal may treat the sub-agent as his agent, and sue him for the money received by him. Miller v. Farmers', etc., Bank, 30 Md. 392; Wicks v. Hatch, 62 N. Y. 535; Strong v. Stewart, 9 Heisk (Tenn.), 137.

A sub-agent agreed, by written contract, that notes taken by him on sales made for the principal should be notes of persons of well-known responsibility, and that if the principal should find at any time within six months after any settlement that any notes taken and passed upon at such settlement were doubtful or worthless at the time of sale, he (the sub-agent) would replace them with cash or good notes. Held, statements made by the general agent at the time of a settlement that certain notes were all right and satisfactory would not relieve the sub-agent from his liability to replace them if within six months they were found to have been worthless at the time of sale. Nor would previous statements by the general agent as to the responsibility of the maker of the notes, upon which the sub-agent claimed to have relied, and therefore to have omitted further investigation, estop the principal from insisting upon the liability of the sub-agent. Osborne v. Rider, 62 Wis. 235.

Common carriers, however, are responsible for all negligence or misconduct of the sub-agents they employ. Bank of Ky. v. Adams Expr., 93 U. S. 174; Hooper v. Wells, 27 Cal. 11; Christenson v. Am. Expr. Co., 15 Minn. 270.

See also COMMON CARRIERS.

An attorney employed by an agent for his principal is the principal's attorney and not the agent's. Porter v. Peckham, 44 Cal. 204. See also ATTORNEYS.

Where an agent employed to collect a claim employs an attorney by whose misconduct it is lost, the agent is held liable. Morgan v. Tener, 83 Pa. St. 305; Krause v. Dorrance, 10 Pa. St. 462; Bradstreet v. Everson, 72 Pa. St. 124; Swett v. Southworth, 125 Mass. 417; Dyas v. Hanson, 14 Mo. App. 363; Weyerhaeuser v. Dun, 100 N. Y. 150; Taber v. Perrott, 2 Gall (U. S.), 565; Kent v. Dawson Bank, 13 Blatch. (U. S.) 237.

In cases where the agent is responsible for the negligent acts of his sub-agent and has to pay damages to his principal, he may recover from the sub-agent. Pownall v. Bair, 78 Pa. St. 403.

If an agent undertakes to do the work of his principal, and employs a sub-agent to assist him, on his own account, he is answerable to the principal for the wrongdoing of the sub-agent, although the principal has knowledge of the fact of the employment of the sub-agent. Barnard v. Coffin, 141 Mass. 37.

See Lindsay v. Singer Mfg. Co., 4 Mo. App. 570.

Public Agents not Liable.—Public officers are exempt from liability for the acts of persons employed under but not by them to assist in the performance of their official duties, both on considerations of public policy and on the ground that such persons are acting, not as the private agents of their superiors, but as public agents; but where the subordinates are acting, not under a public employment, but as the agents and servants of the officers individually in the discharge of their duties, the exemption from liability ceases, and the doctrine of respondet superior applies.<sup>1</sup>

Sub-agents must Account to Immediate Principal.—The rule that agents must account to their principals for all moneys received by them for their principals applies to sub-agents. They are, however, exclusively accountable to their immediate principal, the agent.<sup>2</sup>

Look to him for Compensation.—The sub-agent can look for his compensation only to his immediate employer.<sup>3</sup>

1. Railroad & Banking Co. v. Lamp-ley, 76 Ala. 357; Richmond v. Long, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 375; Sawyer v. Corse, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 230; Bailey v. Mayor of N. Y., 3 Hill (N. Y.), 531; Wiggins v. Hathaway, 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 632; Franklin v. Low, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 396; Seymour v. Van Slyck, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 403; Tracy v. Cloyd, 10 W. Va. 19; Schroyer v. Lynch, 8 Watts (Pa.), 453; Conwell v. Voorhees, 13 Ohio, 523; Hutchins v. Brackett, 22 N. H. 252; McMillan v. Eastman, 4 Mass. 378; United States v. Kirkpatrick, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 720; Dunlop v. Monroe, 7 Cranch. (U. S.) 242.

Such sub-agents are personally liable to third parties. Maxwell & McIlvoy, 2 Bibb. (Ky.) 211; Ford v. Parker, 4 Ohio St. 576; Dox v. Postmaster-Gen'l, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 318.

They are not exempt, however, from liability for the acts of their private agents and servants. So are a sheriff and a collector of a port liable for the acts of their deputies. McIntyre v. Trumbell, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 35; Gorham v. Gale, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 739; Bishop v. Williamson, 11 Me. 495; Ogden v. Maxwell, 3 Blatchf. (U. S.) 319. Compare Grimshaw v. Paul, 76 Ill. 164.

The contractor for carrying the mails, and not the carrier employed by him, is the public agent, if such contract constitutes an agency; and as to his liability for the acts and defaults of subordinates employed in the transmission, the court holds that they are liable for their acts as those of private agents. Railroad & B. Co. v. Lampley, 76 Ala. 357; Sawyer v. Corse, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 230. Compare Hutchins v. Brackett, 22 N. H. 252; Conwell v. Voorhees, 13 Ohio, 523.

2. Reid v. Humber, 49 Ga. 207; Jack- son Ins. Co. v. Partee, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 296; Stephens v. Badcock, 3 B. & Ad. 354.

But see Turner v. Turner, 36 Tex. 41, where it was held that where an agent of the guardian of a minor collected money for his principal belonging to the minor, he was liable not only as agent to his principal, but also as trustee to the minor. Compare Myler v. Fitzpatrick, 6 Madd. 360; Attorney-Gen'l v. Earl of Chesterfield, 18 Beav. 596.

3. Cleaves v. Stockwell, 33 Me. 341; Hill v. Morris, 15 Mo. App. 322; Foster v. Hoyt, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 327; Fearn v. Mayers, 53 Miss. 458.

The members of a band of musicians must look for their pay to the leader who made a contract to furnish the music for a fair. He only can sue for a breach of the contract. Corbett v. Schumaker, 83 Ill. 403.

Where the sub-agent has been appointed without authority, and his acts are afterward ratified, he can recover no compensation from the principal, but must look to the agent. Homan v. Brooklyn Life Ins. Co., 7 Mo. App. 22; Grace v. Am. Cent. Ins. Co., 16 Blatchf. (U. S.) 433. See Loomis v. Simpson, 13 Iowa, 532; Bissell v. Roden, 34 Miss. 63. And compare Chamberlin v. Collinson, 45 Iowa, 429.

Where, however, the understanding of the parties is that the sub-agent should look to the principal for his compensation, and the principal has either expressly or impliedly, as under a usage of trade, consented to such employment, the principal will be bound. Cotton States Life Ins. Co. v. Mallard, 57 Ga. 64; United States Life Ins. Co. v. Hesseberg, 27 Ohio St. 393; Laussatt v. Lip-

10. Duties of Principal as to Agent.—*Compensation of Agent.—Ordinarily an agent performing services for his principal is entitled to a compensation therefor, unless he is a mere gratuitous agent or mandatary.<sup>1</sup>

Salary or Commission.—The compensation may consist of a fixed sum for a specific period of time (salary), which sum cannot be increased by proof of extra work; or of a sum varying with the amount of the services rendered (commission).<sup>2</sup>

A Del Credere Commission is an additional commission paid to an agent who undertakes to guarantee to his principal the payment of the debt due by the buyer.<sup>3</sup>

pincott, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 386; Gray v. Murray, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 167. Compare Lincoln v. Battelle, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 475.

1. Story on Agency, § 324.

To entitle an agent to compensation for his services, the relation of principal and agent must exist. He must either expressly or impliedly have been appointed. Services rendered as a mere volunteer, without any employment express or implied, will give no right to commissions. Hinds v. Henry, 36 N. J. L. 328; Earp v. Cummins, 54 Pa. St. 394; Cook v. Welch, 9 Allen (Mass.), 350; Montgomery v. Pickering, 116 Mass. 227; Sussdorff v. Schmidt, 55 N. Y. 319; Keys v. Johnson, 68 Pa. St. 42; Hill v. Williams, 6 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 242; Atwater v. Lockwood, 39 Conn. 45; Glenn v. Davidson, 37 Md. 365; Low v. Conn., etc., R. Co., 46 N. H. 284.

If he acts as agent without authority, and his acts are ratified, he is entitled to compensation as if he had been duly authorized. Wilson v. Dame, 58 N. H. 392.

The S. M. Co. employed D. as its agent to take charge of its office and business at L. The contract of employment, which was in writing, provided that the company should place to the credit of the L. office fifteen per cent of the amount of money collected by the agent thus employed on contracts made by former agents. Held, that M. was entitled to the per cent on such claims collected by him. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Doggett, 16 Neb. 609.

2. Wharton on Agency, § 322.

Where the compensation consists of salary, custom may authorize extra allowance for extra work. United States v. MacDaniel, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 1; United States v. Fillebrown, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 28; Perkins v. Hart, 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 237. Compare Moreau v. Dumagene, 20 La. Ann. 230; Decatur v. Vermillion, 77 Ill. 315.

Salary continues though no work happens to be completed; commissions, on the other hand, are not due until the work is complete. McGavock v. Woodlief, 20 How. (U. S.) 221; Walker v. Tirrell, 101 Mass. 257; Bornstein v. Laus, 104 Mass. 214; Newhall v. Pierce, 115 Mass. 457; Trundy v. Hartford Steam Co., 6 Rob. (N. Y.) 312; Briggs v. Boyd, 56 N. Y. 289; Earp v. Cummins, 54 Pa. St. 394; Keys v. Johnson, 68 Pa. St. 42; Tinges v. Moale, 25 Md. 480.

The agent is generally only entitled to commissions when his authority has been duly executed; but where the agent has done his part of the transaction, and through interference of the principal it is not completed, the agent will be entitled to his commission. Gillespie v. Wilder, 99 Mass. 170; Newhall v. Pierce, 115 Mass. 457; Chapin v. Bridges, 116 Mass. 105; Thomas v. Lincoln, 71 Ind. 41; Kock v. Emmerling, 22 How. (U. S.) 69; Briggs v. Boyd, 56 N. Y. 289; Wight v. Wood, 85 N. Y. 402; Keys v. Johnson, 68 Pa. St. 42; Phelan v. Gardner, 43 Cal. 306; Budd v. Zoller, 52 Mo. 238; Lincoln v. McClatchie, 36 Conn. 136; Jones v. Adler, 34 Md. 440; Winpenny v. French, 18 Ohio St. 469; Gillett v. Corum, 7 Kans. 156; Walton v. New Orleans, 23 La. Ann. 398; Stewart v. Mather, 32 Wis. 344; Schmidt v. Baumann, 30 N. Western Repr. (Minn.) 765; Arrington v. Cary, 5 Baxt. (Tenn.) 609.

Where payment is made to a principal in consequence of the efforts of a collecting agent, the agent is entitled to his commission. Saubert v. Conley, 10 Oreg. 488.

To entitle an agent to his commissions he must be the procuring cause of the consummation of the transaction. Attrill v. Patterson, 58 Md. 226.

As to when commissions are earned by brokers, etc., see BROKERS; COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

3. Story on Agency, § 33; Holbrook v. Wright, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 169; s. c.,

May be Fixed by Jury.—Where no agreement has been made in regard to compensation, the amount may be fixed by a jury according to the usage of trade; or, in the absence of usage, on the principle of quantum meruit.<sup>1</sup>

After Termination of Agency.—After the termination of the agency no more commissions can be earned.<sup>2</sup>

No Compensation for Illegal Services.—An agent will not be allowed to enforce compensation for services of an illegal character; as where they are against good morals, public policy, or law.<sup>3</sup>

Where Agent Unfaithful.—Where an agent is unfaithful to his trust and abuses the confidence reposed in him by his principal, or where he misconducts himself in the business of his agency, he may be deprived of commission and compensation.<sup>4</sup> Also where 35 Am. Dec. 607; Smock v. Brush, 62 Ind. 156, 176; Lewis v. Brehme, 33 Md. 412.

An agent employed for a season to sell agricultural machinery of the principal was required by his contract of agency to sell to responsible parties only. He was to have a stated commission only upon sales to responsible parties. His commission was to be paid proportionately in cash and in notes taken for property sold. Notes taken by the agent for sales which, upon examination, should prove to be doubtful were to be taken by the agent as part of his commission, or should be satisfactorily secured by him. He was to make final settlement with the principal after harvest. Upon the final settlement the agent delivered to the principal, without fraud, notes of an insolvent maker, taken in the course of the agency. Held, the agent was entitled to have his commission settled and paid at the time of the stipulated final settlement, and the principal must then determine whether he would retain the notes surrendered by the agent, or, if found of doubtful value, put the agent to his election to take them as part of his commission, or to secure them. Plano Mfg. Co. v. Buxton, 30 N. Western Repr. (Minn.) 668. See also COMMISSION AGENTS.

1. Briggs v. Boyd, 56 N. Y. 289; Suydam v. Bartle, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 94; Sinclair v. Galland, 8 Daly (N. Y.), 508; Ruckman v. Bergholz, 38 N. J. L. 531; Glenn v. Salter, 50 Ga. 170; Mangum v. Ball, 43 Miss. 288; Wood v. M'Cranie, 21 La. Ann. 557. See O'Sullivan v. Roberts, 42 N. Y. Super. Ct. 282.

2. So where an insurance agent was to receive a certain per cent on all renewals it was held that after the termination of the agency the agent was not entitled to commissions on renewals of policies procured by him while he was agent.

Spaulding v. New York Ins. Co., 61 Me. 329. See also INSURANCE AGENTS.

An agent under a contract for selling books informed his principal that he had determined to sell out and give up the business, and that if the principal wanted it, to come or send. Held, that the principal was justified in treating the agency as abandoned and in appointing another agent, and that a sale of the list of subscribers afterwards by the former agent or an attempt on his part to release them was invalid. Stoddart v. Key, 62 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 137.

3. Trist v. Child, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 441; Marshall v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 16 How. (U. S.) 314; Tool Co. v. Norris, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 45; Armstrong v. Toler, 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 258; Blanchard v. Russell, 13 Mass. 1; Stebbins v. Leowolf, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 137; Fuller v. Daine, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 472; Paine v. France, 26 Md. 46; Brua's App., 55 Pa. St. 294; Clippenger v. Hepbaugh, 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 315; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 519; Hatzfield v. Gulden, 7 Watts (Pa.), 152; s. c., 31 Am. Dec. 750; Rose v. Truax, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 361; Gray v. Hook, 4 Comst. (N. Y.) 449; Dunham v. Dey, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 40; Eddy v. Capron, 4 R. I. 395; s. c., 67 Am. Dec. 541; McBratney v. Chandler, 22 Kans. 692.

But where he is simply employed to bring the parties together, and takes no part in the illegal transaction, he may recover. Ormes v. Danchy, 45 N. Y. Super. Ct. 85; Crane v. Whittemore, 4 Mo. App. 510.

4. Sea v. Carpenter, 16 Ohio, 412; Vennum v. Gregory, 21 Iowa, 326; Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Pattison, 15 Ind. 70; Porter v. Silvers, 35 Ind. 295; Fisher v. Dynes, 62 Ind. 348; Sumner v. Reicheniker, 9 Kans. 320; Segar v. Parrish, 20 Gratt. (Va.) 672; Brannan v. Strauss, 75 Ill. 234; Myers

he engages in transactions by which he acquires interests or employment adverse to the interests of his principal;<sup>1</sup> or fails to

v. Walker, 31 Ill. 353; Henderson v. Hydraulic Works, 9 Phil. (Pa.) 100.

Or where he violates his instructions. Hoyt v. Shipperd, 70 Ill. 309; Jones v. Hoyt, 25 Conn. 374; Sawyer v. Mayhew, 51 Me. 398.

Or where he executes his duties in such a manner that his services are of no use. Dodge v. Tileston, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 328; Williams v. Littlefield, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 362.

An agent employed to make a contract in his own name for the purchase of grain to be delivered at a future day for his principal, and to whom his principal has advanced the required margins to protect him from loss, and who, after receiving all the margins required, closes out the deal and thereby sells at a loss, in violation of his contract, will lose his lien on the margins in his hands, and his commissions; and the principal may, under the common counts in assumpsit, recover of him all the margins so advanced by him to the agent. Larminie v. Carley, 114 Ill. 196.

On an issue as to the plaintiff's right to recover for services as general manager of defendants' business in the carrying on of a foundry and machine-shop, in which damages are sought to be recouped for mismanagement and neglect of duty on the part of the plaintiff, the burden of proof to establish the defence is upon the defendants, and the particular acts of misconduct or omissions of duty should be specifically pointed out, so as to enable the plaintiff to meet the same by direct proof. Evidence of the reputation of the work done is not admissible to establish such defence, as it might arise from other causes not attributable to the plaintiff. Schmidt v. Pfau, 114 Ill. 495.

Mere errors of judgment on the part of an agent while managing his principal's business, or omissions which do not amount to misconduct or culpable negligence, do not work a forfeiture of the agent's right to compensation for services. Rochester v. Levering, 104 Ind. 562.

Where an agent complains to his principal about the terms of his agency and seeks to acquire more favorable terms, the utmost good faith is required of him in such negotiations. Upon proof of any misrepresentation the court will set aside the new arrangement and decide according to the original contract. Neilson v. Bowman, 29 Gratt. (Va.) 732.

But where the principal sustains damages by the negligence of the agent he may set off such damages against the agent's commission. Kelly v. Smith, 1 Blatch. (U. S.) 290; Storer v. Eaton, 50 Me. 219; Dodge v. Tiletson, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 328; Savage v. Birkhead, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 167; Williams v. Littlefield, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 362; McEwen v. Kerfoot, 37 Ill. 530; Lee v. Clements, 48 Ga. 128; Godman v. Meixsel, 65 Ind. 32.

1. Audenried v. Betteley, 8 Allen (Mass.), 302; Walker v. Osgood, 98 Mass. 348; Rice v. Wood, 113 Mass. 133; Follansbee v. O'Reilly, 135 Mass. 80; Parker v. Vose, 45 Me. 54; Jones v. Hoyt, 25 Conn. 374; Bensley v. Moon, 7 Ill. App. 415; Myers v. Walker, 31 Ill. 353; Kerfoot v. Hyman, 52 Ill. 512; Alexander v. N. W. C. University, 57 Ind. 466; Porter v. Silvers, 35 Ind. 295; Brown v. Clayton, 12 Ga. 564; Sumner v. Reichniker, 9 Kans. 320; Rosenthal v. Myers, 25 La. Ann. 463; Hunsaker v. Sturgis, 29 Cal. 142; Everhart v. Searle, 71 Pa. St. 256; Scribner v. Collar, 40 Mich. 375; Finnerty v. Fritz, 5 Colo. 174; Meyer v. Hanchett, 43 Wis. 246; Capener v. Hogan, 40 Ohio St. 203; Adams Expr. Co. v. Trego, 35 Md. 47.

B employed A to find a purchaser for land. C offered $135,000, but this was refused. A stating the limit to be $140,000. C then agreed to buy at the latter sum, with the understanding that A was to offer B first $135,000 and then $137,500, and only to close when these two offers had been rejected. Fearing, however, that the price might be advanced if his name was mentioned, C had his clerk D sign the agreement of sale. Held, that the concealment of the agreement and the efforts by the agent to induce the owner to sell at a lower sum showed such lack of good faith that the agent was not entitled to commissions from the vendor. Pratt v. Patterson, 3 Atl. Repr. (Pa.) 858.

During the pendency of an action to set aside a sale made on credit by plaintiff's agents to a corporation of which they were the managing officers, the agents, as such officers, sold the property to a third party; subsequently plaintiff obtained judgment setting aside the sale and directing the delivery of the property to it. Held, that after perfecting judgment therein, an assignor of the plaintiff was entitled to bring an action to recover the proceeds of the sale re-render accounts as directed;<sup>1</sup> or mixes his principal's property with his own, so that it cannot be distinguished.<sup>2</sup>

When Agency Prematurely Ended.—Where an agency is prematurely terminated by the act of the principal, his right of recovering compensation for the unexpired term of his agency depends on the terms of the agreement.<sup>3</sup>

Agent to be Indemnified.—A rule of law which pervades the whole law of principal and agent is that the principal is bound to indemnify the agent against the consequences of all acts done by him in pursuance of the authority conferred upon him. Generally it is the right of an agent to be reimbursed for all his advances, expenses, and disbursements made, in the course of the agency, on ceived by said agents from the corporation; and that, as the sale was tortious, defendants were not entitled to retain commissions. Avila v. Lockwood, 98 N. Y. 32.

An agent cannot recover from either principal unless both assented to his double agency; Capener v. Hogan, 40 Ohio St. 203; Barry v. Schmidt, 57 Wis. 172; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 35; Wright v. Welch, 3 McArth. (D. C.) 479; Bell v. McConnell, 37 Ohio St. 396; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 528.

The policy of the law forbids that a person acting as the friend and confidential adviser of a purchaser should at the same time be secretly receiving compensation from the seller for effecting the sale, and a contract for such compensation is void. Bollman v. Loomis, 41 Conn. 581.

1. Smith v. Crews, 2 Mo. App. 269. Compare Sampson v. Somerset Iron Works, 6 Gray (Mass.), 120; Jones v. Hoyt, 25 Conn. 374; Gallup v. Merrill, 40 Vt. 133.

2. Bartlett v. Hamilton, 46 Me. 435; Farmers and Mechanics' Bank v. King, 57 Pa. St. 202; Cartmell v. Allard, 7 Bush (Ky.), 482; Pinckney v. Dunn, 2 Rich. (S. Car.) 314; Mass. Life Ins. Co. v. Carpenter, 2 Sweeney (N. Y.), 734.

3. Evans on Ag. (Ewell's Ed.) 349; Kirk v. Hartman, 63 Pa. St. 97.

In an action by an agent against an insurance company for damages resulting from his discharge during the term of his engagement, his measure of damages is the amount he has lost in consequence, and the testimony of actuaries as to the probable value of renewals for the remainder of his term on policies already obtained is important in arriving at the result. But an estimate of his probable earnings thereafter, derived from proof of the amount of his collections and commissions before the breach, without other proof relating thereto, would be too speculative to be admissible. In such action the defendant may show in mitigation of the damages that the plaintiff was employed elsewhere after the breach, and the amount of compensation received by him while so engaged. Lewis v. Atlas L. I. Co., 61 Mo. 534; Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Nexsen, 84 Ind. 347; s. c., 43 Am. Rep. 91. See McCormick v. Bush, 47 Tex. 191.

But in Orr v. Ward, 73 Ill. 318, it was held that a principal, in making a contract with a salesman that the latter should for two years devote his whole time to his employer's business at a stated salary, did not agree to continue in business for two years, and that when he went into bankruptcy during the first year the salesman could not recover salary for the unexpired term.

Defendant was a member of the firm of S. & W.; in 1854 he sold out his interest to his copartners, and thereafter, as he proposed going West to live, he received certain shares of stock of a Western corporation, which had belonged to the firm, giving a receipt therefor which stated that he had received it from the firm; that he was to do the best he could with the stock, and to "have one half of the proceeds." The stock at that time was not considered of any market value. Defendant retained the stock, as it was increasing in value, and received dividends thereon. In 1862 a demand was made upon him for the stock and dividends, and upon his refusal this action was brought to recover the same. At the time of this demand the stock was of greater market value than at any other time. No demand or request was made that defendant should sell. Held, that as no improper management or needless delay in selling was shown, or any act injurious to the interests of the owner, defendant was entitled to retain one half the stock and one half of the dividends collected. Wight v. Wood, 85 N. Y. 402.

account of or for the benefit of his principal, when the advances, expenses, and disbursements have been properly incurred, are reasonable and paid in good faith without any default on the part of the agent.<sup>1</sup>

When, in obeying the orders of his principal, an agent commits acts which he does not know at the time to be illegal, the principal is bound to indemnify him not only for expenses incurred, but also for damages which he may be compelled to pay to third parties.<sup>2</sup>

1. Ruffner v. Hewitt, 7 W. Va. 585; Heard v. Russell, 59 Ga. 25; Beach v. Branch, 57 Ga. 362; Glenn v. Salter, 50 Ga. 170; Searing v. Butler, 69 Ill. 575; Elliott v. Walker, 1 Rawle (Pa.), 126; Maitland v. Martin, 86 Pa. St. 120; Fowler v. N. Y. Gold Exch. Bank, 67 N. Y. 138; Robinson v. Norris, 51 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 442; Knapp v. Simon, 86 N. Y. 311; Ramsey v. Gardner, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 439; Van Dyke v. Brown, 8 N. J. Eq. 655; White v. Nat. Bank, 102 U. S. 658; Duncan v. Mobile, etc., R. Co., 3 Woods (U. S.), 567.

Where a principal has no claim in a suit brought by his agent, but where the agent's right to continue his agency is involved in it, the agent has no right to expend the principal's money in litigating the question. Henley v. Clover, 6 Mo. App. 181.

Where one through his agent sells goods to another, and they are shipped to the purchaser, the agent has no right to stop the goods in transitu because his principal owes him on account of money advanced in the purchase of the goods. Gwyn v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 85 N. Car. 429; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 708.

The expenses must have been incurred according to his authority. So held where an agent employed to subscribe for stock in the principal's name bought and paid for calls in his own name and then tendered a transfer to the principal, who refused to accept. He could not recover. Shrack v. McKnight, 84 Pa. St. 26. See Ranger v. Harwood, 39 Tex. 139.

The agent will not be entitled to reimbursements of expenses incurred in doing acts which he knew to be illegal, or when from the nature of the employment he must be taken to have been conscious of the illegality of the act. Coventry v. Barton, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 142; s. c., 8 Am. Dec. 376; Atkins v. Johnson, 43 Vt. 78; Nelson v. Cook, 17 Ill. 443; Fareira v. Gabell, 89 Pa. St. 89; Arnold v. Clifford, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 238. Compare Warren v. Hewitt, 45 Ga. 501.

Interest on such advances will be allowed where the nature of the business or the usage of trade or a direct agreement justify it. Meech v. Smith, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 314; Liotard v. Graves, 3 Cal. (N. Y.) 226; Delaware Ins. Co. v. Delaunie, 3 Binn. (Pa.) 295; Whitlock v. Hicks, 75 Ill. 460; Howard v. Smith, 56 Mo. 314; Strong v. Stewart, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 137; Daniel v. Swift, 54 Ga. 113.

An agent authorized to draw upon his employer for money becoming due to him for expenses can maintain an action against his principal for maliciously refusing to honor drafts so drawn. Levy v. Curtis, 1 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 189.

2. Coventry v. Barton, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 142; s. c., 8 Am. Dec. 376; Stone v. Hooker, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 154; Ramsey v. Gardner, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 439; Powell v. Newburgh, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 284; Howe v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 37 N. Y. 297; Chamberlain v. Beller, 18 N. Y. 115; Rogers v. Kneeland, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 218; Allaire v. Onland, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 52; Armstrong v. Clarion Co., 66 Pa. St. 218; Spangler v. Com., 16 S. & R. (Pa.) 68; s. c., 16 Am. Dec. 548; Com. v. Van Dyke, 57 Pa. St. 34; D'Arcy v. Lyle, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 441; Elliott v. Walker, 1 Rawle (Pa.), 126; Maitland v. Martin, 86 Pa. St. 120; Avery v. Halsey, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 174; Greene v. Goddard, 9 Metc. (Mass.) 212; Bond v. Ward, 7 Mass. 123; Moore v. Appleton, 26 Ala. 633; Drummond v. Humphreys, 39 Me. 347; Tarr v. Northy, 17 Me. 113; Howard v. Clark, 43 Mo. 344; Yeatman v. Corder, 38 Mo. 337; Nelson v. Cook, 17 Ill. 443; Long v. Neville, 36 Cal. 455; Grace v. Mitchell, 31 Wis. 533; Stocking v. Sage, 1 Day (Conn.), 519.

So where an agent sold cotton and was obliged to refund the purchase-money to the purchaser on account of false packing by the principal, he could recover from the principal. Beach v. Branch, 57 Ga. 362.

And the agent may pay the damages to the third party without waiting to be sued, and maintain an action against the principal for reimbursement. Saveland v. Green, 36 Wis. 612.

As to the right of agents to liens on the principal's property, see LIENS.

11. Liability of Agents to Third Parties.—A duly authorized agent acting in behalf of his principal is not personally responsible on the contract when the third party knows that he acts in the name and in behalf of the principal. But whenever a party undertakes to do an act as the agent of another, if he does not possess any authority from the principal therefor, or if he exceeds the authority delegated to him, he will be personally responsible therefor to the person with whom he is dealing for or on account of his principal.<sup>1</sup>

As to the right of agent to Stoppage in transitu, see that title.

1. Story on Ag. § 264; Bonyage v. Field, 81 N. Y. 159; Meech v. Smith, 7 Wend. N. Y. 314; Am. Bank v. Wheelock, 82 N. Y. 118; Dusenbury v. Ellis, 3 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 70; McDougall v. Travis, 24 Hun (N. Y.), 590; Palmer v. Stephens, 1 Denio (N. Y.), 471; Buck v. Amadore, 4 Daly (N. Y.), 27; Pitman v. Kintner, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 250; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 469; Silliman v. Fredericksburg R. Co., 27 Gratt. (Va.) 119; Brazelton v. Colyar, 58 Tenn. 34; Hawks v. Locke, 139 Mass. 205; s. c., 52 Am. Rep. 702; Brainard v. Turner, 4 Ill. App. 61; Ware v. Morgan, 67 Ala. 461; McClerman v. Hall, 33 Md. 293; Whitney v. Wyman, 101 U. S. 392; Worthington v. Cowles, 112 Mass. 30.

Where in a chancery suit to require money to be paid on a contract it appears that one of the parties who signed the contract had no interest in the subject, but was acting as agent merely, and the other contracting party knew that he was acting as agent for others, no personal decree can be had against such person for the repayment of moneys paid on such contract. Smith v. Bond, 25 W. Va. 387.

Where a party discounts a note given by the president of a bank, with the indorsement of the bank thereon, supposing that he is dealing with and advancing the money to the bank and not the president personally, the bank will be held liable for the payment of such note. Central Trust Co. v. Cook Co. Nat. Bank, 15 Fed. Rep. 885. Compare Claflin v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 25 N. Y. 293.

A. obtained from B and others a lease of certain coal lands at a certain royalty per bushel of coal. This lease was, by an amicable arrangement, subsequently forfeited, and a lease made to C, a partnership of which A was agent. B and others knew of the existence of the partnership, and dealt with it. They afterwards filed a bill against A for an account. Held, that having recognized C, they could not recover from A. Reed's App., 7 Atl. Rep. (Pa.) 174.

Whether such party acts fraudulently or under a bona-fide belief that he has authority, as he impliedly warrants his authority, he may be sued on the implied warranty for damages resulting from his failure to bind his principal; or in damages for the loss occasioned by his fraud. Noyes v. Loring, 55 Me. 408; Coit v. Sheldon, 1 Tyler (Vt.), 301; Sheffield v. Ladue, 16 Minn. 388; Johnson v. Smith, 21 Conn. 627; Long v. Colburn, 11 Mass. 97; Ballou v. Talbot, 16 Mass. 461; Smith v. Bowditch, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 137; Jefts v. York, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 371, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 392; Bartlett v. Tucker, 104 Mass. 336; Noe v. Gregory, 7 Daly (N. Y.), 283; Bartholomae v. Kauffmann, 47 N. Y. Super. Ct. 552; White v. Madison, 26 N. Y. 117; Baltzen v. Nicolay, 53 N. Y. 467; Rossiter v. Rossiter, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 494; s. c., 24 Am. Dec. 62; Mumikuyson v. Dorsett, 2 Har. & G. (Md.) 374; Campbell v. Hillman, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 515; McCurdy v. Rogers, 21 Wis. 197; Lauder v. Castro, 43 Cal. 497; Mahurin v. Harding, 28 N. H. 128; s. c., 59 Am. Dec. 401.

But the bare want of authority in an agent or trustee to bind the persons or estates for which he assumes to be acting does not render him individually liable, where the facts and circumstances indicate that no such liability was intended by either of the parties. Where all the facts are known to both parties, and the mistake is one of law as to the liability of the principal, the fact that the principal cannot be held is no ground for charging the agent with liability. Michael v. Jones, 84 Mo. 578; Western Cement Co. v. Jones, 8 Mo. App. 373; Humphrey v. Jones, 71 Mo. 62.

It must, however, be a contract on which the principal could have been held had the agent been authorized. Baltzen v. Nicolay, 53 N. Y. 467; Dung v. Parker, 52 N. Y. 494.

Where the agent originally had the authority to make contracts for his principal, but his authority was revoked by the death of the principal, unknown to the agent, the agent will not be liable for contracts made by him in the name of his principal after his death, but before tidings of his death reached him. Smout v. Ilberry, 10 Mees. & W. 1; Rapp v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 113 Ill. 390; Carriger v. Whittington, 26 Mo. 311.

Agent Acting in his own Name.—Where an agent in his dealings with third parties does not disclose his principal, he will be personally liable on the contract.<sup>1</sup>

Where the fact that the agent has no authority was known or could be known to a third party, the agent will not be responsible for any contracts so entered into. Hall v. Lauderdale, 46 N. Y. 70; Aspinwall v. Torrance, 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 381; Tiller v. Spradley, 39 Ga. 35; Newman v. Sylvester, 42 Ind. 106; McCubbin v. Graham, 4 Kans. 397.

So held in the case of a public agent whose authority is determined by a public statute. The extent of his authority is supposed to be known by the party contracting with him. McCurdy v. Rogers, 21 Wis. 197; Southworth v. Flanders, 33 La. Ann. 190. See also AUTHORITY OF SPECIAL AGENTS.

Although an unauthorized agent is liable to an action for damages on a contract entered into without authority, he is not liable on the contract itself. Bartlett v. Tucker, 104 Mass. 336; Northampton Bank v. Pepoon, 11 Mass. 292; Jefts v. York, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 371, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 392; Abbey v. Chase, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 54; Draper v. Mass. Steam Heat Co., 5 Allen (Mass.), 338; Ogden v. Raymond, 22 Conn. 379; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 429; Taylor v. Shelton, 30 Conn. 122; Baltzen v. Nicolay, 53 N. Y. 467; White v. Madison, 26 N. Y. 117, 124; Hampton v. Specknagle, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 212; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 704; Hopkins v. Mehaffy, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 126; Lazarus v. Shearer, 2 Ala. 718; Duncan v. Niles, 32 Ill. 532. Compare Grafton Bank v. Flanders, 4 N. H. 239; Weare v. Gove, 44 N. H. 196.

1. Baldwin v. Leonard, 39 Vt. 260; Upton v. Gray, 2 Greenl. (Me.) 373; Keen v. Sprague, 3 Greenl. (Me.) 77; Newman v. Greef, 101 N. Y. 663; Mauri v. Heffermann, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 58; Brockway v. Allen, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 40; Baltzen v. Nicolay, 53 N. Y. 467; Taintor v. Prendergast, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 72; Corlies v. Cumming, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 181; Rathbon v. Budlong, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 1; Waring v. Mason, 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 425; Mills v. Hunt, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 431; Ruhsing v. Sebrece, 12 Bush (Ky.), 198; James v. Bixby, 11 Mass. 34; French v. Price, 24 Pick. (Mass.) 13; Raymond v.

Crown E. Mills, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 319; Paige v. Stone, 10 Metc. (Mass.) 160; Southard v. Sturtevant, 109 Mass. 390; Stackpole v. Arnold, 11 Mass. 27; Welch v. Goodwin, 123 Mass. 71; Hyde v. Wolf, 4 Miller (La.), 234; Bedford v. Jacobs, 16 Martin (La.), 530; Siré v. Faures, 15 La. Ann. 189; Jones v. Ins. Co., 14 Conn. 501; Hall v. Bradbury, 40 Conn. 32; Wolfley v. Rising, 8 Kans. 297; Einstein v. Holt, 52 Mo. 340; McClellan v. Parker, 27 Mo. 162; Meyer v. Barker, 6 Binn. (Pa.) 228; Parker v. Donaldson, 2 Watts. & S. (Pa.) 9; Youghiogheny Iron Co. v. Smith, 66 Pa. St. 340; York Co. Bank v. Stein, 24 Md. 447; Wheeler v. Reed, 36 Ill. 81; Farrell v. Campbell, 3 Ben. (U. S.) 8; Tiernan v. Andrews, 4 Wash. (U. S.) 567; McGrau v. Godfrey, 14 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 397.

When one purchases property, orders and accepts it, he binds himself, as a matter of course, unless he discloses a principal whom he can and does bind; thus, the defendant bought powder of the plaintiff to celebrate the Fourth of July, and not binding the "executive committee," his liability follows. Button v. Winslow, 53 Vt. 430.

The effect of a contract by an agent in which he does not disclose his principal is not to exonerate the principal if discovered. He merely adds his own personal responsibility to that of the principal, who may be sued by the party contracting with the agent. Hopkins v. Lacouture, 4 La. 64; Hyde v. Wolf, 4 La. 234; Beebe v. Robert, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 413; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 132; Mech. Bank v. Bank of Columbia, 5 Wheat. (U. S.) 326; Jessup v. Steurer, 75 N. Y. 613.

The agent will be liable on a contract entered into for an undisclosed principal even if it is well known to the third party that he acts only as agent, as in the case of auctioneers and brokers. Winsor v. Griggs, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 210; Cabot Bank v. Morton, 4 Gray (Mass.), 156; Raymond v. Crown E. Mills, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 319; Wilder v. Cowles, 100 Mass. 487; Sumner v. Williams, 8 Mass. 162; Falkenburg v. Clark, 11 R. I. 278; Keen v. Sprague, 3 Greenl. (Me.) 77; Scott v. Mesick, 4 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 535; Wilkins v. Duncan, 2 Litt. (Ky.) 168; Cunningham v. Soules, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 106; Beebe v. Robert, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 413; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 132; Mauri v. Hefferman, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 58; Canal Bank

Pledging his own Credit.—Where an agent pledges his own credit either expressly or impliedly, he will be bound himself.<sup>1</sup>

Although in simple contracts, made by a third party on the credit of the agent, parol evidence on the part of such third party is admissible that the agent acted in behalf of the principal in order to bind the principal, such evidence is not admissible on the part of the agent.<sup>2</sup>

v. Bank of Albany, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 287; Taintor v. Prendergast, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 72; Allen v. Rostain, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 362; Bacon v. Sondley, 3 Strobb. (S. Car.) 542; Merrill v. Wilson, 6 Ind. 426; Royce v. Allen, 28 Vt. 234.

And it does not matter whether the third party has the means to discover the principal or not. Cobb v. Knapp, 71 N. Y. 348; Baldwin v. Leonard, 39 Vt. 260; Nixon v. Downey, 49 Iowa, 166. Compare Wright v. Cabot, 89 N. Y. 570.

In an action against R. for goods sold and delivered, it appeared that R. was a clerk in a shop, the business of which was carried on by another person in the name of R. & Company, which name appeared on the sign over the shop door; that the seller made the bargain for the sale of the goods with R., supposing him to be the principal; and that R. did not disclose the fact that he was only an agent. Held, that these facts would warrant a finding for the plaintiff. Bartlett v. Raymond, 139 Mass. 275.

Where a party contracts as "agent" without disclosing his principal, quare whether it is not his personal undertaking and to be so construed, although a jury find that he contracted as agent and not as principal. Stamps v. Cooley, 91 N. C. 316.

Where a third party elects to sue an undisclosed principal he must take the account between the principal and the agent as he finds it when he first discovers the principal. If then the agent has been paid in full, the creditor can have no claim on the principal. Paine v. Tillinghast, 52 Conn. 532, 538; McCullough v. Thompson, 45 N. Y. Super. Ct. 449; Johnson v. Cleaves, 15 N. H. 332. See Emerson v. Patch, 123 Mass. 541; Armstrong v. Stokes, L. R. 7 Q. B. 598; Thomson v. Davenport, 9 B. & C. 78. Compare Irvine v. Watson, Q. B. Div. 27 W. R. 353.

2. Taintor v. Prendergast, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 72; Maryland Coal Co. v. Edwards, 4 Hun (N. Y.), 432; Pentz v. Stanton, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 271; s. c., 25 Am. Dec. 558; Fellows v. Northrup, 39 N. Y. 117; Goodwin v. Bowden, 54 Me. 424; Bell v. Mason, 10 Vt. 509; Savage v. Rix, 9 N.

H. 263; Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 203; Towle v. Hatch, 43 N. H. 270; Silver v. Jordan, 136 Mass. 319; Simonds v. Heard, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 120; Ballou v. Talbot, 16 Mass. 461; Bridge v. Butler, 2 Gray (Mass.), 130; Gay v. Bates, 99 Mass. 263; Wilder v. Cowles, 100 Mass. 487; Southard v. Sturtevant, 109 Mass. 390; Evans v. Dunbar, 117 Mass. 546; Strider v. Winchester, etc., R. Co., 21 Gratt. (Va.) 440; Hovey v. Magill, 2 Conn. 680; Reed v. Latham, 40 Conn. 452; Hall v. Bradbury, 40 Conn. 32; Meyer v. Barker, 6 Binn. (Pa.) 228; Campbell v. Baker, 2 Watts (Pa.), 83; Harper v. Hampton, 1 Harr. & J. (Md.) 622; York Co. Bank v. Stein, 24 Md. 447; Deming v. Bullitt, 1 Blackf. (Ind.) 241; Rosenthal v. Myers, 25 La. Ann. 463; McClellan v. Parker, 27 Mo. 162; McCurdy v. Rogers, 21 Wis. 197; Saveland v. Green, 36 Wis. 612; Fisher v. Haggerty, 36 Ill. 128; Etna Ins. Co. v. Church, 21 Ohio St. 492. See Fleming v. Hill, 62 Ga. 751; Scoby v. Woods, 59 Tenn. 66.

An agent may bind himself personally, although the consideration move to his principal, and the agent's want of interest in the transaction, except as agent, be known to the other contracting party. Crum v. Boyd, 9 Ind. 289.

Where an agent selling goods for his principal orally warrants their quality for himself, and as agent procures the making of a contract of purchase in writing, containing a warranty of his principal, the former warranty is not merged in the latter, but is a separate contract, binding the agent personally; and in an action on one of the notes given in payment of the articles sold, payable to the agent, evidence of the oral warranty is admissible. Shordan v. Kyle, 87 Ind. 38.

3. Bradlee v. Glass Co., 16 Pick. (Mass.) 347; Bank of North Am. v. Hooper, 5 Gray (Mass.), 567; James v. Bixby, 11 Mass. 34; Lauder v. Castro, 43 Cal. 497; Jones v. Ins. Co., 14 Conn. 501; Wolfley v. Rising, 12 Kans. 535.

The presumption is, however, that credit is given to the principal where the agent acted in his name. To hold the agent liable there must be satisfactory proof that the

Public Officers.—A public officer acting for his government and within the scope of his authority is not personally liable on contracts entered into with third parties.<sup>1</sup>

Foreign Principals.—It seems to be unsettled in how far and on what grounds agents for foreign principals are responsible for contracts entered into with third parties. Story in his work on Agency states that "agents or factors acting for merchants resident in a foreign country (as for example in France or Germany) are held personally liable upon all contracts made by them for their employers; and this without any distinction, whether they describe themselves in the contract as agents or not. In such cases the ordinary presumption is that credit is given to the agents or factors; and not only that credit is given to the agents or factors, but that it is exclusively given them to the exoneration of their employers."<sup>2</sup> vendor sold upon the credit of the agent alone. Ferris v. Kilmer, 48 N. Y. 300.

1. Lee v. Munroe, 7 Cranch. (U. S.) 366; Hodgson v. Dexter, 1 Cranch. (U. S. C. C.) 109; Parks v. Ross, 11 How. (U. S.) 362. Pierce v. U. S., 1 N. & H. (U. S.) 270; Brown v. Austin, 1 Mass. 208; s. c., 2 Am. Dec. 11; Simonds v. Heard, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 120; Ogden v. Raymond, 22 Conn. 379; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 429; Rathbon v. Budlong, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 1; Walker v. Swartwout, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 444; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 334; Fox v. Drake, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 191; Crowell v. Crispin, 4 Daly (N. Y.), 100; Yealy v. Fink, 43 Pa. St. 212; Baltimore v. Reynolds, 20 Md. 1; Enloe v. Hall, 1 Humph. (Tenn.) 303; Amison v. Ewing, 2 Cold. (Tenn.) 366; Houston v. Clay, 18 Ind. 396; Mann v. Richardson, 66 Ill. 481; Tutt v. Hobbs, 17 Mo. 486; Hodges v. Runyan, 30 Mo. 491; Dwinelle v. Henriquez, 1 Cal. 379; Ghent v. Adams, 2 Kelly (Ga.), 214; Yulee v. Canova, 11 Fla. 9. See also MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.

2. Story on Ag. § 268. This principle seems not to meet with general approval. Senator Verplanck in Kirkpatrick v. Stainer, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 244, 259, uses the following language: "I am satisfied that Judge Story has stated the doctrine in too strong and unqualified terms, as if this presumption were a universal inference of law applicable everywhere. I think, on the contrary, that this is a presumption founded altogether upon usage and the particular course of trade, and arises only when and where that usage is known or proved to exist; of course, then, that it is not an unvarying legal presumption to be applied to any contract, made anywhere by a factor or agent representing a person or commercial house in some foreign country." And see the opinion of Chanc. Walworth in the same case, p. 253, who upholds Story's doctrine.

The editor of the ninth edition of Story's work on Agency, in a note on page 326, gives as his opinion that "the true rule seems to be that an agent of a foreign principal is not as a matter of law personally liable on such contracts, but it is a question of fact for the jury in each case to be decided by the peculiar circumstances, whether he is liable on the particular contract in each case. This has been so held in England. Green v. Kopke, 18 C. B. 549; Wilson v. Zulueta, 14 Q. B. 603; Paice v. Walker, L. R. 5 Exch. 173; Armstrong v. Stokes, L. R. 7 Q. B. 603; Elbinger Co. v. Claye, L. R. 8 Q. B. 313; Hutton v. Bulloch, L. R. 8 Q. B. 331. And in this country, Oelricks v. Ford, 23 How. (U. S.) 49; Rogers v. March, 33 Me. 106; Goldsmith v. Mannheim, 109 Mass. 187."

See also Wharton on Agency, § 791, who says: "Where a foreign principal is disclosed and there is evidence to indicate that credit was given to the factor, the usage is to treat the factor as personally liable, and this usage is sanctioned by law;" citing Houghton v. Matthews, 3 Bos. & P. 485; Thomson v. Davenport, 9 B. & Cress. 98; Wilson v. Zulueta, 14 Q. B. 405; Gillett v. Offor, 18 C. B. 917; Hutton v. Bulloch, L. R. 8 Q. B. 331; Kirkpatrick v. Stainer, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 244; Merrick's Est., 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 9, 2 Ashmead, 485; Rogers v. March, 33 Me. 106; Smyth v. Anderson, 7 C. B. 21; Paterson v. Gandasequi, 15 East. 62; Peterson v. Ayre, 13 C. B. 353; De Gaillon v. L'Aigle, 1 Bos. & P. 358; Addison v. Gandasequi, 4 Taunt. 574; Tiernan v. Andrews, 4 Wash. (U. S.) 567; Paley's Agency, 248; New Castle Man. Co. v. Red River R. Co., 1 Rob-

Mispaid Money.—An agent to whom money has been mispaid for the use of his principal is not personally liable to the person who makes the payment, where he has paid over the money to his principal without notice. But where he has received notice not to pay it over, or where it is yet in his hands, he is responsible.<sup>1</sup> ins (La.) 145; Müller v. Lea, 35 Md. 396.

See also: Bray v. Kettell, 1 Allen (Mass.), 80; Taintor v. Prendergast, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 72; Barry v. Page, 10 Gray (Mass.), 398; McKenzie v. Nevins, 22 Me. 138; Mahoney v. Kekuli, 14 C. B. 390; Price v. Walker, L. R. 5 Ex. 173; Trueman v. Loder, 11 Ad. & El. 589; Kaulback v. Churchill, 59 N. H. 296.

In regard to this principle parties residing in different States of the Union are not considered to be foreign to each other. Barry v. Page, 10 Gray (Mass.), 398; Kirkpatrick v. Stainer, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 244, per Walworth, Ch.; Taintor v. Prendergast, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 72; Sawter v. Baker, 23 Ind. 63; Thomson v. Davenport, 9 B. Cressw. 78.

1. Elliott v. Swartwout, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 137; Bend v. Hoyt, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 263; Granger v. Hathaway, 17 Mich. 500; Mowatt v. McLelan, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 173; Bixby v. Drexel, 56 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 478; Carew v. Otis, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 418; Herrick v. Gallagher, 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 566; Morrison v. Currie, 4 Duer (N. Y.) 79; Duffy v. Buchanan, 1 Paige (N. Y.) 453; Hearsey v. Pruyn, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 179; Galbraith v. Gaines, 10 Lea (Tenn.), 568; Metcalf v. Denson, 4 J. Baxter (Tenn.), 565; Dobson v. Jordan, 125 Mass. 542; Smith v. Moore, 134 Mass. 405; Garland v. Salem Bank, 9 Mass. 408; Jefts v. York, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 196; McDonald v. Napier, 14 Ga. 89; Upchurch v. Norsworthy, 15 Ala. 55; O'Connor v. Clopton, 60 Miss. 349.

Neither will he be liable where, upon the assumption that the payment was good, he has done something equivalent to it which has altered his situation. Herrick v. Gallagher, 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 566; La Farge v. Kneeland, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 456.

Where the mispayment has been made under compulsion or extortion and not expressly for the use of the principal, no notice to the agent is necessary to make him liable. Ripley v. Gelston, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 204; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 271; Frye v. Lockwood, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 454.

An agent to whom the amount due on a judgment is paid under notice that it is the intention of the debtor to sue out a writ of error is not liable if afterward the judgment is reversed. This is not such a notice which will make it unlawful for him to pay the amount over to his principal. Bank of U. S. v. Bank of Washington, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 8.

Where an agent being a stakeholder receives a deposit, which he pays over before the conditions upon which it is to be paid are fulfilled, he will be held personally responsible. Carew v. Otis, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 418; Edwards v. Hodding, 5 Taunt. 815.

An agent who retains money paid in satisfaction of an illegal claim and pays it over to his principal will be personally liable unless the maxim in pari delicto applies. Wright v. Eaton, 7 Wis. 595; Edgerly v. Whalen, 106 Mass. 307; Josselyn v. McAllister, 22 Mich. 300; Richardson v. Kimball, 28 Me. 463; Shepherd v. Underwood, 55 Ill. 475; La Farge v. Kneeland, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 456; Herrick v. Gallagher, 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 566; Mowatt v. McLelan, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 173; McDonald v. Napier, 14 Ga. 89; Seidell v. Peckworth, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 443.

An agent will not be responsible to the payor for money paid to him for the use of his principal. He is bound to pay it over to him and has no right to return it to the person from whom he received it. He cannot dispute the title of his principal by setting up an adverse title in a stranger. Hancock v. Gomez, 58 Barb. (N. Y.) 490; Murray v. Vanderbilt, 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 140; Colvin v. Holbrook, 2 N. Y. 126.

A public agent who collects money illegally and which is paid under protest, will be held personally liable to the payor; as where a U. S. collector collects excessive duties, which are paid under protest to get possession of the goods, with formal notice not to pay over to the U. S. treasury, as measures will be taken to recover the excessive payment. But in such a case protest in due form must precede the payment. Elliott v. Swartwout, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 137; Bend v. Hoyt, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 263; Schlesinger v. U. S., 1 N. & H. (U. S.) 16; Crocker v. Redfield, 4 Blatchf. (U. S.) 379; Reimer v. Schell, 4 Blatchf. (U. S.)

Contract only Effective in Agent's Name.—An agent will be personally liable on a contract where it is of such a character that it can be made effective only by making the agent liable; unless it clearly appears by the contract that he did not intend to be bound.<sup>1</sup>

Not Liable for Negligence.—An agent is in general not liable to third parties for acts of negligence, nor for non-performance of duty. As such he is only responsible to his principal, and the principal to the third party.<sup>2</sup>

328; Beatty v. U. S. Dev. Ct. of Cl. 231; Greeley v. Thompson, 10 How. (U. S.) 225; Lawrence v. Caswell, 13 How. (U. S.) 488. And see Fitzgerald v. Burrell, 106 Mass. 446.

1. Edings v. Brown, 1 Rich. (S. Car.) 255; Bank v. Wray, 4 Strobb. (S. Car.) 87; Hills v. Bannister, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 31; Mann v. Richardson, 66 Ill. 481; Dunton v. Chamberlain, 1 Ill. App. 361; Tacher v. Dinsmore, 5 Mass. 299; Forster v. Fuller, 6 Mass. 58; Sumner v. Williams, 8 Mass. 162; Welch v. Goodwin, 123 Mass. 71; Murphy v. Lowell, 124 Mass. 564; Tassey v. Church, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 141; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 65; Cruse v. Jones, 3 Lea (Tenn.), 66; Blakely v. Bennecke, 59 Mo. 193.

But agents of charitable, religious, or political and kindred societies are as a rule not responsible on contracts made with third parties, when the third party knows that they are acting for such societies; unless it be distinctly understood that such third party is dealing with the agent on his personal credit. Devoss v. Gray, 22 Ohio St. 159; Tobey v. Claffin, 3 Sumner (U. S.), 379; Stevenson v. Mathers, 67 Ill. 123; Ridgeley v. Dobson, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 118; Eichbaum v. Irons, 6 W. & S. (Pa.) 67; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 540.

2. Reid v. Humber, 49 Ga. 207; Colvin v. Holbrook, 2 N. Y. 126; Montgomery Bank v. Albany Bank, 7 N. Y. 459; Denny v. Manhattan Co., 2 Denio (N. Y.), 115; s. c., 5 Denio (N. Y.), 639; Phinney v. Phinney, 17 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 197; Hall v. Lauderdale, 46 N. Y. 70; Foot v. Wiswall, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 304; Townsend v. Susquehanna, etc., R., 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 90; Guernsey v. Cook, 117 Mass. 548; Brown Paper Co. v. Dean, 123 Mass. 267; Savage v. Birkhead, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 167; Salem Bank v. Gloucester Bank, 17 Mass. 1; Henshaw v. Noble, 7 Ohio St. 231; Dayton v. Pease, 4 Ohio St. 80; Goodloe v. Cincinnati, 4 Ohio 500; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 764; Stephens v. Bacon, 7 N. J. L. 1; Delaney v. Rochereau, 34 La. Ann. 1123; s. c., 44 Am. Rep. 456; Rabassa v. Orleans Nav. Co., 5

Miller (La.) 463; Labadie v. Hawley, 61 Tex. 177; s. c., 48 Am. Rep. 278; Lyon v. Tevis, 8 Iowa, 79; Ayres v. Wright, 8 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 229; United States v. Halberstadt, 1 Gilp. (U. S.) 262; Bradford v. Eastburn, 2 Wash. (U. S.) 219; Carey v. Rochereau, 16 Fed. Repr. 87.

An agent is liable to no one except his principal for damage resulting from an omission or neglect of duty in respect to the business of his agency, even though such omission be with a malicious intent to injure a third person and have that effect. Upon this principle, an agent in charge of a plantation is not liable to the owner of an adjoining plantation for damage resulting from the malicious neglect and refusal of the agent to keep open a drain which it was his duty, as such agent, to keep open. Feltus v. Swan, 62 Miss. 415.

The plaintiff contracted with the defendant to keep some portion of its highways in "good repair for public travel" for four years; and also, in the same contract, agreed to build a new bridge and road. The plaintiff failed to build the bridge and road according to the contract; and, also, to keep the highways in good repair; and the defendant was compelled to pay damages caused by the insufficiency of said highways; and, also, pay for repairing them. Held, that what the defendant paid to settle a suit brought against it for injuries received on the highway, and the incidental expenses of the suit; also, for injuries received by another party without suit; also, for repairing the highway; and the damage for not completing the new road and bridge, are available in defence under the general issue. Wilson v. Greensboro, 54 Vt. 533.

This refers only to acts done within the scope of the agent's business. For negligence in duties devolving on him in his individual character he will be personally liable. Phelps v. Wait, 30 N. Y. 78; Wright v. Wilcox, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 343; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 507; Montfort v. Hughs, 3 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 591. See also CORPORATIONS; MASTER AND SERVANT.

Liabie for Misfeasance.—But he is personally liable to third parties for misfeasance; for doing something which he ought not to have done.<sup>1</sup>

Liabie when in Full Control.—Where a principal engages an agent to do a certain work and to take entire control over it, while the principal does not interfere, but leaves it entirely with the agent, the agent and not the principal will be liable to third parties for injuries or damages sustained by the negligence or unskilful manner in which the work is done.<sup>2</sup>

Liabie for Fraud and Malice.—Agents are always personally liable to injured third parties for fraudulent or malicious acts done in their principal's service, or for wilful deceit.<sup>3</sup>

1. Horner v. Lawrence, 37 N. J. L. 46; Bell v. Josselyn, 3 Gray (Mass.), 309; s. c., 63 Am. Dec. 741; Harriman v. Stowe, 57 Mo. 93; Crane v. Onderdonk, 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 47; Bliss v. Schaub, 48 Barb. (N. Y.) 339; Richardson v. Kimball, 28 Me. 464; Elmore v. Brooks, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 45; Berghoff v. McDonald, 87 Ind. 549; Roberts v. State, 7 Coldw. (Tenn.) 359.

Where the owner of land had leased the same to a tenant in possession for a term not yet expired, and had authorized his agent to sell the same subject to the lease, and the agent, knowing of the lease, represented to the plaintiff that he had authority to sell and give immediate possession of the land, and so negotiated a sale to plaintiff, taking $200 from him as a cash payment, held, that plaintiff, after learning of the lease, was not bound to accept from the agent a warranty deed from the owner, but that he might reject the deed and recover from the agent the $200 paid him in the transaction. Maichen v. Clay, 62 Iowa, 452.

Public officers are liable to the same extent as private agents for misfeasance. Erwin v. Davenport, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 44.

2. Hilliard v. Richardson, 3 Gray (Mass.), 349; s. c., 63 Am. Dec. 743; Linton v. Smith, 8 Gray (Mass.), 147; Lowell v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 23 Pick. (Mass.) 24; Forsyth v. Hooper, 1 Allen (Mass.), 419; Barry v. St. Louis, 17 Mo. 121; McCafferty v. Spuyten Duyvil, etc., R. Co., 61 N. Y. 178; King v. N. Y., etc., R. Co., 66 N. Y. 181; Kelly v. Mayor of N. Y., 11 N. Y. 432; Blake v. Ferris, 5 N. Y. 48; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 304; Bissell v. Torrey, 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 188; Foster v. Preston, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 198; Hale v. Johnson, 80 Ill. 185; Schwartz v. Gilmore, 45 Ill. 455; Scammon v. Chicago, 25 Ill. 424; s. c., 79 Am. Dec. 334; Pfau v. Williamson, 63 Ill. 16; Clark v. Vermont, etc., R. Co., 28 Vt. 103; Felton v. Deall, 22 Vt. 171; s. c., 54

Am. Dec. 61; Brown v. Lent, 20 Vt. 529; Burke v. Norwich, etc., Railroad, 34 Conn. 474; Salmon v. Richardson, 30 Conn. 360; s. c., 79 Am. Dec. 255; De Forest v. Wright, 2 Mich. 368; Clark v. Craig, 29 Mich. 398; Darmstaetter v. Moynahan, 27 Mich. 188; United Society of Shakers v. Underwood, 9 Bush (Ky.), 609; Cincinnati v. Stone, 5 Ohio St. 38; Hughes v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 39 Ohio St. 461; Conant v. Bank, 1 Ohio St. 310; Hodges v. New Engl. Trust Co., 1 R. I. 312; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 624; Miller v. Mechanics' Bank, 30 Md. 392; McCants v. Wells, 3 S. Car. 569; Taber v. Perrott, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 565; Holt v. Whatley, 51 Ala. 569; Ardesco Oil Co. v. Gilson, 63 Pa. St. 146. Compare Lowell v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 23 Pick. (Mass.) 24; McGuire v. Grant, 24 N. J. L. 356; Stone v. Cheshire R. Co., 19 N. H. 427; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 192.

The rule will be different where the principal retains a general supervision of the work and controls the manner in which it should be done. Ardesco Oil Co. v. Gilson, 63 Pa. St. 146; Painter v. Mayor, 46 Pa. St. 213; Luttrell v. Hazen, 3 Sneed (Tenn.), 20; Chicago v. Joney, 60 Ill. 383; Chicago v. Dermody, 61 Ill. 431.

A special receiver or assignee of the property of a railroad company appointed involuntarily on its part is not an agent or servant of the corporation, and it is not liable for damages occasioned by his negligence. Metz v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 58 N. Y. 61.

3. Hardrop v. Gallagher, 2 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 523; Brown v. Howard, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 118; People v. Johnson, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 292; Wright v. Wilcox, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 343; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 507; Ford v. Williams, 24 N. Y. 359; Thorp v. Burling, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 285; Nussbaum v. Heilbron, 63 Ga. 312; Burnap v. Marsh, 13 Ill. 535; Johnson v. Barber, 5 Gilm. (Ill.) 425; s. c., 1 Am.

When in Control Liable for Torts of Employees.—Agents who have taken control of a certain work for their principals, and have engaged to finish it, are liable to third parties for torts committed by those they employ.<sup>1</sup>

12. Rights of Agents against Third Parties—Cannot Sue when Acting in Principal's Name.—Ordinarily an agent contracting in the name of his principal and not in his own name is not entitled to sue; nor can he be sued on such contracts.<sup>2</sup>

Dec. 416; Knight v. Luce, 116 Mass. 586; McIntyre v. Parks, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 207; Blanchard v. Russell, 13 Mass. 1; McPartland v. Read, 11 Allen (Mass.), 231; Edgerly v. Whalen, 106 Mass. 307; Bell v. Josselyn, 3 Gray (Mass.), 309; s. c., 63 Am. Dec. 741; Ballou v. Talbott, 16 Mass. 461; Jests v. York, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 371; s. c., 10 Cush. (Mass.) 392; Bartlett v. Tucker, 104 Mass. 336; Com. v. Whitcomb, 107 Mass. 486; Com. v. Drew, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 179; Wright v. Eaton, 7 Wis. 595; McCurdy v. Rogers, 21 Wis. 197; Campbell v. Hillman, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 508; Josselyn v. McAllister, 22 Mich. 300; Repsher v. Wattson, 17 Pa. St. 365; New York Tel. Co. v. Dryburg, 35 Pa. St. 298; s. c., 78 Am. Dec. 338; Elmore v. Brooks, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 45; Childress v. Ford, 1 Heisk. (Tenn.) 463; Luttrell v. Hazen, 3 Sneed (Tenn.), 20; Scruggs v. Davis, 5 Sneed (Tenn.), 261; Gaines v. Briggs, 9 Ark. 46; Holt v. Whatley, 51 Ala. 569; Perminter v. Kelly, 18 Ala. 716; s. c., 54 Am. Dec. 177; Richardson v. Kimball, 28 Me. 463; Noyes v. Loring, 55 Me. 408; Lauder v. Castro, 43 Cal. 497; Wallace v. Finberg, 46 Tex. 35.

If an agent of a trustee acts fraudulently and collusively, he may himself be treated as a trustee by construction, and as such held accountable to the cestui que trust. If he secures to himself any benefit by a breach of trust, he will be responsible for the property to the party entitled to the beneficial interest. If by an abuse of his power as simple agent he obtains possession of trust property, the cestui que trust may proceed against him as a trustee. Lehmann et al. v. Rothbarth, 111 Ill. 185.

Where the principal receives and accepts a benefit acquired by the tort of his agent, he will also be held liable. Hewett v. Swift, 3 Allen (Mass.), 420; Bryant v. Rich, 106 Mass. 180; Atlantic Co. v. Merchants' Co., 10 Gray (Mass.), 532; Evansville v. Baum, 26 Ind. 70; Wallace v. Morgan, 23 Ind. 399; Jeffrey v. Bigelow, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 518; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 476; Griswold v. Haven, 25 N. Y. 595; Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 79; Durst

v. Burton, 47 N. Y. 167; Hunter v. Hudson River Iron Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 494; Weed v. Panama R. Co., 17 N. Y. 362; Allerton v. Allerton, 50 N. Y. 670; Exum v. Brister, 35 Miss. 391; Bank v. Bank of the State, 13 Rich. (S. Car.) 291; Priester v. Angley, 5 Rich. (S. Car.) 44; Woodward v. Webb, 65 Pa. St. 254; Reeves v. State Bank, 8 Ohio St. 465.

If a debtor pays money in fraud of the insolvent law to an agent of his creditor, the assignee may recover it of the agent, although he has paid it to his principal, and no demand was made. Larkin v. Hapgood, 56 Vt. 597.

1. Chamberlain v. Chandler, 3 Mason (U. S.), 242; Nieto v. Clark, 1 Cliff (U. S.), 145; Taber v. Parrott, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 565; Simmons v. Steam Co., 97 Mass. 361; s. c., 100 Mass. 34; Ramsden v. Railr., 104 Mass. 117; Hilliard v. Richardson, 3 Gray (Mass.), 349; s. c., 63 Am. Dec. 743; Bryant v. Rich, 106 Mass. 180; Com. v. Power, 7 Metc. (Mass.) 596; Bell v. Josselyn, 3 Gray (Mass.), 309; s. c., 63 Am. Dec. 741; Bradstreet v. Everson, 72 Pa. St. 124; N. Y. Tel. Co. v. Dryburg, 35 Pa. St. 298; s. c., 78 Am. Dec. 338; Bank of Ky. v. Schuykill Bank, 1 Pars. Eq. Cas. (Pa.) 180, 226; Clark v. Bank, 17 Pa. St. 322; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Hinds, 53 Pa. St. 512; Goddard v. Railr., 57 Me. 202; Ray v. Bank, 10 Bush (Ky.), 344; Shevley v. Billings, 8 Bush (Ky.), 147; Baltimore R. Co. v. Blocher, 27 Md. 277; Craker v. R. Co., 36 Wis. 657; Day v. Owen, 5 Mich. 520; s. c., 72 Am. Dec. 62; Blake v. Ferris, 5 N. Y. 48; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 304; Weed v. Railr. Co., 17 N. Y. 362; New Orleans R. Co. v. Allbritton, 38 Miss. 242; s. c., 75 Am. Dec. 98; Holt v. Whatley, 51 Ala. 569; Cincinnati v. Stone, 5 Ohio St. 38; Chicago v. Joney, 60 Ill. 383; Schwartz v. Gilmore, 45 Ill. 455; Chicago v. Dermody, 61 Ill. 431; Sewall v. St. Paul, 20 Minn. 511. Compare Clapp v. Kemp, 122 Mass. 481. See also NEGLIGENCE, TORTS. For liabilities of shipmasters, see SHIPPING. For liability in tort of public officers for acts of their subalterns, see MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.

2. Story on Ag. § 391; Gunn v. Can-

When Acting in his Own Name.—But where the agent acts in his own name without disclosing his principal, being personally liable on the contract, it is evident that he can sue on it, although the principal also may be sued if discovered.<sup>1</sup>

Where an agent, although acting as agent, makes a contract in his own name, and the contract shows on its face to have been made personally with him, he will have a right to sue on it; as where a promissory note for the benefit of the principal is expressly made payable to the agent.<sup>2</sup>

When Doubtful.—Where it is not clear from the face of the writing who the party is contracted with, the courts will gather from the whole instrument the intention of the parties.<sup>3</sup>

time, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 387; Oakey v. Bend, 3 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 482; Taintor v. Prendergast, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 72; Kent v. Bornstein, 12 Allen (Mass.), 342; Eastern R. Co. v. Benedict, 5 Gray (Mass.), 561; Whitehead v. Potter, 4 Ired. L. (N. Car.) 257; Jones v. Hart, 1 Hen. & Munf. (Va.) 470.

1. Leeds v. Marine Ins. Co., 6 Wheat. (U. S.) 565; Groover v. Warfield, 50 Ga. 644; Winchester v. Howard, 97 Mass. 303; Tyler v. Freeman, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 261; Huntington v. Knox, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 371; Willard v. Lugenbuhl, 24 La. Ann. 18; Merrick's Est., 2 Ashm. (Pa.) 485; Hovey v. Pitcher, 13 Miss. 191; Beebe v. Robert, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 413; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 132; Pentz v. Stanton, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 271; s. c., 25 Am. Dec. 558; Evritt v. Bancroft, 22 Ohio St. 172; Woodstock Bank v. Downer, 27 Vt. 482; s. c., 65 Am. Dec. 210; Saladin v. Mitchell, 45 Ill. 79; Culver v. Bigelow, 43 Vt. 249; Chandler v. Coe, 54 N. H. 561; Brewster v. Saul, 8 La. 296.

2. Commercial Bank v. French, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 486; Fairfield v. Adams, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 381; Fisher v. Ellis, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 322; Buffum v. Chadwick, 8 Mass. 103; Van Staphorst v. Pearce, 4 Mass. 258; Norcross v. Pease, 5 Allen (Mass.), 331; Binney v. Plumley, 5 Vt. 500; s. c., 26 Am. Dec. 313; Johnson v. Catlin, 27 Vt. 89; s. c., 62 Am. Dec. 622; Wheelock v. Wheelock, 5 Vt. 433; Boardman v. Roger, 17 Vt. 589; McHenry v. Ridgely, 2 Scam. (Ill.) 309; s. c. 35 Am. Dec. 49; McConnell v. Thomas, 2 Scam. (Ill.) 313; Porter v. Nekervis, 4 Rand. (Va.) 359; Doe v. Thompson, 2 Fost. (N. H.) 217; Lum v. Robertson, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 277; Orr v. Lacy, 4 McLean (U. S.), 243; Bradford v. Bucknam, 12 Me. 15; Bragg v. Greenleaf, 14 Me. 395; Fish v. Jacobson, 2 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 132; Hodge v. Comly, 2 Miles (Pa.) 286; Sater v. Hendershott, 1 Morris (Iowa), 118; Barbee v. Williams, 4 Heisk. (Tenn.) 522; Cocke v. Dickens, 4 Yerg. (Tenn.) 29; s. c., 26 Am. Dec. 214; Shepherd v. Evans, 9 Ind. 260; Grist v. Backhouse, 4 Dev. & Bat. L. (N. Car.) 362; Jackson v. Heath, 1 Bailey (S. Car.), 355; Moore v. Penn, 5 Ala. 135; Groce v. Herndon, 2 Tex. 410. Compare Garland v. Reynolds, 20 Me. 45; Irish v. Webster, 5 Greenl. (Me.) 171; Gunn v. Cantine, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 387; Taintor v. Prendergast, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 72.

Or where a negotiable bill indorsed in blank is delivered to an agent for collection, he may sue on it in his own name. Little v. O'Brien, 9 Mass. 423; Brigham v. Mareau, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 40; Banks v. Eastin, 15 Mart. (La.) 291; Guernsey v. Burns, 25 Wend. (N. Y.) 411; Maurau v. Lamb, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 174; Coddington v. Bay, 5 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 54; s. c., 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 637; 11 Am. Dec. 342; Ferguson v. Hamilton, 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 427; Welch v. Sage, 47 N. Y. 143; Hodge v. Comly, 2 Miles (Pa.), 286; Pearce v. Austin, 4 Whart. (Pa.) 489; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 533; Phelan v. Moss, 67 Pa. St. 59; Hamilton v. Vought, 34 N. J. L. 187; McConnell v. Thomas, 2 Scam. (Ill.) 313; Dugan v. U. S., 3 Wheat. (U. S.) 172, 180; Murray v. Lardner, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 110. Compare Thatcher v. Winslow, 5 Mason (U. S.), 58; Sherwood v. Roys, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 172.

Or where a policy of insurance is issued in the name of the agent, but for the benefit of his principal. Story on Ag. § 394. Compare Finney v. Bedford Ins. Co., 8 Metc. (Mass.) 348; Spencer v. Field, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 87.

3. Gilmore v. Pope, 5 Mass. 491; Commercial Bank v. French, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 486; Eastern R. Co. v. Benedict, 5 Gray (Mass.), 561; Taunton, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Whiting, 10 Mass. 327; Medway Cotton Man. v. Adams, 10

When Agent has an Interest.—Where the agent has an interest in the subject-matter of the agency, as where he has a lien on the proceeds of a sale, he may sue on the contract whether he professed to act in his own name or in the name of his principal.<sup>1</sup>

13. Liabilities of Principals to Third Parties.—Liable for all Acts of Agent.—A principal is liable to third parties for whatever the agent does or says; whatever contracts, representations, or admissions he makes; whatever negligence he is guilty of, and whatever fraud or wrong he commits; provided the agent acts within the scope of his apparent authority, and provided a liability would attach to the principal if he was in the place of the agent.<sup>2</sup>

Mass. 360; Buffum v. Chadwick, 8 Mass. 103; Barney v. Newcomb, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 46; Garland v. Reynolds, 20 Me. 45; Irish v. Webster, 5 Greenl. (Me.) 171; Horah v. Long, 4 Dev. & B. L. (N. Car.) 274; Grist v. Backhouse, 4 Dev. & B. L. (N. Car.) 362; Linn v. Holland, 12 Mo. 127; Hinds v. Stone, Brayton (Vt.), 230; Arlington v. Hinds, D. Chipman (Vt.), 431; s. c., 12 Am. Dec. 704; Middlebury v. Case, 6 Vt. 165; Bank v. Slason, 13 Vt. 334; Bank of U. S. v. Lyman, 20 Vt. 666.

And in case of doubt give both principal and agent a right to sue. Lum v. Robertson, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 277; Herndon v. Taylor, 6 Ala. 461; Lewis v. Hodgdon, 17 Me. 267; Rutland R. Co. v. Cole, 24 Vt. 33; Beebe v. Robert, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 413; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 132; Griffith v. Ingleden, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 429; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 444; Dupont v. Mt. Pleasant Co., 9 Rich. (S. Car.) 255.

1. Whitehead v. Potter, 4 Ired. L. (N. Car.) 357; Murray v. Toland, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 569; Toland v. Murray, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 24; Ladd v. Arkell, 5 Jones & Sp. (N. Y.) 35; Bogart v. O'Regan, 1 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 590; Hulse v. Young, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 1; Minturn v. Main, 7 N. Y. 220; De Forest v. Fulton Ins. Co., 1 Hall (N. Y.) 84; White v. Chouteau, 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 202; Bleecker v. Franklin, 2 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 93; Graham v. Duckwall, 8 Bush (Ky.), 12; Evritt v. Bancroft, 22 Ohio St. 172; Beller v. Block, 19 Ark. 566; Girard v. Taggart, 5 S. & R. (Pa.) 27; s. c., 19 Am. Dec. 327; Thompson v. Kelly, 101 Mass. 291. See also FACTORS; AUCTIONEERS.

Or where he is responsible to the principal for the proceeds of sales as under a del credere commission. Lum v. Robertson, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 277; Kent v. Bornstein, 12 Allen (Mass.), 342; Hodge v. Comly, 2 Miles (Pa.), 286; Whitehead v. Potter, 4 Ired. (N. Car.) 257.

Where money has been paid by an agent by mistake or without authority. Kent v. Bornstein, 12 Allen (Mass.), 342.

An agreement made by an agent entirely on his principal's behalf, but wholly for his own benefit, is without consideration, and will not sustain an action by the agent in his own name. Graham v. Taggart, 44 Mich. 383.

Where an agent brings suit in his own name he is bound to disclose the name of his principal. Willard v. Lugenbuhl, 24 La. Ann. 18.

2. N. Y. Life Ins. Co. v. McGowan, 18 Kan. 300; Gifford v. Landrine, 37 N. J. Eq. 127; Borchertling v. Katz, 37 N. J. Eq. 150; Morton v. Scull, 23 Ark. 289; Gasway v. Atlanta, etc., R. Co., 58 Ga. 216; City Bank of Macon v. Kent, 57 Ga. 283; Forrester v. Georgia, 63 Ga. 349; Mass. Life Ins. Co. v. Eshelmann, 30 Ohio St. 647; Fatman v. Leet, 41 Ind. 133; Tagg v. Tennessee Nat. Bank, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 479; Planters' Ins. Co. v. Sorrells, 57 Tenn. 352; Prickett v. Madison Co., 14 Ill. App. 454; Noble v. Cunningham, 74 Ill. 51; Sacalaris v. Eureka, etc., R. Co., 1 Pac. Repr. (Nev.) 835; Bass v. C. & N. W. R. Co., 42 Wis. 654; Golding v. Merchant, 43 Ala. 705; Swaine v. Maryatt, 28 N. J. Eq. 589; Tripp v. New Metallic Packing Co., 137 Mass. 499; Caswell v. Cross, 120 Mass., 545; Bronson v. Coffin, 118 Mass. 156; Fletcher v. Sibley, 124 Mass. 220; Lane v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 112 Mass. 455; Tozier v. Crafts, 123 Mass. 480; Putnam v. Home Ins. Co., 123 Mass. 324; Knight v. Luce, 116 Mass. 586; Newman v. British, etc., S. Co., 113 Mass. 362; Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. v. Weaver, 34 Md. 431; Lamm v. Port Deposit, etc. Assoc., 49 Md. 233; Knox v. Barnett, 18 Fla. 594; Slater v. Irwin, 38 Iowa, 261; Deer Lodge Bank v. Hope Mining Co., 3 Montana, 146; s. c., 35 Am. Rep. 458; Kerslake v. Schoonmaker, 3 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 524; Marsh v. Gilbert, 4 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 259; Armour v. Mich., etc., Centr. R. Co., 65 N. Y. 111; Cosgrove

v. Ogden, 49 N. Y. 255; Ritch v. Smith, 82 N. Y. 627; Morey v. Webb, 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 22; Manning v. Keenan, 73 N. Y. 45; Meiggs v. Meiggs, 15 Hun (N. Y.), 453; Gallup v. Lederer, 1 Hun (N. Y.), 282; Engh v. Greenebaum, 4 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 426; Tice v. Gallup, 5 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 51; Skelton v. Manchester, 12 R. I. 326; Beecher v. Venn, 35 Mich. 466; Silliman v. Fredericksburg, etc., R. Co., 27 Gratt. (Va.) 179; Rice v. Groffman, 56 Mo. 434; Webster v. Wray, 24 N. W. Repr. (Neb.) 207; Eskridge v. Farrar, 34 La. Ann. 709; Plummer v. Buck, 16 Neb. 322; St. Louis, etc., Packet Co. v. Parker, 59 Ill. 23; Dewar v. Bank of Montreal, 3 N. Eastern Repr. (Ill.) 746; Silverman v. Bullock, 98 Ill. 11; Union Mut. Ins. Co. v. Wilkinson, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 222; Wider v. Branch, 12 Ill. App. 358; Bronson v. Chappell, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 681; Dickman v. Williams, 50 Miss. 500.

The scope of an agent's employment is to be determined, not only from what the principal may have told the agent to do, but from what he knows, or in the exercise of ordinary care and prudence ought to know, the agent is doing in the transaction. Kingsley v. Fitts, 51 Vt. 414.

If a vendor sells goods to an agent for his principal, and takes the promissory note of the agent for the amount of the purchase-price, this, without more, will not operate as payment of the debt of the principal; and on failure of payment by the agent, the principal will be liable to an action founded on the original consideration. Keller v. Singleton, 69 Ga. 703.

When a person deals with an agent within the scope of his known authority, he may safely presume that he is dealing with the principal, and the principal will be bound by the contract, unless he shows affirmatively that the person dealing with the agent knew that the agent in that instance was contracting for himself alone. Brett v. Bassett, 63 Iowa, 340.

A. delivered a number of books to B. & Co., auctioneers, for sale. C., though not a member of the firm of B. & Co., was their agent in charge of the book department of their business. Part of the books were sold, and the remainder held for future disposition. At the instance of C. these books were left on the premises of B. & Co. A. offered to have them insured, but was deterred from this by the allegations of C. that B. & Co. carried sufficient insurance to cover all the goods in the establishment, including these books. B. & Co. actually had at this time two policies aggregating $12,- 500, and which, by their terms, were on goods owned by B. & Co. and on those held by them in trust or on consignment. While A.'s books were thus in B. & Co.'s store, the same was destroyed by fire, with all its contents; and as the loss was in excess of $12,500, this entire sum was paid them by the companies. After the fire B. & Co. offered A. $199. They denied legal liability to pay him any insurance, but claimed that they were willing to apportion it and give him this sum. A. refused their offer, and brought suit for the value of the books. Held, that the policies of insurance covered A.'s books, and when B. & Co. received the $12,500 they held it in trust and were bound to account for its distribution. A. was not obliged to show that after paying all other claims there was enough left to cover his books; but it was B. & Co.'s duty to show, in detail, the application of the fund. Upon their neglect to do this, they were properly held accountable to A. for the full amount of his loss. Thomas v. Cumiskey, 108 Pa. St. 354.

Complainant gave to an agent written authority "to assign, satisfy, or discharge all mortgages made to him." The agent, thereunder, assigned to the defendant a mortgage of $10,000, declaring that the assignment was for the benefit of complainant. The agent applied the $10,000 to his own use. Held, that complainant was bound by the assignment and the agent's concomitant declarations; the defendant testifying that he had no knowledge of the agent's fraud. Chetwood v. Berrian, 39 N. J. Eq. 203.

Where a party, through a third person, procures another to sign a contract upon consideration that the first will abandon a threatened prosecution for a felony, the acts of such third person are the acts of the first, and the contract is void. McCoy v. Green, 83 Mo. 626.

A small boy, finding a dynamite cartridge in a common packing-box among the saw-dust, proceeded to crack it on a stone, and maimed himself for life. The boy was rightfully on the premises, and his father was at work hard by. The packing-box was on the ground under a rude shed, and was marked "Powder," but neither the boy nor his father could read. It had been left exposed by the agent of the landlord. Held, that an action would lie against the landlord for the injury; and that neither the child nor his father could be said to be guilty of contributory negligence. Powers v. Harlow, 53 Mich. 507.

If a principal holds out an agent as possessing authority to control a shop or place of business, and a third person acts upon the faith of the appearances so created, the principal may be bound by the acts of such agent within the scope of such ostensible authority, although, as between the agent and his employer, no such authority in fact existed. Over v. Schiffing, 102 Ind. 191; Banks v. Everest, 35 Kan. 687.

An agent's right to defend his principal's possession of premises is not affected by what he has said in the latter's absence about the latter's title, so long as he did not speak as agent, and has given no license to occupy the premises. Taylor v. Adams, 58 Mich. 187.

Where a railroad company employs an agent to detect, arrest, and prosecute persons who unlawfully obstruct its track, and the agent, acting in the scope of his employment, arrests an innocent person, the railroad company is liable therefor. Evansville, etc., R. Co. v. McKee, 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 366; s. c., 99 Ind. 519.

But where an agent of a railroad company having and exercising supervision over the lands of the company and in charge of such lands, making leases, collecting rents and stumpage, and negotiating sales of the lands, invokes the criminal law by bringing a charge of grand larceny against a party for spoliation of the timber lands of the company, he is not in so doing acting within the scope of his agency or in the course of his employment, and the company is therefore not to be held responsible for such actions done maliciously by him. Pressley v. Mobile, etc., R. Co., 15 Fed. Rep. 199.

Where a person acts as agent or agent of another in selling intoxicating liquors for him, with his knowledge and consent, in violation of law, the principal may be prosecuted and punished for such unlawful sales by his clerk or agent; and in such a case, where it is admitted that the principal has no permit to sell intoxicating liquors, it is not necessary for the State in the first instance, in order to convict the principal, to show that his clerk or agent had no permit, if the sales were made by the clerk or agent for the principal, in the ordinary line of his duty. State v. Skinner, 34 Kans. 256; Seaman v. Com., 21 Am. Law Reg. (Pa.) 245; State v. McGrath, 73 Mo. 181; State v. Baker, 71 Mo. 475; Com. v. Gillespie, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 469; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 475; Forrester v. Georgia, 63 Ga. 349.

One who expressly sanctions a payment to another person as his agent, and who knows that his debtor regards such person as the person to whom payments should be made, will be bound by subsequent payments to such agent. Phillips v. McGrath, 62 Wis. 124.

A subscription to the stock of an incorporated railroad company, procured by the fraud of the company's agent soliciting subscriptions, may be defeated on the plea of fraud when the company attempts to enforce it by suit. Montgomery Southern R. Co. v. Matthews, 77 Ala. 357.

A depot agent in the employment of a railroad company being notified by the superintendent to report for instructions to the assistant superintendent, and, on so reporting, being informed that the latter desired to transfer him to another station on the road,—the transfer being made, and the depot agent afterwards suing the railroad company for increased compensation, as promised by the assistant superintendent,—held, that the statements and declarations of the assistant superintendent, while negotiating for the transfer, and up to the completion of the contract, were competent evidence against the railroad company. Ala. Gr. So. R. Co. v. Hill, 76 Ala. 303.

Where the duly authorized agent of a railroad company receives personal property to be transported as baggage, the railroad company must account for such property as baggage, although in strict language it might not be baggage. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Conklin, 32 Kans. 55; Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Foster, 104 Ind. 293.

Where a railway shipping-clerk, colluding with the consignor, issues a fictitious bill of lading, the goods represented by it not having been received, the railway company is liable to an innocent third person deceived thereby. As between a railway company and third persons the true limit of a railway agent's authority to bind his company is the apparent authority with which he is invested. Brooke v. New York, L. E. & W. R. Co., 21 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 64; s. c., 108 Pa. St. 530; Sioux City, etc., R. Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 278; s. c., 10 Neb. 556; Armour v. Mich. Cent. R. Co., 65 N. Y. 111; Wichita Sav. Bank v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. 20 Kans. 519; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Larned, 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 436; s. c., 103 Ill. 239.

In an action against a railroad company, where it was in evidence that S., the regular agent of the defendant at a certain depot, lived three miles from the depot and that T. lived at the depot for two years prior to the bringing of the action and discharged the duties of agent in receiving and forwarding freight, selling tickets, etc., all of which was done in the name of S. and with the knowledge and acquiescence of defendant; it was held that T. was the agent of defendant, and that defendant was bound by any act of his within the scope of the authority impliedly given. Katzenstein v. R. R. Co., 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 464; s. c., 84 N. Car. 688. Compare Williams v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 93 N. Car. 42; Robinson v. Memphis, 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 592; s. c., 9 Fed. Rep. 129.

A railroad corporation is liable for the erroneous advice and directions given by its agent in charge. S. & N. R. Co. v. Huffman, 76 Ala. 492, and cases cited in opinion.

Where the receiving clerk of a telegraph company, at the request or with the consent of the sender, attempted to correct a mistake in the message, and in so doing made a mistake himself, held, that the company was not liable, for the correcting of the message was not within the scope of the receiving clerk's authority or duty and was not authorized by the company. Western U. Tel. Co. v. Foster, 64 Tex. 220.

Where a principal authorizes an agent to effect an exchange of lands with a third person, he is answerable for and is bound by the acts and representations of the agent, and the instrumentalities employed by him in accomplishing that end, even though the agent is guilty of fraud which the principal did not direct, and of which he did not have knowledge. Wolfe v. Pugh, 101 Ind. 203.

If the owner of land deliver to his agent a deed thereof, executed in blank as to the grantee, with express or implied authority to insert the name of a purchaser and perfect the conveyance, and if, with such authority, the agent make a fraudulent use of the deed, as by inserting the name of a grantee and delivering it to him without consideration, for his own benefit, such grantee can convey a good title to an innocent purchaser. Garland v. Wells, 15 Neb. 298.

G. authorized T. to make a loan for him and take a mortgage to secure it in G.'s name. T. took the mortgage and put it on record, but did not inform G. T. then sold the notes and mortgage to the plaintiffs. G. afterwards, upon a representation made to him that the mortgage debt was paid, gave a quitclaim to the mortgagor; it being found that he did it in good faith and in the belief that the mortgage debt was paid. Held, that the prior authority was sufficient to constitute the acceptance by T. his acceptance, even though he was not informed that the mortgage had been made. Lewis v. Farrell, 51 Conn. 216.

Defendants owned a half-interest in the business of a firm, one S. owning the other half. Defendants, through the fraudulent representations of S. as to the assets and liabilities of the firm, induced plaintiff to purchase their half interest, paying a certain sum in cash and agreeing to pay the firm's indebtedness. The assets being much less, and the liabilities much more, than represented, held that defendants were bound by the fraudulent representations made by S. as their agent whether authorized by them or not, and that plaintiff was entitled to recover what he had lost by reason of the fraud, and to be relieved of all obligation to perform the contract. Lindmeier v. Monahan, 64 Iowa, 24; Hornish v. Peck, 53 Iowa, 157.

Where plaintiffs' agent, who was authorized to take orders for wagons and carriages and transmit them to plaintiffs, took defendants' order, but defendants, not being content with plaintiffs' printed and published warranty, demanded a further warranty, whereupon a warranty was written out by the agent in duplicate, one copy of which was left with the defendants, and the other of which the agent agreed to forward with the order to his principals, for their acceptance or rejection; and he sent the order, but failed to send the warranty, and plaintiffs forwarded the wagons and carriages without any knowledge of the written warranty, and the goods did not fulfil the conditions thereof,—held, that plaintiffs were liable to the same extent as if the goods had been sold by them upon that warranty. Davis v. Danforth, 65 Iowa, 601.

One who has authority to receive and take property from a "landing" has authority to receive and take it from a wharf-boat stationed and used at a particular wharf, and constituting one of the landing facilities, and for the negligence of his agents in removing the property from the boat, resulting in the loss of such property, the owner of the wharf-boat is not liable. Davis v. Reamer, 105 Ind. 318.

A. was the owner of a wharf at Newark, on the Passaic River, and the consignee of a cargo of coal shipped on board a barge belonging to libellant. When the barge arrived at the wharf the master found M. in charge, directing the moving of vessels, etc., and in obedience to his direction moored the barge alongside the docks, and when the tide went out the barge grounded, and was seriously injured by piling that had been negligently left standing under the water. After mooring, but before the grounding of the barge, the master reported to the clerk of the libellant the arrival of the barge, and was referred to M. as his representative. Held, that the master had a right to assume that M. was the agent of the owner of the wharf, and that he was liable for the injury. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Atha, 22 Fed. Repr 920.

The principal is not relieved from liability for the acts of his agent by a delay of a third party in giving him notice of the failure of the agent to pay for goods purchased. Stapp v. Spurlin, 32 Ind. 442.

Even though the authority of the agent is restricted by instructions from his principal, he will be bound by a warranty attending a sale made by the agent, unless the purchaser knew of the restriction. Murray v. Brooks, 41 Iowa, 45.

The principal is bound by all acts of his agent within the scope of the authority which he holds him out to the world to possess, although he may have given him more limited private instructions unknown to the persons dealing with him. Jacobson v. Poindexter, 42 Ark. 97.

Where it appeared that the grantee in a deed, containing a covenant on the part of the grantee to pay a mortgage on the premises, had given to another, by whom the purchase of the land was made, general authority to deal in real estate in his name, held, that he was bound by the covenant, although he permitted the ostensible agent to reap the benefits of his dealing, and although he did not know that the clause was in the deed, and never specially authorized its assertion. Schley v. Fryer, 100 N. Y. 71.

A mortgage of land, securing a promissory note, was conditioned for the payment of a certain sum in two months, "with interest as specified in the note." The rate of interest expressed in the note was three per cent a month for the two months, and five per cent a month for such further time as any part of the principal should remain unpaid. An agent of the mortgagee had the custody of the mortgage and note, and knew their contents, and had full authority to receive payment of the note at any time, and to dispose of it as he saw fit. A creditor of the mortgagor brought an action against him, attached his interest in the land, recovered judgment, levied his execution upon the debtor's equity of redemption, and became the purchaser thereof at a sale. Before the maturity of the note, and while his action was pending, the creditor informed the mortgagee's agent that he had attached the land and wished to pay off the mortgage, and asked him what amount was due. The agent, by falsehood and evasive answers, intentionally misled him, so that no payment was made. Subsequently, the creditor obtained a decree entitling him to redeem the land from the mortgage. Held, that the mortgagee was estopped, by his agent's conduct, to receive from such creditor interest at a higher rate than six per cent per annum after the maturity of the mortgage debt; and that, as the creditor made no offer to pay any sum to the mortgagee, he must pay the expenses incurred in proceedings to foreclose the mortgage before the service of an injunction restraining them. May v. Gates, 137 Mass. 389.

Where a U. S. timber agent has made a compromise with a trespasser on public lands, who has cut timber without authority, the government is not bound by such compromise unless the agent has regularly pursued his authority. Nickles v. Wells, 2 Utah, 167.

The declarations of an agent are admissible as evidence against his principal only when made while transacting the business of the principal and as a part of the transaction which is the subject of inquiry. Hence, where the baggage-master of a railroad company, while away from the baggage-room of the company and engaged in the transaction of his private business on his own premises, gave directions to a stranger with reference to the delivery of baggage, held, that they were not binding on the company. Chillicothe v. Raymond, 80 Mo. 185; Danner L. & L. Co. v. Stonewall Ins. Co., 77 Ala. 184; Wolf v. Des Moines, etc., R. Co., 64 Iowa, 380; McDermott v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 87 Mo. 285.

A bookkeeper who had some discretion in small sales was directed to collect a balance due upon a particular sale or to get the goods. Held, that this did not give him such standing as an agent that his employer would be bound by his neglect to warn a third person, to whom the purchaser sold the goods, that there was an unpaid claim upon them. Weaver v. Bechtel, 53 Mich. 516.

Presentation of a bill by a merchant's employee does not warrant the debtor thereon in paying it to him unless it is within the scope of his employment to receive payment; and his mere statement that he is authorized to receive it is not enough, nor is it enough that the bill is

Agency must Exist.—The existence of the agency must, however, be clearly shown to make the principal liable.<sup>1</sup>

When Agent exceeds Authority.—It does not matter that the agent exceeds his authority.<sup>2</sup>

When Agent Contracts in his own Name.—Where an agent contracts in his own name and does not disclose his principal, the in the merchant's handwriting and on one of his billheads. Hirshfield v. Waldron, 54 Mich. 649.

When one carries on a butcher-shop through an agent, and that agent sells the hides of the slaughtered animals, it should be left to the jury to decide upon the evidence in a suit for the hides between the principal and the purchaser whether the selling of the hides by the agent was within the fair scope of the business. Jacobson v. Poindexter, 42 Ark. 97.

A builder made a written contract to furnish the materials and build a house for the defendant according to definite plans and specifications and for a fixed sum, all the materials and work to be accepted by an architect named, who was to superintend the construction. The builder, under the direction of the architect, did certain work variant from and in addition to the specifications, which increased the cost and value of the house. Held, that the ordering of this work was beyond the scope of the architect's agency, and that the defendant was not liable to the builder for it. Starkweather v. Goodman, 48 Conn. 101; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 152.

The presumption is that one known to be an agent is acting within the scope of his authority. Brett v. Bassett, 63 Iowa, 340.

1. Campbell v. Sherman, 49 Mich. 534; Coon v. Gurley, 49 Ind. 199.

If a debtor pays money to a third party as the agent of his creditor, and afterward, under protest, pays again to the creditor, he cannot recover of the creditor that which he paid the supposed agent; for if he was really the agent, it was but a payment of his debt; if he was not the agent, the creditor is of course not liable. Clowdis v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 614; s. c., 71 Mo. 510.

Declarations made by an agent subsequently to his agency as to any acts done by him within the scope thereof before its termination, are inadmissible to prove the transaction, although competent by way of contradicting his denial thereof. McComb v. N. C. R. Co., 70 N. Car. 178; Stenhouse v. Charl., etc., R. Co., 70 N. Car. 542.

2. Kerslake v. Schoonmaker, 3 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 524; Armour v. Mich. Centr. R. Co., 65 (N. Y.) 111; Engl v. Greenebaum, 4 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 426; Beecher v. Venn, 35 Mich. 466; Tozier v. Crafts, 123 Mass. 480; Putnam v. Home Ins. Co., 123 Mass. 324; Knight v. Luce, 116 Mass. 586; Newman v. British, etc., S. Co., 113 Mass. 362; Rice v. Groffman, 56 Mo. 434; Meyer v. Hehner, 96 Ill. 400; St. Louis, etc., Packet Co. v. Parker, 59 Ill. 23; Home Life Ins. Co. v. Pierce, 75 Ill. 426; Fatman v. Leet, 41 Ind. 133.

M., the travelling salesman of a sewing-machine company, visited Lawrence to solicit purchasers for sewing-machines. He represented that the machines he was selling were superior to sewing-machines in the sale of which defendant was then engaged. He obtained an order from defendant. In the order signed by defendant it was provided "that the only condition under which this order is given is as stated herein, and that no agreement different from this can be made except it be in writing and is signed by the general manager of the Victor Sewing-machine Company." The machines were not superior, and the defendant offered to return the property and cancel the contract. M., the salesman, took back the goods and released the defendant from the order. Held, that the company was bound by the declarations of its agent, and that, the representations not being true, the company was not entitled to recover upon the order after such return of the goods. Victor S. M. Co. v. Rheinschild, 25 Kans. 534. See AUTHORITY OF AGENTS, infra.

But the act of an agent in excess of his authority never binds the principal unless a third party, having a right to believe that the agent was acting within his authority, would sustain a loss if the act was not considered that of his principal. Walsh v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 73 N. Y. 5.

Nor when a third party is proved to have known that the agent exceeded his authority. Broadway Sav. Bank v. Vorster, 30 La. Ann. pt. 1, 587.

Nor where the transaction is of such a character as to put the third party on his guard. Merchants' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Excelsior Ins. Co., 4 Mo. App. 578.

Principal's Liability to Third Parties. AGENCY. Exclusive Credit given to Agent.

principal, having a right to sue, is also, when discovered, liable to a third party on the contract. The third party may elect whom he will sue. And the same rule holds good when the agent discloses his principal at the time.<sup>1</sup>

After a third party has elected whom to sue, and has sued either the agent or the principal to judgment, he cannot after that sue the other; and it does not matter whether the suit has been successful or not.<sup>2</sup>

Exclusive Credit given to Agent.—Where a third party, knowing that the agent acts for his principal, elects at the time of the making of the contract to give exclusive credit to the agent, he cannot afterward sue the principal.<sup>3</sup>

1. McGraw v. Godfrey, 14 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 397; s. c., 56 N. Y. 610; Meeker v. Claghorn, 44 N. Y. 349; Duval v. Wood, 3 Lans. (N. Y.) 489; Inglehart v. Thousand Isl. Hot. Co., 7 Hun (N. Y.), 547; Allen v. Coit, 6 Hill (N. Y.), 318; Poole v. Rice, 9 W. Va. 73; Chandler v. Coe, 54 N. H. 561; Upton v. Gray, 2 Me. 372; Jones v. Ætna Ins. Co., 14 Conn. 501; Merrill v. Kenyon, 48 Conn. 314; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 174; York Co. Bank v. Stein, 24 Md. 447; Parker v. Donaldson, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 9; Youghiogeny Iron Co. v. Smith, 66 Pa. St. 340; Beymer v. Bonsal, 79 Pa. St. 298; Barker v. Garvey, 83 Ill. 184; Wheeler v. Reed, 36 Ill. 81; Kerchner v. Reilly, 72 N. Car. 171; Lovell v. Williams, 125 Mass. 439; Carroll v. St. John's Soc., 125 Mass. 565; Gilmore v. Pope, 5 Mass. 491; James v. Bixby, 11 Mass. 34; Southard v. Sturtevant, 109 Mass. 390; Vermont R. Co. v. Claves, 21 Vt. 30; Baldwin v. Leonard, 39 Vt. 260; Borcherling v. Katz, 37 N. J. Eq. 150; Thomas v. Atkinson, 38 Ind. 248; Clark v. Van Riemsdyk, 9 Cranch. (U. S.) 153; Ford v. Williams, 21 How. (U. S.) 288; Pope v. Meadow Spring Dist. Co., 20 Fed. Repr. 35. Compare Yenni v. Ocean Nat. Bank, 5 Daly (N. Y.), 421.

The responsibility of an undisclosed principal, when discovered, cannot be defeated by a private contract between the principal and the agent that the agent alone will be held liable. Richardson v. Farmer, 36 Mo. 35; Mitchell v. Dall, 2 H. & G. (Md.) 159.

But the rule that an unnamed and unknown principal shall stand liable for the contract of his agent, does not apply to a demise under seal. The relation between the owner of land and those who occupy it of a purely legal character; and the fact that a lessee takes a lease for an unnamed principal, but in his own name, will not render the unnamed principal liable for the rent. Borcherling v. Katz, 37 N. J. Eq. 150; Kiersted v. Orange, etc., R. Co., 69 N. Y. 343; Durand v. Curtis, 56 N. Y. 7; Sanders v. Partridge, 108 Mass. 556.

2. Gerrard v. Moody, 48 Ga. 96; Cobb v. Knapp, 71 N. Y. 348; McGraw v. Godfrey, 14 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 397; s. c., 56 N. Y. 610; Jones v. Ætna Ins. Co., 14 Conn. 501; Kingsley v. Davis, 104 Mass. 178; Priestley v. Ferney, 3 H. & C. 977; 34 L. J. Ex. 172.

It seems that where an agent contracts for the purchase of property in his own name without disclosing his principal, and the contract is such as may be enforced against the principal when discovered, the vendor cannot enforce it against both principal and agent, but is put to his election, and having after such discovery brought an action and recovered judgment against the agent, he is estopped from charging the principal. Tuthill v. Wilson, 90 N. Y. 423.

The commencement of an action against the principal, though proper to be considered by the jury, is, however, not conclusive of an election to hold the principal only responsible. The creditor may discontinue his action against one of the parties before judgment, and take fresh proceedings against the other. Cobb v. Knapp, 71 N. Y. 348; Raymond v. Crown E. Mills, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 319; Mattlage v. Poole, 15 Hun (N. Y.), 556; McGraw v. Moody, 14 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 397; Gerrard v. Moody, 48 Ga. 96.

In Beymer v. Bonsal, 79 Pa. St. 298, it was held that neither principal nor agent could be discharged short of satisfaction.

3. Silver v. Jordan 136 Mass. 319; Raymond v. Crown E. Mills, 2 Metc. (Mass.) 319; James v. Bixby, 11 Mass. 34; Winchester v. Howard, 97 Mass. 303; Paige v. Stone, 10 Metc. (Mass.) 160; French v. Price, 24 Pick. (Mass.) 13;

Liab. for Fraud and Deceit of Agent.—Principals, whether individuals or corporations, are as a rule, although not criminaliter, yet civiliter, liable to third parties for the fraud and deceit of their agents when committed in the course of the principals' business. For, since somebody must be the loser by the deceit, it is more reasonable that he who employs and puts confidence in the deceiver should be a loser than a stranger.<sup>1</sup>

Mauri v. Hefferman, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 58; Coleman v. First Nat. Bank, 53 N. Y. 388; Cunningham v. Soules, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 106; Cheever v. Smith, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 276; Jones v. Ins. Co., 14 Conn. 501; Johnson v. Cleves, 15 N. H. 332; Priestley v. Fernie, 3 H. & C. 977; Kymer v. Suwercroft, 1 Camp. 112.

The legal presumption is, however, that the principal is liable although entries in the books of the third party may charge the agent. Meeker v. Claghorn, 44 N. Y. 349; Foster v. Persch, 68 N. Y. 400.

Where a seller takes the promissory note of the buyer for the goods, with knowledge that he is an agent, but without knowledge who is the principal, he is not debarred thereby from electing to make the principal his debtor. Merrill v. Kenyon, 48 Conn. 314; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 174.

See also LIABILITY OF AGENTS TO THIRD PARTIES; also AUTHORITY OF AGENTS, which see also for liability of principal when agent exceeds his authority.

1. Hern v. Nichols, 1 Salk. 289; Jeffrey v. Bigelow, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 518; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 476; Davis v. Bemis, 40 N. Y. 453; Sandford v. Handy, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 260; New York & N. H. R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30; Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Minch., 5 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 545; Elwell v. Chamberlin, 31 N. Y. 611, 619; Weed v. Panama R. Co., 17 N. Y. 362; Griswold v. Haven, 25 N. Y. 595; Allerton v. Allerton, 50 N. Y. 670; Bennett v. Judson, 21 N. Y. 238; Crans v. Hunter, 28 N. Y. 389; Locke v. Stearns, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 560; White v. Sawyer, 16 Gray (Mass.), 586; Concord Bank v. Gregg, 14 N. H. 331; Scofield Rolling Mill Co. v. State, 54 Ga. 635; Lynn v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 60 Md. 404; s. c., 45 Am. Rep. 741; Tome v. Parkesburgh, etc., R. Co., 39 Md. 36; Peebles v. Patapsco Guano Co., 77 N. Car. 233; Reynolds v. Witte, 13 S. Car. 5; s. c., 36 Am. Rep. 678; Bowers v. Johnson, 18 Miss. 169; Lawrence v. Hand, 23 Miss. 103; Mundorff v. Wickersham, 63 Pa. St. 87; Eilenberger v. Prot. Mut. F. Ins. Co., 89 Pa. St. 464; Taggs v. Tenn.

Nat. Bank, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 479; Wolfe v. Pugh, 101 Ind. 293; Madison R. v. Norwich, 24 Ind. 457; Haskit v. Elliott, 58 Ind. 493; Law v. Grant, 37 Wis. 548; Crump v. U. S. Mining Co., 7 Gratt. (Va.) 352; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 116; Reeves v. State Bank, 8 Ohio St. 465, 476; Bristol Knife Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 41 Conn. 421; Brokaw v. N. J. R. Co., 32 N. J. L. 328; Vance v. Erie R. Co., 32 N. J. L. 334; Upton v. Tribilcock, 91 U. S. 45; White v. Wabash, etc., R. Co., 64 Iowa, 281; Dougherty v. Wells, 7 Nev. 368.

An innocent vendor cannot be sued in tort for the fraud of his agent in effecting a sale. In such a case the vendee may rescind the contract and reclaim the money paid, and if not repaid may sue the vendor in assumpsit for it, or he may sue the agent for the deceit. Kennedy v. McKay, 43 N. J. L. 288; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 581.

If an agent effects a sale by false representations or other fraud, without authority or knowledge of the principal, the latter is chargeable with such fraud in the same manner as if he had known or authorized it. Lynch v. Mercantile Trust Co., 18 Fed. Rep. 486; Law v. Grant, 37 Wis. 548; Bennett v. Judson, 21 N. Y. 238; Elwell v. Chamberlin, 31 N. Y. 611, 619; Rhoda v. Annis, 75 Me. 17; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 354. Compare Bridges v. McClendon, 56 Ala. 327.

A person is not bound by a contract which he is induced to sign by representations of an agent made, while acting within the scope of his agency, as true of his own knowledge, but which prove to be false, although not known by the agent to be so; and the principal is bound by such representations, although he does not expressly authorize them or know that the agent is to make them. Jewett v. Carter, 132 Mass. 335; Locke v. Stearns, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 560; Kibbe v. Hamilton Ins. Co., 11 Gray (Mass.), 163.

A fortiori where the fraud or deceit was authorized by the principal. Peebles v. Patapsco Guano Co., 77 N. Car. 233; Brokaw v. N. J. R. Co., 32 N. J. L. 328; Vance v. Erie R. Co., 32 N. J. L. 334; Hunter v. Hudson River Iron & Machine Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 493; Phelps

Principal's Liability to Third Parties. AGENCY. When Liable for Agent's Fraud.

Committed in Course of Employment.—The deceit or fraud, to make the principal liable on it, must have been committed in the course of the agent's employment.<sup>1</sup>

v. Wait, 30 N. Y. 78; Gass v. Coblens, 43 Mo. 377; Fogg v. Griffin, 2 Allen (Mass.), 1; Hewett v. Swift, 2 Allen (Mass.), 420; Severin v. Eddy, 52 Ill. 189; Carman v. Railr. Co., 4 Ohio St. 399; Galena R. Co. v. Rac, 18 Ill. 488; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 574; Hynes v. Jungren, 8 Kans. 391.

Or where the principal has received a benefit from the fraudulent transaction. Hewett v. Swift, 3 Allen (Mass.), 420; Bryant v. Rich, 106 Mass. 180; Atlantic Co. v. Merchants' Co., 10 Gray (Mass.), 532; Cook v. Castner, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 266; Kibbe v. Ins. Co., 11 Gray (Mass.), 163; Lane v. Black, 21 W. Va. 617; Morton v. Scull, 23 Ark. 289; Durst v. Burton, 47 N. Y. 167; s. c., 2 Lans. (N. Y.) 137; Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 79; Griswold v. Haven, 25 N. Y. 595; Jeffrey v. Bigelow, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 518; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 476; Woodward v. Webb, 65 Pa. St. 254; Fox v. N. Lib., 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 103; Priester v. Angley, 5 Rich. (S. Car.) 44; Bank v. Bank of the State, 13 Rich. (S. Car.) 291; Exum v. Brister, 35 Miss. 391; Wallace v. Morgan, 23 Ind. 399; Evansville v. Baum, 26 Ind. 70; Veazie v. Williams, 8 How. (U. S.) 138; Doggett v. Emerson, 3 Story (U. S.), 700; Nicoll v. Am. Co., 3 Wood & M. (U. S.) 529.

Where one is induced to become surety on a promissory note by the representations of the secretary of a building association, the association cannot allege a want of authority in the secretary to make such representations when the surety makes defence on the terms of the agreement. The association cannot have the benefit of the security and at the same time repudiate the contract by means of which they obtained it. Jones v. Nat. Building Assoc., 94 Pa. St. 215.

In a suit for damages against the principal for the tort of an agent, the plaintiff alleged, and testified, that he hired a horse to the agent, who was travelling about the country selling steam-engines in the interest of his principal (a manufacturing company), and that the horse was injured by misuse and overdriving. The defendant admitted the agency, but asked the court to instruct the jury that there was no evidence the agent had authority from the principal to hire horses, which was refused; held, no error. Huntley v. Mathias, 90 N. Car. 101; s. c., 47 Am. Rep. 516.

Where a member of a firm makes a settlement with an insurance company for loss by fire, which was procured by the fraud of an agent of the company, the firm must restore what was received under the settlement before bringing suit upon the policy. Brown v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 117 Mass. 479.

Even where a principal takes no advantage of a fraud he cannot sue on a contract based on it. Concord Bank v. Gregg, 14 N. H. 331; Wright v. Calhoun, 19 Tex. 412; Robinson v. Bealle, 20 Ga. 275; Cassard v. Hinmann, 6 Bosw. (N. Y.) 8.

H., the owner of chattels, relying on the representations of R. that he was the agent of L., agreed to sell the same to L. on credit, and H., in the belief that R. was such agent, delivered the chattels to him, when in fact he was not such agent, nor had he authority to purchase for L., as he well knew. Held, that the property in the chattels did not pass from H., and that L., who bought the chattels of R. and converted them to his own use, without knowledge of the fraud, was liable to H. for their value; and the fact that R., at the time the chattels were delivered to him, paid H. part of the price agreed on, will make no difference, except as to the amount of recovery against L. Hamet v. Letcher, 37 Ohio St. 356; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 519; citing Moody v. Blake, 117 Mass. 23; Barker v. Dinsmore, 72 Pa. St. 427; Salts v. Everett, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 267; Fawcett v. Osborn, 32 Ill. 411; Hardman v. Booth, 1 H. & C. 803; Higsons v. Burton, 26 L. J. Ex. 342; Kingsford v. Merry, 1 H. & N. 503; Hollins v. Fowler, L. R. 7 Q. B. 616; affirmed, L. R. 7 App. 757; in re Reed, 3 Ch. D. 123; Lickbarrow v. Mason, 1 Smith's L. C. 2 pt. 1195; Cundy v. Lindsay, 3 App. Cas. 459; Sanders v. Miller, 28 Ohio St. 630. See Benjamin on Sales, §§ 433 et seq.

But one who obtains possession of property by deceit from one whom he is bound to know not to be the owner's agent cannot hold it as against the owner. Rafferty v. Haldron, 81* Pa. St. 438.

1. Wilson v. Peverly, 2 N. H. 548; Harris v. Nicholas, 5 Munf. (Va.) 483; McClenaghan v. Brock, 5 Rich. L. (S. Car.) 17; Brown v. Purviance, 2 H. & G. (Md.) 316; Fiske v. Framingham Co., 14 Pick. (Mass.) 491; Jackson v. Second Ave. R. Co., 47 N. Y. 274; Isaacs v. Third Ave. R. Co., 47 N. Y. 122; Rich-

Liable for Negligence of Agent.—As a rule a principal is liable for the result of acts of negligence of his agents, when he is acting within the scope of his authority; but not when he is not acting within the scope of his employment.<sup>1</sup>

14. Notice to Agent is Notice to Principal.—In the relation of the principal to a third party the undisputed rule exists that notice to the agent is notice to the principal, if the agent comes to the knowledge of facts while he is acting for the principal.<sup>2</sup>

mond St. Co. v. Vanderbilt, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 480; Kerns v. Piper, 4 Watts (Pa.), 222; Repohar v. Wattson, 17 Pa. St. 365; Hannibal, etc., R. Co. v. Green, 68 Mo. 169; Dally v. Young, 3 Ill. App. 39.

The plaintiffs, who were engaged in business in the city of O. in this State, wrote a letter to one N., their salesman at Ogden, Utah Territory, authorizing him to draw on them for $75. He placed a figure "1" before the figures "75," whereby the letter was changed to show authority to draw for $175. The letter, as changed, he showed to one B., the hotel-keeper with whom he was stopping, and thereby induced him to indorse a draft on the plaintiff for $150. The draft having been protested for non-acceptance, and paid by the indorsee, held, that he could recover against the plaintiffs to the extent of the authority of their salesman to draw on them. Wilson v. Beardsley, 30 N. Western Repr. (Neb.) 529.

So are the representations of a solicitor of subscriptions to the stock of a gravel-road company made before the organization of the company concerning the location of the road, and that the stock would not have to be paid for, not binding on the company; and their falsity is no defence as a failure of consideration or otherwise in an action by the company on the subscription of a person to whom such representations were made. Miller v. Wildcat Gravel Road Co., 52 Ind. 51.

An agent intrusted with money to invest exacted usury, in the way of a bonus to himself, without knowledge of the principal. Held, that this did not constitute usury in the principal. Condit v. Baldwin, 21 N. Y. 219; s. c., 78 Am. Dec. 137. See Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 79; Estevez v. Purdy, 66 N. Y. 446; Boylston v. Bain, 90 Ill. 283. Compare Olmsted v. New Engl. Mortgage, etc., Co., 11 Neb. 487.

The right of an agent to enter into an illegal contract will not ordinarily be presumed, and the contract is not obligatory on the principal and he may disaffirm it. Arnot v. Pittston, etc., R. Co., 5 Th. & C. (N. Y.) 143.

Where a son had been in the habit of receiving goods consigned to his father, and he orders goods to be shipped and charged to his father, and receives them from the carrier, the father will not be liable if the seller had any reason to believe that the son ordered the goods for his own use. Stephenson v. Grim, 100 Pa. St. 70.

1. Weed v. Panama R. Co., 17 N. Y. 362; Blackstock v. N. Y. & Erie R. Co., 20 N. Y. 48; Richmond Turnpike Co. v. Vanderbilt, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 480; Isaacs v. Third Ave. R. Co., 47 N. Y. 122; Jackson v. Second Ave. R. Co., 47 N. Y. 274; Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Bayfield, 37 Mich. 205; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Halleck, 13 Ill. App. 643; Marsh v. S. Car. R. Co., 56 Ga. 274; Southwick v. Estes, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 385; Montague v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 124 Mass. 242; Richoux v. Mayer, 29 La. Ann. 828; Brown v. Purviance, 2 H. & G. (Md.) 316; Penn., etc., Nav. Co. v. Hungerford, 6 G. & J. (Md.) 291; Pickens v. Diecker, 21 Ohio St. 212; Barber v. Britton, 26 Vt. 112; Harris v. Nicholas, 5 Munf. (Vt.) 483; Petersburgh v. Applegarth, 28 Gratt. (Va.) 321; Oliver v. Northern, etc., Trans. Co., 3 Oreg. 84; Kerns v. Piper, 4 Watts (Pa.), 222; McClenaghan v. Brock, 5 Rich. L. (S. Car.) 17; Eastman v. Meredith, 36 N. H. 284; s. c., 72 Am. Dec. 302; Edgerly v. Concord, 59 N. H. 341; Wakefield v. Newport, 60 N. H. 374; Wilson v. Peverly, 2 N. H. 548; Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. v. Derby, 14 How. (U. S.) 468. See also MASTER AND SERVANT.

2. Bank of U. S. v. Davis, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 451; Jackson v. Sharp, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 163; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 267; Jackson v. Winslow, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 13; Hier v. Odell, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 314; Jackson v. Leek, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 339; Fulton Bank v. Canal Co., 4 Paige (N. Y.), 127; Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Minch, 53 N. Y. 144; Miaghan v. Hartford Ins. Co., 24 Hun (N. Y.), 59; Ward v. Warren, 82 N. Y. 265; Ingalls v. Morgan, 10 N. Y. 178; Bracken v. Miller, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 102; Reed's Appeal, 34 Pa. St. 207; Philadelphia v. Lockhardt, 73 Pa. St. 211; Houseman v. Girard Assoc., 8 Pa. St. 286; Sterling Bridge Co. v. Baker, 75 Ill. 139; Williams

v. Tatnall, 29 Ill. 553; Flower v. Ellwood, 66 Ill. 438; Singer Mfg. Co. v. Holdfodt, 86 Ill. 455; Quincy Coal Co. v. Hood, 77 Ill. 68; Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Thomas, 42 Ala. 672; Farmer v. Willard, 71 N. Car. 284; Monroe v. Stulte, 9 Ired. (N. Car.) 281; Grandy v. Ferebee, 68 N. Car. 356; Owens v. Roberts, 36 Wis. 258; Gans v. St. Paul, etc., Ins. Co., 43 Wis. 108; Union Gold Mining Co. v. Rocky Mt. Nat. Bank, 2 Colo. 565; Whitehead v. Wells, 29 Ark. 99; Suit v. Woodhall, 113 Mass. 391; Allen v. Poole, 54 Miss. 323; Saulsbury v. Wimberly, 60 Ga. 78; Memphis, etc., R. Co. v. Koch, 28 Kans. 565; Ross v. Houston, 25 Miss. 591; s. c., 59 Am. Dec. 231; Mass. L. Ins. Co. v. Eshelman, 30 Ohio St. 647; Slater v. Irwin, 38 Iowa, 261; Hovey v. Blanchard, 13 N. H. 145; Smith v. Water Com'rs, 38 Conn. 208; Pritchett v. Sessions, 10 Rich. (S. Car.) 293; Hill v. North, 34 Vt. 604; Sooy v. State, 41 N. J. L. 394; Covey v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 86 Mo. 635; Chouteau v. Allen, 70 Mo. 290; Taylor v. Young, 56 Mich. 285; Grace v. Am. Cent. Ins. Co., 16 Blatch. (U. S.) 433; Rogers v. Palmer, 102 U. S. 263; Hoover v. Wise, 91 U. S. 308; Flagg v. Mann, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 486; Bowman v. Wathen, 1 How. (U. S.) 196; Astor v. Wells, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 466; Mech. Bank v. Seton, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 299.

The plaintiff signed an application for insurance, which was written by B., "an insurance broker," in the office of the defendant's agent. The defendant returned the application to its agent for further information as to the occupancy and ownership of the property insured. The agent handed it to B., requesting him "to go and get the reply." B. took it, saw the assured, and although he learned from him that he was only a conditional vendee in possession of the personal property, and the vendor the tenant of the store in which it was situated, wrote in it that the assured was both the owner and tenant. B. was neither appointed nor recognized as agent by the company, nor by its agent. Held, that the writing of the false statements, in legal significance, was the act of the agent; that the knowledge of B. was the knowledge of the company, and that it was estopped from claiming a forfeiture; that the defendant could not avoid its responsibilities by repudiating the acts of its agent, though done in part by a person employed by him. Mullin v. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 58 Vt. 113.

Where the statements made in an application for insurance were by the contract made a warranty by the assured, but the company, by its agent, who had authority to take the risk, was on the premises when the application was made, and then viewed the property, and himself filled out the application, writing therein statements which he knew were not true, held, that the agent's knowledge should be imputed to the company, and that it was estopped from claiming that the representations in the application were not true. Eggleston v. Council Bluffs Ins. Co., 65 Iowa, 308.

If an agent has notice, at the time of his purchase for his principal, of the equitable rights of another, and of the claim of the latter to have previously purchased the subject-matter of the sale, this will be notice to the principal. Whitney v. Burr, 115 Ill. 289.

He who takes with notice of an equity takes subject to the equity. Notice is not necessarily positive information brought directly home, but any fact that would put an ordinarily prudent man on inquiry; and a party will be as much bound by notice given to his agent as if it was given to himself personally; and the fact that the agent may be unable to read and write will be immaterial. Meier v. Blume, 80 Mo. 179.

A policy of fire insurance upon a building was issued by defendant, loss if any payable to a mortgagee named. The policy contained a condition avoiding it in case of "increase of hazard" by the erection of neighboring buildings, but in a "mortgage clause" it was declared that the interest of the mortgagee would not be invalidated by any act or neglect of the mortgagor. The mortgagee, however, was required to notify the company of any increase of hazard which shall come to his knowledge. The policy provided for a renewal, but declared that "in case there shall have been any increase of hazard it must be made known to the company by the assured at the time of renewal, otherwise this policy shall be void." During the life of the original policy the insured erected a building near the one insured which increased the hazard. A loss occurred after the expiration of the original policy. In an action thereon a renewal was claimed by plaintiff. It appeared that the broker who acted on behalf of the insured, and the mortgagee, in making the alleged renewal agreement with the company, had knowledge at the time of the erection of the new building, but did not disclose the same. Held, that the knowledge of the agent was imputable to his principal, the mortgagee, and that his failure to disclose it avoided the policy, conceding

But notice to the agent to bind the principal must be within the scope of the agent's employment.<sup>1</sup>

Notice to an agent of any fact outside the scope of his agency will not affect the principal.<sup>2</sup>

Corporations.—The rule that a notice to the agent to bind the principal must be within the scope of his employment, and while there was a valid renewal agreement. Cole v. Germania Ins. Co., 99 N. Y. 36.

Notice to an agent before the agency is begun, or after it has terminated, will not ordinarily affect the principal. Anderson v. Volmer, 83 Mo. 403; Hayward v. Nat. F. Ins. Co., 52 Mo. 188; Mechanics' Bank v. Schaumburg, 38 Mo. 228; Houseman v. Building Assoc., 81 Pa. St. 256; Hood v. Fahnestock, 8 Watts (Pa.), 489; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 489; Smith's Appeal, 47 Pa. St. 128; Plympton v. Preston, 4 La. Ann. 356; Ben Franklin's Ins. Co. v. Weary, 4 Ill. App. 74; Day v. Wamsley, 33 Ind. 145; Blumenthal v. Brainerd, 38 Vt. 402; Howard Ins. Co. v. Halsey, 8 N. Y. 271; Boardman v. Taylor, 66 Ga. 638; Yerger v. Barz, 56 Iowa, 77; McCormick v. Wheeler, 36 Ill. 114; Pepper v. George, 51 Ala. 190; Pringle v. Dunn, 37 Wis. 451; Crane v. City Ins. Co., 3 Fed. Repr. 558; s. c., 2 Flipp. (U. S.) 576.

A notice to a principal cannot be established by the declarations of an agent after the transactions in which he was agent have been closed and completed. Greer v. Higgins, 8 Kans. 519.

1. Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Minch, 53 N. Y. 144; Ward v. Warren, 82 N. Y. 265; Hier v. Odell, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 314; Greentree v. Rosenstock, 61 N. Y. 583; Owens v. Roberts, 36 Wis. 258; Congar v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 24 Wis. 157; Pringle v. Dunn, 37 Wis. 449; Suit v. Woodhall, 113 Mass. 391; Foster v. Boston, 127 Mass. 290; Farrington v. Woodward, 82 Pa. St. 259; Bracken v. Miller, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 102; Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Taylor, 73 Pa. St. 342; Tagg v. Tenn. Nat. Bank, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 479; Hovey v. Blanchard, 13 N. H. 145; Ross v. Houston, 25 Miss. 591; s. c., 59 Am. Dec. 231; Adam's Expr. Co. v. Trego, 35 Md. 47; Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Thomas, 42 Ala. 672; Bierce v. Red Bluff Hotel Co., 31 Cal. 160; Smith v. Water Com'rs, 38 Conn. 208; Flower v. Elwood, 66 Ill. 438; Slater v. Irwin, 38 Iowa, 261; The Distilled Spirits, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 356; Rogers v. Palmer, 102 U. S. 263.

Notice to a son that his father's cattle has been seized is notice to the father where the son has authority to institute an action of replevin. Campan v. Konan, 39 Mich. 362.

Where an agent is clothed with ample powers to buy and sell real estate, institute and defend suits in the name of his principal, actual notice to him in relation to the subject-matter of the agency is actual notice to the principal, and is a valid defence on a motion to set aside a judgment rendered by default cancelling a tax deed. Merriam v. Calhoun, 15 Neb. 569.

Notice to an agent of a bank intrusted with the management of its business is notice to the corporation in transactions conducted by such agent acting for the corporation, in the scope of his authority, whether the knowledge of the agent was acquired in the course of the particular dealing or on some prior occasion. Cragie v. Hadley, 99 N. Y. 131.

Notice to the agent is notice to the principal when the latter if acting for himself would have received notice of the matters known to the agent. Sovy v. State, 41 N. J. L. 394.

2. Roach v. Karr, 18 Kans. 329; Mound City L. I. Co. v. Twining, 19 Kans. 349; Adams Expr. Co. v. Trego, 35 Md. 47; Congar v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 24 Wis. 157; Wells v. Am. Expr. Co., 44 Wis. 342; Smith v. Water Com'rs, 38 Conn. 208.

Notice to a depot agent of an assignment of a chose of action is not notice to the company. Lambreth v. Clarke, 10 Heisk. (Tenn.) 32.

Notice of an auctioneer of the pendency of a suit against his principal respecting the property to be sold by him is not notice to the principal. Hinton v. Citizens' Ins. Co., 63 Ala. 488.

The collection of a judgment which a third party had obtained against the agent was not a matter pertaining to the agency; and upon execution on such judgment, notice served upon the agent only, in proceedings whereby it was sought to hold the principal as garnishee, was no notice to the principal. Upton Mfg. Co. v. Stewart, 61 Iowa, 209.

Knowledge acquired by an attorney while acting for one client will not affect another client for whom he is acting a.

acting within the range of his authority, applies specially to agents of corporations.<sup>1</sup>

To whom Notice must be given.—In the case of notice to directors of a bank it has been held that the notice must have been given officially to the whole board or to a majority of them acting in the transaction affected by the notice; but it has also been held that notice of facts to one director acting in such a transaction is notice to the corporation.<sup>2</sup>

When Notice must be given to Agent to bind Principal.—Some authorities hold that a notice which will bind the principal must have been given to the agent in the particular transaction to which the notice relates;<sup>3</sup> others, that knowledge of the agent is knowledge of the principal, no matter when and how the knowledge came to the agent, as long as it was in the agent's mind at the time of the transaction affected by it.<sup>4</sup>

the same time in a different case. Ford v. French, 72 Mo. 250.

1. Mechanics' Bank v. Seton, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 299; Lyman v. Bank, 12 How. (U. S.) 225; Porter v. Bank of Rutland, 19 Vt. 410; New Hampshire Sav. Bank v. Downing, 16 N. H. 187; Housatonic Bank v. Martin, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 294; Washington Bank v. Lewis, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 24, 31; Commercial Bank v. Cunningham, 24 Pick. (Mass.) 270; Frost v. Belmont, 6 Allen (Mass.), 152; Weld v. Gorham, 10 Mass 366; West Boston Sav. Bank v. Thompson, 124 Mass. 506; Farmers' Bank v. Payne, 25 Conn. 444; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 362; Bank of New Milford v. Milford, 36 Conn. 93; Smith v. Water Com'rs, 38 Conn. 208; Willard v. Buckingham, 36 Conn. 395; Trenton Bank v. Woodruff, 2 N. J. Eq. 117; Custer v. Bank, 9 Pa. St. 27; Bank v. Whitehead, 10 Watts (Pa.), 397; Bank of U. S. v. Davis, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 451; Fulton Bank v. Canal Co., 4 Paige (N. Y.), 127; New Hope Bridge Co. v. Phoenix Bank, 3 N. Y. 156; Westfield Bank v. Cornen, 37 N. Y. 320; Atlantic Bank v. Savery, 82 N. Y. 291; Second Nat. Bank v. Curren, 36 Iowa, 555; Louisiana Bank v. Senecal, 13 La. 525; Branch Bank v. Steele, 10 Ala. 915; Goodloe v. Godley, 21 Miss. 233; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 159; Harriman v. Queen Ins. Co., 49 Wis. 71.

Knowledge of a person occupying two positions,—one the treasurer of a company, and the other the cashier of a bank,—which knowledge he acquires in the capacity of treasurer, cannot be imputed to the bank, unless revealed by him to some of the officers thereof. Wilson v. Second Nat. Bank, 7 Atl. Repr. (Pa.) 145.

Where a bank bought a note upon the representations of an attorney who informed the bank of all facts essential to its knowledge, and who knew that the note was not held by his principal in his own right but only in trust, the bank was presumed to have known what it could so easily have ascertained. Smith v. Ayer, 101 U. S. 320.

2. Louisiana State Bank v. Senecal, 13 La. 525; Housatonic Bank v. Martin, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 294; Commercial Bank v. Cunningham, 24 Pick. (Mass.) 270; Hal-lowell, etc., Bank v. Hamlin, 14 Mass. 180; Nat. Sec. Bank v. Cushman, 121 Mass. 490; Nat. Bank v. Norton, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 572; Bank of U. S. v. Davis, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 451; North River Bank v. Aymar, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 262; Davis Improved, etc., Co. v. Davis Wrought Iron, etc., Co., 20 Fed. Repr. 699; Fairfield Sav. Bank v. Chase, 72 Me. 226; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 319.

3. Farmers' Bank v. Payne, 25 Conn. 444; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 362; Bank of U. S. v. Davis, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 451; Westfield Bank v. Cornen, 37 N. Y. 320; Jackson v. Sharp, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 163; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 267; Hood v. Fahnestock, 8 Watts (Pa.), 489; Bracken v. Miller, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 102; Winchester v. Railroad, 4 Md. 231; Keenan v. Ins. Co., 12 Iowa, 126; Second Nat. Bank v. Curren, 36 Iowa, 555; McCormick v. Wheeler, 36 Ill. 114; Congar v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 24 Wis. 157; Bierce v. Red Bluff Hotel Co., 31 Cal. 160. And see Lawrence v. Tucker, 7 Greenl. (Me.) 195.

4. The Distilled Spirits, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 356; Blumenthal v. Brainerd, 38 Vt. 402; Hart v. Farmers' Bank, 33 Vt. 252; Hayward v. Nat. Ins. Co., 52 Mo. 181; Chouteau v. Allen, 70 Mo. 290; Hovey v. Blanchard, 13 N. H. 145; Patten v. Ins. Co., 40 N. H. 375; Mullin v. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 58 Vt. 113; Lebanon Sav.

Collusion.—If an agent should collude with a third party to defraud the principal, the latter will not be responsible for knowledge of the agent in relation to such fraud.<sup>1</sup>

While the knowledge of an agent is ordinarily to be imputed to the principal, it would appear now to be well established that there is an exception to the construction or imputation of notice from the agent to the principal in case of such conduct by the agent as raises a clear presumption that he would not communicate the fact in controversy, as where the communication of such a fact would necessarily prevent the consummation of a fraudulent scheme which the agent was engaged in perpetrating.<sup>2</sup>

15. Rights of Principals against Third Parties.—May Sue Third Parties on Contracts of Agent.—Those acts or contracts of an agent which render the principal liable to third parties impose on the third parties themselves a reciprocal obligation to the principal; and as the principal is liable to the burden of such acts or contracts, whether the agent had authority originally or his acts have been duly ratified, so he is entitled to the rights and benefits arising from such contracts, and may enforce these rights by action. And it does not matter whether the principal is disclosed or not,

Bank v. Hollenbeck, 29 Minn. 322; Fuller v. Atwood, 14 R. I. 293; Van Schoick v. Niagara F. Ins. Co., 68 N. Y. 434; Ingalls v. Morgan, 10 N. Y. 178; Flower v. Elwood, 66 Ill. 438; Williams v. Tattall, 29 Ind. 553; Wiley v. Knight, 27 Ala. 336; Dunlap v. Wilson, 32 Ill. 517; Pritchett v. Sessions, 10 Rich. (S. Car.) 293; Tagg v. Tenn. Nat. Bank, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 479; Fairfield Sav. Bank v. Chase, 72 Me. 226; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 319; Curtis v. Cisna, 7 Biss. (U. S.) 260; Dresser v. Norwood, 17 C. B. N. S. 466; 32 L. J. C. P. 201.

1. Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Minch, 53 N. Y. 144.

And where an officer of a corporation in his private capacity sells land to the corporation, he must be held not to represent them in the transaction so as to charge the corporation with the knowledge he may possess of facts derogatory to the title of the land and which he has not communicated to them. As such he is a stranger to the corporation. Barnes v. Trenton Gas-light Co., 27 N. J. Eq. 33.

Where the same person is an officer of two corporations, and he transfers securities issued by one to the other, with knowledge that the securities are subject to an infirmity which renders them invalid in any hands but those of a bona-fide holder for value, his knowledge is not the knowledge of the transferee. De Kay v. Hackensack Water Co., 38 N. J. Eq. 158.

2. Kennedy v. Green, 3 Myl. & K. 699; Cave v. Cave, 15 Ch. D. 639; In re European Bank, L. R. 5 Ch. 358; In re Marseilles Extension Railway, L. R. 7 Ch. 161; Atlantic National Bank v. Harris, 118 Mass. 147; Loring v. Brodie, 134 Mass. 453.

A, to whom B was indebted, advised C to lend money to B on the security of a mortgage of personal property, and acted as C's agent in completing the transaction. With the money thus obtained B paid A the debt he owed him. Both A and B acted in fraud, but C had no knowledge of the fraud. It was held that the knowledge of A was not in law imputable to C, although A had acted for C in the negotiation. Dillaway v. Butler, 135 Mass. 479.

A shipped a cargo of sugar to B, and gave him authority to sell the same. The bill of lading recited that the shipment was by order of B, and that the sugar was deliverable to his order, and made no mention of any agency. B indorsed the bill of lading, and delivered it to a bank of which he was a director, and pledged the cargo to the bank as security for a loan by the bank to him. This loan was approved by the board of directors, at a meeting at which B was present. Held, that B's knowledge of the fraud was not imputable to the bank; and that an action by A against the bank, for the conversion of the sugar, could not be maintained. Innerarity v. Merchants' National Bank, 139 Mass. 332.

nor that the agent in the transaction was considered to be the principal.<sup>1</sup>

1. Conklin v. Leeds, 58 Ill. 178; War der v. White, 14 Ill. App. 50; Machias Hotel Co. v. Coyle, 35 Me. 405; Frazier v. Erie Bank, 8 W. & S. (Pa.) 18; Childers v. Bowen, 68 Ala. 221; Kelley v. Munson, 7 Mass. 319; Bird v. Daggett, 97 Mass. 494; Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Allen, 116 Mass. 398; Lamson Mfg. Co. v. Russell, 112 Mass. 387; Everett v. Drew, 129 Mass. 150; Stoddard v. Ham, 129 Mass. 383; Willard v. Buckingham, 36 Conn. 395; Weed v. Saratoga, etc., R. Co., 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 534; Leverick v. Meigs, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 648; Taintor v. Prendergast, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 72; Elwell v. Chamberlin, 31 N. Y. 611; New York & N. H. R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30; Bridge v. Niagara Ins. Co., 1 Hill (N. Y.) 247; Hicks v. Whitmore, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 548; Nicoll v. Burke, 78 N. Y. 581; Bryant v. Wells, 56 N. H. 153; State of Wisconsin v. Torinus, 26 Minn. 1; Williams v. Winchester, 19 Martin (La.), 22; Brewster v. Saul, 8 La. 296; De Voss v. Richmond, 18 Gratt. (Va.) 338; Gage v. Stimson, 26 Minn. 64; Stonewall Mfg. Co. v. Peek, 63 Miss. 342; Walter v. Ross, 2 Wash. (U. S.) 283; United States v. Parmele, 1 Paine (U. S.), 252; Wilson v. Codman, 3 Cranch. (U. S.) 193.

Where a public officer knowingly makes a false record, and a person is injured in a transaction by reason of the fact that his agent, charged with the whole business pertaining to the transaction, is deceived by the record, the law will, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, treat the principal as deceived, and allow him to recover his damages in an action upon the official bond of the officer. Perkins v. Evans, 61 Iowa, 35.

As a party is liable for the acts of his agent, so he is entitled to the benefit of his agent's knowledge of facts justifying the bringing of suit. Stansell v. Cleveland, 64 Tex. 660.

When an agent makes a contract for the benefit of his principal, whose name is not disclosed, the principal may sue on it in his own name. Bell v. Reynolds, 78 Ala. 511; Baltimore Coal-tar, etc., Co. v. Fletcher, 61 Md. 288.

Although a third party, as by giving exclusive credit to or receiving exclusive credit from the agent, may estop himself from suing the principal, this does not prevent the principal from suing on contracts so entered into. Graham v. Duckwell, 8 Bush (Ky.), 12; Woodruff v. McGeehe, 30 Ga. 158; Foster v. Smith, 2

Cold. (Tenn.) 474; Conklin v. Leeds, 58 Ill. 178; Barry v. Page, 10 Gray (Mass.), 398; White v. Owen, 12 Vt. 361. Compare Roosevelt v. Doherty, 129 Mass. 301; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 356, where it was held that if a factor, under an entire contract for a gross sum, sells goods some of which belong to himself and some to his principal, the principal cannot maintain an action against the purchaser for the value of his goods.

A broker, who was not intrusted with the possession of the property contracted in his own name to sell the same to a vendee, who had no knowledge that the broker was not the real owner, but dealt with him as such. The owners, without any knowledge that the broker had contracted, in his own name, and without any conduct on their part clothing the broker with authority to receive payment for them, or any possession, actual or constructive, of the property, delivered the same to the vendee. Held, payment by the purchaser to the broker, under such circumstances, is not a bar to the right of recovery by the owner. Crosby v. Hill, 39 Ohio St. 100.

Notes payable to the order of an agent in the transaction, or transferred to him, and mortgages to secure them, are the property of the principal, and are transferable by delivery of the principal without indorsement of the agent; and the transferee may sue in equity in his own name to foreclose the mortgage and collect the debts. Caldwell v. Meshew, 44 Ark. 564.

Where an authorized agent settles an account and gives an order on third parties, acceptance and payment by them binds the party liable on the account; but if it was not authorized and was not made with a view of enabling the creditor to get his pay or a promise to pay from the debtor, he is not bound by it. Mink v. Morrison, 42 Mich. 567.

In cases where either the principal or the agent may sue on a contract entered into by the agent, the right of the principal is paramount to the right of the agent. Sadler v. Leigh, 4 Camp. 195; Taintor v. Prendergast, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 72.

Agents and principals are not in privity with each other in respect to property rights, and the principal is not concluded in that regard by the judgment in a suit brought against his agent. Nor does it make any difference that in such suit the

How Modified.—This right of the principal is affected and modified to the extent of his responsibility for the acts of his agent, as for declarations, misrepresentations, concealments, and fraud generally of the agent while acting within the scope of his authority.<sup>1</sup>

Subject to Equities.—And it is also modified in cases where the agent has been allowed to contract as principal with the third party without notice. In such a case a principal when he takes advantage of the agent's contract must do so subject to all equities and rights of which the other contracting party might avail himself in the transaction as against the agent, assuming the latter to have been a principal. The buyer is to be placed in the same situation at the time of the disclosure of the real principal as if the agent had been the real contracting party; and is entitled to the same defence, payment, or set-off as he was entitled to at that time against the agent, the apparent principal, notwithstanding that the agent, though intrusted with the goods, was under an agreement with his principal not to sell in his own name.<sup>2</sup> principal was the agent's attorney. Warner v. Comstock, 55 Mich. 615.

But when in a contract of sale the agent has a lien upon the subject-matter of the contract or its proceeds, exceeding or equal to the value, the right of the agent will be paramount to the right of the principal. Hudson v. Granger, 5 B. & Ald. 27.

This rule does not apply to contracts under seal or negotiable instruments signed by the agent in his own name, although acting for a principal. Briggs v. Partridge, 64 N. Y. 357; Spencer v. Field, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 57; Dubois v. Delaware, etc., Canal Co., 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 285; Blood v. Goodrich, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 68; s. c., 24 Am. Dec. 121; Mahoney v. McLean, 26 Minn. 415; Potts v. Rider, 3 Ohio, 70; Hopkins v. Mehaffy, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 126; New Eng. Mar. Ins. Co. v. De Wolf, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 56; Andrews v. Estes, 11 Me. 267; Chandler v. Coe, 54 N. H. 561; Clarke v. Courtney, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 319; Beckham v. Drake, 9 M. & W. 79. Compare Beardsley v. Duntley, 69 N. Y. 577.

1. Morton v. Scull, 23 Ark. 289; Demeritt v. Meserne, 39 N. H. 521; Madison, etc., R. Co. v. Norwich Sav. Soc., 24 Ind. 457; Mutual Benefit Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 48 Ind. 264; Southern Expr. Co. v. Palmer, 48 Ga. 85; Brown v. Hartford F. Ins. Co., 117 Mass. 479; Law v. Grant, 37 Wis. 548; Barber v. Britton, 26 Vt. 112; Crump v. U. S. Mining Co., 7 Gratt. (Va.) 352; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 116; New York & N. H. R. Co. v. Schuyler, 34 N. Y. 30; Elwell v. Chamberlin, 31 N. Y. 611, 619; Craus v. Hunter, 28 N. Y. 389;

Bennett v. Judson, 21 N. Y. 238; Sandford v. Handy, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 260; North River Bank v. Aymar, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 262.

An agent's talk with strangers concerning past transactions of his employer is not res gestæ either in point of time or in relation to parties, and, being of no account as proof, cannot affect his principal's rights under a contract on which the transactions were based. Benner v. Feige, 51 Mich. 568.

Where the circumstances are, however, of such a character as to put a third party on the inquiry about the representations of the agent, the principal will not be held liable for such representations, and the burden of proof is on the third party to show that he acted in entire good faith and had no reason to doubt the representations of the agent. Wheeler v. McCreary, 64 Ala. 319; Citizens' Sav. Bank v. Hart, 32 La. Ann. 22.

2. Traub v. Milliken, 57 Me. 63; Koch v. Willi, 63 Ill. 144; Conklin v. Leeds, 58 Ill. 178; Saladin v. Mitchell, 45 Ill. 79; Huntington v. Knox, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 371; Locke v. Lewis, 124 Mass. 1, 7; Kingsley v. Davis, 104 Mass. 178; Lime Rock Bank v. Plimpton, 17 Pick. (Mass.) 159; Bryant v. Wells, 56 N. H. 152; Foster v. Smith, 2 Cold. (Tenn.) 474; Roach v. Turk, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 708; Miller v. Sullivan, 39 Ohio St. 79; Woodruff v. McGehee, 30 Ga. 158; Peel v. Shepherd, 58 Ga. 365; Stewart v. Woodward, 50 Vt. 78; Culver v. Bigelow, 43 Vt. 249; Miller v. Lea, 35 Md. 396; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 417; Merrick's Est., 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 9; Lock's Appeal, 72 Pa. St. 491; Taintor v. Pren- dergast, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 72; Wheeler & W. Mfg. Co. v. Givan, 65 Mo. 89; Leeds v. Mar. Ins. Co. 6 Wheat. (U. S.) 565; Fisher v. Kempton, 7 M. G. & S. 687; George v. Claggett, 7 T. Rep. 359; Isberg v. Bowden, 8 Exch. 852.

Where an agent is known to act in behalf of a principal no such claim can be set off.<sup>1</sup>

Where a third party acts under a misapprehension, not brought about by the principal, the principle does not apply. Brown v. Morris, 83 N. Car. 251.

Property purchased by an agent in his own name for an undisclosed principal cannot be seized for the debt of the agent unless his creditor has been misled by appearances or the conduct of the parties into giving him credit upon a false basis. Reed v. McIlroy, 44 Ark. 346. See Loomis v. Barker, 69 Ill. 360.

Where a purchaser of property from the agent of an undisclosed principal treats the agent as owner, having no good reason to know that he is acting as agent, and pays the whole or part of the purchase-money to him, this will be a good defence to an action by the principal. Eclipse Wind Mill Co. v. Thorson, 46 Iowa, 181; Renard v. Turner, 42 Ala. 117.

Unless such payments are made after notice by the principal not to pay the agent. Frazier v. Erie Bank, 8 W. & S. (Pa.) 18; Corlies v. Cumming, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 181; Clark v. Smith, 88 Ill. 298; O'Connor v. Arnold, 53 Ind. 203.

Where a principal allowed a clerk who had entire control of the store to hold himself out as the owner, this will not give a creditor of the clerk a right to attach and sell the store for a debt contracted before the commencement of the agency. Benner v. Michel, 23 La. Ann. 489.

1. Ladd v. Arkell, 40 N. Y. Super. Ct. 150; Wright v. Cabot, 47 N. Y. Super. Ct. 229; Miller v. Lea, 35 Md. 396; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 417; Ilsey v. Merriam, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 242; Graham v. Duckwall, 8 Bush (Ky.), 12; Frame v. William Penn Coal Co., 97 Pa. St. 309; Saladin v. Mitchell, 45 Ill. 79; Hurlburt v. Pac. Ins. Co., 2 Sumner (U. S.), 471; Semenza v. Brinsley, 18 C. B. N. S. 467.

If an agent appointed to collect a debt is indebted to the debtor, the latter cannot offset against the debt due from him to the principal claims against the agent. Wilson v. Codman, 3 Cranch. (U. S.) 193, 204.

Where a broker sells goods without disclosing the name of his principal, inasmuch as he acts beyond the scope of his authority, the buyer cannot set off a debt due from the broker to him against the demand for the goods made by the principal. Evans v. Waln, 71 Pa. St. 69; Graham v. Duckwall, 8 Bush (Ky.), 12; Baring v. Corrie, 2 B. & Ald. 143.

A party who is authorized to sell goods for another under a written contract not recorded, and is bound by the terms thereof to turn over the proceeds, whether in cash or in notes, to his principal, and who is after certain specified dates to become liable for any unsold goods, does not prior to that date hold the goods under a conditional sale; nor can a purchaser insist upon an offset of any claim he may hold against the agent. Conable v. Lynch, 45 Iowa, 84.

A woman doing business, with her husband as agent, authorized him to sell certain notes belonging to her in order to raise money to use in the business. He indorsed the notes as agent, and then sold them to a customer to whom he was individually indebted, and without his wife's permission he allowed the purchaser to apply part of the purchase-price upon his debt. Held, (1) that the indorsement was notice enough to put the purchaser on inquiry as to his authority to make such application; (2) that in an action by the wife against the purchaser to recover back the money so applied, a contract between the husband and the purchaser, with which the wife was not shown to be connected and which provided for the payment of the husband's debt by allowances in transactions with him in the course of the wife's business, was wholly irrelevant to the issue. The agent could not charge his wife's business with this debt without showing her assent to this arrangement; and if he could, this application of money was not an allowance within the terms of the contract. McBain v. Seligman, 58 Mich. 204.

From 1871 until April 1, 1875, P. was engaged in manufacturing glassware under the name of the L. Glass Co. April 1, 1875, T. took possession of the glassworks under a mortgage from P., and appointed him his agent. From that time T. carried on the business under the name of the L. Glass Co. In 1877 P. told one S., the plaintiff's agent, that if he would secure an order for the manufacture of bottles by the L. Glass Co., the plaintiff's note against him should be paid out of the pro-

If the character of the agent is equivocal, if he is known to be in the habit of selling sometimes as principal and sometimes as agent, a purchaser of the agent is bound to inquire in what character he acts in the transaction; and if he makes no inquiry and it should turn out that he has bought of an undisclosed principal, he will be denied the benefit of a set-off.<sup>1</sup>

May Recover Mispaid Money.—Where a man pays money by his agent which ought not to have been paid, either the agent or the principal may bring an action to recover it back.<sup>2</sup>

Principal may Follow his Property.—Where a principal has been defrauded by his agent, as by an illegal sale, the principal may follow and recover his property or the proceeds thereof, even in the hands of third parties, unless such party be a bona-fide purchaser for value and without notice.<sup>3</sup>

ceeds of the order. S. did not know that T. was carrying on the business, and he did not know of P.'s promise to the plaintiff, and had never authorized P. to pay his private debts from the proceeds of the business. One W. claimed the funds by virtue of a draft from P. as agent of T. Held, the fact that P. agreed to pay this debt from the proceeds of goods sold the trustees can make no difference. T., to whom the goods belonged, gave P. no authority to make such an agreement, and he had no knowledge that he did so. P.'s unauthorized agreement could not change the title to the goods which he sold the trustees. Rice v. Glass Co., 60 N. H. 195.

1. Miller v. Lea, 35 Md. 396; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 417; Stewart v. Woodward, 50 Vt. 78; and see Mitchell v. Dall, 2 Harris. & G. (Md.) 159; Evans v. Waln, 71 Pa. St. 69; Voss v. Robertson, 46 Ala. 483; Richardson v. Farmer, 36 Mo. 35; Hurlbut v. Pac. Ins. Co., 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 471; Boyson v. Coles, 6 M. & S. 14.

2. Farmers', etc., Bank v. King, 57 Pa. St. 202; Sheffer v. Montgomery, 65 Pa. St. 329; United States v. Bartlett, Dav. (U. S.) 9.

3. Conard v. Atl. Ins. Co., 1 Pet. (U. S.) 386; Hourquebie v. Girard, 2 Wash. (U. S.) 212; Dow v. Berry, 18 Fed. Repr. 121; Ill. Trust & Sav. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 15 Fed. Repr. 858; South Park Comm'rs. v. Kerr, 13 Fed. Repr. 502; German Sav. Inst. v. Adae, 8 Fed. Repr. 106; In re Jordan, 2 Fed. Repr. 319; Veil v. Mitchell, 4 Wash. (U. S.) 105; United States v. State Bank, 96 U. S. 30; Riley v. Wheeler, 44 Vt. 189; Thompson v. Perkins, 3 Mason (U. S.), 232; Le Breton v. Pierce, 2 Allen (Mass.), 8; Chesterfield Man. Co. v. Dehon, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 7; Kelley v. Munson,

7 Mass. 319; Kingman v. Pierce, 17 Mass. 247; Farmers', etc., Bank v. King, 57 Pa. St. 202; Sheffer v. Montgomery, 65 Pa. St. 329; Frazier v. Erie Bank, 8 W. & S. (Pa.) 18; Green v. Haskell, 5 R. I. 447; Thompson v. Barnum, 49 Iowa, 392; Bertholf v. Quinlan, 68 Ill. 297; Norris v. Taylor, 49 Ill. 17; Hall v. Sprigg, 7 Martin (La.), 245; Boyd v. McLean, 1 John Ch. (N. Y.) 582; Meiggs v. Meiggs, 15 Hun (N. Y.), 453; Burnham v. Holt, 14 N. H. 367; Hill v. Coolidge, 33 Ark. 621; Atkinson v. Ward, 2 South W. Repr. (Ark.) 77; Arnold v. Robins, 5 Atl. Repr. (N. J.) 173; Riehl v. Evansville Foundry Co., 3 N. E. Repr. (Ind.) 633; Third Nat. Bank v. Stillwater Gas Co., 30 N. W. Repr. (Minn.) 440; Neely v. Rood, 19 N. W. Repr. (Mich.) 920; Peak v. Ellicott, 1 Pac. Repr. (Kans.) 499.

Or unless it is so mixed with other property that it can no more be distinguished. Conard v. Atl. Ins. Co., 1 Pet. (U. S.) 386.

The relation between a commission agent for the sale of goods and his principal is fiduciary; and in the absence of an express agreement or one implied by the course of business or dealing between them, giving the former the right to appropriate to his own use the proceeds of sales of his principal's goods, such proceeds belong to the principal, subject to the lien of the agent for commissions, advances, and other charges, and the principal may follow and reclaim them so long as the identity is not lost, subject to the rights of a bona-fide purchaser for value.

Where a firm of commission merchants which was insolvent, for the purpose of protecting its principals opened a bank account in the name of the firm, with the word "agent" added, the bank

Principal's Rights as to Third Parties. AGENCY. Rights of Agent against Principal.

For Torts.—A principal has a right of action against third parties for torts committed either alone or in collusion with the agent.<sup>1</sup>

16. Rights of Agent against Principal.—Lien.—In cases of agency there generally exists a particular right of lien in the agent for all his commissions, expenditures, advances, and services in and about the property or thing intrusted to his agency, whenever they were proper or necessary or incident thereto.<sup>2</sup> having knowledge of such purpose, and deposited to the credit of that account the proceeds of sales of goods of a principal, and on settlement gave to him a check for the balance belonging to him, held, that the bank had no right to charge against the account an individual debt of the firm, even with its consent. Also held, that the right of the principal was not affected by the fact that the agents used the specific proceeds of the sales and deposited other moneys to make up the amount so used; that such deposits, being substituted for the original proceeds, became impressed with the trust, and subject to the same equities. Also held, it was immaterial that the proceeds of sales of goods belonging to other principals were deposited in the same account; that, in the absence of proof to the contrary, the presumption was that the fund was adequate to protect all interests, and the check operated as a setting apart of so much to satisfy the claim of the principal to whom it was delivered. Baker v. N. Y. Nat. Exch. Bank, 100 N. Y. 31.

It can make no difference whether the conversion is made at the time of the contract of purchase or afterwards. So long as the rights of innocent purchasers have not intervened, the only question is the identity of the trust fund. Preston v. McMillan, 58 Ala. 84; Lehman v. Lewis, 62 Ala. 129; Burks v. Burks, 7 Baxt. (Tenn.) 353; Turner v. Pettigrew, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 438; Haines v. Haines, 54 Ill. 74; Dyer v. Jacoway, 42 Ark. 186.

Where a factor keeps the funds arising from his business, as such, separate from his individual funds, by depositing in bank to a separate "brokerage account" the drafts received for goods sold for his customers, that these drafts include his commissions on such sales is not such a mingling of his own with the trust fund as will prevent the owner of the goods sold from following the fund, nor such as will enable the factor's general creditors to reach it by attachment. Richardson v. St. Louis Nat. Bank, 10 Mo. App. 246.

The principal may recover the proceeds of his property, as a bill of exchange indorsed to a purchasing broker and discounted by him shortly before his death; but the burden of identification is upon him. Boisblanc's Succession, 32 La. Ann. 109.

1. Proudfoot v. Wightman, 78 Ill. 553; Mackintosh v. Eliot Bank, 123 Mass. 393; White v. Dolliver, 113 Mass. 400; Southern Exp. Co. v. Palmer, 48 Ga. 85. Compare Mason v. Bauman, 62 Ill. 76.

2. Story on Agency, § 373; Lovett v. Brown, 40 N. H. 511; Wilson v. Martin, 40 N. H. 88; Muller v. Pondir, 55 N. Y. 326; Gregory v. Stryker, 2 Denio (N. Y.), 638; Moore v. Hitchcock, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 292; Schmidt v. Blood, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 268; s. c., 24 Am. Dec. 143; Morgan v. Congdon, 4 N. Y. 551; Farrington v. Meek, 30 Miss. 578; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 627; Nevan v. Roup, 8 Iowa, 207; U. S. Exp. Co. v. Haines, 67 Ill. 140; McIntyre v. Carver, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 392; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 519; Basstable v. Denegree, 22 La. Ann. 124.

Unless he waives his right to it. Chandler v. Belden, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 157; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 193; Fieldings v. Mills, 2 Bosw. (N. Y.) 489; Trust v. Pirson, 1 Hilt. (N. Y.) 293; s. c., 3 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 84; Oakley v. Crenshaw, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 250; Bailey v. Adams, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 201; Williams v. Littlefield, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 362; Ferguson v. Furnace Co., 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 345; Look v. Comstock, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 244; McFarland v. Wheeler, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 467; Grinnell v. Cook, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 485; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 663; Sawyer v. Lorillard, 48 Ala. 332; Pickett v. Bullock, 52 N. H. 354; Woollen Mfg. Co. v. Huntley, 8 N. H. 441; Bowman v. Hilton, 11 Ohio, 303; Harkness v. Toulmin, 25 Mich. 80; Perkins v. Boardman, 14 Gray (Mass.), 481; Way v. Davidson, 12 Gray (Mass.), 465; Holly v. Huggeford, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 76; Sears v. Wills, 4 Allen (Mass.), 212; Jarvis v. Rogers, 15 Mass. 389; Hapgood v. Batchellor, 4 Metc. (Mass.) 573; Bower's Appeal, 68 Pa. St. 126; McDevitt v. Hays, 70 Pa. St. 373; Downer v. Bank, Wright (Ohio), 477; Eastman v. Avery, 23 Me. 248; Collins v. Buck, 63 Me. 459; Robinson v. Larra-

Does not Impair Right to Sue.—The agent's right to a lien on the goods of his principal in his possession does not impair his right of action against the principal for commissions, expenditures, advances, and services, and an action against the principal will not invalidate the lien.<sup>1</sup>

17. Ratification.—Ratified Acts have Same Effect as those duly Authorized.—An unauthorized act by one assuming to be an agent for another may be ratified by the principal, and such ratification gives to the act the same effect as if it were previously duly authorized. This applies to corporations as well as individuals.<sup>2</sup> bee, 63 Me. 116; Foltz v. Peters, 16 Ind. 244; Jones v. Vantress, 23 Ind. 533; Gaines v. Casey, 10 Bush (Ky.), 92; Ducker v. Gray, 3 J. J. Marsh (Ky.), 163; Kirkham v. Boston, 67 Ill. 599; Randel v. Brown, 2 How. (U. S.) 406; Gilman v. Brown, 1 Mason (U. S.), 191.

To entitle the agent to a lien the agent must have received the goods on which the lien is supposed to attach by consent of the principal. Possession acquired by a mere voluntary service rendered gives no lien. Van Buskirk v. Purinton, 2 Hall (N. Y.), 561; Robinson v. Baker, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 137; Clark v. R. R., 9 Gray (Mass.), 231; Briggs v. R. R., 6 Allen (Mass.), 246; Jarvis v. Rogers, 15 Mass. 389; Preston v. Neale, 12 Gray (Mass.), 222; Pearce v. Roberts, 27 Mo. 179.

1. Consequa v. Fanning, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 587; Hoy v. Reade, 1 Sweeney (N. Y.) 626; Corlies v. Cummings, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 181; Colley v. Merrill, 6 Greenl. (Me.) 50; Stocking v. Page, 1 Day (Conn.), 519; Upham v. Lefavour, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 174; Beckwith v. Sibley, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 482; Burrill v. Phillips, 1 Gall. (U. S.) 360; Peisch v. Dickson, 1 Mason (U. S.), 10.

For liens in general, see LIENS; for special liens see ATTORNEYS; AUCTIONEERS; BANKERS; BROKERS; CARRIERS; COMMISSION AGENTS; SHIPPING.

2. Sentell v. Kennedy, 29 La. Ann. 679; Oliver v. Johnson, 24 La. Ann. 460; Rich v. State Nat. Bank, 7 Neb. 201; Lee v. West, 47 Ga. 311; Bray v. Gunn, 53 Ga. 144; Weaver v. Ogletree, 39 Ga. 586; Cairnes v. Bleeker, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 300; Peterson v. Mayor of New York, 17 N. Y. 449; Rogers v. Kneeland, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 218; Watson v. Gray, 4 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 540; Woodward v. Suydam, 11 Ohio, 360; Kelsey v. Nat. Bank of Crawford, 69 Pa. St. 426; Salem Bank v. Gloucester Bank, 17 Mass. 1; Frothingham v. Haley, 3 Mass. 68; Lent v. Padleford, 10 Mass.

230; Fisher v. Willard, 13 Mass. 370; Bulkley v. Derby Fishing Co., 2 Conn. 252; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 271; Church v. Sterling, 16 Conn. 388; Baker v. Cotter, 45 Me. 236; Wilson v. Dame, 58 N. H. 392; Despatch Line v. Belamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 203; Brooks v. Fletcher, 56 Vt. 624; Whitwell v. Warner, 20 Vt. 425; Bigelow v. Denison, 23 Vt. 564; St. Louis Nat. Stock Yard v. O'Reilly, 85 Ill. 546; Mason v. Caldwell, 5 Gil. (Ill.) 196; s. c., 48 Am. Dec. 330; City of Detroit v. Jackson, 1 Doug. (Mich.) 106; Hall v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 48 Wis. 317; Stewart v. Mather, 32 Wis. 344; Berger's Appeal, 96 Pa. St. 443; Nesbitt v. Helser, 49 Mo. 383; Summerville v. Hannibal R. Co., 62 Mo. 391; Golson v. Ebert, 52 Mo. 260; Goss v. Stevens, 32 Minn. 472; Wisconsin v. Torinus, 26 Minn. 1; Sheffield v. Ladue, 16 Minn. 388; Clealand v. Walker, 11 Ala. 1058; Chapman v. Lee, 47 Ala. 143; Downer v. Morrison, 2 Gratt. (Va.) 237; State v. Shaw, 28 Iowa. 67; Blanchard v. Waite, 28 Me. 51; Gulick v. Grover, 33 N. J. L. 463; Clark v. Van Riemsdyk, 9 Cranch. (U. S.) 153; Fleckner v. U. S. Bank, 8 Wheat. (U. S.) 338; Drakeley v. Gregg, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 242.

One H., as the agent of some one not named in the contract, entered into a written contract with the plaintiffs for the construction of a railway, under circumstances which justified the plaintiff in believing that H. was contracting as the agent of the defending corporation. The defendant corporation by subsequent acts recognized and ratified the contract as its own. Held, that it could not afterwards avoid liability under the contract, on the ground that H. had not been appointed agent of the corporation by its proper board of directors, and that he was not an officer of the company sustaining such relations to it that the law will imply his authority to bind it as its agent. Flynn v. Des Moines, etc., R. Co., 63 Iowa, 492.

Must be Voidable.—The act to be ratified must be voidable merely and not absolutely void. A principal cannot ratify an act which he could not have authorized in the first instance.<sup>1</sup>

The ratification of an agent's acts, with knowledge of the circumstances, relates back to the time when such acts were performed, and binds the principal the same as if authority had been given in advance. Story Agency (8th Ed.), §§ 239, 242; U. S. Exp. Co. v. Rawson, 106 Ind. 215; Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. McVay, 98 Ind. 391; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 770; Hammond v. Hinness, 21 Mich. 374; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 490; Davis v. School Distr., 44 N. H. 399; Low v. Connecticut, etc., R. Co., 46 N. H. 284; Grant v. Beard, 50 N. H. 259; Despatch Line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 203; Weed v. Carpenter, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 219; Towle v. Stevenson, 1 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 110; Brower v. Lewis, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 574; Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 79; Lawrence v. Taylor, 5 Hill (N. Y.), 107; Hankins v. Baker, 46 N. Y. 666; Como v. Port Henry Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 27; Reynolds v. Dothard, 11 Ala. 531; McGowen v. Garrard, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 479; Lee v. Fontaine, 10 Ala. 755; s. c., 44 Am. Dec. 505; Cox v. Robinson, 2 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 91; Brigham v. Peters, 1 Gray (Mass.), 139; McIntyre v. Park, 11 Gray (Mass.), 102; Williams v. Mitchell, 17 Mass. 98; Frothingham v. Haley, 3 Mass. 68; Lent v. Padelford, 10 Mass. 230, 236; Odiorne v. Maxcy, 15 Mass. 39; Fisher v. Willard, 13 Mass. 379; Forsyth v. Day, 41 Me. 382; Cowan v. Wheeler, 31 Me. 439; Lowry v. Harris, 12 Minn. 255; Goss v. Stevens, 32 Minn. 472; Pollock v. Cohen, 32 Ohio St. 514; Kehler v. Kemble, 26 La. Ann. 713; Sentell v. Kennedy, 29 La. Ann. 679; Bloodworth v. Jacobs, 2 La. Ann. 25; Dunbar v. Bullard, 2 La. Ann. 810; Overby v. Overby, 18 La. Ann. 546; Meyers v. Simmons, 19 La. Ann. 370; Roby v. Cossitt, 78 Ill. 638; Goodell v. Woodruff, 20 Ill. 191; Ohio, etc., R. Co. v. Middleton, 20 Ill. 629; Union, etc., Co. v. Rocky Mt. Bank, 2 Colo. 248; Southern Exp. Co. v. Palmer, 48 Ga. 85; Perry v. Hudson, 10 Ga. 362; Kelsey v. Nat. Bank of Crawford, 69 Pa. St. 426; Workman v. Guthrie, 29 Pa. St. 495; s. c., 72 Am. Dec. 654; Vanhorne v. Frick, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 90; Gulick v. Grover, 33 N. J. L. 463; Vincent v. Rather, 31 Tex. 77; Brock v. Jones, 16 Tex. 461; Irons v. Reyburn, 11 Ark. 378; Bell v. Ryerson, 11 Iowa, 233; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 142; Coffin v. Gephart, 18

Iowa, 256; Barbour v. Craig, 6 Litt. (Ky.) 213; Baker v. Byrne, 10 Miss. 193; Kountz v. Price, 40 Miss. 341; Ruggles v. Washington Co., 3 Mo. 496; Little v. Stettheimer, 13 Mo. 572; Weiseiger v. Wheeler, 14 Wis. 101; Brown v. La Crosse City, etc., Co., 21 Wis. 51; Drakely v. Gregg, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 242; Courcier v. Ritter, 4 Wash. (U. S.) 549; Den v. Wright, Pet. U. S. C. Ct. 64; Clark v. Van Riemsdyk, 9 Cranch. (U. S.) 153; Bronson v. Chappell, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 681.

Where the local agent of an express company, without authority to accept partial payment upon a draft held by him for collection, receives such payment and holds the same subject to instructions from the general agent, a ratification by such general agent dates back and binds the company the same as if authority to receive the partial payment had been given in advance, and renders the company liable for the misappropriation of the money by the local agent. U. S. Expr. Co. v. Rawson, 106 Ind. 215.

The ratification of a contract originally made by one without authority, will relieve the agent from all responsibility if the contract purports to be made by him merely as agent, although without such ratification he would be liable to the other party and also in some cases to the principal. Berger's App., 96 Pa. St. 443.

1. De Cuir v. Le Jeune, 15 La. Ann. 569; Harrison v. McHenry, 9 Ga. 164; s. c., 52 Am. Dec. 435; State v. Matthis, 1 Hill (S. Car.), 37; O'Connor v. Arnold, 53 Ind. 203; Price v. Grand Rapids, etc., R. Co., 13 Ind. 58; Richardson v. Payne, 114 Mass. 429; Seery v. Springfield, 112 Mass. 512; Armitage v. Widoc, 36 Mich. 124; McCracken v. City of San Francisco, 16 Cal. 591; Supervisors v. Arrighi, 54 Miss. 668; School Dist. v. Aetna Ins. Co., 62 Me. 330; Fitzpatrick v. School Comm'rs, 7 Humph. (Tenn.) 224; s. c., 46 Am. Dec. 76.

Where a fraud is of such a character as to involve a crime, the ratification of the act from which it springs is opposed to public policy and cannot be permitted. When the indorsement of a note is forged, such indorsement cannot be ratified by the person whose name is forged, as the act is criminal and against public policy. Shisler v. Vandike, 92 Pa. St. 447; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 702; McHugh v. Schuyllkill,

Act must be done in Name of Principal.—Where the party making the contract had no authority to contract for the third person, and did not profess, at the time, to act for him, the subsequent assent of such third party to be bound as principal has no operation. A ratification is only effectual when the act is done by a person professedly acting as the agent of the party sought to be charged as principal.<sup>1</sup>

67 Pa. St. 391; s. c., 5 Am. Rep. 445; Workman v. Wright, 33 Ohio. St. 405; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 546.

When the directors of a corporation undertake to enter into a contract which is beyond the powers of a corporation, such contract is void and cannot be ratified. Ashbury, etc., Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653.

The government is liable for the illegal acts of its agents when expressly ratified. Wiggins v. U. S., 3 Ct. of Cl. 412.

1. Collins v. Waggoner, Breese (Ill.), 26; Beveridge v. Rawson, 51 Ill. 504; Grund v. Van Vleck, 69 Ill. 478; Roby v. Cossett, 78 Ill. 638; Forsyth v. Day, 46 Me. 176; Crowder v. Reed, 80 Ind. 1; Harrison v. Mitchell, 13 La. Ann. 260; Harper v. Devene, 10 La. Ann. 724; Collins v. Suau, 7 Robt. (N. Y.) 623; Fellows v. Comm'rs, 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 655; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Walworth, 1 N. Y. 435; Brainerd v. Dunning, 30 N. Y. 211; Vanderbilt v. Turnpike Co., 2 N. Y. 479; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 315; Alldred v. Bray, 41 Mo. 484.

One cannot be held to have ratified the unauthorized acts of another as his agent where there was no agency. Hammerslough v. Cheatham, 84 Mo. 13.

Where one has wrongfully taken the property of another and sold it, not as agent, but on his own account, mere silence upon the part of the owner does not confirm the sale; the confirmation must rest upon some consideration upholding it, or upon an estoppel. Hamlin v. Sears, 82 N. Y. 329; Workman v. Wright, 33 Ohio St. 405; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 546.

A mere promise to the obligee by a party whose name has been signed to a note by the principal therein, without the knowledge or consent of the promissor to pay the note, or a part of it, no previous relation of principal and agent existing between the parties, is without consideration and void. Such a promise cannot be regarded as a ratification of the act, and the note as to the promissor is invalid. Owsley v. Phillips, 78 Ky. 517; s. c., 39 Am. Rep. 258; Shisler v. Vandike, 92 Pa. St. 447; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 702; McHugh v. Schuykill Co., 67 Pa. St. 391; s. c., 5 Am. Rep. 445; Brook v.

Hook, L. R. 6 Exch. 99; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 549, note; Mackenzie v. British Linen Co., L. R. 6 App. Cas. 82. See Whiteford v. Monroe, 17 Md. 135; Walters v. Monroe, 17 Md. 154; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 328; Fenny v. Taylor, 33 Md. 323; Duncunge v. Forgay, 15 La. Ann. 37.

A voluntary payment of a certain sum to indemnify for expenses incurred in a service voluntarily rendered is not a ratification which makes the payee the agent of the principal as regards such services. Camp v. U. S., 113 U. S. 648.

But where A without authority empowered B to receive money for C, it was held that C might ratify A's actions and hold him responsible for the money; B being regarded as A's agent. Strickland v. Hudson, 55 Miss. 235.

It has been held that the ratification of a forgery, like the ratification of any other unauthorized contract will give the forged instrument the same power as if the signature had been duly authorized. Howard v. Duncan, 3 Lans. (N. Y.) 174; Greenfield Bank v. Crafts, 4 Allen (Mass.), 447; Wellington v. Jackson, 121 Mass. 157; Negley v. Linsday, 67 Pa. St. 217; s. c., 5 Am. Rep. 427; Hefner v. Vandolah, 62 Ill. 483; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 106; Thorn v. Bell, Lalor's Supl. (N. Y.) 430.

Other cases, however, hold that such ratification can work only as an estoppel where a third party acting upon the strength of the ratification would suffer detriment, or where the ratification was given for a consideration. Crout v. De Wolf, 1 R. I. 393; Forsyth v. Day, 46 Me. 177; Corser v. Paul, 41 N. H. 24; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 753; Union Bank v. Middlebrook, 33 Conn. 95; Fitzpatrick v. School Comm'rs, 7 Humph. (Tenn.) 224; s. c., 46 Am. Dec. 76; Livrigs v. Wiler, 32 Ill. 387; Charles River Bank v. Davis, 100 Mass. 413. And see Rudd v. Matthews, 79 Ky. 479; s. c., 42 Am. Rep. 231, where defendant, whose name had been forged as surety on a note, on being shown the note by the owner admitted the signature was genuine, and promised to pay the note, supposing he had signed the note. The owner was thus induced to forbear suit until the maker became insolvent. Held, that the defendant was

Principal must be in Existence.—The person in whose behalf the act is done must be in existence at the time of its performance, except in cases governed by rules of equity.<sup>1</sup>

Must have Knowledge of all Facts.—The person who undertakes to ratify must do so with a knowledge of all material circumstances, or with an intent to take all liability without such knowledge.<sup>2</sup> estopped from setting up that his signature was forged. S. P. Heffren v. Dawson, 63 Ill. 93. In Casco Bank v. Keene, 53 Me. 103, it was held that one who adopts a signature knowing it to be forged is estopped from denying its genuineness, when upon the strength of such adoption the bank refrained from proceedings against the forger.

In Woodruff v. Munroe, 33 Md. 147, it was held that if the party whose name is forged adopted the note prior to its maturity, and by such adoption assisted in its negotiation, he would be estopped from setting up the forgery in a suit by a bona-fide holder. But any admission made subsequent to the maturity of the note would not be evidence that he had authorized the indorsement of his name thereon.

1. Stainsby v. Frazier, etc., Co., 3 Daly (N. Y.), 98; Marchand v. Loan Assoc., 26 La. Ann. 389.

So where an agent had authority from a firm to advance money for the purchase of bills and notes, and after a change in the firm by the admission of new partners, one of the new partners received and receipted for bills and notes so bought, and where the proceeds were used in the new firm's business, it was held that these facts were sufficient to authorize the agent in believing that the previous arrangement was confirmed by the new firm, and to hold the new firm liable on such advances. Callanan v. Van Vleck, 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 324. See Sinclair v. Galland, 8 Daly (N. Y.), 508.

An incorporated company will be bound by the agreement of a majority of its individual members acting before incorporation on its behalf, when the company has received the full benefit of the consideration for the agreement. Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Christy, 79 Pa. St. 54; Grape Sugar, etc., Co. v. Small, 40 Md. 395; 46 N. H. 284; 28 Vt. 401. Compare Safety Dep. L. I. Co. v. Smith, 65 Ill. 309; Rockford, etc., R. Co. v. Sage, 65 Ill. 328; Western Screw, etc., Co. v. Consley, 72 Ill. 531; 27 Conn. 170; 31 Md. 59.

Where a corporation at the date of a contract had not filed its articles of association, as required by statute, but subsequently ratified the contract by recognizing and treating it as valid, this made it in all respects what it would have been if the requisite corporate power had existed when it was entered into. Whitney v. Wyman, 11 Otto (U. S.), 392.

A lease was taken by A in trust for a corporation thereafter to be formed. Held, that it created on the formation of such corporation, and upon its receiving an assignment of such lease, with knowledge of the terms upon which it was executed and received from the lessor A, a liability in equity, on the part of such corporation, to pay the rent to the lessor. Van Schaick v. Third Ave. R. Co., 38 N. Y. 346. See also Lorillard v. Lorillard, 4 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 210; Borrell v. Newell, 3 Daly (N. Y.), 233; Nicoll v. Burke, 78 N. Y. 580; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Gazzan, 32 Pa. St. 340; Rockford, etc., R. Co. v. Sage, 65 Ill. 328.

2. Roberts v. Rumley, 58 Iowa, 301; Tidrick v. Rice, 13 Iowa, 214; White v. Morgan, 42 Iowa, 113; Potter v. Harvey, 30 Iowa, 502; Bryant v. Moore, 26 Me. 84; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 96; Morrell v. Dixfield, 30 Me. 157; Hovey v. Brown, 59 N. H. 114; Grant v. Beard, 50 N. H. 139; Lester v. Kinne, 37 Conn. 9; Thacher v. Pray, 113 Mass. 291; Meyer v. Baldwin, 52 Mass. 263; Dickinson v. Conway, 12 Allen (Mass.), 487; Coombs v. Scott, 12 Allen (Mass.), 493; McIntyre v. Park, 11 Gray (Mass.), 102; Dean v. Bassett, 57 Cal. 640; Dupont v. Wertheman, 10 Cal. 354; Billings v. Morrow, 7 Cal. 171; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 235; Miller v. Board of Education, 44 Cal. 166; Thompson v. Craig, 16 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 29; Brass v. Worth, 40 Barb. (N. Y.) 648; Roach v. Coe, 1 E. D. Smith (N. Y.), 175; Hoffman v. Livingston, 46 N. Y. Super. Ct. 552; Craighead v. Peterson, 72 N. Y. 279; Rowan v. Hyatt, 45 N. Y. 138; Seymour v. Wyckoff, 10 N. Y. 213; Ritch v. Smith, 82 N. Y. 627; People v. Schuyler, 17 Hun (N. Y.), 106; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Gazzan, 32 Pa. St. 340; Kerr v. Sharp, 83 Ill. 199; Stein v. Kendall, 1 Ill. App. 101; Mathews v. Hamilton, 23 Ill. 470; Reynolds v. Ferree, 86 Ill. 570; Proctor v. Tows, 115 Ill. 138; Dodge v. McDonnell, 14 Wis. 553; Etna Ins. Co. v. N. W. Iron Co., 21 Wis. 458;

Must be Capable of Ratifying.—The principal must also be capable of ratifying the act.<sup>1</sup>

Woodbury v. Larned, 5 Minn. 339; Humphrey v. Havens, 12 Minn. 298; Bannon v. Warfield, 44 Md. 22; Hoffman Steam Coal Co. v. Cumberland, etc., Co., 16 Md. 456; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 311; Adams Exp. Co. v. Trego, 35 Md. 47; Pairo v. Vickery, 37 Md. 467; Trader v. Lowe, 45 Md. 1; Hardeman v. Ford, 12 Ga. 205; Mapp v. Phillips, 32 Ga. 72; Turner v. Wilcox, 54 Ga. 593; Delaney v. Levi, 19 La. Ann. 251; Mummy v. Haggerty, 15 La. Ann. 268; Union, etc., Co. v. Rocky Mt. Bank, 2 Colo. 565; Pacific Rolling Mill Co. v. Dayton, etc., R. Co., 7 Sawyer (U. S.), 61; Rust v. Eaton, 24 Fed. Repr. 830; Bossean v. O'Brien, 4 Biss. (U. S.) 395; Owings v. Hall, 9 Pet. (U. S.) 607; Fletcher v. Dysart, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 413; Bank of Owensboro v. Western Bank, 13 Bush. (Ky.) 526; Bott v. McCoy, 20 Ala. 578; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 223; Howe Machine Co. v. Ashley, 60 Ala. 496; Herring v. Skaggs, 77 Ala. 446; Spooner v. Thompson, 48 Vt. 259; Mulford v. Minch, 3 Stockt. Ch. (N. J.) 16; s. c., 64 Am. Dec. 472; Manning v. Gasharie, 27 Ind. 399; Williams v. Storm, 6 Cold. (Tenn.) 203; Commercial Bank v. Jones, 18 Tex. 801; Vincent v. Rather, 31 Tex. 77; Snow v. Grace, 29 Ark. 131.

Knowledge by the principal of the unauthorized act of the agent in assuming to make a contract for him which the agent had no power to make is essential to a ratification of the agent's act. If the agent fraudulently misrepresented his authority, and the principal has received the avails of the fraud without knowledge of the agent's fraudulent conduct, the remedy of the party injured against the principal is not upon the contract in damages, but by rescission of the contract and suit for the consideration paid. Titus v. Cairo, etc., R. Co., 46 N. J. L. 393.

If the principal assents while in ignorance of the facts, he may disaffirm the transaction when informed of them. Bannon v. Wanfield, 42 Md. 22; Miller v. Board of Education, 44 Cal. 166; Scott v. Turley, 9 Lea (Tenn.), 631.

Where an agent has defrauded a buyer, the mere reception or retention of the purchase-money by the principal without knowledge of the wrong will not operate as a ratification. Herring v. Skaggs, 73 Ala. 446; S. P. Aetna Ins. Co. v. N. W. Iron Co., 21 Wis. 458.

But if the principal retains the proceeds after he has knowledge he will be held to ratify the act. Davis v. Krum, 12 Mo. App. 279; Wallace v. Lawyer, 90 Ind. 499; McDowell v. McKenzie, 65 Ga. 630; Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 79.

Where a principal accepts security for a debt he will be presumed to have taken it with full knowledge, and to have ratified the arrangements made by his agent. Meehan v. Forrester, 52 N. Y. 277.

Notice of facts to another agent of the principal where the matter is within the scope of his agency affects the principal though not in fact communicated. Union, etc., Co. v. Rocky Mt. Bank, 2 Colo. 565.

Where an agent is deceived about the real facts, and makes representations to his principal based upon the wrong knowledge, the acts of the principal will not be held to ratify a contract. Mummy v. Haggerty, 15 La. Ann. 268; Bank of Owensboro v. Western Bank, 13 Bush. (Ky.), 526.

A principal will not be presumed to have knowledge of deeds on record. Billings v. Morrow, 7 Cal. 171; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 235.

Where a principal received money arising from a sale of goods by his agent, he will not be regarded as confirming the sale if he is ignorant of the facts. Bott v. McCoy, 20 Ala. 578; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 223; Bryant v. Moore, 26 Me. 84; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 96; Pennsylvania, etc., Co. v. Dandridge, 8 Gill & J. (Md.) 248; s. c., 29 Am. Dec. 543; Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 79; Bell v. Cunningham, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 69; Evans v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 26 Ill. 189.

An agent authorized to buy goods for cash, without the knowledge of his principal made an unauthorized purchase on credit. Held, that the acceptance and use of the goods by the principal did not operate as a ratification. Manning v. Gasharie, 27 Ind. 399.

1. McCracken v. San Francisco, 16 Cal. 591.

The acceptance of a town meeting properly called for the purpose of hearing the report of a person assuming to act as agent for the town in conducting certain suits and authorizing him to compromise suits then pending is a ratification of his acts. Kinsley v. Norris, 60 N. H. 131.

The ratification may be made for the principal by an agent who has authority to do the thing which he ratifies. Whitehead v. Wells, 29 Ark. 99; Mound City M. L. Ins. Co. v. Huth, 49 Ala. 529; Palmer v. Cheney, 35 Iowa, 281, 85 Pa.

Disavowal does not prevent Ratification.—If a principal disavows an unauthorized act upon hearing of it, such disavowal does not prevent a subsequent ratification.<sup>1</sup>

Act of Public Officer may be Ratified.—Where an officer executes process in favor of a creditor, although his authority is conferred by law, he acts for and is the agent of the creditor in such a sense that the act is capable of ratification.<sup>2</sup>

Of Tort.—One cannot be liable as for the ratification of a tort that was not committed in his interest.<sup>3</sup>

Ratification cannot be Retracted.—If a principal ratifies and adopts the agents' acts, even for a moment, he is bound by them, and can no more deny the agent's authority.<sup>4</sup>

Cannot be in Part.—There can be no ratification of a part only of a transaction. The law does not allow one part of a transaction to be affirmed and the rest to be disallowed.<sup>5</sup>

St. 299. Compare Lucas v. Brooks, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 436.

A note was issued in the partnership name by a clerk. It was shown to one of the partners, who corrected the date, saying it was all right. Held, a ratification. Harper v. Devene, 10 La. Ann. 724.

Where one of the new members of a firm received property from an agent of the old firm, such act will constitute a ratification. Callanan v. Van Vleck, 36 Barb. N. Y. 324.

1. Woodward v. Harlow, 28 Vt. 338.

2. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Walworth, 1 N. Y. 435.

3. So held where suit was brought against the general agent of a sewing-machine company for a forcible trespass committed by employees while removing a machine by his direction and in compliance with the orders of the company from the premises of one who held it under a sewing-machine lease which had been forfeited. Smith v. Lozo, 42 Mich. 6.

If the principal appropriates the proceeds of a tort, it will be held that it was committed with his knowledge. Exum v. Brister, 35 Miss. 391.

To hold one responsible for a tort not committed by himself nor by his order, his adoption of the same must be explicit and made with a full knowledge of the tort, or at least of the injured party's claim that there has been one. Tucker v. Jerris, 75 Me. 184.

4. Silverman v. Bush, 16 Ill. App. 437; Beall v. January, 62 Mo. 434; Hazleton v. Batchelder, 44 N. H. 40; Clark v. Riemsdyk, 9 Cranch. (U. S.) 153; Vaughn v. Sheridan, 50 Mich. 155; Brock v. Jones, 16 Tex. 461; Andrews v. Aetna Ins. Co., 92 N. Y. 596; Avila v. Manhattan

Chem. Co., 32 Hun (N. Y.), 1; Smith v. Cadogan, 2 T. R. 189.

Affirmance of an assumed agency in the disposition of property, when made with full knowledge of the facts, is a single act; and when a party has once ratified such transaction he cannot afterwards be heard to disaffirm it when it turns out different from his expectations. Whitfield v. Riddle, 78 Ala. 99; McGeoch v. Hooker, 11 Ill. App. 649.

5. Drennan v. Walker, 21 Ark. 539; Seago v. Martin, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 308; Fort v. Coker, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 579; Newall v. Hurlbutt, 2 Vt. 351; Burgess v. Harris, 47 Vt. 322; Benedict v. Smith, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 128; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Walworth, 1 N. Y. 433; Crans v. Hunter, 28 N. Y. 389; Elwell v. Chamberlin, 31 N. Y. 611; Fowler v. N. Y. Gold Exch., 67 N. Y. 138; Corning v. Southland, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 552; Moss v. Rossie, etc., Co., 5 Hill (N. Y.), 137; Widner v. Lane, 14 Mich. 124; Henderson v. Cummings, 44 Ill. 325; Cochran v. Chitwood, 59 Ill. 53; Barhydt v. Clark, 12 Ill. App. 646; Krider v. Weston College, 31 Iowa, 547; Beidman v. Goodell, 56 Iowa, 592; Roberts v. Rumley, 58 Iowa, 301; Warder v. Pattee, 57 Iowa, 515; Southern Exp. Co. v. Palmer, 48 Ga. 85; Hunter v. Stenbridge, 17 Ga. 243; Hardeman v. Ford, 12 Ga. 205; Menkens v. Watson, 27 Mo. 163; Joslin v. Miller, 15 N. W. Repr. (Neb.) 214; New Eng. M. I. Co. v. De Wolf, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 63; Culver v. Ashley, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 300; Peters v. Ballistier, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 495; Hovey v. Blanchard, 13 N. H. 145; Wright v. Boynton, 37 N. H. 9; s. c., 72 Am. Dec. 319; Tasker v. Kenton Ins. Co., 59 N. H. 438; Grant v. Beard, 50 N. H. 139; Strasser v. Conklin, 54 Wis. 102;

After Termination of Agency.—After the agency has terminated, the principal will be held to have ratified any acts in which he continues to acquiesce, and which are done by third parties in ignorance of the termination of the agency.<sup>1</sup>

Form of Ratification.—The form of the ratification should be Saveland v. Green, 40 Wis. 431; Babcock v. Deford, 14 Kans. 408; Coleman v. Stark, 1 Oregon, 115; Billings v. Morrow, 7 Cal. 171; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 235.

An agent made an unauthorized sale, giving a warranty. Held, that as the principal accepted the proceeds of the sale, he ratified both sale and warranty. Cochran v. Chitwood, 59 Ill. 53. Compare Cooley v. Perrine, 41 N. J. L. 322.

Where an agent exceeds his authority, his principal must either wholly ratify or wholly repudiate the transaction. He cannot ratify that portion of the contract which is beneficial to him and repudiate the remainder. Rudasill v. Falls, 92 N. Car. 222.

The principal cannot affirm a loan made by an agent at usurious interest, and repudiate the usurious part. Joslin v. Miller, 14 Neb. 91. See Condit v. Baldwin, 21 N. Y. 219; s. c., 78 Am. Dec. 137; Crawford v. Barkley, 18 Ala. 270; Hodnett v. Tatum, 9 Ga. 70; Henderson v. Cummings, 44 Ill. 325; Widner v. Lane, 14 Mich. 124; Peninsular Bank v. Hanmer, 14 Mich. 208; Coleman v. Stark, 1 Oregon, 115; Elam v. Carruth, 2 La. Ann. 275; Crans v. Hunter, 28 N. Y. 389.

The present suit was upon an indorsement of a guaranty upon commercial paper, made in a firm-name by an agent whose authority is denied. The guaranty was made in the course of a transfer to a bank, which thereupon discounted the note and placed the proceeds to the credit of such firm. A portion of such proceeds was afterwards drawn by such firm by checks to their creditors. The firm is held liable on such guaranty to the extent of proceeds received. It cannot repudiate the agent's authority without restoring the proceeds. The court declined to extend the liability to the remainder of the funds which were drawn out by the same agent, but not used in the firm business. First Nat. Bank v. Oberne, 7 N. East. Repr. (Ill.), 85.

A principal who affirms a contract made for him by his agent must adopt all the instrumentalities employed by the agent to bring it to a consummation. Joslin v. Miller, 14 Neb. 91; New England, etc., Co. v. Hendrickson, 13 Neb. 575; Elwell v. Chamberlain, 31 N. Y. 611.

And he may not ratify or disavow conditionally, as "if he received no harm by it." Fort v. Coker, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 579.

The defendant gave a written order to the plaintiffs through their agent for an organ. The agent seasonably carried an organ substantially like the one ordered to the defendant's house; but in the mean time he had bought another and refused to receive the plaintiffs'. Negotiation ensued, and the agent gave the defendant to understand, and he did understand, that if he would let the organ be set up, the trade should be at an end if he was not satisfied with it. Afterwards the defendant, without cause, thought that he was dissatisfied with its tone, and so notified the agent. Held, in action of book account, that the plaintiffs by claiming a delivery adopted a part of the agent's last transaction, and thereby the whole of it. McClure v. Briggs, 58 Vt. 83.

Where the principal ratified the act of his agent under a misapprehension of its full scope, the act is voidable to the extent of the mistake, and the party can be relieved pro tanto. Miller v. Board of Education, 44 Cal. 166; Baldwin v. Burrows, 47 N. Y. 199.

So if the principal ratifies a sale he does not include a warranty which was unauthorized and of which he had no knowledge. Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 79.

Third parties may by their acts ratify an assumed agency so as to estop them from denying the authority of the agent. Where a party borrows money from another who professes to act only as agent for his principal, the first party cannot put up lack of authority on the part of the agent in defence of an action by the principal for the recovery of the money. Union Minn. Co. v. Rocky Mt. Nat. Bank, 2 Colo. 248.

1. Where an agent entered into a parol contract, void under the statute of frauds, for the purchase of wood, and where after the acceptance of a portion of the wood the agency was terminated, but the vendor, without notice and in ignorance of such termination, delivers the residue of the wood, which was accepted by the former agent; held, that the principal was liable for all the wood delivered at the contract price. Barkley v. Rensselaer, etc., R. Co. 71 N. Y. 205.

the same as required for the original appointment. Where agents might have been orally authorized to make a contract, the unauthorized contracts made in behalf of the principal may be ratified in any manner expressing his assent.<sup>1</sup> But where the contract is required to be under seal a ratification must also be under seal.<sup>2</sup>

Must Refer to Precise Act.—The ratification must refer to the precise act to be ratified. A subsequent extension of the powers of an agent, which would have made the previous act legal if given before the act was done, will be no ratification unless it refers to the act specially.<sup>3</sup>

1. Roby v. Cossitt, 78 Ill. 638; Brown v. Eaton, 21 Minn. 409; Dickerman v. Ashton, 21 Minn. 538; Gose v. Stevens, 32 Minn. 472; Lawrence v. Taylor, 5 Hill (N. Y.), 113; Hanford v. McNair, 9 Wend. (N. Y.), 354; Evans v. Wells, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 324; Worrall v. Munn, 5 N. Y. 240; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 330; Briggs v. Partridge, 64 N. Y. 358; Merrifield v. Parritt, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 590; State v. Spartanburg, etc., R. Co., 8 Shand. (S. Car.) 129. See Breithaupt v. Thurmond, 3 Richm. L. (S. Car.) 216; Adams v. Power, 52 Mass. 828; Hammond v. Hannin, 21 Mich. 374; Powell v. Gossom, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 179; Baines v. Burbridge, 15 La. Ann. 628.

2. Ragan v. Chenault, 78 Ky. 545; Pollard v. Gibbs, 55 Ga. 45; Bragg v. Fessenden, 11 Ill. 544; Ingraham v. Edwards, 64 Ill. 526; Bellas v. Hays, 5 S. & R. (Pa.) 427; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 385; McDowell v. Simpson, 3 Watts (Pa.), 129; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 338; Cooper v. Rankin, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 613; Gordon v. Bulkeley, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 331; Stetson v. Patten, 2 Greenl. (Me.) 358; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 111; Heath v. Nutter 50 Me. 378; Paine v. Tucker, 21 Me. 138; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 255; Turbeville v. Ryan, 1 Humph. (Tenn.) 113; Smith v. Dickinson, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 261; s. c., 44 Am. Dec. 306; Tappan v. Redfield, 1 Halst. Ch. (N. J.) 339; Blood v. Goodrich, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 68; s. c., 24 Am. Dec. 121; s. c., 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 525; 27 Am. Dec. 152; Wells v. Evans, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 251; Hanford v. McNair, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 54; Despatch line v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 231; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 203. Compare Holbrook v. Chamberlain, 116 Mass. 155; s. c., 17 Am. Rep. 146; Swan v. Stedman, 4 Metc. (Mass.) 548; Cady v. Shepherd, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 400; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 379; McIntyre v. Park, 11 Gray (Mass.), 102; Fouch v. Wilson, 59 Ind. 93; Grove v. Hodges 55 Pa. St. 504; Peine v. Weber, 47 Ill. 41; Drumright v. Philpot, 16 Ga. 424; s. c., 60

Am. Dec. 738; McDonald v. Eggleston, 26 Vt. 154; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 303.

Where an attorney appointed by parol executes a bond in the name of the principal and afterward the principal gives him a regular power of attorney, dated prior to the bond, this is a good ratification of the bond. Milliken v. Coombs, 1 Greenl. (Me.) 343; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 70.

A sale of land under parol authority is ratified by an admission of the authority by the principal in his answer to the bill in equity in which the transaction is relied upon. Stoney v. Shultz, 1 Hill Ch. (S. Car.) 465; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 429.

Delivery by the principal of a deed executed by his agent without authority will act as a ratification. Harshaw v. McKesson, 65 N. Car. 688.

3. Moore v. Lockett, 2 Bibb. (Ky.) 67; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 683.

But see Rice v. McLarren, 42 Me. 157, where it was held that a letter authorizing acts which the agent had performed before the receipt of the letter is a ratification.

The ratification is not retroactive to the extent of binding the principal for other acts in excess of the authority of the agent. Baldwin v. Burrows, 47 N. Y. 199.

If intervening rights have been acquired by a third party, such rights cannot be injuriously affected by the ratification. Pollock v. Cohen, 32 Ohio St. 514; Stoddard's Case, 4 Ct. of Claims, 511; Wood v. McCain, 7 Ala. 800; s. c., 42 Am. Dec. 612; Taylor v. Robinson, 14 Cal. 396; Fiske v. Holmes, 41 Me. 441. Compare Williams v. Butler, 35 Ill. 544; Freeman v. Boynton, 7 Mass. 483; Bank of Utica v. Smith, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 230.

The plaintiff sued as assignee of a demand, and it appeared that the alleged assignment had been made by an agent, without authority from the principal; held, that proof of a ratification of the assignment, made subsequently to the commencement of the action, was unavailing. Whittenbrock v. Bellmer, 57 Cal. 12.

May be Implied.—A ratification may be implied, as from the principal's acts; but implied ratifications extend only to such acts of the agent as are known to the principal at the time they are made.<sup>1</sup>

1. Taylor v. Agricultural, etc., Assoc., 68 Ala. 229; Wallace v. Lawyer, 90 Ind. 499; Haus v. Niblack, 80 Ind. 407; Warder v. Pattee, 57 Iowa, 515; Durham v. Carbon Coal Co., 22 Kans. 232; Carter v. Roland, 53 Tex. 540; Filer v. Jenks, 38 Mich. 585; Jennison v. Parker, 7 Mich. 355; Connett v. Chicago, 114 Ill. 233; Searing v. Butler, 69 Ill. 575; Cochran v. Chitwood, 59 Ill. 53; Harrod v. McDaniels, 126 Mass. 413; Curry v. Hale, 15 W. Va. 867; Rowland v. Barnes, 81 N. Car. 234; Succession of Massien, 24 La. Ann. 237; Szymaski v. Plassan, 20 La. Ann. 90; Hazard v. Spears, 2 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 353; Harrett v. Garney, 35 N. Y. Super. Ct. 327. Compare Pope v. Lowitz, 14 Ill. App. 96.

Where the principal accepts the results of the agent's unauthorized act, it will be a ratification. Tooker v. Sloan, 30 N. J. Eq. 394; McDowell v. McKenzie, 65 Ga. 630; Ketchum v. Verdell, 42 Ga. 534; Turner v. Wilcox, 54 Ga. 593; Herring v. Skaggs, 73 Ala. 446; Jones v. Atkinson, 68 Ala. 167; Taylor v. Agricultural, etc., Assoc., 68 Ala. 229; Bacon v. Johnson, 56 Mich. 782; Pratt v. Campbell, Har. Ch. (Mich.) 236; Hutchings v. Ladd, 16 Mich. 493; Nichols v. Shaffer, 30 N. Western Repr. (Mich.) 383; Gardner v. Warren, 17 N. Western Repr. (Mich.) 853; Vaughan v. Sheridan, 15 N. Western Repr. (Mich.) 62; Waterson v. Rogers, 21 Kans. 529; Breed v. Bank, 4 Colo. 481; Fouch v. Wilson, 59 Ind. 93; Beidman v. Goodell, 56 Iowa, 592; Milligan v. Davis, 49 Iowa, 126; Chamberlain v. Collinson, 45 Iowa, 429; Elkenberry v. Edwards, 24 N. Western Repr. (Iowa) 570; White v. Morgan, 42 Iowa, 113; Eadie v. Ashlaugh, 44 Iowa, 519; Pike v. Douglass, 28 Ark. 59; Maddux v. Bevan, 39 Md. 485; Reynolds v. Davison, 34 Md. 662; Seago v. Martin, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 308; Dunn v. Hartford, etc., R. Co., 43 Conn. 434; Frank v. Jenkins, 22 Ohio St. 597; State v. Perry, Wright (Ohio), 662; Arnold v. Spurr, 130 Mass. 347; Bassett v. Brown, 105 Mass. 551; French v. Price, 24 Pick. (Mass.) 13; Cashman v. Loker, 2 Mass. 106; Narragansett Bank v. Atlantic Co., 3 Metc. (Mass.) 282; Ely v. James, 123 Mass. 36; Churchhill v. Palmer, 115 Mass. 310;

Episcopal Charitable Soc. v. Episc. Church, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 372; Wright v. Burbank, 64 Pa. St. 247; Davis v. Krum, 12 Mo. App. 279; Ruggles v. Washington Co., 3 Mo. 496; Hastings v. Bangor House, 18 Me. 436; Low v. Connecticut, etc., R. Co., 46 N. H. 284; Hatch v. Taylor, 10 N. H. 538; Miles v. Ogden, 54 Wis. 573; Reid v. Hibbard, 6 Wis. 175; Morse v. Ryan, 26 Wis. 356; Pierce v. O'Keefe, 11 Wis. 180; Ballston Spa Bank v. Mar. Bank, 16 Wis. 120; Codwise v. Hacker, 1 Cai. (N. Y.) 526; Moss v. Rossie Co., 5 Hill (N. Y.), 137; Palmerton v. Huxford, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 166; Houghton v. Dodge, 5 Bosw. (N. Y.) 326; Farmers', etc., Bank v. Sherman, 6 Bosw. (N. Y.) 181; Smith v. Tracy, 36 N. Y. 79; Randall v. Van Vechten, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 60; Krumm v. Beach, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 293; Harris v. Simmerman, 81 Ill. 413; Sessums v. Henry, 38 Tex. 37; Robinson v. Mut. Ben. L. I. Co., 16 Blatch. (U. S.) 194; Gold Mfg. Co. v. Nat. Bank, 96 U. S. 640; Bank of Columbia v. Patterson, 7 Cranch. (U. S.) 299. Compare Carter v. Roland, 53 Tex. 540.

And that whether a ratification was intended or not. Hazard v. Spears, 2 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 353.

The Baptist State Convention was the legatee and the money was paid to its treasurer. Held, that the convention by accepting and using the money, with knowledge of all the facts, ratified the acts of the treasurer in receiving it, if there were doubt as to his authority. Baptist Convention v. Ladd, 58 Vt. 95.

One who accepts, with a knowledge of all the facts, the avails of a compromise and settlement of a controversy made in his behalf without authority thereby ratifies the settlement. Strasser v. Conklin, 54 Wis. 102; Vermont Bapt. State Co. v. Ladd, 4 Atl. Repr. (Vt.) 635; Jackson v. Badger, 26 N. Western Repr. (Minn.) 908; Adams v. Smith, 9 Pac. Repr. (Nev.) 337; McClelland v. Whiteley, 15 Fed. Repr. 322; Kelly v. Newburyport, etc., R. Co., 6 N. Eastern Repr. (Mass.) 745.

Where an agent without authority accepts a deed of land to his principal as a payment on a debt due the principal, a retention by the latter of the title is a ratification. Miles v. Ogden, 54 Wis. 573.

An agent received Confederate money in payment of a note. He handed the money over to his principal, who re-

Clear Intention must be Shown.—The acts of the principal must, however, show a clear intention to ratify the unauthorized acts of ceived and used it. Held, that it was a ratification. Murray v. Walker, 44 Ga. 58.

If an agent makes an unauthorized sale, and steals the proceeds, and the principal subsequently compromises with the agent, the principal by such compromise ratifies the sale. Ogden v. Marchard, 29 La. Ann. 61. See Bridenbecker v. Lowell, 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 9.

A man aged a business for B, but without authority to purchase on credit, except upon the written order of B. A purchased of C goods without such an order, and C was ignorant of the conditions of the agency. B took possession of the stock and sold it, including the goods sold by C. Held, that B by so doing ratified the purchase by A. Sartwell v. Frost, 122 Mass. 184.

An agent having made, without authority, an exchange of a mule for a horse, a claim and assertion by the principal of right and title to the horse, with knowledge of the facts, is a ratification. Jones v. Atkinson, 68 Ala. 167.

If an agent defrauds a buyer, and the principal with knowledge of the wrong receives or retains the money, he will be held to have ratified the contract. Herring v. Skaggs, 73 Ala. 446.

Where a railroad corporation received railroad material bought upon its credit, and for its use by one of its officers, without authority, and uses it for the corporate purposes for which it was designed, this is an adoption and ratification of the act of the officer. Scott v. Middletown, etc., R. Co., 4 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 114; s. c., 86 N. Y. 200.

A merchant whose agent purchased goods on credit, cannot refuse to pay when he has received and sold the goods, and kept the proceeds; especially where he has paid other bills made by the same agent. McDowell v. McKenzie, 65 Ga. 630.

When an agent without the authority or knowledge of his principal borrows money and applies it to the payment and discharge of the legal liabilities of his principal, and the principal knowingly retains the benefit of such payment, the lender may recover therefor in an action against the principal for money had and received. The principal cannot knowingly retain the benefit of money hired by his agent, in his name, and at the same time legally refuse to repay the loan upon the ground that the agent had no authority to borrow money. Perkins v. Boothby, 71 Me. 91.

A principal who, after knowledge of the terms of a sale made by the agent, does not disaffirm but accepts and enjoys all the benefits thereof, cannot afterwards deny the authority of the agent to make the sale upon those terms. Parish v. Reeve, 63 Wis. 315.

The collection of a small portion of rents due from a tenant under a lease, after knowledge of the making of an unauthorized contract by the lessor's agent, is not a ratification of such contract for the sale of the lands; nor is the retention of the possession of the leased property obtained under such agent's contract, where the lessor had the right to declare a forfeiture and take forcible possession of the demised premises. Torrence v. Shedd, 112 Ill. 466.

Where principal pays notes made by an agent it is a ratification. Harrod v. McDaniels, 126 Mass. 413; Long v. Colburn, 11 Mass. 97; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 160; Dow v. Spenny, 29 Mo. 386; Commercial Bank v. Warren, 15 N. Y. 577. See Ward v. Williams, 26 Ill. 446; s. c., 79 Am. Dec. 385.

Where a principal knowing that his agent has disobeyed instructions settled with him and gave him notes for the balance due, this is a ratification. Beall v. January, 62 Mo. 434.

An agent of A guaranteed the payment of goods that B might order. A agreed to the guarantee provided he had sufficient funds belonging to B to meet the bill, which he had. A delivered a statement of the goods purchased by B to his agent, who paid the account. Held, that A had ratified his agent's act. Burgess v. Harris, 47 Vt. 322.

